Also circular letter G. No. 757, dated, Jena, March 1st, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "In pursuance to G. 751 I have received from the White Star Line copies of communication," and ending with the words, "whether it might relate to the Blue Star Line."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,532.

Also circular letter G. No. 760, dated Jena, March 2nd, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "With reference to the Cunard Line's advance of their steerage rate," and ending with the words, "I shall be glad to learn what the Cunard Line has to say." 3945

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,533.

Also circular letter G. No. 762, dated Jena, March 7th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "Allan Line New Foundland passengers (G. No. 745)," and ending with the words, "I decide that the Award as made must stand."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,534.

3946 Also circular letter G. No. 766, dated Jena, March 9th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Measures for adjustment (G. No. 760)," and ending with the words, "they were writing and upon receipt I shall circularize their reply."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,535.

Also circular letter G. No. 770, dated Jena, March 10th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Measures for adjustment (G. No. 766)," and ending with the words "to the detriment of the other companies."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,536.

3947 Also circular letter G. No. 778, dated Jena, March 16th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Allan Line New Foundland passengers (G. No. 762)," and ending with the words, "for you to deal with the question of Newfoundland passengers." Signed, "Allan Bros. & Co. U. K. Limited, per I. Smith Park, director."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,537.

Also circular letter G. No. 781, dated Jena, March 18th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "North West Transport Line (G. No. 780)," and ending with the words, "as at first fixed 3948 according to G. No. 773 against the 'Campania.' "

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,538.

Also circular letter G. No. 788, dated Jena, March 26th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Hamburg Amerika Line received following cable from New York," and ending with the words, "April second from Portland April twenty-third."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,539.

Also circular letter G. No. 790, dated Jena, March 26th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "North West Transport Line (G. No. 786)," and ending with the words, "their New York office to fix the rate at $27 less $2 commission." 3949

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,540.

Also circular letter G. No. 796, dated Jena, April 4th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "I received the following letter from the Holland-America Line," and ending with the words, "for the perusal of the British Lines who may wish to see it."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,541. 3950

Also circular letter G. No. 797, dated Jena, April 4th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "North West Transport Line (G. No. 790)," end ending with the words, "to instruct their New York office to fix the rate at $27 less $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,542.

Also circular letter G. No. 798, dated Jena, April 5th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "North West Transport Line (G. No. 797)," and ending with the words, "from April second netrate about twenty dollars." 3951

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,543.

Also circular letter G. No. 800, dated Jena, April 6th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "North West Transport Line (G. No. 798)" and ending with the words "including 19 deported passengers."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,544.

Also circular letter G. No. 806, dated Jena, April 9th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning

3952 with the words, "The Holland America Line write," and ending with the words "(opposition steamer) to $24, less $2, commission, which please note."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1545.

Also circular letter G. No. 808, dated Jena, April 11th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Mitrovitz & Bonuschevatz Belgrade (G. No. 789)," and ending with the words, "to the list of disqualified agents."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,546.

Also circular letter G. No. 809, dated Jena, April 12th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning 3953 with the words "Synopsis of Minutes," and ending with the words, "do not come under Agreement AA. I have treated them separately." Signed, "H. Peters."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,547.

Also annex to G. No. 809.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,548.

Also paper headed, "Additions & Amendments to Agreement 'V' " beginning with the words, "For the following steamers the minimum Ocean rates for first-class passengers."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,549.

3954

Also paper headed, "Additions & Amendments to Agreement 'W' " beginning with the words, "For the following steamers the minimum Ocean rates for second-class passengers," and ending with the words "Commission 5% maximum (Minutes 106,125)."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,550.

Also circular letter G. No. 812, dated Jena, April 13th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "North West Transport Line (G. No. 780)," and ending with the words "Tuesday, May 31st, S. S. Ryndam, Kronprinz Wilhelm, Kroonland."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,551. 3955

Also circular letter G. No. 813, dated Jena, April 15th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "North West Transport Line (G. No. 807) Thomson Line (G. 801)," and ending with the words, "New York office to fix the rate at $27 less $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,552.

Also circular letter G. No. 815, dated Jena, April 16th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "Thomson Line (G. 813)" and ending with the words, "to be able to induce the remainder also to sail in her." 3956

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,553.

Also circular letter G. No. 816, dated Jena, April 18th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "North West Transport Line (G. No. 813) Thomson Line (G. No. 815)" and ending with the words, "sailed from London to Portland on 16th instant with 700 passengers."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,554.

Also circular letter G. No. 817, dated Jena, April 20th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "North West Transport Line (G. No. 816)" and ending with the words, "under which auspices this has been done now." 3957

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,555.

Also circular letter G. No. 820, dated Jena, April 21st, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "I beg to send annexed the Agenda for the meeting to be held at Paris, Hotel Majestic, May 5th," and ending with the words, "the names of the gentlemen by whom they will be represented."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,556.

3958 Also agenda, dated Jena, April 21st, 1910, headed, "Atlantic Conference Meeting, Paris, Hotel Majestic, May 5th, 1910, at 10 A. M."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,557.

Also circular letter G. No. 824, dated Jena, April 29th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Holland America Line write," and ending with the words, "to instruct their New York office to fix the rate at $27 less $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,558.

Also circular letter dated Jena, April 30th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, 3959 "Regulations of Continental Lines' rates," and ending with the words, "without need of altering anything in respect of the existing rules."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,559.

Also paper headed, "We beg to refer to Minute No. 129, reading," beginning with the words, "A proposal of the Continental Lines to be at liberty to reduce their rates," and ending with the words, "will not reduce their rates if it can possibly be avoided."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,560.

Also circular letter G. No. 826, dated Jena, April 3960 30th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "Paris meeting, May 5th, 1910 (G. No. 820)," ending with the words "of the A. C. Lines who will attend the meeting."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,561.

Also paper headed, "List of gentlemen who will be present at the A. C. Meeting at Paris, Hotel Majestic, May 5th, 1910."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,562.

Also circular letter G. No. 828, dated Jena, May 2nd, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 823)" and ending with the words "a steamer will be despatched from Rotterdam fortnightly." Signed, "H. Peters." 3961

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,563.

Also circular letter G. No. 829, dated Jena, May 3rd, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Hamburg America Line inform me of their following New York cable," and ending with the words, "We have asked the American Line to instruct their New York office to fix the rate at $27 less $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,564. 3962

Also circular letter G. No. 830, dated Jena, May 7th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "I herewith beg to send copies of minutes of the meeting at Paris on May 5th, 1910," and ending with the words, "westbound agreement dated London, March 3rd, 1910." Signed, "H. Peters."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,565.

Also annex to G. No. 830, dated London, March 3rd, 1910, headed, "Agreement for Eastbound Steerage Business."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,566.

3963

Also paper dated Jena, April 21st, 1910, headed Atlantic Conference Meeting, Paris, Hotel Majestic, May 5th, 1910, at 10 A. M., Agenda."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,567.

Also circular letter G. No. 836, dated Jena, May 11th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Regulations to N. A. P. C. Agents," and ending with the words, "I shall be obliged for a reply from the British Lines."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,568.

3964 Also circular letter G. No. 838, dated Jena, May 13th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Eastbound Agreement with Scandinavian American Line," and ending with the words, "as agreed to in Minute 63 and for the amount of £3940—."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,569.

Also circular letter G. No. 839, dated Jena, May 14th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 837)," and ending with the words, "We have asked the American Line to instruct their New York office to fix the rate at $27 less $2 commission."

3965

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,570.

Also circular letter G. No. 840, dated Jena, May 14th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Mr. Ed Strasser writes," and ending with the words, "I thought it well to warn the A. C. Lines of this."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,571.

Also circular letter G. No. 842, dated Jena, May 14th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "With reference to G. No. 836 I received the following letter" and ending with the words, 3966 "for use at our own discretion amongst our British agents."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,572.

Also circular letter G. No. 843, dated Jena, May 18th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Compensation for fighting rates and Scandinavian American Line," and ending with the words, "Thursday, June 30th, Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm." Signed, "H. Peters."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,573.

Also circular letter G. No. 844, dated Jena, May 20th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 839)" and ending with the words, "for her were forwarded to Bristol to join the 'Royal Edward.'" 3967

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,574.

Also circular letter G. No. 854, dated Jena, May 30th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Holland-American Line have appointed the," and ending with the words, "The rate for the 'George Washington' is $27 less $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,575. 3968

Also circular letter G. No. 857, dated Jena, May 31st, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "I am informed that these last days Mr. Boas, resident director of the Hamburg-American Line," and ending with the words, "Mr. Boas was enjoined to lay before the grand jury all pooling agreements."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,576.

Also circular letter G. No. 860, dated Jena, June 6th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The White Star-Dominion Canadian Service write," and ending with the words, "We have not particulars of the nationalities of the Continental passengers." 3969

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,577.

Also circular letter G. No. 861, dated Jena, June 7th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "Thomson Line (G. No. 848)," and ending with the words, "which is expected to leave London on the 21st June."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,578.

3970 Also circular letter G. No. 862, dated Jena, June 7th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "Revision of By-laws (G. No. 845)" and ending with the words, "differences of opinion or arbitration they retain their validity without reserve."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,579.

Also circular letter G. No. 868, dated Jena, June 10th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 854)," and ending with the words "(opposition steamer) to $24 less $2 commission, which please note."

3971 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,580.

Also circular letter G. No. 873, dated Jena, June 13th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "According to another report the 'Campania' from New York, June 9th," and ending with the words, "the competing S. S. 'George Washington' sailed with 1005 steeragers at $27 and $24 less $2."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,581.

Also circular letter G. No. 877, dated Jena, June 16th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Holland America Line have ap-3972 pointed in opposition," and ending with the words, "the rate has been fixed at $27 less $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,582.

Also circular letter dated Jena, June 29th, 1910, addressed, "Anchor Line, Cunard Line, White Star Line, Royal Line," and beginning with the words, "I beg to confirm my yesterday's telegram reading," and ending with the words, "The parties having consented I telegraphed today: 'Meeting eleventh July Savoy Hotel London agreed,' which I beg to confirm."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,583. 3973

Also circular letter dated Jena, July 14th, 1910, addressed, "Anchor Line, Cunard Line, White Star Line, Royal Line & Uranium S. S. Co." beginning with the words, "Attached hereto I beg to send copies of the resolution passed at the meeting on the 11th instant," and ending with the words, "and shall communicate their reply as soon as it is at hand."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,584.

Also a circular letter G. No. 913, dated Jena, July 18th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Holland America Line," and ending with the words, "Less $2 commission." 3974

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,585.

Also a circular letter dated Jena, July 20th, 1910, addressed "Anchor Line, Cunard Line, White Star Line" beginning with the words, "In the minute sent," and ending with the words, "it in their copies."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,586.

Also a circular letter dated Jena, July 21st, 1910, G. No. 916, addressed, "To the Parties" beginning with the words, "The rate for the 'Campania' 21st" and ending with the words, "less $2."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,587. 3975

Also a circular letter G. No. 922, dated Jena, July 28th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The Holland America Line write," and ending with the words, "less $2. commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,588.

Also circular letter G. No. 927, dated Jena, August 1, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The following is a complete sailing list," and ending with the words "Pennsylvania, Teutonic, Mauretania."

3976 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,589.

Also circular letter G. No. 930, dated Jena, August 3rd, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The Holland America Line write" and ending with the words, "which please note."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,590.

Also circular letter G. No. 931, dated Jena, August 4th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "With regard to circular letter," and ending with the words, "is not maintained in the front."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,591.

3977 Also circular letter G. No. 932, dated Jena, August 4th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "S. S. 'Campania' " and ending with the words, "less $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,592.

Also circular letter G. No. 935, dated Jena, August 6th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "According to a Hapag cable," and ending with the words "left New York with 375 steeragers."

Marked Peitioner's Exhibit No. 1,593.

Also circular letter G. No. 936, dated Jena, August 8th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with 3978 the words, "From July 23rd to," and ending with the words "the Thomson Line."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,594.

Also circular letter G. No. 937, dated Jena, August 8th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "From July 24th to August," and ending with the words, "130 I Class Passengers."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,595.

Also circular letter G. No. 941, dated Jena, August 11th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The Holland America Line" and ending with the words "with $2 commission." 3979

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,596.

Also circular letter G. No. 946, dated Jena, August 15th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "With regard to," and ending with the words "of which 154 for Halifax."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,597.

Also circular letter G. No. 947, dated Jena, August 16th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "With regard to G. No. 931 the" and ending with the words, "to discuss this special case any further." 3980

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,598.

Also circular letter G. No. 948, dated Jena, August 16th, 1910, addressed "To the Parties," beginning with the words "White Star Line write," and ending with the words, "done so some time ago."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,599.

Also circular letter G. No. 949, dated Jena, August 16th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "Last night I received," and ending with the words "as Empress steamers."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,600. 3981

Also circular letter G. No. 950, dated Jena, August 17th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "With regard to G. No. 946," and ending with the words, "been reduced to $22."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,601.

Also circular letter G. No. 953, dated Jena, August 19th, 1910, addressed "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The Hamburg Amerika Linie," and ending with the words, "of the 'Volturno.' "

3982 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,602.

Also circular letter G. No. 959, dated Jena, August 25th, addressed "To the Parties" beginning with the words, "The Holland America Line," and ending with the words, "less $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,603.

Also circular letter G. No. 964, addressed "To the Parties" dated Jena, August 29th, 1910, beginning with the words, "With regard to G. No. 959," and ending with the words, "commission to $24 less $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,604.

3983 Also circular letter G. No. 966 addressed, "To the Parties," dated Jena, August 30th, 1910, beginning with the words "The 'Frankfurter Zeitung' received," and ending with the words "Yard of Schichau, Danzig, in 1898."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,605.

Also circular letter G. No. 971, dated Jena, September 6th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Enclosed I beg to send," and ending with the words, "has obtained the cipher C. C."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,606.

3984 Also circular letter G. No. 977, dated Jena, September 9th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Holland-America Line," and ending with the words "less $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,607.

Also circular letter G. No. 978, dated Jena, den 10, September, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "With regard to the application," and ending with the words "of the Continental Lines."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,608.

Also circular letter G. No. 979, dated Jena, September 12th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "With reference to G. No. 977," and ending with the words "less $2 commission." 3985

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,609.

Also circular letter G. No. 980, dated Jena, September 15th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "I beg to submit the following," and ending with the words "advised of it until 22nd instant."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,610.

Also circular letter G. No. 982, dated Jena, September 15th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Holland Amerika Line," and ending with the words, "less $2 commission." 3986

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,611.

Also circular letter G. No. 983, dated Jena, September 16th, 1910, addressed "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The 'Campania' which left," and ending with the words "changed to 'Campanello.' "

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,612.

Also circular letter G. No. 985, dated Jena, September 19th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., write," and ending with the words "agenda of the next meeting." 3987

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,613.

Also circular letter G. No. 987, dated Jena, September 21st, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "With reference to the agreement with the Royal," and ending with the words, "this method is correct and whether it may be adhered to."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,614.

3988 Also circular letter G. No. 988, dated Jena, September 22nd, 1910, addressed "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "With regard to the telegram," and ending with the words "North America is increasing."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,615.

Also circular letter G. No. 991, dated Jena, September 24th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "No objection having been raised," and ending with the words, "to receive until October 1st."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,616.

3989 Also circular letter G. No. 994, dated Jena, September 24th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The Hamburg America Line submit the following bill," and ending with the words, "Hamburg America Line."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,617.

Also circular letter G. No. 995, dated Jena, September 26th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "With reference," and ending with the words "both with $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,618.

3990 Also circular letter G. No. 996, dated Jena, September 27th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Annexed hereto I beg," and ending with the words "next meeting as requested."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,619.

Also circular letter G. No. 996 annex, commencing with the words "Letter of the Allan Line, dated 21st inst." and ending with the words "to advance second-class rates further without affecting the first class."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,620.

Also circular letter G. No. 998, dated Jena, September 29th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "I beg to refer to G. No. 995" and ending with the words "of which 27 were deported passengers." 3991

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,621.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,000, dated Jena, September 30th, 1910, addressed "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "I beg to promulgate the following letter of," and ending with the words "subject on the Agenda of the November meeting," and signed, "H. Peters."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,622.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,002, dated Jena, October 1st, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "For completion of," and ending with the words "in second-class rates." 3992

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,623.

Also circular letter G. No. 1003, dated Jena, October 3rd, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "In reply to G. 991 the," and ending with the words "get the minute printed so," and signed "H. Peters."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,624.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,006, dated Jena, October 5th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The 'Frankfurter Zeitung' received," and ending with the words, "been moved into the distant future." 3993

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,625.

Also circular letter G. No. 1009, dated Jena, October 7th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The White Star Line send me," and ending with the words "to the lines of the other conferences."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,626.

3994 Also circular letter G. No. 1,013, dated Jena, October 8th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The Hamburg Amerika Linie write," and ending with the words "suggest to impose on this firm."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,627.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,015, dated Jena, October 14th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "On the question the parties," and ending with the words "of supplying tonnage to a new competition."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,628.

3995 Also circular letter G. No. 1,018, dated Jena, October 15th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The Russian America Line write," and ending with the words "to let me have their views."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,629.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,020, dated Jena, October 18th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "SS. Celtic April 23rd," and ending with the words, "the above amounts to the lines named," and signed "H. Peters."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,630.

3996 Also circular letter G. No. 1,024, dated Jena, October 19th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The Norddeutscher Lloyd write," and ending with the words, "from the general rule."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,631.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,028, dated Jena, October 22nd, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Holland America Line write," and ending with the words, "they agree to the proposed disqualifications."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,632. 3997

Also circular letter G. No. 1,034, dated Jena, October 27th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "I beg to inform the parties," and ending with the words "at next opportunity."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,633.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,037, dated Jena, November 3rd, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Holland-American Line write on November 1st," and ending with the words "less $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,634. 3998

Also circular letter G. No. 1,047, dated Jena, November 9th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "I beg to communicate that the following," and ending with the words "what other subjects they wish to have placed on the agenda."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,635.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,050 dated Jena, November 12th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The proposal of the," and ending with the words "usual for distribution amongst the lines."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,636. 3999

Also circular letter G. No. 1,052, dated Jena, November 14th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "If I do not hear from the parties," and ending with the words, "will be held on this date."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,637.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,057 dated Jena, November 18th, 1910, addressed "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "I beg to promulgate," and ending

4000 with the words "third-class traffic," and signed "Scott Griffin, Manager."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,638.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,060, dated Jena, November 19th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "I beg to communicate the following," and ending with the words "steamers to thirty-five dollars."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,639.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,063, dated Jena, November 21st, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "With reference" and ending 4001 with the words, "on 19th instant."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,640.

Also "Supplement" to the agenda of London meeting November 24th, 1910, dated Jena, 21st November, 1910, beginning with the figures and words "10 Lloyd's eastbound" and ending with the words "(White Star)."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,641.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,064, dated Jena, November 24th, 1910, addressed "To the Parties," beginning with the words "Referring to circular letter 4002 G. No. 1,056" and ending with the words "Total 490," and signed "H. Peters."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,642.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,077, dated Jena, December 3rd, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Holland-America Line have selected," and ending with the words "with $2 commission."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,643.

Also circular G. No. 1,086, dated, Jena, December 10th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The Continental Lines propose," and ending with the words "inform me of what their rates will be." 4003

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,644.

Also circular G. No. 1,090, dated Jena, December 17th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words "The Russian American Line," and ending with the words, "Will the parties please let me have their views."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,645.

Also circular G. No. 1,098A, dated Jena, December 29th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Scandinavian American Line have," and ending with the words, "I shall be obliged for remittance." 4004

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,646.

Also circular G. No. 1,100, dated Jena, December 30th, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Compensation for fighting steamers," and ending with the words "Skand. American Line * * * $2404.50"

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,647.

Also circular letter G. No. 1,103 dated Jena, December 31st, 1910, addressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "The Holland America Line inform me," and ending with the words, "less $2 commission." 4005

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,648.

Mr. Guiler: I offer further in evidence certain letters of the Hamburg-American Line to the Hamburg-American Line in New York and vice versa, as follows:

Letter dated March 10th, 1908, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, 4006 New York. Beginning with the words, "We beg to refer to our cable of yesterday," and ending with the words, "what position the pool lines eventually will take to meet this new competition."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,649.

Also letter dated April 8th, 1908, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg from Hamburg-American Line, New York. Beginning with the words "We acknowledge the receipt of your favor," and ending with the words "or to force the rates downward as far as possible."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,650.

4007 Also letter dated April 14th, 1908, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg from Hamburg American Line, New York. Beginning with the words, "Referring to our cable of yesterday," and ending with the words, "competition with the Russian Volunteer Fleet on the same posters."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,651.

Also letter dated April 22nd, 1908, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York. Beginning with the words, "We beg to report that the S/S Kherson of the Volunteer fleet sailed today," and ending with the words "and for the 4008 S/S President Lincoln sailing on the 25th inst."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,652.

Also letter dated, April 24th, 1908, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York. Beginning with the words, "We have taken aboard the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria," and ending with the words "and if there is any change we shall again cable."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,653.

Also letter dated, May 1st, 1908, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "We have accepted for tomorrow's sailing of the S/S President Grant," and ending with the words "20% of Continental passengers." 4009

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1654.

Also letter dated, May 4th, 1908, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "We confirm our respects of May 1st," and ending with the words "mentioned on the opening part of this letter, we remain."

4010

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,655.

Also letter dated, May 12th, 1908, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York. Beginning with the words, "We confirm our respects of May 6th," and ending with the words "who went aboard the Jelunga."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,656.

Also letter dated, "February 11th, 1909, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York. Beginning with the words, "In conjunction with our cable of this day," and ending with the words, "to gather any large number of passengers for the steamer." 4011

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,657.

Also letter dated March 1st, 1909, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words "In conjunction with our cable of this date," and ending with the words "we shall keep you promptly informed."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,658.

Also letter dated, September 28th, 1909, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg

4012 American Line, New York, beginning with the words "The above line's S/S Neapolitan Prince arrived on the 16th inst." and ending with the words, "booked at a rate of $24, commission $2."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1659.

Also letter dated, October 11th, 1909, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Steamer Volturno arrived here October 3rd," and ending with the words "carried 425 steerage passengers."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,660.

4013 Also letter dated, October 15th, 1909, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words "In conjunction with our respects of the 11th inst." and ending with the words, "4 in the cabin and 202 in the steerage."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,661.

Also letter dated, "October 25th, 1909, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "In conjunction with our exchange of cables on the 23rd inst." and ending with the words, "upon which a commission of $5 was allowed."

4014 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,662.

Also letter dated, "October 29th, 1909, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "In conjunction with our cable of the 25th inst." and ending with the words, "obtained 568 steerage passengers at the rate of $24, commission $2."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,663.

Also letter dated, November 12th, 1909, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "In conjunction with your cabled query of yesterday and our reply thereto," and ending with the words "being accounted for to you accordingly." 4015

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,664.

Also letter dated, December 7th, 1909, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, N. Y., beginning with the words, "We refer to our cable of yesterday," and ending with the words "Rate $24, minus $2."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,665.

Also letter dated, December 21st, 1909, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words S/S Napolitan Prince of the above line arrived here" and ending with the words, "which are presumably correct." 4016

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,666.

Also letter dated, December 28th, 1909, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words "S/S Volturno of the above line was scheduled to sail from this port," and ending with the words, "We wish to make you acquainted with the exceptional circumstances in this case, and sign."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,667. 4017

Also letter dated December 31st, 1909, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "S/S Sicilian Prince of the above line," and ending with the words "at the rate of $24, minus $2."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1668."

Also letter dated, January 5th, 1910, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "In con-4018 junction with our cable of yesterday," and ending with the words "carried 221 passengers, rate $22, minus $2."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,669.

Also letter dated January 17th, 1910, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York. Beginning with the words, "Pitted against S/S Uranium of the above line," and ending with the words "as third competing steamer at the rate of $22 minus $2.00 into competition."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,670.

4019 Also letter dated January 25th, 1910, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, from Hamburg American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Referring to our respects of the 17th," and ending with the words "aboard the Kronprinz Wilhelm, sailing today."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,671.

Also letter dated February 1st, 1910, addressed "Hamburg American Line (Passenger Department), Hamburg, beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "sent to Mr. Ohrt directly several days ago" and signed "Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer."

4020

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,672.

Also letter dated February 8th, 1910, addressed "Hamburg American Line (Passenger Department), Hamburg," beginning with the words, "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words, "she sailed from this port on February 5th," and signed "Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,673.

Also letter dated March 16th, 1910, addressed "Hamburg American Line (Passenger Department), Hamburg," beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words, "rate being in force but one day," and signed, "Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer." 4021

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,674.

Also letter dated March 21st, 1910, addressed "Hamburg American Line (Passenger Department), Hamburg," beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "to the collector of the Port for his judgment and signed "Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,675.

Also letter dated March 22nd, 1910, addressed "Hamburg American Line, Hamburg," beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "Minus $2" and signed Hamburg American Line per E. Lederer. 4022

Marker Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,676.

Also letter dated April 5th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "also sailing from here on the 2nd," and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,677. 4023

Also translation of letter dated April 12th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "minus $2," and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,678.

Also translation of letter dated May 3rd, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginwith the words, "Re North West Transport Line," 4024 ending with the words "minus $2.00" and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,679.

Also translation of letter dated May 12th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line" ending with the words "Minus $2," and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,680.

Also translation of letter dated May 27th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," 4025 ending with the words "Rate $24 minus $2," and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,681.

Also translation of letter dated June 13th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "at the regular rate of $40," and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,682.

Also translation of letter dated July 11th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, be-4026 ginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line" ending with the words "minus $2" and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,683.

Also translation of letter dated July 11th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words "Referring to our exchange of cable of the 8th inst." ending with the words "carried competitive rates" and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,684.

Also translation of letter dated July 22nd, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "minus $2" and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer. 4027

Marker Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,685.

Also translation of letter dated August 5th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "sailing on the 6th inst." and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,686.

Also translation of letter dated September 16th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "commission $2" and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer. 4028

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,687.

Also translation of letter dated October 13th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "sailing from here today," and signed Hamburg American Line, per H. Doblin.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,688 4029

Also translation of letter dated October 14th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "minus $2," and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,689.

Also translation of letter dated October 31st, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," 4030 ending with the words "minus $2," and signed Habburg American Line, per H. Doblin.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,690.

Also translation of letter dated November 14th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words "Steamer Volturno of the above line arrived here," ending with the words "by us for the Pennsylvania sailing November 12th," and signed Hamburg American Line, per H. Doblin.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,691.

Also translation of letter dated November 28th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, 4031 beginning with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "sailing November 26th from this port," and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,692.

Also translation of letter dated December 12th, 1910, addressed Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, begining with the words "Re North West Transport Line," ending with the words "and 500 aboard the Lapland, sailing December 10th," and signed Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,693.

4032

Mr. Guiler: I also offer certain cables from the Hamburg-American Line to the Hamburg-American Line New York, and from the Hamburg-American Line, New York, to the Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, as follows:

Cable dated, New York, January 2nd, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words "Issued circular fixing prepared steerage rates," and ending with the words "Deutchland $34. Others $28 IIId class $33."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,694.

Also cable dated New York, January 6th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "American Line White Star Line quote steerage eastbound rates," and ending with the words "British Steerage Eastbound Rate Cunard Line will follow."

Also cable dated New York, January 7th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Cunard Line New York and Boston services reduced steerage outward rate," and ending with the words, "All steamers to twenty-eight Dollars Fiume service $31."

Also cable dated New York, January 8th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Cunard Line New York and Boston Services Reduced Prepaid Rates," and ending with the words, "Basel $30 White Star Boston Hamburg $25.50 Bremen $27.50."

Also cable dated New York, January 9th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words "Cunard Line Reduced Outward Rates" and ending with the words "What Scandinavian Outward Rates Shall We Adopt."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,695.

Also cable dated New York, January 10th 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "White Star Line American Line Further Reduced British Outward Rates $22.50," and ending with the words "Thereby quoting Below Our Hamburg Outward Steerage Rates."

4036 Also cable dated New York, January 11th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hambury-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "White Star Line Boston New York Services Reduced," and ending with the words "From Libau $27.50 Hamburg $25.50."

Also cable dated New York, January 11th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "We Have Reduced Scandinavian Outward Rates," and ending with the words "Will Doubtless Seriously Injure Our Business."

Also cable dated New York, January 13th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Ham-
4037 burg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "American Line White Star Line Reduced British Steerage Outward Rates," and ending with the words, "Reduced Libau Steerage Prepaid Rates $27.50."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1696.

Also cable dated New York, February 3rd, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, to New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Russian Lines Reduced Steerage Outward Rates" and ending with the words, "Commission $3 to $5."

4038 Also cable dated New York, January 14th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "White Star Reduced British Steerage Outward Rates," and ending with the words, "Cunard Umbria Etruria $17.50."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,697.

Also cable dated New York, January 15th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Moskwa Sailed today 11 Cabin 1140 steerage."

Also cable dated New York, January 20th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "American Line Philadelphia Service Now Quotes British Steerage Prepaid Rate $20," and ending with the words, "Boston reduced British Steerage Outward Rate $15." 4039

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,698.

Also cable dated New York, January 21st, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Saint Paul Saturday Besides Figures Cabled Yesterday," and ending with the words, "Will Also Transfer Overflow To Samland." 4040

Also cable dated New York, January 29th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Petersburg Sailed Today 4 Cabin 813 Steerage."

Also cable dated New York, February 10th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "British Lines Scandinavian Outward Rates," and ending with the words, "We Adopt For Deutschland."

Also cable dated New York, February 18th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "All British Lines Still Charge all Steamers $28," and ending with the words, "Overflow Auguste to French Line." 4041

Also cable dated New York, February 24th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Korea Sailed Saturday 6 Cabin 280 Steerage."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,699.

4042 Also cable dated New York, February 25th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "British Lines Advanced Steerage Outward Rate To All Continental Ports To $30."

Also cable dated New York, February 26th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Kherson Sailed Today 12 Cabin 554 Steerage."

Also cable dated New York, March 1st, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Volturno Hence February 28th, 3 Second Cabin 13 Steer-4043 age."

Also cable dated New York, March 14th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words "Richard Reduced Steerage Outward Rate," and ending with the words, "Twenty-three Dollars Russian Twenty-Four."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,700.

Also cable dated New York, March 24th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words "Saratow Tomorrow Will Have Nine Hundred Steer-4044 agers Stopped," and ending with the words, "Transfer About Four Hundred To Steamer Main Thursday."

Also cable dated New York, March 25th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Saratow Today 22 Second 1025 Steerage About 300 Transferred To Estonia April 1st."

Also cable dated New York, March 26th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Richards Intend Reduce Steerage," and ending with the words, "We Follow Reduction With Pre- 4045 toria April 11th."

Also cable dated New York, March 27th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "French Line Reduced Steerage Outward Rate," and ending with the words, "North German Lloyd Barbarossa April 9th, $24."

Also cable dated New York, March 24th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows, "Reduced Outward Steerage Rate Pretoria April 11th, $23."

4046

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,701.

Also cable dated New York, March 30th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words "Saratow March 25th, 1013 Rate $24," and ending with the words, "Entire Steerage Space Remaining Filled with Freight."

Also cable dated New York, April 8th, 1908 from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows, "Petersburg Today 1175 No. Overflow For Volturno."

Also cable dated New York, April 11th, 1908, from 4047
Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Hardly To Be Expected That Steeragers Will Pay $38," and ending with the words, "Volturno Will Scarcely Have 500 Pretoria More Than 2000."

Also cable dated New York, April 15th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Present Quality Eastbound Steeragers Poorest Class," and ending with the words, "We Propose General Reduction Eastbound Steerage Rates."

4048 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,702.

Also cable dated New York, April 20th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Avoca Arrived Halifax April 18th," and ending with the words, "Departure Hence Uncertain."

Also cable dated New York, April 20th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "North German Lloyd Reduced Steerage Outward Rates," and ending with the words, "On Kaiserin Auguste Victoria and President Lincoln."

Also cable dated New York, April 22nd, 1908, from 4049 Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Reduced Steerage Outward Rates," and ending with the words, "IIId Class Amerika $36 Others $33."

Also cable dated New York, April 22nd, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Kherson Sailed Today 23 Cabin 809 Steerage."

Also cable dated New York, April 28th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Avoca Hence May 5th."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,703.

4050

Also cable dated New York, April 28th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Sailing Jelunga, May 9th, Volturno May 23d Latter Uncertain."

Also cable dated New York, May 4th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Korea Sailed Saturday 32 Cabin 660 Steerage."

Also cable dated New York, May 6th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-

American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Until May 1st Had Only 80 Advices For Amerika," and ending with the words, "Buy Tickets Only Two or Three Days Before Date of Sailings." 4051

Also cable dated New York, May 7th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Avoca Hence May 5th, 745 Steeragers 25 Left Over Figures Cabled Incorrect."

Also cable dated New York, May 13th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Louisiana Sailed Today 1700 Steeragers," and ending with the words, "And Americana Bluecher and Hamburg Tomorrow Both Full." 4052

Also cable dated New York, June 10th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "New York Continental Line Advertises Jelunga," and ending with the words, "Estonia July 22nd, Rate $24 Commission $3."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,704.

Also cable dated New York, June 22nd, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Jelunga Sailed Saturday 2 Cabin 259 Steerage."

Also cable dated New York, June 24th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Russia Sailed Today 20 1st Cabin 60 II Cabin 899 Steerage." 4053

Also cable dated New York, June 29th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with words, "We Refer To Your Cable Of Today," and ending with the words, "Trying To Arrange Uniform Charge Of $4 Headtax."

4054 Also cable dated New York, June 30th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Lines, New York, to Hamburg-American Line Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Brasile Sailed Saturday 31 I Class 62 II Class 1007 Steerage Including 443 Continental."

Also cable dated New York, July 3d, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Ducabruzzi Sailed Wednesday 74 I Class 1893 Steerage Including 454 Continental."

Also cable dated New York, July 7th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Lines, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Verona Sailed Saturday from Phi[illegible]delphia," and 4055 ending with the words, "Including 714 Continentals."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,705.

Also cable dated New York, July 23d, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Estonia Sailed Wednesday 27 Cabin 560 Steerage," and ending with the words, "To Rotterdam July 28th, $21. Rate $2. Commission."

Also cable dated New York, August 6th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: 'Russia Sailed Wednesday 20 I Cabin 25 II Cabin 705
4056 Steerage Barbarossa 1420."

Also cable dated New York, August 7th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Louisiana Sailed Wednesday 8 Cabin 1643 Steerage Including 489 Continental."

Also cable dated New York, September 5th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Verona Sailed Thursday from Philadelphia 6 Cabin 1783 Steerage Including 533 Continental."

Also cable dated New York, November 4th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Fixed III Class Prepaid Rates Amerika $41," and ending with the words, "Your Remarks Refer to Cash Business." 4057

Also cable dated New York, November 19th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Circular October 31st Plainly advertised Commission," and ending with the words, "Prospects for Lincoln Poor."

Also cable dated New York, November 20th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Sending Out Today Circular Reducing III Class Commissions to $2." 4058

Also cable dated New York, December 2nd, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "There Is So Little Reliance To Be Placed Upon," and ending with the words, "As Long As There Exists No Prepaid Agreement."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,706.

Also cable dated New York, December 11th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "What Steerage Outward Rate Shall We Charge," and ending with the words, "Lower Rate Than Cunard Line Otherwise Cannot Compete." 4059

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,707.

Also cable dated New York, February 11th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Richards Issued Circular Announcing Organization North West Transport Line," and ending with the words "Hamburg Bremen $30. Commission $3."

4060 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,708.

Also cable dated New York, February 2nd, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Owing to Increased Demand," and ending with the words, "Amerika Auguste Victoria To $35. Do you Agree."

Also cable dated New York, April 12th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Volturno Sailed Saturday 42 Steeragers."

Also cable dated New York, April 26th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-
4061 American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Uranium Left Saturday 4 Cabin 95 Steerage."

Also cable dated New York, May 12th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Raglan Castle Left Today Instead of May 8th 3 Cabin 127 Steerage."

Also cable dated New York, May 18th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Russasiatic Reduced Eastbound Steerage Rate Estonia May 22nd To $26. Is It Correct."

Also cable dated New York, May 22nd, 1909, from 4062 Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "We Refer to Your Cable of Today Estonia Sails," and ending with the words, "East Asiatic Lines Rate After June 1st, $28."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,709.

Also cable dated New York, May 25th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Volturno Landed Halifax 220 Steerage," and ending with the words "Sailed Today 4 Cabin 70 Steerage."

Also cable dated New York, June 9th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Uranium Arrived June 1st 2 Cabin 318 Steerage," and ending with the words, "Today 602 Of Which 343 To Hamburg At $25 Rate." 4063

Also cable dated New York, October 11th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Volturno October 9th, 182 Steeragers Sixteen Dollars Net Waldersee 425 at $22 Less $2."

Also cable dated New York, October 23d, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "We Refer To Your Cable of Today Volturno $16 Correct Viz. $21 Less $5." 4064

Also cable dated New York, October 25th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Uranium Saturday 173 $17 Net Zeeland 568 $22 Net."

Also cable dated New York, November 8th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Napolitan Prince Hence Saturday About 150 Rate $25," and ending with the words, "St. Paul 391 Continental $24 Less $2."

4065

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,710.

Also cable dated New York, November 22nd, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Volturno Sailed Saturday 151 Steerage Net Rate About $20. Estonia 257 $24 Less $2."

Also cable dated New York, December 6th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Uranium Hence December 4th, 374 Steeragers," and ending with the words, "Net Lituania 280 at $24 Less $2."

4066 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,711.

Also cable dated New York, January 4th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Volturno Hence January 1st About 70 Steerage," and ending with the words, "Russia January 1st 221 Rate $22 Less $2."

Also cable dated New York, January 24th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Uranium Hence January 22nd About 90 Steeragers," and ending with the words, "Lapland January 22nd, 417 Rate $22 Less $2.

4067 Also cable dated New York, January 31st, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "We Refer to Your Cable of Today Have Reduced Russian Prepaids to $40."

Also cable dated New York, February 14th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Volturno Hence February 12th About 150 Steerage," and ending with the words, "February 12th 188 Rate $27 Less $2.

Also cable dated New York, March 9th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-

4068 American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Uranium Advertised to Sail Hence February 26th," and ending with the words, "Rhein Sailed March 5th, 373 at $26 Less $2."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,712.

Also cable dated New York, March 14th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Campania Hence March 12th About 190 Steerage Net Rate," and ending with the words, "Rate only Effective One Day."

Also cable dated New York, March 24th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Thompson Line Advertises Steerage Prepaid Rates," and ending with the words, "Steamer Cairnrona April 2nd from Portland April 23d." 4069

Also cable dated New York, April 4th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Beginning with the words, "Laurentic Hence April 2nd 642 Continentals," and ending with the words, "From April 2nd Net Rate About $20."

Also cable dated New York, April 11th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg. Reading as follows: "Volturno Hence April 9th About 150 Steerage Net Rate About $20. Adriatic 1050 Continentals at $24 Less $2." 4070

Marked Petitioners' Exhibit No. 1,713.

Also translation of cable dated New York, April 26th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Campania hence April 23rd about 120 Steerage," and ending with the words, "Continental $27 Less $2."

Also translation of cable dated New York, April 28th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Advanced steerage Prepaid Rates," and ending with the words, "without collecting any difference in rate." 4071

Also translation of cable dated New York, May 2nd, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Uranium hence April 30th about 90 steerage," and ending with the words, "St. Paul April 30th 401 Continental $27 Less $2."

4072 Also translation of cable dated New York, May 10th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, reads as follows: "Reduced Steerage Prepaid Rates Amerika Kaiserin Deutschland $38.50."

Also translation of cable dated New York, May 25th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Volturno Hence May 21st about 200 steerage," and ending with the words, "Transferred 237 to Lapland 36 to Celtic."

Marked Petitioners' Exhibit No. 1,714.

4073 Also translation of cable dated New York, June 7th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Fixed steerage prepaid rates," and ending with the words, "Third Class Amerika Kaiserin $43.50 Others $41."

Also translation of cable dated New York, June 11th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Campania hence June 9th about 180 steerage," and ending with the words, "Deported George Washington June 9th, 1005 at $27 and $24, less $2."

4074 Also translation of cable dated New York, June 24th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Uranium hence June 23rd about 140 Steerage," and ending with the words, "Deported Main June 23rd 735 Steerage at $27 Less $2."

Also translation of cable dated New York, July 8th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, reads as follows: "Waldersee January 15th Competing Steamer as per our letter January 17th."

Also translation of cable dated New York, July 8th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to

Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Volturno hence July 7th about 300 steerage," and ending with the words, "Barbarossa July 7th, 978 at $27 less $2." 4075

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,715.

Also translation of cable dated New York, July 22nd, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Campania hence July 21st, about 300 Steerage," and ending with the words, "Deported Bremen July 21st, 1316 at $24 less $2."

Also translation of cable dated New York, August 5th, 1910, Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Uranium hence August 4th about 350 Steerage," and ending with the words, "Will be sent Brandenburg August 6th." 4076

Also translation of cable dated New York, August 10th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, reads as follows: "Reduced steerage outward rate Waldersee August 18th to $27."

Also translation of cable dated New York, August 19th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Volturno hence August 18th, about 400 Steerage," and ending with the words, "Waldersee 1636 at $24 less $2." 4077

Also translation of cable dated New York, September 2nd, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Campania hence September 1st, about 400 Steerage," and ending with the words, "270 overbooked will be sent Kaiserin."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,716.

Also translation of cable dated New York, September 7th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New 4078 York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, reads as follows, "Reduced Steerage Prepaid rates Deutschland Amerika Class $34, others $31.50."

Also translation of cable dated New York, September 12th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line Hamburg, beginning with the words, "We refer to your cable of today American Line, and ending with the words, "If necessary advance our steerage outward rate."

Also translation of cable dated New York, September 16th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Uranium hence September 15th about 550 Steerage," and ending with the words,
4079 "Also 14 deported Russia 1278 at $22 less $2."

Also translation of cable dated, New York, September 30th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Volturno hence September 29th about 400 steerage," and ending with the words, "About 50 overbooked will be sent Kaiserin."

Also translation of cable dated New York, October 8th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Reduced prepaid steerage rates," and ending with the words, "How about Philadelphia prepaid steerage rates."

4080 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,717.

Also translation of cable dated New York, October 11th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Company's letter September 28th Scandinavian business," and ending with the words, "Instruct by cable Fixed III Class from Philadelphia $35."

Also translation of cable dated New York, October 14th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Campanello hence October 13th, about 400 net rate," and ending with the words, "Friedrich Wilhelm October 13th, 1398 at $23 less $2." 4081

Also translation of cable dated New York, October 18th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Advanced steerage prepaid rates Amerika Class $34." and ending with the words, "Others including Philadelphia $38.50."

Also translation of cable dated New York, October 28th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Uranium hence October 27th about 500 net rate," and ending with the words, "1505 at $23, less $2." 4082

Also translation of cable dated New York, November 11th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line New York, to Hamburg-American, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Volturno hence November 10th about 620 steerage," and ending with the words, "1500 overbooked will be sent Pennsylvania."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,718.

Also translation of cable dated New York, November 12th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "We refer to our cable of yesterday," and ending with the words, "Transferred from Kurfurst at $21 less $2." 4083

Also translation of cable dated New York, November 23rd, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "We refer to your cable of yesterday," and ending with the words, "How about steerage prepaid rates also III Class."

Also translation of cable dated New York, November 25th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, begin-

4084 ning with the words, "Campanello hence November 24th about 480 Steerage," and ending with the words, "Transferred to Roon 16 to St. Louis."

Also translation of cable dated New York, December 5th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, reads as follows: "Fixed III Class Prepaid Rates all New York steamers $43."

Also translation of cable dated New York, December 9th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Uranium hence December 8th, about 1100 Steerage," and ending with the words, "December 7th and 500 Lapland December 10th."

4085

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,719.

Also translation of cable dated New York, December 23rd, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, New York, to Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, beginning with the words, "Volturno hence December 22nd about 850 steerage," and ending with the words, "Besides 33 transferred Baltic December 24th."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,720.

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, February 18th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning 4086 with the words, "We refer to your cable of February 15th," and ending with the words, "What are present eastbound prices British Lines."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, March 11th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Lines, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Scandinavian Steerage outward rates," and ending with the words, "Old British Continental Steerage Agreement."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, March 24th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Regarding Volturnos April 11, $23," and ending with the words, "Please act accordingly confirm by cable." 4087

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, March 27th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Further Reduction depends upon decision," and ending with the words, "Must wait if Richards Really reduce Storm."

Marked Petitioners' Exhibit No. 1,721.

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, March 30th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Atlantic conference decided advance Continental outward," and ending with the words, "Headtax extra confirm by cable." 4088

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, March 30th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Saratow March 25th eastbound," and ending with the words, "Also 2500 places empty cable is it correct explain."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, April 3rd, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, reads as follows: "Agree following eastbound rates commissions."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, April 9th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to New York, Hamburg-American Line, reads as follows: "Discussing conference how meet Avoca." 4089

Marked Petitioners Exhibit No. 1,722.

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, April 19th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Cable received April 19th have no objection against low rate," and ending with the words, "But act as you think best."

4090 Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, April 28th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Have moved that Pennsylvania be pitted," and ending with the words, "Cable if Jelunga Volturno sail dates mentioned."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, May 6th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "May 1st you cabled outlook for Pennsylvania," and ending with the words, "To estimate traffic in advance please explain."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, May 16th,
4091 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Conference which meets London," and ending with the words, "Consider eastbound question Murken."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,723.

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, May 18th, 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "For conference London May 23d," and ending with the words, "Continental Line as far as possible."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, July 1st,
4092 1908, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Please don't take any action regarding," and ending with the words, "Only $3.75 cheaper than United States rate."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, March 4th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Northwest Transport Liner Raglan Castle," and ending with the words, "March 2nd, 540 Steeragers of whom 170 for Halifax."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, April 16th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, be- 4093 ginning with the words, "We refer to your cable of yesterday," and ending with the words, "Trying fill III Class as much as possible."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,724.

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, June 5th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Advance Steerage outward rates," and ending with the words, "Two dollars III Class accordingly confirm by cable."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, October 23d, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, reads as 4094 follows: "We refer to your cable of October 11th, Volturno Sixteen Dollar rate cable correct."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, November 11th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Fix IIId Class prepaid rate," and ending with the words, "All others thirty-nine fifty headtax extra."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, November 10th, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to New York, Hamburg-American Line, beginning with the words, "Reduce prepaid rates," and ending with the words, "Service thirty-four confirm by 4095 cable."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, December 31st, 1909, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Fix steerage prepaid rates all Steamers," and ending with the words, "All others forty-three fifty headtax extra eastbound unchanged."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,725.

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, July 8th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with 4096 the words, "Answer by cable was Waldersee January 15th," and ending with the words, "We lack all information concerning."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, August 15th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, reads as follows: "Reduce Waldersee August 17th Steerage outward rate $24 with $2 commission."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, September 7th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Reduce Steerage prepaid rates," and ending with the words, "Other Steamers $31.50 confirm by cable."

4097 Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, September 12th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "British Lines advancing," and ending with the words, "outward rates five shillings think we must follow."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, October 18th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Advance prepaid Steerage rates Amerika Kaiserin $34," and ending with the words, "including Philadelphia $38.50 confirm by cable."

4098 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,726.

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, November 21st, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Please advance prepaid steerage rates," and ending with the words, "Philadelphia Service $36.50 confirm by cable."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg November 22nd, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to New York, Hamburg-American Line, reads as follows: "Reduce Steerage outward rate Amerika November 24th $25 with $2 commission."

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, December 16th, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg to Hamburg-American Line, New York, reads as follows: "Reduce Steerage outward rate Pennsylvania December 16th $26 with $2 commission." 4099

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, December 22nd, 1910, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Initial rates effective January 1st," and ending with the words, "Philadelphia $36.50 Confirm by cable."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,727.

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, December 30th, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, reads as follows: "Reduce Steerage outward rate Amerika January 5th $26. With $2 Commission Confirm by cable." 4100

Also translation of cable dated Hamburg, January 6th, 1911, from Hamburg-American Line, Hamburg, to Hamburg-American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "800 destitute Eastbound Steeragers," and ending with the words, "stopped by police and returned to Uranium."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,728.

Mr. Guiler: I offer in evidence certain letters between The White Star Line, Liverpool, and the White Star Line, New York, and certain copies of letters furnished by the White Star Line between J. Bruce Ismay, of Liverpool, and H. Peters, the Atlantic Conference Secretary at Jena, and also letters between Ismay, Imrie & Co. of Liverpool, and the White Star Line at New York, as follows: 4101

Letter dated June 17th, 1910, from Red Star Line, New York to Red Star Line, Antwerp, beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 9th instant enclosing synopsis of bye-laws," and ending with the words,

4102 "for which please accept our thanks." Signed, "Passenger Department."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,729.

Also letter dated Antwerp, 9th June, 1910, to W. W. Jefferies, Esq., New York, from Red Star Line, Antwerp, beginning with the words, "Please find enclosed synopsis of bye-laws to Agreement AA," and ending with the words, "as per special arrangement." Signed Red Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,730.

Also letter dated Liverpool, 25th May, 1910, to W. W. Jefferies, beginning with the words, "Herewith I 4103 send you the printed copy of A. C. Minutes," and ending with the words, "Steerage business with Scandinavian American Line." Signed, T. Swain.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,731.

Also letter dated Antwerp, 17th May, 1910, to W. W. Jefferies, beginning with the words, "Please find enclosed A. C. Minutes 145-154," and ending with the words, "to you personally as per special arrangement." Signed, Red Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,732.

Also letter dated March 24th, 1910, addressed to 4104 Mr. Strasser, beginning with the words, "In thinking the matter over again, we have decided to ask you to advise," and ending with the words, "one copy will answer all our purposes."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,733.

Also letter dated February 28th, 1910, addressed to Mr. Jefferies, beginning with the words, "I have to acknowledge your favor of the 18th instant," and ending with the words, "and will leave him to arrange with Mr. Peters." Signed, A. B. Cauty.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,734.

Also letter dated Liverpool, February 8th, 1910, addressed to Mr. Jefferies, beginning with the words, "Mr. Swain has shown me your letter to him," and ending with the words, "will have his correspondence with Mr. Sanderson in mind." Signed, A. B. Cauty. 4105

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,735.

Also letter dated Liverpool, December 17th, 1909, addressed to Passenger Department, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference meeting Nov. 25th," and ending with the words, "by which this transportation is included so far as we are concerned." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,736. 4106

Also letter dated December 8th, 1909, addressed, Mr. Lawson Sandford, beginning with the words, "We have received from our Liverpool Office," and ending with the words, "so that it may be promptly considered and oblige."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,737.

Also letter dated December 7th, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference, London, November 25, 1909," and ending with the words, "which we trust will be successful."

4107

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,738.

Also letter dated December 7th, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., beginning with the words, "We are in receipt of your favor of the 27th ulto," and ending with the words "free tickets between Liverpool and London and Paris."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,739.

Mr. Guiler: I also offer in evidence certain letters between The American Line, Liverpool, and the American Line, New York, and be-

4108 tween the White Star Line, New York, as follows:

Letter dated Liverpool, July 29th, 1910, to the American Line, New York, from the American Line, Liverpool. Beginning with the words, "A. C. Agreement, Westbound Third Class Business," and ending with the words, "and which we are sure has had your usual prompt attention."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,740.

Also letter dated July 29-10, to the American Line, Liverpool, from the American Line, New York. Beginning with the words, "Prepaid Rates," and ending 4109 with the words, "our position under the westbound agreement."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,741.

Also letter dated Liverpool, June 11th, 1910, to the American Line, New York, from the American Line, Liverpool. Beginning with the words, "AA Agreement—westbound," and ending with the words, "rates from Havre $35 from Cherbourg $33."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,742.

Also letter dated June 3-10, from Red Star Line, New York, to the Red Star Line, Antwerp. Beginning with the words "Inland Railway fares from Ant-4110 werp," and ending with the words, "a new tariff which you hope to send us shortly." Signed (Red Star Line).

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,743.

Also letter dated May 6-10, to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, from the White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Continental E. B. Rates Philadelphia," and ending with the words, "we trust that you will approve our action in this respect." (Signed), White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,744. 4111

Also cable dated N. Y., May 6th, 1910, reads as follows: "Liverpool to Internavco, N. Y., May 6th, 1910 —Reduce Continental Steerage rate Philadelphia May 7th Hamburg Bremen Rotterdam Antwerp to $25.00."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit 1,745.

Also letter dated February 8th, 1910, to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, from White Star Line, New York. Beginning with the words, "Manifesting E. B. Aliens," and ending with the words, "see that they have also secured another vessel." (Signed) White Star Line.

4112

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,746.

Also letter dated Liverpool 19th February, 1910, to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool. Beginning with the words, "Manifesting E. B. Aliens," and ending with the words, "we will thank you to send us copies." Signed. Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,747.

Also letter dated 19th February, 1910, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, to White Star Line, Boston, beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 8th instant to hand," and ending with the words, "We will advise you in due course what disposition is made." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co. 4113

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,748.

Also letter dated 19th February, 1910, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, to White Star Line, New York. Beginning with the words, "By the s/s 'Laurentic' sailing today," and ending with the words, "arrange to forward the passengers by the route desired." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,749.

4114 Also letter dated 18th February, 1910, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, to the White Star Line, Boston. Beginning with the words, "Mediterranean service," and ending with the words, "infants' prepaid tickets from Azores." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,750.

Also letter to Red Star Line, Antwerp, from Red Star Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, "We desire to refer to your letter of the 6th," and ending with the words, "do everything possible to hold passengers for these departures." -Signed (Red Star Line).

4115 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,751.

Also letter dated Antwerp, September 6th, 1910, to the Red Star Line, New York, unsigned, beginning with the words, "With reference to Mr. Peters' letter," and ending with the words, "accepting passengers from these two agencies."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,752.

Also letter dated Jena, September 5th, 1910, addressed "To the Parties," unsigned, beginning with the words, "Fighting steamers against the Uranium S. S. Co. (G 967)," and ending with the words, "putting forward their sailing day." Unsigned.

4116 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,753.

Also letter dated Nov. 11-10 to the Red Star Line, Antwerp, from the Red Star Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, "Uranium Competition," and ending with the words, "will have an opportunity of discussing this question with him." (Signed) Red Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,754.

Also letter dated Feb. 1-10/ to the Red Star Line, Antwerp, from the Red Star Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, "Northwest Transport Line," and ending with the words, "over the Trunk Line Rail- 4117 roads from this port." (Signed) Red Star Line.

Per

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,755.

Also letter dated Jan. 28-10, to the Red Star Line, Antwerp, from the American Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, "Colonist Rates," and ending with the words, "we will send you by first steamer after receipt." Signed, American Line. Per

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,756.

Also letter dated Jan. 25-10 to the Red Star Line, Antwerp, from the Red Star Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, "Northwest Transport Line Compe- 4118 tition," and ending with the words, "Cabled Mr. Peters the results as above." Signed The Red Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,757.

Also letter dated Jan. 26-10, to the Red Star Line, Antwerp, from the Red Star Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, "Lapland Sailed 22nd. Competitive Rate," and ending with the words, "order for the White Star and Lloyd to receive the usual compensation." Signed Red Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,758.

Also letter dated Antwerp, 20th April, 1910, to the 4119
Red Star Line, New York, from the Red Star Line, Antwerp. Beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 5th inst.," and ending with the words, "please advise us." Signed Red Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,759.

Also letter dated Antwerp, 23rd April, 1910, to the Red Star Line, New York, from the Red Star Line, Antwerp. Beginning with the words, "s/s Kroonland 2nd April and s/s Finland 9th April," and ending with the words, "passenger manifests of both steamers for Mr. Peters." Signed Red Star Line.

4120 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,760.

Also letter dated Antwerp 26th May, 1910, to the Red Star Line, New York, from the Red Star Line, Antwerp. Beginning with the words, "Your favors of 3rd and 13th inst. to hand," and ending with the words, "they cannot be used as basis for our account to Secretary Peters." Signed Red Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,761.

Also letter dated, April 26-10 to the American Line, Southampton, from the American Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, "Your favors of the 15th inst. to hand," and ending with the words, "Agree-4121 ment 'L' S. S. 'New York' sailed from here, etc. (ending with) circulars will be sent to our agents at once." "Unsigned."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,762.

Also letter dated, Southampton, Sept. 14th, 1910, to the American Line, New York, from the American Line, Southampton. Beginning with the words, "East Bound Rates," and ending with the words, "Are these the only Companies who pay?" Signed, American Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,763.

4122 Also letter dated Sept. 23-10, to the American Line, Southampton, from the American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "E. B. Rates," and ending with the words, "Government Req. 21—480." Signed American Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,764.

Also letter dated, July 26-10 to the American Line, Southampton, from the American Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, "We note with some surprise," and ending with the words, "that we can secure any of this traffic at a $6 higher rate."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,765. 4123

Also letter dated, Southampton, June 11th, 1910, to the American Line, N. Y., from the American Line, Southampton. Beginning with the words, "We have your L 757 of May 31," and ending with the words, "that they were sufficiently protected." Signed, American Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,766.

Also letter dated June 17-10 to the American Line, Southampton, from the American Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, "We note your remarks," and ending with the words, "Government, 17—430." Signed, American Line. 4124

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,767.

Also letter dated Southampton June 6th, 1910, to the American Line, N. Y. from the American Line, Southampton. Beginning with the words, "St Paul E. B. April 30th," and ending with the words, "may be no undue delay in claiming compensation." Signed American Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,768.

Also letter dated June 7-10, to the American Line, Southampton, from the American Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 27th ulto. to hand," and ending with the words, "Orientals 9—24." Signed, American Line. 4125

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,769.

Also letter dated May 24-10. To the American Line, Southampton, from the American Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, "Your favors of the 14th inst. to hand," and ending with the words, "Has not before been promulgated amongst the S. S. Lines." American Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,770.

4126 Also letter dated Southampton, May 27th, 1910, to the American Line, N. Y. from the American Line, Southampton. Beginning with the words, " 'Philadelphia,' April 2 EB," and ending with the words, "so greatly overcarried their allotment share." Signed, American Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,771.

Also letter dated May 31-10 to the American Line, Southampton, from the American Line, New York. Beginning with the words, "Competitive Rates," and ending with the words, "Orientals 14—24." Signed American Line.

4127 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit 1,772.

Also letter dated May 6-10 to the American Line, Southampton, from the American Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, " 'Philadelphia' Tomorrow," and ending with the words, "Deported 31—171." Signed, American Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,773.

Also letter dated May 10-10 to the American Line, Southampton, from the American Line, N. Y. Beginning with the words, "Savannah Line Immigrant Tariff,' and ending with the words, "which we hope to send you very shortly." (Signed) American Line.

4128 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,774.

Mr. Guiler: I also offer in evidence miscellaneous letters between various steamship companies, members of the International Mercantile Marine, and other members thereof, and H. Peters of Jena.

Letter dated Liverpool, 3rd April, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, beginning with the words: "Your favor of the 18th ulto. received," and ending with the words, "The information you asked for." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,775.

4129

Also copy of letter dated April 2nd, 8, addressed, Secretary Peters, beginning with the words, "Referring to your circular letter G. No. 36," and ending with the words, "views of the other Lines as far as possible."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,776.

Also letter dated Liverpool, 15th February, 1908 addressed, Passenger Department, beginning with the words, "As conveyed to you by cable from Mr Ismay," and ending with the words, "Oriental and Italian business of the French Line." Signed, Ismay Imrie & Co.

4130

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,777.

Also letter dated Liverpool, 27th March, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, beginning with the words, "Enclosed please find typewritten copy of the provisional Minutes," and ending with the words, "Secretary to circulate statistics for consideration."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,778.

Also letter dated Liverpool, 31st March, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, beginning with the words, "Referring to our letter of 27th inst," and ending with the words, "substitute for those sent you with our letter referred to." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

4131

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,779.

Also letter dated April 27th, 1909, addressed, Ismay, Imrie & Co., beginning with the words, "Minute #1. The New York Conference Committee under Bylaw No. 22," and ending with the words, "included in the carryings of these lines under Agreement AA."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,780.

Also letter dated, Liverpool, 6th May, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Lee & Franklin, beginning with the 4132 words, "We are in receipt of your favor of the 27th," and ending with the words, "to the allottment in that Conference." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,781.

Also letter, dated December 13th, 1910, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 3rd instant, with enclosures," and ending with the words, "as to which we await your further advices," signed, "For the Passenger Department."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,782.

4133 Also letter, dated 15th September, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, Boston, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. Weekly statistics No. 33 for period 1st-7th September," and ending with the words, "in connection with the Mediterranean pool."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,783.

Also letter, dated Sept. 17, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, Eng., beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. We beg to acknowledge receipt of weekly statistics," and ending with the words, "for the Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co." Signed, White Star Line.

4134 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,784.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 15th September, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Gothenburg agency. We shall be interested to have Mr. Brecke's views in due course," and ending with the words, "and we enclose herewith order to cover." Signed, For Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,785.

Also letter, dated Sept. 24, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, Eng., beginning with the words, "We have to acknowledge receipt of your favors of the 15th and 18th instants," and ending with the words, "we expect to have about 200 third-class passengers." Signed, White Star Line. 4135

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,786.

Also letter dated, Liverpool, 18th September, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. We enclose Scandinavian American Line statistics," and ending with the words, "and 24 copies of that relating to 'Oceanic.'" Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,787.

Also letter, dated 18th September, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, Boston, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. We enclose Scandinavian American Line statistics for period 24th-31st August," and ending with the words, "compared with the Atlantic Conference." 4136

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1788.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 22nd September, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. Enclosed please find weekly statistics No. 34," and ending with the words, "east and westbound." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

4137

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1789.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 24th September, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. Weekly statistics No. 34, east and westbound," and ending with the words, "wish to travel via Southampton at a rate of $52.50."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,790.

Also letter, dated 29th September, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, Boston, beginning with the 4138 words, "Atlantic Conference. Weekly statistics No. 35," and ending with the words, "east and west, enclosed herewith."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,791.

Also letter, dated Oct. 5, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, Eng., beginning with the words, "Your favors of the 24th and 25th of Sept. at hand," and ending with the words, "rate sheet on the Southampton service, which we enclose herewith." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1792.

4139 Also letter, dated Liverpool, 1st September, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "New Immigrant Tariff. Will you please advise us what the position is with regard to this tariff," and ending with the words, "and the usual forwarding arrangements have been duly made." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,793.

Also letter, dated Sept. 10, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, Eng., beginning with the words, "New Immigrant Tariff, will not be ready for some time," and ending with the words, "No. 31 for 16th to 23rd of August, etc." Signed, White Star 4140 Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,794.

Also letter, dated 8th September, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, Boston, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. Weekly statistics No. 32 for period 24th-31st August," and ending with the words, "for the corresponding period are attached."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,795.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 8th September, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Easbound Rail Bookings. We note your remarks, and the territory from which commission," and ending with the words, "statistics for the Russian Eastasiatic S. S. Co." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co. 4141

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,796.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 11th September, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Agreement C. C. Scandinavian American Line. Nothing further has transpired," and ending with the words, "We will keep you advised of any developments."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,797. 4142

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 29th September, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Your two letters of the 17th inst. to hand," and ending with the words, "for period 16th-23rd September, enclosed herewith." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,798.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 6th October, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "P. S. Atlantic Conference. Enclosed please find weekly statistics No. 36," and ending with the words, "for period 24th-30th September." 4143

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,799.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 8th October, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. Enclosed please find weekly statistics No. 36," and ending with the words, "for the Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,800.

4144 Also letter, dated October 19, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, Eng., beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. Weekly statistics East and Westbound," and ending with the words, "reached Queenstown safely without serious trouble." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,801.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 15th October, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. Enclosed please find weekly statistics No. 37," and ending with the words, "for 1st-7th September and 8-15th September, respectively." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

4145

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,802.

Also letter, dated October 26, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, Eng., beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 15th inst. to hand," and ending with the words, "Continentals 36." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,803.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 22nd October, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. Enclosed please find weekly statistics No. 38," and ending with 4146 the words, "east and westbound statistics for Scandinavian American Line." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,804.

Also letter, dated Nov. 2, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, Eng., beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. Weekly statistics No. 38, east and westbound," and ending with the words, "Continentals 91." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,805.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 3rd November, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Your favors of the 22nd and 26th ulto, to hand," and ending with the words, "statistics for 24th-30th Septr., 1st-7th and 8th-15th October." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co. 4147

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,806.

Also letter, dated Nov. 12, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, Eng., beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 3rd inst. to hand," and ending with the words, "statistics No. 35 were not enclosed." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,807. 4148

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 10th November, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Your favors of the 29th ulto., and 2nd inst., to hand," and ending with the words, "from the West end office which we attach for your perusal." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,808.

Also letter, dated Nov. 19, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, Eng., beginning with the words, "We have to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 10th inst.," and ending with the words, "Berman, Braine, 23, f, Russ. Heb. LPC. Appeal Dismissed." Signed, White Star Line. 4149

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,809.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 17th November, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Your two favors of the 5th instant to hand, contents noted," and ending with the words, "and the Scandinavian American Line." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,810.

4150 Also letter, dated Nov. 26-09, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, Eng., beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference. We are obliged for weekly statistic for the period," and ending with the words, "to seventh of November." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,811.

Also letter, dated Nov. 30, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, Eng., beginning with the words, "Your favors of the 19th and 20th insts., to hand," and ending with the words, "for meeting held Oct. 11, 1909, duly received." Signed, White Star Line.

4151

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,812.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 24th November, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 12th and two letters of the 16th instant to hand," and ending with the words, "Greek and Oriental business via Channel ports." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,813.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 22nd February, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Rate sheets. The several copies 4152 of rate sheets of the various Lines duly received," and ending with the words, "Passenger Managers' Meeting held in New York." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,814.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 7th March, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "S. H. O-3-1176, issued in favour of William J. Williams," and ending with the words, "copies of these documents in due course, and oblige." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,815. 4153

Also letter, dated February 25, 1908, addresesd, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "We have to acknowledge receipt of your favor of 15th inst.," and ending with the words, "existing between the American, French and N. D. L. V. Lines." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,816.

Also letter, dated May 21, 1908, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Hamburg Line. Yesterday afternoon we were advised by circular," and ending with the words, "to the Continental ports including Cherbourg." Signed, 4154
White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,817.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 12th February, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "We are in receipt of your cable of the 1st," and ending with the words, "the passengers were booked on your own office tickets." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,818.

Also letter, dated February 21, 1908, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with 4155
the words, "In reply to your inquiry as to whether the passengers," and ending with the words, "issued over our counter and on our blanks." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,819.

Also letter, dated Feb. 17, 1908, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Referring to our letter of the 5th inst.," and ending with the words, "of course report to Mr. E. C. Brown." Signed, White Star Line.

4156 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,820.

Also letter, dated January 28th, 1908, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "You will notice from the attached communication from the Secretary of Conference," and ending with the words, "from the tax or refund made to them." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,821.

Also letter, dated 18th January, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, Boston, beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 10th instant," and ending with the words, "which will be dealt with in our next 4157 communication."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,822.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, Dec. 31st, '07, addressed, North Atlantic Passenger Conference, Secretary's Office, reads as follows: "Return of British, Scandinavian and Continental Third Class Passengers carried Eastbound by British Lines in the period, January 1st to October 31st, 1907."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,823.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 14th March, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning 4158 with the words, "You will find your question under this heading fully answered," and ending with the words, "return of the Trans-atlantic Passenger Movement."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,824.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 25th March, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 13th instant to hand," and ending with the words, "at last Conference meeting in Liverpool."

Also letter attached, dated Christiania, March 16, 1908, addressed, Mr. Thos. C. Swain, Liverpool, beginning with the words, "I have your favor of 12th inst.," and ending with the words, "We have conference." Signed, Ferd. J. Elster. 4159

Also letter attached, dated Trendhjem, March 16th, 1908, addressed, Mr. T. C. Swain, Liverpool, beginning with the words, "I am duly in receipt of your favor of the 12th instant," and ending with the words, "on account of the bad times over in America." Signed. Gerh. Dahl.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,825.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 1st April, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Continental Third Class Rates. You will have received Mr. Ismay's cable of the 30th ulto.," and ending with the words, "their prepaid sales of the Conference Secretary." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co. 4160

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,826.

Also letter, dated April 7, 1908, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Russian-East Asiatic Co., The Continental Lines have," and ending with the words, "From Bremen, Libau & Riga—$30.00."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,827.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 11th April, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Cable-Continental Rates. In reference to this matter you will remember," and ending with the words, "that may be justified by the situation." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co. 4161

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,828.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 24th April, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Third Class Circulars. Referring to your letter of the 7th instant," and ending with the 4162 words, "had taken place since Secretary Peters last wired." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,829.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 25th April, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Prepaid Sales. In connection with the cabling of these numbers," and ending with the words, "mentioned under the pool contract." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,830.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 25th April, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning 4163 with the words, "Referring to our general Third Class letter of the 16th instant, we attach herewith a memo.," and ending with the words, "in conjunction with the other Lines." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Also paper attached to foregoing leterhead, "Conference Meeting, 22nd April, 1908," beginning with the words, "The question of advertising was also taken up at Conference yesterday," and ending with the words, "for the curtailment of advertising expenses, in June."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,831.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 29th April, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning 4164 with the words, "S. S. 'Baltic.' We note your remarks in yours of the 18th instant in connection," and ending with the words, "which please arrange to forward on receipt." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,832.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 6th May, 1908, addressed, Passenger Department, New York, beginning with the words, "Reduced Eastbound Continental Rates. With reference to your remarks a similar arrangement," and ending with the words, "held on 20th, 24th and 25th February and 3rd March, 1908." Signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,833. 4165

Also letter, dated May 13, 1908, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "The Conference Secretary has transmitted to the British Lines," and ending with the words, "any citizens of this country or aliens in transit." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,834.

Also letter, dated May 15, 1908, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "We are in receipt of your favor of 6th inst.," and ending with the words, "and stamping them to read via C. T. R." Signed, White Star Line. 4166

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,835.

Also letter, dated May 15, 1908, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Greek & Oriental Prepaid rates. Referring to your letter of 6th inst.," and ending with the words, "the rates so high that they would be practically prohibitory." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,836.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 1st August, 1908, to White Star Line, N. Y., from the Ismay, Imrie Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Your favour of the 21st ulto. to hand contents noted," and ending with the words, "rate of the direct Bremen steamer." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co. 4167

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,837.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 7th August, 1908, to the White Star Line, N. Y., from Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Your favour of the 28th ulto. to hand, contents noted," and ending with the words, "to the figure demanded by the percentual allotment." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

4168 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,838.

Also letter, dated Aug. 11, 1908, to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, from the White Star Line, N. Y., beginning with the words, "N. A. P. C. Meeting-Liverpool," and ending with the words, "effective August 31st to Oct. 30th." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,839.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 12th August, 1908, to the White Star Line, N. Y., from the Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Continental Prepaids," and ending with the words, "which have been duly printed." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

4169 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,840.

Also letter, dated August 14th, 1908, to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, from the White Star Line, beginning with the words, "Complaint against Falck & Co., Hamburg," and ending with the words, "We enclose copy of minutes of meeting No. 4." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,841.

Also letter, dated August 18, 1908, to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, from the White Star Line, beginning with the words, "III Class Passenger Department," and ending with the words, 4170 "with regard to adjustment of their carryings." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,842.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, August 19th, 1908, from the Ismay, Imrie & Co., to the White Star Line, beginning with the words, "Your letter of the 7th inst. to hand," and ending with the words, "No. 21, period 1st-7th August, 1908." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,843.

Also letter, dated August 21, 1908, to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., from the White Star Line, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference," and ending with the words, "that the new rates will go into effect August 24th." Signed, White Star Line. 4171

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,844.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, August 22nd, 1908, to the White Star Line, N. Y., from the Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "We confirm our cable of today reading," and ending with the words, "which the lines are sending out to the Agents who need same." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,845. 4172

Also letter, dated August 22nd, 1908, Liverpool, to the White Star Line, N. Y., from Ismay, Imrie & Co., at Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Yours of the 11th inst. to hand," and ending with the words, "at the Paris Meeting, Aug. 7th." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,846.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, August 26th, 1908, to the White Star Line, N. Y., from Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Your letter of the 14th inst. to hand," and ending with the words, "we are obliged for copy of minutes of Meeting No. 4." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co. 4173

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,847.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, August 29th, 1908, to the White Star Line, N. Y., from the Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, begining with the words, "Your letter of the 18th to hand," and ending with the words, "for your files." Signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,848.

4174 Also letter, dated Sept. 1, 1908, to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, from the White Star Line, N. Y., beginning with the words, "We have your favor of the 22nd ult.," and ending with the words, "Please instruct, returning letter." Signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,849.

Also letter, dated Sept. 8th, 1908, to Messrs. Ismay, Irmie & Co., Liverpool, from White Star Line, N. Y., beginning with the words, "We beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 29th ult. per s/s 'Lucania,'" and ending with the words, "You will notice that they now quote a rate of $31, plus $4, head tax." Signed, White Star Line.

4175

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,850.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, September 2nd, 1908, addressed to the White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Your favour of the 21st ultimo to hand, contents noted," ending with the words, "the period 16th-23rd August," and signed for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,851.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, September 9th, 1908, addressed to the White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Your favors of the 28th ulto., and 1st inst., to hand," ending with the words, "the period 24th-31st August," and signed for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

4176

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,852.

Also letter, dated September 18th, 1908, addressed to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "We beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 9th inst.," ending with the words, "for which please accept thanks."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,853.

Also letter, addressed to White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Since writing you on the 9th instant, we have none of your further favours," ending with the words, "Cymric Cedric Baltic pool, purposes," and signed for Ismay, Imrie & Co. 4177

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,854.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, September 16th, 1908, addressed to White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Your favour of the 4th instant to hand, contents noted," ending with the words, "to alter the prepaid figure," and signed for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,855.

Also letter, dated September 29, 1908, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "We are in receipt of your favors of the 19th inst.," and ending with the words, "Which will be carefully kept." 4178

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,856.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, September 19th, 1908, addressed to the White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference," ending with the words, "Please acknowledge receipt," and signed for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,857. 4179

Also letter, dated Liverpool, September 23rd, 1908, addressed to the White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Your favour of the 11th instant to hand," and ending with the words, "copies dated September 19th," and signed for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,858.

Also letter, dated October 6th, 1908, addressed to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "We beg to acknowledge receipt of your 4180 favor of the 26th ult.," ending with the words, "you will find of interest," and signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,859.

Also letter, dated October 13th, 1908, addressed to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "We beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 3rd inst.," and ending with the words, "accept thanks," and signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,860.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 3rd October, 1908, addressed to the White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 22nd ulto. to 4181 hand," and ending with the words, "prepaid rate being made," and signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,861.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, October 7th, 1908, addressed to the White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Your favour of the 25th ulto. to hand," ending with the words, "in due course," and signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1862.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, October 10th, 1908, addressed to the White Star Line, New York, beginning 4182 with the words, "Your favour of the 29th ulto. to hand, contents noted," ending with the words, "with free orders to Boston," and signed, for Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,863.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, October 14th, 1908, addressed to the White Star Line, beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 2nd instant to hand," and ending with the words, "furnish us with a copy," and signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,864. 4183

Also letter, dated October 23rd, 1908, addressed to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "New York Conference Minutes," and ending with the words, "per day, menu, etc.," and signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,865.

Also letter from H. Peters to J. Bruce Ismay, Esq., beginning with the words, "I beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 2nd inst.," and ending with the words, "notice of an alteration."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,866. 4184

Also letter, dated April 22nd, 1908, addressed, "Dear Sir," beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference Eastbound Pool Percentages," ending with the words, "first month without further delay," and signed, J. Bruce Ismay.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,867.

Also letter, dated April 22nd, 1908, addressed, "Dear Sir," beginning with the words, "Eastbound Pool Percentage Arbitration," ending with the words, "acknowledgment and confirmation," and signed, Harold A. Sanderson.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,868. 4185

Also letter, dated February 11th, 1907, addressed to H. Peters, Esq., Jena, Germany, beginning with the words, "In considering our Eastbound third-class arrangements," ending with the words, "awaiting the favor of your reply, remain," and unsigned.

Also statement attached, entitled "Third Class Contenental Eastbound Rates."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,869.

4186 Also letter, dated Liverpool, August 14th, 1907, addressed to H. Peters, Esq., Jena, beginning with the words, "In Mr. Ismay's absence," ending with the words, "in the unsettled state," and signed, Harold A. Sanderson.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,870.

Also letter, dated August 17th, 1908, addressed to Secretary Peters, Jena, beginning with the words, "Referring to your G. No. 228," and ending with the words, "about statement, and remain."

Also letter attached, dated Jena, August 22nd, 1908, addressed, White Star Line, Liverpool, beginning with 4187 the words, "In reply to your favor of the 17th instant," and ending with, "Cunard Fiume 2.35%."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,871.

Also letter G. No. 659, dated Jena, November 19th, 1909, adressed, "To the Parties," beginning with the words, "Immco Allotment in Atlantic Conference," ending with the words, "in the above Eastbound allotment," and unsigned.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,872.

Also copy of letter, dated Jena, January 25th, 1908, addressed, J. Bruce Ismay, Esq., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "By request of Mr. Ballin I beg to 4188 send you," ending with the words, "I hope to send you on next Monday," and signed, H. Peters.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,873.

Also copy of letter, dated Liverpool, 28th January, 1908, addressed, H. Peters, Esq., Jena, beginning with the words, "I am in receipt of your letter of the 25th inst.," ending with the words, "for which I am obliged," and signed, Bruce Ismay.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,874.

Also copy of letter, dated Liverpool, 29th January, 1908, addressed, H. Peters, Esq., Jena, beginning with the words, "I am in receipt of your letter of the 27th inst.," ending with the words, "for which I am obliged," and signed, Bruce Ismay. 4189

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,875.

Also copy of letter, dated Liverpool, February 7th, 1908, addressed, H. Peters, Esq., Jena, Germany, begining with the words, "1. Agreement Limiting the Canadian Lines," ending with the words, "Third Class Passenger business," and signed, Bruce Ismay.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,876.

Also copy of letter, dated Liverpool, April 2nd, 1908, addressed, H. Peters, Esq., Jena, beginning with the words, "Eastbound Pool Percentages," ending with the words, "to send you a copy very shortly," and signed, Harold A. Sanderson. 4190

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,877.

Also copy of letter, dated Liverpool, September 28th, 1910, addressed, H. Peters, Esq., Jena, beginning with the words, "On that occasion, I placed before the meeting a cable," and ending with the words, "Allan Lines was not agreed to," and signed, Bruce Ismay.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,878.

Also letter, dated December 24th, 1908, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Atlantic Conference-Cologne Meeting, Dec. 3rd," ending with the words, "done for all the I. M. M. Co.'s Lines," and signed, Passenger Department. 4191

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,879.

Also copy of cable, addressed to Ismay, Liverpool, April 24, 1908, beginning with the words, "Referring 4192 to your telegram," and ending with the words, "to basis $28 Hamburg.

Also copy of cable from Liverpool to Internavco, N. Y., April 24, 1908, beginning with the words, "To adjust position," and ending with the words, "recent reduction."

Also copy of cable, addressed, Internavco, N. Y., April 25, 1908, beginning with the words, "Advanced Westbound Continental Steerage rates," and ending with the words, "Services only."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1880.

Also letter, dated April 15th, 1910, addressed to Mr.
4193 Strasser, beginning with the words, "I have your favor of the 8th instant," and ending with the words, "if they are printed in another language."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,881.

Also letter, dated December 23/09, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 15th to hand," ending with the words, "at a rate of $24," and signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,882.

Also letter, dated September 17th, 1909, addressed Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with 4194 the words, "Northwest Transport Line," ending with the words, "was less than $100 for each steamer," and signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,883.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, May 15th, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "For your information we attach herewith," ending with the words, "will be sent you in due course," and signed, "Ismay, Imrie & Co."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,884. 4195

Attached thereto is letter, dated Liverpool, May 13th, 1909, addressed, E. S. Smyth, Secretary, beginning with the words, "The Chairman explained the reasons which prompted the British Lines," and with certain omissions ending with the words, "and 3.50% eastbound."

Also letter, dated Liverpool, May 14th, 1909, addressed from E. S. Smyth to H. Peters, Esq., Jena, beginning with the words, "Referring to Minute No. 120," and ending with the words, "clash with any other agreements."

Also copy of paper beginning with the words, "It is understood that today's agreement," ending with the 4196 words, "to cancel clause 5 of that agreement," and signed C. M. T. Gold, and dated, Liverpool, May 14th, 1909.

Also letter, dated May 11th, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Northwest Transport Line," ending with the words, "of the small eastbound movement," and signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,885.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, April 30th, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "Northwest Trans- 4197 port Line," ending with the words, "your views on this point," and signed Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,886.

Also letter, dated April 20th, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Northwest Transport Line," ending with the words, "for any particular sailing," and signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,887.

4198 Also letter, dated April 9th, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Northwest Transportation Co.," and ending with the words, "who will watch the situation," and signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,888.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, April 8th, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "North West Transport Line," ending with the words, "Italian and Continental Lines," and signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,889.

4199 Also letter, dated Liverpool, March 31st, 1909, addressed, Passenger Department, White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "North West Transport Line," ending with the words, "Act accordingly with other Lines," and signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,890.

Also letter, dated March 29th, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Northwest Transportation Co.," ending with the words, "applied to the British Lines," and signed, White Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,891.

4200 Also cablegram to Internavaco, N. Y., dated March 29th, 1909, beginning with the words, "Paris meeting by law," and ending with the words, "act accordingly with other lines."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,892.

Also letter, dated September 10th, 1908, addressed Red Star Line, Antwerp, beginning with the words, "Northwest Transport Line," ending with the words, "800 for this sailing," and signed, Red Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,893. 4201

Also letter, dated Liverpool, April 29th, 1908, addressed, H. Peters, Esq., Jena, beginning with the words, "We beg to acknowledge receipt of your telegram of the 29th inst.," ending with the words, "Cherbourg to $30 basis Turin," and signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Also copy of telegram, from Secretary Peters, 29th April, 1908, beginning with the words, "Holland Line got cable Avoca," and ending with the word, "wire."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,894.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, June 20th, 1908, addressed, "Passenger Department, White Star Line, 4202
New York," beginning with the words, "We are glad to see that you were in a position," ending with the words, "to the Red Star Line of the 9th," and signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,895.

Also letter, addressed to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Special Frank Zotti & Co.," ending with the words, "we took in the matter," and signed, "White Star Line."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,896.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, December 30th, 1910, 4203 addressed, White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "We have just received a telegram from Secretary Peters," ending with the words, "in Paris for April 24th," and signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,897.

Also letter, dated Antwerp, November 21st, 1910, adressed, "W. W. Jefferies, Esq., New York, beginning with the words, "Please find enclosed N. D. L. V.," ending with the words, "rates as per agreement V. & W.," and signed, Red Star Line.

4204 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,898.

Also letter, dated September 30th, 1910, addressed to Edward Strasser, Esq., Red Star Line, Antwerp, beginning with the words, "I have been a great admirer of the statistics issued," and ending with the words, "by the Holland American Line."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,899.

Also letter, dated July 8th, 1910, addressed, "American Line," beginning with the words, "Statistics for Mr. Peters," ending with the words, "was paid on the tickets or not," and signed, Passenger Department.

4205 Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,900.

Also letter, dated Southampton, June 21st, 1910, addressed, Passenger Department, American Line, New York, beginning with the words, "With reference to our letter of the 17th instant," ending with the words, "in favor of Mr. R. Whitaker," and signed, American Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,901.

Also letter, dated Antwerp, May 13th, 1910, addressed, W. W. Jefferies, Esq., New York, beginning with the words, "Please find enclosed copy of Minutes 931," ending with the words, "as per special ar-4206 rangement," and signed, Red Star Line.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,902.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, April 20th, 1910, beginning with the words, "Important Notice to Agents," and ending with the words, "will be immediately disqualified."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,903.

Also letter, dated January 27th, 1910, addressed to Mr. T. C. Swain, Liverpool, beginning with the words, "It has been sometime since I have received from you the translated copies," ending with the words, "printed in German," and unsigned.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,904. 4207

Also letter, dated November 15th, 1909, addressed to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "In reading over the Atlantic Conference," ending with the words, "and inland transportation as well," and signed, Passenger Department.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,905.

Also letter, dated June 7th, 1909, addressed, Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "Passenger Situation," ending with the words, "it has ever been on before," and signed, Passenger Department.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,906. 4208

Also letter, dated Liverpool, May 19th, 1909, addressed to Messrs. Lee & Franklin, New York, beginning with the words, "Passenger Situation," ending with the words, "no difficulty arising in this connection," and signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,907.

Also attached thereto, letter dated Liverpool, May 13th, 1909, addressed, E. S. Smyth, beginning with the words, "The Committee appointed under Minutes," ending with the words, "Westbound and 3.50% Eastbound," and signed, A. B. Cauty.

4209

Also copy of paper, beginning with the words, "It is understood that today's agreement," ending with the words, "clause 5 of that agreement," and signed C. M. T. Cold.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, May 14th, 1909, addresed Director C. M. T. Cold, Copenhagen, beginning with the words, "On behalf of the committee of the Conference Lines," and ending with the words, "agreement of this date."

Also letter, dated Liverpool, May 19th, 1909, addressed to White Star Line, New York, beginning with 4210 the words, "We are in receipt of your letter of the 6th instant," ending with the words, "for which we thank you," and signed, Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,908.

Also letter, dated April 21st, 1909, addressed to Mr. T. C. Swain, Liverpool, beginning with the words, "I am in receipt of your favor of the 8th inst.," and ending with the words, "more legible than heretofore," and unsigned.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,909.

Also letter, dated Liverpool, 8th April, 1909, ad-4211 dressed to W. W. Jefferies, Esq., New York, beginning with the words, "I have your letter of the 30th ulto.," ending with the words, "for complaint in this respect in future," and signed, T. C. Swain.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,910.

Also letter, dated March 30th, 1909, addressed to Mr. T. C. Swain, Liverpool, beginning with the words, "I know it is not good form to look a gift horse in the mouth," and ending with the words, "it will be very much appreciated."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,911.

Also letter, dated January 4th, 1909, addressed to 4212 Mr. T. C. Swain, Liverpool, beginning with the words "I am in receipt of your favour of the 23rd ulto.," and ending with the words, "which is quite in order."

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,912.

Also letter dated, Liverpool, December 23rd, 1908, addressed to White Star Line, New York, beginning with the words, "We are in receipt of your favour of the 8th instant," ending with the words, "which are made here," and signed Ismay, Imrie & Co.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,913.

Also letter, dated December 8th, 1908, addressed to Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, beginning with the words, "This office, for a number of years," ending with the words, "the practice of making translations here," and signed, Passenger Department. 4213

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,914.

Also letter, dated September 1, 1908, addressed to H. Peters, Esq., Jena, Germany, beginning with the words, "Your favor of the 12th," ending with the words, "the writer from the office," and signed, Passenger Department.

Marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1,915.

4214

Adjourned until Thursday, Nov. 14, 1912, at 11 o'clock A. M.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Petitioner, against HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others, Defendants.	Before Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

4215

New York, November 14th, 1912.

Met pursuant to adjournment and continued to the 20th of November, 1912, at 11 o'clock A. M.

4216 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Petitioner, against HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others, Defendants.	Before Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

4217

New York, November 20, 1912.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher by Norman B. Beecher, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton by J. C. Spooner, Esq., for the Allan Line, et. al.

4218 Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord by Lucius H. Beers, Esq., and Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et. al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for the Russian East Asiatic Company, et. al.

Mr. Beers: I would like to cross-examine Mr. Winter under the reservation made when Mr. Winter was examined previously.

Mr. Guiler: Before you do that I would like to say I was looking over some of the exhibits the other day and noticed that some exhibits were marked for indentification; some of them that had been printed, and two of them I noticed were marked for identification but were later offered in evidence, and if I come across any further ones that have been marked that way that we wish to put in evidence I would like to have permission to do so. 4219

Mr. Bullowa: Do you desire also to take out those exhibits which are in twice?

Mr. Guiler: Yes, I will do so if there are any in twice.

Mr. Bullowa: There are a couple in.

Mr. Guiler: The exhibits I desire to call attention to are Petitioner's Exhibit 82 for identification; that is in the printed record; it is marked 82 for identification; I would like to have that offered in evidence. 4220

Mr. Beers: That is subject to the objection we have a right to make under that examination; it all comes under our stipulation?

Mr. Guiler: Yes. Another exhibit marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 205 for identification; that is the European railroad tariff of the Hamburg American Line, and I want to offer that in evidence; that has already been printed.

Mr. Beers: Printed under an identification number only?

Mr. Guiler: Yes, an identification number, and, as I said before, I want to reserve the right to put in any of those others that have been so marked. I have not had time to go over the record of exhibits. 4221

Mr. Spooner: That is, wherever you find in the record any paper that has been marked for identification that you want introduced in evidence, you want to put it in?

Mr. Guiler: Yes, and we want to take out any of those that seem superfluous.

4222

HERMANN WINTER, recalled.

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Beers:

Q. Mr. Winter, in your direct-examination you stated that the representatives of certain lines met in New York at what you called conference rooms; will you state what that conference was in New York, at whose rooms you met? A. The conference rooms at 19 Broadway, at that time practically an office maintained between the representatives of lines here for local business, to communicate and discuss questions that arose here; it had reference to the, well, say the forwarding of immigrants by railroad, the questions that might come up with the immigration authorities, the railroads, customhouse, forwarding baggage; all local business; questions of interest which might arise.

4223

Q. How long had that meeting or conference been in existence in the City of New York? A. Why, the North Atlantic Steamer Traffic Conference is in existence since March, 1868; long prior to any agreement among the lines.

Q. That is long prior to any agreements made abroad? A. Oh, yes.

4224

Q. And was this meeting or conference in New York organized and maintained for the purposes you have indicated? A. Yes, solely.

Q. Purely for the purposes of business in the City of New York? A. For the purpose of discussing matters; practically a clearing house of our business here.

Q. Was this so-called conference or meeting which existed in New York, a branch or subordinate part of any organization of any description existing in Europe? A. Oh, no, not at all. It existed long prior to that of any organization abroad.

4225

Q. Did this conference or meeting in New York have anything to do with the financial or general policy of the lines represented? A. Nothing whatsoever.

Q. By what name was this New York Conference known? A. By British lines the North Atlantic Steamer Traffic Conference and subsequently changed to the North Atlantic Passenger Conference, then to the Continental lines, beginning about 1881, the Continental Conference and approximately at the same time the Mediteranean lines or the representatives of the American lines here, organized the Mediteranean Conference.

4226

Q. So if I understand rightly there was in New York a Continental Conference, the North Atlantic Conference and the Mediterranean Conference? A. Correct.

Q. And is what you have said in reference to this conference or meeting here at New York true of all three of those conferences? A. All three of them; it practically applies to all three of them.

Q. And that is the purpose for which they were organized and maintained? A. Exactly.

Q. And as to any relation which they bore to any organization whatever abroad? A. Correct.

4227

Q. Were these conferences in New York, that is, the Continental Conference, the North Atlantic Conference and the Mediterranean Conference, were they in existence in February, 1908, when the Agreement AA was entered into? A. Yes.

Q. Were you present in London when Agreement AA was made? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you take part in the discussion which led up to that? A. Yes.

Q. Had these conferences in New York, that is, the Continental Conference, the North Atlantic Conference, and the Mediterranean Conference any connection whatever, official or otherwise, with the organization or agreement represented by Agreement AA abroad? A. No.

Mr. Guiler: Don't you think Mr. Beers, you ought to ask what they did instead of asking conclusions? As to what the connection was? Why don't you ask him what they did, what was the particular business. We object to it on the ground that it calls for a conclusion.

Mr. Beers: Do you object to the form of the question?

Mr. Guiler: Well, I think it ought to be—

4229 he ought to say what the conference here did instead of a conclusion in his mind from the acts which they did.

(Question read.)

Mr. Beers: That calls for an official or any connection between the two.

Mr. Guiler: That calls for a conclusion also it seems to me from certain facts and I object to it and ask that it be excluded.

Mr. Spooner: Answer the question.

A. No.

Q. Under Agreement AA, made in London in February, 1908, there was an official known as a secre-

4230 tary in Europe, was there not, appointed? A. Yes.

Q. For the purposes of the agreement? A. Exactly.

Q. Had that secretary appointed under Agreement AA, any authority or duty with respect to these conferences in New York? A. No, we had no connection with that at all.

Mr. Guiler: I object to that as a conclusion and ask that it be stricken out.

Q. Have you enumerated all the purposes for which these conferences in New York were organized and maintained, Mr. Winter? A. Practically.

4231

Q. You testified on your direct-examination, Mr Winter that certain telegrams—that after certain telegrams had been received by the representatives of certain lines here in reference to the organization of the Small Committee, representatives of those lines met at the rooms of these conferences; why did they meet in conference? A. That was the most convenient place to meet. We met there to discuss our business as business conditions arose here, and to consult with each other. The office of the conference, the rooms maintained by the conference, practically is an office at which we could discuss our affairs; questions arose which affected us and our business mutually.

4232

Q. Was the fact that you met there merely a matter of convenience? A. Merely a matter of convenience. We might as well have met in the office of any one of us, or at any luncheon place.

Q. Had the business that you then had in hand, that is, the making up of the Small Committee, anything to do with the purpose for which the New York conferences had been organized or maintained? A. It was the most convenient place to meet and discuss this question; take this action.

Q. Had any one of these New York conferences or all of them together any duty in respect to the enforcement of Agreement AA? A. No.

4233

Q. You have testified to the organization of the Small Committee here in New York; on what authority did the representatives of the lines act in selecting the members of that Small Committee? A. On authority each received from his home office abroad.

Q. By cable? A. By cable.

Mr. Spooner: I did not have the privilege of being present at the last hearing; I would like to ask Mr. Winter a question or two.

4234 Hermann Winter

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. Mr. Winter, can you state from recollection who were the parties to Agreement AA, what companies? A. To Agreement AA?

Q. Yes. The one that is being attacked by the Government in this suit? A. The Hamburg American Line, North German Lloyd, Red Star, the French Line, White Star, American Line, Red Star, Canadian Pacific, Allan Line, the Russian American Line joined subsequently, the Scandinavian American Line joined subsequently, and Holland Amerika Line.

4235 Q. Did you mention the Cunard? A. Yes; Cunard Line.

Q. And the International Mercantile Marine? A. Yes, as one; they practically represent the American Line, White Star and Atlantic Transport.

Q. When did the French Line become a party to it, if you know? A. They were present at all of those meetings.

Q. When did it become a party to Agreement AA? A. On that occasion, February 8th, 1908.

Q. At the outset? A. Yes, at the very outset.

Q. Has the French Line been continuously a party ever since? A. Certainly.

4236 Q. It was a party at the time of the bringing of this suit? A. Yes.

Q. It is a party now? A. It is a party now.

Q. It is a party to it now? A. A party to it now, and participating.

Q. And has been participating ever since the formation of the agreement? A. Ever since.

Q. And also in the fighting ship arrangement? A. Yes, fighting ships, they were never designated because their facilities were impracticable for that purpose.

Q. They participated in the administration of them? A. Oh, yes; on the other side as far as we know.

4237

Q. And they are doing it today? A. No doubt.

Mr. Beers: At the foot of page 1,215, fifth line from the bottom, "A. During the first term the committee had attempted to select a steamer and to suggest a rate—"

The Witness: That ought to be authority to suggest a rate. Then, on the next page, at the bottom in answer to the question "That was the only line doing a steerage business in the North Atlantic trade that was not represented directly or indirectly in the conferences you have mentioned? A. Practically," I ought to have said there also the Russian Volunteer and the Russian East Asiatic Line.

4238

By Mr. Beers:

Q. Do you desire to correct your testimony to that extent? A. To that extent, yes.

Q. Are there any other corrections? A. I answered a question ahead of that: "Q. What lines were there at that time which were not members of the conference? A. More particularly the Northwest Transport Company." I ought to have said the New York and Continental Line; the North West Transport Company was the successor of that line.

Q. You desire to correct your testimony to that extent? A. To that extent, yes, please.

4239

Mr. Bullowa: I want to suggest on the record now before the Government rests that it has developed by the cross-examination of this witness that the French Line is an indispensable, necessary and material party, and that it should be made a party before the proofs of the defendants be put in.

Mr. Guiler: In answer to that I want to state the French Line, that all the government 4240 had in regard to the question of whether the French Line was a party or not was a copy of Agreement AA when they drew the bill and all of the other evidence did not point to the fact of the French Line being in it, and that was partly on account of the fact that a page of Agreement AA, which was supplied by one of the defendants who is now not alive, to the Government was missing from that Agreement AA, and therefore, the French Line was not made a party at that time.

Mr. Bullowa: I suggest in view of the fact that it has developed—before the Government 4241 has closed its case—that the French Line was and is a material and necessary party, it should be made a party before the defendants' proof is put in.

Mr. Spooner: In answer to the suggestion of Mr.Guiler that the Government did not know when this suit was brought that the French Line was a party to it, I wish to say that the Department of Justice was informed of the fact to my personal knowledge several months ago.

Mr. Guiler: That is, you mean it came out in some of the testimony that was given here?

Mr. Spooner: No sir, that Mr. Beers and myself recollect it was furnished sometime ago.

4242 Mr. Guiler: On the other hand it does not seem to me the defendants here should be advising the Government as to what parties to make defendants in this action.

Mr. Spooner: I will offer no argument in the discussion of my statement.

Mr. Guiler: The bill seems to cover the material parties here.

Mr. Spooner: I am an American citizen and the Department of Justice representative is an American citizen—

Mr. Guiler: That is right.

Mr. Spooner: And I thought the Department of Justice ought to have been advised of the fact.

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. Has it been used by the Government? A. Why, yes.

Q. In what sense? A. The Department of Commerce and Labor has communicated its wishes and desires for carrying out certain regulations to all the lines through that office; the custom service—

4244

Mr. Guiler: I don't see how that is material. I object and move to strike it out. This is not in any way material to the issue here presented.

Mr. Spooner: I would not move to strike it out until it is in.

Mr Guiler: It ought not to be in there. The Court, of course, will decide that finally, but now under our agreement here I have a right to object right off.

Mr. Beers: As to the form of the question, not as to the materiality? We have not been pressing questions as to the materiality; we would have been doing nothing else if we had. 4245

Mr. Guiler: You had the right to object later on and to strike out anything you wanted to strike out or make the motion to strike out, but I have not. Now, under this agreement, as I understand it, we have to make the objections as they arise.

Mr. Spooner: You had the right when this testimony was taken to move to strike it out.

Mr. Guiler: That is the way I understand. We are going ahead now, and that is the reason I make these objections in this way, just to hasten the matter to a conclusion, so that we won't have a long time fixing it up afterwards.

4246 Hermann Winter

Mr. Beers: Let me understand; perhaps I am in error.

(After consultation between counsel present the following was directed recorded):

It is understood that the stipulation originally made in reference to the objections made by the defendants or by the Government continues in force.

(Answer read.)

Mr. Spooner: Go on, Mr. Winter.

4247

A. The custom service has used the office to communicate its wishes with reference to matters pertaining to the custom regulations, steamship business arriving here, custom interests; the treasury department used the office that way to communicate all of their—right through the secretary, or our clerk to the various lines instead of addressing each of the lines.

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and I ask to strike it out.

Mr. Bullowa: As I understand it, Mr. Winter, then any line, whether a member of any agreement or not has the privilege of contributing to the maintenance of the office and thereby procuring the use of the office and the use of the facilities of the office.

4248

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as immaterial, irrelevant and incompetent.

The Witness: Practically.

Mr. Bullowa: Including the secretary?

The Witness: Practically, yes.

Mr. Bullowa: And other matters?

The Witness: Practically.

4249

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. Mr. Winter, the office was used, however, was it not, as a means of communication between Mr. Peters, the secretary at Jena, and the various steamship lines? A. No, it was not.

Q. It was not? A. No, indeed not.

Q Was it used by Mr. Peters to notify through Mr. Sandford any members of the Small Committee as to his wishes? A. No, indeed not.

Q. Never was? A. No. Mr. Peters' instructions had no value for us; no authority for us at all.

4250

Q. I show you an exhibit which is marked Petitioner's Exhibit 31, and which has already been testified to as coming from Secretary Peters, the secretary at Jena, and which reads as follows: "Nordwest Raglancastle about June 23 Allowing extra commission High as five small com. consider necessary adopt same tactics cable confirmation." Now, that is a communiation from Secretary Peters in regard to the competition against the Northwest Transport Line, isn't it? A. No, this is addressed to Jena.

Q. Oh, yes, that is right; that one is. Well, that is from Secretary Sandford to Secretary Peters? A. That appears to have been sent by Secretary Sandford not under authority of the lines; he did that in answer to an enquiry.

4251

Q. That was a communication between them? A. Oh, yes.

Q. In that case Sandford had— A. He may have answered an enquiry. I can't tell the connection of that.

Q. But there was a communication as to the Northwest Transport Company by Secretary Sandford with Secretary Peters in regard to the policy as to the Northwest Transport Company? A. It may have been as an enquiry; I cannot say as to that, but Secretary Peters 4252 never gave us instructions here, nor did we communicate instructions to Secretary Peters.

Q. I show you Petitioner's Exhibit No. 32, from the secretary at Jena to the secretary at New York, stating that the Raglancastle opposition steamer must be appointed. Now, that shows, does it not, in your mind that the secretary received some instructions from Secretary Peters at Jena? A. Secretary Sandford received those instructions. He could not act on them.

Q. He conveyed those to the Small Committee, didn't he? A. No.

Q. Of which you were a member? A. No.

4253 Q. You don't remember anything about that? A. No. We never acted on instructions of Secretary Peters.

Q. But he would communicate from time to time to Secretary Sandford some of his wishes, did he not? A. No. Never took them; never received them. He may have done this.

Q. Hasn't he talked with you about some of the wishes of Secretary Peters? A. No; there is no official connection between the conference—

Q. Answer my question; whether he did communicate in any way the wishes of Secretary Peters to the Small Committee? A. No, he did not.

4254 Q. Or the wishes of the conference lines, through Secretary Peters, to the Small Committee? A. No.

Q. Now, what was Minute 22, if you know? A. Minute 22 of the Agreement AA?

Q. No, what is commonly known as Minute 22? A. Of the Agreement AA?

Q. Yes? A. That had reference to the appointment of this committee.

Q. And it also had reference, had it not, to the action against the North West Transport Company, Uranium Line and other lines? A. Yes.

4255

Q. Was that ever communicated to you in any way that action should be taken in accordance with Minute 22, from the secretary at Jena? A. No.

Q. Through Mr. Sandford? A. No.

Q That is, you personally don't know whether the instructions for forming your committee came from there, or where it came from? A. Our instructions forming the committee came through the various lines here, the various lines abroad, the Hamburg-American Line cabled its representative here, the North German Lloyd cabled its representative here, the Holland Amerika Line cabled its representative here, and the Red Star.

4256

Q. But so far as you know, the advices to those various lines originating your appointment, or your notification from the various lines, you don't know whether those lines were moved by any other outside influence or not, do you? A. Abroad?

Q. Yes, abroad? A. Oh, no.

Q. You cannot say that? A. No.

Q. You can't say whether Mr. Peters notified the various lines abroad to take that action or not, can you? A. No.

Q. That is, you don't know? A. No, according to Minute 22 it was taken by the lines abroad in joint action.

4257

Q. Yes, all the lines which were members of the conference joined in forming Minute 22, did they not? A. Yes.

Q. Or passing it? A. Yes.

Q. And that was instituted abroad? A. Yes.

Q. That Minute 22? A. Yes.

Q. But yet Minute 22 dealt with the westbound competition of the Northwest Transport Company here, did it not? A. Oh, all outside competition here.

Q. That is the Northwest Transport? A. New York Continental at that time.

Q. And Uranium Line, didn't it? A. Uranium Line came in later; in 1910.

Q. But the same action under Minute 22 was taken against the Uranium Line, as against the others? A. Yes.

Q. Minute 22 dealt with the matter of fighting ships, did it not? A. Competing ships; that is your term; it is not our term.

Q. I think it is all through the evidence that they are fighting ships on your own correspondence? A. No.

4259 Q. But, however, if you prefer to call it competing ships, I will do so for the present? A. Yes.

Q. But in regard to those competing or defending ships, the action came from your various lines, you say, abroad? A. Yes.

Q. Under Minute 22? A. Yes.

Q. That Minute 22 was arranged for you as you said in the conference of the various lines? A. Abroad; not here.

Q. At any rate, you being a Small Committee carried that out, did you not; carried out the instructions from the various lines to you? A. From the various lines to us, yes.

4260 Q. In regard to the use of conference rooms by the so-called outside lines; that is, the Northwest Transport Company and the Uranium Line and the others, you stated that they had a right to contribute— A. If they wanted to.

Q. But they were never invited to it, were they, as far as you know? A. We never invited anybody to join.

Q. You never invited them to join? A. We never invited anybody.

Q. The only outside line, as a matter of fact, now on the North Atlantic trade is the Uranium Line, is it not? A. Yes.

4261

Q. And before that the Northwest Transport Line and the New York Continental? A. And Russian Volunteer and Russian East Asiatic, both.

Q. But the Russian East Asiatic is now a member of the conference, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. And the Russian Volunteer has gone out of business? A. Yes. It has not gone out of business, retired from the North Atlantic trade.

Q. None of those lines you say were ever invited to join the conference? A. No.

Q. And never did join the conference? A. No.

Q. Except the Russian East Asiatic? A. Except the Russian East Asiatic. 4262

Q. Secretary Sandford, and his office there, was formed, was it not, partly to deal with the question of agents in America, wasn't it? A. To regulate agents and our local interests here, so that we may have some place where we could meet; a clearing house.

Q. And his instructions under Rule 9 of the conference were carried out as to the disqualification of agents, were they not? A. Yes; no instructions from him; we gave him instructions. He had no power to give the line instructions; he was our clerk.

Q. Secretary Sandford, very often, did he not, carried out in the meeting of all the lines members of the conference, instructions from the various lines in those 4263 meetings? A. He was our clerk to carry out instructions.

Q. Are you acquainted with the Schiavone matter at all? A. Oh, yes.

Q. In that case Secretary Sandford notified Schiavone that he was disqualified, after you had advised him to do so? A. We instructed him to do so.

Q. And Schiavone was disqualified for the reason that he represented the outside lines, was he not? A. Because he violated our rules.

Q. Your rule was that a conference agent should not represent outside lines under penalty of disqualification? A. Exactly; there were good reasons for that rule.

Q. And many cases of that kind occurred, did there not? A. Quite some.

Q. Where agents were disqualified? A. Quite some.

Q. Notoriously the Zotti case? A. Where the agents violated our business rules instead of each individual taking action against him we took joint action through Secretary Sandford.

4265

Q. And when you say "we," you mean the conference? A. The Conference Lines here; the lines here.

Q. On various occasions the lines here received from Secretary Peters a notification to advance rates, did they not? A. No, not from Secretary Peters.

Q. I mean through him? A. No.

Q. You think that never occurred? A. No.

Q. And that that never was taken up in conference too, was it? A. Each line abroad had always instructed its representative here, but Peters has never given instructions here.

Q. But he has sent the result of the joint action abroad to the agents here, has he not? A. No.

4266

Q. Wasn't that matter ever taken up in--take, for instance, the Mediterranean Conference, was that ever taken up there? A. No.

Q. Now, I will show you, Mr. Winter, what purports to be meeting No. 9, series of 1909, of the Mediterranean Conference, and under Minute 28 of that meeting I show you a statement in there which is to the effect that in reply to Mr. Peters' cable the conference cable was to be sent today, viz: All lines notified advance current Mediterranean eastbound rate $5 after May 31, except Austro-Spanish notifying intention to take differential advance and requesting cable reply.

4267

Now, looking at that don't you see that that matter of rates was taken up on notification of Mr. Peters at the various conference meetings here? A. Not necessarily. We cannot see that here nor can you conclude that.

Q. You can see from the meetings, do you not, that that matter was taken up? A. Not in that way. Mr. Peters on behalf of the lines abroad may have made enquiry of Mr. Sandford for information for all the lines instead of each line cabling its home office.

Q. You see that that matter was taken up in the conference? A. In that way; answering an enquiry, but not with any instructions. There were no instructions; there was no official connection between the two.

4268

Q. The matter of Peters acting never was taken up in conference? A. There may have been a meeting abroad in which Peters cabled over, but information on behalf of all the lines.

Q. It went to all the lines? A. Yes, all the lines merely as a matter of information for all lines, so that instead of all these lines cabling to each home office they cabled Peters direct for the general information, but that is not a matter of instruction.

Q. Perhaps I have got a little off on that; but matter of information then? A. A matter of information.

4269

Q. As a matter of information to the conference here of the change in rates? A. No.

Q. Instead of all the lines notifying that the rates had been changed, Mr. Peters would take it upon himself to notify the conference here and the various members had certain meetings here and the matter would be taken up here? A. No, indeed not.

Q. After looking at this meeting, No. 9, you still say that? A. Yes. At the Mediterranean Conference the lines have always reported to their home office abroad. I only know they are sent, but Mr. Peters may have been informed in answer to an enquiry for the benefit of all the lines what action had been taken here.

4270

Mr. Spooner: Is the Mediterranean Conference supposed to be involved in this suit?

Mr. Guiler: Yes; all the conferences are supposed to be involved in this suit.

Mr. Spooner: I should think so according to the manner in which it has been conducted and I want to know what the Government is discriminating against.

4271

Mr. Guiler: Under our method of proof here and under the bill which has been filed we feel that anything which shows the control over the situation is admissible; which shows in what way the rates or agents or anything else are controlled is admissible to show that control.

Mr. Spooner: Is there anything in the bill which refers to the Mediterranean Conference?

Mr. Guiler: There is something that refers in general to all conferences, and it is broad enough to take in all the conferences as a matter of proof.

4272

Mr. Spooner: We differ as to that. I object to any evidence of any agreement or conference, other than Agreement AA.

Q. Then the conference here was a conference of all the lines members of that conference—except the line which I have mentioned--were principally formed to deal with rules for the agents? A. Rules for the agents. Well, all questions came up in connection with our business.

Q. And incidentally the connection with the competition with those various lines which I have mentioned, outside lines? A. The Small Committee was never dealt with in conference outside of that one occasion where we met in the rooms and formed the committee in accordance with the instructions each line had received from abroad. But outside of that there was never any action taken in the conference rooms, as I explained before; we had no regular meetings; nothing.

4273

Q. But the conference, you have already stated—I mean the Small Committee—you have already stated, went ahead in pursuance of Minute 22, which was handled by the— A. We never knew of Minute 22 at the time; that only came up to us later. That express joint meeting abroad. Our committee was formed on cable instructions to representatives of lines here from their home offices; we knew nothing about Minute 22.

4274

Q. And if there was such a minute dealing with the —you do know about it now? A. Oh, yes, we know about the substance of it.

Q. So you knew it was in consequence of that Minute 22 that you went ahead on the instructions from the lines? A. We learned that later on.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. The Compagnie Generale Transatlantique, or the French Line, receives a subsidy from the French Government? A. I think so, yes.

4275

Mr. Guiler: I object to that question and answer as immaterial and irrelevant, and ask to have them stricken out.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. As you said, in addition to those things that I have mentioned, the conference room here was for all of the other things you have mentioned, was it not; that is, dealing with any matter that came up? A. That came up.

4276 Q. In regard to any of the lines or all the lines, members of the conference? A. Yes; in connection with our business. It was easier to communicate through a secretary that way our experience in business, or losses.

Q. It is a sort of clearing house for any question which came up among the Conference Lines? A. Yes; among our lines.

Q. And you on occasions discussed in that clearing house matters which affected the lines abroad, or which were dealt with by the various lines in conference abroad? A. No, we had nothing to do with that at all; we carried out our instructions; our office here did.

4277

Q. You carried out the instructions of all the lines? A. From the lines abroad, yes.

Mr. Spooner: I want to move to strike out the testimony taken at Liverpool, except the testimony of Mr. Ismay, upon the ground that it was taken in violation of the stipulation and without notice to any of the parties to it, except the White Star Line, reserving the right to withdraw the motion.

Mr. Guiler: I understood that Mr. Beecher and Mr. Burlingham were dealing in this matter as the representative of the various lines.

4278

Mr. Spooner: That is not the understanding.

Mr. Guiler: My idea was that the stipulation on which we went over was that Mr. Ismay did not, as they thought he did not, know fully the facts of the case, that we were to get them from other members of the White Star Line. And if I am wrong, Mr. Beecher, I would like you to correct me. Mr. Burlingham mentioned that on several occasions to me.

Mr. Spooner: I only know the stipulation as far as my clients are concerned is different. 4279

Mr. Guiler: If that had not been understood I think Mr. Ismay over there, might have been detained a great deal longer than he was. The examination of Mr. Ismay took up about one-half day, as I remember it.

Mr. Spooner: You do not object to my reserving the right to withdraw the motion, do you?

Mr. Guiler: No.

Mr. Bullowa: I want to join in the same objection.

Mr. Beecher: We shall endeavor to carry out in good faith the agreement our representative made and in the absence of Mr. Burlingham, without further discussion, I will not put 4280 any statement on the record this morning.

Mr. Guiler: As I said, we found without a great deal of cross-examination that Mr. Ismay did not know all that we wanted to find out, and therefore we did not go into the matter. If he said he did not know, we did not go into the matter very fully as we knew we could get it from Mr. Canty, who was fully acquainted with it.

Mr. Spooner: I do not intend to try this case in a small way; I simply want that on the record. 4281

Mr. Guiler: You have not read the record over you mean, and you want to reserve the right to move to strike out?

Mr. Spooner: I move to strike it out, but I want to reserve the right to withdraw this motion, which in all probability I will do.

Mr. Guiler: The Government rests with the exception I made before, in the beginning of this meeting.

Mr. Beers: You mean as to noting the numbers of exhibits offered for identification as being exhibits now offered in evidence?

4282 Bryce James Allan

Mr. Guiler: Yes. They have already been identified, a good many of those, and appear.

Mr. Bullowa: There is no objection to that, if we understand that, with the exception of that.

Mr. Guiler: That is right.

Mr. Spooner: That is covered by the stipulation made before.

Mr. Bullowa: Then you rest?

Mr. Guiler: Then the Government rests.

4283

BRYCE JAMES ALLAN, sworn on behalf of defendants, testified as follows:

Direct-examination by Mr. Spooner:

Q. Mr. Allan, where do you reside? A. Boston.

Q. How long have you resided there? A. Since 1884.

Q. Are you engaged in business there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What business? A. The Allan Steamship Company.

Q. In what capacity? A. As manager of the Bos-4284 ton office.

Q. What was the territorial extent of your jurisdiction in that office? A. Beg pardon?

Q. What was the scope of your jurisdiction; were you the agent in Massachusetts or how large was the territory over which you had jurisdiction, simply the Boston office? A. Yes.

Q. And the Boston Port? A. Yes.

Q. You began in 1884? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you connected with the Allan Steamship Company now? A. No.

Q. In any way? A. No way whatever.

4285

Q. How long since you ceased to be agent there, or connected with it? A. The first of September last.

Q. What was your particular function there in respect to your duties, duties of the office; freight or passenger or what? A. Freight and the general superintendence of the business, but nothing to do with the passenger department.

Q. You had nothing to do with the passenger department? A. No.

Q. How were the passenger rates fixed or informed to the agents who had charge of the passenger business? A. We got all of those instructions from Montreal.

4286

Q. Were you or were you not aware of any agreement under which rates were fixed between your company and other companies? A. You mean was I familiar with the details?

Q. Yes? A. No, I am not.

Q. So that to your knowledge you were not at any time administering in Massachusetts any agreement between the steamship lines? A. No.

Q. What ports of the United States are visited by the Allan Line steamships? A. Portland, Me., Boston and Philadelphia.

Q. Are those vessels visiting the ports of Maine carrying passengers? A. I believe a very few.

4287

Q. What was the other port you mentioned? A. Philadelphia.

Q Do they carry passengers? A. No.

Q. Only freight? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the vessels which call at the port of Boston, do they carry passengers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And freight? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They carry how many classes of passengers? A. Two.

Q. What? A. What is called cabin and steerage.

Q. What proportion of the passenger traffic of your line in and out of Boston is the steerage traffic; I mean of the traffic of your line in passengers? A. Of the whole line?

4288 Bryce James Allan

Q. Yes, between foreign ports and the continent of America? A. I should thing about fifteen per cent.

Q. Is that the proportion of steeragers to other passengers which are carried by your ships to American ports, for instance, the port of Boston? A. (No answer).

Q. Your ships visit Canadian ports also? A. Yes.

Q. What ports in Canada? A. Montreal and Que-
4289 bec and Halifax and St. John's, New Brunswick. I did not answer the question before because I did not quite catch what you said.

Q. Are you able to state what proportion of the steerage passengers brought by your line into the United States, or taken out by your line from the United States to foreign parts, bears to the mass of steerage passengers carried by your line; if you cannot answer that I will prove it in some other way? A. I am not sure, but I should think about fifteen per cent.

Q. That can be ascertained, can't it? A. Oh, no; I think it is more than that; I don't think that is correct.

4290 Q. What is your answer then? A. I think Mr. Hannah will give you that information; I don't think I can. I think you had better take that up with him.

Mr. Spooner: Is the Government willing to concede that the Allan Line gave notice December 16th, 1908, to withdraw from the participation in the fighting steamship arrangement, which took place on January 17th, 1908? I can prove it, if you want it.

Mr. Guiler: I wish you would, senator; I don't recall now just what there is about that.

4291

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. I show you Petitioner's Exhibit No. 3, which is Agreement "AA." Your line was a party to that agreement, was it not? A. I know nothing about that. I believe it was a party to it; I have never seen those agreements at all.

Q. There is the agreement; I show it to you? A. I have seen that before.

Q. You haven't any acquaintance with that agreement at all? A. No.

Q. That is, you handled the business of the Line exclusively and were not acquainted with the policy of the Line? A. I knew the policy generally, but I had nothing to do with this particular question.

4292

Q. I show you also Petitioner's Exhibits Nos. 10 and 11, and ask you if you were informed at any time as to whether the Allan Line was a member of agreements, or signed Agreement "W" and Agreement "V" in regard to the first and second-class business? A. I don't know anything about those questions at all.

Q. You did not know? A. No.

Recess taken until 2:00 o'clock P. M.

4293

Afternoon session.

GEORGE HANNAH, sworn on behalf of the Defendants, being first sworn testified as follows:

Direct-examination by Mr. Spooner:

Q. Mr. Hannah, where do you reside? A. Montreal.

Q. How long have you resided there? A. Twenty years.

4294 Q. Where did you reside before that? A. New York.

Q. New York City? A. Brooklyn.

Q. What is your business? A. Passenger Manager of the Allan Line Steamship Company.

Q. How long have you been engaged in the steamship business? A. Forty-five years next February.

Q. Beginning where? A. In New York.

Q. With what line? A. The Inman Line.

Q. What year was that? A. February, 1862, I joined the Inman Company..

4295 Q. With what line were you next afterwards connected? A. The Inman Line became merged into the Inman & International Steamship Company, which is now the American Line. The merger took place about 1889—1888 or 1889.

Q. Then what? A. I left the employment of the Inman & International Steamship Company at the end of 1892 to go to Montreal, where I have been since.

Q. And since that time you have been connected with the— A. Allan Line Steamship Company.

Q. The Allan Line Steamship Company is a Scotch corporation, is it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where do its ships run; between what ports do the ships ply? A. During the summer season, that is 4296 to say, from the first of May until the end of November, they have three services, one running from Liverpool to Montreal, another from Glasgow to Montreal and the third from London, calling at Havre to Montreal; and in adddition to that they have a service from Glasgow to Boston and another service from Glasgow to St. John's, Newfoundland, calling at Halifax and proceeding from Halifax to Philadelphia.

Q. Referring to the steamers last mentioned, do they carry steerage passengers? A. To Halifax, to St.

4297

John's, Newfoundland and Halifax; not to Philadelphia.

Q. Not to the United States? A. No, sir.

Q. What line carries steerage passengers to the United States? A. The service to Boston; from Glasgow to Boston.

Q. You are no at present, or are you, able to state the proportion of steerage passengers carried by your line to the United States; that is, to Boston; the proportion carried to the United States relatively to the proportion which is carried by your line to other points on this continent? A. Yes, I think I can. For instance, all the passengers carried on our line to Boston we may readily assume are for the United States; they may not be all; some of them may go through to Canada; some of them no doubt do go through to Canada, but in view of the fact that the steamers land at Boston we might consider all of those passengers were American passengers. I could not prove otherwise.

4298

Q. Assume that? A. Assuming that, the passengers proceeding by our Canadian Line, the service I have mentioned, I will give you the figures for the last two years; in the year 1910 we carried 47,969 third-class passengers, of which number, 8,430 proceeded to the United States; in 1911 we carried 45,767 third-class passengers, of which number 4,106 proceeded to the United States. In other words, in two years about 15% of the total number carried were American passengers. The Boston service in 1910, carried 3,715 passengers.

4299

Q. What is the last service you mentioned? A. The previous one?

Q. Yes? A. They came by the Canadian Line, from Liverpool to Montreal and from Glasgow to Montreal and Havre and London to Montreal. The Boston passengers we are assuming are all American 4300 passengers. In the year 1911, the Boston service brought 2,687 steerage passengers to Boston.

Q. Any other year? A. I haven't got figures on any other year.

Q. You will produce those later? A. If desired I could produce those.

Q. Are you able to say whether the Allan Line at any time withdrew from the fighting steamer arrangement? A. Yes; we were in the fighting steamer arrangement only about six months. We joined it, I think, in December and withdrew in May. December, 1908, and withdrew in May, 1909.

4301

Mr. Guiler: Was that withdrawal in writing, Senator?

Mr. Spooner: The notice was in writing. I cannot prove—the notice was given on the other side and I didn't think you wanted me to delay this for that.

The Witness: I have written to the other side for a copy of the letter.

Mr. Spooner: I will produce it.

Mr. Guiler: I don't object to your putting it in in this way if you want to.

4302 The Witness: We had a copy of the communication, or a statement rather, that they had withdrawn on such a date. They became parties on the 25th of May, 1908, and withdrew on the 16th of December, 1908; both in 1908.

Q. To whom was the letter written? A. I really don't know, but I presume it was to Secretary Peters. I presume it was, but of my own knowledge I don't know that even.

Mr. Guiler: I would like to have it on the record, if you can produce it.

4303

Mr. Spooner: The fact that they withdrew we can prove without reference to the document.

Mr. Guiler: That is the fighting steamship proposition?

Mr. Spooner: Yes.

Q. And you have had no connection with it since? A. None at all, no.

Q. Now, Mr. Hannah, you say you were with the Inman Line? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was in 1868? A. Yes; from 1868 until it finally went out of business in 1889, or 1888 perhaps it might be. 4304

Q. You have had a very large experience in the steamship business, a long experience? A. I think I am amongst the oldest and longest in the business who are alive today.

Q. Do you know what led the Inman Line to withdraw from the business; to go out of business? A. Lack of funds I believe to carry it on.

Mr. Spooner. As a matter of history I am going to show by this witness that it was forced out of business by this unregulated competition that the Government wants.

Mr. Guiler: I make objection to that going in on the ground that it is immaterial and incompetent. 4305

Mr. Spooner: I want to show by Mr. Hannah, who has had a very large experience and knows something about this business, the necessity for understanding between the steamship companies as to various matters, including among others, the stability of rates, and I propose to follow that up by attempting to show by him that these rates are reasonable.

1435

4306 George Hannah

Mr. Guiler: Show it under my objections, Senator.

Mr. Spooner: Of course, I expect you to object. If it did not amount to anything you wouldn't object to it.

Q. Go on, Mr. Hannah? A. What is the question, sir?

Q. I will put this question to you and you may illustrate it by your experience—I think you have sufficiently shown you are an expert—whether or not it is necessary that there should be understandings among 4307 steamship lines by way of regulating competition? A. I certainly believe it is absolutely necessary.

Mr. Guiler: I ask to have question and answer stricken out as being mere opinion and conjecture, and as the witness has not been qualified or shown a knowledge of the facts on which to base his opinion.

Q. Now, go on and tell me why from your experience you believe it necessary? A. The Inman Company with which I was identified from 1869 until it went out of existence, was at one time one of the most prosperous lines, and it was followed into 4308 business by the National Line, established to do the same class of business, and later by the Guion Line. Those three lines were strong lines in the trans-Atlantic trade; they all perished because of unregulated competition. I might add to that also the Monarch Line, which came into business later, and still later the State Line. So there are five lines that perished in the trans-Atlantic trade. Five out of eight British lines that did not survive.

Mr. Guiler: I ask to strike out the answer as the witness has stated a conclusion merely and has shown no facts or knowledge of facts on which to base it.

4309

Q. What do you mean by perished? A. They were driven out of business; they failed; they became bankrupt.

Mr. Guiler: Same objection.

Q. And were picked up by other lines? A. Some of them were and some of them were simply abandoned. The National Line was bought up, and I think the present Atlantic Transport Line is the lineal successor of the National Line, and the Guion Line has no successor; it has simply gone out of existence. Of course, other lines strengthened themselves. As these lines went out it helped the other lines. The 4310
Inman Line became the American Line; the ships and the good will and rights were purchased by what is known as the American Line now; it was the Inman & National Line at that time, but they have all gone. Competition, fighting rates down sometimes as low as $10, which meant less than $8 to the steamship company for carrying a passenger 3,000 miles, and the heavy cost of running the ship; the steerage traffic not bearing its proportion of that cost; the ships running at a loss, soon exhausted the resources of the company, and they went out of existence, one after another. And only the stronger ones lived and then indeed those that were strong at one time be- 4311 came weak and finally, as I have said, failed.

Q. And that was due to no cause except unrestricted competition? A. None at all, no, sir. Of course, we have had commercial depressions which added to the strength of the competition, and what is true in New York here is equally true in Montreal, where we have now only one of the three original lines today, the one with which I am at present identified; there were three and now there is only one of those three.

4312 Q. What three were they? A. The three were the Allan Line and the Dominion Line and the Beaver Line. Now, there is no Beaver Line now, and the Dominion Line has been absorbed by the White Star or the American National Mercantile Marne—

Q. Were those lines prosperous lines at one time? A. At one time they enjoyed a fair degree of prosperity. I don't think they were ever strong lines, and they lasted in Montreal—I think one of them for probably twenty-five years—both of them nearly that length of time, and then went out.

4313 Q. What was the cause of their going out of business? A. Over competition; unregulated rates.

Mr. Guiler: Objected to. The witness should state the facts, not conclusions.

Q. Couldn't make any money? A. Couldn't make any money.

Q. Who acquired them? A. The Beaver Line died; what remained of it was acquired by the Elder-Dempster Company, and they were bought out by the Canadian-Pacific Railroad Company. But the ships are all gone now; they didn't run any of their vessels; sold them.

4314 Q. You said $10, and you said the net was $8; what was the other two? A. Commission to agents.

Q. At $8 they were carrying at a loss? A. Yes, because out of that $8 a passenger would have to be forwarded from Liverpool to Glasgow and that cost eight shillings, or $2.50. They really did not get more than $5 for the carrying of a passenger when the rates were down to $10.

Q. When, after that, was the first combination or understanding to regulate competition? A. I presume that the regulation of rates has been a part of this conference from the beginning, it has been a part of its work from the beginning, and the first conference was organized, I believe in 1868 on this side of the Atlantic; I mean a part of the work of that conference, not all of it, and sometimes not any of it; but it has been a part of it to regulate rates and prevent over competition, ruinous competition, so that one line would not be paying more commission to an agent than another line, and thereby getting an undue proportion of the business; and also to recognize the weaker lines and give them a lower rate in view of the fact that they were weaker. For instance, way back as far as 1868 there was a differential allowed to the National Line and the Cunard Line; the Cunard Line being a line of greater prestige and very much faster, and finer ships; it could not be expected that the National Line would get the same rate that the Cunard Line would get, therefore they got a rate of $3 less; sometimes as much as $5 less. Three dollars was the usual amount of differential.

4315

4316

Q. What was the first combination or understanding or conference? A. You mean the first conference?

Q. I want the conference that fixed the rate at $27 or $28? A. I found back in the Conference Minutes of 1868 that there was an agreement concerning rates then and the rates at that time were as high as $40 for the better class of ships running at that time, and this conference belonged only to the British Line; it had nothing to do with the French Line or the Continental Line, but it was a British Conference, an agreement amongst the British Lines. The Continenal Lines did not come in for some years later and then they formed a conference of their own. It was not a part of the British Conference. I think about 1875 they formed a conference.

4317

Q. You told me of some conference that fixed a rate; it was not $40, but less? A. Well, for in-

4318 stance, in May or June, 1869, the Cunard Line rate was $40 for British business, and the Inman Line rate was $37. The Continental rate was $45 and the Scandinavian rate was $50, and the charge for infants at that time under twelve months, was $5, whereas, today they are $3. Children were half fare; children between one year and twelve years were half fare, just as they are today; but infants they charged $5 for, today we charge $3; today our rates for steamers that make the passage in five or six days less time, and are three times as large as those were, and I suppose ten times as well fitted up, our present 4319 rate is $31.25 or $8.75 less than they were back in 1869.

Q. What was furnished to the steerage passengers at the time you mention? A. In my earlier days in this business the steerage passenger had to buy what is called his own outfit; these outfits were sold on the wharf here in New York, and at Liverpool and Glasgow—wherever the steamer sailed from. The bundle was tied together, consisting of a mattress, blanket and a pillow, and a tin pan and a tin pail for washing in, and knife and fork and spoon and a cup, and the whole of that cost ten shillings, or $2.50. The passenger carried it on board on his back or his arm and was 4320 abandoned when he left the ship—thrown overboard. That really had to be added to the price of his passage, so what I called $40 cost him $42.50. They were absolutely necessary. The food was carried around in large tin pans and the steward dug a fork into the pan and put a chunk of beef on his tin plate, filled his cup with coffee or tea, as the case might be and passed on to the next.

The passengers slept in rooms consisting of thirty-two berths; that is to say, it was an enclosed space with six berths along one side and six berths over that, and the same on the other side, with a little alley-way about that width between (indicating). The alley-way between the two rows of berths would be about three feet, and the berths were six feet long and three feet wide. Each passenger had a space of two feet three inches wide and he took his clothes in there with him. If he had a trunk he could fight for the space under the lower berth, providing the things would go there. That is what the steerage passenger got back from 1860 to probably 1880. Earlier than 1860, but from my own knowledge from 1860 to 1880. Now passengers are berthed in four berth rooms; bedding is supplied; blankets, pillows, clean towels are hung in each room for each passenger, a water bottle with two clean glasses in each room, a mirror is in each room to look at in the morning; there is no water as a rule placed in the rooms because of the fact that the steerage passengers would wet each other's property in washing in the rooms, and there are fine lavatories with running water where they can go and wash and back to their rooms again. There are two berth rooms for men and as I have just said scarcely any room, perhaps a few on each ship, carried more than four passengers, and all their crew. All their tables are laid with white cloths, burnished ware and everything served from and kept in order by various stewards and stewardesses. There used to be only one stewardess on each ship, who never went near the steerage at all; there are stewardesses and a matron on every steamer today. You see the accommodation is almost incomparably better.

4321

4322

4323

Q. That is true of the steamers generally? A. I cannot speak for New York, but I think it is equally true here. I inspect those ships every day before they sail and we sail three steamers a week from Montreal, and every one of those rooms are inspected by me before the ship goes out, so I am speaking what I know actually about. It depends altogether on the steer-

4324 age passenger himself as to how comfortably he crosses the Atlantic. In one of these rooms—I would often rather go in the steerage than in the cabin; it has an absolutely clean deck, clean as snow, you can eat your food off of it, and if four clean men go into that room it remains so all the voyage. The tables are nicely set, tastefully laid out and the food is good in general.

Q. Then they get more air, more comfort, more conveniences? A. Answering that question, for instance, our steamer today of 10,500 tons and 11,000 tons carry only 950 third-class passengers, whereas 4325 the steamers I speak of, of 3,000 tons, I have known to bring 1400 passengers in it from New York.

Q. That was cruelty to animals, wasn't it? A. That was the way the steerage passengers were accommodated in those days.

Q. How about bathrooms and hospitals? A. In every ship there are three hospitals; there is the maternity hospital, the contagious diseases hospital, and there is another hospital for diseases that are not contagious, a man that has broken his leg or anything like that, and there is a bathroom or water closet adjoining and where there are people unable to go to the bathroom or water closet there are bed-pans and wardroom 4326 stewards to take care of them.

Q. What is the condition as to speed? A. Our ships make the passage running—not the fastest ships but the $31.25 rate applies making the eight days; leave Glasgow on Saturday and reach Quebec on Sunday morning or Saturday evening.

Q. What speed did the old time ships make? A. I have been twenty-two days crossing the Atlantic on a steamer myself. Thirteen to fourteen days. I know the Inman Line used to advertise in the old days eleven to thirteen days, but we were advertising and were apt, like other people when they advertise, to put the best face on it that we could, and the ships ran on what they called six week rounds, and if you got in on the fourteenth day we were fairly well satisfied; we had a week to lie in port. They were not the fastest steamers running to New York; then the Cunard steamers beat us a little bit and were perhaps two days faster.

4327

Mr. Guiler: They were not as large as those you are talking about?

The Witness: Two or three thousand tons.

Q. What is the difference in the cost of ships now and then? A. I haven't any figures on that point, but I should say the cost of a steamer today is four times as great as the cost of the ships that were running then. And if you choose to take the larger ships on the Atlantic you can say ten times as great, but I am speaking of the ordinary ship, the ships that are not Lusitanias or the Mauretanias—are not making any stir in the market—our Crampian and Hesperian and Corsican, built within the last five years, would cost four times as much as the steamers running in 1875, such as the City of Chester, City of Richmond and City of Montreal, vessels of that class running here; the City of Brussels.

4328

Q. You are speaking now of the investment in the ship itself? A. Yes.

4329

Q. In the old days what was the difference between the charges or rates in the steerage and the second-class, if you had a second-class or first-class? A. The second-class did not exist in those early days; there were no second-class; first-class and third-class.

Q. By the earlier days what do you mean; what years? A. Well, I don't think the second cabin—the second cabin probably about 1880; not before 1880. The Cunard Line used to have second cabin in the steamers, but they carried no steerage. They carried no third-class at that time. When they began the third-class I think they had probably the second for a while and then the second-class began again as a better steerage; it was called intermediate and it was not as good. It certainly wasn't any better than the steerage is today. It was to give the passenger a family room, a six berth room and slightly better fare, and supply them with sleeping room and bedding and napery and cutlery and knife and fork and plates and take care of them, and for that there was a charge made. It never exceeded $10 above the steerage fare, but $10 more than the steerage fare and was called 4331 intermediate. Now, the second cabin is very little different from the first and costs more. Where the steerage rate is $31.25 the second cabin is $50; that is $18.75 more than the steerage, and perhaps $30 less than the first cabin. It comes midway between.

4330 George Hannah

Q. The increase then in the cost of the second cabin is very much greater than the steerage? A. Yes. There is no increase in the first cabin rates, except in very fast ships, such as those of the Cunard Line and North German Lloyd these steamers that cross the Atlantic in five or six days. For instance we have steamers now running from Glasgow to Montreal where the cabin rate is $70, and we have other steamers where the cabin rate is $80, that is sixteen 4332 pounds. You can go back fifty years and you will find the Cunard Line rates between Liverpool and New York on steamers that took ten days to make the passage were twenty-six pounds, about $130 in round figures. You pay for the very fast vessels and the difference today is that they have introduced what might be called superlative accommodations into ships, outside rooms, sitting rooms, which were unknown in those days. When you paid your twenty-six pounds you got the best in the ship and that was all there was to it. You couldn't get better than that; but now you can pay $1,000 for passage across the Atlantic and have a suite of rooms on the Lusitania.

4333

Mr. Guiler: You are talking about first-class now?

The Witness: Of course; this is all first-class.

Q. Are you able from your experience and knowledge of the conditions to state whether or not in your opinion the current rates are reasonable rates, or are not reasonable rates.

Mr. Guiler: I object on the ground that the question calls for a conclusion and the very point at issue and ask to have the question and answer stricken out.

A. I think they are very reasonable considering what is done for the passengers. The distance the passenger is carried is 3,000 miles; the highest charge is $31.25. This is a small fraction over a cent a mile, and feed the passengers during that time, and provide him with medicine if he is sick; provide him with a doctor and charge him one cent a mile. I don't know of any traveling in the world that is as cheap as that, by land or sea.

4334

Q. It is relatively very much lower than it once was? A. Relatively, in view of the accommodations provided.

Q. You have been required by the Government, haven't you—

4335

Mr. Guiler: That is all subject to my objection.

Mr. Spooner: Everything is; you can move to strike the testimony all out.

Mr. Guiler: I do so move.

Q. (Continuing): To make certain changes in your ships which involved a larger expenditure of money? A. That is true perhaps only of the steamers that run to Boston; if you are thinking of the United States requirements, but I should also explain that the Canadian Government follows very closely after the United States Government in all their requirements; they make a study of all the advantages demanded down here and put it into effect in Canada. Almost all of those requirements concerning cubic air space and ventilation and sanitary arrangements are almost all the same in Canada as they are in the United States. Our ships can run to Boston as they are running to Montreal and fill all the requirements of the United States Government, and they certainly are much more onerous than they were twenty-five years ago, but they are all in line of the comfort of the emigrant, giving 4337 him more space. The ships cannot carry anything like the same number of passengers as they could twenty years ago. We could not carry any more, for instance, say 950 in one of our ships that are 11,000 tons when, as I have already said, in steamers of 3500 or 4,000 tons we have carried 1400 passengers, so that that is the difference between ships twenty-five or thirty years ago and the ships of today.

4336 George Hannah

Q. Then you would regard these rates as reasonable rates, having regard to or considering the elements of additional cost in accommodation, improved steamers and facilities in every way as entirely reasonable rates?

4338 Mr. Guiler: I object and ask to have the question struck out on the ground that it calls for a conclusion and because incompetent and irrelevant.

A. I think so, sir. I don't think any reasonable person examining the accommodations provided for passengers can form any other conclusion than that.

Mr. Guiler: I ask to have the answer stricken out for the same reasons.

Q. Have any competitors been driven out of business to your knowledge from the operation of this agreement "AA" which is spoken of? A. None that I know of. Well, I am not conversant with the situation in New York so well as some others are, but none that I know of.

4339

Mr. Guiler: I ask to have the question and answer stricken out as calling for a conclusion.

Q. Do you know how many steerage passengers you carried last year altogether? A. Westbound we carried 49,291.

Q. And eastbound? A. One minute, I want to add something more to that, if you will allow me to change those figures; it is 51,976; I omitted the Boston service when I spoke.

4340

Q. Of that number you carried to Boston— A. 2,785 went to Boston and 4,106 of the passengers at the other ports were for the United States.

Q. But you had nothing to do with it after you discharged them at the other ports? A. No, they went through to the United States. We paid head tax to the United States on 4,106 of that 51,000.

Q. But their relation to the Steamship Company was ended when you landed them in Canada? A. Yes; the railroad company took hold of them then.

Q. That was not commerce of the United States? A. No.

4341

Mr. Guiler: I move to strike out the question and answer as calling for a conclusion.

Q. What changes has there been, if any, since the early years in the course of operating the ships? A. Crews' wages in the last twenty-five years I should say they are 20% higher than they were, and I presume the cost of provisions is 40% more than it was, the cost of supplies, than it was twenty-five years ago.

Q. You mean wages on your ships? A. Wages on our ships; wages of firemen, sailors and stewards.

4342 George Hannah

Q. Even those ships which sail from Glasgow to Canadian ports? A. Canadian ports, yes. When a man got three pounds ten he is now getting four pounds ten a month; where they were getting four pound ten a month they are now getting five pound ten a month. They have Unions now; working under a Union System amongst the seamen and the cost is certainly 20% more than they were twenty-five years ago.

Q. What other items of cost; how is coal? A. The coal is nearly double what it cost 25 years ago. Coal 4343 is becoming scarce in Great Britain; they have to dig deeper for it; the cost of mining is greater now, and the cost of delivery is greater and the quality of the coal is poorer; coal is not so good; where they were paying twenty shillings a ton twenty-five years ago they are paying about a pound now.

Q. What other elements of increased cost that occur to you? A. There are none that occur to me. The three times are crews wages and stores, the cost of the ship, you have that. Of course, shore expenses, the office expenses.

Q. And stevedoring expenses? A. Yes; stevedoring wages have all increased in like proportion.

Q. How about the wireless? A. Well, that costs
4344 —I was almost going to say that was something that was forced upon the steamship company, but they have found it to their advantage to have that there, but we have to carry a whole lot more people.

Q. It is required as a measure of safety? A. Yes, but it is an added expense. These wireless operators have to be provided with a room to sleep in, and have to be attended at the table, and be supplied with food and take away the possibility of carrying that many passengers, and the Government requirement for statistical information—the Canadian and American Governments both do—to carry three officers more where we carried one in those days. We carry four now. It is not so much the cost of their wages, but the space they occupy. Every officer who occupies a room takes away the possibility of carrying three passengers.

4345

Q. Any other elements of increased cost that occur to you? A. None occur to me in addition to that.

Q. Do the immigration laws involve an increased cost to you? A. In the way I have been speaking of; only in that way that I can think of. The increased space for passengers, the height between decks, for instance. As the berth decks are extended, of course, the cargo is shut out from the decks below that. The possibility of carrying cargo is lessened by widening the space between the decks here. If you take the space between the main deck and the berths you take away cargo space, and the demands of the United States Government and the Canadian Government have put into operation all the time—while they have been making for the comfort of the passengers they make it cost more to carry them.

4346

Q. I will ask you this question, whether in your opinion in view of the present requirements, not only governmental but otherwise, of steamship companies a line can be maintained without some stability of rates?

4347

Mr. Guiler: Objected to on the ground that it calls for a conclusion without showing the facts on which it is based. Also for an opinion which on a merely conjectural matter. Also that it is immaterial, incompetent and irrelevant.

A. Judging from past experience I would say no, they cannot be maintained. The expenses of a round voyage of a ship you may say will be $5,000 pounds and if you only realize 14,000 pounds you are 3,000 pounds short, and if you keep on for a sufficient number of passages you will exhaust your capital or surplus and you will have to stop anyway, and I am sure in the past myself, specially in New York when I was here, many a voyage has been made when the total returns of the voyage are not half of the amount of the disbursement, and the lines kept on as long as they could hoping that times would change and things would improve and rates would be better and largely from the fact of disagreement amongst themselves and the strong trying to oppress the weak they went out of existence.

4349 Mr. Guiler: All of this goes under my objection?

Mr. Spooner: I know.

Mr. Bullowa: The Senator reserves to you the right to move to strike it all out.

Mr. Guiler: I do now so move.

Q. Have you been engaged in any other business? A. Never in my life; I have been in this business all of my life.

Q. Have you made a close study of the steamship problems? A. I am supposed to know something about that.

Q. That is not answering my question? A. The 4350 only way in which I can answer that, I am about to retire from the steamship business at the end of next month, and I have in my pocket somewhere, not here, a letter in which I have been told by the man who has employed me for the last twenty years that I know a good deal about the steamship business.

Q. You have devoted your business life to this business? A. The whole of it.

Q. To steamships carrying passengers, different classes, including steerage? A. And the passenger business has been my business.

Q. And all of this time on the North Atlantic, between Great Britain and the United States? A. The United States and Canada.

4351

Q. You said you were in New York how long? A. Twenty-five years.

Q. You have read this bill, haven't you; I mean the petition in this case? A. Yes, I think I have, yes.

Q. One part of it deals with the agency system which is now in existence; will you be kind enough to state—do you know when that was put into operation? A. Well, the agency system has been in operation so long as there has been steamship companies running.

Q. I know, but I mean the present? A. The difficulty that existed, say forty years ago, in New York 4352 here, was that anybody almost could get commission on a steamship ticket. I have known at 31 Broadway a policeman making $30 a day by running passengers into the steamship offices and getting $3 for every one he brought into the offices. He would watch them coming down the street; he knew them by their looks, and he came in after they went out and got his $3. I have known in Liberty Street where there were two or three what they called bunco offices, where passengers were run in there to get their tickets and their money exchanged and got half sovereigns for sovereigns and put in belt and buckled about their waists, and I have known them to find pieces of lead. 4353
We have brought them back from Sandy Hook from the ship to prosecute these places; not one or two or three occasions, but by the score over a period of years. Along West Street there were any number of bunco shops, exchange offices so-called for roping in emigrants, with runners out working in behalf of these places. That all existed here in New York from the year 1870 to 1880. Yes, I can easy say from 1870 to 1880 until conference took a hold of it and stopped the payment of commission to runners. That is one of the good things this conference has done. No one could get a commission unless a duly authorized agent.

4354

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as irrelevant, incompetent and inadmissible.

Q. And that also stopped the swindling of emigrants? A. That also followed, and perhaps also the purification of politics in New York and public opinion, and all that sort of thing. However, those things went out of existence and the commission ceased to be paid, and one after another those places were closed up. I don't believe that condition of things that I am describing exists in New York today.

Mr. Guiler: Same objection.

4355

Q. How did the agents in those days act; were there not irresponsible agents also? A. All of these men I speak of were irresponsible agents.

Q. The agents of the steamship companies? A. Yes; they got their commission from the steamship companies. Some of them did not; some of them that were very bad did not get any commission; they simply swindled the emigrants for a living, but the better class of them here, every one got an agent's commission of $3.

Q. Isn't it true they would run emigrants into boarding houses? A. Yes, and each of the steamship companies in those days kept their own runner to patrol in front of their offices to see that their passenger was brought into their own office. That has all been done away with as a result of this conference. There was a regular runner for every steamship line, but besides the steamship line runners there were any number of other runners picking the passengers up on the streets and running them into other offices, sometimes one and sometimes another.

4356

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as immaterial, incompetent and irrelevant.

4357

Q. What effect has this change in the agency system had in respect to the interests of the emigrant? A. The emigrant has not been swindled. I haven't read of any instance of that kind—I have not been going back here lately. Perhaps you know more about it here in New York than I do. We have it in Montreal now occasionally of an emigrant swindled, but it is no part of it sanctioned by the steamship company today. If that is done at all it is done without the knowledge or sanction of the steamship company, and the interests of the steamship company has been to crowd it out and stop it.

4358

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as not being on the knowledge of the witness and mere hearsay.

Q. What stopped it? A. The agreement between the steamship lines in conference stopped the payment of commission to runners at the boarding houses, and to places such as these exchange offices that I speak of; stopped all of that; stopped the payment of commission to any and everybody except authorized agents who hold the company's ticket and commission only be paid on the issue of a ticket by the agent to the passenger.

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as being a conclusion and incompetent. 4359

Q. That is, the ticket on a particular ship? A. On a particular ship.

Q. Before that these runners had tickets? A. Yes; they had orders, some of them, but they would get commission without that. They passed the passenger into the office and got the commission; boarding houses got commission. One of the best agents the Inman Company had in this City was a man named Isman who kept a Cornish boarding house in Front Street near the South Ferry; he used to have fifty passengers 4360 a week sometimes. There are no boarding housekeepers that I know of getting commission today anywhere.

Q. State whether or not it is true that at one time prior to the formation of this agency system as you characterize it, there were agents throughout the country who would sell tickets and send the passenger off on some other ship by some contrivance at a lower price and pocket the difference, thereby swindling the passenger? A. Yes, a passenger was sometimes booked for one vessel when he thought he was booked for another vessel and he would get the higher 4361 price. Of course, that was cheap swindling, and a man came on to New York and found that he had a ticket on a ship not what he thought he was going on but for some other ship.

Q. There was a good deal of that at one time? A. Yes.

Q. Was that stopped by this system? A. There is nothing of that kind so far as I know now.

Mr. Spooner: Take the witness now, Mr. Guiler, reserving the right to recall him.

CROSS-EXAMINATON by Mr. Guiler:

4362 Q. Mr. Hannah, the Allan Line prior to the date May 25th or the 16th of December, 1908, took part in the fighting steamer proposition which you have mentioned against the Northwest Transport Company, did you not? A. I don't really know what they were against.

Q. At any rate took part against outside competition in that fighting steamer proposition as you term it? A. Yes; we were contributors to that scheme for that number of months.

Q. Do you know under what minute of the conference that was? A. I really don't know.

4363

Q. Have you heard of Minute 22? A. I heard of it this morning, and I couldn't tell really what you were talking about.

Q. You don't know what that is? A. No.

Q. At any rate if there were any contributions to be made in consequence of running these so-called fighting or defending steamers you contributed to it the same as the other lines? A. For six months, yes.

Q. And also under Agreement AA for six months? A. Yes.

Q. Do you run any steamers in competition with the outside lines? A. No, sir.

4364

Q. You were not called upon by anyone to do that, were you? A. Never. We never ran any steamers. I don't know if we were called on or not.

Q. And consequently to your knowledge you never had any claims for compensation yourself? A. So far as I know, no. It would not come through the Canadian office if there were any calls.

Q. It would be through the New York office, would it? A. No, not through the New York office, but through our British office. That thing was not done on this side of the Atlantic at all.

Mr. Spooner: If you did not run any ship you could not have any claim, could you?

4365

The Witness: No.

Q. But at any rate you were a party, as you said, for six months to that fighting steamer proposition? A. Yes, I understand you well.

Q. And participated in it and then withdrew? A. Then withdrew.

Q. And up to date you are a member of Agreement AA, one of the members signatory of Agreement AA and have continued to be a member under that agreement of the Atlantic Conference? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your line has? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is a member of it today? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is complying with the terms of the AA Agreement is it not? A. I really can't answer that question because I haven't got in my memory at the present day the terms or I presume whatever the terms we complied with it.

Q. That is you lived up to them? A. We lived up to them, yes.

Q. Whatever it is? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember whether the Allan Line is a member of any other agreement or has signed any other agreement?

4367 Mr. Spooner: I object to that question as incompetent and irrelevant and not proper cross-examination. We admitted in the answer that we are a member of the AA Agreement.

Mr. Guiler: I asked if he was a member of any other agreement.

Q. (Question read.) Has it signed any other agreement besides AA? A. I will have to familiarize myself with just what AA is.

Q. That is the 1908 Conference Agreement, February 5th, 1908, of which all the lines as I understand it, except the Northwest Transport Company signed? A. Is that the westbound?

4368 Q. That is the westbound? A. We are only partially in that, only one-third of our business.

Q. I was not asking for what proportion of your business? A. You asked if we were a member of that AA Agreement and without knowing it is the westbound agreement I answered yes, but now since you told me this is a westbound agreement I will have to correct my answer. (After examining Agreement AA), Now, allow me to correct my answer. We are in this Agreement AA only with reference to the Continental business, which is less than one-third of the whole.

4369

Q. But you are one of the signers of the AA? A. Yes.

Mr. Spooner. That is admitted in the answer.

Q. Now, as to other agreements; I show you Government Exhibits 10 and 11 and ask you if you are members of the first and second-class agreements covered by those numbers; that is the Agreement V and Agreement W?

Mr. Spooner: Objected to as not proper cross-examination, irrelevant and incompetent under the pleadings. These Agreements do not relate to the subject-matter of this suit. 4370

A. It is a different kind of a thing altogether.

Q. I ask you if you signed those agreements? A. Yes, we are members of these.

Q. Those are first and second-class rate agreements, are they not? A. Yes, that is right, they are first and second-class rate agreements.

Q. And those agreements have been extended, have they not, to the present time? A. They are in effect.

Q. They are in effect today? A. Yes.

Q. And have been carried out by your line? A. Yes. 4371

Q. What lines during this period that you have mentioned, from 1868 on, have you been connected with? A. Practically two lines; the Inman Line and the Allan Line. The Inman Line as I explained became merged with the Inman and National.

Q. But your experience has been exclusively with those two lines? A. Those two lines, yes.

Q. And anything that you have said here in regard to other lines has not been from your personal experience? A. Oh, yes.

4372 George Hannah

Q. As an officer or member of those lines? A. Of course, those lines are in constant touch with each other and each knows what the other is doing with reference to rates, and there are certain practices that are common to all and all are affected in the same way, so that one cannot say it is ignorant of what the other is doing.

Q. I would like you to answer that question; that is it is not from your actual contact as an officer or as an employe of the other lines that you state such facts as you have stated here? A. I am speaking for the 4373 Inman Line and the Allan Line and the Inman Line was as much like the Cunard Line as the Allan Line is like the Canadian Pacific Line in Canada.

Q. But the information you have given in regard to the other lines has been what you have been able to gather from your business experience? A. That is right; from personal contact with the people.

Q. Personal contact with other people? A. With the officials of the other lines while here.

Q. You have stated here that certain lines went out of business through unregulated competition with other lines and also through commercial depression? A. Yes.

Q. Now, can you state which of those lines went 4374 out through one or the other or through both? A. I put the answer in lest there might be an element that did not relate to unrestricted competition, and commercial depression had undoubtedly had something to do with it. There were periods of commercial depression that swept over the country that affected the steamship companies, and that was undoubtedly an element; I should say much the smaller factor of the two.

Q. Might there not be some element, however, of business mismanagement or something of that sort?

4375

A. I daresay that applied to one only you might think so but when it applied to a part of the seven lines it would scarcely be true. Men, pretty bright men, all in touch with each other, all watching each other, they were not likely to be all negligent.

Q. But there were some elements of that in all the cases? A. There might be; I wouldn't say there wasn't.

Q. All the men you have known in those lines you have mentioned were not equally bright? A. No, certainly not.

Q. Or equally capable of holding their lines to- 4376 gether? A. It is not always the brightest men that succeed, though I believe I might say in my experience sometimes dumb luck helps.

Q. And some of the lines which you mentioned there were absorbed, were they not? It was not a question of going out of business, they were absorbed by the other lines; they did not discontinue— A. The Inman Line was absorbed by the American Line; the Inman and National as it was named afterwards, they bought the assets of the Inman Company for what the Inman Company would take for them, their wharves and all things of that kind, and they went out of business and paid as many cents on the dollar as they could.

4377

Mr. Spooner: They had to sell?

The Witness: They had to sell.

A. (Continuing.) The Guion Line I think discontinued altogether. The ships were sold here and there and they went out of business. At one time the Guion Line had the fastest steamers running to New York. The first Greyhounds of the Atlantic were steamers of the Guion Line. The National Line steamers were among the largest freight and steerage carriers to this port of New York and they disappeared. Went out of business, and so with the Monarch Line and the

4378 George Hannah

State Line. The Allan Line and the State Line used their steamers for a little while and then discontinued them.

Q. What lines were particularly in competition with those lines which went out of business? A. All of them against each other. For instance, the Cunard Line, the White Star Line, the Inman Line, the National Line and the Guion Line, those five lines were all British Lines running to Liverpool. The State Line and Anchor Line ran to Glasgow; the Monarch Line I think also ran to Liverpool. I think it ran to Liver-4379 pool.

Q. From your experience can you state whether the element of increase in tonnage had anything to do with some of these other lines going out of business, increase in tonnage and you might say decrease in number of emigrants at certain seasons? A. I think that question can be answered best by a little explanation. That line that was strongest when the cycles in ship building took place and was able to adapt themselves to the new idea; that is to say, compound engines, for instance, instead of the old direct acting engines where you had so much power for so much less consumption of fuel; where they could adopt the steel hull instead of the iron hull and put new vessels of entirely differ-4380 ent construction and different engineering ideas—the lines that were strong enough to do that succeeded and went on; the lines whose resources had been depleted by competition could not do that and they had to go out.

Q. It was mostly the case of the other lines not being able to keep up with the times, wasn't it?

Mr. Spooner: Because they were cutting each other's throats. He answered that.

A. That is really the fact, sir. The competition weakened them and when the time came that they must change the formation of their steamers they were not able to do it.

4381

Q. The fact remains, however, that they could not keep up with the times, doesn't it? A. If they had a fair rate they could have done it and I think if today we were forced to reduce the rates of passengers down to $10 instead of $30 and engineering changes took place in the future as in the past we would have the same condition now. The same thing would happen again as happened then; it is a mathematical question. You cannot maintain a ship if you haven't got the resources to do it with. You cannot change one steamer into another if you haven't got the resources to do it with and you wouldn't have the resources if you did not make a good surplus to lay aside for the new steamers when necessary.

4382

Q. Isn't it a fact in your experience that in a great many of those cases where the lines went out of business it was the management of the business that was responsible for it by not laying up that surplus which you have spoken of? A. Because they haven't got it.

Q. They did not lay it up, did they?

Mr. Spooner: They didn't have it.

Q. The fact remains that they did not have it when the change came? A. There were years in which the lines did not make anything. They were questions of loss.

4383

Q. Will you answer that question the way I put it? A. They didn't have the money when the time came.

Q. Might that not be laid up to some extent to the fact that the managment did not see far enough ahead? A. No, I think not.

Q. Not to any extent? A. I think I have already said there were a lot of duller men: all men are not created equal, and there were differences in the men in the steamship companies, and I don't know that the best men were in the business that succeeded, or the 4384 worst in the business that went out. I think sometimes that was the reverse of true.

Q. And sometimes it was true, was it not? A. And sometimes it was true, undoubtedly.

Q. Coming back to that question I asked you before, I don't think I have had an answer to it yet. If you can answer this question I would like to have it. Did not the increase in tonnage and decrease in emigrants have something to do with some of the lines going out of business; increase in tonnage in some of the lines connected with the decrease in emigrants have something to do with some of those lines going out of busi-4385 ness? A. Probably. I don't know that the two things took place at one time, increase in tonnage and decrease in emigrants. If they did it would probably have that effect.

Q. Did not the increase—take the increase in tonnage alone, did that not have an effect on some of the lines dropping out by there being less emigrants for some lines than there were for others? A. One of the lines was ruined by increasing their tonnage, the Guion Line, for instance, by building the most modern and fastest and best equipped ships that ran to this port, the Arizona, Alaska and Oregon, and the Oregon, the finest of the three, and that finished them. The ex-4386 pense they went into in building the Oregon was their last straw, that caused them to go out of business, and it was not through the lack of business ability, nor the lack of enterprise or the lack of ships: they could not go on; they over exceeded themselves. The Cunard Line bought the Oregon from them and the other steamers were sold for what they could get.

Q. Yes, but I mean taking it as a whole, viewing the whole situation, say when the big rush of emigration came, or when there was a lack of emigration; from your experience can you not say that at some time or other there was, say, during the eighties or something like that, such an increase of tonnage when these new engines and so forth came into vogue, that the result was that there were too many ships for the passengers? A. Yes. there were periods along, I think, about 1877 or 1878, when there was a great falling off in business and there was too much tonnage for the business that was going and therefore, there was too little of it to go around and the ships lost a great deal of money.

Q. And that was 1877 and 1878? A. 1876 and 1877, perhaps.

4387

Q. Did that exist at any future period, that same state of affairs? A. Well, it had, I think, struck the steamship world just as it struck the commercial world; there was a panic, I think, before my day here, 1856 or 1857; that also affected shipping.

4388

Q. I mean take it at any later day within your experience? A. Yes, we had, I think, in 1894, a very bad time for a while; I don't know that any steamship lines went out of business through that, but business was scarce.

Q. But there had been before 1894 a great deal of construction of vessels for the transatlantic trade? A. There is constant construction going on of ships.

Q. I mean particularly around that time? A. I cannot remember that there were.

4389

Q. Don't you remember the increase of the ship building on the Clyde around that time? A. I cannot locate any increase about 1894; we got none ourselves in Canada.

Q. Then you wouldn't know about that? A. Perhaps I might not know.

Q. I thought from your experience perhaps you could say? A. I can't remember that there was any increase in ship building conditions.

Q. But take it in general, there has been from, say the eighties up to the present time, a constant increase in the construction of vessels, has there not? A. Of course, there has been a constant disappearance of the ships that have been running. The lifetime of a ship is at the very greatest twenty years, and it is at its heydey when it is ten years old, and it lasts ten years longer, maybe, as a second-class vessel and at the end of the twentieth year it is gone. I don't know that there are many ships that average twenty years lifetime; they are gone before that time. There is constant building of new ships to take the place of the old one.

4391 Q. During the eighties and nineties there was a constant influx of immigration, say from 1880 to 1890, or 1890 to 1900? A. Ten years apart; 1890 was just after the City of Paris and the City of New York and the Majestic and Teutonic were built, in 1889; they were four large ships that were added to the fleets coming here under the British flag.

Q. I asked you if there was an influx of emigration and especially a great influx from Ireland and Scotland? A. I can't remember just what the conditions were in 1890. I was here in New York at that time. I left at the end of 1892.

Q. You did not follow that phase of it particularly, did you? A. No, I can't remember just what the situation was in 1890.

4392

Q. You have noticed, however, a constant increase in the building of tonnage, haven't you, from the early days on, say from 1880 until today? A. Oh, yes, constant increase in the size of ships and the number of ships

Q. And did that increase not become very acute around 1908? A. Increase in steamers in 1908?

Q. I mean up to 1908? A. Well, I think not acute, no; I should say it was normal, speaking for our own country.

4393

Q. A steady increase, wasn't it? A. A steady increase in the number of ships built and in the size of the ships that were built: ships that were built along about that time were all ships of a very much larger class than had been built ten, fifteen or twenty years before.

Q. Are you acquainted with the emigration during the period from 1890 to 1898, sufficiently to state whether that was a steady increase also? A. No, I don't think it was steady. Indeed I know it was not a steady increase.

4394

Q. It fluctuates a good deal, doesn't it? A. Yes; there were two or three years in which it was perhaps very good and constantly getting better and then it would fall off again, and always impossible to explain. It would be conditions that had to do with the commercial conditions.

Q. Do you remember whether it was from 1900 to 1908? A. 1907 was the largest emigration we ever had, I think, in Canada. It waxed from then until 1907 and then it fell off in 1908 very much; in 1909 it got better again and in 1910 and 1911 it has been pretty steady, and I have in my hand two documents that show the stop came during 1910 and 1911, both very good years, but not as great as 1907.

4395

Q. 1907 was the good year for emigration? A. With us in Canada anyway it was a great year.

Q. But you cannot state as to other cities of the United States? A. I cannot say it was equally so here without recourse to the documents that I have not got here.

Q. The condition which you have spoken of under the conference I think you have said protects the weaker lines, does it not? A. Yes, by a differential rate.

Q. That is, the weaker lines are able to live, whereas they could not live if there wasn't those agreements; is that the idea? A. Exactly, that is the idea.

Q. And those agreements also contemplate, do they not, a certain fixity or stability of rates? A. Yes, they do; stability of rates.

Q. And the rates are either fixed by those agreements which I have shown, first and second-class agreements, or subsidiary agreements to AA, are they not? A. There have been from the time that I have been connected with the business, that is 1868 until the present time, agreements amongst the lines for rates unless 4397 when they fell out and somebody kicked over the traces, and then there was war, which would last perhaps six months and great loss would occur; but all the time during that period there was an agreement of rates until just before 1908, when it was thought that these agreements being so loose in character that they were liable to fall away and cause fighting between the lines, that someone originated the idea of applying this—shall we call it a pool—a pool proposition.

Q. I understand it is called that in some quarters? A. I wouldn't like to call it so. It is not the best name to apply to it. As making it much more durable than existed before this agreement, something that would last instead of something that would crumple away on 4398 any slight provocation.

Q. That is, rates were then agreed upon at the conference of the various lines or representatives of the various lines? A. Yes.

Q. In pursuance of these agreements which you have mentioned? A. Yes.

Q. In regard to purchasing supplies for vessels, have you had anything to do with that part of the business? A. Well, I initialled the orders for supplies of stores for our ships every week in Montreal.

Q. But you have the information in regard to what supplies are purchased from somebody else, have you not? A. Yes, we have a purchasing agent.

4399

Q. You have not personally done any purchasing? A. No; we have a man whose business it is to do that, who studies the market, and we make contracts in the beginning of the season for the meats supplied from one concern, and butter and cheese from another, and eggs from another, and poultry from another and so on.

Q. And the same thing applies to the running of the vessel and the cost of the vessel; you have not had anything to do with that department? A. Nothing except from general information.

Q. That is information obtained from others? A. That as an officer of the company comes to my knowledge. 4400

Q. So that anything that you state about that in this connection is information that you have picked up from other people? A. I wouldn't say picked up. I just stated to you that every article of stores that goes on board the ships requires to be initialled by me before it goes out to the person that serves the ship.

Mr. Spooner: That shows the cost?

The Witness: No; the cost is arranged at the beginning of the season, from year to year, for a whole year.

Q. But, as I said, you have not either run a vessel yourself— A. It takes a good many people to run a ship. 4401

Q. I know, but you have not bought the supplies for the vessel yourself? A. No, I don't buy the supplies.

Q. Either coal or anything else of that kind? A. I don't buy the supplies.

Q. When you talk, therefore, of the cost of operating and the cost of supplies as being so much more now than it was some years ago you give that from what information you have learned from others, is that so? A. Yes. Nearly all the information we have we get from others in some way or other.

4402

Q. But not from personal experience in purchasing those supplies? A. I didn't buy any coal, but I knew it cost ten shillings a ton at one time and fifteen shillings at another, but I didn't buy it.

Q. That wireless arrangement you spoke of, that is not a material increase in the cost of running a vessel, is it? A. Yes, it is a material increase.

Q. How much would it take to run that wireless stuff? A. I don't know what it costs to run the wireless station; I know what it costs to carry the men. We carry now two operators on each of our steamers who are required to be supplied with a stateroom, and that excludes two cabin passengers, and we have to feed these two persons, and we have to contribute a certain amount to their wages and there is a certain amount of expense connected with it.

4403

Q. How much expense would that cover? A. Well, if we add together the wireless operators and the extra pursers and extra people we carry, we are carrying I presume ten more special officers now than we carried ten or fifteen years ago, there is the accommodation to be supplied to those ten persons together with their wages and food and the displacement of passengers that that caused.

Q. And the capacity of the vessels has increased as you said from early days? A. Yes, but, of course, it costs more to maintain a larger ship? A ship of 10,000 tons cannot be maintained on the cost of a ship of 4,000 tons?

4404

Q. No, but take the ship of 4,000 tons and take the ship of 10,000 tons, supposing the ship of 4,000 tons—I am just taking an incident, I don't know myself—costs $5,000 to run—I have no idea what it does cost, but I put it at that figure—one voyage— A. Put it pounds rather than dollars.

Q. 5,000 pounds, take that, a ship of 8,000 or 10,000 tons would not cost proportionately twice as much as that, would it? A. Twice and a half as much to run it; a ship of ten thousand tons would cost twice and a half as much as a ship of four thousand tons.

4405

Q. What I mean is the cost of running a vessel decreases with the tonnage, does it not? A. No.

Q. That is, if you have a vessel that costs $5,000 to run and you have a vessel twice that size it will not cost $10,000 to run it? A. Yes, that is so far right.

Q. That is as to size— A. The cost does not increase in proportion to the size of the ship, only with this exception: that you take a ship of 15,000 tons, a cargo steamer of 15,000 tons will not cost very much to run; that is to say, it would not run into very big figures, but you take a fast passenger steamer of 25,000 tons and she will cost ten times as much as the cargo steamer of 15,000 tons.

4406

Q. I was assuming that other things were equal? A. Yes.

Q. I was assuming that speed and everything was equal? A. Yes, it would not cost twice as much to run the ship of 10,000 tons as it would the ship of 4,000 tons.

Q. So that the cost of running the vessels does not increase in proportion to the size? A. No, you are quite correct in that.

4407

Q. You were stating something in regard to the so-called bunco agencies here; your experience in that line was during I think 1870 to 1880 here in New York, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. About that time? A. Yes; between 1870 and 1880.

Q. And since that time you don't know the conditions in New York with regard to that? A. I left New York in 1892. At the end of 1892 I left New York but the situation in New York had cleared up very, very much for many years before I left here. Therefore, I put it specifically between the years 1870 4408 and 1880. I was twelve years here after 1880 and the conditions were very much better.

Q. Where would you put the day when you say the conditions were very much better than it was during 1870? A. It was a gradual disappearance; it did not clear up in a day or a year; it gradually went away and the best thing that was ever done to abolish it was the agreement of the steamship lines with each other to abolish the payment of commission to runners and boarding house people.

Q. The conference, however, has a rule, has it not, rule 9, which prevents any of your agents from acting 4409 as agents for other lines, has it not? A. If there is such a rule as that it is a rule that is not insisted upon.

Hearing adjourned until Thursday, November 21st, 1912, at 11 o'clock A. M.

4410

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 4411

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Petitioner, against HAMBURG-AMERIKANSCHE- PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT and others, Defendants.	Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

4412

New York, November 21, 1912.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles C. Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton, by J. C. Spooner, Esq., for the Allan Line, et al. 4413

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for the Russian East Asiatic Company, et al.

4414 George Hannah

George Hannah, recalled:

Cross-examination by Mr. Guiler (continued):

Q. I was speaking last night, Mr. Hannah, about the matter of agents, and I have asked you about Rule 9 of the North Atlantic Passenger Conference; you are acquainted with the rule, are you not? A. I would like to refresh my mind.

Q. I show you Government Exhibit No. 20, and Rule 9 is there? A. Yes, I know this document.

Q. And you know something about the workings of 4415 that rule, do you not? A. The answer to it would be that the whole thing is practically a dead letter; I don't think that this has been circulated in the last ten years, and it is more than ten years since it was printed.

Q. I know it, and some of the witnesses have testified that it was in effect now and was going on? A. At any rate the agents forget it. It is not referred to in the correspondence; there wasn't from our concern.

Q. Rule 9 was to the effect, was it not, that agents could not act for outside lines, other than the conference lines? A. Yes, practically that.

Q. And that was carried out, was it not, by all the lines in the conference? A. No, not as far as our 4416 line was concerned it was not. I can't say about the others, but as far as our line we did not insist that they should not act for outside lines.

Q. Were you willing to have them act? A. We let them act.

Q. Even contrary to the rules of the conference? A. That, as I say, has been practically a dead letter; that was circulated many years ago and has almost passed out of thought.

Q. It has been so far as your line is concerned, but you do not speak for the other lines?

Mr. Spooner: He does not assume to.

Q. But as far as your line is concerned it never mattered to you whether the agents acted for outside lines or not? A. No, we have not insisted on them giving up the outside lines.

Q. So, so far as your line is concerned the rules for the agents and regulations for the agents which you mentioned yesterday has not been of importance to your line? A. Some rules we would insist upon you know; the prompt remittance of tickets; the refraining from criticizing the other lines; refraining from inserting newspaper advertisements concerning other lines, 4418 things of that kind; but this particular rule which you speak of we have not insisted upon.

Q. When you were referring to the criticism of other lines you were referring to those mentioned in a letter from you to Secretary Peters, which is marked Government Exhibit No. 1246? A. I never wrote to Secretary Peters, sir.

Q. From your line; what purports to come from your line to Secretary Peters; that is, that one line should not say that it had the finest boats or the most wonderful ships in the world? A. I never saw this letter before; never had any knowledge of it.

Q. You had no knowledge of it but it appears to 4419 come from Mr. Peters, secretary, does it not? A. Yes.

Q. And appears to have been sent to him? A. Yes; if it was sent it was sent from our London office.

Q. Then your London office takes charge of any conference matters— A. In Europe.

Q. Dealing with Secretary Peters, and not you? A. Yes, not me.

Q. But you would not say that that was not sent from the London office? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, I will read to you from Mr. Ismay's testimony on page 1013, a question that was put to him as follows: "Now, Mr. Ismay, let me refresh your recollection by calling your attention and showing you what purports to be a report of the Royal Commission on Shipping Rings, page 219, volume four. It is the testimony of Harold Sanderson and is as follows: "—as it is stated here, it is the testimony of Harold A. Sanderson, and is as follows: '—in regard to the pool, the existence of the pool' "—What is their object and purpose? A. The object I should say was to bring about the mutual understanding between those in the trade with a view to maintaining the rates avoiding un-4421 necessary competition, supplying the trade to the best advantage and avoiding clashings in sailings and otherwise working the trade advantageously for all concerned," and then it went on: "Does that refresh your recollection in any respect with regard to the purposes of pools?" and the answer was: "That is Mr. Sanderson's view." Another question was: "Have you found it in your experience a correct or an incorrect view? A. I think it is very fairly correct." Do you agree with Mr. Ismay and Mr. Sanderson on that? A. Yes.

Q. In that distinction? A. Yes, that is fairly correct.

4422 Q. Now, supposing, Mr. Hannah, that the vessels of all the lines that are carrying steerage passengers were running at their full capacity, would there in your opinion be any necessity for conference or for a pool? A. No.

Q. There would not? A. No, if they were running all the time at full capacity nobody would bother with anybody else.

Q. You wouldn't need to worry about anybody else? A. No, I guess not.

Q. The trouble is, then, Mr. Hannah, that some get more and some get less, isn't that the idea? A. Yes, of their share of the traffic.

Q. Some get the lion's share of the traffic? A. Yes.

Q. And the result is the conference equalizes that? A. Yes, by giving differentials to the weaker line. For instance, the Egypt you mentioned a little while ago about crossing on, used to have a differential as against the Inman Line of about $2 and that differential gave the National Line a good fair share of the steerage business, with the $2 differential.

Q. That is, the conference gives them a certain percentage that has been allotted to them of that business? A. No, they do not; the conference never did that.

4424

Q. Can you explain it then? A. Yes, the conference—the managers of the Conference Line met together and the manager of the National Line is claiming for his line a differential in the rate as against the Cunard and Inman Line, because each one was a larger cargo carrier and not so good a passenger steamer, and they said we will give you a differential of $2 or $3 for your steamer as against ours, and that line was satisfied with the $3 differential and got its share in the business. If they had not got that they would cut into the rates of the other people because they could never get their share on equal terms; therefore, there would have been a cut in the rates, which would have been met with another cut and another cut and so on down to the minimum of $10.

4425

Mr. Spooner: What would have happened to the weaker lines?

The Witness: They would have gone out, as subsequently they did.

Q. You never in the steamship business approached that Utopia that I have spoken of? A. Never, and never will.

Q. All the boats have been full? A. At times it has been so.

4426 Mr. Spooner: And the Government means it never shall.

Mr. Guiler: No, we mean they shall.

The Witness: They only will accomplish that by having a monopoly and dropping out all the weaker lines, which, if the Government takes the action intimated in the bill might have that possible effect. If they dissolve all these arrangements then the fight is to the strongest and the strongest will survive and the weaker ones can die.

Q. That is true of every business, is it not? A.
4427 Possibly.

Q. And it is true of individuals also? A. But it is unjust that it should be so. I thought we did not want monopolies.

Q. Then the reason for the conference principally is to divide up the percentage of the business? A. No; the conference never did that. The conference arranged the rate and each company got as much business as it could with those rates; as much as it could; it never divided the business. If you speak of a pool—

Q. They pool the business? A. That is another thing altogether, and I would like to put myself on record here as distinguishing absolutely between a conference and a pool.

4428 Q. Will you distinguish between the two? A. A conference I have said a minute or two ago was where two or three men came together, one representing each line, and arranged for the operation of their several lines, both as to runs, rates and many other matters, and one said you will be satisfied to have $32 for your line, and you will be satisfied to have $25 for your line, and you $30 for your line, and each of these differences was because of some confessed knowledge of superiority or inferiority on the part of one or the other of these lines. Then they would publish their rates on that basis and adhere to them for a time at least, and that was the differential; they each got as much business as they could; they could beat each other as much as they liked. There was no division of the business then. That was done in conference in the year 1868.

4429

Q. Now, take the pooling arrangement under AA? A. The pooling went further than that; it was made by some of the Continental lines, not the British lines —they never were ingenious enough I think for that. That conference was not effective enough to secure the desired end. They were continually breaking away from it and falling into violent opposition with each other and fighting those higher rates we have referred to, causing tremendous loss and uncertainty. Therefore, the Continental lines for years before this agreement you spoke of here, made an arrangement between themselves that they would divide the business on the continent of Europe in that way.

4430

Q. That was about 1892, wasn't it; that was the so-called N. D. L. V. Agreement? A. Yes. I am not sure of the year. They brought the British lines into that arrangement in 1908 and a statement, which was admitted to be practically correct, that a conference could not effect this very desirable purpose because of the reason that it was not solid enough; it would not hold. They were continually breaking away from it and this has secured stable rates. It has not advanced the rates particularly, but the rates have been equal to all lines during that period.

4431

Q. The rate which you spoke of yesterday of $31.25, that is not the regular rate, or conference rate; you get some differential, don't you? A. No, sir; that is our rate in the conference. Again you come back to the differentials; we have a differential; that is not the lowest rate, I think there is a still lower rate.

4432 Q. You know as a regular thing the rates were somewhere near $38 to $42? A. Some of the lines here, take the steerage passengers who cross on the Mauretania or Lusitania—

Q. I would rather except them; they are in a special class? A. Take some of the North German Lloyd steamers. the Olympic, ships of that class, if they want to cross on that ship they can, but pay a differential rate, a higher rate; whereas, the ordinary rate on an ordinary steamer is about like our rate, $31.25, and that is practically no higher than it was ten years ago. I think it is $1.25 higher than it was ten years ago.

4433 Q. Mr. Winter in his testimony on page 1412 before the hearing on House Resolution No. 543, in volume two of that testimony has stated in answer to this question by Mr. Hawley: "Suppose an independent steamship company has a vessel sailing on Thursday, and there is a reduction of rates to meet that ship's rates of sailing and the vessel of the conference designated to take the passengers over should carry 1,000 passengers, at $21 apiece, for illustration, would the loss to that particular ship, below the published and general rate of the conference lines, be apportioned among the several lines?" and Mr. Winter said, "It need not necessarily be a loss, Mr. Hawley." Now, 4434 do you agree with Mr. Winter in that that the rate of $21 would not necessarily be a loss? A. On a thousand passengers?

Q. Yes? A. It is pretty difficult to determine just the loss on a steerage passenger because, no doubt, as Mr. Ismay or someone else explained, the total earnings of the steamer are taken, the earnings from the cargo, from cabin passengers and second cabin passengers and steerage passengers that take the trip, the voyage, we will say that is all added together; the disbursements for the voyage of the steamer is taken on the other side of the same book and it is either a profit or a loss. A ship may have a large passenger list and still have a loss if she has practically no cargo. So it is very difficult to answer that question yea or nay. It depends on other conditions, whether they would be profitable or unprofitable. For instance, I should think it would be very much better to have a thousand passengers at $25 apiece than one hundred passengers at $35 apiece.

Q. Then you agree with Mr. Winter in saying that it would not necessarily be a loss? A. I think that practically says the same thing. If they had a good cargo they would come out all right.

4436

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION by Mr. Spooner:

Q. What increase has there been in steerage rates of ships during the last ten years? A. To the best of my recollection there has been an increase of $1.25.

Q. Why was that increase made, and what does it represent, if anything, in the way of added cost? A. There was first an increase I think of a dollar on account of the increased cost of coal, which has nearly doubled itself.

Q. When was that? A. About four or five years ago; and then there was an increase of twenty-five cents that grew out of a strike, a large labor strike, that we had in England. 4437

Q. When was that? A. That was two years ago, and twenty-five cents was added to make up for the loss that was incurred by that class of the population of which our steerage passengers consist.

Q. Did that strike result in a permanent increase in the wages of the men? A. Yes, I think it did.

Q. And that necessarily increased the cost of doing the business? A. It put the lines to such a very great expense while the strike continued, and while the ships were tied up, and also when they resumed their sailings the trade had to stand it in some way, and they had to make it up in some way.

Q. And that resulted in a permanent increase of cost? A. Yes, a permanent increased cost.

Q. You recognize the difference I suppose between the transportation in respect to competition and all that and arrangements on ocean and on land between railways on land and ships on the sea? A. The railways on land are regulated by agreements in rates I believe.

Q. I don't mean that; under the Interstate Commerce Laws? A. Yes, the Interstate Commerce Law 4439 permits them to agree upon a rate.

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as the law speaks for itself.

Q. You mean in Canada? A. Also in the United States. There are agreed rates from here to Chicago and San Francisco between the railroad companies. Immigrant rates have been secure and stable from New York to Chicago for a great many years.

Q. Do you mean to say that because the rates are about the same between here and Chicago that necessarily there has been an agreement? A. I think so; that is my opinion. Some agreement between them concerning the rate.

4440 Q. If one railway company fixes and publishes a rate must not its competitors carry at the same rate? A. Well, that sometimes applies; sometimes it does not. For instance, the Pennsylvania Railroad instituted a rate one time from here to Chicago of $1 and nobody else followed it.

Q. Since 1887? A. About 1887 it was, or 1888.

Q. Was that since the Interstate Commerce Law was passed? A. I couldn't say whether it was before or later; it was about that time; in 1887 or 1888 which made the rate—for one whole season they carried emigrant passengers from New York to Chicago for one dollar and nobody else followed it. The nearest approach thereto was one of the railroads charged $5. The rate today I think is $15 by all lines.

4441

Q. What was the difference between the effective rate and the character of the business transportation on the ocean and on land? A. Well, of course, on the ocean we feed the passengers; we take care of them; we house them and provide accommodation more like a boarding house and give them bedding, eating utensils, and provide a table for them. That the railway company does not do. The man must get off at the railway station and buy his food. He does not on a steamer.

4442

Q. It is not absolutely necessary that a railroad train should have freight, is it? A. No, but they have separate trains for that purpose.

Q. You are obliged, however, on the ocean to have it? A. Of course, that is the very great question. I don't know whether it has entered here or not, some ships carry very little cargo—some very large ships carry very little cargo and some comparatively small ships carry a very large cargo. The Mauretania and Lusitania, of 35,000 tons, carry a very trifling amount of cargo, less than a thousand tons—perhaps only 500 tons, and you will find ships on the Atlantic—we have some of them—of 11,000 tons burden that carry 6,000 or 7,000 or 8,000 tons of cargo. In other words, a ship of 10,000 tons carrying five times as much as a steamer of 35,000 tons, but the one is a wholly passenger ship and therefore the differential applies; they must get a higher rate for passengers, both first, second and third-class.

4443

Q. What would happen—Mr. Guiler has called your attention to the question of whether it is necessary on the ocean that there should be some arrangement as to rates, and you said that if there were none the weaker lines would be driven out of existence? A. Yes.

4444 George Hannah

Q. Without some differential by an agreement, that is true, is it? A. I believe that is true, yes.

Q. Suppose they were driven out of existence and the weaker lines were taken off the route, there being four or five strong lines to carry on the business without any agreement as to it, that would mean a fight, wouldn't it? A. I suppose they would go on fighting until the last one swallowed up the others or formed some kind of combination.

Q. Leave out the combination for the present. Suppose the weaker lines having gone out and no arrange-4445 ment then is permitted as to rates between the strong lines, it is a fight then, is it, to the finish between them? A. Yes, between the strong lines. I would like to say in answer to that comment of yours that the sub-manager of one of the strongest lines in New York said to me about six years ago that another strong line was gunning for that strong line just as that line went gunning for the Inman Line when I was there twenty years before, and he said it was practically the same result.

Mr. Guiler: I want to reserve my objection as usual under the stipulation to the answers that have been given.

4446 Mr. Spooner: You have got that.

Mr. Guiler: On the ground of hearsay and other grounds.

Q. So that you would say as a man who has devoted his life to the steamship business that it is impossible, wouldn't you, to conduct that business on the ocean as it must be without some arrangement for the maintenance of reasonable rates? A. That is right, sir; I certainly say that.

Q. If they were not so, if they could make any such agreements, there would of necessity be a monoply? A. Yes, that would be the case.

4447

Q. What class of ships are you operating now? A. We have three classes of ships under operation; one first-class might be called fairly fast steamers, turbine steamers of seventeen knots, carrying the mail between Liverpool and Canada, a comparatively small amount of cargo, and fitted up only for first and second-class passengers.

Q. What do they cost, about? A. I am not able to answer the question; approximately I think those ships cost about one million and a half dollars each.

Q. What is the tonnage? A. Twelve thousand tons. The next class of steamer—

4448

Mr. Burlingham: Is that net or gross?

The Witness: That is gross registered tonnage.

A. (Continuing.) —the next class of steamer is a steamer of about two knots slower than that, fifteen knots; about the same tonnage; carries four times as much cargo and many less cabin passengers but an equally large number of second and third-class passengers as the other ship. She cannot get the first cabin passengers, they want the fastest and finest ships. A very commodious and very fast vessel, but second and third-class traffic.

Q. What did she cost? A. I should say about a million dollars each approximately, not professing to speak very absolutely correct. The third class, a still 4449 smaller steamer, steamers of about 8,000 tons and single screw vessels—the others were twin-screw vessels and older—running to London and Liverpool, carrying only second cabin passengers, no first-class passengers—second and third-class passengers and cargo, carrying a fair cargo for their size, and double the amount of cargo that the first class steamers carry, steamers of the first class that I have named, and on that the rate is the same, 31.25 each. The speed is about thirteen or fourteen knots—thirteen knots.

4450 Q. What is the difference in the cost of the ships that the company is now operating and the ships of ten years ago or fifteen years ago? A. Well, the cost —we are building two steamers now that I presume will cost double the amount of the ships that were built ten years ago, the steamers at present under construction.

Q. What is the increase in cost of operating these ships as compared with the cost of operating the ships ten years ago? A. I think I answered that yesterday; I think it is on record.

Q. I think you did? A. It is on record, I think.

4451 Q. And the cost of coal that you put in? A. Yes, and food and wages; it is all on record.

Q. Has the public any interest in the maintenance and stability of rates? A. Yes, they have. No man wants to pay more than another man for the same thing. Nothing provokes a person more than to find that they have paid a hundred dollars for what somebody else paid $75, either for the land or sea. And it comes down to the steerage passengers in times of war, it very frequently happens that—

Q. What kind of war do you mean? A. Commercial war; steamship war. It sometimes happened one man bought a ticket for $10 somewhere and another 4452 paid $15; the rates were fluctuating so rapidly that between the $10 and $15 before the steamer sailed the rate changed twice, and one party paid the higher rate and the other party the lower rate, and sometimes there were three rates on one ship and that was very distressing to the party. The man who paid the $10 congratulated himself and the other man who paid $15 tried to get the $5 back and he didn't get it because that was the rate when the ticket was bought. The company tried to protect itself from loss as much as possible and tried to save that $5. Therefore there was general dissatisfaction to the travelling public when there were fluctuations in the rate. There was no stability. Then another thing that was always more or less in effect while the steamship companies might try to provide the accommodation in some ample manner and food and attendance as at other times, it followed almost necessarily that with a very low rate, the rate of $10, there would not be the same scrupulous attention to the details on board the ships for the passengers' comfort that existed where he obtained a reasonable rate, and $10 is not a reasonable rate for carrying a man across the Atlantic.

4453

Q. Canada has immigration laws? A. Yes.

4454

Q. Similar to our own; I mean with reference to the question of diseases and intelligence? A. Oh, yes; the same.

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as immaterial, incompetent and irrelevant.

Q. And character? A. Just the same, and in some respects they are more particular in Canada than they are in the United States as, for instance, in the United States a citizen can bring in his wife and children if they have trachoma, or any of these diseases which they make so much of; in Canada they cannot. They would not allow a woman to come in even if a wife of a Canadian citizen, or the children, if afflicted with those diseases; she is debarred and if she comes on board the ship she is deported. So they really have more liberty in the United States than they have in Canada.

4455

Mr. Guiler: I ask to strike out the question and answer.

Q. Is it your opinion, a reasonable, stable rate hasn't any influence upon the character of the immigrants who come? A. I think it has been found that a reasonable stable rate secures a better class of emigrants 4456 than this low $10 rate. The reasonable rate brings a person who has husbanded his resources so as to pay the fare of himself and his wife and children. $10, somebody can give him $10 to send him out of the country and get rid of him, which is frequently done. It wouldn't cost much to send you to Canada, there is $10 and buy a ticket and go. Thinking he will do all right if he comes across the pond. Usually he does not and finds his way back again, the Government will send him back too.

4457 Q. Then it is your opinion that the stable rate and a reasonable rate maintained has a perceptible influence upon the character of the immigration? A. Yes, it has.

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as a conclusion and calling for an opinion and conjectural.

Mr. Spooner: I think that is all except this: I shall want to recall him on another branch of the case with some statistics that are not ready.

Mr. Guiler: That is all right; any time you want him.

By Mr. Guiler:

4458 Q. Now, Mr. Hannah, on that ship on which you said there were three classes of rates, the accommodations are the same, are they not; that is, where one man pays one rate, the second man pays another and the third man pays another? A. Yes.

Q. So that the advantage in that respect is the same—some are better off than others on that vessel, are they not; they receive the same accommodations and pay less for it? A. I don't understand that.

Q. What I mean is if you say there are three rates on one ship, one rate of twenty, one of twenty-five and one of thirty dollars— A. During the fight do you mean?

Q. Yes, the accommodations are the same thing? A. Yes.

Q. So that is a real advantage for some of the men who get the $20 rate? A. Oh, yes.

Q. To those who have been able to get it, or smart enough to find it out? A. Yes, well it was usually luck, you know.

Q. You don't think there was any design in their travelling when they saw a rate of $20? A. Well, they bought their tickets that day and the next day another fellow couldn't get it.

Q. Hasn't it been your experience to some extent 4460 that various people wait until they see a very low rate and then take it? A. I think they have been educated to do that within the last two or three years. These steamship companies like the Uranium and North West Transport Company that came there would cut just enough under the rates of the ordinary stable lines to get a sufficient number of passengers.

Q. You mean the conference lines? A. Yes. They came in and made it $5 or $7 less and scooped up a lot of business and I think the public got in the habit of waiting until the time came around when they got a $20 rate.

Q. That accounted for the three rates? A. Yes, I believe so. 4461

Q. And to that extent it was of advantage to those persons who got those rates? A. Yes. Yet you must consider in connection with it if they got the same treatment on board the ship as the man that paid the regular rate did. If they got as much for $25 as the other got for $31.25 then they were $6.25 better off. But if they did not, if they went on a steamer that was inferiorly cared for and badly provided for, with attendance not so good, many things inferior, then he was sacrificing in comfort what he was obtaining in price.

4462 Q. I was talking about the conference line vessels. I understood if they decreased the rates the man got the same accommodations? A. If it was a conference line steamer and they made that cut they would probably get the same accommodation.

Q. I want to clear up a matter here in my mind. You mentioned that the rates for the last ten years had been increased only $1.25. I want to show you a letter here from Mr. Peters to—one of Peters circular letters, No. 27, Exhibit 936, in which it states the secretary had wired as follows: (reading). Does that refresh your memory as to whether there has been any 4463 change in the rates—it is dated March 20th, 1908—does that refresh your memory as to whether there has been any greater change in rates than $1.25? A. I should explain when I spoke about this $1.25 I was referring to the British rates.

Q. I misunderstood you. I thought it was a general advance? A. This letter you have reference to refers only to Continental rates. It does not refer to the whole of it and there have been very great fluctuations in Canadian rates. While you read there was an advance on that date of $4, if you will take all of the Continental line circular letters you will find there was a reduction of $5 perhaps two weeks later.

4464 Q. And I want to add here that the letter goes on to say: "To which I beg to add that the Allan Line has excepted their Havre direct service?" A. That we would not comply with it?

Q. Yes? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So those rates were the Continental rates between New York and the Continent, were they not? A. Exactly.

Q. And referring to those then you would not say that there has not been an advance of more than $1.25 in the last ten years? A. No. I might equally say they have fluctuated more, have gone up and down to suit the conditions. The same fluctuations have not occurred in the British rates. It has only been to the Continental rates, and our rates have fluctuated too with the Continental rates to meet the conditions prevailing with the Continental line.

Q. And sometimes where if a line was in the plus in the pool, as it has been called, it would increase its rate so as to decrease the number of passengers, would it not, to get a proper share? A. That has been the tendency, yes.

Q. And if it has been minus it naturally decreased its rate so as to get a greater number of passengers? 4466
A. Yes.

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. Did you point out yesterday all of the reasons which led to the adoption of the agency agreement, that is, all of the evils that were sought to be remedied? A. I think I did, Senator. I think I referred to the existence of semi-authorized agencies in large cities like New York and Minneapolis and Chicago for the sale of steamship tickets and the use of runners.

Q. You did about the runners and you did about the commissions that were paid to runners and boarding house keepers; how about agents? A. They were called general agents at that time that had orders out- 4467 drawn on themselves, not steamship ticket order, but orders drawn on these general agents which were sold all over the country and the passengers sent in to New York here and these general agents would have control of the people.

Q. Not on any particular line? A. Not on any particular line. Drawn on a certain steamship company in New York, and they would bunch these people up together and sell them to the steamship company from whom they could get the largest amount of commission, or the lowest net rate.

4468 George Hannah

Q. And they would pocket the difference between what the passenger had paid and the actual passage? A. Yes. They controlled a large amount of business, and this was the same on the ocean as on the rail; very much after the style of the cut-rate ticket office.

Q. You mean a scalper? A. Yes, very much the same as a scalper on the railway and there were these establishments in New York and Chicago and Minneapolis handling large quantities of emigrant passengers every year, having their orders out all over the country and having their agents, and for the lack of unanimity among the steamship companies they could not put that thing down and not until we got practical unanimity could we compel every agent to be appointed by the steamship company.

4469

Q. That operated then as a colossal fraud, didn't it, on the different people? A. Yes, for many years.

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as calling for a conclusion and not within the issues.

Q. Is it or is it not your understanding that you put an end to that fraud upon the people in large part when the agency agreement was entered into? A. The steamship companies addressed themselves to that question and practically as soon as they got together in conference, and that was many, many years before the question of this "AA" agreement and other agreements was ever brought into existence—many years.

4470

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. Wasn't one of the principal reasons why these agency agreements were made so that the steamship lines would not have to pay more than a $2 commission to any agent who brought them business? A. I think the principal reason why those agreements you are speaking of now were brought into existence was because of the failure of the other agreements to continue in effect.

Q. The steamship lines to a certain extent were held up, were they not, by the various agents? A. Yes.

Q. And to a larger commission than $2, were they not? A. Yes, they were.

Q. And it was of advantage, was it not, to the steamship lines to be able to say that we shall only pay you $2? A. Exactly; and it was also an advantage to us that we would not recognize them at all, these orders they put out and do away with the whole thing.

Q. That was one advantage to the lines, that they had to pay a uniform commission? A. Yes.

Q. $2 to the ordinary agent and $3 to the general agent? A. Yes. It was an advantage to the line as well as an advantage to the public. If a man bought a ticket for the Cunard Line he wanted to be sure he went on the Cunard Line. 4472

Mr. Spooner:

Q. The advantage to the public was also an advantage to the lines, was it? A. Yes, it was mutual.

Hearing adjourned until Friday, November 22nd, 1912, at 11:00 o'clock A. M.

4473

4474 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Petitioner, against HAMBURG - AMERIKANISCHE-PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT, and Others, Defendants.	Before, Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

4475 New York, November 22, 1912.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher; by Charles C. Burlingham, Esq.; for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque; By Nelson Shipman, Esq.; for Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton; by J. C. Spooner, Esq.; for the Allan Line, et al.

4476 Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord; by Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., and Lucius H. Beers, Esq.; for the Cunard Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for the Russian East Asiatic Company, et al.

Mr. Bullowa: The Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company offers in evidence original of circular letter of Secretary Peters of Jena, G. No. 1,068.

Marked Defendants' Exhibit No. 5.

Also translation of same.

Marked Defendants' Exhibit No. 6.

SIDNEY JOHN LISTER, called on behalf of the defendants, testified as follows:

Direct-examination by Mr. Beers:

Q. Mr. Lister, where do you reside? A. Liverpool.

Q. Are you in the steamship business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you been in it? A. Nearly twenty-one years.

Q. In connection with what company? A. With the Cunard Company.

4478

Q. During the entire period? A. During the entire period.

Q. In what capacity have you been connected with the Cunard Company? A. In various capacities. I naturally had to start as a boy and I have been through the whole of the passenger department, and the secretarial department, and at present time I am attached to the general managers department.

Q. Will you give particulars as to your familiarity with the steamship business, the North Atlantic steamship business, as to what part you have in the affairs of the Cunard Company and in relation with other companies? A. At the present time I take part, of course, in the conduct principally of the passenger business which comes directly under my jurisdiction, and, of course, our general manager, and I attend all the conferences, no matter where they are held, whether they are held in Liverpool or on the continent or wherever they may be. I take a fairly prominent part in the deliberations, sometimes having acted in the chair for instance.

4479

Q. And you have come to New York to testify in this case, have you not, Mr. Lister? A. Solely for that purpose.

4480 Q. Were you in London in January and February, 1908? A. I was, sir.

Q. When the Agreement AA. was under discussion? A. I was.

Q. Did you take part in the deliberations which led to the making of Agreement AA? A. I did.

Q. Are you familiar with the conditions which led to the making of that agreement? A. Yes, I think I can say I am.

Q. Prior to the making of the Agreement AA. in February, 1908, were there any conferences between the steamship lines, including British Lines? A. Yes, 4481 there were from time to time conferences.

Q. For about how long had that period of conferences continued? A. Off and on for many years.

Q. About when did it start? A. I can recollect conferences since the time I joined the Cunard Company.

Q. That would be about twenty years? A. About twenty years.

Q. Has that period of say twenty years past been a period of a succession of conferences and agreements between the passenger lines on the North Atlantic? A. Yes, it has, I should say.

Q. What was the purpose of those conferences between the passenger lines prior to the making of 4482 Agreement AA.? A. The purposes, the main purpose was to see that the business was conducted on proper lines.

Q. What do you mean; explain that a little more fully; what you mean as to proper lines? Do you mean, say, to avoid something? A. It was to avoid as far as possible disturbances in the trade; it was to insure as far as possible stability in the trade.

Q. And also stability in the rates? A. Stability in the rates. The agreement proper—they were all rate agreements; they were really rate agreements attached to which there were rules covering the conduct of the business.

Q. They related you say particularly to rates? A. To rates and regulations for agents.

Q. Regulations of what nature for agents? A. Regulations for the controlling of the agents, such as what passengers he was permitted to take and making sure that he didn't do anything that he ought not to do; a sort of giving him the rules under which the business was to be conducted by the agents.

Q. Against undercutting? A. Against undercutting.

Mr. Guiler: You are leading the witness, to some extent, I think, but I don't object. 4484

Mr. Beers: I want to bring out the facts; I think we all understand it.

Q. Is it a fact that there have been during the last twenty years a series of these conferences? A. Yes, it is a fact.

Q. Were they continuous? A. They were practically continuous.

Q. Have there been breaks in them? A. There have been breaks.

Q. Why were they not continued; can you say why they were not? A. Well, because they—in the first place they were—the notice was a very short notice; the notice to terminate was a very short notice; in 4485 some of the agreements I think it gave fourteen days' notice, with a result that any one of the parties that thought he had a grievance, imaginary or otherwise, immediately flew to the notice clause and gave his fourteen days' notice, so that at the end of fourteen days it made chaos in the whole business.

Q. Did that at intervals lead to rate wars? A. That at intervals led to rate wars.

Q. What do you mean by chaos in the business; do you mean rate wars? A. Rate wars; constant breaking of all the regulations that may have been for the conduct of the business.

4486 Sidney John Lister

Q. Do you know what the reasons were which led the lines to make the Agreement AA.; if so, will you state what they were? A. Yes, I think that the main reason for making the Agreement A. A. was to prevent, if possible, these frequent breakings away from the agreements which had been the practice under the previous rate agreements, and I think so far as the British Lines were concerned, they recognized that the continental pool which existed between our 4487 friends, the Continental Lines, had been built up on many years of experience, and they felt that what had apparently been good for the general conduct of the trade on the Continent could also be very well applied to the conduct of the business in Great Britain and Scandinavia; therefore, the meetings took place and the lines got together with the result that a general pool as under Agreement AA. was formed.

Q. Was AA. made to affect the same—to act for the same general purpose in the business but with a stronger obligation as to the lines—I mean as compared with the conferences? A. Yes, to insure more stability in the business.

Q. Was it also intended to insure more stability in 4488 rates? A. I cannot say. It was not so far as rate wars were concerned, except a pool was made for a certain period; it was for a longer period than the previous rate agreements had been made for, but it was not necessary to insure higher rates because the rates had been in operation since the pool was formed. The AA. Agreement was, I should say, practically very little different from what it was prior to the A. A. Agreement.

Q. Can you state what the effect of rate wars has actually been on the business of the lines? A. The most disastrous effect, not only on the business of the lines, but on everybody concerned; disastrous to the lines in that a very low rate was in operation, disastrous to the passenger in that he did not get all of the comforts that it might have been possible to have given him under different conditions, and disastrous also to the United States, because it encouraged a lot of agents whom the lines, in other times except rate wars, had weeded out of the business drifting in again to the business and endeavoring to book a lot of totally undesirable emigrants.

4489

Q. How low have third-class rates fallen at times of rate wars, that is, in your recollection? A. I have known them to be down to two pounds, and I think I am quite right in saying that one of the lines, but I cannot think at the moment which it was, went down so far as thirty shillings for one steamer. I know they went to two pounds, but I think they went to thirty shillings for one or two steamers.

4490

Q. A rate of two pounds—that means that the steamship company was doing business at a loss, does it not? A. Yes, certainly.

Mr. Guiler: I ask to have the question and answer stricken out as calling for a conclusion.

4491

Q. If a steamship company in the North Atlantic carries a passenger from Europe to the United States at thirty shillings or two pounds, it is doing business at a loss, is it not? A. Yes, doing business at a loss.

Mr. Guiler: Same objection.

Q. Please state whether in your experience the business of passenger carrying steamship companies is particularly exposed to temporary competition from the outside? A. It is particularly exposed.

4492 Q. Why? A. Well, the ocean is a very large field. It is perfectly free; it is different to the line on land, where railroads operate. Before a new railroad can operate that railroad—I don't know whether it is so in the United States, but I dare say it applies as it does in England, that the railroad has got to go to the powers that be and obtain a bill, get a bill passed enabling it to construct this railroad and enabling it to buy its site, and then it is exposed to opposition on the part of every interest that one can possibly conceive of. But in the steamship trade on the ocean you only want one boat with a tight bottom to cross the Atlantic with, and the Atlantic is yours.

4493 Q. Steamers can be taken from any part of the world which can be made temporarily available for the business? A. Quite so.

Q. Within the period while you have been in the steamship business, say the last twenty years, during which, as you said, there have been a series of conferences, do you recall any passenger lines which have been forced out of business in the North Atlantic? A. I cannot recall a single line that has been forced out of the Atlantic business since 1892.

Q. Do you know of any that has been forced out before that time? A. Well, I believe there were lines 4494 which for one reason or another, went out prior to that time. I think, for instance, the Inman Line disappeared; I think the Guion Line disappeared.

Q. But that was more than twenty years ago? A. And the State Line, I think.

Q. But that was not during this period of conferences to which you testified? A. Not in the period to which I am testifying now.

Q. Are you familiar with the practical workings under Agreement AA. during the last four years and longer? A. Yes.

4495

Q. Did that come under your personal observation? A. That came under my personal observation, yes.

Q. Has it been any considerable part of your duty to observe the working of that Agreement? A. It is practically my main duty.

Q. Have the provisions of Agreement AA. practically operated to prevent competition in third-class business between the lines which were parties to that agreement? A. No, they have not operated for that at all; they have not prevented competition in the least. The lines are just as eager now to get passengers as they were before.

4496

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as calling for a conclusion and I ask to have the question and answer stricken out.

Q. Third-class passengers? A. Absolutely. It only applies to third-class passengers.

Q. I understand that. That is, they try to get all they can? A. Naturally; I am quite sure, I think, speaking for the Cunard Line, we let nothing go if we can once get our hands on it.

Mr. Spooner: You don't let go after you get your hands on it?

The Witness: We do not, you may be sure.

4497

Q. During the period which has elapsed since the making of Agreement AA. have third-class rates in the North Atlantic changed? A. Very little.

Q. Have there been any fluctuations? A. There have been slight fluctations, but very little material change.

Q. It has been substantially a stable rate? A. Substantially a stable rate. We tried, as I said before, and I repeat it again, to get stability into it. One thing that occurred here I might say, that is, here in America, there was a pool controlling the passengers after they left Ellis Island, which I believe was drawn up with the idea of preventing any chaotic condition in the control of the immigrants going to the west, and all that we sought to do under the Agreement AA. was to try and apply what must have been good in railroad organization here to the steamship organization.

4498 Sidney John Lister

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as not responsive nor within the issues, and I ask to have the question and answer stricken out.

Q. Agreement AA. provides that each of the passenger lines shall have a certain percental partici-4499 pation, as it is called, in the business? A. Yes, it has.

Q. Have those percentages been actually subject to change as affected by the experience of the lines as they proceeded under it? A. You can rest assured they have. The Cunard Line is willing to change them a bit more.

Q. They have been changed? A. We have demanded more than when we started, because we showed that we were able to get it. We simply went out to get the business just as we did before Agreement A. A. was formed.

Q. And as the result of that was the percentage of 4500 the Cunard Company changed? A. Yes; our percentage was increased. I am not quite sure of the extra figure—I haven't the figures in front of me at the moment, but our percentage has been increased.

Q. Was that change made because you had actually carried—

Mr. Guiler: I think you should not lead him so much.

Q. Why was the change made in the Cunard rate? A. Because we had shown that the percentage which was allowed to us at the outset was not sufficient. We proved that we were able to command a larger, and carry a larger, number of passengers, and obtained a larger number of passengers than the percentage provided.

Q. How did you prove that? A. By our activity in the trade.

Q. By getting it? A. By getting the business.

Q. Not by argument? A. Not by argument at all. We could never convince our friends simply on argument; we have to show them hard facts at the same time.

Q. How did you get more passengers, or a greater percentage of the business than you had before; by what means? A. I can't say, except from our activity. We never slackened off the least bit; the work went on just as it had gone before. 4502

Q. As though there had been no AA. Agreement? A. As though there had been no AA. Agreement at all.

Q. Has there in fact been a competition between the lines, parties to the AA. Agreement, in respect to the number and size of steamers since February, 1908? A. Yes, it has been active rivalry. In fact, we have added new steamers since 1908. There is rivalry now. Everybody is adding to its fleet just the same way it did before. 4503

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as not calling for facts but conclusions.

Q. How many steamers has the Cunard Company built or ordered since February—since February, 1908? A. We have actually ordered built, already built or ordered, five large new steamers for the Atlantic trade.

Q. Are any of them ordered or built larger than any of the Cunard fleet now? A. Well, I believe we have got one building, but whether larger I would rather not say at the moment.

4504 Sidney John Lister

Mr. Guiler: That would be a "superlative," wouldn't it?

Q. Are these vessels ordered to which you just referred vessels of the highest class? A. Of the highest class. I believe I can say all of our ships are of the highest class.

Q. Can you state what effect the making of the AA. Agreement had in making possible the ordering of those ships? A. Yes, I think I can say that 4505 with the A. A. Agreement behind them the steamship companies felt that they could embark out and build new ships. It is perfectly obvious that if there was no stability in the business we could not embark out and put a lot of capital in new ships. You might enter an agreement which was subject to fourteen days, or even a month's notice, and at any time you might order a ship costing a very large sum of money and directly you have ordered that ship they get a rate war and the natural disorganization that follows a rate war would—we launch the new ship at a time when it was bound to be a most unprofitable undertaking. With the AA. Agreement the lines feel 4506 they have something behind them which enables them to build these new ships, to obtain all the improvements that time shows and to provide better transport for the passengers.

Q. When you said that the existence of Agreement A. A. enables the line to contract for these large ships, are you referring to hope of the line of getting more money or to the element of stability? A. The stability.

Q. You have testified as to what the Cunard Company has done in building and ordering ships since February, 1908; have the other principal lines, parties to Agreement AA. also to your knowledge increased their fleets, or ordered new vessels during the same period? A. Yes, I believe that everyone of the steamship companies has added new boats to its fleet since 1908; either added or is adding. I think the only one that has not added is the American Line.

Q. Has there been, to your knowledge, since the making of the Agreement AA. active competition between the lines which were parties to that agreement in respect to the quality of the service which they rendered?

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as calling for a 4508 conclusion.

A. Yes, there has been active competition.

Q. Will you state the particulars? A. It runs into details—

Q. Referring now particularly to the service which they have in their third-class passengers? A. Yes, there were many improvements brought about. For instance, we tried to outdo each other in what we could do, what accommodations we provided for the passengers. Nearly every passenger crossing the Atlantic now is accommodated in a small room with electric lights in their cabins. We might go out and put wash basins in their rooms; another company 4509 might not do it. We might give them clean table cloths for breakfast, supper and dinner and would give them perhaps cups and saucers where they might have only had mugs. I don't want to worry you with all these minor things, but they are all the little things which occur to us in building the ship. In fact, we all watch what another steamship company does; merely watch and wait and see what there is on that ship and see if we really cannot go her better.

Q. You are now speaking of third-class, are you? A. I am speaking of third-class.

4510 Q. Has the Cunard Line in fact, within the last four and a half years, made improvements in the service and accommodations given to the third-class passengers, and if so, won't you state them in detail; we would like to know that? A. I think I have pretty well covered the ground in my last answer. We have practically provided small rooms for all the passengers—

Q. All the third-class passengers? A. All the third-class passengers. We give them smoking rooms; we gave them smoking rooms before 1908, but we probably improved on them in some way. The bedding 4511 possibly has been improved. In our dining saloons now they have got revolving chairs. They got those prior to 1908, but still they have been getting those since, with other improvements that we have been able with experience to put into the ships.

Q. What arrangements are made now by the Cunard Company as to the food of the third-class passengers? A. You mean that we provide the food for the third-class passengers; and we give them the best that can be given to them. They get breakfast, dinner and tea—

Q. I want to make my question a little more definite. What is their food—from the same stores as the 4512 food of the first and second cabin? A. There is only one store on the ship in which all the eatables are stored, and the food comes from the same stores. I don't want you to think that we give them grouse and oysters and things of that kind, but what they do get is cooked from the same stuff that is cooked and dished up for the saloon passengers.

Q. And the same quality of food? A. And the same quality of food.

Q. Is it served by the company's stewards? A. Served by the company's stewards.

4513

Q. They don't wait on themselves? A. Oh, no, no one waits on themselves. They are all waited on, everyone of them, by the stewards.

Q. What are the arrangements now in the third cabin as to toilets and baths? A. We give them toilets and baths, and I think we have even gone to the extent of giving them shower baths. If they do any good I won't say. Closed toilets, whereas, in the olden days, I believe they were just one long stall; now I think they have a certain degree of privacy, just the same as the saloon passenger has.

Q. What effect has the existence of Agreement A. A. had on the making of the improvements in the third-class service to which you have referred? A. The existence of the AA. Agreement as I have mentioned before, has enabled us to provide those improvements. I seem to be repeating, but it is the old answer, the assurance that we had that we could provide them that prompted us to do so.

4514

Q. Have you found in your experience in the business of the Cunard Company that the third-class passengers have shown any marked preference for any particular type of the company's ships? A. Yes, I think they go for the best. The third-class passenger now is not the third-class passenger that he was twenty years ago. Now he is just as keen as the saloon passenger in getting the very best that can be provided for him, and so far as that is concerned certain passengers will pay for the best and willingly. I think I am right in saying that our two fast boats, the Lusitania and Mauretania, are our most popular third-class ships, despite the fact that we charge a little more for them in return for the extra speed we give them than the other ships in our fleet. I might add the same thing applies to the Atlantic as applied to the linking up lines bringing our passengers, for instance, from Scandinavia to England.

4515

4516 Q. To what do you refer? A. There the passengers demanded more than was being given them; the ships have been improved.

Q. Are you now speaking of lines running between Scandinavia and England and to eastern England? A. Hull and Grimsby.

Q. Has any increased demand on the part of the third-class passengers been brought to your attention by those lines running to Scandinavia? A. Yes; what I had in mind was that the Messrs. Wilson who own the North Sea steamships, came to us and told us that the passengers were demanding so much more, 4517 that they wanted more privacy, they wanted more comforts, they wanted better food, and they said we are quite willing to provide it, but the expense of providing it is heavier now than what it was before and we cannot give them what they are wanting for what you are paying us.

Q. That is, what the Cunard Company was allowing the Wilson Line for that part of the voyage? A. For that part of the voyage.

Q. Are you familiar with the history of the development of passenger ships in the North Atlantic? A. Yes, I think I am.

Q. Has there ever been a time when a third-class 4518 passenger received more for his money than he does now? A. There never was a time. I can answer that perfectly and with ease. There never was a time when he got what he is getting now and it seems to me he is getting more all the while.

Q. Were you familiar with third-class rates prevailing in the North Atlantic passenger business before Agreement AA. was made? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you been familiar with those rates since? A. Yes, quite.

Q. I ask you how those rates compared in their amounts before and after the AA. Agreement; I am not now speaking of the period of rate war before AA. Agreement, but average condition before the agreement, and average conditions after the making of Agreement AA.; say, comparing the period within eighteen or twenty years before Agreement A-A. and the period which has elapsed since the making of Agreement AA., how do those rates compare? A. There has been not more than very little variation. Even in stable times the rates have been pretty much the same. I know of some ships crossing the Atlantic now which are charging higher rates than they were ten or twenty years ago; for instance, the Lusitania and Mauretania are able to command a higher rate 4520 than was in operation at that time, but taking it on the whole, I think I can fairly say that in average times, both before and after, there was very little variation.

Q. Take a ship like the Campania, the prevailing rates on that ship since February, 1908, how would they compare with the rates on the same ship, say, ten or fifteen years before February, 1908? A. I haven't got the actual figures in my mind—

Q. In a general way? A. In a general way, I think there is very little change.

Q. Have the expenses of maintaining steamship service increased during the last twenty-five years? 4521
A. Very considerably; very considerably.

Q. Can you give any of the particulars in respect, for example, to coal? A. There again, I think—not the actual figures—but I can speak from actual experience and I know that about 1897, for instance, I think it would be, when I was in the secretarial department of the company, which at that time bought the coal, we probably were paying—

Q. You said you "probably were paying"; can you say you were? A. I can truthfully say we were paying about eleven or twelve shillings a ton for coal, for South Wales coal, and where it is costing us at the present time at least eighteen shillings a ton, maybe a little more.

4522 Sidney John Lister

Q. Has there been any change, to your knowledge, in the general prices of the provisions which the Cunard Company has had to buy? A. Nearly every item has gone up in the last few years. The steamship company has just experienced what people are experiencing on shore that the price of nearly every commodity has gone up. I might particularly mention we are paying a lot more for meat now than we were. I dare say there are many items I cannot give 4523 in detail now, but the prices of nearly everything have gone up.

Q. Has there been any general increase in wages which the Cunard Company has had to pay within recent years? A. Yes, there has. We have been subject in England to a great deal of labor troubles or difficulties. Even prior to our labor difficulties it was recognized by the steamship companies that we were calling upon the people on board the ships to do more than they had been doing before. For instance, the stewards probable have to do more, and more was expected by the passenger, more was expected by the passenger of the steward who waited on him, and it 4524 was a little harder work, and the steamship companies take that into consideration and gave certain crews on their ships advanced rates of wage. Then again our labor trouble in the last two or three years has caused an enormous increase in our expenses. Nearly every man on the ship at that time came out and the steamship companies had to concede to a certain extent and to a great extent the demands that were made.

Q. Does the Cunard Company at the present time pay considerably more for wages than it did for the same kind of services say ten years ago? A. Yes, the Cunard Company is paying considerably more today for the same kind of service than it paid two years ago, three years ago.

Q. And have wages been going up for a period of years past; has there been a progressive increase? A. It has been a progressive increase for some few years.

Q. Does that progressive increase also apply to the cost of provisions and coal, to which you have referred? A. Yes.

Q. Has there been, to your knowledge, an increase—

Mr. Guiler: Unless our stipulation extends to the leading questions I think I must object once in a while to what you are asking here. 4526

Q. Will you state, Mr. Lister, how the cost of steamers building now compares with what the cost of similar steamers are or would have been prior to the making of Agreement AA.? A. The cost of shipbuilding in Great Britain has gone up to a very remarkable degree. A ship, for instance, that could have been built possibly two years ago for, say, 200,000 pounds, the steamship company would probably have to pay today at least 250,000 pounds, possibly more, for an exactly similar ship.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge of any such instance? A. I do. I know of my own knowledge that ships which we have ordered and which have been delivered and which within a short period we have practically gone out to the builders for a duplicate, we have been asked by the builder anything from 50,000 pounds to 60,000 pounds more for a similar ship. 4527

Q. For a sister ship? A. A similar ship.

Q. Have there been any changes in the provision for safety of passengers during the last twenty-five years? A. Yes, there have been many. For instance, the old single screw ship, to which a great deal of 4528 an element of danger attached, has practically entirely disappeared. The steamship companies have been able to avail themselves of all the improvements that science has brought out.

Q. When you now refer to twin screw steamers, that involved the installing—twin screws involve two engines? A. Two engines against one.

Q. And it takes more space? A. It takes up more space.

Q. More dead freight? A. More dead freight.

Q. What are the elements of additional safety in the twin screw boat over a single screw boat? A.
4529 If you went to sea in a single screw boat and the screw went or the shaft went, there you are. You can then realize what the result would be, but in a case of a twin screw boat, we only ourselves had a twin screw boat last year crossing the Atlantic, and one of the shafts developed a flaw, and that ship was enabled with her other engine to arrive safely at her destination and go back to England again.

Q. Within what periods have bilge keels been introduced? A. Bilge keels have been introduced, sir, I think possibly in 1895. If I am a year or two out you won't find any fault?

Q. No. Will you explain what bilge keels are and 4530 their purpose? A. A bilge keel is what is termed by some people a rolling chock; it is an abutment from the side of the ship underneath the water; it proceeds a certain length along the ship's side to prevent her rolling, to make her more comfortable. On the side of the ship you have a bilge keel going probably two-thirds of the length of the ship to—

Q. A projecting flange? A. A projecting flange.

Q. On each side of the hull of the ship, about as the sides curve to the bottom? A. Almost at the bottom of the ship.

Q. To produce stability? A. To produce stability.

4531 Q. I call your attention to submarine signals; during what period have those been introduced? A. Only the last few years. That is a good thing for safety, especially in thick weather. The ships have a bell and though I cannot tell you exactly the technical effect, but on all the ships there is also a bell and the sound—the ship's people have these receivers that are fitted on the ships that are enabled to pick up the sound of the bell, and if the sound of the bell came on their starboard side they would know what lightships—these submarines's signals help them in foggy weather to pick up things they cannot see.

4532 Q. It eliminates the variation that is caused in foggy conditions by the various fog banks in the atmosphere? A. Yes.

Q. Causing sounds to reverberate back and forth so that you cannot tell from which direction the sound comes? A. This sound comes under the water, you see.

Q. About when were these submarine signals introduced; has it been within the last twenty years? A. The last two or three years.

Q. Within what time has the wireless apparatus been introduced? A. The wireless apparatus, it was first put on our ships in, I think, 1900, or 1901.

4533 Q. Has the use of electric lights in the steamers of the Cunard Company been increased during the last twenty years? A. Well, yes, it has been increased, because during the last twenty years we had some ships then that had no electric light at all; they had oil lamps.

Q. Have those oil lamps been eliminated within the last twenty years? A. They have been eliminated.

Q. And replaced by electricity? A. Yes. That is, for the general lighting of the ship.

Q. Has there been any difference in the expense of conducting the service of the Cunard Company during the last twenty-five years caused by the United States Immigration Act, and if so, will you give particulars? A. There has been a great deal of expense attached to the steamship companies and to the Cunard Company through the United States Acts. The United States expects us to live up to a very much higher standard—I don't say we did not always live up to a high standard—but expect us to live up to a very high standard now.

4534 Sidney John Lister

Q. And that is especially on account of the Immigration Act? A. Yes; and we have to see that all our agents live up to a higher standard; we have got 4535 to see that the whole of our business is conducted in the same fashion. The bills for printing, notifying the agents, keeping agents in touch, closely in touch, with all the changes that may take place in various regulations have entailed a great deal of extra expense to the companies.

Q. What precautions have the Cunard Company actually taken in the selection of the agents who sell its third-class westbound tickets? A. Well, we have, of course, got rid as far as we possibly could of all undesirable agents; we will have none but the very best we can get hold of. Along with the other companies two or three years we issued a system to insure us 4536 that we were getting the class of men who was good, stable and likely to live up to what we expected of them. All of this costs money. We keep travellers who are continually going around to educate the agents up to what is required of them, to explain any point that they must be particular about before accepting money from a passenger or attempting to book a passenger. We are continually watching the agents, both by circulars and by personally visiting them to see that we have the best people and to see that they are doing just what they really ought to do.

4537

Q. What precautions does the Cunard Company take to avoid having tickets sold to emigrants to the United States who will not be acceptable under the Immigration Act here? A. I think I would be quite content to let the Ellis Island records show what the Cunard Company has done, but I can give a slight incident to show how anxious we are to keep what we believe is a good reputation at Ellis Island. We absolutely have turned down all continental agents in Liverpool. For instance, we won't let any foreign agent in Liverpool book any passenger such as an Armenian or Turk or any of those that we know there is any suspicion about. Any one we know might be deported from Ellis Island. That is just a small incident. All the while we are endeavoring to book only the best people and those that we know will be accepted. But that is just a particular incident that I can recall at the moment.

4538

Q. What precautions have been actually taken by the Cunard Company in respect to the physical examination of the emigrants to the United States seeking to embark—to show that they complied with the United States Immigration Laws? A. I quite follow what you are asking about. I think it is since 1908—I am sure it is—that we have absolutely taken in and formed—taken into our employ a medical superintendent, and made him solely a member of the staff. He gives his whole time to the company's work at a very heavy cost to the company. We had the passengers examined before but it is only within the last year or two that we paid what we are paying for examinations. This medical superintendent of ours has for years been engaged in the examination of passengers and he quite realizes what is likely to be accepted by the United States officials, and he weeds out and stops those from coming whom he thinks would not be admitted. It has been a great help to us

4539

4540 because every passenger that has been rejected from the United States is examined by this medical superintendent on their return and he sees exactly what the United States officials have rejected that man for, and it is a guide and aid to him in future; if he came across a passenger who had been rejected for a certain thing he would stop such passengers in future from going to America at all. We are very proud at the present time of our medical arrangements.

Q. Have they been built up in a day? A. No, they have been built up from many years of experience.

4541 Q. Has there been any increase of expense of service of the Cunard Company in the last twenty-five years, caused by the statutory requirements either of the United States or of England, other than Immigation Laws, in respect to the third-class service? A. Yes. I cannot quite tell you all in detail now, but one country puts laws into operation and says you must carry passengers from this country under those laws, and another one you must bring them in under these laws, and between the two you often come to the ground, and I think it is only within recent years the carrying capacity of the ships has been very much affected by the laws which have been put in operation by the United States Government.

4542 Q. That is such laws as laws requiring a certain amount of air space for the passengers? A. I don't remember what the particulars are, but they want on certain decks a certain amount of space and on another deck you must have another.

Q. Can you state from your experience what effect a rate war has on the character of the emigrants from Europe to the United States?

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as conjectural, immaterial and irrelevant.

4543

A. Yes. You get during the rate war the dirty people that the steamship companies—I don't say how much or all—but it is what we are liable to get; the very people who in times of regular stable business we are keeping out. A rate war brings up again all these undesirable agents. That is the first thing it does. Then they encourage every one whatever who has got a few shillings to go to America. The natural result is that the steamship companies might be inclined to accept as many passengers as they can to make both ends meet, and the liklihood of the United States being afflicted with a very, very large number, an enormous number, of undesirable passengers.

4544

Q. How long has the Cunard Company been in business, Mr. Lister? A. Since 1840.

Q. Continuously? A. Continuously, sir.

Q. What lines does it now maintain? A. It maintains lines—its North Atlantic Lines between New York and Liverpool, and between Boston and Liverpool—and between London and Canada. Then we operate a line of ships from the Mediterranean to New York, and we also operate a line of cargo ships between Liverpool and the Mediterranean and between Liverpool and France.

Q. What percentage of the tonnage of the Cunard Company comes to ports of the United States—about what percentage of the total? A. I should say between eighty per cent and ninety per cent.

4545

Q. How many vessels has the Cunard Company now in the service? A. We have at the present moment twenty-five vessels in actual existence, and we have four either under actual construction or for which the order has been given.

Q. Can you state what the dividends of the Cunard Company has paid have averaged for the past thirty years? A. Yes. Our dividend during the past thirty years has been just under three per cent.

4546 Sidney John Lister

Mr. Guiler: I object to this line of testimony as immaterial, incompetent and irrelevant, and not within the issues, and ask to strike it out.

Q. Can you state what the average dividends of the company have been for the past ten years? A. They have been a little less than the average for the whole period.

Q. For the last ten years? A. Yes. I think they have been about two and seventy-five one-hundredths per cent. (After consulting printed statement.) The 4547 average dividend for the last ten years has been three and thirty one-hundredths per cent, and for the last—the actual dividend of the company since its inception has been—

Q. No, for the last thirty years? A. Two and eighty one-hundredths per cent.

Q. Per annum? A. Yes.

Q. Now, have you stated what the average dividends of the company have been for the past ten years? A. For the past ten years, sir, 3.30 per cent.

Q. And will you state what the average dividends of the company have been since the making of the Agreement "AA" in February, 1908? A. 2.75 per 4548 cent.

Q. What is the paid-up capital of the Cunard Company? A. 1,600,020 pounds; that twenty pounds is a Government share.

Q. Has that capital changed within the last thirty years? A. No, sir; the same capital all the while.

Q. And have the dividends to which you have testified been based on that capital? A. On that actual capital.

Q. At the last annual report of the company what relation did the amount of that capital on which dividends were paid bear value to the company's assets? A. I understand you want to know what the—

Q. I want to know what relation the paid-up stock of 1,600,020 pounds bears to the value of the company's assets? A. Had all the company's assets been realized under the date the last balance sheet was drawn up the stockholders or shareholders would have got a little over par and a half for their money.

Q. That is one hundred and fifty? A. About a little over one hundred and fifty.

Q. Is there any water in the stock? A. No, sir; none whatever, I am very proud to say.

Q. From your experience in the steamship business can you state whether it is possible under present conditions to maintain a passenger line from Europe to 4550 the United States which shall comply with the requirements of statute in England and in the United States and with the demands of the public unless the passenger rates are practically stable? A. It is absolutely impossible.

Mr. Guiler: I ask to have the question and answer stricken out as a conclusion and as the witness is not shown to be qualified to answer the question.

Q. Can you state from your experience in the steamship business whether it is possible for any considerable period of time to conduct the business of 4551 such a passenger line from Europe to the United States in conformity with the United States Immigration Acts unless the passenger rates are practically stable? A. I wouldn't say that my answer would be so emphatic as to the last question or say that it would be absolutely impossible; but there are very grave difficulties and very grave difficulties indeed in complying with the various acts and statutes.

Mr. Guiler: Same objection. No connection is shown between the stability of rates and the immigration acts.

4552 Sidney John Lister

Q. The various immigration acts? A. Yes, immigration acts.

Q. From your experience in the steamship business can you state whether it is possible in the North Atlantic passenger trade to maintain stable rates without agreements between the lines? A. You cannot maintain stable rates without agreements between the lines.

Q. And have the lines ever been able to make stable rates without agreements between themselves? A. Never.

Q. From your experience in the steamship business can you state whether the rates charged third-class 4553 passengers since February, 1908, by the lines which are parties to that agreement have been reasonable rates? A. Yes, I can state it from experience.

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as an opinion and a conclusion. I ask to strike out the question and answer.

Q. Will you state whether or not they have been reasonable rates, considering the service rendered? A. The fact that they have been reasonable shows—

Q. Will you state whether they are reasonable? A. They are reasonable.

Mr. Guiler: Same objection.

4554

Q. You have already testified as to the increase in the price of coal; has there been marked increase in the coal consumption within recent years in the steamers of the Cunard Company? A. Yes; all the steamers now are larger consumers of coal than they were a few years ago.

Q. How important an item is that in making up the total expense of carrying third-class passengers? A. It is one of the most important items, the coal question. During the early part of this year, 1912, the coal for our Atlantic steamers cost us twenty-one shillings a ton.

Q. Can you state about how much the Cunard Company is now paying a year for its coal? A. It is over six hundred thousand pounds. 4555

Q. Do the larger ships of the Cunard Company make a very much higher rate of speed than the first ships did twenty years ago? A. Yes, there is no comparison. We have ships crossing the Atlantic now which average twenty-six knots across—over twenty-six knots. Twenty years ago our average speed of all the ships would not be half that figure.

Q. Will you state what the speed of the Cunard Company's fastest ship is at the present time, and what the ships are? A. The largest ships of the Cunard Company at the present time are the Lusitania and Mauretania and their average speed across the Atlantic is between twenty-five and twenty-six knots. 4556

Q. Then taking the steamers that come next to them in speed, what are they? A. Campania.

Q. What is her average rate? A. Her average rate at the present time might be anything from nineteen to twenty knots.

Q. When was the Campania put in commission? A. 1893.

Q. How did the speed of the Campania at that time compare with the speed of other vessels in the North Atlantic trade? A. The Campania at that time with her sister ship the Lucania were the fastest ships crossing the Atlantic. 4557

Q. In the steamship business what is considered to be the available life of a ship like the Campania? A. I think twenty years might be looked upon or has been looked upon, as the extent of the life of a ship. But I could emphasize that by pointing out that a ship is not the same attractive ship at the end of the twenty years as she was when she was first built, because directly any one lays down another ship the other ship that has been built before is not only older at the same time but is being put back in the race as it were.

4558 Sidney John Lister

Q. Has it been found necessary by the Cunard Company to write off to depreciation the value of its ships within a certain period after they were put in commission? A. Yes.

Q. And within what period are the values written off, about? A. About twenty years.

Q. During the last twenty years, has there been to your knowledge any increase in the stevedoring charges? A. Yes, there certainly has been.

Q. How material an increase? A. A very con-
4559 siderable increase. We not only increased the wages of people actually running a ship, but increased and bettered conditions costing the company considerable sums of money were also given to the dockers.

Q. Has there been any considerable increase in the operating expenses such as pier rates? A. Yes; pier rates are increasing everywhere.

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. Mr. Lister, would you agree with the definition of Harold A. Sanderson before the Royal Commission on Shipping Rings in this record, page 1013, 4560 that the purpose and object of the conference is as follows: "The object, I should say was to bring about the mutual understanding between those in the trade with a view to maintaining the rates, avoiding unnecessary competition, supplying the trade to the best advantage and avoiding clashings in sailings and otherwise working the trade advantageously for all concerned." Would you say that was a proper definition of the conference? A. I don't say that I agree entirely with that definition, sir.

Q. What part would you disagree with? A. I think that the object of a conference is to bring about stability in the trade. I don't think that the object is to do away with competition, because I know from experience with the conferences that I am acquainted with that it has not done away with competition.

Q. I state to you that Mr. Ismay said, "I think that is fairly correct." Now, you would disagree with Mr. Ismay on that point also? A. I must not presume to disagree with two such men of experience as Mr. Ismay and Mr. Sanderson.

Q. And you also disagree with Mr. George Hannah?

Mr. Beers: Is it one of the issues in this case as to agreeing with these gentlemen? 4562

Mr. Guiler: I want to find out everything about this.

Q. You would disagree, then, with Mr. Hannah, also?

Mr. Bullowa: It seems to me that is an improper question. Whether the witness agrees or not is a question of the witness's opinion on the subject.

Mr. Guiler: His opinion is contained in whether he disagrees or agrees with this definition.

Mr. Bullowa: That is an improper way to put the question. I think you are asking the witness as to his conclusions as to agreeing or disagreeing. 4563

Mr. Guiler: As far as the conclusion is concerned we have had them all day. I resent your interference with this question. I have been very good natured about this and I want the same of you, especially as this is cross-examination. I would like to go along without any interference if possible, especially as I have the right to cross-examine and ask leading questions, but all I want to do is to get the facts here.

Mr. Bullowa: Mr. Guiler, I didn't object.

Mr. Guiler: I don't know what else you objected for except to break up my cross-examination.

Q. I ask you, Mr. Lister, whether you disagree with all of those gentlemen in regard to the matter of competition? A. Although it may seem presumptuous to say I disagree with them, I maintain that 4565 the agreement of which I have knowledge, sir, has not done away with competition.

Q. You mean the agreement of 1908? A. 1908, sir.

Q. Then you differ somewhat with them on that definition which I have given here? A. Yes, sir.

Q These vessels which you have spoken of—the improvements in all of these vessels which you have spoken of—have not come since 1908, have they? A. Not all the improvements, because I am speaking, sir, to a period prior to 1908, and also since 1908; but there have been improvements since 1908.

Q. Say, take the improvements on a vessel of the type of the Campania, which have not been so much, 4566 and the Mauretania and the Lusitania, which, of course, are in a class by themselves, are they not? A. No, sir. They are, so far as speed is concerned, but we have built ships since 1908 which we rightly maintain are an improvement on anything that we had built before. For instance, the Franconia and the Laconia.

Q. What is the tonnage and speed of the Franconia and Laconia? A. The Franconia and Laconia are 18,000 tons, and their speed about seventeen knots.

Q. With those exceptions the other vessels of your line built prior to 1908 you would say had accommodations which were reasonably required, were they not, for any steerage passenger; that is, you do not mean to state that the passengers were treated vilely before 1908 and much better after that? A. I don't say they were treated vilely before 1908, but we did not do anything like so much for them a little prior to that time as we are doing for them now. I might instance the Saxonia and Ivernia which were for years our most popular third-class boats, but they are very much out of the class of the Laconia and Fraconia, which are doing the work now the Saxonia did at that time. 4567

Q. The passengers who travelled by the Saxonia and Ivernia had good food and good attendance and everything was— A. They had not the dining room. 4568

Q. But they were supplied with everything that passengers are supplied with now? A. No, sir; they hadn't got revolving chairs in the dining room; they hadn't got two smoking rooms, and only a very small proportion of the accommodations in small rooms.

Q. But take it from—you know how long your experience existed before 1893—or, what was it you said? A. 1892, sir.

Q. Your experience with the shipping lines began at that time? A. At that time, sir.

Q. But hasn't it been your experience that the vessels of various lines even before 1892, or subsequent to 1892, have carried steerage passengers in the small rooms which you have spoken of, that is, approximately three or four passengers in each room; say six or eight or anything like that; they have been supplied with berths and so forth, have they not? A. The majority of the passengers in those ships were carried in open berths; even to the extent that families at that time were separated. 4569

Q. There was such a thing though as six berth rooms for steerage passengers, weren't there? A. There was a very, very small room; a very small proportion; but the—I give you an instance; in 1893, after the Campania—this has been already mentioned—she carried at that time about 600 third-class passengers, and out of that 600 there was, I think, just over a hundred in the small rooms. The balance of the passengers—of course, she hadn't a very big steerage carrying capacity.

Q. She had only a capacity of 675 anyway? A. Yes, all but a hundred in open berths.

Q. And then a very small proportion of those passengers were in open berths, then, weren't they? A.
4571 The larger proportion were in open berths. That ship had accommodations for 675 and I should say nearly 600 of which would be in open berths.

Q. But you did not mean to state that the open berths were such that it would be deleterious to health or anything of that sort? A. No, sir. If that had been thought we would not have been able to land them; we would not have gotten clearance when we got them here. But the sanitary conditions were in no way comparable between them.

Q. There has been a general improvement all around in sanitary conditions since that time? A. Improvements in every way.

4572 Q. But so far as the absolutely necessary matters went at that time, so far as the necessary things, food and health and so forth, a passenger could travel in those days without obtaining serious injury any way? A. He could travel without obtaining serious bodily injury, but as to the injury to his stomach, I wouldn't like to answer, because in those days the food was simply brought around in tubs or pans, and the passengers had to bring their own mugs and they practically scrapped to get whatever they could.

Q. You wouldn't state that the Cunard Line, for instance, in those days acted in such a way as would be injurious to the passengers? A. No, sir; I don't believe any steamship company would knowingly act in any way which would be injurious to the passengers.

Q. That is, so far as that it was necessary for food and health during the voyage? A. They had at that time what might possibly have been considered—

Q. I don't mean what was considered; I mean what was absolutely necessary? A. I don't say they hadn't; I don't want to say the ships were unsanitary, but I don't say they had perhaps all that was necessary.

4574

Q. They had the number of toilets that were required, had they not? A. But they hadn't any baths; they might have had a number of toilets.

Q. Mr. Lister, have you travelled over in the steerage at any time? A. No, I can't plead guilty to that.

Q. Have you inspected the steerage? A. I have.

Q. On a trip over to the United States? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I mean during this time, during the '90s? A. No, sir; I didn't cross in the '90s.

Q. So that your experience in regard to the things that you have spoken of during the '90s is not from your actual knolwedge of conditions? A. Not from actual experience of conditions on board.

4575

Q. Not from actual observation on board? A. Not from actual observation on board.

Q. You have received reports from others? A. Yes.

Q. Your line at some time or other was without the conference, was it not; was outside of the conference agreement? A. Yes, we have not been in the conference at all times.

Q. When was your line out of the conference, during what periods? A. I think that the last period we were out of the conference was in 1904.

4576 Sidney John Lister

Q. And how long did that last? A. It lasted about, I guess, eighteen months. It might be a little more or a little less.

Q. And it was before you had the 1908 conference agreement? A. We had conference agreements at that time that I am speaking of.

Q. And also rate agreements? A. No, a conference agreement which included a rate agreement. We had no pool at that time, sir; we had rate agreements.

Q. The general pool you had came in 1908? A. 1908, yes.

4577 Q. Did the passengers which the Cunard Line carried during 1904 and 1905, we will say, receive the same accommodations that they received thereafter until 1908; did they receive the same accommodations as they had theretofore been receiving—I will put it that way? A. To a certain extent the same; probably carried more on the ships. We took away probably all the closed accommodations that there was on the ships and put as many as we possibly could in.

Q. And during that time did the rate fluctuate materially? A. Rates were down to two pounds, sir.

Q. So that during that time the passengers for two pounds, the general steerage passengers, received a benefit, did they not, from the low rates that were in 4578 effect; they were, for instance, if the rates were $32, they were $22 better off, were they? A. In their pockets?

Q. Yes, in their pockets? A. Yes.

Q. Would you state that the rate of $10 was in vogue during that whole period, practically? A. No, sir; not during the whole period, it varied. I think two pounds, and I said this morning on one or two ships I think thirty shillings was the lowest limit to which it came down.

Q. That is, the rates were then during part of that period $7.50? A. I think on only one ship of one line. I think they had one particular ship, but generally the lowest rate it was down to was two pounds.

Q. So that the passengers on that ship profited in their pockets a great deal by that low rate and yet had the same accommodation? A. They might. The passenger who took that ship probably hadn't any more than $7.50 when he started compared with the man who had $30 when he started.

Q. He didn't have it? A. He didn't have to pay it if he didn't have it in his pocket.

Q. Do you know he didn't have it in his pocket? A. I am almost certain your own records will show how much he had when he landed. 4580

Q. Did you examine the records at that time to find out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To find out how much money a man had in his pocket? A. He would say how much he had in his pocket.

Q. Are you speaking from actual records when you say that? A. He must have had more than $10 or $7.50 in his pocket; he may have had just enough to make him admissible.

Q. What did he have in his pocket? A. I can't tell you what he had in his pocket, but he must have had a certain amount at that time to permit him to land, and I think that the laws said at that time that 4581 he must have $10.

Q. Then he is just so much better off having to pay only $7.50 rates than he would be if he had to pay $32? A. If he hadn't the money he couldn't pay the rate of $32.

Q. You are not certain he didn't have the money to pay the $32 rate? A. I don't deny some of them may have had the $32 to pay a rate of $32.

Q. You have not inquired into that? A. No, but a very great number probably did not have the money.

Q. But from your own knowledge you don't know whether that is so or not? A. I can't say that I went through every passenger, sir, to find out exactly what he had.

Recess taken until 2:00 o'clock P. M.

Afternoon session.

SIDNEY JOHN LISTER, recalled.

4583 Cross-examination by Mr. Guiler:

Q. I was at the adjournment speaking to you in regard to the advantages or disadvantages of that lower rate during the rate war? A. Yes.

Q. Now is it not a fact that if a person who traveled at $7—at the $7 rate—hasn't any more than $7 he therefore gets transportation which he would not otherwise get or be able to get from England to the United States or the continent to the United States? A. Yes, that is obvious.

Q. Then he is so much better off after having that transportation, is he not, whereas he could not get it otherwise? A. I there again say, Mr. Guiler, that it 4584 depends on how much money the man has got. He is so much better off, but it is just a question as to whether the country to which he is going to is better off by his going.

Q. And the emigrants that get that rate are so much better off by getting transportation to this country, are they not? A. I don't agree, I say the Government is no better off with the man that pays the $7 for his transport to this country with a very few dollars left in his pocket than a man who is about to pay $32 and has a corresponding increase in the amount in his pocket.

Q. You would not say he was any better off? A. No, I wouldn't say so but he gets transportation which he would not have got otherwise. 4585

Q. It is made possible for him to cross which it would not be otherwise and to that extent he is benefited, is not that so? A. I can't quite see that he is benefited, because the man has got $7 to pay for a thing that costs $7 it does not benefit any more than it benefits the man who has got $30 to pay for something that costs $30.

Q. He is benefited by the transportation which he has gotten? A. If he is benefited, he is about the only one that is. 4586

Q. I am taking him as a standard of all those men who travel at that rate? A. I don't think rate war passengers are standard.

Q. I am not taking him as a standard altogether, but if you will listen to what I say you will see it is correct. Taking this as a standard, all those men who travel at a $7 rate, I think you said obviously he is better off by that much transportation which he has received, which he could not have received otherwise? A. No, nor any man who is benefited by the higher rate at any time for transportation unless he took it.

Q. The man who has $7 at any rate, travels from say, Russia or Germany to the United States, whereas he would have to stay at home otherwise? A. I don't think for a moment you would get $7 out of that man. 4587

Q. I am talking about the lowest rate? A. We might assume the lowest rate was $7. If you are assuming this $7 I agree, but I don't say $7 was the rate that was in operation during the whole of the rate war.

Q. I think you said it was $7.00 or $7.50? A. That was one ship.

4588 Sidney John Lister

I was simply taking that as an instance, of course; with that exception it was on one ship— A. Quite right.

Q. So you admit that he gets from his home to this country whereas he would have to stay at home otherwise? A. I don't admit he is better off.

Q. But you will admit that much, that he does get over to this country for $7 or $10, whereas he would have to stay at home? A. I say this, that if we were to conduct our business on a $7 rate the United States authorities would be giving—

Q. One minute—

4589

Mr. Beers: Let him finish.

A. (Continuing.) Would be getting only passengers that the United States wants to keep out, because what is the result of a rate war? To encourage—

Q. I think we have gone into that before? A. It emphasizes the point I am going to make. You encourage the impecunious, the undesirable, whom you don't want to come into a country where every one desires to bring in eligible people, and the man that is paying $7 to come into a country is getting this benefit; he is crossing the ocean for $7, but he is not a 4590 penny better off than a man who has got the money and is prepared to pay a normal rate of $30. If I might enlarge on it a little, it all bears on what you have just been asking me to admit. The man that comes over at $7 in a rate war time is a creation of agents whom the steamship companies at other times hear nothing of and the bulk of people that take advantage of the $7 rate are drawn from very, very narrow limits. The bulk of them are East End London passengers.

Q. Yes, but yet, assuming that those passengers are admissible to this country, they are so much better off by coming here, are they not? A. I don't know, they might be better off if they stayed at home.

4591

Q. Take the case which we had the other day, where there were three rates on one vessel? A. Yes.

Q. That is the same accommodation; you have had that ship case, haven't you? A. What ship was that?

Q. I don't know; it was testified to here by Mr. Hannah that there were three rates on one vessel during the rate war; supposing one was, we will say $20 and another $25 and another $30? A. If it happened Mr. Hannah must have known of an instance, but I cannot recall an instance where the rate—or very few instances—where the one rate that was advertised for the particular ship was not adhered to. In the meantime a reduction in the rate might have taken place or an advance, and we could not have asked after we issued a British steamer ticket to a passenger to pay the extra $5 put on the rate any more than the other man booked could justly ask the $5 back if we had reduced it.

4592

Q. Supposing that was the case, you have heard of such cases have you not? A. There may have been cases.

Q. You would not say there were not? A. Certainly not.

Q. Supposing that there was such a case—the man who paid the $20 rate would receive the same accommodations as the man who paid the $30 would he not? A. Just the same, provided—

4593

Q. Provided they were all steerage passengers? A. Yes, under abnormal conditions.

Q. We are assuming they were abnormal conditions during the rate war? A. Quite so.

Q. And to that extent those men who paid those lower rates would be better off, would they not? A. Just in the same way as if you went into one shop and bought a thing for $10 and I bought the same thing at another shop for $5 and I would have $5 the better of you?

Q. And the same thing? A. I don't know.

Q. You just said it was the same thing? A. We might both believe it was the same thing.

Q. You said it was the same? A. I might as well admit it does not help me to deny it; it does not help me to admit it. It is immaterial to me. I was saying that in abnormal conditions such as the rate war time you will have the knowledge of one man paying perhaps two or three dollars more than another man, but that is a thing you could not help; and you could 4595 not very well cut a piece off one man's meat at dinner and say, "How much did you pay, I paid $10; and how much did you pay, $12—here is a little more meat for you because you paid $12." You have to treat everybody practically the same.

Q. That is, you have to give them the same accommodations? A. Practically so. You could not stop a man going to the lavatory because he pays a dollar less than another one.

Q. I understand that. Since the Cunard Line has been a party to the A. A. Agreement, I understand that it has lived up to that agreement at all times, is that so? A. At all times, yes.

4596 Q. And it has carried out the provisions of that agreement? A. It has done its best to at all times.

Q. That is, if the line carried more passengers than its alloted percentage, that it would pay into the pool, or whatever you care to call it, its $20 compensation? A. Quite so, sir.

Q. That has been true right along? A. Yes.

Q. It has paid at various times—at one time four or five thousand pounds or more, has it not, to the pool? A. Quite.

Q. That was for the reason that it carried more than its percentage of allowance, isn't that so? A.

If the line is paying into the pool it necessarily follows that it has carried more than its allowance.

Q. And that was to equalize what the other lines failed to carry, was it not? A. It was to pay to the other lines what they undercarried.

Q. And to equalize the matter as much as possible, is that right? A. To keep the promise; to carry out the terms of a contract.

Q. The Cunard Line since it has been a party to the Agreement "A. A." has filed, has it not, a guarantee deposit with the secretary, a promissory note of one thousand pounds, for every one per cent of its 4598 percentage allowance, isn't that so? A. We have deposited a deposit, yes.

Q. What was the idea in thaf, that deposit? A. The idea of the deposit in this agreement, as in any other, was to insure that every party would live up to the terms of the agreement.

Q. And that deposit was to be forfeited if he did not live up to it? A. Yes. If they did not live up to it the agreement shows what was to happen if they did not.

Q. There was also a provision, was there not, that if a line refused to pay the compensation money which I mentioned that it would also forfeit part of that bond, or whatever it was called? A. Yes. 4599

Q. Isn't that right? A. I haven't the agreement actually in custody, but I believe that is in there. I admit all the conditions of the agreement.

Q. You remember that there was some such provision? A. I am quite sure, sir; I admit all the provisions of the agreement.

Q. There was also a part of the agreement whereby if one of the conference lines started a new line in competition with any of the contracting parties that that penalty would also be forfeited, was there not? A. I should like to refresh my memory on that point.

4600

There was a byelaw dealing with new competition, but I am not quite aware at the moment, that it is in Agreement "A. A."

Q. Now, that your memory is refreshed, do you now recall that clause was in the agreement? A. Yes, it is in the agreement, sir.

Q. What was the idea underlying that clause? A. The idea underlying that clause was that it was an agreement concerning the various conditions that are outlined in it which each of the parties undertook when they signed it to live up to, and if any line did not live up to it, it was natural that the other lines 4601 should seek to obtain some redress against the line for violating the agreement which it promised to keep.

Q. Yes, but that clause there in regard to assisting a new line in competition with any of the contracting parties, that was, was it not, to prevent any outside competition? A. I don't say it was to prevent any outside competition. It was naturally, one might say, a protective measure; it was not an aggressive measure, it was a protective measure.

Q. Did you talk that over with the rest of the members at the conference meeting, that particular clause? A. I don't think there was any more particular argument on that clause than there was on any 4602 other. I mentioned this morning that the British lines in entering into the Agreement "A. A." had realized the stable way in which the continental lines had been able to conduct their business under their own agreement or pool, and these clauses which were included in "A. A." are the clauses which had stood the test of many years, and were accepted as reasonable clauses and conditions. I don't see that we had need of very much commentary to Article 18. There is no comment needed.

Q. It is obvious, of course, to prevent outside competition, isn't it; that is the reason why no comment was needed, isn't it? A. I suppose it speaks for itself; whatever any one elected to read into it. One line might read something different into it than another line.

Q. You would not attempt to state your opinion of what it was for? A. I should prefer to leave it as I say. It was one of the conditions which every one agreed to live up to.

Q. And that was obvious? A. Obvious.

Q. You were also present, were you not, at the Savoy Hotel, London, on March 25, 1908; I show you Government's Exhibit No. 705 which has been denominated, "Minute 22"? A. Yes. I was one of the 4604 unfortunate individuals apparently.

Q. You are acquainted with what is in that "Minute 22," are you not? A. Yes; if my name is on there I must have been acquainted with it. I admit I am acquainted with what is on there.

Q. I will show it to you, if you have any doubt. Now, you remember that "Minute 22" was to provide against the competition of the Volunteer Fleet, Russian East Asiatic Company and New York Continental Line? A. Yes, it states that, I think.

Q. Now, those three lines at that time were the outside lines, were they not; they were in competition with the conferences lines in the North Atlantic trade? 4605 A. It is quite possible they were.

Q. The Russian East Asiatic has since come into the conference? A. The Russian East Asiatic has since come into the conference.

Q. The process to be followed out there was that a fighting steamer—was it not so-called? A. Fighting steamer, so-called. I should say the word fighting was a term—

Q. You don't like it? A. We might have had a very good luncheon and so felt a bit more boisterous than we did in the morning and we just made the term "fighting" because it sounded more congenial to us. They never were "fighting" steamers.

4606 Sidney John Lister

Q. Then they were opposition steamers? A. I would call them rather "protecting" steamers.

Q. Defending steamers? A. Defending steamers.

Q. Under this "Minute 22" the policy was to have fighting steamers, so-called, or defending steamers, if you prefer, put against the steamers of the other lines which were eastbound from the United States at the same or lower rate than those particular steamers of the outside lines, weren't they? A. I don't think they were ever lower.

4607 Q. I was just getting at the purpose of this "Minute 22" here; that was so, was it not? A. The purpose was that if it was made possible for people to cross on a ship at $20 or $22 whatever the rate might be, the Atlantic Conference Lines had to reserve to themselves the right of having steamers at the same rate.

Q. And it was also a fact that all of the other lines agreed to compensate such steamers. Supposing the rate was $30, the ordinary rate was $30, it would compensate the other lines belonging to the conference, it would compensate that particular line that had to put on fighting steamers down to $18? A. Yes; the object of it was, sir, that when one line ran a steamer 4608 under this reservation they would have the right to have a steamer at the same rate as some one else.

Q. The same or lower, it says? A. It was never lower. This minute was simply a reservation of the right on the part of the lines who formed the Atlantic Conference to have a rate as low as the line that was operating that rate, and naturally it followed that if one line had a steamer at that low rate which was not a paying rate, each other line contributed to that line to make the rate what would have been a paying rate.

Q. That is, if the line which had a particular steamer on against the opposition or outside line had a regular rate of $28 and the rate for that particular sailing to which it had been reduced was $18 then the conference would compensate that line $10? A. Quite.

4609

Q. Under this "Minute 22" the line, or the vessel or opposition steamer, was to be appointed, was it not, by a majority of the members of the New York Conference, the so-called North Atlantic Conference and Continental Conference, with the Canadian Lines participating, is that right? A. Yes, I admit that.

Q. And the New York Conferences were under this minute to be allowed to appoint a small committee to carry out this minute? A. Yes.

4610

Q. Now, what I was coming to was this, the Cunard, during the existence of this minute, which I understand was in existence in 1908 and also resucitated in 1909 the Cunard lived up to that minute, did it not? A. Yes, quite. But they were not members of that committee.

Q. Paid its compensation? A. Honorably paid what was expected of them.

Q. Did they ever have any steamers which ran in opposition to any other outside line? A. I believe, sir, on one occasion, they had one ship.

Q. That is all you remember about? A. That is all I remember.

4611

Q. This also dealt with, did it not, the question of disciplining agents who represented outside lines? A. (After examining paper.) Yes, it apparently did, sir.

Q. You will observe in that minute that Secretary Peters notified Secretary Sandford to put in force that Rule 9 of the Conference Lines, did he not, as against the agents of the Conference Lines representing outside lines? A. Yes—

Q. And being disciplined if they did represent outside lines? A. Apparently reminding Mr. Sandford of the rule that existed for years. It is, I think in the New York Conference regulations, which is not a minute which was simply drawn up at that time.

4612 Sidney John Lister

Q. This minute was drawn up at that time? A. Rule 9?

Q. Had been in existence for a long time? A. Yes, I think so; I am not aware of the rules of the New York Conference, but I think that is one of some considerable standing.

Q. Anyway that was put in force as an opposition measure against the outside lines at that time, was it not, in addition to the fighting steamer proposition?

4613 A. It was drawing attention to the fact that the agents who were accepting agencies of the lines in America had agreed to accept certain conditions under which they were in their appointment. It was simply reminding the New York Conference that the agents should live up to what they had undertaken to do.

Q. And that that regulation should be strictly enforced against agents who did not live up to it? A. You must read also that any other regulations must be strictly enforced; it practically meant that.

Q. But that was one they had that was dealt with particularly in this minute, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. Rule 9—I show you Petitioner's Exhibit No.

4614 220, which appears to be circular No. 5 of the North Atlantic Conference, and ask you whether that Rule 9 was not put in force as against agents who booked passengers via Genoa or Naples who were destined to Continental points, and that agents were instructed not to book such passengers under penalty of disqualification? A. It is apparently a minute of the North Atlantic Passenger Conference of New York. I don't know exactly in what way it was—

Q. You will find the Cunard Line signatory to that notice. That is from the New York office? A. That is apparently a rule of the New York Conference and it must have been put in operation. I don't know of any case—

Q. Do you know the occasion for that rule? A. The occasion for that rule was to prevent them doing what the rule says.

Q. I mean the particular occasion for this notice or circular? A. I don't know of any particular reason. It its dated May 6th, 1908, I cannot recall at this date any particular point which resulted in this rule; not at the moment.

Q. Wasn't the idea there underlying this notice that this was a measure against the Italian Lines who, at 4616 that time, were outside of the conference? A. It may have been some adjustment of booking on this between the Continental Lines on the one part and the Italian Lines on the other.

Q. It was to prevent, as is mentioned here, such persons as the Austrains, Croatians, Dalmatians, the Germans, Hungarians, Russians, Slavonians, and so forth from embarking from Genoa or Naples and going via Hamburg and Bremen and Rotterdam; isn't that the purpose of that notice, by compelling agents not to book them for those points? A. The object of it is plainly stated there. I admit what it states in there. I don't know of any specific case or any actual reason which prompted them at that moment 4617 when that was drawn up; I was not present.

Q. Don't you recall that at that time there was a serious controversy between the Conference Lines and the Italian Lines as to who should get the Continental passengers, whether the Italian Lines or the Continental Lines, members of the conference? A. I dare say that that, sir, was or had some bearing upon it. I take it, it was something resulting from an adjustment of the business.

Q. The only adjustment of the business that possibly could be covered by that, would be, would it not, having those steerage passengers whom I have mentioned go via Hamburg, Bremen or Rotterdam rather than by Genoa, from which the Italian boats sail, isn't that right? A. There may have been some reason at that particular time which called for that circular.

Q. Don't you recall that you have mentioned that you attended all the conference meetings? A. That is a conference meeting on this side.

Q. I know that is a conference meeting on this side. But you have stated you attended all the conference meetings in Europe, have you not? A. Yes.

4619 Q. Or on the Continent? A. Yes.

Q. And the matter of the Italian competition was taken up in those meetings, was it not? A. The question of coming to an agreement with the Italian Lines was one of the subjects as shown, and subsequently I believe an agreement was made to do it.

Q. And you remember that Mr. Ballin of the Hamburg-American Line and Signor Crespi took up that matter for many months, the matter of the Italian Lines joining the conference? A. Yes. We were not quite so intimately connected with those negotiations because the Cunard Line was not in the westbound Italian business.

4620 Q. It was evidently interested in it here? A. In New York, but we were not interested so vitally in it; we came in more as a secondary party.

Q. The Cunard Line, is interested, however, in the Hungarian business? A. The Cunard Line is interested in Hungarian business, yes, that is right.

Q. The Cunard Line, attempted, did it not, to make an arrangement with the Hungarian Government for a certain pooling arrangement which would satisfy the Hungarian Government so as to carry Hungarian passengers, did it not, under such arrangement? A. Of what period are you speaking? At the inception of the Cunard Company's arrangement with the Hungarian Government?

Q. Any period? A. That is prior to Agreement "A. A."

Q. I mean the Cunard Line was interested in it to that extent? A. The Cunard Line was interested in the Hungarian business.

Q. And the Cunard Line was unable to make that arrangement, wasn't it, with the Hungarian Government? A. Difficulties occurred which prevented the Cunard Line making the arrangement.

Q. Will you tell me some of the difficulties? A. I 4622 cannot tell you, sir, exactly what objections the Hungarian Government had to our coming to an agreement with other lines on Hungarian business at that particular time. There were objections raised. They may have had some reasons in their mind by which they did not wish the Cunard Company's business to be brought into an agreement.

Q. You say there may have been; do you know what those were? A. I stated, sir—you are speaking of the time when an effort was made by the Cunard Company or by the lines to bring the Cunard Company's Hungarian business to Agreement "A. A."?

Q. Yes. A. You are referring to that period?

Q. Yes. A. The Hungarian Government appar- 4623
ently had no objections to the Cunard Company working their agreement with the other lines, in harmony with the other lines, but at that time I believe it did not feel that it could commit itself to allowing the Cunard Company to put the passengers into the pool. I guess that was the only reason. They did not tell us, naturally, every reason that they had in their mind.

Mr. Bradley: You say "they"?

The Witness: The Hungarian Government.

Q. At any rate they did not allow that arrangement to be effected at that time? A. They did not allow it, but subsequently I might say, that the Hungarian Government quite accepted the reasons which were put forward, the benefits of protecting the business under a stable pool, and had no objection whatever to the Cunard Company putting their business in.

Q. Did they give you the reason that it was under a stable pool, that was the reason they agreed to it; they did give you a reason for that, but they did not for the other? A. I didn't say they had given us the reasons for that, but we showed them the benefits of 4625 protecting the business under a pool which provided a stable conduct of the business, and the Hungarian Government I think were wise enough to accept that.

Q. You wouldn't say they gave you those reasons though, would you? A. I wouldn't say they gave us the reasons.

Q. You gave them the reasons? A. We gave them the reasons and I am glad to say they were wise enough to agree. I know that if the Hungarian Government had not been satisfied with regard to the provisions under the pool, I don't think they would have agreed.

Q. Do you remember the time when there was a 4626 serious competition with the Italian Lines, don't you, in regard to the Continental passengers? A. I think there was competition, yes, sir.

Q. That lasted quite well up to the time of the agreement with the Italian Lines? A. Yes, although, as I said before, we were not so deeply interested in the Italian situation. It was more secondary with us; we did not take part in any of the Italian negotiations.

Q. I show you Mr. Peters' circular letter, No. 81, and marked Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1280, and call your attention to No. 4, a letter apparently from the Cunard Line, of May 6th, and ask you whether that refreshes your memory as to whether the Cunard Line, along with the other lines, members of the Conference at that time, reduced the rates considerably—$10, with $5 compensation as against the Italian Lines? A. This is a telegram to which you refer from the Cunard Company, which I do not deny for one moment. It says that the lines would agree to reduce to ten dollars the eastbound rate.

Q. That is what I stated, that the subject-matter dealt with there was the reduction of rate as against the Italian Lines? A. Yes, and, as I said, we followed practically in this because we were only interested in a very minor degree in the Italian business. 4628

Q. At any rate, you carried out the— A. We quite agreed, sir.

Q. What the Conference had agreed upon there as against the Italian Line? A. Yes, and I hope we always carry out what the Conference agree upon, on that or any other question.

Q. I show you Government Exhibit 1,282, marked Peters' Circular Letter No. 97, in regard to Continental steeragers, by the Italian Lines, and ask you if that refreshes your memory to the extent that you know the Cunard Line upon the Cunard Fiume service did not reduce its rates as against the Italian Lines, 4629 on that service? A. Apparently so, and we gave the reason.

Q. You remember that as so? A. I accept this. I cannot carry my mind back to answer what happened on May 18th, 1908. But you show me that and I agree what we stated then we decided to do. We admit it.

Q. I call your attention to Government Exhibit No. 1,348, which purports to be a Conference meeting at the Savoy Hotel, London, on November 25th,

4630 Sidney John Lister

1909, attached; you appear to have been present, and I ask you whether this refreshes your memory as to the general advance—an agreement between all the lines as to a general advance in second-class rates of ten shillings?

Mr. Beers: Does that refer to second-class rates?

Mr. Guiler: Yes.

Mr. Beers: I object. It is quite incompetent.

4631 A. I can give a very simple explanation for that. It is not a Minute made by agreement "AA" Lines at all. It so happens that the "AA" Lines have signed it because they carried second cabin passengers. Other lines signed that who are not in the Agreement "AA," and it was, I think, the lines felt at that time, that the expenses of running ships were increasing all the while and that the conditions warranted an increase in the rate, which they naturally endeavored to put into operation.

Q. It was an agreement of all the lines, members of the conference, was it not, to a general advance in second cabin rates, isn't that right? A. Obviously, sir. We could not advance any rate unless we had 4632 an agreement.

Q. From looking at this, you will notice that every line in the North Atlantic trade was represented? A. Yes, as I say every line—there were not only "AA." Lines, but lines who were members of other agreements.

Q. They were lines members of the so-called conference? A. Yes, they were conference lines, but they were not all members of the "AA." Agreement.

Q. All members of the "AA." Agreement were there, were they not? A. All the members. The simple reason is that we endeavored to advance a rate because the conditions of operating are increased, the same as you would on land if you increased a railroad rate.

Q. That advance was made, was it not, and the matter of increasing the third cabin rate was also taken up at that meeting, wasn't it, advancing that proportionately? A. (After examining paper.) Yes.

Q. So that third-class rates were also taken up in that meeting? A. Third-class rates were taken up.

Q. And the matter of that advance was referred to the British conference, was it not? A. Yes, it was.

4634

Q. Do you remember what action was taken on that? A. I cannot. If you have got the minutes of it, I might remember.

Q. I will ask you, Mr. Lister, if the Cunard Line, from time to time, took up the matter of disqualifying—if they took an active part in the matter of disqualifying various agents for representing the North West Transport Line and reported such matter to the conference; I show you Secretary Peters' circular letter, No. 518, which takes up the matter of Lozantcheff Freres? A. Yes, we took up that. We advised the conference, Secretary Peters, just the same as any other line would advise, if they found anything which they thought was contravening their agreement.

4635

Q. The North West Transport Company was not in the agreement, was it? A. It was not at that time; but they might have been, might they not?

Q. No, for they never were, were they? A. It was not our fault.

Q. I say they never were? A. I think there is a North West Transport. I think that is now the Uranium Company, is it not?

Q. Yes, but they were never a member of the conference? A. No, but if they had shown they were able to control their agents and take care of the business they would have been in it.

4636 Sidney John Lister

Q. The point is that the Cunard Line, reported a case where an agent was apparently representing an outside line and asking for his disqualification? A. Yes; I cannot recall that the disqualification ensued.

Q. But the Cunard Line reported it for disqualification? A. It reported it for action.

Q. Now, I will show you conference circular, No. 875, of Mr. Peters', which I ask to have marked in evidence—

Circular number 875 marked Petitioner's Exhibit 1,916.

4637 Q. Now, it appears from that, which is dated, June 14th, 1910, that on the 13th of June, 1910, the Cunard Line withdrew from action under Minute 22, didn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember what was the cause of that withdrawal from Minute 22? A. I cannot remember, sir, the actual facts, but I take it that we desired to be free from Minute 22.

Q. You did not act in that particular meeting, did you? A. We had not found that it did us any harm.

Q. Did you fear, in any way, that it might do you harm? A. No, I don't think that we had any fear.

Q. At any rate you withdrew from it, or gave no-4638 tice to withdraw at that time? A. We gave notice to withdraw.

Q. You remember that? A. I remember that.

Q. Outside of this here, outside of this record? A. We gave notice to withdraw.

Q. I show you Mr. Peters' circular letter, without number, but marked Petitioner's Exhibit 1,584, and which encloses the minutes of a conference meeting, at London, on 11th of July, 1910, and at which Mr. Booth and Mr. Mearns of your line were present, and ask you whether it refreshes your recollection as to whether the Cunard Line withdrew its withdrawal notice from Minute 22, as against the Uranium Steamship Company, or, in other words, continued to take part in Minutes 22, as against the Uranium Company; that is true, isn't it? A. That is true. 4639

Q. From that minute? A. That is true, from that minute. I was not present.

Q. But you remember it continued against the Uranium Line? A. Yes, I admit it.

Q. I think you have stated this morning, Mr. Lister, that, say, from the beginning, or from your experience from 1890 up to the present time, there was a continuous increase in tonnage of ships which were carrying third-class passengers, is that right? A. Yes. 4640

Q. Up to, say, 1908? A. Up to 1908.

Q. A steady increase in the tonnage? A. Steady increase in the tonnage, in size of ships. I don't know that I said in tonnage. I don't know what the actual tonnage operating to America, in 1890, was, or what it was in 1908. What I said was, that there was an increase in the size and improvement of the ships.

Q. Can't you, from your experience, say whether there was an increase in the tonnage or not, whether within a period, in other words, twenty years, from 1890 to 1910? A. All the lines increased their ships.

Q. Now, during all of that time, was there a similar increase in the amount of immigration? A. There was, sir; it fluctuated. 4641

Q. Some years were so-called, lean years, when you didn't have so many? A. Yes, and some years were fat years.

Q. And some years when you had more? A. Quite so.

Q. Supposing that all the various lines were carrying the full capacity of passengers, do you think a conference would be necessary, if they were in such a position that they were carrying as many passengers as they could, steerage or otherwise? A. Yes. I think the conference is necessary at any time, whether they are full or whether they are empty.

4642 Sidney John Lister

Q. Where there is a great demand for them or whether there is a small demand? A. Or a small demand.

Q. I show you Petitioner's Exhibit No. 704, which has been identified by Mr. Ismay, in regard to saloon rates, in which he states—

Mr. Guiler: I understand this is under your objection, Senator?

4643 Mr. Spooner: Yes, and the further objection that it does not relate to third-class business.

Mr. Guiler:

Q. (Continuing)—in which he states, on January 9th, 1900: "I am sailing tomorrow per Oceanic for the round trip," and this is addressed to Mr. Ballin, "I am sailing tomorrow per Oceanic for the round trip, and although there seems no necessity to come to an agreement upon rates this season as all the lines appear to be booking well at good rates, I have had a talk with our people on the matter and enclose for your private information memo of what we think would be a fair classification and rat-4644 ing for the respective steamers, and shall be glad to hear how far it conincides with your own views." Now, apparently Mr. Ismay there, thought that so long as the lines were carrying their full first and cabin capacity, there was absolutely no necessity for a pool or conference, in that particular class of business; do you agree with him on that? A. I can't tell what Mr. Ismay thought in 1900. I say I do not agree with him.

Q. You do not agree with him on that? A. No.

Q. You do not agree with Mr. Hannah on that either, do you? A. I do not agree with Mr. Hannah either. 4645

Q. Supposing you have a vessel, Mr. Lister, of about 25,000 tons, can you tell me what would be the approximate expense of your running that vessel on a trip from—no, what would be the gross return on that vessel from Liverpool to New York? A. What do you mean by gross return, sir?

Q. (Question read.) A. Do you mean by gross return, the receipts?

Q. Gross receipts, yes? A. It varies. It varies with so many circumstances it is impossible to give you any idea. 4646

Q. Get it as approximately as possible? A. I am afraid I could not undertake to give any estimate as to what the receipts would be. The receipts vary in accordance with the fluctuations of the trade to which you have already referred.

Q. I am supposing an average voyage? A. I could not take an average voyage; they vary so very considerably.

Q. Could you give me any idea then, of the net return from such a voyage? A. That would vary also, sir. I could not give you any idea of the net return.

Q. Could you give me any idea then, of the amount of overhead charges on such a voyage, charges of ship, coal, and so forth? A. Whether you get a good voyage or a bad voyage, your overhead charges remain the same. You have to send the ship, you have to supply her with coal. 4647

Q. You stated this morning, certain things that you knew about the prices of coal and so forth, and I want to see whether we could lump this matter up, and get in one statement, what you think would be the overhead charges? A. That entirely, sir, depends on the voyage. It would be difficult to give any average of what the expense of running the steamer to America was. It might be very considerable one trip, and they might reduce them on another trip.

Q. I am talking about a 25,000 ton boat? A. You have got to have one thing; you have got to have your coal to take her to New York and bring her back. That is a standing charge; you have to have your crew, but your crew varies in accordance with the number of passengers.

Q. Couldn't you lump it up? A. It is too difficult. I would, willingly, if possible, but I could not name any figure.

4649 Q. You have been in the business for twenty years, haven't you? A. I have.

Q. Couldn't you approximate the average net and gross return for a ship of that size? A. I don't think I could give you any average net return any more than I could give you any average net expenditure. You could say on one voyage the expense of a certain ship might be ten thousand pounds and it might be fifteen thousand pounds on another voyage.

Q. Supposing, for the sake of example, that the gross returns on a voyage of a 25,000 ton boat were £22,000, can you give me any idea of the net return for that particular boat, or of a boat of that size?

4650 A. I couldn't give you any idea of a net return. It varies so much. If you get a full ship of first-class passengers and a full ship of second, and a full ship of third-class on the voyage, your net return is more than if your ship goes off empty.

Q. I know, but I would like some definite information on that if you possibly could from your experience. You have been running these vessels for years, and I would very much like to get some idea about that; as a practical man, you know. Supposing you make a gross return of £22,000, you would know what profit you make on that? A. Our profits are all shown by our balance sheets. In the first place, I cannot possibly carry in my mind what would be the net return or the net or gross receipts on any particular voyage, and in the second place, it is a point which I would not care for everybody to know, what our expenses are, or what our receipts are.

4651

Q. I don't mean yours; I mean an average return; I don't confine it to one ship of yours or anything; I am asking you from your experience? A. It is a point on which things vary. We might keep up our ships and so might another steamship company, spend a lot of money in making repairs and renewals, and another company might operate a 20,000 ton ship 4652 and spend less than another steamship company might do.

Q. Supposing that the charge for overhead expenses on that vessel, a vessel of that size, were twenty-two hundred pounds, can you give me the net return from that, having already had the gross return—the approximate net return? A. It is so difficult to get into my mind any ship at the present time that can be operated across the Atlantic at twenty-two hundred pounds that I am overwhelmed.

Q. No, that is overhead expenses? A. What do you mean by overhead expenses?

Q. I mean the charges of the ship and coal and so 4653 forth? A. I cannot quite appreciate the question, because, as I said before, the amount varies and that amount is so ridiculously low.

Q. You cannot give me, from having the figure of the gross return and having the overhead charge, the gross return on it amounting to twenty-two hundred pounds, you cannot give me any idea of the approximate net return, could you? A. I could not, sir.

Q. Would you say that on such a voyage the net return on such a vessel would be 5,000 pounds? A. It is such variable property; you might take a voyage where you make 5,000 pounds and you might take a voyage where you make less.

Q. You cannot help us out at that, at all, as to anything definite from your experience? A. I have had experience enough, but I cannot carry figures. It is a question that has never been asked before and one cannot tell. Your ship sails and you don't know until she comes back what she is going to make, and you cannot make any average figure.

Q. I have given you the figure which apparently was made on a vessel of that size, and I tried to see whether you, from your experience, could say 4655 whether that is approximately what that would cost or not? A. I did not appreciate your reference to twenty-two hundred pounds for a 25,000 ton ship. I don't see any figure in a 25,000 ton ship except a profit that operated twenty-two hundred pounds.

Q. You can't see a profit of 5,000 pounds in a ship of such a size, can you not, on one voyage? A. It all depends on your running expenses. Your running expenses vary so much from time to time one can never prophesy what your voyage is going to pay.

Q. I say it is possible to make that on one voyage? A. The bigger the ship, the more you make.

4656 Q. Cannot you answer that directly, if it is possible to make 5,000 pounds on such a trip? A. I should think on a full ship of 25,000 tons, both ways across the Atlantic, it is possible to make 5,000 pounds.

Q. You stated this morning, Mr. Lister, that the Cunard Line had a capital of £1,600,020? A. Yes, sir.

And some other figures in regard to the capital not having been changed and so forth, and the dividends paid on that for thirty years to be 2.80; that was before the conference? A. Including the conferences as well.

4657

Q. And for the past ten years 3.30? A. Yes.

Q. And since the "AA." Agreement, 2.75? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You also stated that there was absolutely no water in the number of shares, which you had there? A. Yes.

Q. Now, can you tell me what the gross profit for the year on that capitalization has been, for the year 1908? A. I could not tell without referring to our annual report; our annual reports show it.

Q. You cited the annual report this morning, I think? A. Yes.

4658

Q. I would like to get a little fuller knowledge as to that?

Mr. Beers: You mean gross receipts?

Mr. Guiler: Yes.

Q. For the years, say, 1908, 1909, and 1910? A. I couldn't tell you that without the statement.

Q. Have you got it here? A. I don't know that I have. Mr. Beers may have it.

(Mr. Beers produced statement and hands same to witness.)

The Witness: (After examining paper.) Yes.

Q. Can you give me that? A. What is the question.

4659

Q. (Question read.)

Mr. Beers: As I understand your question is as to the gross income. Of course, profit involves an idea of a net figure. I understand what you are asking for is the gross income?

Mr. Guiler: I ought to have said gross income.

A. The gross income for 1908 was—these are in pounds—£2,496,997; in 1909, the gross income was £2,820,577; in 1910, £3,068,425; in 1911, £3,081,263.

4660 Sidney John Lister

Q. Now, will you give me the net profit during those years? A. 1908, net earnings £172,971; 1909, £649,416; 1910, £958,158; 1911, £815,724.

Q. Now, will you take the three years prior to that? A. Yes. Do you want the gross, as well as the net?

Q. Yes? A. In 1905 the income was £1,773,268; in 1906 it was £2,270,016; in 1907, £2,499,274; and the net earnings in 1905, £308,172; 1906, £553,193; 1907, £554,794.

Q. Have you got those same figures for the years 1904 and 1905? A. I gave 1905 before, but I did not give you 1904.

4661 Q. Give me 1904? A. 1904, £1,488,760 gross income, and our net earnings were £61,588.

Q. Can you give me those same figures for the year 1897 and 1898? A. Yes; 1897 the gross income was £1,302,130; in 1898, £1,313,295. Net earnings for 1897, £214,458; 1898, £249,406.

Mr. Beers: Let it be noted that those figures are subject to verification and, if necessary, to correction.

Q. Can you give me the gross tonnage for those years which I have mentioned? A. Yes, I can.

4662 Mr. Beers: That is starting with—

Q. 1908, 1909 and 1910? A. 1908, 245,813 tons; 1909, 217,109 tons; 1910, 224,311 tons; 1911, 267,107 tons. Then you had 1905, 1906 and 1907; in 1905, 182,242 tons; 1906, 182,345 tons; 1907, 245,813 tons. Then you asked for 1904?

Q. Yes? A. 1904 was 162,679 tons. Then you asked for 1897 and 1898. 1897, 119,215 tons and 1898, 114,332 tons.

Q. So that, Mr. Lister, from 1897 to 1911, the tonnage of your line was about doubled? A. A little over double.

Sidney John Lister

4663

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION by Mr. Beers:

Q. Mr. Lister, you have testified in response to Government questions as to the amount of the net earnings of the Cunard Company for certain years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have any amounts had to be deducted from those net earnings to which you testified before arriving at the sum which was available for dividends, and if so, what deductions have had to be taken? A. From that has to be taken the depreciation and interest on bonds and stocks.

4664

Q. Will you explain on the record, please, what you mean by the amount taken off for depreciation? A. We write off every year 5% on the gross value, or original value of the ship. As I said, we look upon that from experience to have been shown to us to be a reasonable figure to write off. A ship starts off with an original value and time brings out other steamers and in addition to that a steamer is getting older all the while and less attractive, and her value as an earning power naturally diminishes, and we estimate that it diminishes from all those various causes to the extent of five per cent per annum.

Q. Has the practice of writing off five per cent of the value of ships per annum, been followed by the Cunard Company for any considerable period of years? A. Ever since we started.

4665

Q. How has that practice and that five per cent annual writing off worked out, in actual experience? A. We can prove that I think very well by taking the number of ships that have been sold, for instance, and what the company has got for them.

Q. That is, sold when they were no longer useful to the Cunard Company? A. Sold when they were no longer useful to the Cunard Company. I think we have sold twenty-four ships which represented in tonnage—I can't quite tell you the tonnage, but we have sold over that period twenty-four ships and the difference between what we got for them and what they stood in our books, when they had been written down, was only 1,000 pounds. That was spread over twenty-four boats.

4666 Sidney John Lister

Q. So that you came within 19,000 pounds of being absolutely correct? A. Of being absolutely correct, as to the value of the old ships.

Q. On a five per cent basis? A. On a five per cent basis.

4667 Q. Mr. Lister, am I correct in understanding that the Cunard Company has sold twenty-four ships which had proved no longer available for its business, and that the sums which it realized on those twenty-four ships in the aggregate were the amounts at which the value of those ships had been written down with the exception that the sum realized varied from that by about 19,000 pounds? A. That is so, yes. The sum that we obtained varied by 19,000 pounds for the number of the ships from the amount at which they stood in our books when they were sold.

Q. And as I understand the amounts at which they stood in your books were the amounts which had been arrived at by writing off five per cent of their value 4668 a year? A. Quite so, sir.

Q. And that is correct, is it? A. That is correct.

Q. And was that method followed from the time they were acquired until the time they were sold? A. Yes.

Q. And has that method of keeping your depreciation account been continued down to the present time? A. Continued to the present time.

Q. Will you state, please, what amounts were written off to depreciation account by the Cunard Company in the years 1908, 1909, 1910 and 1911? A. In 1908 we wrote off for depreciation £296,778; in 1909, £376,483; in 1910, £471,198; in 1911, £455,-298.

4669

Q. In arriving at the sum available for dividends, each year, has it been necessary to deduct from the net earnings any amounts other than for depreciation account? A. For the last three or four years we had to deduct also interest on certain bonds.

Q. Mr. Lister, can you recall about what the Cunard Company realized on the sale of the twenty-four ships to which you have referred and are those figures at hand? A. Twenty-four ships, sir, were sold for 190,000 pounds.

4670

Q. Can you state how much the twenty-four vessels sold, originally cost the Cunard Company? A. £2,-560,000.

Q. Did you, Mr. Lister, during the rate war, in 1904, especially observe the third-class passengers who actually embarked on the Cunard ships at Liverpool? A. Yes, because in 1904, I was head of the Third-Class Department.

Q. At Liverpool? A. At Liverpool.

Q. Did your duties especially direct your attention to those passengers at that time? A. Yes, my duty was not only in the office, but I used to board every ship. I mean to say every ship when I was in Liverpool; I may have been away from Liverpool for a day, you know.

4671

Q. Did the third-class passengers who embarked on the Cunard Company's ships at Liverpool, during the prevalence of that rate war, differ from the ordinary, average Cunard passengers? A. To a very marked degree. If you would like me to illustrate—

Q. State, please, how they differed? A. At the time of the rate war—

Q. Confine your attention to the rate war of 1904? A. At the rate war of 1904, what happened was this directly the rates were reduced, certain agents who 4672 were in touch, close touch, with this lowest class of passengers drawn from the East End, if I might say, the slums of London, and from such places as the lowest quarter of Leeds and lowest quarter of Manchester, and the big towns, they used to secure in advance large numbers of berths in each ship, and they used to send in as many as a hundred at a time of advice slips of the bookings of these passengers. When the passengers came along we found out that they were practically the very poorest class of men, still, having been booked we were bound to accept them.

4673 Q. Did you personally see the passengers who embarked at that time? A. Personally. I have a very vivid recollection of what was happening at that time, I think. A class entirely different.

RE-CROSS EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. Now, Mr. Lister, those passengers were accepted however by the Cunard Line, were they not? A. They were accepted by us.

Q. And carried to the United States? A. And carried to the United States.

Q. Were they examined by your physician before they left Liverpool? A. Yes.

4674 Q. They were? A. Yes.

Q. Did you notice whether any greater proportion of those emigrants were sent back than had been sent back during previous years? A. I can't tell you exactly.

Q. After examination by your physician? A. Certainly, we used to reject very large numbers.

Q. I mean by the emigration officers here? A. The Ellis Island records will show that. I cannot answer that.

Q. Have you got them here? A. I don't think I have any Ellis Island records here. The bulk of the passengers though, who were accepted, were those who just squeezed through; they were just over the level to enable them to flow in practically; that is what you might say of them.

4675

Q. You didn't notice any appreciable number of them who were sent back by the authorities at Ellis Island, during that year? A. I cannot recall at the moment, what numbers were deported. I think we could furnish you some definite information if you wish.

Q. So far as your memory goes, however, they were not any different that year than others? A. The number sent back may have been a little larger in those years, sir.

4676

Q. That is your recollection? A. That is my recollection. As I say, they were just admissible according to the laws and therefore they were naturally permitted to enter the country; but they were a very different class of people to what we get in ordinary conditions.

Q. But those who had tickets or booked tickets and appeared to be fitted to go through according to the regulations of the United States authorities here, were permitted by the Cunard Line to go through and to be carried? A. Yes, because they had tickets.

Q. Although they were of a lower class? A. Were of a lower class. But they had tickets. Under the British Merchants' Shipping Act, and although they were a very poor class of people, we had to go through them and then we said we cannot see any reason why they should not be admitted to the United States, and, therefore, we had to carry them. Had we rejected all of them in Liverpool we would have been liable to action by every one of them under the Merchants' Shipping Act.

4677

Q. Hasn't it come to your observation, that the emigrants of late years had been—even of the worst class—that is, take the emigrants from Southern Russia

4678 and Hungary and various other places, Southern Europe, whether those were not the worst class, a worse class than those coming from Leeds, Manchester, London and so forth? A. I don't think they were such a bad class; I don't think they are such a bad class.

Q. Aren't they a poorer class? A. I don't say so. I think you will find them more thrifty.

Q. Aren't they a poorer class than the average Britisher that comes from Leeds and Manchester? A. These might not be British; these are all foreigners that came from London and Leeds and Manchester.

4679 When I say foreigners, I mean foreign to England; they were what we call aliens in England.

Q. Then this examination that you had by the physician there was as much for your benefit as it was for the benefit of the United States Government, was it not? A. Just as much, because we did not want to carry people over who were likely to be deported.

Q. And who would be taken back at your own expense? A. Yes, as I said this morning; I think we have an excellent reputation at Ellis Island and are always anxious never to do anything to put a black mark against us. I think we go in for far more extensive weeding out though, than anybody else.

4680 By Mr. Spooner:

Q. Then a part of your testimony is to the effect that a war of rates, the demoralization of rates has an effect upon the quality of the emigrants that come over? A. Yes, that is; the likely or commercial class of passengers at once falls down.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. But your carryings were appreciably increased during those years, weren't they, at the lower rates? A. Our carryings in 1904 in the rate war, I don't think they were very much more than what it would have been in an ordinary year; our receipts, of course, were enormously less.

Q. Hasn't it been your experience that at the lower price a great many more emigrants travel than at the higher price? A. I might say that is true, but you cannot carry any more than your tonnage will accommodate.

Q. Isn't that shown by the fact of the arrangement in the Agreement A. A., whereby those plus in the pool, shall increase their rates in order to bring them down to their proper proportions; that is shown by 4682 that rule, isn't it? A. I think I know what you want. At the time of the rate war, with the low rate, you did encourge a lower class of people to travel, but under Agreement A. A., where you have different rates, it doesn't say, because a line advances its rate, that the passengers who are coming at the old rate are undesirable, or as undesirable as they are in time of a rate war.

Q. No, I don't mean that; what I meant was the high rate would have a tendency to retard the steerage passengers from coming in such great numbers? A. That has not been our experience.

Q. Isn't that the theory of that arrangement in the pool, that certain lines who are plus in the pool 4683 shall increase the rates? A. It certainly should.

Q. And other lines who are minus in the pool should decrease? A. On the face of it, it should have that effect, but you have a strange situation; in fact our most attractive third-class ships are our highest rated third-class ships.

Q. What ships are you referring to there? A. The Lusitania and Mauretania.

Q. Those ships are in a class by themselves, are they not? A. In speeding, but not in third-class accommodation.

4684 Sidney John Lister

Q. So that a person who is in a hurry to get to the United States or return from it, would naturally take those boats, would he not? A. Very probably.

Q. But, take the average boat, with the average experience under the plus and minus rule of the pool you have found, have you not, that a high rate will prevent certain people from travelling and a low rate will attract the people to travel? A. I don't think we have noticed it to any great extent, and further, I don't think we noticed any change in the passengers when we have what you might say, a stable rate, an ordinary rate of $30, as compared with a rate of $40.

4685

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. You mean, you don't see any change in the number, only in the quality? A. Only in the quality.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. You remember I showed you this afternoon that letter of Secretary Peters where you refused to lower your rate on account of your position in the pool? A. That was from America.

Q. That was because you were at that time plus in the pool? A. In our Fiume Pool.

Q. And you felt at that time that because you were 4686 plus in the pool you would continue to be, if I may use the term, more plus in the pool if you lowered your rates, did you not? A. Yes, because the passengers we were carrying in those particular boats were ones that would be more influenced by the fluctuation of rates that the average passengers we carried in our other steamers.

By Mr. Beers:

Q. During the rate war of 1904, did the physicians of the Cunard Company, in Liverpool, turn back a greater percentage of those applying for passage than usual? A. Yes, they did.

Q. For physical reasons? A. For physical reasons. 4687

Q. And is it not a fact that under the British Shipping Act you reject an applicant for passage at your peril? A. At our peril.

Q. And if you reject a person whom you ought to accept you are subject to action? A. I can give you an instance where we rejected a passenger for trachoma, because our doctors told us that the passenger had trachoma, and that passenger brought an action against us. They are not confined to the Merchants' Shipping Act, they can go against us at common law. The passenger brought an action and that cost us one hundred fifty pounds, simply because we would not inflict on the United States a passenger whom we knew had trachoma. We reject a man because he is disabled, and he at once claims against us. If we prevent him from earning his living in America, where he is not supposed to have any work to get to, he at once proceeds against us and the British Law hits us again. We have had cases of that kind. 4688

Q. From your experience in the passenger business on the North Atlantic, Mr. Lister, what, in your opinion, would be the condition of that business, if all the agreements between the passenger lines were prohibited? A. My opinion would be, sir, that the whole of the business would at once become demoralized; that every line who would be free from what we might say a self governing influence, an influence which tends to the good of the business, would be entirely free to book anything it could, at any rate it could, and run any risks that it liked of a passenger being taken into the United States; it would try and, naturally, be apt to do its business in a very—well, one might say, undesirable fashion. 4689

Q. Would such a condition, in your judgment, lead to losses which would result in the retirement of some 4690 lines? A. I think it would. You would find that the lines, if there were no agreements, for a time would try and keep a fairly average rate for the carriage of their passengers, but if one line saw then that it was not getting its passengers against another line it would naturally tend to reduce rates and then the battle would be to the strongest, of course.

Q. What relation or analogy would there be, in your opinion, between the arrangement embodied in Agreement AA and such a control as any government might maintain over its own carriers within its own borders? A. The thing is very similar I think you 4691 might say. There is no government on the ocean, but there are steamship companies, so they try to devise some rules for carrying on their own business, and to control the conditions of traffic, just the same as any country tries to devise some laws for the conduct of its passengers, and the conduct of traffic on shore, on its own land.

Q. That is, it is local self-government on the sea? A. It is practically local self-government on the sea.

Q. In the absence of any other kind of government? A. In the absence of any other kind of government.

Q. From your experience, do you think that the 4692 maintenance of stable passenger rates on the North Atlantic is as important to the public as it is to the steamship lines? A. I think it is every bit as important.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. What do you mean by the answer which you made to Mr. Beers that the business would be demoralized; do you mean by that that every line would be out after all the business that it could obtain? A. No, sir I don't mean that altogether. I mean it would ignore all conditions covering agents, which is a very essential thing. If you lose your agents' organization you will get agents who are not of very high repute, offering you passengers whom you are not sure they understand will be admitted to the United States; and I said in answer to the lawyer, that while each line would endeavor to maintain an average rate there would be nothing controlling that average rate and naturally when one saw that its business was diminishing that line would at once commence to reduce, and when they commenced to reduce probably others would follow, with the result that without an agreement certain of those lines which had been very estimable lines before, might be entirely hounded out of the business.

4693

4694

Q. And it would be then the survival of the fittest, is what you mean? A. The survival of the fittest, yes.

Q. And you mean to state when you say that the agency proposition would be at sixes and sevens that the agents are somewhat human and would get as much out of you as they could? A. Yes, and out of the passengers. Probably if we reduced the rate the passenger would never know what he is going to get, and we know of cases where we told the agents the rate was four pounds or five pounds and he never told the passenger the rate, and probably closed a pound or two more for himself over that. The average passenger that come at the demoralization rate time is rather a more stupid passenger than at ordinary times, and he does not know that some of these passenger agents, what we say in England, would rook him every way they could.

4695

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. You would have no way to prevent it? A. There would be no way that we could know it.

4696 By Mr. Guiler:

Q. But every line, then, irrespective of other lines, would be out for all the business it could get? A. They would be out for the business in exactly the same way they are out for it now. We are all out to get as much as we can, but there would be no agreement, there would be no controlling interest or influence; the rates would be maintained at just barely a probably paying figure for a time and then, as I said, they would drop and drop until the business was probably left in the hands of one or two, if they went on long 4697 enough. That would be the final result. Instead of having perhaps a dozen lines catering for the business you might get only two or three.

Q. But might it not be possible that the two or three lines you speak of would have enough ships to take care of that business? A. Yes, but if there was no money to run the ships there would be no use of having the ships.

Q. But assuming the others were out of it, those two or three lines could take care of the business? A. I don't think they could. They could take care of all they could carry, but not all that would want to go, I think.

4698 Q. Don't you think they would be able to take care of it? A. I cannot answer that point; I don't know; it all depends on how many people are going across to America or any other country.

Q. We are only predicting here, and I am trying to get the benefit of your prediction? A. I expect they would build right away or buy for next to nothing the ships of the other people, which they could not operate.

Q. I want to know, Mr. Lister, if the two or three lines which were left and which proved themselves the fittest amongst all the lines, whether in your opinion they could not take care of the business which those other lines, and they, had been previously taking care of? A. I don't think they could. I think what would follow, they would, the two or three that were running, would throw their chances together, or they would build new tonnage at once, or buy up the old tonnage that the others could not operate, because there would be a lot of tonnage there floating about, doing nothing.

4699

Q. They would naturally, would they not, take up all the tonnage which would supply the demands of emigrants, made upon them? A. Yes, they would and let the other go.

4700

Q. And then the supply would be equal to the demand? A. Then we would have lost in the carriage of the passengers, and several of the companies that would possibly have had just as much right to be there as the others, that would be the result of no agreement.

By Mr. Beers:

Q. And in the event, Mr. Lister, that by process of elimination, the process of elimination that you have just been discussing, in the event of the lines in the passenger business in the North Atlantic being reduced to two or three, the business combining to increase the rate, the rate would be increased? A. Naturally, you would have it all in your own hands practically.

4701

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. In your opinion, Mr. Lister, the two or three lines that were left would be in competition against each other, wouldn't they? A. I think after you had such a serious situation as we have just been illustrating, I think you would find the opposition would be very much in love with each other.

4702 Sidney John Lister

Q. They would form another pool? A. They may not form another pool; they would still be in competition with each other, but they would endeavor to get back to the state of reasonable lines that they had been in before.

Q. That would mean another AA. in your opinion, wouldn't it? A. I have already admitted that I am a believer in pools.

Hearing adjourned until Monday, November 25th, 1912, at 11 o'clock A. M.

4703

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Petitioner, against HAMBURG - AMERIKANISCHE-PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT, and Others, Defendants.	Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

4704

New York, November 25th, 1912.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq.; Henry A. Guiler, Esq.; for the Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher; by Charles C. Burlingham, Esq.; for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

4705

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq.; for Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers., Esq., and Allan B. A. Bradley Esq.; for the Cunard Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq.; for the Russian East Asiatic Company., et al.

HANS HERMAN KELLERMANN, sworn on behalf of the defense testified as follows:

Direct-examination by Mr. Beers:

4706 Q. Where do you reside Mr. Kellermann? A. Montclair, New Jersey.

Q. Are you connected with the Cunard Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what capacity? A. I am Manager of the Steerage Department, Third Class Department.

Q. In New York? A. New York.

Q. How long have you been connected with the Cunard Company? A. For about thirteen years.

Q. And in what capacity during that time? A. All the time as manager of the Third Class Department.

Q. How long have you been in the steamship business? A. About twenty-four years.

4707 Q. And where? A. In New York, with the Allan Line and Cunard Line.

Q. Did you state what lines, other than the Cunard, you have been connected with? A. Yes, the Allan Line.

Q. In what capacity were you connected with the Allan Line? A. Passenger manager.

Q. Where did the ships of the Allan Line Company run when you were connected with them? A. Between New York and Glasgow.

Q. Did those ships carry passengers? A. Oh, yes all of them.

4708 Q. Please state whether your duties for the Cunard Line have had to do with examining the conditions of the third-class passenger service, and if so, state what your duties have been, and what you have done so far as concern steamships of the Cunard Company? A. Well, my duties as manager of the department are to follow the accommodations of the ship, the booking of the passengers, and to see that everything is in proper shape. I make it a rule to board ships every once in a while, and to go over their accommodations; and in the office my business is to book the passengers and see that they get their proper tickets, baggage tags 4709 and so forth, ready to go on the ship.

Q. Do you meet the ships of the Cunard Company when they arrive? A. At times; not always, but most of the time.

Q. Do you go to the dock when the ships are leaving? A. Always.

Q. Are you familiar with the service of the Cunard Company at the present time so far as third-class passengers are concerned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Please state whether you are familiar with the conditions of the third-class passenger service from New York to Europe, say, twenty years ago? A. Yes, sir. At that time I was with the Allan Line.

4710 Q. Did your duties then require you to make yourself familiar with those conditions? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you familiar with the third-class—were you familiar with the conditions of the service for third-class passengers on the Cunard ships about twenty years ago? A. No, sir, not directly but all lines have pretty nearly the same arrangement, and I am familiar with those of the other lines in a general way; also, of course, with those of the Cunard Line at that time.

Q. Can you state from your experience whether or not passenger lines have followed one another in respect to improvements in the conditions of the third-class service? A. Yes, sir, more or less.

Q. Well, can you state that you are familiar with the conditions of third-class passenger service to New York, twenty years ago, in a general way, as to the ships of most of the lines? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, going back to the conditions of, say, twenty years ago, what were the arrangements of the passenger lines running to this port in respect to the sleeping accommodations for third-class passengers; please describe them fully? A. Well, about twenty years ago was when a signal improvement took place in all of the lines. Just previous to that steerage passengers were accommodated in big, open compartments, fitted with bunks, three or four tiers high, five or six berths wide so that in many cases people occupying the inner berth had to crawl over the outer berth to get into their bunks. And the bedding, and eating utensils had to be provided by the passenger himself at his own expense, 4712

Q. What do you mean by bedding? How much had the third-class passengers, say, twenty-three or twenty-four years ago to provide? Just back of the time when you say there was a decided change? A. They had to provide their bedding, mattress, pillow, and whatever covering they wanted, and their eating utensils, which at that time were generally tin cans and tin pots; knives and forks, such things, whatever they needed. 4713

Q. These bunks that you have referred to, as being used at that time—how many of them were there in a single compartment as a general thing? A. Why, that was different according to the size of the compartment but it runs all the way up to two or three hundred in a big compartment.

Q. At the time of which you are testifying who took charge of the bedding in the bunks? A. Why, the passenger himself took charge of it. He brought it on board and took it from board, if he wanted it, or threw it overboard if he didn't want it. He had to care for it on the voyage, and in fact, it was all left in his charge. He had all to do with it.

Q. Do I understand you to testify that when these bunks were arranged several side by side, so that the person who had the inner bunk had to crawl over those on the outside? A. Yes.

Q. Describe the present arrangement as to sleeping accommodations in the better class of passenger ships 4715 running to this port, Mr. Kellermann? A. In the better ships nowadays, the third-class accommodations are arranged into rooms containing two, four and six berths. The mattress, pillows, blankets, whatever necessary, are furnished by the company, free of charge, to the passenger, and in each room there is, besides a washstand, a can of water to wash in, water carafe, glasses.

Q. That is for drinking water? A. Yes. A towel and a settee; they can sit down on it when they are undressing or dressing, and each room can be locked; there is a key for each room and it can be locked to secure privacy. Besides this there is on the modern steamers a shower bath—

4716 Q. Confine your testimony, please, to sleeping accommodations for the present. A. Oh—

Q. Under the condition which now prevail, who takes care of these separate rooms to which you testified? A. Stewards and stewardesses.

Q. Are stewards and stewardesses provided for the third-class passengers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In any considerable number? A. Yes, large numbers.

Q. Were such stewards and stewardesses provided, if you know, say, twenty-three or twenty-four years ago? A. No, sir.

4717

Q. Who keeps these rooms clean and attends to them? A. The stewards' department.

Q. Is that the same general system which is pursued in the first and second cabin? A. Just the same, yes.

Q. Except that the furnishings are different? A. Yes.

Q. What bedding is furnished now on these steamers for the third-class passengers? A. A mattress, pillow, blankets. The mattresses are generally enclosed in ticking—heavy ticking, and the filling is excelsior or sea grass. Besides they have blankets, warm woolen blankets are furnished.

4718

Q. Will you state what system was pursued from twenty to twenty-three or twenty-four years ago, with respect to giving third-class passengers their food on the passenger ships, coming to this port? A. In those days the food was brought into each compartment by a steward, who called the passengers around him with their utensils, and he measured out whatever stuff they wanted from a big receptacle, a can, tin can or iron can, and dealt it out to each passenger, and had a basket or—yes, a big basket of bread and gave them a couple of slices of bread and let them go about their business, and after one was through the next was the same thing.

4719

Q. Did the steamship companies then furnish any utensils for the passenger too— A. No, sir; the passenger had to bring his own utensils.

Q. And do I understand that the passengers received this food in their own utensils? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where could they then go to eat it? A. They had to go and sit down wherever they could; some sat down on their bunks, some on their trunks; different places; stairways; wherever they could find a place to sit down and eat.

4720 Q. Was there any cabin furnished to them to use as a dining room? A. No, sir. They had to eat it in the open compartment.

Q. In those days did the company keep the passengers' utensils clean? A. No, sir; each passenger had to keep his own clean.

Q. Please describe the present conditions prevailing in the better ships, running to this port, in connection with the meals for passengers? A. The better ships nowadays have big dining rooms fitted with long or smaller tables, and with revolving chairs. The tables are set by the stewards with—4721 Q. The company's stewards? A. The company's stewards; and the passengers sit down at the tables and are served there by the company's stewards.

Q. So far as the arrangement of tables and chairs is concerned, that is the same arrangement that prevails in the first and second cabin? A. Practically the same.

Q. How are the cooking utensils provided at the present time? A. They are provided by the company; taken care of by the stewards' department.

Q. How are the meals served? A. Served by the steward at the tables.

Q. Are the third-class passengers required in any 4722 way to work on those? A. No.

Q. No more than the first and second cabin? A. No, sir.

Q. Are any special arrangements made in the better class of passenger ships coming to this port for the comfort and amusement of the third-class passengers? A. Yes.

Q. Please describe then? A. They have, for instance, in the dining room a piano, which they use for concert and entertainment during the afternoon and evening when they are not using the dining room for eating purposes. They have smoking rooms for the men and social rooms for the women folk, large open and closed promenade decks, with settees and benches along, where the passengers can either sit down or promenade as they desire. Besides that for the passenger's comfort are shower baths, hot and cold water baths, lavatories built according to the latest sanitary improvements, with running water. Some of them are fixed so that when the door opens the water flushes.

Q. In what respect do those arrangements as to lavatories differ from the arrangements as they existed, say, twenty-three or twenty-four years ago? A. 4724
In those days they had on the side of the ship a wooden box with three or four or five holes. In fact they had no privacy.

Q. Do I understand that there are now separate and private toilet arrangements? A. Yes; the same as in buildings.

Q. Please state whether these third-class toilet arrangements now differ in any material respect from those furnished for first and second cabin? A. Only in the elaborateness of the fittings.

Q. But as to arrangement? A. But as to arrangement it is just the same. I may also mention there is a wash room where women with children on board, can go and wash the children's clothes whenever they 4725 want to.

Q. Was there any such wash room twenty or twenty-five years ago? A. Oh, no, no, sir. There are also other wash rooms distributed around the ship where the passengers at any time during the day or night can go and clean themselves whenever they want to.

Q. Have you stated what deck space is now allowed for third-class passengers on the better ships, running to this port? A. As I stated before, there is open and closed deck space, and the deck is fitted with settees and benches so that the passengers can either sit down or promenade as they wish.

Q. The closed deck they use in bad weather? A. The closed deck they use in bad weather, yes, and the open deck in good weather.

Q. You have testified, as I understand, that there are smoking rooms for the men of third cabin? A. Yes.

Q. And what arrangements are there for the women? A. Social rooms for the women, where they can sit and sew, converse, read and write; whatever they feel like.

4727 Q. Do you know whether the third-class dining cabins of the Cunard ships are now extensively used for social purposes? A. In the afternoon and evening, yes. They get together to concerts and entertainments of various kinds in the dining saloon.

Q. Can you state what changes have been made in respect to the food furnished for third-class passengers, as between twenty years ago and the present time? In a general way, what changes? A. Yes, in a general way, I can state that twenty years ago passengers received, for instance, it was set out in the way I described before, and that settled it.

Q. And do I understand that that was brought in 4728 some general receptacle and ladeled out to the passengers? A. Yes.

Q. Go on? A. Whereas, at the present time the passengers are served from the bill of fare. They can pick out whatever they want, two or three courses, be served in the cabin; the stewards ask them what they want, the same as in any ordinary restaurant, and it is brought to them by the steward.

Q. Have you at my request produced the bills of fare in the third cabin for one of the Cunard ships for a week during the past year? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you produce those bills of fare? A. Yes (producing).

Q. On what ship? A. On the Laconia.

Q. Were these bills of fare which you have produced actually used on the ship whose name appears at the head of the bill of fare? A. Yes.

Q. What ship is that? A. The Laconia.

Q. For what days—on what days were those various bills of fare used? A. On Sunday, January 21st, Monday, January 22nd, Tuesday, January 23rd, Wednesday, January 24th, Thursday, January 25th, Friday, January 26th, and Saturday, the 27th of January. 4730

Q. What year? A. 1912; also Monday, January 29th. They are printed in two different languages.

Q. One of these is printed in English, is it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what language is the other printed? A. Swedish.

Q. Can you read Swedish? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you examined these bills of fare that you produce? Have you read them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But do these bills of fare represent the food generally served to third-class passengers of the Cunard Company at the present time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is, are these typical bills of fare? A. These are typical, yes. 4731

Mr. Guiler: This is all objectionable, Mr. Beers.

Mr. Beers: You mean leading?

Mr. Guiler: No, I think the whole subject is objectionable. He has not made this trip and eaten the food and so forth.

Mr. Beers: I offer as model exhibits, bills of fare used in the third cabin of the Cunard Ship Laconia on Sunday, January 21, 1912—4732 Mr. Guiler: These all are in under my objection.

Mr. Beers: I understand. Monday, January 22nd, 1912; Tuesday, January 23rd, 1912; Wednesday, January 24th, 1912; Thursday, January 25th, 1912; Friday, January 26th; Saturday, January 27th; Sunday, January 28th; and Monday, January 29th.

Marked Defendants' Exhibits 7 to 15 inclusive.

4733 Mr. Guiler: I want to object on the ground that the witness was not present when these bills of fare were used and does not know of his own knowledge that they were used.

Q. Did you obtain these bills of fare, Exhibits 7 to 15 at my request? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you get them? A. I asked the chief steward to bring up a set of bills of fare he used during the trip, and he sent these to me.

Q. Do you know where these bills of fare used on the third cabin of the Cunard ships are printed? A. On board the ship, by the ship's printer.

Q. In the case of each of these bills of fare marked 7 to 15 do you produce a counterpart of the bill of fare 4734 for the same day printed in Swedish? A. There is one more of them than there are of the others. These do not give the date, simply the days; Monday, Tuesday and so on.

Q. Can you state from your own knowledge from what stores on board the Cunard ships the food is taken which is served in the third cabin? A. From general stores, where all the food is taken from.

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. You were not familiar, were you Mr. Kellermann, with the Cunard Line boats of twenty years ago, were you? A. No, sir; except in a general way.

Q. Except from information you received from others? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You did not go aboard the boats or anything of that sort, did you? A. No.

Q. To find out these facts to which you have been testifying? A. Occasionally I went on board a ship, not for any purpose of that kind.

Q. What you have been testifying to about twenty years ago is taken from your knowledge then of the Allan Line ships? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in general were not the Allan Line ships 4736 inferior to the Cunard ships, even twenty years ago? A. No, sir.

Q. They were not? A. No, sir; they were smaller, but they were not inferior in accommodations.

Q. Wasn't there less room for each passenger than there would be on the Cunard Line? A. No; they simply did not carry as many.

Q. Then your knowledge in regard to the Cunard Line is general, general information, that is, up to the time you became associated with the Cunard Line? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever take a trip abroad in the steerage on the Allan Line to see what the conditions were there? A. No, sir. 4737

Q. Did you ever travel abroad in the Allan Line steamers? A. No, sir.

Q. To know the conditions there? A. No, sir.

Q. So these conditions that you are referring to now are what you have seen when the boat came into the dock? A. Yes, and when she left it.

Q. The various boats that came into the dock in New York? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the same thing applies to the Cunard Line, does it? A. No, sir.

4738 Hans Herman Kellermann

Q. You have travelled steerage in the Cunard Line? A. No, I have not travelled in the steerage, but I have travelled on ships several times crossing over and had occasion to know the steerage accommodations.

Q. About how many times did you go down to the steerage while on board to know the condition of them? A. About once or twice a day.

Q. When was that that you took the trip abroad, or your trips abroad? A. The first time was in 1904, the second time 1907 and I believe in 1908 or 1909; I am not quite sure about the last trips.

4739 Q. That is all the practical experience that you have had with the steerage passengers, is it not? A. No, sir. I handle them continuously with the ships coming in and out.

Q. You handle them when they leave here and when they arrive here? A. Yes.

Q. In New York? A. Yes.

Q. But as to conditions while they are on board and are outside the Port of New York, or the Port of Liverpool or Glasgow, or wherever they were, you have not handled them except as you have testified to? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On your trips abroad? A. Yes, that is right.

4740 Q. Can you tell me, Mr. Kellermann, what were the average rates for third-class passengers twenty years ago on the Allan Line? A. No, I am not in a position to say that without reference to the record.

Q. You couldn't say that? A. No.

Q. Do you remember any of the rates while you were in the service of the Allan Line? A. No, I do not.

Q. You could not say whether they are more or less than the rates at the present time for third-class passengers? A. No, sir; I do not recollect.

Q. Then your connection with the Cunard Line dates from about 1899, does it not? A. 1899; yes, sir.

Q. Can you tell me whether the rates for third-class passengers differed from 1899 to the present time on the Cunard Line? A. They differed somewhat, but I could not tell you the exact difference.

Q. You could not tell me that? A. Not without reference—

Q. You have not followed that, have you? A. Not without reference to the record; no, sir.

Q. You cannot say whether they are more or less now then they were then? A. No, sir.

4742

Q. But hasn't it been the general experience, Mr. Kellermann that where a line provides somewhat superior accommodations that the general public will be attracted to travel by that line? A. Yes, I should say it is natural.

Q. And then you would say it would be an advantage to the steamship company to have such superior accommodations for the third-class passengers? A. Surely.

Q. And that the chances are that the company will be preferred beyond others? A. Yes.

Q. Providing all the rest being equal, of course? A. Yes.

4743

Q. And sometimes even if the rates were higher they would prefer to travel on the boats provided with better accommodations rather than the ones that did not? A. That may be the case.

Q. You have stated here that the facilities for third-class passengers with regard to cabin accommodations, meals, and so forth, are practically the same as the second cabin passengers; now, do you know whether the rates—

Mr. Beers: Has he so stated?

Mr. Guiler: I understood so. He said practically the same as the second-class.

4744

Mr. Beers: I asked Mr. Kellermann, as will appear by the testimony, as to certain particulars, whether the arrangement was the same, that is, the arrangement of tables and revolving chairs and those things.

Mr. Guiler: Didn't I say that?

Mr. Beers: No, I think not.

Q. (Question read.)

Mr. Bullowa: You had better take out the word "practically."

Mr. Guiler: No, I like that word. That is a 4745 good word.

Q. I understood you to say that, isn't that so? A. No.

Q. State what you meant? A. I meant the arrangement, the arrangement in a general way of rooms and dining rooms and so forth.

Q. And chairs? A. And chairs. But I did not want to intimate that that was the same as the second cabin.

Q. Did you mean they had as much comfort in the third cabin as they would have in the second cabin? A. No, sir; by no means.

4746 Q. How did the chairs and tables and existing accommodations in general compare with the second cabin? A. In the second cabin, for instance, there are upholstered chairs, some upholstered with leather and some with velvet or plush, and different style of a chair, and possibly more comfortable than the third class chair, which is either wooden or cane seated.

Q. All you meant then in regard to the accommodations was that the arrangement is much the same? A. Yes.

Q. Although the actual tables, chairs and so forth are not quite so fancy? A. Not at all.

Q. Isn't it a fact, that at times the third class rate has so approached the second-class rate that it became a serious question with the lines as to whether they would not increase the second-class rate because the third-class rate had been agreed to be increased? A. I am not qualified to answer that question; I don't know anything about the second cabin rates.

Q. You don't know whether the second cabin rates at one time or other for, we will say the last ten or fifteen years, approached so closely that they are almost equal? A. Not that I recollect, sir.

Q. You would not say that it did not occur? A. 4748
Yes—well, I prefer not to answer that question because I don't know from actual knowledge.

Q. But, at any rate, you would not say that that did not occur? A. I could not say whether it occurred or did not occur when I don't know anything about it.

Q. You don't know? A. No, sir; I don't know.

Q. Has it been your experience, Mr. Kellermann, that the passengers of the third-class care much about whether they have bathing apparatus or not while they are on board the boat? A. Oh, yes; quite some people like their bathing arrangement.

Q. Have you inspected that part of it closely to know whether the third-class passengers in general take a bath or whether they do not? A. I have not, except 4749 from reports of the steward's department on board ship, and I may mention that the passengers at times make such reports to me in the office.

Q. Then you are only speaking from reports and from isolated instances where a passenger had spoken to you? A. Yes, and through the reports of the steward.

Q. Your statement then, practically comes to this, Mr. Kellermann; that in the last twenty years there has been a general improvement in the third class accommodations for passengers, is that the idea? A. yes, sir.

4750 Q. That about sums up in your experience your testimony here, does it? A. Yes, sir.

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION by Mr. Beers:

Q. Mr. Kellermann, have you understood that questions I have asked you in reference to third-class passengers have related to the passengers who travelled on the cheapest possible basis to themselves? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that they are related to what is called steerage in some ships and in others the third cabin? A.
4751 Yes, sir.

Q. That has been your understanding, has it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And does your testimony apply to those passengers while travelling in that cheapest way? A. Yes, sir.

RE-CROSS EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. Just one question I would like to ask you: You have testified, Mr. Kellermann, in regard to the food and meat and so forth, being supplied to these passengers from a large tureen? A. No, rather a bucket.

4752 Q. And I want to ask you whether the lines, the Allan Line and the Cunard Line, in your experience has furnished in the past years the passenger with wholesome or unwholesome food, or whether it was any more unwholesome served from the tureen as it is today? A. I don't know as I can answer that question, because I don't know. Even if I did know at that time I wouldn't know it now how unwholesome it was then

Q. You don't know whether it was as wholesome then as it is now? A. No, sir; I couldn't tell you that.

4753

By Mr. Beers:

Q. Mr. Kellermann, Mr. Guiler has asked you in reference to food which years ago was served in these ships from tureens. Will you describe the receptacle from which the food was served to these cabin passengers, say, twenty or twenty-five years ago? A. Well, I can best describe it by calling it an ash can; it was exactly the shape of the present tin ash cans; a round receptacle.

By Mr. Guiler:

4754

Q. That wasn't the same can that was used for ashes, was it? A. No; of course it wasn't.

Q. It was solely used for food, isn't that so? A. It was solely used for food, yes.

Hearing adjourned to Wednesday, November 27th. 1912, at 11:00 o'clock A. M.

Last Petitioner's Exhibit 1916.

Last Defendants' Exhibit 15.

4755

4756 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Petitioner, against HAMBURG-AMERIKANSCHE- PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESSELLSCHAFT and others, Defendants.	Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

4757

New York, November 27, 1912.

Met pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Guiler: Senator Spooner advises me that he will not be able to go on today inasmuch as he has not been able to get the witnesses he expected, but that he will go on Monday at 11 o'clock and thereafter, if possible, until he finishes with his witnesses.

Mr. Bullowa: I want to note on the record that I will not be able to go on on Wednesday, December 4th. 1912.

Hearing adjourned until Monday, December 2, 1912, at 11 o'clock A. M.

4758

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 4759

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG - AMERICANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT, and Others, Defendants.

4760

Before Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, December 2nd, 1912.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise., Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles C. Burlingham, Esq., and Charles Burlingham, for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for the Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

4761

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton, by J. C. Spooner, Esq., for the Allan Line, et al.

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers, Esq., and Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for the Russian East Asiatic Company, et al.

4762 Robert Kerr

ROBERT KERR, called on behalf of the defendants, testified as follows:

Direct-examination by Mr. Spooner:

Mr. Kerr, where do you reside? A. At the present I reside in Toronto, Canada.

Q. Can you state whether or not you have been some years connected with the Canadian Pacific Railway; if so in what capacity? A. Up to September 30, 1910, I was twenty-six years in the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. The last eleven years as Passenger Traffic Manager of the system.

4763 Q. You still have certain affairs of theirs then within your supervision? A. Yes, look after certain things that they give me to do once in a while.

Q. So you are still connected with them? A. Yes, still connected—although retired from active service.

Q. When did the Canadian Pacific Railway go into the Atlantic Steamship business? A. 1903.

Q. To what extent did they go into it? A. In that year they purchased fifteen ships from the Elder Dempster Co.—their Atlantic fleet.

Q. It has, from time to time, added to its fleet on the Atlantic? A. Well, they have built two new ships, the Empress of Britain and the Empress of 4764 Ireland; two large and fine ships and they lost one and one they transferred over to the Pacific service. That is running on the Pacific between Vancouver and Yokahama and Hong Kong, so that today they still maintain a fleet of fifteen ships on the Atlantic.

Q. What is the mileage of the Canadian Pacific Railway? A. Between eleven and twelve thousand miles. It is increasing all the time. It is hard to say at any moment how many miles they have got but they are close up to twelve thousand miles now. We will exceed that next year.

4765

Q. Will you please state what lines they operate in the United States—I don't mean the railway companies they control by ownership of stock, which operate in the United States, but lines of railway operated by the Canadian Pacific in the United States? A. Well, there is about one hundred ninety-seven miles of road, chiefly little spurs, running into points in the United States. In Maine from the international boundary to Matteawamkeag, one hundred and forty-four and one-half miles, then from the international boundary to Houlton, three miles. I might say the first is the international boundary between Quebec and Maine. Houlton is in Maine and from the international boundary line between New Brunswick and Houlton, is three miles. Presque Isle from the international boundary line, between New Brunswick and Maine, the distance is twenty-nine and two-tenths miles. Then in Vermont, from the international boundary line between Vermont and Quebec to North Troy, seventy-two one hundredths, nearly three-quarters of a mile.

4766

Q. Seventy-two one hundredths of a mile? A. Seventy-two one-hundredths of a mile. The Richford Newport district, in Vermont, twenty-one miles. The whole mileage figures up one hundred and ninety-seven and seventy-nine one hundredths.

4767

Q. That comprises all of the railway operated within the territorial limits of the United States by the Canadian Pacific Railway? A. Direct, yes.

Q. The steamship department of the railroad company is entirely distinct from the railway? A. Yes, they are operated under separate management and by a separate staff although presided over, of course, by the vice president, who is in charge of all the traffic matters and a passenger traffic manager who has also charge of, but aside from that the steamship lines have 4768 their own officials, their own offices and officers to look after their business apart from the railroad.

Q. Are you able to give the proportionate steerage passengers travelling from the United States to Canada on the lines of railway operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway? A. Travelling, you mean settlers coming out of the United States into Canada?

Q. Yes? A. I have not got the figures here, sir.

Q. Nor have you the proportion of Canadian Pacific Railway passengers travelling from the United States to Canada on lines of railway of their company—I don't know, but thought you gave such testimony? A. Well, I understood at the time, that it was the proportion of business to and from the Atlantic service—to and from the United States the proportion that were carried by the Canadian Pacific and the proportions that were allotted to other railway lines to carry.

4769

Q. That is, from the United States into Canada, through Canadian ports? A. Through Canada and from Canadian ports to the United States. The proportion of steerage passengers travelling from the United States to Canada or through Canada on lines of railway operated by the Canadian Pacific railway was eighty-five per cent and on other railways fifteen per cent.

4770

Q. What port do the steamships of the Canadian Pacific Railway ply between. What Canadian ports and other ports? A. Montreal, Quebec, St. Johns, New Brunswick, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Q. I am speaking now of the Atlantic? A. To Liverpool and London.

Q. Do the steamships of the Canadian Pacific Railway go into or sail from any port of the United States? A. No, sir.

4771

Q. You are familiar with this contract between certain steamship companies, Atlantic Steamship Companies, the "AA" agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The Canadian Pacific at one time was a member of that, party to that agreement? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember about the time of that? A. Well, we acted with the conference in about 1904. Of course this so-called pool was not formed until 1908.

Q. Well, did you become a member of the pool—party to the pool? A. Yes, sir, in 1908.

Q. Eastbound and westbound? A. No, only eastbound. 4772

Q. Is your company in any way connected with it now? A. No, sir.

Q. Neither westbound nor eastbound? A. No, sir.

Q. Never was westbound? A. Never was.

Q. When did it cease to be a party to it—eastbound? A. March 1st, 1911.

Q. When was the notice given under which you withdrew? A. We gave notice on November 26th, 1910; we were bound to give three months' notice.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. Have you a copy of that notice?

4773

Mr. Spooner: I think the notice was given in Europe.

Mr. Guiler: You have not got a copy of it here?

The Witness: I have got a copy but it is not signed.

Mr. Spooner: Have you a copy?

The Witness: I have not got it here. It is up at the hotel. It was sent to me as a copy by our European manager in London. It is a notice giving notice under Article 22.

Mr. Spooner: I understand that you did not require us to produce—you say 22, that relates to fighting ships, doesn't it?

4774

The Witness: That is true, yes. We gave notice of withdrawal from the pool November 26th, 1910, and it became effective on the 1st of March, 1911, and since which time we have not participated in any way in the pool.

Mr. Spooner: Well, you are in a position to state whether since March 1, 1911, you have participated at all in the agreement "AA."

The Witness: No, not at all in the pool.

Q. Neither carrying a proportion of its burdens nor participating in its benefits, if there were any? A. No.

4775

Q. That you know? A. Yes, that I know by information, of course, given to me.

Q. From officials' accounts and all that? A. Yes.

Q. You had charge of the business in this country? A. Yes.

Q. Were you a party with the Canadian Pacific, a party to what is called the fighting ship agreement, commonly called the fighting ship arrangement? A. Yes.

Q. Did you furnish any ships? A. No.

Q. Under that agreement? A. We never furnished any fighting ships.

4776

Q. You never furnished any fighting ships? A. No.

Mr. Spooner: I offer in evidence circular letter: "Secretary's Office, Atlantic Conference, Jena, November 28th, 1910, G. No. 1066."

Marked Defendants' Exhibit 16.

Mr. Spooner: That is the notice that you referred to as having been given on the other side?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Spooner: That was to become effective February 28th, 1911?

The Witness: Yes. It terminated on that date. On March 1, we were all free.

Q. Is the fighting ship agreement considered to be covered by that word of "all subsidiary agreements"?

Mr. Guiler: I think so, yes.

The Witness: We gave notice of withdrawal on the 15th of June, 1910, participating in the fighting arrangement. "Competing" ship, I think they decided to call it and that notice became effective on the 15th of July, 1910.

Q. Since that time you have never participated? A. Since that time we have never participated in the 4778 competing ship arrangement.

Q. Was this action either in respect of the "AA" agreement or of the fighting ship agreement influenced at all by any acts of the government, do you know?

Mr. Guiler: I don't think that that ought to go in, Senator—let it go.

The Witness: In a way no. Of course, when we entered into that arrangement back in 1908 we knew we were not in any breach of any law of Canada, or Great Britain.

Mr. Guiler: I think he is not qualified to state that, Senator. 4779

Mr. Spooner: I think he is.

Mr. Guiler: He has not been shown to be an expert in the law in the United States or Great Britain. I think I will move to strike that question and answer out.

Mr. Spooner: Go ahead.

The Witness: We never dreamed that we would be in any breach of any law of the United States, not operating ships to and from ports in the United States in connection with this business.

4780

Mr. Guiler: I also move to strike that out.

The Witness (continuing): But when we found that the United States Government was not pleased over the arrangement, why that had an influence with us, of course, in cancelling this arrangement.

Mr. Spooner: I move to strike that out.

The Witness: Our other interests were too great to beat up against the United States Government on any of these questions. It is generally only necessary for us to know what they want for us to comply.

4781

Mr. Spooner: It is difficult somewhat, Mr. Guiler, to determine from the decisions just how far—I don't want you to think I am putting in something that I think is inadmissible, because I don't want to.

Mr. Guiler: I don't think this gentleman is qualified to talk about the laws of the United States or anywhere else. He is a passenger steamship man. Personally, I don't think his word will have much weight with the Court.

Mr. Spooner: Well, this is the moral question.

4782

Q. Now, Mr. Kerr, I wish you would state as fully as you can the method which is pursued when one sought to purchase in the Canadian Pacific, purchase a steamship ticket in the United States—railway ticket—for transportation on the Canadian Pacific in Montreal and Quebec? A. Take for example, Chicago, where we maintain a steamship and a railway office.

Q. Separate and distinct? A. The stands are separate but they are both in the same office.

Q. Yes. A. Same office room. A purchaser going in to buy third-class transportation from Chicago to London, England, would be told what the total cost would be from Chicago to London, England. Then if he chose to pay over the total money, the railway ticket would be secured for him, reading from Chicago to Montreal. A steamship ticket would be given to him, sold to him there in the office, reading from Montreal to Liverpool, England, and an order for his railway trip from Liverpool to London, England.

4783

Q. He would have three separate transportation tickets? A. Yes, sir.

Q. One by rail from Chicago to Montreal, direct, by steamship from Montreal to Liverpool and a con- 4784 tract with an English railway company for transportation by rail from Liverpool to London? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By what road would he be sent from Chicago to Montreal, over what Canadian Line. In other words what liberty is given him as to the choice of the road by rail? A. If he expressed a desire to travel by the Grand Trunk, say, for instance, a Grand Trunk ticket would be obtained for him. If he did not express any choice, he would be given a ticket over the Wabash & Canadian Pacific—Wabash to Detroit, C. P. R. to Montreal.

Q. The Grand Trunk was independent of the Cana- 4785
dian Pacific? A. Absolutely.

Q. Transportation by rail from Chicago to Detroit would be subject to the—would be under the advertised rates posted by the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would the Canadian Pacific Railway Company have any interest in that? A. None.

Q. None whatever? A. None.

Q. Derive any advantage from it? A. None.

Q. No more than if the passenger had gone over the Grand Trunk? A. West of Detroit, none whatever.

4786 Q. I mean between Chicago and Detroit? A. None whatever.

Q. So it would be immaterial to the Canadian Pacific which way so far as dollars and cents were concerned? A. So far as earning or monetary results, yes.

Q. The passenger is left free to choose his way, by way of Montreal or Quebec? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in Canada a passenger went over the Canadian Pacific Railway from Detroit? A. Detroit.

Mr. Spooner: I want to introduce in evi-

4787 dence—take out, if you please, the parts of it that are immaterial.

Q. What is that (handing witness paper)? A. This is a copy of the Canadian Railway Act, entitled, "An Act respecting railways."

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as immaterial, incompetent and irrelevant.

Mr. Spooner: It is very much like our Interstate Commerce Act. It requires railway companies to publish their rates, prohibit them from reducing the rate except on notice, and so forth?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

4788 Q. Do you know whether this is the latest one? A. It was sent to me by Mr. Creelman, General Counsel of the Canadian Pacific. That I take to be the latest. Mr. Creelman would not send—

Mr. Guiler: Do you want very much of it?

Mr. Spooner: I don't want to encumber the record; we will pick out anything you want.

Mr. Guiler: You introduce the whole thing for identification.

Mr. Spooner: I will introduce it subject to the selection of such portions of it as we agree to be material, or I will introduce it for identification and we will go over it in the meantime.

Marked Defendant's Exhibit No. 17, for identification.

Q. Then if the passenger goes either by the Wabash or by the Grand Trunk or any other railway to Detroit, the Canadian Pacific does not share in that? A. No, sir, nothing.

Q. Directly or indirectly? A. No, sir.

Q. That was of no consequence? A. No, sir.

Q. The passenger takes the ship, your ship, under 4790 the steamship contract at Quebec or Montreal? A Yes, sir, in the summer time.

Q. In the summer time, and in the winter time, where? A. St. Johns, New Brunswick or Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Q. That is because the ice is so you cannot get in? A. You cannot get up the St. Lawrence Gulf.

Q. Now, you carry passengers from some foreign ports to Canada to a point in the United States; what is that? A. They, starting from Britain?

Q. Yes, start from Britain? A. Well, he is sold a ticket from Liverpool

Q. Sold a ticket from London or any place he starts 4791 from? A. Well, of course a railway ticket will be procured for him or he can get it himself. He is sold a steamship ticket from Liverpool which lands him, we will say, in Montreal. Then he has an order —then he is also given an order for the railway ticket from Montreal or Quebec. I may say the passengers are compelled to land at Quebec, owing to the Canadian Inspection Law. All third-class passengers are landed in Quebec and there they are examined and they pass through the same process you have out here at Ellis Island, precisely. They are then given their 4792 tickets from Quebec—railway tickets—to whatever point in the United States or Canada they are bound for.

Q. Are they restrained in any way by the steamship company from selecting their own railway route from Quebec into the United States. If they want to go any particular way they can go? A. Oh, yes, if they express a desire.

Q. This order for the railway ticket leaves it open for them to choose the route? A. If they desire to go a particular way they are at liberty to do it. Us-4793 ually the incoming passenger does not know which way he is going. He has got to be guided and taken care of and nursed, just as you do here, we do in Quebec.

Q. Did you give me—I don't remember that you did—a statement of the steerage people whom you carry, distributed in Canada—proportion of those that come to the United States bear to the whole—all those you bring over to Canada come in in Canada? A. Well, we bring in about fifty thousand steerage passengers.

Q. In a year? A. In a year, of which about twelve per cent go to the United States and the balance go to 4794 Canada.

Q. Of course the rates charged by the Canadian Pacific over the routes which it operates—one hundred ninety-seven miles of railroad which it operates in the United States are subject to the—if this is intrastate, are subject to the intrastate rate. Of course the rate charged by the Canadian Pacific over the roads which they operate—one hundred ninety-seven miles of railroad which it operates in the United States and subject, if it is intrastate are subject to the intrastate rate? A. Yes.

Q. And if they are interstate they are subject to the Interstate Commerce rate? A. Yes.

4795

Q. Which you are obliged to observe? Do observe? A. Which we do observe.

Q. And the rates that you charge for steerage and other passengers for transportation over your railroad in Canada are the rates fixed by the rate law of Canada, railroad law of Canada? A. Yes, Canadian Railway Commission.

Q. Canadian Railway Commission? A. Yes. Rates are made there precisely as they are made in the States. You make a rate and it is submitted to the commission. If they approve of it it comes into effect and cannot be changed within a certain time. 4796
Just the same as in the States.

Q. And if you sell to a passenger a ticket over a railway, other than your own, you charge the rate required by the law? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you make no money out of that? A. No.

Q. Will you give me the gross earnings on all kinds of traffic of the Atlantic steamships running to your country for the year, beginning February 1st, 1910, to January 31st, 1911, that includes the steerage, freight and the other classes of passengers? A. $5,234,763.

Q. That is the gross? A. That is the gross. And the expenses?

4797

Q. Yes? A. The expenses of the steamships including insurance.

Q. For the same period? A. For the same period is $4,523,921 leaving a net of $711,842.

Q. What percentage is that net on the money invested in the steamship business? A. About seven per cent.

Q. Does that include any tax for depreciation? A. No, sir.

Q. What is the charge for depreciation? A. About four per cent.

4798 Q. That leaves three per cent profit, does it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What do you estimate, expert estimate, to be the life of a ship? A. About twenty years, not exceeding twenty years.

Q. Not exceeding twenty years? A. No, sir, in that time she becomes obsolete if she is not used up absolutely by reason of changes and economies effected in the construction. The old ship you cannot put her against a new ship and make any money on it.

4799 Q. Then you reckon twenty years as being the useful life of a ship? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Not simply from wear and tear, but the progress from year to year in improvement? A. Yes, all of those conditions put together.

Q. You have agencies for the sale of your tickets throughout the country, do you or do you not? A. We have regular established steamship offices in Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Seattle, San Francisco, New York, Boston, and, of course, we have sub-agencies all over, that sell for us. They may sell a ticket by our line and a ticket by any other line—what is known as the general steamship agent.

4800 He will sell for a variety of lines. Then most of the railway agents have got steamship tickets or have machinery for selling them—either have them or have an order for them on all the railways.

Q. Is that true of all the steamship companies? A. Yes, sir, of course, our offices in New York and Boston are not there for the purpose of booking third-class passengers. We don't get any third-class passengers to go to Montreal and cross the ocean, they go on ships from here. Sometimes we do pick up here a first-class passenger. The machinery is there if they want to come that way.

4801

Q. Then that doesn't apply to steerage class? A. It does not apply to steerage passengers. I don't suppose we get a steerage passenger from along the Atlantic Coast. It would not be natural. When we go out west, we do business there in competition with others.

Q. Is the Canadian Northern a competitor of the Canadian Pacific? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Guiler: I object to that question as to form and as to substance. I don't think it ought to have gone in in that way. That is a conclusion.

4802

Mr. Spooner: Not a conclusion—a man connected with a railroad is apt to know who his competitors are.

Q. Is there such a railroad in Canada as the Canadian Northern? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where does it begin and where does it end if you know? A. The Canadian Northern is in the process of construction. It is in pieces at present and not connected up. They operate in Quebec as the Canadian Northern Quebec Railway. In Ontario the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway, in the Canadian Northwest they operate as the Canadian Northern Railway—in British Columbia, I think they operate as the Canadian Northern British Columbia Railway, or some other name. That is to distinguish the different parts. They are being connected up and eventually will be one transcontinental system.

4803

Q. Has the Canadian Northern Railroad any competitors? A. Have they any competitors?

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as immaterial, incompetent and irrelevant, and as calling for a conclusion, and ask to have it stricken out.

4804 Q. Yes? A. Oh, yes. You are speaking of the railway?

Q. Yes? A. Well they have competitors, the Canadian Pacific, the Grand Trunk—Grand Trunk Pacific are competitors. In some respects the Great Northern Railway in the United States is the competitor and the Northern Pacific Railway in some respects also.

Q. What sort of a business is it now doing, class of business, everything it can? A. Oh, yes, they equip and operate sections as they complete them.

4805 Q. Any line of steamships on the Atlantic or in connection with the Canadian Northern so far as it is completed? A. Yes, they have got a steamship line which they call the Royal Line.

Q. Where do the ships run? A. Bristol, England, to Canadian ports, Montreal, Quebec and Halifax.

Q. Do you know whether or not the Uranium Line is run in connection with the business of the Canadian Northern?

Mr. Guiler: I object to that and ask to have it stricken out.

4806 The Witness: Well, I could not state of my own knowledge further than this, that the Uranium Line does bring passengers from the Continent of Europe, Rotterdam, and I suppose other ports, and they call at Halifax, land passengers bound for Canada, go on to New York, and land passengers bound for the United States.

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. The Royal Line which you spoke of as being in connection with the Canadian Northern is a member of the Conference, is it not, North Atlantic Conference? A. It was, I presume it is yet.

Q. You know it was, however? A. Yes, is was.

Q. Do you remember the name of the agreement—it was agreement "CC"?

Mr. Spooner: The defendants renew their objection to any evidence of any agreement other than agreement AA, as irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial, not within the issues.

A. I think it was agreement "CC," yes.

Q. That is it there, Exhibit 719, that is the agreement making the Royal Line a member of the Conference; that is right, is it not? A. Yes, sir. 4808

Q. And under that agreement the Royal Line got from the other lines, a member of the Conference, a certain percentage of the North Atlantic business, did it not? A. Well, I am personally not familiar with the details of the Royal Line's business.

Q. Well, the agreement is here? A. Yes, whatever it stated in the agreement is correct. I would accept it as such.

Q. But as far as your knowledge goes up to the present time the Royal Line which you have secured as a connection of the Canadian Northern is a member of the Atlantic Conference? A. Yes, so far as I know. 4809

Q. Now, your line, that is the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company, isn't that what they call it? A. The Canadian Pacific Railways Atlantic Steamship Line.

Q. Well, the Canadian Pacific? A. Atlantic Steamship Service.

Q. The Atlantic Steamship Service of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company participated then in the payment for the so-called fighting steamers, did they not, up to the time you designated as the withdrawal from that agreement? A. Yes, July 15, 1910.

4810

Q. Up to that time it joined with the others in making payments reimbursing the so-called fighting ships for the expenses which they theretofore had been at in reducing their rates? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that expense sometimes went almost to $12 on a particular route, the difference between thirty and eighteen dollars under Minute 22? A. Well, I am not clear on that.

Q. At any time did you take part in carrying out that minute? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Minute 22 dealt with the so-called fighting steamers and that was directed, was it not, against the competition of the Russian East Asiatic, New York and Continental Line and the Russian Volunteer Fleet, was it not? A. Yes, it was in protection of business of the Conference Lines against these lines mentioned.

4811

Q. And under Minute 22 the rates could be the same or lower, could they not, than the opposing steamers? A. As a matter of fact, I don't think they were ever lower.

Q. I am asking what they could be? A. I presume so, yes, sir.

Mr. Spooner: Is not that calling for an opinion?

Mr. Guiler: No, I think not.

4812

Q. At any rate the representatives of your line, Mr. Cameron and Mr. Dring, took part in the meeting of November 28, held at the Savoy Hotel, in London, which passed Minute 22 for the action of the fighting steamers? A. If they are on the record as being present there, of course, they were present.

Q. Do you remember their going over there? A. They were resident. At that time Mr. Allen Cameron was the general traffic agent of the company in London, and Dr. Dring was one of his assistants.

Q. And did you receive any notice or notification of either one of those gentlemen that the minute had been adopted by the Canadian Pacific Company? A. We would get a report from Mr. Cameron.

4813

Q. And that minute also in which your steamship line took part provided for a certain small committee, did it not, in New York, to take measures in opposition to the outside lines? A. I understand so, but I don't know.

Q. And you have already testified that your line did not put any steamer on in opposition of other steamers, outside lines? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But you did participate in the payments? A. Yes, sir.

4814

Q. And you were acquainted with the fact that there was a small committee in New York which was taking charge of that matter? A. Yes, sir, we were acquainted with that.

Q. And as you said, took part in that while it lasted? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The agreement of 1904, by which the Canadian Pacific became a party to certain pooling arrangements with other lines, was Agreement "J," was it not, as you remember it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was an agreement between the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and the so-called N. D. L. V., was it not? A. Yes, sir.

4815

Q. Which was based on the Hamburg-American Line, the North German Lloyd, the Holland-American Line and the Red Star? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The N. D. L. V. having been formed in 1892, under a certain pooling arrangement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, under this Agreement "J," the Canadian Pacific Railway Company was not permitted to carry any continental passengers other than Scandinavian and Finnish passengers; is that right? A. Well, we were not permitted to carry other than Scandinavian and Finnish passengers on our Liverpool ships.

Q. That is, in other words, ships sailing from ports— A. We sailed a ship from Antwerp direct 4816 and all continental passengers under that agreement were carried from Antwerp. Ships sailing from Liverpool carried Finnish and Scandinavian passengers.

Q. But were not allowed to carry Continental passengers? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember this clause being in the agreement, that the company or companies should exercise all possible care to prevent any contravention of this clause and should the continental companies at any time require it, the company agreed to report to the rest of the continental line vessels to satisfy itself that there had been no contravention of this clause. Is 4817 that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in this agreement the share of the Canadian Pacific Railroad Company was stated to be as follows (Mr. Guiler reads): "The continental lines agree to deliver to the companys' steamships at Antwerp in each year during the continuance of this agreement, not less than 5.429 of the total immigrant business secured for carriage by the continental lines, it being understood that the immigrants so delivered to the company will include a fair average of adults." Is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is, the so-called N. D. L. V. Lines shared the continental traffic with the Canadian Pacific Rail-4818 road Company Steamship Line from Antwerp? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And furthermore, the Canadian Pacific Railroad Company was permitted, was it not, to still continue in its offices and agencies in Canada and the United States, to book passengers from the continent, yet it was not permitted, was it, to charge lower rate than the charge by the various lines which I have mentioned? A. You understand that is purely a westbound agreement into Canada and the United States. Of course, we did not require any permission from anybody to maintain our offices in the United States and Canada, other than from the respective governments of those two countries.

Mr. Guiler: I did not ask that; I think you will see that it comes down to this particular point as charge a lower rate than the various continental lines for tickets from continental points westbound, which had been sold in your offices in the United States and Canada? A. There would be an understanding as to what rates these tickets which—I understand you mean prepaid tickets—that would be bought in the United States, would be sold at by our line and the various other lines.

4820

Mr. Spooner: This was prior to 1908.

Mr. Guiler: This was the 1904 agreement which I understand existed up to the time in suit.

Mr. Spooner: Well, you are not suing on that. We renew our objection.

Mr. Guiler: We have gone into that so much, Senator—you have said that there was such an agreement.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. And also that the company should not pay any larger commissions on such passengers than were paid on the continental lines? A. Yes, sir, there was also an understanding as to what commissions should be paid to agents selling tickets. 4821

Q. Now, how long did that agreement exist, Mr. Kerr? A. That agreement exists, as amended, today.

Q. Today? A. Today, but expires on December 31—this present month.

Q. And it may be renewed and it may not? A. Well, I don't think it will be renewed.

Q. But you don't know just now whether it will be or not? A. No.

4822 Robert Kerr

Q. Now, that agreement which I have spoken of there, referred to third-class passengers entirely, did it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I mean those particular clauses of the agreement that referred to third-class passengers? A. That agreement was of third-class passengers.

Q. Now, I show you Clause 13 of this agreement, and ask you whether it did not apply also, to first and second-class passengers?

Mr. Beers: Is the question regarding third-class passengers, under 1904 agreement?

4823 Mr. Guiler: Yes.

Mr. Beers: Is not that a long ways?

Mr. Guiler: Not very far, comparatively.

The Witness: Yes, but our ships carried no first-class passengers. They may have carried an odd second-class passenger, but nothing to speak of.

Q. I ask you whether that agreement applied to first-class passengers, if they did happen to be carried? A. Yes; it speaks for itself.

Mr. Spooner: Speaks for itself, doesn't it?

The Witness: Yes.

Q. That agreement was subsequently joined by the French Line. The French Line subsequently entered 4824 that agreement with a certain percentage lower? A. I think so.

Mr. Spooner: I move to strike out the portion of the cross-examination which relates to the agreement of 1904, as not proper cross-examination, as incompetent; and as not within the issues made by the pleadings.

Mr. Guiler: It has been shown, Senator, that that exists today, that agreement.

The Witness: Of course, that agreement has been supplemented by Agreement J2, that amends in some respects.

4825

Mr. Spooner: Well, I move to strike this out.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. Did your company, Mr. Kerr, have any arrangement with the Western Passenger Association and the Central Passenger Association, with respect to certain commercial allowance of ten per cent on tickets which you sold over the roads of the Western and Central Passenger Association?

Mr. Spooner: Objected to as not proper cross-examination.

4826

Mr. Guiler: Are you going to object right along on these things,—you went into the railroad end of it, Senator, and interrogated all about it.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. Will you answer that question? A. Yes.

Q. And the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company or whatever it is termed, received from the Central Passenger Association, along with other roads, a commercial allowance for tickets sold in the territory of the Central Passenger Association? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were personally present, were you not, at the meeting of the steamship lines in conference, Trans-Atlantic Steamship office, 19 Broadway, at which an arrangement was made for the payment of that? A. I did attend a great many of those meetings and if I am on the record, I was there.

4827

Q. Do you remember whether you attended that meeting or not? A. I did if I am on the record there.

Q. I will show you the record and ask you if that refreshes your memory? A. Oh, yes.

Q. That was February 25, 1909, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

4828 Mr. Spooner: What volume is that?
Mr. Guiler: Volume 1.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. And you personally also were present when the arrangement with the passenger—Central Passenger Association was made, were you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were one of the signers of the notice to complete that arrangement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which was done by the exchange of two letters—is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Approximately December 3, 1908, and Decem-4829 ber 1st, 1908 (Exhibit 46)? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in that respect then, Mr. Kerr, the Canadian Pacific Railroad Company had an arrangement with the other lines and with the railroads in that portion of the United States covered by the Central Passenger Association and Western Passenger Association for the commercial allowance at ten and five per cent for all tickets which it sold over the territory, over those lines? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And does that arrangement exist today? A. I understand it does.

Q. It has been continued until the present time? A. Well, I have not followed it since I—4830 Q. So far as you know it has been? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that it is interested to that extent in certain transportation of passengers in the United States; is that right? A. Oh, yes.

Q. And receives regularly and has received up to the time you know about—has received that ten per cent? A. Yes.

Q. From the railroad lines? A. Yes.

Q. It is your experience, Mr. Kerr, is it not, that the passenger from Europe—the steerage passenger—hardly, if ever, asks or questions the route over which he is going, to various points in the United States? A. Only a very small proportion of them know.

4831

Q. Has not it been your experience that he hardly ever knows the line on which he is travelling or the ship on which he is transferred? A. Yes, sometimes he does not even know the name of the ship he comes on.

Q. All he does is to take the prepaid ticket which you have mentioned and travel on that? A. Yes, he is guided onto the ship and from the ship and he is guided onto the train. He is guided to his final destination. The route he does not know. That is speaking generally; the immigrant—

4832

Q. Does the railroad order which is sold—take the case of a purchaser on this side in the United States, or in Canada, purchasing a railroad order to a point in the United States from some continental point, does the railroad designate over which line he shall travel? A. Well, the order for the railway ticket might simply be drawn on the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, without designating.

Q. Generally is, is it not? A. Yes, if the purchaser of a prepaid order in the United States sending for a friend in Europe did designate the route that he wanted that passenger carried on from Quebec to his final designation, it would be done.

4833

Q. But as a general rule there is no designation? A. No, sir.

Q. And the passenger follows the line directed by the railroad company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You mention that there were 50,000 steerage passengers who came over every year on your steamship line? A. That is about the run of the business, taking one year with another.

Q. You would say, would you not, then, that the great majority of those passengers do not designate the route over which they should travel? A. Yes, sir.

4834 Q. And follow the road which is laid out for them by the railroad or by the steamship line? A. Yes, sir.

Recess until 2 P. M.

Afternoon session.

ROBERT KERR, recalled:

4835 Cross-examination continued by Mr. Guiler:

Q. Now, Mr. Kerr, these agents which you have mentioned that you have all through the United States and various states of the United States, and of Canada, are constantly booking passengers for points in the United States, that is, within the Western Passenger Association, and the Central Passenger Association? A. Yes, selling prepaid.

Q. And are they in other districts—you have agencies in other districts, have you not? A. Oh, yes, we have agencies everywhere, but the Central-Western and the Trans-Continental practically covers the whole United States that we can direct or control.

4836 Q. And you have your agents in Boston, New York, booking passengers for various points in the United States by selling prepaid tickets, do they not? A. Well, as I explained this morning, it is a negligible quantity there. Third-class passengers don't go over to Montreal to cross the Atlantic, neither do they come.

Q. You spoke about twelve per cent coming to the United States? A. I said of the total passengers that we carried in that we averaged about 50,000 a year of third-class passengers that were brought westbound that about twelve per cent on that went into the United States and the balance went into Canada, eighty-eight per cent.

4837

Q. But those twelve per cent are booked by your agents at various points in the United States? A. Yes.

Q. And subsequently come to the United States on those tickets that you sell? A. Yes.

Mr. Spooner: You are speaking now of prepaid?

Mr. Guiler: Yes.

Mr. Spooner: Do you mean 50,000 prepaid?

4838

The Witness: No, the total amount of third-class runs about that.

Mr. Spooner: Do you mean to ask him what proportion are prepaid?

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. What proportion are prepaid? A. I cannot tell.

Q. You lumped them altogether and found that twelve per cent of 50,000 come to the United States? A. Yes.

Q. That you say is a rough estimate that the majority of them are prepaid passengers? A. Well, a large part, at least. Perhaps a majority.

4839

Q. That has been your experience, hasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That a larger number are prepaid, or not? A. Well, I am not very clear on that, but of course, there are a large number of them that are prepaid, and the balance, whatever it is, is cash.

Q. I am not holding you down to that, Mr. Kerr? A. I just, of course, I don't want to make a statement that I don't feel—

Q. Then put it this way, that a substantial number are prepaid of the twelve per cent? A. Yes.

4840 Q. Now, your line was a signer of that agreement marked CC, with the Royal Line, was it not?

Mr. Spooner: I object, that is not proper cross-examination, and immaterial and incompetent.

The Witness: If we are on the records as signers, of course, we signed them.

Q. I will show you Exhibit No. 719, and ask you whether that refreshes your memory as to whether you are—whether you made an agreement with the Canadian Northern Railroad Company, which con-4841 trolled the railroad company? A. Yes.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. The Royal Line there made an agreement with the various conference lines, did it not, Mr. Kerr? A. I understand so.

Q. And in that agreement there was given to the Royal Line on all the entire eastbound steerage traffic between the United States and Canada and Europe, a percentage of 1.15? A. That is right here on the record.

Q. Except for the Italians and Orientals; that did not include Italians and Orientals? A. No, they came 4842 from the Mediterranean.

Q. I ask you whether the sailings of the Royal Line were under Article III of that agreement, to be not more than twenty-six—not less than twenty-one or more than twenty-six—during the year? A. Yes.

Q. Now, under Section 5, the Royal Line was to compensate the conference for any passengers carried beyond its share, by four, paragraph four? A. Yes.

Q. And this compensation, under Section VII, was to deter the parties, the Royal Line, from overreaching that percentage, was it not?

Mr. Spooner: I object to that; it is not cross-examination.

4843

Mr. Guiler: It is in the agreement.

Mr. Spooner: What if it is in the agreement? I did not examine him as to the agreement.

Mr. Guiler: You examined him as to a number of papers which he said he did not have.

Mr. Spooner: I did not examine him with reference to any paper except the AA Agreement. I move to strike it out. It is not proper cross-examination. It is incompetent, and it is calling upon a witness to construe a written agreement which is in evidence. It is without the issues made by the pleadings.

4844

The Witness: Going back to Article III, as the Royal Line consists of only two steamers, the Royal George and Royal Edward, I don't see how they could make more than twenty-six sailings in a year, if they tried.

Mr. Guiler: That may be so, I ask as to Section VII. I will withdraw the question.

Q. Outside of that agreement which I have showed you, Agreement CC, Mr. Kerr, has the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern Line got any other subsidiary agreement or otherwise?

4845

Mr. Spooner: I object to it. It is not proper cross-examination and I don't think you have any right to inquire as to the agreements except those set out in your bill.

The Witness: I don't know, therefore, I cannot say.

Q. Now, Mr. Kerr, you are acquainted with Rule 9 of the conference, are you not, which is to the effect that agents shall not act for lines outside of the conference lines; you are acquainted with that rule, you remember that there was such a rule? A. Yes, sir.

4846 Robert Kerr

Mr. Spooner: Did he say he did?
Mr. Guiler: He did.

Q. Now, during the time—you are also acquainted, are you not, with the fact that there was a so-called rate war or fight between the various conference lines and the Italian lines, is that right? A. Well, I was not interested in it, and only knew of it in a general way.

Q. You knew that there was such a thing happened? A. I know there were difficulties.

Q. And did you receive any instructions from, or 4847 did you give any instructions, that Rule 9 should be strictly enforced in that fight with the Italian lines? A. The only instructions that I know of is that—

Q. That is, you carried out Rule 9, is that the idea? A. Oh, yes.

Q. In every respect? A. Yes.

Q. As against agents? A. But we never did—we never did discipline an agent, not in my time.

Q. Do you remember whether you reported any agents for discipline? A. No.

Mr. Spooner: Do you mean that you don t remember or that you don't know?

The Witness: We did not during my time. I never 4848 knew of such a thing happening.

Q. Now, I show you a letter of Mr. Peters', marked Exhibit 2176, cirular letter No. 68, in which the letter from the Canadian Pacific is mentioned, Canadian Pacific to Secretary Peters, and ask you whether a statement in there by your line, which reads, "I would mention that our agents in Canada and United States are entirely under the control of our Montreal people. I have therefore cabled to our friends there advising them of a proposal to deal with agents giving continental traffic to the Italian and other outside lines and suggested that they take whatever concerted action is decided upon, through the medium of the New York Conference,"—is that statement there correct, that you did control your agents absolutely? A. Well, of course, any agents we had we controlled, naturally, as employees.

4849

Q. That is, you controlled them in respect to the matter of the Italian lines, competition with the Italian lines, didn't you? A. We practically had little or no competition with the Italian lines,—that is, the Mediterranean.

Q. I am asking whether that statement there is true, that you had absolute control of your agents? A. We control our own agents, but, of course, we do not absolutely control agents who sell steamship tickets on commission.

4850

Q. What do you mean by that? A. Agents all over the country.

Mr. Spooner: That is in general, those who sell for other lines?

The Witness: One man in a town may sell for all the lines.

Q. You mean all the conference lines? A. Yes—gets his two dollars for selling a ticket.

Q. That statement as regards agents in United States and Canada, that is true? A. Our own agents.

Mr. Spooner: But you didn't need Rule 9 to control your agents?

4851

The Witness: Oh, no.

Q. And you did in May, 1905, when this was written? A. Oh, yes, we always controlled our own agents.

Mr. Spooner: You didn't let your own agents control you? A. No.

Q. Mr. Kerr, I was talking about Italian competition? A. Being employees, we controlled them.

Q. Then you did not experience any of the trouble of your agents acting for the Northwest Transport Company or other outside lines? A. No.

4852 Q. So that you did not have to put into effect Rule 9 in regard to the Northwest Transport Company and the Italian lines? A. As I say, that during my time I believe that we never disciplined any of the agents, never found occasion to do it.

Q. Now, were you ever approached, your Canadian Pacific Railroad or the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company, ever approached in regard to disallowing a commission to the Northwest Transport Company by the various conferences or by any member of the conference lines? A. I don't think we were. For the business brought in by the Northwest Transport Line, sub-4853 sequently the Uranium Line, we, the Canadian Pacific, always paid them.

Q. Always paid them? A. Yes.

Q. I did not ask that, quite. I asked whether you were approached by any member of the conference lines or any representative thereof to have you approach the Grand Trunk Line and see if you could not get them to disallow commissions? A. Yes, there was some dissatisfaction between the Grand Trunk and Intercolonial on that subject.

Q. And you were asked to go to the Grand Trunk and see if you could not get them to disallow it also?

Mr. Spooner: Those were not conference lines?

4854 The Witness: No, sir.

Q. Were you approached by any member of the conference lines or any representatives thereof to have you approach the Grand Trunk Line and see if you could not get them to disallow commission? A. I don't remember that we were, but we did have a difference as between ourselves. The Grand Trunk Railway and Intercolonial. It was subsequently settled on this side.

Q. I show you Exhibit 1336, Peters' letter 469, and ask you whether the statement in there refreshes your memory as to whether that was so or not? A. Well, I was going to indulge in a little history.

4855

Q. If you would answer that question first we may be able to go into the history.

Mr. Spooner: If you cannot answer it by yes or no, answer it in your own way.

Q. I don't ask for yes or no, I don't want to confine him to yes or no? A. I say that the question really arose on this side. In the natural and reasonable order of the competition that existed between the Canadian Pacific and the Intercolonial and Grand Trunk, from Halifax, Nova Scotia, in fighting for and trying to secure the business of this steamship line, the Northwest Transport Company and subsequently the Uranium Line—before that they called themselves the New York and Continental—they were always changing—the Grand Trunk accused us.

4856

Q. How often did they change? A. I think they first appeared on the scene as the New York and Continental, then the Northwest Transport Company, and subsequently the Uranium Steamship Company. Well, the Grand Trunk accused us of paying commissions and we accused them of paying commissions.

Q. You did pay commissions? A. Yes, of course, we did, so did they.

Q. You were asked to discontinue the payment of commissions to the Northwest Transport Company by some one representing the conference lines? A. No, it was the Grand Trunk. I don't know what happened in England, but I am trying to—

4857

Q. I will read this letter; it is headed, "Commission Northwest Transport Line, by Canadian Railways," and reads, "As stated in your letter of the 8th of May to me, you are quite correct in your understanding that last year the Canadian Pacific, out of deference to the conference lines, opened negotiations in Montreal with the Grand Trunk in an endeavor to reach an agreement with that company not to pay 4858 commission." Now, that refreshes your recollection to show that you were taking up this matter because in some way you had been approached by the conference lines. Is that not so? A. No, sir.

Q. Then you don't agree with this letter of Mr. Peters? A. Well, from Mr. Peters' point of view, he was right, but I am right. First of all the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, the Intercolonial and the Grand Trunk Railway forming a line from Halifax, against the Canadian Pacific Railway, who have their own trains into Halifax, were seeking and competing for this business from the Northwest Transport Com-
4859 pany. That was the railway company. The conference lines, the steamship company took ground that the railway company should not pay any commissions for receiving this business. Well, of course, we occupied that dual capacity—we were a conference line and we were a railway. The railway wanted this business. Consequently the railway did pay commissions—so did the other fellow—and the Canadian Pacific got a portion of the business and the others got a portion of the business. Now, the conference lines, in their struggle with the Uranium Line, as being a disturber—

Q. At that time the Northwest Transport Com-
4860 pany? A. Yes, wanted us—the railroad company—to use our power as a railroad company to aid them. Of course, we were looking for the business for the railway company and we did not go in. These people had some correspondence over on the other side. No doubt they were honest in what they said there. The truth is that both parties paid commissions and got the business.

Q. You then, as a railroad company, refused to give up the payment of commissions to the Northwest Transport Company, as requested by the conference, of which you, as a steamship company, were a member? A. Yes, if we sacrificed our railway the other fellow would simply carry the business and the railway would get no revenue. That was lost because it was on that ship and was being carried in. Therefore, it was up to the railway. That milk was spilt and gone. We stopped crying about that and started in and tried to see what we could do for our railway business.

4861

Q. Now, Mr. Kerr, you stated, I think, in your direct-examination that the law of England and Canada—that such agreements as that AA Agreement, and that other kinds were legal in England and Canada. I want to know whether you have ever made a study of the law of England in Canada? A. No, but I have been advised by our legal officers.

4862

Mr. Spooner: Mr. Creelman?

The Witness: Yes.

Q. Then what you state in regard to the law of England and Canada is not from information that you, yourself, have looked up in the study of actual cases? A. No, we rely on the law officers to give us legal information.

Q. When you say the law of England and Canada allow such agreements as AA, then you are stating what someone else has told you? A. Yes, sir.

4863

Q. And not from first-hand information received by yourself from the actual cases involved? A. No.

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION by Mr. Spooner:

Q. What about those commercial allowances—explain that? A. Well, I presume you have reference to the commercial allowance allowed by the Central Passenger Association and the Western Passenger Association to the steamship lines for handling the steamship business.

4864 Q. Explain that theory of it? A. The conference lines, they undertake to control the agents, guide them, instruct them, and they take all the work and the worry and so on off the shoulders of the railway people and they manage the business and the railway companies allow them ten per cent off their revenue to reimburse them for the labor, worry, and all that sort of thing that is involved and that was—

Mr. Spooner: How long has that been in vogue between the railway companies and the ocean carriers? A. Under correction, I would say about 1909. Per-4865 haps you have the record there.

Mr. Guiler: Yes, it is 1909; I have got the record here. It is 1909.

Mr. Spooner: Not longer than that?

The Witness: No.

Q. I didn't speak of this particular affair but I meant a similar allowance—is that the first of the commercial allowances? A. That is the first, as far as I remember.

Mr. Guiler: That is on passenger business?

The Witness: Yes, anything else we did not care anything about.

4866 Q. Do you know who is building the Canadian Northern, I don't mean shoveling the dirt and building the bridges, but who are the parties who are constructing it?

Mr. Guiler: That is not cross-examination.

Q. I ask— A. Certain financiers, McKenzie and Mann, and their associates.

Q. They are not the contractors for the physical construction of the railroad? A. No, one is president and the other is vice president; Sir William McKenzie is president and Sir Donald Mann is vice president.

Q. Are they men reputed to be of great wealth? A. Yes, they are supposed to be wealthy.

4867

Q. Do you know whether or not they are large owners of the stock? A. That I don't know.

Q. Or whether or not they are reputed to be—

Mr. Guiler: He says he does not know.

The Witness: Well, they are understood to be. Rumor of the street; it may be worth something or it may be worth nothing.

Q. Are either or both of them, as far as you know, interested in the Uranium Line?

Mr. Guiler: I object to that, Senator, for the reason that he said this morning that he did not know anything about that on direct-examination. My recollection is perfect on that.

4868

Mr. Shipman: He said Canadian Northern.

Mr. Guiler: No, he said Uranium. He was interrogated in regard to the Uranium Line.

Q. I ask you whether either is largely interested or both in the Uranium Line or generally supposed to be? A. Well, it is understood on the street, common rumor and report, that they are interested personally in the Uranium Line.

Mr. Guiler: I object to that answer. I move to strike it out.

4869

Q. I would like to ask you this question, whether while your company has been a member of the Conference Agreement AA there has or has not existed competition between the lines, members of the conference? A. Always.

Q. With respect to service and passengers? A. Always.

Q. Has it or has it not been active competition? A. Active competition.

Mr. Guiler: I object to these questions and ask that they be stricken out.

4870 Robert Kerr

A. (Continuing): We have never ceased struggling.

Q. And this competition has been not only to get business but to transact it? A. Yes.

Q. Competition in service as well as for business? A. Yes, always building better steamships, as everybody knows, much better service, doing more.

Q. You have never been engaged in the steamship business alone? A. No, sir, I am primarily a railroad traffic man. Of course, the steamship business came to me when we acquired our Atlantic service.

4871 Q. When did the Canadian Pacific go into the steamship business on the Atlantic? A. 1903. They purchased fifteen steamers from the Elder-Dempster Company.

RE-CROSS EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. Now, Mr. Kerr, the extra labor you have mentioned in regard to issuing tickets and so forth is no greater to issue a railroad ticket in conjunction with a steamship ticket, is it? A. No.

Q. What did you mean by saying that the ten per cent is paid to you in consideration of this? A. I mean the extra work of handling the business by these 4872 gentlemen done in the conference room here, and Lawson Sandford, secretary of the conference lines. He under the direction of the conference lines, managed the business and he had a good deal more labor thrown upon him, and I presume they had too. Then there were various general agents out in the country who had supervision of the districts. General agents, each of the lines, would have general agents in Chicago. Each one of these general agents has supervision over the district. In handling the business naturally it led to increased labor and increased work.

4873

Q. You sell a ticket, do you not, from some point in Europe to Halifax or wherever your lines call, and your line, the Canadian Pacific, is a connecting carrier, you might say, after that steamship line is through? A. Yes.

Q. Carry direct from the railroad? A. But it is the controlling force.

Q. What is the controlling force? A. Well, these gentlemen who meet decide on doing certain things, issue certain instructions.

Q. What do you mean, Mr. Kerr? A. I mean, the conference men, representatives of the conference lines.

4874

Q. You mean that those gentlemen decide that they will receive a commission of ten per cent from the Western Passenger Association? A. Those gentlemen did not receive it, but their companies did.

Q. Those gentlemen meet and decide that? A. It was in organizing and handling the business.

Q. There is no greater work than turning over a passenger from a steamship line to a railroad line which connects with it? A. Probably it was in connection with securing the business eastbound out of the United States.

Q. But your agents secure business for the steamship lines; can you figure out any extra work? Suppose that business has been secured in selling a railroad ticket along with it? A. Not for that agent, but, for instance, if you are sitting here in New York, and you have a great extensive country covered with a variety of agents, travelling agents and so on, you quite readily find your labors very much increased by increased correspondence and work and labor of one kind or another—perhaps have to employ more men. It is the case of organization. It is a case of what you might call a controlling force.

4875

4876 Q. But that controlling force is there as the agent of the steamship line, is it not, in the first place, first instance? A. All the steamship lines.

Q. Primarily agents of the steamship lines? A. Yes.

Q. And all the extra work that is connected with it is just adding on the railroad order? A. Well, you are working on one end and I am working on the other. As I understand, you are claiming that there is no extra work to a man who sells the ticket way out there in the interior of the country.

4877 Q. That is true? A. Probably not. But there is more work to these people who organize to control this business, so to state, and take the work off the railroads.

Mr. Spooner: Is this allowance on eastbound business or westbound business?

The Witness: Eastbound business, gathering it up.

Q. Now, having controlled the business, do you do anything except turn it over to the railroad company? A. No, the railroads turn it over to the steamship lines, the steamship lines secure the business and put it on the railroads. The railroad carries it to the Atlantic port, and there the man is put on the steamship line.

4878 Q. You don't do anything more than turn it over to the railroad company, do you? A. The railroad company turns it over to us.

Q. But the man in the first instance? A. They get the ticket and they put the man on the railroad train.

Q. That is, you control the business, is that the idea? A. Yes.

Q. And turn it over to the railroad? A. Yes.

Q. And get your ten per cent? A. Yes. Now, in making that statement, of course, the Canadian Pacific Railway being a railroad company and also a steamship company, the steamships are participating in the payment of these commercial allowances and their railway was paying its share of that commercial allowance. Now, if the business passed over to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company on to the Cunard Line or the Hambury-American or any other line here in New York they would pay into the conference lines and the business would be divided up, therefore, what we paid we paid our share out to the other fellows.

4879

Q. You mean the conference lines? A. To the conference lines, and the conference lines in turn paid us whatever was coming to us on the deal—either way. We were all in it together.

4880

Q. That was a matter of agreement, was it not? A. Yes, sir. You have the document there showing those letters.

Q. Now, in regard to the Canadian Northern, it is only rumor, is it not, on the street, as far as your knowledge goes, that McKenzie and Mann control the company? A. That is all. Of course, I do know, as a matter of fact, that Sir William McKenzie is the president and Sir Donald Mann is the vice president.

Q. You do not know of your own knowledge that McKenzie and Mann own any stock or in any way control the Uranium Company? A. No, it was only just rumor.

Q. Rumor? A. Just street rumor.

4881

Q. You have never talked with McKenzie on the subject? A. I have never talked with Sir William McKenzie on that subject at all.

Q. You spoke about certain competition between members of the conference lines; now, under the Agreement AA and agreements similar to that and subsequent thereto, the conference lines had a certain percentage, had they not, which was allowed to them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Percentage of the business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when they went beyond that they had to pay four pounds compensation? A. Yes, sir.

1627

4882 Q. And if they got less than that they were compensated by the conference? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was called compensation, was it not, in those agreements? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Spooner: You are getting pretty near the danger line, my friend.

Q. While AA was going on your line lived up to that agreement, did it not, until the time you said, when they withdrew and carried it out? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Spooner: Did the steamship companies aid in looking after the agents of the railway companies? A.
4883 Yes, sir.

Mr. Spooner: Did they guarantee them in any way?

The Witness: They undertook to control and manage the steamship business in the interior of the country, out in the west, all through.

Q. This allowance was really for services rendered? A. That was it, as I understood it. It took the load off the railroad man.

Q. Steamship agents doing business in a way for the railroad company? A. Yes.

Q. They would be obliged to employ agents if they did not do it? A. Yes.

Q. If a steamship agent defaulted with his funds
4884 belonging to the railroad company the steamship company had to stand for it? A. Well, I don't know that that was enumerated in the bond.

Q. Was it the practice? A. I don't think so. So far as my own experience goes, I never had a case of that kind.

Q. But they did the business? A. They did the business, yes, sir.

Hearing adjourned to Wednesday, December 4, 1912, at 11 o'clock A. M.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 4885

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG - AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others,
Defendants.

4886

Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq.

New York, December 4, 1912.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher; by Charles Burlingham and Charles C. Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larcoque; by Nelson Shipman, Esq.; for Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al..

4887

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton; by J. C. Spooner, Esq.; for the Allan Line, et al.

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord; by Lucius H. Beers, Esq., and Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq.; for the Cunard Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq.; by Walter Rogers Deuel, Esq.; for the Russian East Asiatic Company, et al.

4888 Robert Kerr

ROBERT KERR, recalled:

Direct-examination continued by Mr. Spooner:

Mr. Spooner: I will offer in evidence a map of the Canadian Pacific Railway, entitled, "The World's Greatest Highway."

Marked Defendants' Exhibit No. 18A.

Mr. Guiler: I understand, Senator, that that is not to be printed.

Mr. Spooner: I won't insist upon its being printed, I simply want to show the lines of the Canadian Pacific in the United States.

4889 Mr. Guiler: I would rather you would have it printed.

Mr. Spooner: He testified that the Canadian Pacific operates in the United States one hundred and ninety-seven miles of railroad.

Mr. Guiler: You had better describe it fully, Mr. Kerr, for the purposes of the record.

The Witness (examining map): Lines in the United States controlled and operated by the Canadian Pacific Company are as follows: First, international boundary line between Quebec and Maine to Matteawamkeag, 144.5 miles. There is the international 4890 boundary line there (indicating). You see it is called boundary there, just inside the Maine line—it is called boundary line. I think the first station in Maine is Lowellton. From the boundary to Matteawamkeag is the 144.5 miles referred to.

Mr. Spooner: That is through Maine?

Mr. Guiler: Is Matteawamkeag in Maine?

The Witness: Yes. Now, from Matteawamkeag to Vanceboro on the boundary line between Maine and New Brunswick, is owned by the Maine Central road and trackage is leased by the Canadian Pacific.

4891

Q. That is, you have a traffic agreement? A. No, a lease of track whereby we run our trains over this line.

Q. That is what I meant. A. Then from Vanceboro from and across the line, of course, it is the Canadian Pacific's own line. During the winter, when the St. Lawrence River is closed some ships come in at Halifax there (indicating on map), for which we run our own cars over the Intercolonial road up to St. Johns, New Brunswick, and then on up right through Maine up to Montreal.

4892

Q. Then this road in Maine is utilized during the winter when the St. Lawrence Gulf is not navigable in carrying your passengers, steerage and others, through Maine and the United States to Montreal? A. Yes.

Q. And that is true of all passengers destined by the steamship line and landed here, destined to Canada? A. In winter all passengers using the Canadian Pacific trains have to go up through Maine and the Canadian Pacific Railway to Montreal, if they are going there.

4893

Q. Now, do you deliver steerage passengers in Maine during the winter while you are obliged to go around there? A. No, sir, unless an odd one happens to be ticketed, and then, of course, he would be handled by the United States Immigration Department. I might say that the United States Immigration Department look after matters to see that none of the immigrants leave the train in passing through Maine. There is no such thing as escape. An odd man might be ticketed to Matteawamkeag, Maine; he might be going there. He is then passed by the officers here; we have a staff of American officers at our ports who perform the same duties exactly as at Ellis Island.

Q. As to those coming into the United States; in the summer you don't utilize this for the transporta-4894 tion of immigrants? A. Unless an odd steamer might drop into Halifax; such things have been known.

Q. Is that extraordinary, infrequent? A. Sometimes German ships come into Halifax too, for instance—it is usually business for Canada. A German ship running from the continent to New York, if she had a lot of passengers for Canada, she would drop in at Halifax and put them off, you see, and then go on to New York.

Q. What do you mean by a German ship? A. Well, the Hamburg-American Company, for instance, delivered passengers in that way.

4895 Q. What has the Canadian Pacific to do with that, except to transport them over the rails? A. That is all.

Q. Then as to the steerage brought over by your own ships destined to Canada are delivered, except when the St. Lawrence is locked with ice and not navigable,—are delivered at Quebec? A. Yes, all immigrants must be landed at Quebec just the same as all immigrants coming in here must be landed at Ellis Island.

Q. That is the law, is it? A. That is the law.

Mr. Spooner: Do you want me to prove that that is the law?

4896 Mr. Guiler: I don't know that he knows that that is the law, I don't want to put you to unnecessary trouble.

Mr. Spooner: I do not wish to prove it by him.

Mr. Guiler: If he knows that that is a fact, let it go.

The Witness: Yes, that is the fact.

Mr. Spooner: He has been charged with the execution of that act as far as the steamship is concerned.

4897

Mr. Guiler: You know, that they must land at these places at the particular seasons mentioned?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. Now, point out the other lines that make up one hundred and ninety-seven miles in the United States? A. Then we have a spur to Houlton here (indicating on map), in Maine. There is the boundary line there between Maine and New Brunswick (indicating on map), a distance of three miles from the boundary line to Houlton in Maine, shown there (indicating on map)

Mr. Spooner: You delivered steerage there to Houlton? A. If an odd man was ticketed to Houlton he would be carried up there. 4898

Mr. Guiler: If he was going there he would go there?

The Witness: He would be properly transferred up there to Houlton.

Q. Do you know of any going there? A. No. It is a fair assumption in all these years an odd man did want to come into Maine and did come into Maine. Now comes Presque Isle. From the international boundary line between New Brunswick and Maine is a distance of 29.2 miles. Fort Fairfield seems to be the first station, just across the line in Maine. Then we get up to the international boundary line to North Troy, .72 of a mile. 4899

Q. Presque Isle—does steerage traffic utilize that? A. No, sir, an odd man may be ticketed up there, but the business is all going out here (indicating on map), I mean out west, in the United States and Canada. It is an extension from one of these lines here (indicating on map), to North Troy, in Vermont, just to get the track into the little village for the accommodation of people.

Mr. Guiler: From where is that an extension?

The Witness: From the international line from Quebec in Vermont, to North Troy.

4900 Mr. Guiler: Where is North Troy?

The Witness: There (indicating on map). That little line is so small that it is not shown there. It is just a little spur into the town. Then the next is Richford and Newport districts—twenty-one miles in Vermont. The line starts at Abercorn on the International line and crosses into Vermont at Richford, and then goes back again into Quebec and returns again into Vermont at Highwater, down to Newport, Vermont. You see it forms a letter S. It comes down from the boundary line and then back again. That is a distance of twenty-one miles.

4901 Q. These lines to which you have testified and which you have pointed out on the map are, or are they not the only lines or railroad owned and operated by the Canadian Pacific in the United States? A. They are the only lines owned and operated direct by the Canadian Pacific in the United States. These are the lines that we operate there.

Q. Now, you have no line, therefore, running from Chicago to Canada? A. No, sir.

Q. If a ticket—steerage ticket—is sold in Chicago by way of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Line to Liverpool, the transportation of that passenger in the United States is entirely by a railway of the 4902 United States, is it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the only rail transportation, all the rail transportation which is involved in getting that passenger to the steamship, which is done directly or indirectly by the Canadian Pacific, is done in Canada? A. A ticket would be supplied to a purchaser in Chicago. The Wabash Railway is a direct connection of the Canadian Pacific Railway, being, of course, an entirely separate and independent railroad itself. It forms a connection by which passengers from the Canadian Pacific Railway to and from Detroit would pass if they were going to and from Chicago, therefore, a ticket would be obtained of the Wabash, issued by the Wabash Company and handed to the passenger entitling him to transportation over the Wabash Railway from Chicago to Detroit, and from Detroit to Montreal over the Canadian Pacific Railway. The rates at which those tickets would be issued would be the published rates sanctioned by the Interstate Commission—those rates would not be deviated from—and the proportion that each company would obtain would be such proportion as had been usual to divide upon—agreed upon—agreed proportion. That is also sanctioned by the Interstate Commission.

4903

4904

Q. The coupon which carries the passenger over a railroad in Canada to the port from which he is to sail is a Canadian Railway ticket or coupon? A. From Detroit to Montreal or Quebec.

Q. If an order for a railroad ticket is sold to a steerage passenger on the other side by way of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Line in Chicago, how would it be? A. An order drawn on the Canadian Pacific Railway, from, we will say, England, for a ticket from Chicago to England.

Q. Well, sir, from Quebec to Montreal or Chicago. I am going from Liverpool now to Chicago? A. Well, the ticket or order would be presented at Quebec if it had a route designated upon it.

4905

Q. Suppose it did not? A. Then it would go over the Canadian Pacific Railroad. The passenger would be sent over the Canadian Pacific Railway from Quebec to Detroit and over the Wabash from Detroit to Chicago.

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. The Canadian Pacific then, Mr. Kerr, has what we might call a passenger traffic arrangement with the Wabash Railroad for the transfer of its passengers to the Canadian Pacific Railway? A. Yes, sir.

4906 Q. And the Wabash then act, in a certain measure, as a feeder on the Canadian Pacific Railway? A. Yes, sir, they are the direct connection with the Canadian Railway.

Q. Is that term "feeder" the term of the railroad? A. Yes, just as many other roads exchange passengers with the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Mr. Spooner: It is a connection.

Mr. Guiler: I think it supplied—in that sense it supplied passengers.

Mr. Spooner: They all do. I know all about 4907 the connection business—the "feeder" business—I was in that business myself for sixteen years. A feeder railroad don't mean anything, it is simply a connecting railroad.

Q. Now, when the passenger comes into the steamship office in Chicago, he wants a through ticket, doesn't he, from Chicago—say, to London? A. Yes.

Q. And he applies to the Canadian Pacific at Chicago for that ticket, does he not? A. Yes. He applies for the through ticket—through from Chicago to London.

Q. And the agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway supplies him with that through transportation? A.
4908 Yes, if he desires to travel by the Wabash Railroad, and the Canadian Pacific Railway; and if he expresses a desire to go by some other railway, say the Grand Trunk, the agent would go out and get him a ticket, if he wished to go by the Grand Trunk.

Q. But if he simply asks for transportation over the Canadian Pacific, then he is supplied with tickets over the Wabash and the Canadian Pacific and with a steamship ticket to London? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Immediately? A. Well, he is supplied with a steamship ticket to Liverpool and with an order—what we call a forwarding order—an order on the railway in Liverpool to supply him with a railway ticket from Liverpool to London.

4909

Mr. Spooner: Which he is to pay in the United States?

The Witness: Yes.

Q. What form does the ticket from the Wabash to the Canadian Pacific take? A. First it is the usual railway ticket in two coupons, Wabash contract, Wabash issue coupon, reading from Chicago to Detroit over the Wabash road, the other coupons reading from Detroit to Montreal by the Canadian Pacific. That finishes that. Then when he gets on board the ship the steamship contract begins.

4910

Q. Your agent does not—I want to get this clear—your agent issues that ticket on the spot, does he, without going to the office of the Wabash Railroad? A. He may have some of the Wabash issue or he may have to send out for it.

Q. I understood you to say that the ticket was in the form of an attached—that is, the ticket was an entire ticket with coupons which could be torn off—a coupon ticket covering the whole road? A. No, a coupon railway ticket, covering the road from Chicago to Montreal. Then a steamship ticket from Montreal to Liverpool, and then a forwarding order from Liverpool to London. The first is a railway ticket.

4911

Q. How far does that carry him? A. Montreal.

Q. Including the Wabash transportation? A. Yes, and it is the Wabash issue of ticket.

Q. Issued by your agent? A. Issued through our agent, yes. He would either send out for it and get it to save you trouble if you were the purchaser or if you desired to go out and purchase your own ticket you might do so.

Q. As a matter of fact under the arrangement which you have mentioned with the Wabash Railroad your agent has authority to issue these tickets and issues a through ticket. A. If he is supplied with a supply of Wabash tickets by the Wabash road, yes, that would authorize him to issue them. As a general rule initial roads prefer to issue their own tickets in their own offices. We are not an initial road in Chicago.

Q. I am assuming that he is going to the Canadian Pacific office—he can get it right there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Over the route to Montreal? A. Yes, sir.

4913 Q. And as a general rule, does get it there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. If he asks for it and has got the money and can pay for it? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Spooner: In selling that ticket you sell the Wabash part of it as the agent of the Wabash Company?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. Guiler: That is a question of law, Senator.

Mr. Spooner: It seems to be a question of law a hundred years ago.

Mr. Guiler: No, it is a question of law. I am trying to get the facts to show just what 4914 is done there.

Mr. Spooner: I want the whole facts.

Mr. Guiler: I do, too.

Q. You have agencies in London, have you not, for the selling of your tickets? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And also for the sale of through tickets over the Canadian Pacific to Chicago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, the form of that ticket is similar to the other ticket is it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is issued first of all in the form of a railroad ticket from London to Liverpool? A. Our vessels sail from Liverpool.

4915

Q. Then you sell one ticket with various coupons on it—you sell a through ticket to Chicago, do you not, from London? A. No, sir.

Q. What do you do—first of all—tell me just the form it takes? A. First the railway ticket from London to Liverpool—we will say the London & Northwestern Railroad; then comes the steamship ticket, a separate and distinct contract from Liverpool to Quebec, then a railway ticket.

Q. That is, an order isn't it? A. Well he brings an order and he is supplied with a railway ticket.

4916

Q. Well, the railway order is attached to the steamship ticket? A. In many cases they issue the railway ticket in London.

Q. As a general rule, it is a railway ticket? A. For steerage. I believe it to be an order for a railway ticket—it is a forwarding order.

Q. It is a forwarding order to Chicago which would be honored by the Canadian Pacific and the Wabash Railway when presented? A. When presented at Quebec to the agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, he would supply the ordinary coupon ticket right from Quebec to Chicago over the Canadian Pacific Railway to Detroit, thence over the Wabash from Detroit to Chicago.

4917

Q. Now Chicago is in what passenger association? Western Passenger Association, isn't it? A. Well, yes, in a way that is—

Q. Or is it in the Central Passenger Association? A. No, I think the line is drawn there. Everything west of Chicago to the eastern boundaries of the Pacific coast states is the Western Passenger Association. East of Chicago down to the Niagara River and through there is the Central Passenger Association.

Q. Do you know whether Chicago is in the western or central? A. If the business is coming east it would come from or through the central territory. If it is going west it would go through the western passenger territory.

Q. Assuming that the passenger is coming east, you would receive from the Central Passenger Association the ten per cent commission or commercial allowance which you might have spoken of the other day, would you not. That is, the Canadian Pacific would receive that, the Canadian Steamship Company? A. If the business went over the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company, yes, sir.

4919 Q. They would receive a commercial allowance of ten per cent? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That being based on the cost of transportation from Chicago to the Seaboard—is that right? A. Yes, there are maximum limits—$1.50.

Q. This is beyond the maximum limit? A. No, I don't say yes to that.

Q. Well, to obviate that, assume that it comes from a point in the Western Passenger Association's territory, as far west as you can get—now you would receive that ten per cent would you not—commercial allowance, based on railroad fare? A. Yes, sir, with a limit of seventy-five cents per ticket.

4920 Q. And that applies to the transportation from any point in the Western or Central Passenger Association? A. Anything that goes over Central or Western Passenger Association.

Q. You spoke of the Hamburg-American Line bringing over certain passengers to the United States and disembarking them at Halifax through Maine.

Mr. Beers: Did you say the Hamburg-American—what line did you say?

Mr. Guiler: Hamburg-American Line.

Q. You honored the Hamburg-American Line rail orders over the Canadian Pacific the same as you would any other Conference Lines? A. Yes, sir, I may say the Hamburg-American Line has now a regular service into Montreal in the summer time and consequently I don't think they now do land any ships at Halifax.

4921

Q. Wherever they did land, you honored their railway orders? A. Yes.

Q. Glad to get them? A. Yes.

Q. Now you have arrangements have you not with other lines besides the Wabash Railroad for the carriage of passengers in the United States—passenger traffic arrangements? A. Certainly we will take pas- 4922 sengers from any line, as any line will take from us.

Q. That is if a man wants to go to San Francisco, say, by way of Chicago over your line from Montreal to Detroit, Chicago and San Francisco, you will sell him that ticket? A. We will ticket him right through to San Francisco by any line he wishes to go by.

Q. Those are under the same joint traffic arrangements with those I have mentioned? A. Yes, given to all railroads in the United States and Canada to interchange.

Q. Now you mentioned that certain immigration officers were at the port of Montreal and Quebec; I think you have said American Immigration officers; 4923 what do they do, American Immigration officers? Are they employed by the United States and stationed at Montreal and Quebec? A. Yes, sir, St. Johns, and Halifax in the winter.

Q. Do they examine the baggage of passengers at these points? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Spooner: You don't mean "all" passengers.

Mr. Guiler: Passengers destined to the United States.

4924

The Witness: All passengers coming in on the ships are examined by the United States officers and the Canadian officers.

Mr. Spooner: At the boundary line they examined them.

Mr. Guiler: I was coming to that.

Q. Now, after they are examined is the baggage of those various passengers examined also there at Halifax and those various places you have mentioned? A. Yes, sir.

4925 Q. After that are they permitted to go through to, say, Chicago, or other points in the United States without any further examination? A. Yes, sir, they cannot proceed until they have received their passport.

Q. So they are given their passport which admits them to the United States? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they are not further troubled by the customs officers at the boundary line? A. Not if they have got their baggage passed by the American customs officers who are in Quebec and Montreal and at Toronto and various points in Canada, just as we have Canadian officers for the accommodation of the public at various points like in Chicago.

4926 Q. By what authority—if you know of it—do the United States officers examine the baggage in a foreign country?

Mr. Spooner: Comity?

The Witness: Comity.

Q. You don't know any specific act or law which permits the United States to do that? A. The Canadian Government permit and sanction the American officers to perform their duties at the Canadian ports in order to facilitate and to assist and make easy for the passengers to pass through Canada and on to the United States.

4927

Q. It is to obviate the examination at the boundary —is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that the passenger may proceed straight through to his destination? A. Yes, sir. Now, the United States allows Canadian Customs officers to perform their functions in the United States.

Q. Is the medical examination made by a medical officer at the ports in Canada which you have mentioned? A. Yes, sir.

Hearing adjourned to Friday afternoon at two o'clock, December 6, 1912.

4928

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against

HAMBURG - AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others,
Defendants.

4929

Before Chares E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, December 6, 1912.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the Petitioner.

4930 Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles C. Burlingham, Esq., and Charles Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for the Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers, Esq., and Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for the Russian East Asiatic Company, et al.

Upon the statement by Mr. Spooner that he would be unable to proceed at this hearing, and by direction of the Special Examiner an adjournment was taken 4931 until Tuesday, December 10, 1912, at 11 o'clock A. M.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
4932 HAMBURG - AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others,
Defendants.

Before Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, December 10th, 1912.

Upon consent hearing adjourned until Monday, December 23rd, 1912, at 11:00 o'clock A. M.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 4933

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG - AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others,
Defendants.

4934

Before Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, December 23rd, 1912.

At the request of Messrs. Spooner & Cotton, the hearing was adjourned until Thursday, January 9th, 1913, at 11:00 o'clock A. M.

4935

4936 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,

against

HAMBURG - AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others,
Defendants.

4937

Before Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, January 8, 1913.

At the request of Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, the hearing was adjourned until Friday, January 10, 1913, at 11 o'clock A. M.

4938

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 4939

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG - AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others,
Defendants.

4940

Before Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, January 10th ,1913.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Norman B. Beecher, Esq., and Charles Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for the Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

4941

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers, Esq., and Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for the Russian East Asiatic Company, et al.

Mr. Beers: I state on the record that Senator Spooner has communicated with me by telephone, from Washington this morning, and stated that he was detained there before a Congressional Committee and would not be able to attend the hearing today, but asked that the hearing be not postponed on that account.

4942 James C. Barr

Mr. Guiler: He made no objection to its going on.

JAMES C. BARR, called on behalf of the defense, testified as follows:

Direct-examination by Mr. Beers:

Q. Captain Barr, you are connected with the Cunard Steamship Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what capacity? A. Command of the steamer

4943 Carmania.

Q. How long have you been connected with the Cunard Company? A. Twenty-seven years.

Q. How long have you followed the sea? A. Forty years.

Q. Well, state what your first experience on the sea was; that is, what position you held before you entered the service of the Cunard Company? A. I went to sea as an apprentice in an English sailing ship. I finished my apprenticeship there, and filled various positions before the mast in steamers and as officer in sailing ships until I passed for Master Mariner, after which I joined the Cunard Steamship Company, as Fourth Officer in 1885.

4944 Q. And will you state, please, what positions you have held in the Cunard Company from the time you first joined the service as Fourth Officer? A. Every position, up to 1899, when I took command of the Catalonia.

Q. That is, do I understand, Fourth Officer, and then Third, and so on? A. All through the grades; from fourth to chief.

Q. And how many intermediate positions are there between fourth and chief? A. Six.

4945

Q. Will you state what those positions are, please? A. There are fourth, third, second, first and chief; that is six.

Q. How much time did you actually spend on each of those grades, Captain? A. I could not say from memory.

Q. About how much? A. I could not even guess.

Q. How long did you say it was between the time you joined the service as Fourth Officer, and the time you had independent command? A. Fourteen years.

Q. And was that fourteen years about evenly distributed between these various grades? A. Yes.

4946

Q. Do you know the basis on which promotions are made in the Cunard service? A. I should say merit.

Q. Will you describe the system as to education and training which has been required by the Cunard Company to your knowledge, in respect to the advancement and training of officers as a preliminary to their promotion? A. In the first place, an officer must have got a certificate to act as a Master Mariner before his application will be entertained.

Q. For any grade? A. For any grade. He enters the service, if his credentials are satisfactory, as Fourth Officer. After that he is reported upon by various ship captains with whom he sails, officially, twice annually.

4947

Q. That is reported to the company? A. To the company, to headquarters. The promotion is in the hands of the company. These reports have got a strong bearing on his promotion and the men are promoted from time to time as the vacancies occur. I think that is all I can say.

Q. Are promotions on a time basis or on a merit basis? A. Merit basis.

Q. After you had independent command in the Cunard Fleet, and commencing, as you have said, with 4948 the Catalonia, what Cunard steamers have you commanded? A. Catalonia, Sylvania, Veria, Saxonia, Carpathia, Slavonia, Caronia, Lucania and Carmania.

Q. You are at present in command of the Carmania? A. Captain of the Carmania and am Commander of the fleet.

Q. How large a crew do you now command on the Carmania? A. Four hundred and fifty, within a few.

Q. How many passengers can the Carmania carry? A. It is difficult to answer that because they fluctuate.

Q. About what is the capacity? A. With a crew 4949 of about eight hundred, I have had as many as two thousand souls on board.

Q. That has been the largest number of persons you have had aboard the ship? A. Yes.

Q. Will you describe in a general way what your duties as captain are? A. As the captain of the ship I am responsible to the Government, and to the company, for all things happening on that ship. The heads of each department are responsible to me in their turn for everything going right in that department. All complaints are brought to me, and I have general supervision over the whole ship for cleanliness, morals and safety, as a part of my duties.

4950 Q. What are your duties in respect to the health of passengers and the sanitary condition of the ship? A. I think that is all covered in the answer to the last question. All that pertains to the well-being of the passengers; morals, health—that is all part of my duty.

Q. In your experience do there frequently occur serious problems connected with the health of the passengers and crew, with which you have to deal? A. The service is so well organized now that they do not occur frequently, though they do occur.

4951

Q. In cases of sickness and death, and things of that sort? A. Well, those are common matters.

Q. In respect to the maintenance of order in the vessel, what are your particular duties—you have referred to it generally, but can you enlarge upon that? A. The head of any department having any difficulty, would refer to me. It would be then my duty to take action, such action as seemed to me proper at the time.

Q. Am I right in understanding that you are the representative of organized government on the ship? A. Yes.

4952

Q. And in maintenance of order what are your powers? A. I have plenary powers.

Q. Do you occasionally have to exercise those powers? A. I have exercised those powers.

Q. What are your duties in respect to hearing complaints? A. Any passenger or member of the crew feeling aggrieved may have access to me at any time. All complaints are supposed to be made through me.

Q. What are your duties with respect to inspection of the ship or of the passengers? A. An official inspection is made by myself, the purser, the doctor, and chief steward, at ten A. M., each day, during the whole of the passenger's quarters and conveniences used by passengers are inspected. Frequent inspections are made by the officers during the nighttime, and an unofficial inspection may be made by myself at any time.

4953

Q. Have you any duty with respect to reporting as to the record and capabilities of officers serving under you on the ship? A. Yes, twice annually I am caused to make a special report on the qualifications of each officer, to the company.

4954 Q. When you refer to his qualifications you mean qualifications for what Captain? A. For his ability, and for his general attitude. He might be a good navigator, and not be able to handle men well, or vice versa, such matters as that would be mentioned in my report.

Q. Does the Cunard Company ever appoint an officer to any of its ships who is not of their own training? A. No, sir.

Q. Never takes one from outside? A. Never from outside. They all come in at the bottom grade and work up.

4955 Q. That is always a condition of independent command, of the company? A. Always; never broken.

Q. Are you familiar, from your experience, with the requirements on all the ships of the Cunard fleet, so far as discipline and method is concerned? A. Oh, yes.

Q. And you have testified to certain matters which come within your duty; would what you say apply to the duty of all captains in the Cunard service? A. Yes.

Q. From your experience at sea, Captain, can you state what the value is to the public, of having officers of passenger steamships kept under observation for 4956 a considerable period of years, before being entrusted with ultimate authority? A. I don't think that in any other way desirable officers could be obtained.

Q. To what extent have you in your experience at sea, have you been about the world—in what routes have you been occupied? A. With the exception of China and Japan, I have practically visited all ports of the world.

Q. From your experience can you state whether the duties resting on an officer in the North Atlantic Passenger business differ from the duties of officers serving elsewhere on the sea, and if so, to what extent do they differ? A. I should say yes. The weather is, as a rule, worse. There are more fogs, more gales. It is a frequently used route, a busy route, so that it would be a harder trade.

4957

Q. How is it as to size of ships? A. The ships are larger and speedier.

Q. How as to the number of passengers? A. They carry very large numbers of passengers, much more so than any other trade.

Q. As to the point of number of passengers carried, how does the North Atlantic route compare with any other passenger route in the world? A. I should say very much better.

4958

Q. If a ship which had been engaged in traffic of a different sort were transferred with their former officers into the North Atlantic passenger business, what, in your judgment, what in your opinion, would be the result so far as regards the meeting of the requirements as they now exist in the North Atlantic business? A. I think he might expect to find chaos. That seems to be rather strong, but I don't think they could be met.

Mr. Guiler: I think you ought to specify there, Mr. Beers, what trade you are talking about. I think the question there is objectionable on the ground that it is too general, and does not specify just what ports you mean transferred from, whether the trade is passenger or freight, or what it is; and that the answer is objectionable.

4959

Mr. Beers: Perhaps I can bring it out by further questions. We will let that stand.

By Mr. Beers:

Q. Will you state whether in your opinion the requirements of the passenger service in the North At-4960 lantic are such as to require special training for that service? A. Yes.

Q. Would it, in your opinion, be possible to train, in a short time, for that service, officers who had not previously been familiar with it? A. It is a little bit difficult to answer that question because if a man were brought in and trained awhile, he would be a good fourth officer, but if you had to train the whole staff, it would be very difficult indeed.

Q. What, in your opinion, do the present requirements of the North Atlantic passenger business demand in respect to the length of training of officers 4961 operating ships on that route—particularly captains. I refer to the length of training? A. I don't find it easy to frame a reply to that. The answer to the former question shows that I consider rather more training is necessary for that trade than any other, and as to the length of training required, I could hardly put it into any single portion of time.

Q. Is it in your opinion necessary that officers commanding vessels in the North Atlantic passenger business should receive training through a certain period of years in order to be fitted for that command? A. Surely.

Q. What—would it be possible to meet the require-4962 ments of this class of business without relatively long training of officers? A. No.

Q. Are you acquainted with the officials in the head office of the Cunard Company at Liverpool? A. Oh, yes; I see them every voyage.

Q. What position in the company does Mr. Lister hold? A. Mr. Lister of Liverpool?

Q. Of Liverpool? A. He is the head of all the passenger department, each of which has its own head, and he is the head of all.

4963

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. I have forgotten just now, Captain, what other trades have you been engaged in besides the North Atlantic trade; will you name those for me? A. I served my time in the Cape Horn trade.

Q. That is from where to where? A. From Liverpool and other continental ports around Cape Horn to Chile, Peru and up as far north as Portland, Oregon, also New Zealand, during that same period of apprenticeship. After that I was sometime in the West Indian trade. That is this present trade before the mast.

4964

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. I wanted outside this trade? A. Sometime in the West Indian and Brazil trade.

Q. Did you sail in China seas at all? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you frequently make any stops at the Mexican ports, South American ports on the way to Portland, Oregon? A. No, we made no stops. In those sailing ship days, we made long voyages.

Q. These were the sailing ship days? A. After that I came into some sailing ship experiences in the West Indies.

Q. Have you had any steamship experience with those places? A. Not in those places, no. 4965

Q. Then the most of your steamship experience has been confined to the North Atlantic? A. Yes, but I have had experiences outside in the Mediterranean trades, and in the New York and Mediterranean winter cruises, and in cruising from the West Indies to the coast of Africa, and considerable experience in cruising to South Africa and India; outside of this trade altogether.

Q. Did you not find, Captain, that it took quite as much experience to handle a vessel in the West Indian trade as in the North Atlantic trade? A. No.

4966 Q. Isn't it frequent that tornadoes and cyclones come up there which requires a pretty good man to handle a boat? A. Such things do occur, but they are not frequent.

Q. It requires a man to be very well experienced? A. It wants an experienced navigator.

Q. In any trade? A. In any trade.

Q. What I am getting at is, would not it require as good a man in the West Indian and Mediterranean trade, as it would on the North Atlantic, to handle steam vessels? A. No; for the reason that the 4967 weather is not so persistently bad and they don't carry such large numbers of people.

Q. Take the Pacific Coast, for instance, from San Francisco down to Panama, in that stretch of territory there, have you not very often experienced very severe tropical storms, and even worse, you might say than you might here? A. As I have already said, an experienced navigator is necessary in any part of the world. The points I had under consideration is handling large numbers of people in a short time and at high speeds.

Q. You were speaking more of the handling of the people than the actual handling of the vessel when you spoke about that, were you? A. I was.

4968 Q. But a man in those other trades might be just as well experienced to handle the vessel, might he not? A. Oh, yes.

Q. And generally is experienced to handle a vessel in the North Atlantic? A. Yes.

Q. He has got to have those requirements before they would send him in that business? A. He has got to satisfy the Board of Trade that he could take charge of a ship in any port of the world.

Q. The same requirements are required there in the other ports as they are in the North Atlantic as to the inspection of and handling of people? A. And also much longer spells of fog and bad weather. I mean that the North Atlantic has its own special requirements, and any man coming in from the outside finds that out quick.

4969

Q. So far as the handling of passengers—the internal affairs of the vessel—a man who has had experience in a steamship outside of the North Atlantic, could handle a ship in the North Atlantic as well, in a very short time? A. It would take some little time. You find outside men coming in don't get accustomed to it all at once.

4970

Q. How long would it take to become accustomed; I am leaving out the internal management of the vessel, the running of the ship? A. It would depend upon the stamina of the man. If he was an Alexander Hamilton he might tumble right away.

Q. It depends upon the abilities of the particular man, how long it would take? A. Surely.

Q. You have bright men and dull men on the sea as well as anywhere else? A. Yes.

Q. And the bright men don't always get the good positions, do they; I am asking you from your experience now? A. They have the best chance.

Q. But they don't always get the positions? A. Don't always get them.

4971

Q. But take it in general, a man of average aptitude and equal training, that you have described is required for the running of all boats, it would not take so very long for the man to become accustomed to the North Atlantic trade? A. No, but if the man were going into the trade where all the rest of the people on board the ship were trained to that particular trade, he would take much shorter time in falling into line. If he had to whip up a whole crew, it would take considerable time.

Q. It is very seldom that a man has to do that? A. Very rarely.

4972

Q. He generally walks into a ship where the service is already formed? A. Unless it might be a new ship.

Q. Ordinarily a man, when he is placed on the Atlantic trade at all, arrives there with the officers and equipment necessary for that trade, and also the men who are used to that trade? A. Yes.

Q. Now the United States Government has—you are acquainted with the matter of requirements of third-class passengers, are you; I think you stated you were, on the North Atlantic trade? A. Broadly, yes.

4973 Q. If you really represent your company wherever you are, whether you are in England or touch in the United States, you represent them as regards this government, the United States Government, and the English Government? A. I should be the figurehead.

Q. I mean in the actual management of the passengers? A. Yes.

Q. Now you know of requirements, do you not, by the United States Government, that certain space must be provided for steerage passengers, don't you? A. Yes.

Q. That the United States Government makes requirement that each third-class passenger should have a certain space in which to sleep; is that right? A.

4974 I could not name the specifications offhand.

Q. The principal one is that he should have certain sleeping space? A. Yes.

Q. And that is required by law? A. Yes.

Q. How long has that been in effect; that law in regard to space, to your knowledge how long have you been required to do that? A. Well, I could not go into the question.

Q. Roughly? A. I think that has always been so.

Q. As far as your experience goes? A. Yes.

4975

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION by Mr. Beers:

Q. Does the passenger business on the North Atlantic require the training of a large number of subordinate officers of the ship? A. Yes.

Q. You have testified as to the officers of minor grade under you, navigating officers, what other officers on the ship report to you in addition to the Chief, the First, Second, Third and Fourth Officer? A. The Chief Steward, Purser and Doctor.

Q. And how about the engine force? A. Chief Engineer, also.

4976

Q. About how many subordinate officers are there on the Carmania between you and the crew? A. There are six or seven navigating officers. The engineers—I don't know how many. I only deal with them through the Chief. Each department has its Chief Steward; first-class steward, second-class steward and third-class steward. Then there are watchmen and inspectors of those watchmen, a master of arms; sort of ship's police. I think that includes all.

Q. In the Cunard service, are those subordinate positions to which you have referred occupied by men who remain in the company's service for a considerable period of time? A. They don't get those positions until they have been there for some considerable period of time.

4977

Q. Do the duties of a Captain in the North Atlantic passenger service involve special strain and insight? A. Yes.

Q. Why? A. For the reasons before stated: the large number of people carried, the speed of the ships and the weather met with.

Hearing adjourned to Thursday, January 16th, at 11 A. M. and Friday, January 17th, at 11 A. M.

4978 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,

against

HAMBURG - AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others,
Defendants.

4979 Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, January 16th, 1913.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for the Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers, 4980 Esq., and Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et al.

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton, by Mr. Franklin, for the Allan Line, et al.

Upon consent hearing adjourned to Friday, January 17th, 1913, at 11 o'clock A. M.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 4981

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG - AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others,
Defendants.

4982

Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, January 17, 1913.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles Burlingham, Jr., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for the Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers, Esq., and Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et al. 4983

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton, by J. C. Spooner, Esq., for the Allan Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., and Walter Rogers Deuel, Esq., for Russian East Asiatic Company, et al.

4984 Edward A. Drake

EDWARD A. DRAKE, called on behalf of the defense, being first sworn, testified as follows:

Direct-examination by Mr. Bullowa:

Q. Mr. Drake, you are vice president of the Panama Railroad Company? A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been connected with the Panama Railroad Company? A. Twenty-five years.

Q. And the Panama Railroad Company at present and since the Government has taken over the building of the canal at Panama has been owned by the United 4985 States Government? A. The Government owns the Panama Railroad.

Q. And the Panama Railroad Company operates a line of steamers from New York to Colon? A. In connection with this railroad.

Q. And your experience with the operations of steamships has been for the period of about twenty-five years? A. Since 1893, when we inaugurated the line.

Q. Mr. Drake, in your opinion, how much more does a steamship line have to earn, to earn the equivalent of six per cent on a railroad investment?

Mr. Guiler: Do you think Mr. Drake has 4986 been qualified to answer that question yet?

Mr. Bullowa: All right, strike it out.

Q. You have entire charge, Mr. Drake, of the operation of the steamship line, have you not? A. I am the executive officer.

Q. And you have been since about when? A. When it was inaugurated in 1893.

Q. And you have charge of its finances? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know the cost of its operation? A. It is all a matter of record in our accounting department.

4987

Q. You are in charge of the financial operation of the steamship line? A. Of the railroad as well.

Q. And of the railroad? A. Yes.

Mr. Bullowa: I think he is qualified.

Q. Mr. Drake, in your opinion, how much more does a steamship line have to make to earn the equivalent of six per cent on a railroad investment?

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant and calling for conclusion and ask to have it stricken out.

4988

A. I always expressed my opinion broadly on that point, but I believe it is a maxim in transportation circles, that a steamship line has to earn from twelve to twenty per cent to make it equivalent to six per cent earned by a railroad.

Q. Will you state the reason for expressing that opinion? A. Well, there are so many instances and exigencies that affect the operation of a steamship line or of a vessel that cannot possibly apply to the operation of a railroad.

Q. Will you give several of those instances? A. Well, perils of the sea, difficulties in maintaining schedule, arbitrary changes in cost of operation.

4989

Q. Such as what? A. Wages, cost of material, fuel; I don't mean that those latter items don't affect railroads. It is the effect of those combined.

Q. I suppose you cannot spot a vessel as you can a car?

Mr. Guiler: What do you mean by "spot"?

The Witness: If you say a ship will be on berth on the 9th of the month at a given hour, there is no certainty that it would be there. It depends upon the elements and upon a thousand and one things.

Q. Mr. Drake, you have—the Panama Railroad Company have a minimum rate across the Isthmus? A. We have in through billing.

4990 Mr. Guiler: I object to this question and to this whole line of testimony as not within the issues. The Panama Steamship Company or railroad is in no way concerned in the North Atlantic trade.

Q. What was the object of that minimum rate? A. To prevent discrimination between carriers and to insure the company's securing an adequate return for its services.

Q. What carriers do you refer to? A. To all our connecting co-carriers engaged in through billing.

4991 Q. Steamship lines? A. Yes, the railroad operates across the Isthmus and has a terminal on each end; each ocean, and has connecting companies termed co-carriers.

Q. Prior to the formation and operation of the California Atlantic Steamship Company, did you have any difficulty in preserving your rates? A. We never had any difficulty at any time.

Q. What was the object at the time of the formation of the California Atlantic Steamship Company in making the minimum rate? A. The California Atlantic Steamship Company has not been defined here yet, but it was a steamship line organized to 4992 engage solely in what is known as coastwise traffic, that is traffic between the United States coast points on both oceans, via the Isthmus. The Panama Railroad Company does its business on the basis of agreed tariffs, classified in the case of the coastwise, with minimum rates established, or basic rates, I may say, established for the purpose of—as I stated before—of securing an adequate return to the railroad for services it performed.

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. Mr. Drake, when you say "agreed" rate, agreed with whom? A. Practically issued by ourselves.

4993

That that may be understood on what is known as eastbound traffic, we have a classified tariff, that is, cargo coming this way from the Pacific Coast to the Atlantic Coast, we have a tariff based on forty cents per hundred pounds or $8.00 per net ton for rough, coarse goods. Westbound, we have a tariff based on forty-five cents a hundred, or $9.00 per net ton. Those rates are divided between the carriers on the basis of the service performed.

Q. That is, between the railroad company and the steamship companies? A. Between the railroad company and the carrier on the Pacific.

4994

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. Now, on the traffic which originates in New York, and is diverted to the various lines at Panama to the Pacific Coast, do you divide the traffic between the various lines? A. What do you mean by traffic? Passenger or cargo?

Q. Either or both? A. With passenger—there is a modus operandi with both—on the through rates to points beyond the Isthmus, there is a through tariff on cargo divided on given established percentages, and the passenger rate is made up of practically the sum total of the locals. We have a rate to the Isthmus of $75 to Colon and $78 to Panama and for points be- 4995 yond the Isthmus the passenger order is issued on the local agent of the on-carrier who issues the ticket on that order—upon the payment of the freight money —that he may respect, and we, having collected it at this end, account for it later.

Q. Do you have more than one class of passengers to the Isthmus? A. We have cabin and steerage only.

Q. What is the steerage rate to the Isthmus? A. $30.

4996 Q. What is the distance? A. One thousand nine hundred and eighty-five miles.

Mr. Guiler: From where to where?

The Witness: From New York to Cristobal or Colon.

Q. Do you find that is a paying rate?

Mr. Guiler: That is a question of law—that is a conclusion.

Q. Do you find it is a paying rate? A. Yes, at times it is remunerative and others not.

4997 Q. Well, how does the rate of $30 remunerate you? A. It is a satisfactory rate for steerage accommodations; at any rate, it is our rate.

Q. In steerage accommodations you have no separate berths? A. They are under United States regulations.

Q. But not in excess of the regulations regarding steerage rates? A. We comply with regulations, that is all. The Panama Railroad is a corporation under a charter from the State of New York, and is operated as a corporation.

Q. But is owned by the United States Government? A. Yes.

4998 Q. Except the qualifying shares? A. Yes, and those are.

Q. Not nominally in the name of the director? A. My share is in my own name; it belongs to me; I paid for it. The Government has control of it, of course.

Q. Now, as far as the traffic after it leaves the Isthmus, do you divide it in any proportion among the various lines on the Pacific Coast? A. Freight traffic, we do.

Q. How is that divided? A. On a scale of percentages.

4999

Q. To the different lines? A. No, uniform according to service; service to the north of Panama is divided on one basis, to the south on another.

Q. I mean under—I refer to the proportions among the several lines? A. The proportion of cargo—the companies solicit their own traffic at New York, and when it is brought to us we carry it according to the bill of lading that is issued.

Q. Any traffic that originates directly with you, how is that? A. That is what is known as a routed bill of lading.

Q. How do you apportion that on the Isthmus? 5000
A. On the principle that if there is only one steamer on the berth to sail for the departure named in the bill of lading all of that class of cargo is given to that steamer. If there are two, it is divided; if there are three, it is divided. The basis principle being equal treatment to all.

Q. Now, prior to the formation of the California Atlantic did you find that the Pacific Mail was cutting your through rate? A. Oh, no. I don't know that the Pacific Mail was ever charged with that. They were charged with not encouraging the business; not developing it. I never knew they cut rates.

Q. There was a Caribbean Conference, was there not? A. I believe so. 5001

Q. And you acted in an advisory capacity? A. When that Caribbean Conference was organized, it is made up, I believe, of the local heads of the different lines that now run to the Isthmus. It never would have run if I had had my way. They have a periodical meeting, or meeting subject to the call of the chair, I believe. We were invited to become a member, and be represented, and we declined, as the Government does not either recognize or participate in conferences, or be bound in any way by any of their conclusions.

5002 Q. But you attend meetings? A. We have an opportunity to be represented at all of the meetings, or, are invited to attend this Caribbean Conference. They went further than they were authorized and elected us a member, which I repudiated but accepted the invitation to attend meetings on their account, more than ours.

Q. Do you attend those meetings or do you have a representative attend? A. No, I had occasion to question our traffic manager the other day, and he told me that he had not attended more than one or two.

5003 Q. But he had attended one or two? A. He attended the second one, merely to state the attitude of the Government.

Mr. Guiler: Are you trying the Prince Line case, or the Hamburg-American?

Q. Did you enter into an agreement with the Pacific and the California Atlantic at any time? A. Jointly, no, sir.

Q. Was such an agreement discussed? A. No, we don't have any contracts. The Government announced most recently, on May 1, 1911, the conditions under which we would carry on the coastwise traffic, and those conditions are open to anybody who will 5004 comply with them. Under those conditions, the Pacific Mail continued its service.

Q. Do you find that the shipper can secure better service when there is competition in the service than if there was none? A. The volume of traffic increases; I don't know that the service is better; in fact, I should say it was not.

Q. You have also found in your experience that when there was no competition rates increased? A. No; rates are stable. I hardly like to go on record as making a statement of that kind. We are operating under the Government. Initial carriers are given considerable latitude in inaugurating rates or changes in rates, but they have to satisfy the railroad that there is a reason for their action. In through traffic, we assume that anything that would interest an initial carrier in the way of business, would interest the Panama Railroad Company as an intermediate carrier, so that frequently changes of rates are inaugurated, justified, concurred in, by the Panama Railroad, but if there is any attempt to make rates, that are prohibitory, on one hand, or unremunerative on another, we would object, and the old rates would continue in effect.

5005

5006

Q. Well, in operating a steamship line, you find that it is better for these various steamship lines to agree on some minimum rate? A. I don't know about that. The Government does not make a rate or break a rate for any other reason than its own. We have our rates independent of any other lines. I don't know what the motive of their action is.

Q. You don't believe in cutting the rates of an outside line to get the traffic? A. I don't know what you mean.

Q. That is, you won't cut the rate established by the other lines? A. Yes, I will; I will make any rate, and they know it. I may explain there, perhaps. The Panama Railroad, for a great many years, operated the only line between New York and the Isthmus. It was against its policy to admit other lines there because our line begins at New York, and ends at Panama. The Hamburg-American Line, the Atlas Branch, by an appeal to the executive, secured the privilege of connecting with the road at Colon, and afterwards secured the through billing privileges, that is for business beyond to points on the Pacific Coast, and when that was accorded to one line, it was accorded to others, namely, the Royal Mail followed. The United Fruit Company followed and now any line can secure

5007

5008 the same privilege; but originally we had a rate of $8 between New York and Colon—$8 a ton—and a special company's rate, rate for the company's own service. When the Government purchased the railroad, the maximum price was fixed at $5 for the other service; that is the tariff. The Government Line has a direct service between New York and Colon or Cristobal—when the Atlas Line came in they made a deviation to Kingston. Consequently, felt that by that delayed service it was entitled to a differential rate, and made a $4.50 rate. Now, that indirect service was the occasion for the differential desired, but when their serv-
5009 ice improved, and they made practically direct connection, it was expected that they would withdraw the differential on that account. I believe they would have if the Government had made the request of them to do it, but the Government does not ask anybody to advance rates, so there was only one alternative and that was for this company to meet that rate, and I met it and made a $4.50 rate. Subsequently very severe competition developed and I announced for the information of the other lines, that so far as the traffic of the Panama Railroad per se was concerned, I would carry all of it; that is, the company's own purchases. Material is very often bought to be delivered on the Isthmus, 5010 and the shipper tries to get lower rates by using one line as a club on the other. I announced that I would carry all the Panama Railroad's cargo at any price necessary to secure it. Similarly, I announed that I would carry all of the canal commission business—that I had space in the ship for it at any rates that they made among themselves. That brought about a pretty low scale of rates. Through the activities of the United States Steel Products Company, a pretty low basis of competitive rates was established. The other lines complained to me at that time through their different representatives who I don't recall now, that the Government was compelling outside steamship lines to do business at a loss. I told them that did not concern the Government because as we were doing business at a profit. They wanted to know whether if we were asked we would restore the old rates. I told them, no, I would meet any rate that they might make. They announced to me subsequently that they thought $3.50 rate for low grade cargo would be a remunerative rate, and they established it, and that is the rate now. I have gone into this explanation to answer your question, because if they made a fifty cent rate, I would carry at that all cargo they consigned to the Panama Railroad.

5011

5012

Q. In your experience, the result of a series of competitive rates, is to reduce a rate to such an extent, that the carriers carry merchandise at unremunerative rates? A. It was with some, it was not with us. The competition did not affect us.

Q. Because you had a certain amount of Government material to carry? A. We had other business than the local commercial business.

Q. If you had no Government business to Panama would it have been unremunerative? A. We could drop out that business tomorrow. We earned seventy per cent of our revenue from commercial traffic.

5013

Q. At $3.50? A. That is the rate between New York and Colon.

Q. You mean that the railroad would earn it or do you mean that the steamship would earn that? A. What are you referring to?

Q. That seventy per cent of the business; taking the steamship line separate, could you have made a profit at the fifty cent rate? A. No, the business would not have been—

Mr. Guiler: Take them all together.

Mr. Bullowa: That is the railroad.

5014

A. It is the combined earnings of traffic that make the seventy per cent of earnings referred to those of the steamship line are not treated separately. It is a part of the through line.

Q. Well, as a result of the series of competitive rates, the rate would have become unremunerative to the steamship line alone? A. I stated, Mr. Bullowa, that the outside lines claimed that it was unremunerative.

Q. What is your experience? A. That is a matter of surmise. If a large volume of the business had been carried at the lowest rate, it would have been unprofitable.

5015

Q. And the result would have been to have driven out of the business all except the strongest line? A. That is the principle of the survival of the fittest.

Q. That operates in the steamship world?

Mr. Spooner: That operates in every way.

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. You have found, Mr. Drake, that when the competition was found the severest that you have made money in connection with your steamship and railroad? A. The fact of the competition did not influence us at all.

5016

Q. You continued to make money in spite of that. When you were cutting rates, to what rates did you cut? A. The cut of rates only affected a part of our business, that is, the direct business between New York and Colon. The other business remained on the basis of agreed rate tariffs.

Q. Well, did you get that rate? A. When the Government got control our $8 rate was immediately cut to five dollars because we have to carry the Commission's business at regular tariff rate.

5017

Q. Well, how low did the rates go? A. As low as two dollars.

Q. And still remain remunerative? A. As far as we were concerned; yes, sir.

Q. And the other outside lines have met that rate? A. We met the rate at the time, because it was claimed that they were offering those rates. We could only judge—if we quoted $2.50 for instance, for a rate, and we did not secure the business we could only assume that it went at the lower rate.

Q. But the public then, when this competition was the severest, was just this much better off, by those low rates; is that right? A. Yes; though it did not affect the through freight; it only affected the direct traffic between New York and Colon.

5018

Q. They were so much better off by that? A. Yes. I never saw the time the shipping community would not take all that was given to it.

Q. And you found that during the period, Mr. Drake, as you state, the freight—there has actually been an increase in the amount of freight carried. That is you get more business, don't you? A. Yes, a reduced rate would increase the volume of traffic moving.

Q. Increases it automatically, does it? A. Sometimes it is true when there is very little freight moving, or there is no freight to move, it is a matter of indifference what the rate is. It won't move at any rate.

5019

Q. Now, you could afford, could you not, to make a lower rate in order to get the greatest volume of traffic? A. That would have to be determined at the time owing to the diversity in character of freight that is moving.

Q. As a general proposition, that is true? A. Yes.

Q. And that consequently the greater profit might 5020 be made even at a lower rate, on account of increased volume of freight? A. No.

Mr. Spooner: To carry it at a loss, ought it?

Mr. Guiler: I did not say that, Senator.

The Witness: On a small volume of business you will want to make a cent a pound profit. For instance, the Standard Oil or any of the large corporations that have a tremendous output, increase their revenue by millions, by an increase of a mere fraction of a cent on the cost of a gallon. The same principle would apply to traffic.

5021 Mr. Guiler: They sometimes can increase their return by a decrease in rate?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. And that has been done on that line? A. I did not make a qualified answer a moment ago for the purpose of going back on anything, but the volume of freight is fluctuating. If you have a large quantity of freight that pays well, there would be less room for the other freight that pays a small rate. If you have a lot of space left in a ship, naturally to fill that up you would increase your revenue.

Q. Assuming that there is a fair amount of freight to go through, you might in competition with others, 5022 get a larger amount of that freight and get a profit? A. Yes, sir. I would like to say irrespective of competition with anybody. We are a Government owned line attending to our own business.

Q. The way you have run it, there has been active competition? A. When the Government bought the canal it bought a going concern, the Panama Railroad Company with long established practices. The agreements that covered that practice were terminated summarily. The Government itself would not block up a highway and thereby suspend traffic of the whole Pacific Coast, because at that time it was practically the only means of communication, hence existing practices were continued so far as they did not conflict with United States Government requirements. Anything that did, was cut off without regard to the effect on any line.

5023

Q. The result of Government ownership of the Isthmian Railroad and Steamship Company has been to put in higher competition there? A. It has always been a going concern; we were in the business alone originally. The other lines came in and became the competitive lines.

Q. It has had the effect of reducing rates materially, has it not? A. Yes, indeed.

5024

Q. To what extent—to what percentage? A. Our steamship rate from $8 to $3.50.

Q. The other lines have been reduced to what? A. I don't know. They have met our rate.

Q. From $8.00 to $4.50? A. Yes.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. At the present time you are not competing with the outside lines—your rates are practically the same? A. Our rate is three and one-half; four fifty tariff rate, three and a half for the lowest grade commodity.

Q. You are not cutting their rates; you have a gentleman's agreement? A. No.

5025

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. You have no gentleman's agreement? A. None at all.

Q. You say you make a rate to get the biggest amount of business? A. The Secretary of War told me never to make or break a rate for anybody else's reason. That is the policy of the Government.

Q. And to make the rates as low as you could and run your line? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you have done so? A. Yes, sir.

5026

Q. The effect of that has been to reduce all rates? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Beers:

Q. Mr. Drake, where you are speaking of $8, and rates going down from $8 to a considerably lower figure, you refer to the freight rate so much a ton, don't you? A. Yes, sir; forty cents a hundred would make $8 net per a short ton.

Q. How large a percentage of the business of your steamships has consisted of the through billed freight and the freight for the Commission? A. That is all 5027 subdivided in our annual report.

Q. Can you bear it in mind? A. No, sir; I can furnish you the definite information if desired.

Q. You distinguish between the merchandise carried from New York to Colon as constituting a certain portion of your business, and the other business which came on through bills. Now, how much of your total carryings consisted of the freight carrying the same from New York to Colon? A. I cannot answer that from memory so that it would be a record.

Q. Do I recall correctly that you spoke of some seventy per cent of your business? A. I was speaking of all the business of the company. I said that seventy 5028 per cent of the revenue of the company was derived from commercial traffic, as against the Commission and railroad and the company's own traffic.

Q. When you speak of reducing the freight rate in order to meet the rates of the other lines, how much of your freight carried did that reduced rate affect, about? A. The records of our tonnage are divided on the basis of traffic, New York to Colon, New York to Panama, New York to points beyond Panama, and that is all a matter of daily, weekly, monthly records. I could not give it to you from memory today, although my traffic manager can lay it on my desk this afternoon.

5029

Q. It is a fact, is it not, that a very large portion of your business was not affected by the reduction of the freight rate on the business between New York and Colon? A. That is correct.

Q. So that the cutting of that rate left the income from the other sources unaffected? A. Yes, sir. I say; yes, sir; because—

Mr. Guiler: Explain it fully.

The Witness: The sea is open. Traffic between New York and Colon is unrestricted. Any of you gentlemen can operate a steamer from New York to Colon. He is entitled to his wharfage privilege at Colon and to be treated exactly as any other line, and more than that he can issue a through bill for instance to Central America. A through bill can be issued via Panama by any individual, by complying with certain conditions—he has to comply with certain conditions that insure the railroad and the on-carrier their proportion of established rates.

5030

Q. What effect did the operation of the American-Hawaiian Line to the Isthmus, to Tehuantepec have? A. It established another line of competition, that is all.

Q. Was not that one of the several causes of reducing the rate between New York, the through rate? A. For many years, in order to make the operation of our railroad rate automatic, we took the rates of the Trans-Continental Railroad, which I always had, and announced a variation from those rates on a percentage basis; thirty per cent on carload lots and forty per cent on less than carload lots. That was objected to as apparently, though not really, co-operating in making rates with the Trans-Continental Line, and the Panama Railroad subsequently issued its own tariff. The scale of rates is lower than the United States Trans-Continental Railroads and by Tehuantepec and the rates by Tehuantepec are higher than by the Isthmus of 5032 Panama, because of the relative geographical situation of the lines. Our rates are lowest except the rates around the Horn.

5031

Mr. Guiler: You run your railroad, and the steamship business is essential as a part of the railroad?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. And try to make it profitable as well as anybody else? A. Undoubtedly.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, the steamship line showed a deficit, did it not? A. $305,- 5033 000.

Q. But the railroad showed a profit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The steamship line in itself showed a loss? A. For specific reasons stated in the annual report. There were conditions that don't usually affect it. At the end of the fiscal year the steamship line became remunerative and has continued so. The adverse conditions apply to that particular fiscal year.

Q. Those frequently occur in business? A. Oh, yes.

Q. The traffic is not as regular as in the operation of the railroad? A. The occasion of that deficit, or rather the reasons for that deficit were not altogether 5034 traffic reasons.

There has been a great deal of pressure put upon the Government to establish branch lines of the Panama Railroad out of other ports than New York, claiming that it was discrimination in favor of New York, that Boston, Philadelphia, Charleston, and New Orleans should have privileges of a Government owned line as well as New York. When the Government bought the railroad, it bought a line operating out of New York; after very serious consideration was given to the applications of the different other bidders, I was authorized to establish a branch out of any other port when it could be demonstrated as a self-sustaining proposition, and they have never been able to make that satisfactory demonstration, so it has not been done, but under our arrangement with the California and Atlantic Steamship Company, in order that their vessels returning from Balboa to San Francisco might have homeward cargo, I consented to authorize establishing a line out of Philadelphia, and one out of New Orleans. They did that for about a year, and sustained very heavy losses, but at the same time they established traffic conditions that the Government was obliged to protect for a time and we did that also at a serious loss. 5035 5036 We lost $100,000 out of Philadelphia and a relative amount out of New Orleans. The Government withdrew that extension, and now the standard is that no other branch be established, nor in fact, will the present line be increased until its scope is defined by Panama Canal policy.

Q. The losses were due to the starting of new lines? A. Not all the losses, not at all. Operating the line as continuously as we do to feed an army of 70,000 people down there and carrying material for the construction of the canal, we have to operate our steamers continuously. We have to repair them while still in Commission. There was an expense of $282,000 during that year owing to what would be called extra- 5037 ordinary repairs in lieu of an annual overhaul. That was charged to operating expenses of the steamship line.

Mr. Guiler: That was also a cause of loss?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. As a matter of fact the keeping of the sailing dates costs a great deal more than a line that can send a steamer at indifferent periods. That is the regularity of sailings? A. With us, it is a necessity; it costs more money.

5038 Q. The cost progresses as the schedule is strictly kept? A. Every time a Sunday and holiday work is required, either for repairs or in loading or discharging freight, it costs.

Q. During the year 1912 was the space in outward bound steamers in the company available for coastwise cargo, distributed between the California Atlantic and Pacific Mail in any given proportion? A. Yes.

Q. In what proportion? A. There was a certain space set aside in our steamers for coastwise traffic and because there was a greater volume of traffic offering by the California Atlantic than by the Pacific 5039 Mail Company, they were given fifty-seven per cent of the space allotted to coastwise traffic and the Pacific Mail given forty-three per cent.

Q. That is, you found it necessary in the operation of your steamers to apportion this traffic? A. The California Steamship Company went to Washington —over my head—to get a modification of the rule of equal treatment to all. Equal treatment would have divided the space fifty and fifty, between the two carriers. On pressing upon the authorities there their necessities and the requirements that a large volume of freight which they could secure out of New York, should be provided for, they were given fifty-seven 5040 per cent; given an opportunity to demonstrate what they could do, and to help them along, in order to maintain the independent operation on the Pacific Ocean which they had established.

Q. What was the object in obtaining this independent operation? A. They went into the business to make money, I have no doubt. They did not do it, though.

Q. Competition was too severe? A. The methods of competition were. They owe the Government $150,000 now.

5041

Q. You found that competition when carried to the extreme limits results in the elimination of the weaker lines? A. I qualified when I said "their methods." The rates now in effect are remunerative. A basic rate of $8 eastbound and $9 westbound is a remunerative rate. It is so evident that other lines have jumped into the gap and now have applied for and have been granted through billing privileges.

Q. But you also found that if there was not a basic rate, that competition reduces the rate to such an extent that the weaker line falls out? A. Competition running wild brings ruin, of course.

5042

Q. And the object of a Government in trying to establish a basic rate is to prevent competition running wild? A. The object of the Government in establishing a basic rate is that it shall receive a remunerative compensation for the service it performs. The ships come to our terminal, the cargo is discharged on to our wharf, loaded on to our cars, carried across the Isthmus and delivered on to ships on the other side. In the case of coastwise traffic to New York, it is delivered alongside of our ships, and is brought to New York by those ships, on the principle of allowing initial carriers to make rates. The Government is not operating a line to make a loss any more than any other individual.

5043

Q. The effect of the basic rate is that the railroad company demands a certain amount of that basic rate for the service crossing the isthmus? A. The government says it will participate on a percentage basis of division of earnings based on its tariff.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. You spoke of the methods of competition of the California Atlantic; what were those methods? A. I can only judge by the outcome. I don't want to state anything here that I don't know; they claim 5044 the result of their operation is that they are in debt some $450,000, outside of stockholders' claims. I don't know what other means they resorted to, but they collected a very large volume of prepaid freight money for which they have not accounted to us, for our proportion, and in the monthly accounting all of the business was not included.

Q. Well, the effect then, is that the California Atlantic has gone back on its promises to the government? A. It did business on our capital for a long while.

5045 Q. Now, you stated a while ago, that other lines were complaining that the government compelled outside lines to do business at a loss? A. At that time, that was the general complaint.

Q. And you stated that that did not concern you, because you were doing it at a profit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were at that time, making the lowest rates that could be had? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And yet, you were making a profit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you considered, did you not, that if the other lines met that rate, they could do business at a profit, also? A. I was not concerned.

Q. What would your opinion be on that subject?

5046 A. I don't believe that if all of the business of the steamship lines, or rather, if the only business of the steamship lines was operating between New York and Colon, that the $3.50 rate would be a remunerative rate.

Q. But it is possible, or might be? A. I would not like to have to demonstrate it.

Q. At any rate, it was profitable to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long is the Panama-Colon Railroad? A. Fifty miles.

Q. So that the greatest part of your haul is at sea, isn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And yet, on the entire business, you have been able to do business at a profit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, how do you figure out, Mr. Drake, your statement in regard to a steamship line having to earn twenty to twelve per cent to make it equivalent to six per cent on a railroad? A. I stated that I had always dealt with that, broadly. It was one of the first instructions that were given to me, or rather, one of the first points relative to steamship operations that was laid down to me by experienced steamship men. I think I may have accepted it then and verified it since.

5048

Q. Your railroad is only fifty miles long? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your experience has been entirely with that railroad? A. Entirely; I came from Wall Street.

Q. So that you cannot speak in regard to a railroad which is trans-continental? A. While I may not be considered a railroad man, I am intimately associated with a great many railroad men, and I am happy to say that I have kept my end up with them.

Q. So that your statement in regard to the twenty per cent—

Mr. Spooner: You mean that you are not regarded as a railroad man, or that you don't regard yourself as a railroad man? I have always understood that you were a railroad man.

5049

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. Your statement that you have to earn twenty per cent, was really more acceptatious of what has been stated to you than your own experience? A. Besides operating this fifty mile railroad, I have had to do with, and have constructed railroads, but not directly in the accounting part. As a practical man, I would readily accept the statement; in fact, I did, and I believe it can be proven.

Q. You have not, in any of your experience, tried to work that out? A. No, sir.

5050 Q. Now, this fifty mile railroad down there, is exceptional—the circumstances are exceptional as compared with any other trans-continental railroad, are they not? A. I don't know in what way. It was the original trans-continental railroad. It started in by charging $25 a passenger and $100 a ton. It grew in railroad competition until now, it stands where it does.

Q. At the time it was charging those prices, it could get anything it wanted? A. It could now, because the Pacific littoral was from Salvador to Valparaiso, is largely dependent upon the isthmus.

5051 Q. Is there any other railroad running across the isthmus? A. The Trans-Andian, the Costa Rican, Guatemalan and the Tehuantepec, in addition to the trans-continental railroads to the United States. They are all from coast to coast.

Q. Are those railroads in active competition with your railroad? A. I don't know. They are all trans-continental railroads.

Q. You have no arrangement with them? A. We have no arrangement with anybody.

Q. That is, your rates are made as a basis to make a fair rate to everybody that comes along? A. Absolutely equal treatment to all-rate competition, but 5052 remunerative rates.

Q. Even the statement in regard to your keeping your schedules there; you are able to make a profit, are you not? A. Yes, sir. That is the ordinary requirement of the steamship lines. There are special reasons with us here, why we should maintain our schedule; because we carry food stuffs in cold storage. We have the largest floating cold storage facilities in the world. We are feeding an army of 40,000 on the isthmus with just the same class of food as you have. We have to do that regularly.

5053

Q. You find that you can keep that schedule and yet make money? A. We do keep it and we do make money.

Q. What percentage of expenses would you say the keeping of the schedule would require over and above any regular schedule? A. I could not say, sir; if a ship is likely to be detained, unless extra effort is made to get her away, the additional expenses to get her away would embody nightwork, or extra labor. That would be some of the additional outlay to maintain the schedule.

5054

Q. But taking the whole business together, it is better to maintain your schedule than not? A. We operate in two ways; we have four steamers that operate on a regular schedule. We have two large steamers that operate on an approximately fortnightly schedule. They vary a day or two—set back or ahead —according as the movement of cement is imperative or not. They are cement steamers.

Q. Do you make a through rate on passengers from New York to San Francisco? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the rate at the present time? A. $120 for through passengers.

Q. How many miles does that cover? A. 1985 on the Atlantic, and 3400 or 3500 on the Pacific.

5055

Q. And you have found it was profitable to carry passengers for 5400 miles at that rate? A. I don't know whether it would be profitable or not.

Q. Take the fifty miles of Panama Railroad; you do make a profit? A. Our proportion of that rate is profitable. We get 40 per cent, or $48 for the through passenger from New York to Balboa.

Q. And you have found that to be profitable? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many miles do you carry for that $48? A. From here to Colon, and across the railroad to Panama. That would be 1985 miles at sea, and 50 miles of railroad.

Q. About 2000 miles? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Two thousand miles for $48, that is right, isn't it? A. Yes, sir.

DIRECT-EXAMINATION by Mr. Beers:

Q. Did you state how many people were under charge of the Isthmian Commission? A. They have 40,000. The last canal report states that they have reached the maximum number of employees engaged, and that is 40,000. They have their families with them, and it is estimated that there are 70,000 people dependent upon the canal construction.

5057

Q. And your company has a monopoly of the business of the Isthmian Commission—the carrying? A. Oh, no.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. That is, they can go by any other line they want to? A. Yes.

By Mr. Beers:

Q. How about the railroad? A. Nothing can get across the isthmus except by the railroad.

5058 By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. As far as the supplies for the isthmus, you have the total? A. No; we don't have that. A large quantity goes by the Royal Mail; a large quantity out of New Orleans, a very important portion of it; a great deal comes down from San Francisco.

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. Don't you take all you can get? A. We carry all up to our capacity. Say they made a requisition for a couple of thousand barrels of potatoes if we can get them to go down by our steamers; they would go by New Orleans, and regardless of whether we had space or not.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. You stated a while ago, there were other transcontinental lines down there that could carry freight from ocean to ocean? A. That is all ocean to ocean.

Q. They can do that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that your line is not the only one? A. No; they are doing that now. The Costa Rican is engaged in local business and the Guatemalan has a through line. The Tehuantepec has a through line. 5060
I mean carrying cargo beyond either terminal.

Q. So that you have no monopoly of the carrying business? A. No; there is no monopoly there.

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. Those railroads don't carry much into the canal territory? A. No.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. Mr. Drake, at the time you were operating from New York at a two dollar rate to Colon, did you keep a separate account of the steamship earnings on that two dollar rate? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was the company earning a profit on the two 5061 dollar rate? A. The system as a whole, was earning money. I can answer the question that you have just asked by a reference to our records.

Q. While you were operating at the through rate, at the rate of two dollars from New York to Colon? A. That was not a through rate.

Q. You still maintained your basic rate across the isthmus? A. Yes; that did not affect the other business.

Q. That rate was preserved to Balboa? A. It sometimes happenes that a sharp reduction in the 5062 rate of one member of a combination, enables a shipper to avail himself of a sum of effective locals, so as to beat the through rate; that is if they were carrying at $2 per ton by the steamship line and the rate was $2.50 across the isthmus, the sum of the locals would be $4.50, while the through rate from New York to Panama might be $6.

Q. But the government at all times, maintained and executed its basic rate across the isthmus? A. We are operating on established tariffs with agreed divisions, and all our carriers account to us monthly, for our proportion of the through rates.

5063 Q. That is, your rate across the isthmus is the same to everybody? A. Yes.

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. A fixed rate? A. Yes.

Q. For instance, there is one scale of rates from the north of Panama to Central America, according to distance and commodity? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. You can change that rate, provided you give everybody the same service? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you do change it? A. Changes are in-5064 augurated by initial carriers from time to time. That is, the European lines who initiate the basis from Europe to the west coast have the authority to make any rates necessary to secure the business on the basis of revenue. The same way—it is the same way here; it is the same way on the west coast. Initial carriers there, inaugurate the rate, and unless we have some radical objection to make—if the rate is made with no iniquitous purposes or to stifle trade, we concur in it.

Q. It would be your duty as the agent of the government, if you found that they were trying to stifle trade, to object to those rates? A. Absolutely.

5065

Q. And those were your instructions? A. Yes.

Q. And you have done so? A. Yes, sir. We have insisted in the making of through rates abroad that there shall be no discrimination against American merchants, in favor of European. In other words, we have insisted on equal treatment to all. There is a point beyond which we refuse to consent to an increase in rates, and that point has arrived now. It happens that the European lines have controlling reasons for requiring higher rates, such as increased expense of operation, and to get an earning out of it, they thought best to advance the rate outward from Europe, higher than I am willing to consent to from here, so for the time being, there is a discrimination in favor of the American merchants as against the European, but, it is entirely voluntary on their part. They accept that condition.

5066

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. That is, the lines outside of the United States are trying to get higher rates than you consider they are entitled to? A. Higher than I want to put in effect from here in order to maintain parity. It is the general principle of steamship operation to get all that the traffic will bear.

Q. You think they have reached that point? A. They have reached the point where there is divergence. I am not willing to meet them. If they are willing to maintain discrimination, that is their own lookout.

5067

DIRECT-EXAMINATION by Mr. Spooner:

Q. Has there, or has there not, been an essential increase in the cost of operation? A. In every direction, the most rigid and arbitrary trust in the wide world is the labor trust, and that has been—

5068 Q. Overworked? A. Yes; quite recently I have found it necessary to get the government to give me navy men to replace sailors who have left our ships in spite of promises not to, provided that I would agree to abide by any agreement which was reached; in spite of that they left.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. There are other trusts? A. Yes.

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. Will you give some of the cases? A. Material, 5069 coal, wages, every department.

Q. Food? A. Yes; we all know what the increases have been. That is the reason cited for the increase. The increased cost of operation is the reason given for making it necessary to advance rates.

Q. Does it justify an advance in rates? A. It would, and it does.

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. Do you know the steerage rate from New York to Colon twenty years ago? A. Thirty dollars.

Q. What is it now? A. Thirty dollars; although conditions are very much better now. The Depart-5070 men of Labor compel special treatment of steerage now, so it is better worth the money to them.

Q. Do you think thirty dollars steerage rate from New York to Colon is a reasonable rate? A. Well, as compared with the first-class rate, it is a high rate, but it is our rate. The distinction between cabin and steerage condition is marked. If the rate were taken as the gauge, first-class would only be about fifty per cent better than steerage.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. Is it a reasonable rate? A. Our steerage rate is $30; first-class, $75.00.

5071

Q. And you could or could not afford to carry the steerage passengers at a less cost? A. Our accounting does not go to that limit. Every accounting officer has his own estimate of how to make up cost. I don't know what would be a self sustaining rate for steerage passengers.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. You think it should be somewhat higher? A. Yes; as compared with the first-class rate.

By Mr. Beers:

5072

Q. Do you know, Mr. Drake, how the freight business of the other Central American roads going from ocean to ocean, compares in volume with that of the Panama Railroad? A. I have all the records.

Q. Do you know approximately? A. Tehuantepec is very much more important.

Q. Than to the other two? A. Yes. And the Guatemalan has just been established recently within two years or so. An increase in facilities means an increase in the aggregate, so that the business is growing in all ways.

Q. So that the Tehuantepec carries more traffic than yours does? A. Very much more. They are fifteen hundred miles nearer San Francisco than we 5073 are. The railroad is only patronized by one or two lines, whereas, we have fifteen.

Q. Tehuantepec is the longer line? A. Yes.

Q. How much? A. One hundred and seventy-three miles, and very much higher grades.

Hearing adjourned to January 27, 1913, at 11 A. M.

5074 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,

against

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

5075 Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Exhminer.

New York, January 27, 1913.

Upon consent hearing adjourned to Monday, February 3rd, 1913, at 11 o'clock A. M.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,

5076

against

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, February 3rd, 1913.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

5077

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles C. Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

Messrs, Spooner & Cotton, by J. C. Spooner, Esq., for the Allan Line, et al.

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers, Esq., and Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et al.

5078

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for Russian East Asiatic Company, et al.

EDWARD O. THOMAS, recalled:

Cross-examination by Mr. Bullowa:

Mr. Bullowa: I wish to put in as an exhibit the Tenth Annual Report of the Canadian Northern Railway Company together with their map, as Defendant's Exhibit #18.

Q. Do you know Mr. G. Hannah? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know him to be the third vice president of the Canadian Northern Railway Company? A. So far as I have seen the report I do. I know his name is shown in the report.

5079

Q. Do you know Colonel Isaac Davidson? A. I have met him.

Q. And connected with the Canadian Northern? A. I know he is connected with the Canadian Northern.

Q. As land commissioner? A. Yes, as land commissioner.

Q. Do you know Mr. R. M. Horne-Payne? A. I have heard of him.

5080 Q. Mr. H. W. Harding? A. Yes.

Q. You know him as connected with the Canadian Northern? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Is Mr. Harding an officer or director of the Uranium Steamship Company? A. I do not think so.

Q. Was he an officer or director of the Northwest Transport Company? A. I do not think so.

Q. Or the Continental Line? A. I do not think so.

Q. Is Mr. H. W. Harding connected with the Uranium Steamship Company? A. Maybe, but I do not know what his connection is. On the letterhead he is shown as general manager.

5081 Q. In London? A. I do not know what his real connection is.

Q. In London? A. Yes, I think so.

Q. What is his address, Bond Court, Wallbrook, London? A. Yes.

Q. Where do you address the letters to Mr. G. Hannah to? A. Toronto.

Q. You have a contract with the Uranium Line? A. Yes.

Q. Is it guaranteed by any one? A. Yes, by Mr. Hannah.

Q. Do you have a contract with the Northwest Transport Company? A. Yes.

5082 Q. Was it guaranteed? A. Yes.

Q. By whom? A. Mr. Hannah.

Q. Your contract is general manager of the Uranium Steamship Company in New York? A. Yes.

Q. And with the Northwest Transport Company? A. Yes.

Q. Who do you correspond with regarding the management of the line? A. With nobody.

Q. Who do you look to? A. Mr. G. Hannah.

Q. At Toronto? A. Yes.

Q. So far as your superiors are concerned, who do you consider your earthly superiors in the management of the Uranium Steamship Company? A. I can hardly say anything very important I might go to Mr. Hannah for information.

5083

Q. That is, as far as you recognize a superior you recognize Mr. Hannah as such? A. I should say the man I remit the funds of the company to would be the man I would go to if any one.

Q. Do you write Mr. Hannah regarding the affairs of the line? A. I do.

Q. And if there are any matters of importance you refer them to him? A. We might.

Q. You have in the past referred to him any matters of importance? A. Yes.

5084

Q. If there is a dispute between the New York office and any of the branches would that be referred to him? A. It might be.

Q. Is it done? A. Possibly—I believe so.

Q. He arranges the work of the line in an amicable manner between the respective points? A. I did not know there had been any dispute between the other side and this side; they have had their own opinion and I have had mine.

Q. But if it is referred to anybody it is referred to Mr. Hannah? A. Yes.

Q. That is, he pours the oil on the troubled waters? A. There has never been any trouble.

5085

Q. He has decided the differences? A. No, he has never decided the differences; there have been none to decide.

Q. What has he done? A. Probably he has asked questions of the other side and I think he has asked me and I have given my opinion and the other side has given their opinion and it has been settled in favor of either the other side or this side. But, as a matter of fact, there has not been any dispute that is serious enough to amount to anything.

5086 Q. Why did you think it was necessary to have your contract guaranteed by Mr. G. Hannah? A. Because I did not know who the Uranium Company or the Northwest Transport Company were.

Q. Were you not rather afraid that the Northwest Transport Company did not have very much substance? A. I knew nothing at all about the company but I knew that any contract guaranteed by Mr. Hannah was absolutely good. It was just that much more collateral backing.

Q. Your contract was for one year? A. Eighteen months with a certain notice to be given.

5087 Q. You thought you needed a guarantee on that contract? A. I always take a guarantee.

Q. Did you ask for it? A. I think I dictated the contract myself and he was willing to sign it.

Q. Who did you negotiate that contract with? A. Just at that time I resigned my position with the company and was going into business for myself and Mr. Hannah exchanged a number of wires with me and finally we came together and he signed the contract I sent him.

Q. Did you think it was necessary to have a guarantee? A. I may have thought it was a good thing.

Q. It is not usual for an employe or an agent to ask 5088 to have a contract guaranteed? A. I have always been cautious.

Q. When you were in the employment of the Hamburg American Line you did not ask for a contract then? A. I had no contract; I was very familiar with the line and knew all the officials. I wish I had had a contract with them now.

Q. What about the Atlantic Transport Line? A. No, I never worked for them.

Q. Did you have one with Vogemann? A. I had no contract, I was very intimate with their management.

5089

Q. Is not it a fact that you were afraid that the Northwest Transport Company was not financially responsible?

Mr. Guiler: I object to that question; it is not only incompetent but it is irrelevant and immaterial.

A. I knew nothing about the financial standing of the firm. I know the man is good and if he is willing to guarantee it I know it is good. I know nothing of the financial standing of the Northwest Transport Company.

5090

Q. What about the Uranium? A. I was a little bit more satisfied—more easy from the fact that Mr. Hannah seemed to be connected with the company.

Q. So you reached the conclusion that his contract was good without any guarantee? A. No, because I had reason to believe that certain interests which must be back of the company might not continue to be.

Q. You were afraid that if those interests were removed the company would not be solvent? A. It might not continue to be.

Q. So far as the contract with yourself was concerned you considered that it was necessary to have the guarantee? A. I think it a good thing.

5091

Q. The Uranium Steamship Company also issued prepaid steerage tickets at the time? A. Yes.

Q. These prepaid tickets were good for a year and you received the money on the prepaids? A. Yes.

Q. So that you were perfectly willing to allow the poor emigrants to accept a contract with the Uranium Steamship Line, when you yourself were not willing to accept it?

Mr. Guiler: I object; that is irrelevant, immaterial and leading.

Mr. Bradley: Who has no right to lead? It is cross-examination.

5092 Mr. Guiler: He is your witness.

The Witness: I do not understand the question.

Q. (Question read)? A. I knew at the time that any interests which were back of the Uranium Line would not break any contract made with any passenger; whereas a contract with me would mean nothing providing there was no business and no steamers running.

Q. How did you know that? A. I know enough to know that.

Q. You have a suspicion who these interests were?

5093 A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. The interests which Mr. Hannah represents, but what they are, I do not know.

Q. All that you know about Mr. Hannah is that he is vice president of the Canadian Northern Railway Company? A. Yes.

Q. Who signed your contract on behalf of the Uranium Steamship Company? A. Mr. Hannah.

Q. Both on behalf of that and then guaranteed it personally? A. Yes.

Q. And your contract with the Northwest Transport Company? A. Yes.

Q. The line for a long while has not been very profitable? A. For quite a while it has been now.

5094 Q. You were not criticised when the line was unprofitable? A. No.

Q. The interests that are running the line did not seem to care very much whether they made a profit or none? A. They never seemed to worry. They seemed to have inexhaustible means at the back of them. They seemed to have plenty of money; they might have been a little slow in coming through with it.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. Isn't it a fact—

5095

Mr. Guiler: I object, that is a leading question; let him tell the fact.

Q. Isn't it a fact that certain interests which—

Mr. Guiler: I object to your characterization of the testimony as well as the fact of your putting a leading question.

Q. Is not it a fact that certain interests which appeared to have unlimited means have been back of this line and branch lines and these interests seemed to have operated the lines not so much for the profit they might make out of it but for some other reason?

5096

Mr. Guiler: I object to this question; it is incompetent and irrelevant.

A. It was very hard to get money from those interests. On a number of times they declined to remit.

Q. But they eventually remitted? A. Yes.

Q. They seemed to remit in spite of the fact that it was a losing proposition? A. They probably thought that it would probably work out into a good proposition.

Q. They have not been very elated when you have made profits, have they? A. Not very impulsive at any time.

Q. Nor depressed when you made losses? A. I have not been able to see it. I have never seen the owners of the line.

5097

Q. You don't know whether you have ever seen them or not? A. I am very certain I have not.

Q. How do you know that you have not seen them if you do not know who they are? A. I know whether I have seen them or not although I do not know who they are? You might be one of the owners but I can say now that you are not although I have nothing definite to go upon.

5098 Q. Is not it a fact that the line has not been run so much for profit as for some other object? A. I do not know; it would only be surmise on my part.

Q. What is your surmise? A. I do not think I am bright enough to surmise. It is impossible for me to surmise on a thing like that.

Mr. Guiler: You do not call any surmises evidence. I object to them.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. You also know that Harding in London repre-
5099 sents the Uranium Line? A. We write to Harding.

Q. That is the same Harding who is local secretary in London to the Canadian Northern Railway Company? A. It is.

Q. These are the only two people with whom you communicate with respect to the Uranium Steamship Company—those are the only two? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Harding in London and Mr. Hannah in Toronto? A. Yes.

Q. So far as you know there is no amount outstanding? A. I do not think so.

Q. There are mortgages on the ships? A. There is a statement filed which shows considerable indebted-5100 ness.

Q. Equivalent to the assets? A. More.

Q. More than the assets? A. I think so.

Q. From the statement you saw? A. As I remember, considerably more.

Q. So that unless there were certain interests—

Mr. Guiler: I object to the characterization. I do not think the witness is entitled to answer that sort of question.

Mr. Bradley: Unless it were for a certain interest of which you do not know the name the line could not be run.

Mr. Guiler: That is a conclusion and the witness is not required to answer conclusions. He is here to testify to facts.

Mr. Bullowa: So far as the statement you have seen is concerned, the indebtedness of the line is greater than its assets?

The Witness: It was the last statement I saw.

Mr. Shipman: Have you ever been to Mr. Harding's office in London?

The Witness: I have.

Q. Have you ever been in the accounting department of the Uranium Steamship Company's office 5102 there? A. I have been all through the offices; I do not know whether I was in the accounting department.

Q. Do you recollect whether the Canadian Northern Railway Company and the Uranium Steamship Company have one room for their accounting? A. I do not know; I was in Mr. Harding's private office, and I do not know what the lay-out is.

Q. You noticed the signs of the Canadian Northern and the Uranium Steamship Company there? A. I do not know that they had any Uranium Steamship Company sign up there.

Q. They have the Canadian Northern? A. Yes. 5103
It is the same office.

Q. The Uranium Steamship Company has its office there, they must have the same sign? A. The Uranium Steamship Company does not conduct any business in London; they might have one up now.

Q. Harding is the local secretary of the Canadian Northern in London? A. I believe so, in that statement.

Mr. Bullowa: Has the Canadian Northern an office in New York?

The Witness: I do not know, but I think they have.

5104 Q. Do you communicate with it? A. No, I do not.

Mr. Shipman: Have you ever seen the signs at Halifax of the Uranium Steamship Company?

The Witness: I have never been to Halifax.

Mr. Guiler: According to this statement and according to your knowledge, the line, from 1908 to the present time, has not been very successful, taking it by and large?

The Witness: Taking it what?

Mr. Guiler: Taking it as a whole?

The Witness: I would call it successful.

5105 Mr. Guiler: According to the statements it has not appeared to be financially?

The Witness: It does not show a net profit.

Mr. Guiler: No net profit?

The Witness: No.

Mr. Guiler: Don't you figure it out that the greater part of that is due to the so-called "fighting steamers" of the other lines?

Mr. Beers: Objected to as leading.

The Witness: Most assuredly.

Mr. Guiler: That is true?

The Witness: A greater part of our losses have 5106 been due to the "fighting steamers."

Mr. Guiler: They have been constantly going for how long?

The Witness: Almost ever since the line started.

Mr. Guiler: You would say that the New York Continental, the Uranium Steamship Company and the Northwest Transport Company have all experienced the so-called "fighting steamers"?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Guiler: Opposition by the conference lines?

The Witness: Opposition by the conference lines.

Mr. Guiler: You attribute a good deal to that?

5107

The Witness: So far as the New York Continental is concerned the only opposition we had was the new Hamburg Line, which belongs to the Hamburg-American Line.

Mr. Guiler: That is the New York Continental you refer to, that the Northwest Transport Company had some experience—some opposition?

The Witness: Yes, when the Northwest Transport Company started passenger business.

Mr. Guiler: You are now the only independent line?

The Witness: I believe so.

5108

Mr. Guiler: So far as your knowledge goes in regard to Mr. Hannah and Mr. Harding, you merely took Mr. Hannah's guarantee as a personal one and not as a member of any corporation? A. Entirely personal.

Mr. Guiler: That is the guarantee on your contract?

The Witness: It was purely personal between Mr. Hannah and myself.

Mr. Guiler: You do not know whether he represented the Canadian Northern or any other line?

The Witness: I am sure he did not. He did it to satisfy me, personally.

5109

Mr. Guiler: You felt it would be safe to have his name on the contract?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Guiler: And in signing that contract he had no official position with any other line directly or indirectly—the Canadian Northern he did not represent?

The Witness: I am sure he did not.

Mr. Spooner: He has testified—

Mr. Bradley: I object to the question as leading—stating facts that are not in evidence.

Mr. Guiler: They are very much in evidence.

5110 Mr. Spooner: He is stating things that are not in evidence.

Mr. Guiler: To clear the matter up, I will put it this way; so far as your knowledge goes, the Canadian Northern was not at the back of the Uranium Steamship Company?

Mr. Beers: That is objected to as leading.

Mr. Spooner: I should say Mr. Hannah—

Mr. Shipman: I object to his testifying as to opinion.

Mr. Guiler: I was asking as to knowledge, not as to opinion.

5111 Mr. Shipman: He has no knowledge.

The Witness: I have further knowledge—I have been enlightened during the last month.

Mr. Spooner: I noticed that.

Mr. Guiler: Who has been enlightening you?

The Witness: Mr. Hannah.

Mr. Guiler: What was said to you?

The Witness: Mr. Hannah said that they had not one cent in it.

Mr. Guiler: Not a red cent in the Uranium Steamship Company?

5112 The Witness: No.

Mr. Guiler: So far as you knew, when your contract was made with the Uranium Line and the Northwest Transport Company, the Canadian Northern had nothing to do with the Uranium Line at that time?

The Witness: I did not know anything about it at that time.

Mr. Guiler: You know now—it has nothing to do with it?

The Witness: It has nothing to do with it—so far as I know now.

5113

Mr. Spooner: Do you still know nothing about it?

The Witness: I have been told so. Mr. Hannah told me.

Mr. Guiler: That contract that you made with the guarantee had nothing to do with the question of whether the poor emigrant should put his money up here or not?

The Witness: No.

Mr. Guiler: You felt that the emigrant would be protected anyway?

The Witness: I have always felt that any contract made by the company would be protected.

5114

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. Except your own? A. I think that would be protected.

Q. You required a guarantee—

Mr. Guiler: That was merely a personal requirement on your own part?

The Witness: A personal matter between Mr. Hannah and myself.

Mr. Spooner: How long had you known Mr. Hannah before he guaranteed your contract?

The Witness: I do not know when I first met him, and I do not remember when he signed the contract.

Q. You remember the fact that he did sign the 5115 contract? A. Yes, I saw him sign it.

Q. When was that? A. I do not know when it was dated, about four or five years ago or three or four.

Q. Where did he execute the guarantee? A. In the office.

Q. Where? A. At Toronto; that is the second contract he signed for me here in his office. I think the second contract I mailed him.

Q. How long had you known him before he signed the first contract? A. I do not know.

5116 Q. Had you known him at all? A. I had met him in New York.

Q. Had you known him at all? A. I do not remember; that was four or five years ago, I do not remember when my contract was signed.

Q. How long have you known Mr. Hannah? A. I have seen him since the line was running.

Q. I did not ask you that—how long have you been acquainted with him? A. I do not know.

Q. Ten years? A. No.

Q. Five years? A. No; under six.

5117 Q. When was your first contract guaranteed? A. I do not know.

Q. When? A. I cannot remember. I think I have had three contracts with the company and I do not know when one of them was signed.

Q. How near can you get to the date of signing of either of the three? A. The last contract I had with him, I believe, in May, two years ago, and it was signed by him—that is about as near as I can get to it. I showed Mr. Bullowa the contract.

Mr. Bullowa: He showed me the signature.

Mr. Spooner: Did you make the contract with him?

5118 The Witness: No, with the Uranium Steamship Company.

Q. But it was guaranteed by him? A. I put on the bottom of the contract, "I hereby agree to see that this contract is protected." I think that is what it is, and he rather resented it.

Q. Being asked to do it? A. Yes, as he had signed the contract—he asked me if I felt that there was any necessity for him to put his name on what was absolutely good and I said I did not know. I knew personally he was good and if he only signed it on behalf of the Uranium Line—although he had nothing to do with it—I knew it would be satisfactory as far as I was concerned.

5119

Q. He signed on behalf of the Uranium Line and you asked him to sign it on his own behalf? A. Just this clause to initial.

Q. Was this the last contract? A. Both of them.

Q. Set you memory to work. When did you first meet him? A. I could not say. When this line was first started it was operated by—not by Mr. Hannah, he had very little to do with it.

Q. You were going to say it was operated by—please continue? A. Mr. William McKenzie—I mean William Peterson; he was the old president of the company and we dealt with him direct, and Mr. Hannah may have come into the office once or twice with Mr. Peterson.

5120

Q. You never had any personal relations with Mr. Hannah? A. I have had talks with him, but what do you mean by "personal relations"?

Q. Have you had a conversation with him lately? A. Yes.

Q. Where was it? A. Toronto in his office.

Q. When? A. A couple of weeks ago.

Q. Did you go to him or did he send for you? A. I told him that I wanted to come up and see him.

5121

Q. Was it about the testimony you were going to give here? A. No.

Q. It was not about testifying in this case? A. I mentioned that to him that there were other important matters, particularly the Uranium, which was on the rocks and that was why I went up there.

Q. You spoke of his office; is that the office near the Canadian Northern? A. The Canadian Northern Railway Building.

Q. You met him before, in connection with the business of the Canadian Northern? A. Many times.

5122 Q. In the same place? A. Always in the same place.

Q. Always in the same place? A. Always in the same place.

Q. That is the office in the Canadian Northern, in Toronto? A. Yes.

Q. That is the main office? A. Yes.

Q. What was this conversation? A. That conversation—between Mr. Hanna and myself.

Q. What was it about? A. We talked about the business in general. Do you mean with reference to 5123 appearing here? I can tell you that if you are driving at it. I told him I was coming to appear before this committee, and one of the questions—and one of the questions would be that they were striving to drive at, the ownership of the line and that I knew. I had testified that I knew nothing about it and I had been rather joked about it, and he said, "Well, you do not know about it," and I said, "I know and I do not want to know." He said, "You can take it from me and you say personally and assert that the Canadian Northern Railway Company has not one particle of interest in the Uranium Steamship Line." That was just about all of it. We had too many other matters to discuss.

5124 Q. About the Uranium business? A. Yes; the loss of the Uranium and replacing it.

Q. The loss of the steamship Uranium? A. That was what I went to see him about. They made up their minds not to send her to New York, and I said she should come to New York, and I sent a man up to Halifax with instructions to see she was brought down to New York, and I went up to sort of pacify Mr. Hannah.

Q. He was your superior? A. Yes. And I did not know whether he would resent it or not, so I thought I would prepare him.

5125

Q. You regard Mr. Hannah as your superior? A. I regard him as a man I want to stand in well with.

Mr. Shipman: Is not the business of your line increasing right along, and haven't you got as much business as you can handle?

The Witness: I do not know whether it is. It may have decreased, but it is in better condition now.

By Mr. Shipman:

Q. Then you get all the business you can handle? A. We could handle more.

Q. You are making money? A. I believe so.

5126

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. You recognize Mr. D. B. Hannah, as operating manager of the Canadian Northern? A. No, but he may. I do not know what that term really covers, but to me if you wanted to go to any one to go to him.

Q. The only people you have met in connection with the Uranium Line, have been either officers or directors of the Canadian Northern, is not that right? A. I believe so.

Q. At the time Mr. Hannah guaranteed your contract you knew him to be the third vice-president of the Canadian Northern? A. I believed I did.

5127

Q. You mentioned William McKenzie's name; do you know him? A. No.

By Mr. Bradley:

Q. Do you know of him? A. I do.

Q. Have you seen him? A. Yes.

Q. Up at Toronto? A. Yes.

Q. In a restaurant up there? A. I believe so.

Q. Have you ever said when you were testifying before that this was a place in Toronto? A. Yes.

Q. Who were you with? A. Mr. Vaughan.

Q. Is he connected with your line? A. He is Mr. Hannah's assistant or something.

5128 By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. When your line started about 1907-8, freights were dropping? A. Yes.

Q. It was about the climax of the depression? A. I do not know whether it was the climax.

Q. It was the depressed season? A. It was for freight.

Q. That lasted for some time? A. Yes.

Q. Since freight has been increasing, your line's earnings has been increasing? A. Yes.

Q. So that it has been general market conditions
5129 that have helped the line? A. General market conditions have helped it.

Mr. Guiler: There are some other reasons besides that?

The Witness: A good many.

Mr. Guiler: More important than that?

The Witness: Well, general market conditions the most important, I should think.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. They have improved? A. They have.

Q. Materially? A. Yes.

Q. And since they have improved you have been 5130 starting to make money? A. Yes.

Mr. Bradley: Is not the Canadian Northern Steamship Company, a subsidiary of the Canadian Northern Railway?

The Witness: Is not it what?

Mr. Bradley: A subsidiary company.

The Witness: I do not know, but I should imagine so.

Mr. Bradley: Do you know who the right-hand active man in the Canadian Northern Steamship, Limited, is?

The Witness: What, in Toronto?

5131

Mr. Bradley: Yes.

The Witness: No idea. No. I have not met him.

Mr. Bradley: Has Mr. Hannah any authority over them?

The Witness: They refer to him the same as I do, I believe. I believe Mr. Hannah is connected with them.

Mr. Bradley: That is the Royal Line?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Bradley: And that line has been a member of the pool in the past?

The Witness: I think so.

5132

Mr. Guiler: We will not deny that; we have their agreement.

Mr. Beers: Do the steamers of the Uranium Steamship Company stop at Halifax?

The Witness: They do.

Mr. Beers: Have they invariably stopped at Halifax so long as you have represented the line in New York?

The Witness: They have been stopping there since they have been carrying passengers.

Mr. Beers: Do they land steerage passengers there?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Beers: Is there any other steamship company which carries third-class passengers to the port of New York, which also lands passengers at Canadian ports? 5133

The Witness: There is not so far as I know. One or two steamers might have put in there.

Mr. Beers: As at matter of convenience?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Beers: As a matter of regular schedules the Uranium Line is the only passenger line running to New York which lands passengers in Halifax or any other Canadian port?

The Witness: I believe so.

5134 By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. As I understand it, as far as you know, there is one share of stock of the Uranium Line? A. I do not know, I remember something like that.

Q. One share outstanding? A. I do not know; there might be three or four or five of them.

Mr. Spooner: It has been to qualify directors, perhaps?

The Witness: I imagine that is what it is for.

By Mr. Bullowa:

5135 Q. Possibly then, it is money lent to the company? A. I do not know.

Q. From the report, its indebtedness was a great deal more than its assets? A. I think so.

Q. Unless these nebulous interests—

Mr. Guiler: I object to that; I object to the characterization.

Mr. Bullowa: I do not know how to describe it—unless a certain interest protected the line it would be insolvent? A. It had to have money to run.

Q. It has been in that condition ever since it started? A. It never made money from the start.

Q. It never had any? A. I never knew.

5136 Q. It only had a few shares of stock issued? A. The stock never was sold.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. What do you mean by saying that the line never made money from the start—when a short time ago you said it was making money? A. I mean to say that it did not make money at the start for quite a long while; for three or four years.

Q. But they have not been paying interest on stock—but they have no net profit? A. I do not know how they look after their accounts at all.

Q. They have not paid any dividends on the stock or made any net profits? A. I do not know how they deal with the funds of the company at all.

Q. Your knowledge as to the financial end of the Uranium Steamship Company and the Northwest Transport Company is very limited? A. I know nothing about it.

Q. Anything you have said has been hearsay? A. I know when a ship makes money.

Q. When a particular ship makes, but you do not know anything about the general results all around—each year? A. I can figure pretty closely. 5138

Q. What I understood you to say was that the line had not been making money? A. No, up to two years ago.

Mr. Guiler: Those persons you met connected with the Canadian Northern, you did not meet them as officials of the Canadian Northern, but merely in connection with the Uranium Line?

Mr. Bradley: I object to that as leading.

Mr. Guiler: You have seen Mr. Hannah. When you have, you have seen him as an officer of the Uranium Line?

Mr. Bullowa: I object. 5139

Mr. Guiler: It is too late for an objection.

Mr. Bullowa: The witness testified as far as he knew that Mr. D. B. Hannah was not an officer or director of the Uranium Steamship Company, Limited.

The Witness: That is correct.

Mr. Guiler: You stated Mr. Hannah signed the contract for the Uranium Company?

The Witness: He did. He might do that in the way that any clerk in my office might sign a letter.

5140 Mr. Guiler: And yet there might not have been any connection between him and the Canadian Northern by that fact?

The Witness, He signed the latter "Uranium Line by D. B. H." I felt he was not an officer of the company. I had seen the papers and had filed them.

Mr. Guiler: Mr. Hannah specifically stated to you that the Canadian Northern and the Uranium Steamship Company were entirely separate?

5141 Mr. Bradley: I object to that on the ground that it does not state the evidence of the witness as I recollect it. The witness said that the Canadian Northern was stated by Mr. Hannah not to have any interest in the Uranium Steamship Company.

The Witness: I do not understand the question.

Q. (Question read)? A. He stated to me that I could say positively that the Uranium Line—that the Canadian Northern Railroad had not one cent of interest in the Uranium Steamship Company. He further said that if I wanted any other evidence to that effect he might come down here and testify. He may have said "would."

5142 Mr. Spooner: I wish he would.

Mr. Guiler: You have stated here that the only persons you have met in connection with this business of the Uranium Steamship Company were connected with the Canadian Northern. You did not meet those persons as persons in the Canadian Northern, but as persons who had interests in the Uranium Steamship company?

The Witness: Or as representing interests in the Uranium Steamship Company, yes.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. In the building of the Canadian Northern, do you regard it simply as a coincidence that everybody you met in connection with the Uranium Line had interest in the Canadian Northern Line? Do you regard that as a coincidence? A. I never regarded it at all. After Mr. Hannah made that statement I believed him.

By Mr. Beers:

Q. Is not it a fact that the firm of McKenzie & Mann are known to be large stockholders in the Canadian Northern? A. I do not know that; I have heard 5144
it.

Q. It is a matter well known to people on both sides of the Atlantic. It is a fact stated and recognized in financial circles that they are large stockholders in the Canadian Northern? A. My knowledge of financial circles is very limited and I have never heard it spoken of.

Q. Sir William McKenzie is president of the Canadian Northern? A. I believe so.

Q. Have you any knowledge as to any financial interest in the Uranium Steamship Line? A. No, I do not know.

Q. Never heard a word about it? A. No.

Mr. Shipman: Did not they build the Canadian 5145
Northern Railway? A. I believe so. I heard they did; at any rate, they are responsible for it.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. So far as you know today the Uranium Steamship Company is insolvent? A. I do not know.

Q. You don't know that their indebtedness is greater than their assets?

Mr. Guiler: That is not what he said.

Mr. Bullowa: From the statements you saw?

5146 The Witness: Their assets were put down less than their liabilities. That is some time ago.

Q. How long? A. About a year ago.

Q. For the last year you have been making agreements—most for freight and with passengers for and on behalf of the Uranium Steamship Company, although if it was put to the test the Uranium Company could not have fulfilled their contract?

Mr. Guiler: I object.

The Witness: They could fulfill it.

5147 Q. If they are insolvent? A. They are not insolvent.

Q. If their indebtedness is more than their assets, isn't that insolvency? A. I do not think so.

Q. You do not consider a man whose indebtedness is more than his assets to be insolvent? A. I know a great many cases where a man who has indebtedness greater than his assets and yet he is not insolvent.

Q. Would you personally like to make a contract with a person in that position?

Mr. Guiler: I object to that.

The Witness: I have contracts with persons similarly situated at the present time.

5148 Mr. Bradley: Your feeling is that the contract with the Uranium Steamship Company would be protected despite the fact that its assets are less than its liabilities is due in some measure to the interests back of it?

The Witness: Entirely so. I know the interests at the back of it will make it good.

Mr. Guiler: You do not know what those interests are?

The Witness: No, I do not know who they are or what they are.

Mr. Bullowa: You know those people are of Toronto?

5149

The Witness: I do not know.

Mr. Guiler: You know where to ask for money?

The Witness: We have not had to ask for money for so long that I do not know what they will say.

Mr. Guiler: You have been refused money at times and you have filled it yourself without the assistance of outside interests?

The Witness: We have been refused and go along somehow.

Mr. Bullowa: If Mr. Hannah does not represent the owners and you do not know who the owners are, who do you work for?

5150

The Witness: The Uranium Line.

Q. That has a few shares of stock? A. I don't know anything about that.

Mr. Beers: Do you know whether Sir William McKenzie is the owner of any obligations issued by the Uranium Steamship Company? A. I do not know.

Mr. Beers: Have you any opinion on that subject?

The Witness: Not the least.

Mr. Beers: Do you know anybody who is the owner of any obligations of the Uranium Company?

The Witness: I do not.

Mr. Spooner: Have you been warned then at times by parties in the Uranium Line not to disclose any information?

5151

The Witness: No, sir. I was told I could give all that I had.

Hearing adjourned to February 10th, 1913, at 11 A. M.

5152 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

5153 Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, February 10th, 1913.

Upon request of Senator Spooner, the hearing was adjourned until Friday, February 14th, 1913, at 11 o'clock, A. M.

5154

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 5155

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner. 5156

New York, February 14, 1913.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles C. Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for Norddeutscher Lloyd, et. al.

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers, Esq.. and Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard 5157 Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for Russian East Asiatic Company, et al.

Mr. Guiler: At the request of Senator Spooner the matter is adjourned to 2:30 P. M.

Hearing adjourned to Friday, February 14th, 1913, at 2:30 P. M.

5158 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,

against

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

5159 Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, February 14th, 1913.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles C. Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, 5160 Esq., for Norddeutscher, Lloyd, et al.

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton, by J. C. Spooner, Esq., for the Allan Line, et al.

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers, Esq., and Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for Russian East Asiatic Company, et al.

HORACE ROBERT BOWDEN-SMITH, sworn on behalf of the defense, testified as follows:

Direct-examination by Mr. Shipman:

Q. Are you employed by the Atlantic Transport Line? A. I am.

Q. In what capacity? A. I am purser.

Q. Do you run on regular trips between England and this country, New York? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you recently visited the office of the Canadian Northern Railway in London, England? A. I have.

5162

Q. Where is that located? A. In Wallbrook, E. C.

Q. Is there any name to the building at which it is located? A. Bond Court House.

Q. Did you look to see whether or not the office of the Uranium Steamship Company, Limited, is located there also? A. I did.

Q. In this same building? A. Same building.

Q. Did you find located there, the office of the Uranium Steamship Company? A. Yes, I did.

Q. How did you know this when you visited the building? A. On the directory board.

Q. What did you see on this directory board in regard to the Uranium Company and the Canadian Northern? A. At the lower part of the board, third 5163 floor, on which it stated the Canadian Northern Railway Company, accountants' department, and the Uranium Steamship Company, Limited.

Q. How did the sig.s read? A. "The Uranium Steamship Company, Limited" first, the "Canadian Northern Railway" below.

Q. And underneath that? A. "Accountants' Department."

Mr. Spooner: Does that refer to each, or both?

The Witness: No, apparently for the Canadian Northern Railway Company.

5164 Horace Robert Bowden-Smith

Mr. Guiler: I want to put down a general objection to this testimony as being immaterial, irrelevant, and I move to have it stricken out.

Q. The sign, as I understand it, you saw on this directory in that building read: "The Uranium Steamship Company, Limited" first, and then "Canadian Northern Railway Company" underneath, and then read underneath that, "Accountants' Department"? A. "Accountants' Department" in brackets.

Q. So that these words "Accountants' Department" referred to both of these?

5165 Mr. Guiler: Now, I don't think that is a proper question; he can say what he saw there.

Q. Preceding these two names, the Uranium Steamship Company, Limited, and the Canadian Northern Railway Company, were the words "Third floor"? A. Third floor, yes.

Q. Was this building principally occupied by the Canadian Northern Railway Company, do you know? A. I should think the whole of it.

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

5166 Q. Did you go through the building, Mr. Smith, to find out whether it was all occupied by the Canadian Northern? A. I went through the building.

Q. Did you find out whether it was all occupied by the Canadian Northern? A. On either side of the entrance were two glass plates with the words "Canadian Northern Railway Company," I think.

Q. What drew your attention to the Canadian Northern Railway being there; did you go there to see any official of the Canadian Northern? A. I just went down to look at the building.

Q. You were requested to look at it, were you? A. Yes.

Q. And you didn't go through the building, did you? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And what did you notice inside; the names of any other companies inside? A. Several other railway companies and the Canadian Northern Steamship Company, Limited.

Q. Were there any other business houses in there at all that you noticed in either signs? A. No.

Q. Just simply it was a railroad building, occupied by various railroads? A. Yes.

Q. What other railroads did you notice there? A. Several other Canadian railroads.

Q. Can you name some? A. I cannot keep their 5168 names in mind.

Q. In addition to the Canadian Northern Railway Company there were several others? A. Various departments of the Canadian on each floor.

Q. But there were other railroads besides the Canadian Northern occupying the building there? A. Yes, I believe they were Canadian railroads.

Mr. Spooner: Were there any other than the Canadian and other Canadian railroads occupying the building?

The Witness: I think not.

Mr. Guiler: I understand you to say there were several other Canadian railways occupying the building? 5169

Mr. Spooner: He says now that there were no railway companies except Canadian companies, including the Canadian Northern, occupying the building, as I understand it.

Mr. Guiler: That is correct?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. Now, you did not enquire in the accounting department to find out whether the accounting depart-

1123

5170 ment of the Canadian Northern was the accounting department of the Uranium Line? A. No, I did not.

Q. You did not enquire there as to whether the Uranium and the Canadian had any connection? A. No, sir.

Q. All that you noticed was that the sign Uranium was on one board, and the other was underneath it? A. On two boards; there were two boards on either side of the porch. Each board was a facsimile, and had the same floor from left to right.

By Mr. Spooner:

5171 Q. Were the names of the occupants of the different departments on the doors; on the doors of the various offices in the building? A. Yes.

Q. Did you see Canadian on the door inside of the building, accounting department? A. On the third floor.

Q. Whatever floor it was? A. Yes.

Q. What names did they contain? A. Canadian Northern Railway Company, accountants' department, that is all.

Q. Did you find any other accounting department? A. No.

5172 RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION by Mr. Shipman:

Q. Will you look at this paper here and state whether or not you verified what is stated in that paper, according to what you saw in this building in regard to these signs? A. Yes, sure.

Q. Does it correctly state what you saw there? A. Absolutely.

Mr. Shipman: I offer that paper in evidence.

Mr. Guiler: I object to the paper going in; I don't think it is the proper way.

Mr. Spooner: Using that as a memorandum, let him state what was on each door.

Mr. Shipman: Do you want me to go through the entire memorandum.

Mr. Guiler: Let me see the memorandum.

Mr. Shipman: It is nothing but an analysis of the signs, that is all.

Mr. Guiler: I will let that paper go in subject to my objection as to its materiality.

Marked, Defendants' Exhibit No. 19.

DIRECT-EXAMINATION by Mr. Beers: 5174

Q. Mr. Smith, when you went through the building, Bond Court House, did you have in your hand this paper, Defendants' Exhibit No. 19? A. No, I did not have it.

Q. Did you have it with you? A. No, I did not.

Q. Well, did you verify this paper, as containing an accurate statement of the signs in that building? A. Yes.

Q. Did you make these notes when you went through? A. No, I did not make the notes.

Q. Have you verified this paper, as containing a correct statement of the signs in the building? A. Yes, I had a man with me who had that paper, I did not have 5175 it myself.

Q. And you verify it as containing the correct statement of the signs? A. Yes.

RE-CROSS EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. Then this is made up from a memorandum that someone else made, Mr. Smith, who was going around with you? A. A man who had that paper or either one very much like it; it may have been a copy.

5176 Q. Did you examine all of these signs, while you were going around there and notice that there were four windows on the ground floor and three windows on the first floor? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you examine floor by floor, and examine every sign that was on there yourself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The other man who was with you, took the notes down as you went around, did he not? A. Yes.

Q. How soon did you compare—he had a copy of that with him; you went over it as you went along? A. Yes.

5177 Q. But you didn't enquire in any of the offices as to whether the signs on the building were an accurate description of what companies were inside? A. I made no enquiries.

Q. So far as you know, those might be old signs, which did not accurately indicate who was inside, or they might not; is that right? A. Old signs.

Q. Might be old signs that had been left on the building? A. It might have been, though I doubt it.

Q. As far as your knowledge goes you don't know? A. As far as my knowledge goes.

Q. You—it might as well be that, or not? A. Yes.

Mr. Spooner: If you will prove that they are old signs, we will admit it.

5178 Mr. Guiler: I think that is up to you.

Hearing adjourned to Friday, February 21st, 1913. at 10:30 A. M.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 5179

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

5180

Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, February 21st, 1913.

Upon request of Mr. Shipman the hearing was adjourned until Friday, February 27th, 1913, at 11 o'clock A. M.

5181

5182 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

5183 Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, February 27th, 1913

Upon request of Mr. Shipman the hearing was adjourned until Wednesday, March 5th, 1913, at 11 o'clock A. M.

5184

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 5185

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

5186

Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, March 5th, 1913.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles C. Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton, by J. C. Spooner, Esq., for the Allan Line, et al.

5187

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers, Esq., and Allan B. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

5188 Hermann Winter

HERMANN WINTER, recalled on behalf of the defendant:

Direct-examination by Mr. Beers:

Q. Am I right in recalling that when you testified at an earlier stage of this case that you said you had been in the steamship business since 1885? A. Yes, since May 1885.

Q. Please state in a general way, what the nature of your steamship business has been since that time? A. I was—5189 Q. In what company and what were your duties and experience, including the nature of the capacity in which you were engaged? A. I entered the service of the Norddeutscher Lloyd in May, 1885, as an employe and gradually worked my way through all the departments. Through the first-class, second-class and third-class, until I was in charge of the office. I became their agent here and subsequently manager of the office and then manager of the Norddeutscher Lloyd under the supervision of Mr. Schwab and practically having full power for the company and for the firm, to conduct their business here.

Q. After your connection with the Norddeutscher Lloyd what else did you do? A. I severed my con-5190 nection with the Norddeutscher Lloyd in April, 1911, and joined the Cunard Steamship Line.

Q. Are you familiar with the meetings of those interested in the steamship lines held in New York and known as the North Atlantic Conferences and Continental Conferences? A. Yes, thoroughly.

Q. Have you been familiar with them? A. I have been practically at all of the meetings of the Continental Conference and the Mediterranean Conference since 1888, as an active member and as chairman of many of the committees.

Q. I am speaking now particularly as to the meetings held in New York? A. Yes, in New York.

5191

Q. Not of any meetings or of any arrangement made in Europe? A. No.

Q. And your testimony applies to that? A. Yes.

Q. I call your attention to Rule 9 stated in circulars issued by both the North Atlantic Passenger Conference and the Continental Conference to their representatives: "Agents are prohibited from selling passengers tickets under false representations as to the line or the route by which the passenger is to be transported." Are you familiar with the conditions which prevailed and led to the adoption of that rule and if so state what they were? A. The rules are the natural result of a desire to eliminate undesirable elements.

5192

Q. When you say undesirable elements what do you mean? A. In the agency field—or those attempting to do a steamship business. Prior to the regulation of this business irresponsible persons undertook to sell steamship tickets to the various nationalities. They issued their own orders and collected the monies.

Mr. Guiler: I think the witness ought to state facts instead of characterizing undesirable elements.

Mr. Beers: Tell us what they did.

Mr. Bullowa: Yes, and then we can judge for ourselves.

5193

The Witness: Taking in their own orders and collecting the money.

Mr. Beers: That is the agents? A. Yes, the persons doing steamship business. They collected the passenger's money bringing a number of passengers here. They held them in boarding houses or lodging houses as long as they could; they fleeced them as long as they could and then brought these people to the steamship lines for the best price they could get for them. In many cases the agents—or so-called agents—would act as bankers or collectors for these people and when 5194 they secured quite an amount of money they disappeared and ultimately the blame fell on the steamship companies, the passengers assuming that the steamship companies had authorized these people to act for them. With the object of eliminating this feature and practically making the agents responsible and offering an element that the people could deal with safely, this rule was inaugurated.

Q. Do you personally know of instances of oppression of emigrants such as those you have been speaking of in a general way? A. Why, yes, I think one instance I took part in was the case of Henry 5195 Rice, who ran a boarding house and held a license from the mayor's office as a licensed runner and he hung around in front of the steamships. He was selling tickets—he had correspondents and sold tickets—

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. When was that? A. As late as 1892, 1893, 1894. 1895. Four, I think.

Q. Excuse me for interrupting you? A. Certainly. We had been trying to put him out of business. One Saturday afternoon in October, 1894, the agent of the Red Star Line adjoining the Norddeutscher Lloyd office called upon me and said there were eleven Po-5196 landers who desired to sail by the Norddeutscher Lloyd. They held tickets from Rice, and the man, after keeping them eleven days trying to put them on the Prince Line, but the people knowing the Norddeutcher Lloyd had four funnels and four propellers they objected to being put on a steamer with only one funnel and one propeller. I questioned these men and found that they would serve as good witnesses and I arranged with the district attorney's office to have them appear the following morning—the city—the state district attorney. I put the men in charge of an agent here to look after them and take care of them, board them and feed them and then have them appear before the grand jury the next morning. Rice was indicted on three counts. On his first trial he was acquitted and he was convicted on the second, and he was remanded for sentence for a week later before Judge Goff. I appeared before Judge Goff on the day fixed for sentence and explained to him what our experience had been and asked in justice for the many emigrants who had been defrauded that he be given an exemplary sentence. I had known Judge Goff and I gave him my opinion and told him why we had not been able to prohibit this before and finally the district attorney doubted whether he would get more than 5198 six months, but Judge Goff sentenced him to four years and six months. It served to clear out the whole field. That is one of possibly many instances.

5197

By Mr. Beers:

Q. Was that a type of the experience which you met with prior to the adoption of this rule? A. Yes.

Q. Was this agent whom you refer to—was he one of the agents who represented any of the lines? A. No, indeed not. He was an element we desired to eliminate.

Q. Will you describe more fully, please, more clearly the custom—the practice which you say these 5199 agents who have not been appointed by the lines adopt in reference to selling transportation to third-class passengers—what do they do? A. They would take and sell tickets of their own issue. Forms not authorized by the steamship lines.

Q. What would these tickets show? A. They would be drawn by their correspondents in the interior—in the industrial centres—on the so-called agents in the city asking for transportation from New York to Bremen or from New York to Liverpool.

Q. Would it designate the line? A. No; merely give a date of sailing, and then a price from say New York to Liverpool.

5200

Q. Just an order for transportation? A. Yes, third class transportation.

Q. Without designating the line? A. Yes, without designating the line. They would charge the highest price and would endeavor to transport the people by the cheapest route.

Mr. Spooner: Pocketing the difference?

The Witness: Yes, pocketing the difference. That is what Rice was doing for years. Collecting the highest rate and sending them by the cheapest rate; collecting the highest rate for the Norddeutscher Lloyd and then sending them by the Prince Line, 5201 which never went to Bremen.

Mr. Beers: You mentioned the danger of loss by defalcation amongst agents not representing steamship companies. Were there of your own knowledge any instances of this?

The Witness: Oh, yes.

Q. To the third-class passengers? A. Yes. In the foreign nationalities these so-called agents have always acted as bankers collecting the money from the people, passengers money and the savings of emigrants and when the time of departure comes they had disappeared and the money was lost. The Austrain Consul referred to his enquiry which showed that 5202 in one year there had been a loss in Pittsburg alone of $1,800,000.

Mr. Spooner: Among the emigrants?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Beers:

Q. Will you state, please, if you know, what precautions were taken by the steamship companies in appointing and maintaining agents who are authorized to sell tickets by these lines? A. The steamship lines investigate the character of these people, their reliability and then bond them.

5203

Q. In every case? A. Yes, a security bond to the steamship people. This bond is necessary to secure the agency. If an agent misrepresents the sale of a ticket—the time or the steamer or overcharges the passenger in any way it is taken into account immediately. For his first offense he is warned—for the second offense he is penalized and for the third offense he is put out of business. We cannot have him. His misdoings reflect upon the steamship companies.

Q. From your experience in the steamship business can you state whether there is any other way in which third-class passengers can be protected against extortion and imposition except by control of the agents? 5204
A. I know of none. I know of none. We have tried various methods but none were successful as this one has been.

Q. Under the laws of the State of New York licenses and bonds are required of these agents? A. It was done at the suggestion of the steamship lines made to the Department of Labor.

Q. That is the New York Department of Labor? A. Yes. The department investigated many of these instances of losses by the emigrant passengers and conferred with the steamship lines and at one of our conferences we suggested that the agents also should be bonded and put under a license. 5205

Q. You suggested to those who were framing the act? A. Yes. Miss Galliher who was active in this work drafted an order and Judge Gault corrected her draft on our behalf—substantially in line with our suggestion.

Q. But the present provision of the New York law regulates the agents substantially in line with the regulations of the steamship lines which drafted them? A. Yes, they required that no person should act as an agent unless he is bonded by the steamship lines. He must have the written permission of the steamship lines.

5206 Q. What is the regulation of the lines governing their agents with respect to any rebate by the agent to the passenger? A. They prohibit any rebates. In fact our rules predate those of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The resolutions have been passed by the Interstate Commerce Commission but we had them prior to the Interstate Commerce Commission, long before that was done the steamship lines had it in the same way.

Q. Have the steamship companies adopted practically the same as the Interstate Commerce Commission? A. Yes. Since 1879. The agent is penalized 5207 for it if he is caught.

Mr. Spooner: The rebate comes out of the commission the agent gets?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Beers: When you are speaking of rebates, are you referring to the agents dividing his commission with the passenger?

The Witness: That is a rebate.

Q. Prior to the supervision of the agents by the lines, was there any rebate. A. Oh, yes, not only that but these agents would come to the line with a batch of passengers and ask $3.00 commission from one line and then take the same batch of passengers to a 5208 weaker line and ask for $4.00 and in that way demoralize the rates and demoralize conditions and generally disrupt business. It made rates unstable and business unstable.

Q. You have stated that these agents here not appointed by the steamship companies sold transportation without designating the steamer which was to carry the passenger. Have you stated in full what the agents would then do with the passengers after they arrived here in New York? A. Yes, and as I say they charged the highest price possible and then sent the passenger to the line with the lowest rate—peddle the passenger and pocket the difference. Then the lines established a uniform rate. But they sold tickets at the higher rates and peddled the passengers out to the cheaper lines deducting the difference and defrauding them.

5209

Q. Are you familiar with the agency conditions to rates on westbound passenger business? A. Yes—on the other side,

Q. And in respect of prepaid? A. Yes.

Q. And the rules as to the regulation of agents by the steamship companies doing westbound business? A. The same conditions prevail. An agent would sell transportation from say Bremen, without designating the line. The emigrant comes to Bremen and applies for transportation. None of the lines having any transportation or knowledge of the order, possibly he would stay there a few weeks until letters reached his relatives here and they found out what was doing and then frequently the agent here who issued the prepaid order would come up to a line and have the order covered.

5210

Q. Have you personally investigated this matter in Bremen? A. Yes.

Q. On the ground? A. Yes, on the ground.

Q. What effect have the practices of unauthorized agents had in the volume of immigration? A. They naturally retarded immigration. They misled it too.

5211

Q. Can you state from your experience what difference the enforcement of Rule 9 makes to the passenger—the third-class passenger—in respect to the matter of overcharging? A. It prohibits any overcharge of a passenger whatsoever. Any offense of that sort is immediately taken up by the line and the agent who indulges in it is penalized and put out of business.

Q. That is covered by the bond? A. Oh, yes, and in addition here in the city we have a cash deposit from every agent which also guarantees us against any offense of that sort because his fine is taken out of there and he must make it good before he can continue in business.

Q. Does that control over agents also protect the passengers as to the wrong steamer and the wrong route? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Does the control of agents enable the line to maintain any supervision in respect of the emigrant boarding houses in New York and if so what provision? A. Why, the emigrants coming here and staying here—prior to embarking if they have any complaints 5213 as to overcharging we immediately investigate them. If we find a boarding house or transfer agent indulging in that practice, we notify the agent who sent the immigrant and instruct him not to send any further passengers to them and stop their business.

Q. From your experience is it your practice that the agent in the interior directs the emigrant to a boarding house here? A. Yes, he usually directs them to a boarding house or a lodging house here.

Q. And by maintaining a control over the agent you control the man here? A. Yes, as far as possible.

Q. What have you to say as to your control of the 5214 transfer agents handling steerage passengers' baggage—through your agents—your control through your agents? A. We try the same thing—if we hear of an overcharge the Transfer Company is taken to account through our agents.

Q. You look after the immigrant? A. Yes. Look out for his board, and his care and his baggage.

Q. Have the steamship companies any financial interest in the running of boarding houses or transfer companies which carry the steerage passengers' baggage? A. No steamship to my knowledge.

Q. Merely for the protection of your passengers? A. Yes.

5215

Q. You have no financial concern with them? A. None whatever.

Q. You testified previously in this case, Mr. Winter, as I recall it that you were familiar with the various arrangements made between the different steamship lines in respect of the rates and management of agents. At about what date did those arrangements between the lines commence? A. As to rates?

Q. As to rates and management of agents? A. 1891-2. That is prior to that time we had differences in our conferences, we had understandings and agreements with reference to rates only. We found that was the best way to conduct the business, but the general agreement I presume you refer to amongst the lines abroad began in 1892, as a result—

5216

Q. When you say the best way just what do you mean—the most profitable way? A. It insured greater stability of the rates and better conduct of the business if we understood how each was conducting his business, what rates he was charging and what methods he was pursuing.

Q. From your experience in the steamship business can you say whether it is possible under present conditions to maintain a passenger line from Europe to the United States which shall comply with the requirements of the statutes in England and in the United States and with the demands of the public, unless the passenger rates are practically stable? A. No, you cannot.

5217

Q. Do you mean to testify that it is not possible to maintain practically stable rates? A. It is possible that—

Q. It is not possible to comply with the present requirements of the statutes and the demands of the public? A. Unless you have stable rates.

Q. From your experience in the steamship business can you state whether it is possible to have practically 5218 stable rates without some understanding between steamship companies? A. I should say no. All of our agreements—all of our understandings have always been for the rate. Every rupture we have had has practically had a tendency to bring us together again with a view of establishing stable rates and stable conditions. Without them we cannot favorably conduct the business.

Q. Will you state how the steerage rates at the present time compare with the steerage rates before there were understandings or agreements between the lines to which you refer? A. They differ slightly in 5219 proportion to the better service that is rendered.

Q. So far as merely the amount is concerned how do the average prevailing rates at the present time compare with the average prevailing rates for steerage passengers say in the early '80's? A. Slightly higher.

Q. What relation does that advance bear to the difference in what the passenger gets? A. The passenger receives a good deal more in transportation today for his rate than what he got twenty years ago or fifteen years ago.

Q. Has there been any decided change in the quality and conditions of the services as far as the third-5220 class passengers are concerned during the last twenty years? A. Oh—decidedly.

Q. From your experience in the business will you state whether that improvement in the service would have been possible without the maintenance of stable rates? A. It could not have been. It is acknowledged by everybody in the business that the maintenance of stable rates has led to the improvements in our service—larger and faster boats, better service, better accommodations. That applies to all classes, first, second and third.

5221

Q. When you say "our service" do you mean it to apply generally? A. Yes, the entire trans-Atlantic service.

Mr. Guiler: The Conferen e Line's service?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Beers: Will you state whether the steerage rates now prevailing on the North Atlantic Trunk route between Europe and the United States are in your opinion reasonable?

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as calling for a conclusion.

5222

The Witness: They decidedly are.

Mr. Guiler: I ask to have the answer stricken out.

Q. In your opinion, Mr. Winter what would be the effect of entirely unrestricted competition between the North Atlantic Passenger Lines in respect to passenger business? The survival of the fittest and strongest? A. Protracted rate war would ruin the smaller and weaker companies.

Q. What effect would such unrestricted competition have on the establishment of new lines in the business—would it invite it or discourage it?

5223

Mr. Guiler: I think that is merely conjecture.

The Witness: Certainly discourage it. No prudent man would go into the establishment of a new line with a demoralizing rate war.

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. You spoke about Rule 9 of the conference agents. Rule 9 had in addition to the purpose you mentioned another purpose namely that agents are prohibited 5224 from booking passengers by any steamers except those on the lines, members of the Continental, the Mediterranean and the North Atlantic Conferences, unless the conference gives an expressed permission in writing. The purpose of that was not to represent outside lines? A. Yes.

Q. If they represented the Conference Lines they could not represent any one else on the outside? A. Oh, yes, that is the restriction every employer places upon his employee—you shall not work for any other person.

Q. That was the restriction the Conference Line
5225 placed upon its agents? A. The lines understood it—in the industrial centres—

Q. I just asked you a specific question?

Mr. Bullowa: He has a perfect right to explain his answer.

Mr. Beers: You can ask it differently.

Mr. Guiler: I do not want to cut him off in anything he wants to say but I do not know about the industrial centres. Why didn't you bring it out?

Mr. Beers: I do not know what Mr. Winter has in his mind.

5226 The Witness: I just want to tell you why I made that remark.

Mr. Guiler: Go ahead?

The Witness: We bring them up certainly in our business—we teach them the business and when we have done that we do not want anybody else we do not know to come in there and avail themselves of our services and of our experiences.

Q. You do not want them to go to anybody else? A. Exactly—just as any employer does not want any person he has brought up in his business to go to others and give them his experience.

5227

Q. Now Mr. Winter, was not it your experience that the conference lines as often as possible took away the agents from the outside lines—good agents —and made them conference agents? A. No, we did not take them away but an agent controlling any kind of a business saw that the greater opportunity was with the regular lines and he applied for the agency. General experience showed him that if for the outside line he could do a considerable amount of business he immediately realized that with a number of lines and a suitable business he could do a great deal more and he applied for the agency.

5228

Mr. Guiler: The question was put to you in an investigation in the house charges. In an investigation in house charge 543, page 1416 by Mr. Hawley: "Q. Have you ever made any overtures to successful agents of the Uranium Line to get them to withdraw their ticket brokerage business and take up yours? A. I have not. But if I found in any place, or if my traveler found in any place, a man who was doing a successful business I should consider him as not fulfilling his duties if he did not try to get that man's services for us also. It is a plain business proposition"? A. Exactly.

5229

Mr. Bradley: Why didn't you read the rest of the case?

Mr. Guiler: That is all of it.

The Witness: Exactly if I find a man in any place doing business I am going to try and get his business.

Mr. Guiler: You did not want him to get away from you?

The Witness: If I have an agent whom I have educated up in the business and on whom I have spent a good deal of money I do not propose to have somebody else whom I do not know and who is inimical to us come in and avail himself of his services and cut into our business.

5230

Q. You object to one in your business representing an outside line? A. Yes.

Q. You want him solely in your business? A. Yes.

Q. That Rule 9 was used to limit the number of agents representing the Uranium Line? A. No. It gave them the choice.

Q. Gave them the choice? A. Yes; if he preferred to work for the Uranium Line in preference to working for a number of others he had the choice.

Q. Didn't you find a number of cases where agents represented the Uranium Line in addition to representing your line? A. Yes.

5231 Q. And in all cases of that kind the agents were disqualified by the Conference Line? A. Yes, yes—they were not disqualified—they were given the choice.

Q. You said yes just now and you said in your previous testimony that there were "quite some cases"—I think I am using your exact words? A. I was speaking about the Chiavone and Zotti cases.

Q. What do you mean by disqualified? A. The agency of the line he held was taken away from him.

Mr. Spooner: The Zotti case had nothing to do with the Uranium Line.

Mr. Guiler: He was one of the agents disqualified for representing an outside line.

5232

The Witness: He was doing the kind of business we objected to any agent doing.

Q. And the Chiavone case. He was disqualified for representing the Uranium Line? A. No. An outside line—the Italian, I think.

Q. Anyway he was disqualified under that rule? A. Yes.

Q. For representing some outside line? A. Yes.

Mr. Spooner: Was that all he was disqualified for?

The Witness: And for irregular practices also.

5233

Mr. Guiler: That case is in the record already.

Q. That Rule 9 was used in addition to Minute No. 22—you are familiar with Minute No. 22—that was used in order to react against outside competition? A. I should say so.

Q. That is in addition to putting on fighting steamers and that Rule 9 was enforced very frequently against agents of the Conference Lines in order to prevent them representing outside lines or slipping away from the conference? A. Yes, lines inimical to us, yes.

5234

Q. In fact that matter was taken up in Minute No. 22 which dealt with the competition of outside lines. (Reading.) "The following cable was despatched by unanimous consent from Secretary Peters to Secretary Sandford with the view of the New York Conference taking prompt action to discipline all agents in the states transgressing conference rules, viz: "Referring your last cable Atlantic Conference Lines are unanimously agreed that under present conditions it is highly essential that the conference regulations shall be strictly enforced against agents and request New York Conference act accordingly and in cases of doubt refer same to arbitration." That is in line with what you said? A. Yes.

5235

Q. You used Rule 9 in regard to outside competition? A. Yes.

Q. Are you familiar with Lozantcheff Freres? A. You have not got the name right.

Q. Yes I have. I show you Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1394 in which it says: "If the Cunard Line are sure that the passengers mentioned in G 518 and 529 from Lozantchoff Freres were booked for the N. W. T. L. the Red Star Line propose to disqualify them." That was on the complaint of the Cunard Line? A. That was on the other side. We have no knowledge of that.

5236

Q. If that is so it is simply carrying out the effect of Rule 9? A. Oh, yes.

Q. The effect of Rule 9 was like a sword and a shield to the lines, the members of the conference? A. I should think it may be.

Q. It was? A. I should think it may be.

Q. This case that you have mentioned of fraudulent agents—Rice—this was in 1892 or so? A. It began all the way up there.

Q. How long would you say this practice existed? A. They were in force before I was in business. Rule 9.

5237

Q. What? A. All these rules—

Q. I was referring to the fraudulent practices? A. They stopped them. They practically brought the lines together.

Q. I was asking particularly the length of time they had existed from? A. I started in 1885. They existed when I entered the steamship business and the tendency of the conference was to eliminate them.

Q. I am trying to get the length of time these practices existed so as to just know when they began and when they terminated? A. An effectual stop was put to them in 1892, when we started our agreements but even after that they existed to some extent naturally.

5238

Q. Your idea would be that the agents show wisdom in representing a number of lines and binding themselves to represent the Conference Lines and not seek the outside lines? A. For instance all the leading agents, the agents association themselves have adopted a resolution of the steamship conference with the view of practically securing a satisfactory conduct of the business.

Q. What do you mean by the agents? A. The agents of the Conference Lines—the agents who do the steamship business—we have such associations in Pittsburg, Providence, Rhode Island, Boston and also in Philadelphia.

5239

Q. Whose agents are you talking about? A. Practically all the steamship agents.

Q. All agents representing your line? A. No, all persons who are directly engaged in the steamship business in the sale of steamship tickets.

Q. In addition to tying themselves to represent your line a number of them have got together and formed an association of their own? A. Yes.

Q. They have made an agreement among themselves not to represent outside interests except those they represent? A. Not definitely—they have not limited 5240 their membership.

Q. I know. But I thought that you said they had agreed among themselves not to represent other interests? A. No. They merely got together and saw the practicability of our rules and got together on this effectual association.

Q. And to carry out the rules to represent outside lines? A. No, we cannot find that resolution.

Q. That is Rule 9? A. I know, but you cannot find that rule in the agents' association.

Q. Is there any agreement to that effect? A. No, the steamship lines do not recognize these outside associations.

5241

Q. You are not very familiar with the working of the agents' association? A. Oh, yes, I am.

Q. I understood you to say a short time ago that they got together to carry out a resolution of the Conference Lines? A. Yes, as to the conduct of the steamship business.

Q. I understood you to say that in carrying out these rules they tried to enforce Rule 9? A. I did not say that.

Q. I thought it was a fair inference? A. No.

Q. They did not agree Rule 9 was a good rule? A. They did not. If it comes to an incident they carry it out. It is no part of their by-laws.

Q. What have they? A. A general agreement to that effect—regular by-laws and everything, but I do not think you will find that rule in there.

Q. I am not talking about the written rules. I am not talking about any rules? A. In practice they do carry out that rule because in practice they see the benefit of representing a number of lines instead of only one.

5243 Q. I think you said you had found that agreements among the lines were of great assistance in maintaining rates? A. Yes.

Q. Stable rates? A. Yes.

Q. And have the rates been practically stable since the agreement of 1892? A. Yes, of course, we have had disagreements and they have always resulted in disastrous rate wars.

Q. With the exception of these periods? A. Oh, yes, they fluctuated very slightly.

Q. They have increased to a certain extent, have they not? A. Yes, with the demand.

Q. And the rates practically now are $35? A. Yes, on an average.

5244 Q. That is by agreement amongst the lines also? A. Yes, and the demand.

Q. You say that is a profitable rate, that $35 rate? A. I do not say it is a profitable rate. I say it was reasonable.

Q. It is a profitable rate? A. In what way?

Q. Lines carrying the passengers can make a profit out of it? A. The best index—

Q. Is it a profitable rate?

Mr. Bullowa: Let him answer the question.

Mr Guiler: I would rather do it without your assistance.

5245

Mr. Bullowa: I do not deign to assist you.

Mr. Guiler: I think I am in a position to ask these questions; whether I am qualified or not is a matter for the powers that be. I want to know whether the $35 rate which you state as being the rate arranged by the various lines is a profitable rate to the lines? A. It is hard to designate a single rate as profitable.

Q. It has been going on for years? A. The best index of profit is the return the companies earn. I do not say the rate is profitable. I merely say it is reasonable. I think they ought to be higher.

Q. You would not say that what has been going 5246 on for the last twenty years—that that is a profitable rate to the lines, although it has enabled the companies to earn dividends? A. Combined with other circumstances it might be satisfactory.

Q. Ordinarily the $35 rate is a satisfactory rate? A. It might be a profitable rate.

Q. Has not it been your experience that it is a profitable rate? A. I think it should be higher—

Q. I am asking you for your experience? A. (Continuing) to give a reasonable profit.

Q. If you will just keep my question in mind. I am simply asking you whether the $35 rate in your experience has resulted in a profit to the conference lines? A. I should not call it a profitable rate. 5247

Q. The lines have been for maintaining this? A. There have been other circumstances.

Q. They have paid dividends? A. Yes, but at what rate—at a lower rate than any other business—a lower rate of dividends than any other business.

Q. They have paid dividends? A. On and off.

Q. And the rate has fluctuated between that and $30? A. Yes.

Q. A rate of $21 would not necessarily be a loss? A. No. Other circumstances would have to be combined.

5248 Q. Supposing you had a five thousand ton boat and carried one thousand passengers on that boat at a $21 rate, that rate would not necessarily result in a loss? A. It might.

Q. Not necessarily? A. The probability would be that it would. One single trip cannot determine the reasonableness of a rate. That is quite impossible. Because you carry one thousand immigrants, that would not enable you to run a boat successfully.

Q. From your experience it is possible for you to make a profit? A. Not unless the first and second-class cabins and freight would combine to do it.

5249 Q. Take the ordinary voyage? A. No—$21 would not bring a profit.

Q. It would not necessarily be a loss? A. I do not say it would be a loss, but it would not be a profit.

Q. You say it would not necessarily result in loss? A. It might not, but that would depend on other surrounding circumstances.

Q. So that your opinion now is practically the same as when you testified before the committee on house resolution No. 543 when Mr. Hawley asked you "suppose an independent steamship company have a vessel sailing on Thursday, and there is a reduction of rates to meet that ship's rate of sailing and the vessel 5250 of the conference designated to take the passengers over should carry 1,000 passengers, at $21 apiece, just for illustration, would the loss to that particular ship, below the published and general rate of the conference lines, be apportioned among the several lines? A. It would not necessarily be a loss"? A. It depends on the circumstances.

Q. Taking an ordinary voyage it might result in profit? A. Yes, if the other circumstances are favorable.

Q. You said that the practices of the various fraudulent agents retarded immigration? How did that come about. How was immigration retarded by these practices? A. Why, when fraud and improper practices prevailed, it would naturally interfere with the proper conduct of immigration. It would keep people from coming. An Italian immigrant suffered a loss on the other side, for instance; his loss would keep his friends and relatives from coming.

5251

Q. Have you any particular incident in mind on which you base that statement? A. No—general experience.

Q. You cannot cite us any particular instance where you remember that occurred? A. No—no particular case. We judge from our experience.

5252

Senator Spooner: They write home? A. They write home that they have been defrauded. Those letters home—

Mr. Guiler: Have you got—

Mr. Bullowa: Let him finish.

Witness: Those letters home are a greater argument.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. You have not got those letters here? A. No, sir. We know how they are regarded.

Q. You have not seen the letters? A. I have seen letters of that sort. We are able sometimes from letters and reports we see to tell events in the steamship business—third-class east and west—ten months in advance. The moment people realize here that work will be plentiful they usually write out enquiries; a slight increase in business indicates that more immigrants are coming over, and the departure of eastbound passengers indicates that work is slacking down here.

5253

Q. But there are numerous other conditions which may or may not assist immigration at that time? A. Oh, yes, economic conditions.

5254 Q. Besides the practices I have mentioned? A. Oh, Yes.

Q. A very low rate would attract immigration? A. It calls forth the undesirable immigrant.

Q. There is a certain class of people who will take the less rate? A. The Immigration Bureau will tell you that a low rate—

Mr. Guiler: I am not asking you anything about that.

Mr. Beers: Let him answer the question.

5255 The Witness (continuing): Induces undesirable immigrants.

Mr. Guiler: What is your experience a low rate would induce? A. Undesirable immigrants.

Q. But it increases immigration in general? A. It attracts.

Q. And in general it attracts people that possess he qualifications to get in here? A. Not to the extent that a somewhat higher rate does. It attracts a poor class of immigrants.

Q. That is, if a man has $7, and the rate from Liverpool to New York is $7, he can get here? A. Yes. That is not the class of man you want.

5256 Q. Leave that aside. He is so much better off by the trip he has had. He could not travel if he had not had that rate? A. No.

Q. Knowing this, it is your opinion that the steamship lines should be allowed to continue the fixed rate that they have now? A. Yes, I think it is the only safe and proper way of conducting the business.

Q. It is better for the lines themselves? A. It is better for the passengers—the travellers.

Q. But at any rate it is better for the line? A. It ensures the line's stable conditions, which are always better in every business.

Mr. Bullowa: Even with the Uranium Line? A. Even with the Uranium Line.

5257

Mr. Guiler: If the line were allowed to make various rates from $35 down during the rate war the general public for the time being would be benefited by getting the lower rate? A. The general public might be benefited by getting the lower rates.

Q. That is, the lines would not immediately cut down their services the same as they cut their rates? A. They would, decidedly.

Q. Immediately? A. Yes, they would, and some lines—why, you have had instances where some lines have gone out of business for that reason.

Q. You have had this experience on the same boat, during the rate war there have been three rates, perhaps, $35, $30 and $25, and passengers on those boats have had the same service? A. No—not on the first-class lines. 5258

Q. During the rate war? A. Even during the rate war, it has been the practice of the first-class lines to equalize the rate.

Q. Do you know of such an instance? A. Oh, yes.

Q. The lines do not attempt to discriminate between the various passengers? A. The lines usually refunded the difference and equalized the rate.

Q. In some cases they did not? A. Where they could not possibly do it—no, but as a general fact.

Q. In a great many cases they did not? A. No, as a general rule they refunded the difference. 5259

Q. You know of a number of cases where that has not been done? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Taking the boat I was talking about, it was one of those cases where they did not refund, and the passengers on that particular boat would get the same service for $25 as they got for $35? A. Yes. I do not think you will find many of those instances, though.

Q. You would not say to one passenger, "You cannot have meat because you only paid $25" and to another passenger, "You can, because you paid $35"?

5260 A. Your experience will show you that the people who pay $35 on the other side will get after the company pretty quickly and want the difference back.

Q. As you have testified sometimes they do not? A. Yes, but the company suffers that indulges in practices of that kind.

Q. I was assuming the condition of a rate war? A. Yes, even the condition of a rate war.

Q. In those cases the passenger was carried for twenty-five dollars and he would benefit ten dollars on the ordinary rate? A. That is rather far fetched.

5261 Q. It is not very far fetched.

Senator Spooner: What is the question?

Q. In those cases the passenger was carried for twenty-five dollars and he would benefit ten dollars on the ordinary rate? Is that correct? I think that it is a proper question. Is that so as a proposition? A. I think it is far fetched, to say that. You merely assume he would not travel any way.

Q. Is it not a fact, anyway? A. Would he travel at thirty-five dollars?

Q. I say he could get the rate ten dollars cheaper? A. Then he might travel, otherwise he would not travel.

5262 Q. If he intends to travel for the thirty-five dollars, he would then get that benefit? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Will you state what the practice has been where passengers have purchased prepaid tickets say, ten months ahead and the rate has deviated with regard to those tickets? A. A prepaid ticket is value for a year. If they are purchased say at $38.50 and the passenger travels ten months later when the rate is thirty-five dollars he has naturally no refund due to him and in the same manner if the ticket has been purchased at thirty-five dollars and the ticket has subsequently advanced to $38.50, the steamship company would not charge the passenger the difference. On all eastbound traffic the rate on all the first-class lines has usually been equalized, the passenger receiving a refund of the difference if he purchased a ticket at a higher rate than that prevailing on the day of sailing. Still on the other hand the steamship company do not get the benefit of any advance in rate. We do not get the advantage if the rate were advanced eastbound. If we had a rate of thirty dollars today and a week later made a rate of thirty-five dollars we got no difference, but if we wanted to reduce our prevailing rate we have to refund the difference.

5263

5264

By Mr. Beers:

Q. You were asked a question which implied that the rate now prevailing was about thirty-five dollars and that that was fixed by agreement. Are the lines which are parties to "AA" precluded from changing their rate? A. No, indeed not.

Q. Is it not a fact that they do change it from time to time? A. Constantly, yes.

Q. Since the making of agreement "AA", is it a fact or is it not a fact that the rate on lines parties to that agreement have from time to time fluctuated? A. Decidedly, yes.

5265

Q. When you refer to a rate being fixed by an agreement do you intend to testify that the lines had agreed that rate should be stable at a certain sum? A. Oh, no. I understood Mr. Guiler to assume that as the average rate.

Q. You testified as I understood it that there might not be a loss where steerage passengers were carried at twenty-one dollars. If there was not a loss, the returns of such a voyage would have to go largely on the first and second cabins and on the freight, wouldn't they? A. Yes. All classes of the ship would have to contribute to prevent a loss.

5266 Q. Are there, in your experience, various causes which affect the returns received by the steamship companies from the various divisions of its business—first and second cabin, steerage and freight? A. Oh, yes—economic conditions here. Conditions abroad—war or panic—a great disaster sometimes slightly affects travel and naturally the results to the steamship lines.

By Senator Spooner:

Q. Bad crops? A. Oh, yes, yes, indeed. Failure of crops reduces the demand for labor and reduces 5267 travel.

By Mr. Beers:

Q. Have marine disasters anything to do with it? A. The Titanic has affected all the lines considerably. On some of the lines today.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. You speak of Rule 9 being published for adoption by certain lines. The State of New York, in cooperation with certain steamship lines, passed certain laws which regulated the agents? A. Yes.

Q. I assume you deal with agents in all the different 5268 states—in the conference? A. Yes.

Q. Which states? A. Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Wisconsin.

Mr. Guiler: Is Mr. Winter an expert at law?

Witness: Illinois.

Mr. Guiler: He is not a qualified legal expert and he cannot testify what the laws of the various states are. I object.

Witness: They are the laws under which we are operating.

5269

Mr. Guiler: Go ahead. You can testify.

Mr. Bullowa: In some states there are no such laws? A. No.

Q. In these states it is very necessary for the steamship lines to protect these emigrants from agents? A. Yes—in some states the laws protect them.

Q. In states where there is no such law, it is very essential for the steamship company to do that? A. Yes.

By Mr. Beers: Is it a common matter in your experience for third-class passengers to complain to the steamship companies of their treatment by agents? A. Oh, yes.

5270

Q. Is that the way you learn of the misdoings of agents? A. Yes. That is the way we learn of the misdoings of agents.

Q. That is, if a third-class passenger is or thinks he is, mistreated, he usually applies to the steamship company for redress? A. He makes a claim, yes.

By Mr. Guiler. What was the reason given to you by the president of the Russian Volunteer Fleet as to why the Russian Volunteer Fleet went out of business?

Mr. Bullowa: Objected to as incompetent and hearsay. Did the president tell you that directly?

5271

Witness: No.

Mr. Guiler. What did he say?

Mr. Bullowa: To whom?

Mr. Guiler: Mr. Winter has made a statement.

Mr. Bullowa: To whom?

Mr. Guiler: He made a statement that the president told him. This is the question, "According to the statement of the president, why did the Russian Volunteer Fleet go out of business."

5272 Mr. Bullowa: I object. If it is the statement of the president in writing put it in under his own signature. Was this the statement—(reading from testimony) "He made a statement that they withdrew because of internal arrangements and not because—"

Mr. Guiler: I object to that and I ask that it be stricken out.

Mr. Bullowa: You are trying to get—

Mr. Guiler: It is not proper for you to do a thing like that. I object to that and I expect you to withdraw it.

5273 Mr. Bullowa: I will withdraw it if you want it.

Mr. Guiler: Mr. Winter is your witness, not mine.

Witness: Let me look it up.

Mr. Guiler: You have made an answer and I would like to have the answer you made go in? A. It certainly is our understanding in the steamship business.

Q. As a matter of fact—why don't you make the statement you made before? A. The Russian Volunteer Fleet withdrew because of the low rate imposed upon them by the rate war.

5274 Q. My question was, "What was the reason given to you by the president of the Russian Volunteer Fleet as to why the Russian Volunteer Fleet went out of business." What would be your answer to that? A. According to a printed statement of the president they withdrew from business because of the low rate and unfavorable conditions imposed upon them by the rate war.

Mr. Bullowa: I move to have the answer stricken out.

Q. To whom was that statement referred to made? A. That statement was made in a letter, as I remember it, to a well known shipping paper.

Q. The "Shipping Illustrated"? A. Yes. 5275

Q. Haven't you got the facts rather mixed up? Wasn't that under the signature of Admiral Radloff? Is he the president?

Mr. Guiler: If you have letters why don't you put them in?

Mr. Bullowa: It is in evidence.

Mr. Guiler: If you have a letter put it in. That is the best evidence.

Mr. Bullowa (to witness): Have you got that paper in which you say you saw that statement? A. I think I gave it at Washington. 5276

Q. Of course if the president of the Russian Volunteer Fleet stated in writing over his signature that the line withdrew because of internal arrangements and was not driven out, you would regard that statement as of more value than your understandings in the steamship circle? A. Yes.

Mr. Guiler: Why don't you examine him as to his information?

Mr. Bullowa: You will examine him as to that.

Mr. Shipman: Was this statement you saw published in the "Shipping Illustrated," of New York? 5277
A. Yes.

Q. And referred to the institution of the present proceedings by the government? A. Yes, and allegations made thereunder.

Q. Was it a letter from the president of the Russian Volunteer Fleet to the editor of "Shipping Illustrated"? A. Yes.

Mr. Bullowa: I show you Defendant's Exhibit No. 2, and ask you if that is the statement you refer to? A. That is the letter.

5278 Q. That does not state it was driven out of business because of the low rate? A. No.

Mr. Guiler: What does he say. Look at it.

Witness (reading): "The above statement as far as it concerns the Volunteer Fleet is not correct, as the committee of the Russian Volunteer Fleet had decided to suspend their Libau-New York line for reasons of their own that had nothing in common with the attitude taken by the Pool."

Mr. Guiler: Read the whole letter.

Witness (reading): "In your issue of 7th instant, we find in an article headed 'action against the Trans-5279 Atlantic Pool' mention made of the Russian Volunteer Fleet as 'having been driven out of business' as a result of the practices adopted by the Pool."

Mr. Guiler: That will do. You have read the rest.

Mr. Bullowa: That is the statement you refer to? A. Yes.

Q. And after reading that statement and refreshing your recollection, can you now state why the Russian Volunteer Fleet was driven out of business?

Mr. Guiler: No he cannot. He can state where he got the information and what letter it was.

5280 Witness: I can only give the impression in steamship circles, and that was the low rates imposed by the rate war and the unfavorable conditions at the time induced the Russian Volunteer Fleet to get out.

Mr. Shipman: It did not go out of business? A. No, only out of the Trans-Atlantic business.

Hearing adjourned until 11 A. M., on Thursday, 6th March, 1913.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 5281

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

5282

Before: Charles E. Picket, Esq., Examiner.

New York, March 6th, 1913.

Upon motion of Senator Spooner the hearing was adjourned until Friday, March 14th, 1913, at 11:00 A. M.

Petitioner's Exhibit 1916.
Defendant's Exhibit No. 18.

5283

5284 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,

against

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

5285 Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, March 14th, 1913.

Upon request of Mr. Shipman the hearing was adjourned until Friday, March 21st, 1913, at 11:00 A. M.

Petitioner's Exhibit 1916.
Defendant's Exhibit 18.

5286

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT. 5287

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

5288

Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, March 21st, 1913.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles C. Burlingham, Esq., and Charles Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for the Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al. 5289

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton, by J. C. Spooner, Esq., for the Allan Line, et al.

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for the Russian East-Asiatic Company, et al.

5290

PAUL C. SCHNITZLER, recalled:

Mr. Shipman: Mr. Schnitzler has already been sworn by the examiner a few days ago.

Q. Are you a practicing lawyer in New York City? A. I am.

Q. Were you born and educated in Germany? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was your profession there and what, if any, public offices, did you hold? A. I was a lawyer in Germany. I studied law at the University of Heidelberg and Leipzig, Germany, for three and a half 5291 years. I took my examinations for admission to the bar. I hold the degree of Doctor of Law from the University of Leipzig. I held the position, in Germany, of acting Judge of the District Court of Larh, Baden. I have been acting District Attorney of Heidelberg, Germany. I also was, for some time, clerk of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Karlsruhe.

Q. When you say you were acting Judge and acting District Attorney, do you mean that you were the regularly appointed Judge and District Attorney? A. I do. I fulfilled the duties of the regularly appointed Judge during his absence. I had been appointed and I was 5292 acting Judge for nearly one year—for ten months, with all the duties and rights of the Judge.

Q. What was the character of the jurisdiction of this Court which you presided over? A. The Court had jurisdiction over all estate matters—about the same character of the Surrogate's Court here. It had jurisdiction over all the commercial records and also criminal jurisdiction about the same as the Court of Special Sessions here and also jurisdiction in civil matters generally restricted to an amount of six hundred marks.

Q. When you speak of the Appellate Division do you mean by that that that is the highest Court of Appeals in the state? A. Yes, it is the Court of Appeals in the State of Baden.

5293

Q. Like the Court of Appeals at Albany is to New-York? A. Yes, like the Court of Appeals at Albany.

Q. When did you come to this country? A. In 1893.

Q. When were you admitted to the Bar here? A. Five years after.

Q. Have you kept yourself familiar with the decisions of the German Courts since you came here? A. Generally, yes.

Q. Have you testified as an expert in other cases on the German law? A. Yes, repeatedly.

5294

Q. Have you made a careful examination of the decisions of the German Courts with the view of ascertaining whether the Agreement of 1892 between the North German Lines Association, Petitioner's Exhibit #2, and the Agreement AA of February 5th, 1908, Petitioner's Exhibit #3, are valid under the laws of Germany? A. I did.

Q. Have you examined these two agreements referred to? A. I have.

Q. Please state your opinion on the subject of the validity of these two agreements under the German law?

5295

Mr. Guiler: I want to object to this question and all subsequent questions in regard to German law on the ground that the German law is entirely immaterial, incompetent and irrelevant in these proceedings, especially where the law has been declared by positive statutes in the United States—where positive laws have been established by statutes in the United States.

Mr. Shipman: I would like to state that it has some bearing certainly as regards westbound traffic originating in Germany, and also 5296 on the probability as to whether Congress intended to extend this act over ocean transportation, which is as much the commerce of other countries as our own and in regard to which the laws and policy of other countries differ from our own.

Mr. Guiler: I want to put down a general objection to the whole line of testimony which is going in and which will subsequently come in in regard to German law, as immaterial, incompetent and irrelevant and I will ask to have it stricken out.

5297 A. The said two agreements are valid under the German law.

Q. Is there any statute in Germany prohibiting the formation of syndicates or cartels or specifically regulating the same? A. There is neither statute forbidding the formation of cartels or syndicates or statutes regulating the same.

Q. Do you know to what extent these cartels and syndicates exist in Germany in the various lines of trade or business? A. There are many hundreds of cartels and syndicates existing in Germany comprising more than 10,000 different concerns and enter-5298 prises.

Mr. Guiler: I object to that as being immaterial and ask to have it stricken out. He has not been asked and has not shown that he knows anything.

Mr. Shipman: I asked him if he knew and he says so.

Q. In these cartels or syndicates do the members retain their separate identity the same as before the cartel or syndicate was formed? A. They do.

Q. Except as regards certain restrictions in the cartel or syndicate agreement? A. They do generally.

5299

Q. The cartel or syndicate agreement fixes certain specific matters, does it not? A. It does.

Q. Of what character for example? A. It depends on the syndicate agreement—the purpose of the syndicate. As a result, very often, we find that the different concerns in the same trade all syndicate themselves—associating themselves—establish a common selling agency, for instance, or they have an agreement regarding their prices—establish certain minimum prices, below which they will not sell or make arrangements as to the territory within which they will sell or will not sell.

5300

Q. Or the amount of the production which each of the members shall make? A. Also the amount of production that shall be allowed to each member in the syndicate.

Q. Otherwise do they maintain their independence just as before they entered the syndicate or cartel? A. That is so generally, yes.

Q. Now, are there certain provisions in the German Civil Code in regard to acts against good morals or acts contra bonos mores? A. Yes.

Q. Will you please give a translation of this section? A. I refer for instance to Article 138 of this Civil Code which says that: "Any transaction violating bonos mores shall be void" and Article 826 of the Civil Code, 'Any person who in a manner 'Contra bonos mores' wilfully inflicts damage upon another, is bound to compensate such other in respect of such damage."

5301

Q. Those sections do not appear to have any special application to cartels or syndicates, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Have you made an examination of the decisions of the highest Court of the German Empire Reichsgericht on the subject of cartels and syndicates? A. Yes, I have made it.

5302 Q. Under what provision or provisions of the German Civil Code did you find that most of these cases arose? A. Section 826, cited was generally applied to the questions arising under the said decisions.

Q. Have you a statement of the decisions of the Imperial Court which you have prepared in regard to cartels and syndicates under this section? A. Yes, I examined the decisions of the Imperial Court covering the period of the last fifteen years, and the decisions which I hold here in my hand, translated into English by myself, are the decisions which I have found to be in point, and covering syndicates or cartels.

5303 Q. Do those decisions give a correct view of the law as laid down by that Court? A. In my opinion, they do. They contain the law because they emanate from the highest Court of the German Empire.

Q. Is a cartel and a syndicate about the same thing? A. The term is usually synonymously used.

Q. There is one decision in here that probably escaped your attention at the time. It is the one of March 6th, 1907, of which the translation is taken from the report of the English Royal Commission on shipping rings? A. That is a decision in the Sloman case. It is also a decision of the Imperial Court of the German Empire, but is not reported in the official 5304 publication of its decisions, but it is reported in a legal publication called "Das Recht"—called—"The Law." I did not make the translation of this decision.

Mr. Shipman: I offer in evidence this statement of the decisions which the witness has produced.

Marked Defendant's Exhibit #19A.

Mr. Guiler: They can go in subject to the general objection I have already raised.

Mr. Bullowa: But not as to their authenticity.

5305

Mr. Shipman: Do you understand that it is perfectly lawful under the German law for individuals engaged in the same line of trade to enter into cartel or syndicate agreements for the purpose of preventing destructive or injurious competition between the members resulting from mutual underbidding and fall in prices? A. It is perfectly legal.

Q. And is it lawful for such cartel or syndicate to defend itself against outside underbidding by meeting the competition? A. It is.

Q. On what ground does the Imperial Court base this line of decisions? A. From the decisions it appears that the contention in Germany is that it is to the interest of the public as a whole that there is no disastrous or ruinous competition and that the public policy of the country demands that the manufacturers or the people united in the syndicate, receive a fair return for their product and that it is advantageous to the whole country to have, by such agreements, prevented the loss of the business of the individuals.

5306

Q. Do you find from an examination of the later decisions of the Imperial Court that this view has ever been varied? A. This view has never been varied. It is the view today and so it appears from the decisions, some of which are of recent date. I refer to the decisions which have been offered in evidence.

5307

Q. Does the validity of these agreements in this respect appear to be treated by the Court as settled? A. It does.

Q. Do you find cases where rights and penalties under cartel or syndicate agreements have been enforced as between the members? A. I do.

Q. Recent cases on this subject? A. Recent cases on this subject.

Q. The decisions which you have cited in this statement other than those referring to combinations to prevent underbidding, are they for the purpose of illustrating the view of the Imperial Court as to what is lawful with respect to other restraints of trade? A. Yes.

Q. They relate to acts of the syndicates or cartels generally against third parties? A. Against third parties.

Q. These acts are generally of what character as shown in these decisions? A. As shown in these decisions they are of an oppressive character—of a character that makes it impossible for the third party to carry on business at all or where there is a permanent and total injury to the business of the competitor.

5309 Q. Acts also which prevent a person—practically prevent a person from gaining a livelihood? A. And also acts which would prevent or make it impossible for a person to gain his livelihood. Whereas acts that would only make it harder for a person to make his livelihood, or acts that would interfere with the carrying on of his business, would, in themselves, not be sufficient to be illegal.

Q. Particularly if they were of a temporary character? A. Or also acts which were only of a temporary character would not be considered to be illegal.

Q. What criterion do they go by generally in the decisions in judging of these acts. I mean to what do 5310 they refer as a proper standard by which to judge of these acts? A. They judge of these acts on the basis of the conceptions held by all fair and just thinking men in Germany.

Q. In your statement of the decisions you have referred to certain provisions of the German Unfair Competition Law of 1909, originally enacted in 1896. What is the general scope of this law? A. The Unfair Competition Law relates to certain specified acts which are characterized as illegal in the carrying on of a business. As for instance to make an incorrect statement in public announcements in reference to business relations, the quality, the origin, the method of production or the computation of prices of goods or trade service, also to create the appearance of a specially favorable offer when such offers not only are untrue but are apt to be misleading, and so on.

5311

Q. You need not go right through it, I think. They are in the nature of fraudulent practices, are they not? A. Some of them.

Q. And the others, are they of a different character? A. Also the law prohibits the giving of presents or other advantages to an employe or representative of the business for the purpose of obtaining a benefit for himself or another. Also it forbids for the purpose of competition to make a public statement regarding the business of another which is untrue or which would injure the credit of the business of such third party and so on. Many of these acts pointed out are made criminal offenses under the said law.

5312

Q. The Courts, enforce, I understand, these cartel and syndicate agreements among the parties? A. They do, as I have testified.

Q. I think you have already stated that the holding of the Imperial Court is that mere combinations to prevent ruinous competition between parties is not against good morals? A. I so stated it.

5313

Q. As viewed in Germany? A. I so stated it.

Q. In these cartel or syndicate agreements, they are entered into, are they not, in reference to a limited period of time or a given trade or business or a given locality? A. They usually are.

Q. A restriction as regards freedom of trade in these particulars is legal in Germany? A. It is.

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. Are you familiar with the so-called Blumenthal case in Germany? A. I am.

5314 Q. What does that case hold, in your opinion. What is the decision in that case? A. In the Blumenthal case there was a threat made by the Steamship Company that if Mr. Blumenthal would not comply with the dictates of the steamship company—that in such an event the steamship company would suspend—its general published tariff—so as to discriminate against the customers of Mr. Blumenthal, and the Court held that this was clearly against public morals, contra bonos mores, for the reason that the Steamship Company being a public carrier and thereby in a measure, at least, subject to the duties of a public 5315 carrier could not arbitrarily suspend the general published tariff in order to coerce a third party.

Q. They said in that case, did they not, that the threat consisted also in their saying that they would write to the various firms employing the plaintiff, who was a forwarding agent and try to get his business away from him? A. Quite right. It makes the case so much the worse.

Q. In general if threats or oppressions or acts of that sort are used by a combination against an individual, that would be illegal in your opinion in Germany? A. Not at all. Threats in themselves are not illegal and oppression used as decided in the decisions which 5316 I have cited, in itself is not sufficient to make the acts illegal. Something else is necessary—that the threat or oppression is coupled with the fact that the party against whom the acts are directed is thereby permanently injured, or that the act in itself is illegal. If a threat is made of an illegal act then it is prohibited, because the act is illegal, but otherwise under these decisions it is necessary that the result of the threat must be that the third party is permanently injured.

Q. Do you find anything in that case that shows that the plaintiff was permanently injured? A. This case was decided on the ground that the steamship company was a public carrier and thereby was subject to duties to which an individual might not be subject.

5317

Q. They were held up to a higher standard of "Contra bonos mores" than anybody else? A. Exactly. That is simply what I want to say.

Q. That is because of their public character? A. And as there are no laws existing in Germany which regulate the business of the Steamship Company the Courts necessarily apply this higher standard of responsibility.

Mr. Shipman: You mean the publication of the rates of the Steamship Company. 5318

The Witness: Yes, it was a published tariff.

Q. They held that in that case the steamship company would have to allow to the plaintiff the rates they allowed everybody? A. I do not think so. I think it was an application for an injunction and they enjoined —if I am well informed—the defendant steamship company from carrying out the threat.

Q. Then they would not allow them to carry out that threat to apply different rates to him than to anybody else? A. It would seem to follow. It was not an injunction.

Q. Take the Sloman case, are you familiar with that? A. Yes, sir. 5319

Q. I mean Sloman versus Sloman? A. Yes.

Q. That was decided in 1907—several years after the Blumenthal case? A. Yes.

Q. The principal decision in the Sloman case was, was it not, and the only point there raised and before the Court was whether or not the defendant steamship companies should be allowed to grant a rebate to shippers? A. If I remember right—if I can make sure right away by looking at the case that was not exactly what was involved—what it was was this. Whether the defendants had the right to withhold from the plaintiff the benefit of the privilege which it had allowed to others.

5320 Q. Is not this statement contained in that case, "This last point is the only one in question, viz., is the defendant allowed or is he permitted to grant a rebate to his shippers and if the plaintiff now alleges—." Is not that correct? A. Yes, that is practically the same as what I testified to. This man claimed the same privileges which the defendant allowed to others and the Court held that he was not entitled to the privileges because the defendant had a perfect right in order to secure for a longer period of time the custom of the other people and give them certain benefits which, if it wanted to it could withhold from others, whereas the 5321 Court defines very clearly the Blumenthal case and the Sloman case. In the Blumenthal case there was not any question of reward as in the Sloman case, but a threat was made that the plaintiff should not have the benefit of the generally published tariff, and should not be entitled to this tariff, whereas in the Sloman case there was never any question raised whether the plaintiff should not be entitled also to the general tariff, only in addition thereto certain privileges were granted. Rebates were given and the Court held that these rebates were perfectly legitimate rebates.

Q. In the Sloman case the point was that where the steamship companies decided to reward a shipper who 5322 shipped solely by their lines—that they could do so? A That is right.

Q. And in the Blumenthal case it said that they could not punish a person by taking away these rebates? A. Not the rebates. No. The generally published tariff to which everybody is entitled, whereas nobody is entitled to the privilege.

Q. That is by a threat to take away the generally published tariff—that was, it was a threat to do damage to their shippers? A. And thereby if they did not have the benefit of the generally published tariff then they were prevented from doing business—absolutely prevented from doing business.

5223

Q. Do you see any substantial difference between the two principles in these cases? A. Yes, I think from the decision itself in the Sloman case where the Court said—

Q. I was asking for your opinion? A. I said yes to your question. That is my opinion. I only said in my opinion and I would also refer to what the court said.

Q. That is already in the record? A. Well, in the one case a man was deprived of the benefit of the generally published tariff and therefore of course, was prevented from doing business, because if a shipper is not getting the benefit of the published tariff then he is at a great disadvantage if not excluded altogether.

5324

Q. He is excluded as to that line or that group of lines? A. I understand it was practically a monopoly, if I remember right.

Q. It was? A. Yes. Whereas in the other case only certain benefits were given to certain customers who continued to do business with the defendant and therefore certain privileges were allowed to certain customers which, of course, the court held the defendant was entitled to refuse to others so long as it gave also, I assume, the benefit of the generally published tariff to everybody.

Q. You figure if there is any difference between the principles that in one case they reward a shipper and in the other case they damage him for not sticking by them. Reward one for sticking by them and then damage him when he does not? A. In my opinion there is a very great difference between the two cases. There was no obligation to reward but there was an obligation to give the benefit of the generally published tariff to everybody, and that extra which was given in certain cases was outside of the generally published tariff.

5325

Q. It punishes those who did not stick to the company and benefits those who did? A. Whatever the economic result may be that has nothing to do with it.

5326 Q. They do not grant it to people who did not stick with them. It punished them? A. You could not call it a punishment.

Q. They do not get the rebate? A. But that is no punishment. I do not see how you can call it a punishment if you do not give to somebody a certain advantage to which he is not entitled.

Q. It is a discrimination then between him and some other shippers, is it not? A. It is a discrimination, yes, in a certain way. The result shows, that one is benefited and the other not.

5327 Q. One was a threat to intimidate in the Blumenthal case by cutting off his tariff altogether? A. Yes. It was an entirely different thing in my opinion.

Q. It was a discrimination, was it not, in both cases in favor of certain parties? A. It was a discrimination, yes, if you call discrimination the different treatment of different parties.

Q. That is what I understand the meaning of discrimination is? A. But the one was held justified by the court and the other not, and in my opinion justly. The distinction is clear. In the one case, in the Blumenthal case the right of the third party was affected whereas in the Sloman case no right of the third party was affected.

5328 Q. Take the statement of the Blumenthal case, which I will read to you and I will ask you if that is the law of today: "In a country where carriers are under no such legal compulsion a proceeding of the last mentioned kind may, notwithstanding such absence of compulsion, be looked upon as an act 'Contra bonus mores.' According to the views held in our country as to decent conduct and fair dealing, the act of a carrier, who excludes an individual or a defined group of individuals from the benefit of the tariffs announced to the general public would be looked upon as an act, 'Contra bonos mores' if it was done for the purpose of unfair competition. It would be unfair competition if in the present case the defendant for the sole purpose of removing or suppressing the inconvenient competition of any rival traders had attempted to damage such rival traders by the imposition of exceptional rates." Is that the law in your country today? A. I think it is. Which case do you refer to?

5329

Q. That is the Blumenthal case? A. I do not know whether the translation is quite right. We have here the same thing but your translation is more free.

Q. This translation is by Dr. Schuster? A. Your translation is a great deal more free than my translation.

5330

Q. Do you think that what I have read is a correct statement? A. I think it would be, but I would like to put in an objection to your translation and I would like to read my translation on the record "An unfair competition however, would exist if in the case at Bar the defendant solely for the purpose of pushing aside or suppressing competition inconvenient to it, undertook by exceptional tariffs to injure the interests of the competition * * * That the plaintiff by the exclusion from the benefit of the general tariffs and the charging of rates was injured in his business is in itself apparent."

Q. I will read you a question and answer from Dr. Ernest Schuster's evidence before the Royal Commission on shipping rings and ask you whether you agree with it: "Q11778. So that if it were the case that in a certain set of circumstances a combination called a ring acted oppressively to the people who have to deal with it, in your view, that would be regarded as illegal? A. Certainly, if the courts held that they had acted oppressively." Is that your understanding of the law? A. Not quite. The oppression must be defined. Not every oppression is sufficient to make such an act illegal under Section 826 or 138 of the German Civil Code. Mr. Schuster in giving this opinion was 5332 somewhat under a handicap because as he himself testified he could not reconcile the Blumenthal and the Sloman case because all he knew about the Sloman decision was a little extract from some commercial paper in Hamburg. He had never seen the entire decision. And in reading his testimony I gained the impression that his judgment as to the German law is somewhat clouded.

5331

Q. But he has the same opinion in the Sloman case as you have now? A. Unfortunately, no. Because he testified that all he saw was a little syllabus and he regrets very much that he has not got the entire information before him.

5333

Q. Is not that substantially correct, what I have read to you? A. No, because the Court decides as to the degree of oppression or suppression. It must be a suppression or oppression of the business. The suppression or oppression must be of a permanent or total character. A mere temporary suppression or oppresion in certain directions is not sufficient and I have a number of decisions here which will point that out.

Q. In this Sloman case there was not any question of monopoly concerned, was there? A. Certainly, there was a question of monopoly. "Another argument of the plaintiff is to the effect that through the aforesaid measures, the defendant intends monopolizing the trade between German ports and Australia and that, as a matter of fact, he already does so, that the agreement made between the several defendants purports to keep up the rates of freight" and so on.

5334

Q. Go ahead and see if there is any such thing as monopoly. A. I understand your question was whether there was any question of monopoly?

Q. You have not read far enough. I will read it for you: "That the agreement made between the several defendants purports to keep up the rates of freight for sailing vessels in order to gradually diminish the sailing trade, a measure hostile to the interests of the whole nation. Even, if this were so, and the measures taken by the defendant would actually lead to a reduction in the trade of sailing vessels, no provision in the law could be found preventing the defendant from granting rebates to his shippers in the manner he did. This last point is the only one in question, viz., is the defendant allowed or is he forbidden to grant a rebate to his shippers and, if plaintiff now alleges that the defendant has monopolized the German-Australian trade, this is at variance with the plaintiff's own words, as shown in a notice he sent to his shippers shortly before going into Court. In this notice, dated June, 1905, plaintiff declares that the new line be established between Tonning and Australia prospered so well as to enable him to send three more first-class sailing vessels out before the 15th of August; that the lively and effectual assistance given to him by the shippers insured a steady and prosperous business and that he had reason to hope that shippers would gradually become aware of the fact how much more sailing vessels were to be preferred to steamships on account of the great difference in freight. And, also, in the course of the proceedings when urged by the defendant that his new line did not yield any profit but had merely been established in fraudem contractus, plaintiff had repeatedly asserted that, although he had to content himself with a smaller profit as compared with the defendant he, nevertheless, did a good business, because there was, on account of the lower rates of freight, such a supply of goods that the extra freight for carrying them to Tonning did not enter into consideration. It appears from these statements, made by the plaintiff himself, at least for the present moment, there is no question of the defendant having monopolized the German-Australian trade." That settles the point that there has been no question of monopoly? A.

5336

5337

5338 I thought you meant the question of monopoly generally—it was attempted monopoly.

Q. That is correct—that there was not involved in the decision of the case any question of monopoly? A. The Court found, that as a matter of fact up to that time—it appears in the statement of the plaintiff—that there was not any monopoly. In other words, the plaintiff contradicted himself by claiming that there was a monopoly where his own statement showed that there was no monopoly.

Q. And the Court did not have to pass on the question? A. And therefore the Court did not pass on 5339 the question of monopoly although the plaintiff did claim monopoly.

Q. Section 826 of the German Civil Code which is to the effect that "Any person who in a manner 'Contra bonos mores' wilfully inflicts damage upon another is bound to compensate such other in respect of such damage." That practically means a person, who, contrary to public policy, damages another? A. Yes, public policy or public morals. I think public policy and public morals in a certain way at least are analogous.

Q. And that means the public policy of Germany? A. Not altogether but it is pretty near synonymous, but in speaking of German public policy we always 5340 think of the community at large whereas the term "Contra bonos mores" really refers to the interest of the individual as contra-distinguished from the interest of the community.

Q. In your experience, have not you found that public policy differs as time goes on? A. Undoubtedly it does and so the Court held.

Q. And that sometimes the public policy has, to some extent, been against combinations and monopolies? A. What do you mean by that—when and where?

Q. Any time in your experience? A. In this country?

5341

Q. I am talking about Germany now? A. I think in the early '90s there was quite some feeling against monopolies but the tendency has changed and the tenency is rather in favor of syndicates and cartels and monopolies in Germany than against them.

Q. You mean German cartels and syndicates A Yes.

Q. As distinct from foreign syndicates and cartels? A. No, as to Geman syndicates.

Q. Don't you know that there has been an attempt to pass one law against the Standard Oil Company and one against the Tobacco Company in Germany?

5342

A. I am very familiar with it. I made a special study of it and I am happy to say your premise is wrong because there was no attempt made to pass a law against the Standard Oil Company. On the contrary I have been reading the speech made by the under secretary of state in Parliament advocating the passage of the law and he distinctly stated that the law had no point whatsoever. It was not directed against the Standard Oil Company. That it was merely a revenue measure and in order to protect the German Empire, and it had nothing to do with the Standard Oil Company; and as to the legislation in regard to the tobacco trust, I think your statement is premature. I have not heard even of any such bill having been introduced.

5343

Q. Your statement involves the fact that there has been a general agitation in regard to monopolies and trusts? A. No, on the contrary, because the state wants to establish a monopoly for the sale of kerosene, a monopoly is controlled by the state for the sale of kerosene, they really intended to make it a monopoly and the tendency in the state is in favor of monopolies.

Q. In favor of state monoplies? A. Yes, in favor of state monopolies. It is a monoply controlled by the state, just like potash like in the sale and mining of potash.

5344 Q. Is not it generally true that the state takes a great deal more paternal interest in its industries than almost any other state in the world? A. Undoubtedly so, and because the state does so, there is not need of any German anti-trust law.

Q. And the state determines how things shall be done? A. In a much larger measure than here.

Q. And issues licenses to companies to do business? A. No, sir.

Q. Or something equivalent to a license? A. No. What kind of license do you mean?

5345 Q. Concessions—shall I say? A. I have never heard of a state issuing a license or concession to any private business.

Q. Does not the state give concessions to steamship companies to run into Germany and into other places? A. So far as the carrying of emigrants is concerned —there the state gives licenses. Nobody can engage in Germany under the law in the business of forwarding emigrants or in the business of aiding the forwarding of emigrants by selling them steamships tickets unless he is licensed.

Q. And in regard to preventing this also in regard to railways and other public service corporations? A. No, not to a very large extent for the reason that all 5346 the railways belong to the state with a very few exceptions and so far as the street railways are concerned they belong to the cities and there is therefore no need of licensing.

Q. In general they are run by the state? A. Run by the state and belong to the state or to the city.

Q. So that in this case there is not any need to establish any laws to take care of them? A. No. I may add that the law did not pass Parliament in reference to monopolizing the kerosene trade.

Q. I will read to you from page 11775 from the evidence of Dr. Schuster before the Commission on shipping rings and ask you whether you agree with him in his general statements: "Q. And I understand that in your view, applying the principles of that judgment to the shipping rings, their circumstances might be such that they might be regarded as illegal? A. That might be so under certain circumstances of the case." Is that a correct statement? A. I doubt it in view of the later decisions of the Imperial Court where the Imperial Court defined what is permissible and what is forbidden.

5347

Q. There is not any case before the courts in Germany which involves the questions in this case? A. 5348
There have been many cases before the Court in Germany which involved just practically the same facts as are involved in this case.

Q. I mean shipping rings? A. Not only shipping rings, but other rings. I did not find any other judgment relating to shipping rings but the Blumenthal and Sloman cases but there are a good many other judgments presenting exactly the same phase as this agreement does but relating to other trades, where the Court of the Empire adopted the principle that they were permissible and I remember one was a case where they had an agreement that some of the members of the association could charge lower prices in order to fight the competition and that the loss should be borne 5349 by all the other members of the syndicate. I refer to the decision of the Imperial Court of January 2, 1909. Besides Mr. Schuster himself, said it might be so. Under special circumstances of the case, undoubtedly he is right and so far I agree with him, if the special circumstances of the case are such as to make such a ring illegal. Two things are necessary—either the acts in themselves are illegal or they are such that they are oppressive per se—when they make it permanently or totally impossible for any competitor to do business. A mere temporary interference or injury as the Court repeatedly held is not sufficient.

5350 Q. I refer you to a judgment of February 4th, 1897 in which the wood pulp manufacturing association was concerned: "Agreements like the one in question cannot therefore be impugned—except in a case where objection arises owing to peculiar circumstances, as for instance, in a case where it is clear that the establishment of a practical monopoly and usurious exploitation of the consumers is aimed at." You cannot say on that decision whether there had been a practical monopoly of the business of wood pulp and whether there had been a usurious exploitation of the customers? A. Undoubtedly. I would like to first object to 5351 your translation and I would like to have my translation put on the record: "Agreements of the kind in question can therefore from the standpoint of the public interest protecting the freedom of trade, only be objected to, if in a given case objections arise on account of special circumstances, particularly if the agreement is evidently intended to create an actual monopoly and extortionate exploitation of the consumers or if such results will in fact be produced by the agreement and manipulation."

Q. That is the law of Germany, as you construe it. That correctly states. Does it not? A. In a way it is the law of Germany. It is a simple statement of the 5352 Court that agreements of that kind can only be objected to if such and such is the case, but if an objection is made whether such objection will be upheld is a different subject and it depends on the special circumstances of the case.

Q. You do not mean to impugn the Court's statement of the case? A. No, I concur with the Court. It does not say that any actual monopoly would be illegal. They add the qualifying statement: "If in a given case objections arise on account of special circumstances, particularly if the agreement is evidently intended to create an actual monopoly and the extortionate exploitation of the consumers, or if such results will in fact be produced by the agreements and manipulations made."

Q. You would say that you agree with the Court in the judgment of the 17th of March, 1904—that the law should prohibit directly unlawful acts and that the prohibition ought to extend to all measures inflicting damage on the adversary which, according to the generally established moral conception are either altogether inequitable and unjust or appear to be so under the special circumstances? A. Exactly, that is correct. That is what I always said either an act in itself must 5354 be illegal or circumstances must be there that make the act oppressive to the extent of interfering permanently or totally with the existence of another.

Q. In a case a number of workmen in the Metal Workers' Union got together, as I understand it, and passed a general rule that no workmen other than those producing a testimonial of fitness from an agency, which they themselves established could do business in that trade. In that case the Metal Workers' Union would not give a certificate to the third person who had applied, to the particular workman on account of the fact that he had started an agitation against the Union. The Court held that that was illegal and that damages could be had. That is correct? 5355
A. No, your statement is not correct because you do not give all the facts.

Q. I have been trying to give them all? A. But the principal point of the decision is that the Court also held that this association was so favorably established by reason of its connections with the German Metal Manufacturers' Union that its denial of its certificate to the particular workman practically amounted to a refusal of work by the whole of the German metal manufacturers and for that reason because it was made impossible for the particular man to find employment

5356 not only from this association but anywhere, it is said to be illegal. I am not quite complete. I took great pains to put it in. I will read it in. Coupled with that further explanation I agree with the Court, and that is the decision of the Court. This is my translation of what was said: "According to what has been said, based upon the findings of the lower Court in reference to the effect of a denial of work by the said association, the measure amounts to a very grave interference with the economical life of the person affected thereby; for it limits and obstructs in the most far reaching manner the gaining by him of opportunity 5357 to work in a trade field which regarding the numbers of the working men therein employed stands in one of the first ranks.

Q. That is a correct statement? A. Yes.

Q. I will read to you from question 11782 the evidence of Dr. Schuster of the shipping rings—it is as follows: "In your judgment would such circumstances as these be taken into account—coercion, oppressiveness of bargain, forfeiture of large amounts in the event of a breach of contract?" A. I agree with that undoubtedly.

Q. Then if you had such circumstances as that the Court would consider them illegal? A. Not at all. It 5358 all depends on the degree of coercion and of oppressiveness and so on as defined and clearly defined in the decision of the Imperial Court. All these decisions are absolutely harmonious, there was not one decision I could find that conflicted with the others. The principle is clear that the oppressiveness or coercion must be of a certain kind. It must permanently injure the third party or totally destroy his business, but the mere temporary or partial interference is not sufficient.

Q. With that statement, you agree with the statement? A. Absolutely, with that explanation.

By Mr. Shipman:

Q. These cases you have cited in your statement are in regard to cartel agreements; a very large number of actions are enforced between the members, are they not—for breach of cartel agreement? A. I have those decisions. But I may say that outside of the decisions which have been offered in evidence I also made further examination of the German law and decisions referred to in the Courts of Appeals and the Supreme Court and I find a number of decisions which we did not hand in, but from such decisions, it appears that quite often in such cases to recover such penalties, 5360 judgment was given in favor of the plaintiff.

Q. In the decision of February 4th, 1897, in the case of the Saxon Wood Pulp Manufacturers your translation speaks of the "Extortionate exploitation of consumers." What are the German words for "extortionate exploitation"? A. "Wucherische Ausbeutung."

Q. What is the meaning of "Wucherische"? A. It means "usurious," but there is a difference in the translation, because the translation of the word "usurious" would convey a different meaning in English from what the word "Wucherische" has in German.

Q. Well, what is "Wucher," is it a crime? A. It 5361 is a crime in Germany, under the Penal Code. "Wucher" has nothing to do with the legal rate of interest as I recall it. It is the crime of using the straightened circumstances, the youthfulness, or the carelessness of another to secure to yourself advantages which are out of all proportion to the compensation paid for them. For instance, in the loan of money, that is what we call "Wucher."

Q. That is to take an undue advantage of another? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in the Sloman case that you have referred to of March 6th, 1907, these rebates were offered 5362 indiscriminately to all persons who would ship by that line—who would patronize the line? A. I believe so.

Q. That is offered to every shipper who had a like promise, who chooses to patronize the line? A. I believe so, yes.

Q. And if a shipper does not get it it is simply because he does not choose to take advantage of it? A. Because he does not come in with the business he is running.

Q. You can hardly say that it is an act of discrimination? A. I did not mean to say that it was an act of discrimination in that sense but it is an act of dis-5363 crimination in the result.

Q. Does not the Court in this part of the opinion speak approvingly of the system of granting rebates as enabling the business to be carried on with greater stability? A. I have just read the decision: "Every ship owner is at liberty to fix the rates of freight at which he undertakes to carry goods, at his pleasure; he is perfectly free to lower the rates of freight below the amount fixed by competing lines; he may also grant any favor he likes to shippers who employ no other ships but those belonging to him, thereby enabling him to count with a regular supply of goods and thus to insure a steady business and to make the best 5364 advantage possible of his ships. It is only fair, if the defendant, by granting rebates rewards the shippers for the services done for him in exclusively using for certain lengths of time his ships for transporting their goods and thereby effectually furthering his business."

Q. I believe that you stated something in regard to there being a different sentiment along in the 90's in regard to syndicates and cartels. Do you refer to the view taken by the Court or some popular opinion? A. I refer to my personal impression and my recollection and what I read. However, my recollection and impression is very indistinct

5365

Q. There was nothing to show that the general policy of the country was against cartels at that time? A. I know at that time they introduced a bill to establish a tobacco monopoly in Germany but it fell through. At that time these questions were discussed freely.

Q. There is always some minority more or less that take an opposing view in every move? A. Yes.

Mr. Guiler: He did not say minority.

Q. The first decision you cite here in your statement is one of 1890 and it says that the Imperial Court then took the view and considered the public policy of the country to be in favor of cartels and syndicates to prevent underbidding? A. The Court decided that the cartels were absolutely legal.

5366

Q. On the ground of public policy? A. On the ground of public policy and on the ground of the laws of the statutes existing.

Q. So that the public policy must have been at that time in Germany in favor of these syndicates and cartels? A. Yes,—I do not know.

Q. The general policy of the country as adduced—? A. I do not want to say that—that the Court will construe public opinion; but the Court declared these cartels to be legal.

Q. Did not the Court in its opinion purport to state the public policy at that time? A. I may say that, yes.

5367

Q. There is no doubt what the public policy of Germany has been during the last ten years? A. In favor of the syndicates, because if not the industrial life of Germany would go to pieces, as Germany is now situated.

Q. Will you look at this book that I hand you. What is its title? A. "The Imperial Law regarding Emigration of June 9th, 1897, edition of P. Goetsch, Imperial Actual Counsellor of Legation in charge of emmigration matters in the Foreign Office."

5368 Mr. Shipman: I offer in evidence translation of Supplement "O" of this book, and a brief summary of Supplement "J," together with the translation of the various orders issued by the Prussian Government in regard to the regulation of emigration across the Prussian frontier and also containing certain additional papers on this subject. I offer these papers in evidence to meet the Government's claim that the passengers of the Uranium Steamship Line were improperly turned back by the German Steamship officials or agents.

5369 Mr. Guiler: I object to these papers on the ground that they are incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant to the question at issue in this case. I do not object to the authenticity of these papers on the ground that they are copies, but on the grounds mentioned that they are not material to the issue.

Marked Defendants' Exhibit No. 20.

Q. Under the German Emigration Law does a steamship company which is engaged in the emigrant business have to be concessioned by the German Government and enter into a contract and give security for the proper performance of its undertaking? A. Yes.

5370 Q. If a steamship company outside of Germany which is not concessioned by the Government undertakes to sell tickets outside of Germany to steerage passengers for transit through Germany would those passengers be allowed to pass through the country? A. They would not under the law and a ticket issued by a non-licensed company would not be recognized by the Government, therefore the passenger would not be allowed to pass through the registration or control stations established at the frontier.

5371

Q. Could a foreign steamship company be licensed in Germany to carry emigrants from German ports or through Germany? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what regulations there are in Germany in regard to corporations watering their stock—are the laws stringent in that regard? A. The stock corporation law of Germany does not allow the watering of stock. Stock certificates can only be issued for cash, or in case other property is brought into the corporation before the stock can be issued then the Court will investigate and ascertain the value of such property.

5372

Q. Do the papers bearing out these facts regarding the value of the property have to be filed with the Court? A. Yes, and before they have been filed and approved by the Court no stock certificate can be issued and if it is issued the directors issuing the same will become criminally liable.

Q. There are heavy penalties and punishments by imprisonment for falsification in reference to these stock statements, are there not? A. Yes, for fraud and falsification in stock statements.

Mr. Shipman: I offer in evidence the list of the dividends paid by the Norddeutscher Lloyd since its organization showing also the years in which no dividends were paid.

5373

Marked Defendants' Exhibit No. 21.

Mr. Guiler: I want to object on the ground that it is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant. Not because it has not been put in in a formal copy. I do not object to it as not properly proven, but I claim that it is incompetent to the matter at issue.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. Have you ever been at the control stations and seen the practical carrying out of the law there? A. Not personally, no.

5374

Q. You know nothing about how the law is carried out there from your own personal experience—whether the law has been carried out as it exists on the books or whether it has not? A. No.

Hearing adjourned until Wednesday, March 26th, 1913, at 11 o'clock A. M.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

5375 SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and Others,
Defendants.

Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

5376 New York, March 26th, 1913.

Upon motion of Mr. Beers hearing was adjourned to Friday, March 28th, 1913 at 11 o'clock A. M.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 5377

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and Others,
Defendants.

5378

Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, March 28th, 1913.

Appearances:

Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.
Henry A. Guiler, Esq., For the Petitioner.
Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., For the Russian East Asiatic Company, et. al.

Upon motion of Mr. Burlingham hearing was adjourned to Monday, March 31st, 1913.

5379

5380 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,

against

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and Others,
Defendants.

5381 Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, March 31st, 1913.

Appearances:

Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.
Henry A. Guiler, Esq., For the Petitioner.
Charles C. Burlingham, Esq., For the Anchor Line.

PHILIP A. S. FRANKLIN, sworn on behalf of the defense, by the Examiner.

Upon request of Mr. Burlingham the hearing was 5382 adjourned to Wednesday, April 2nd, 1913, at 11 A. M.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 5383

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and Others,
Defendants.

5384

Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, April 2nd, 1913.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles C. Burlingham, Esq., and Charles Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line Ltd. et. al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for the Norddeutscher Lloyd, et. al.

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton, by J. C. Spooner, Esq., for the Allan Line, et. al. 5385

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers, Esq., and Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et. al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for the Russian East Asiatic Company, et. al.

Mr. Shipman: I offer in evidence from the report of the Trans-Atlantic Passenger movement number 14 for the current year 1912, pages 2, 3, 4 and 5 being the summarized statement of the number of passengers carried by the various steamship lines—similar to the reports heretofore offered in evidence.

5386

Marked Defendants' Exhibit #22.

PHILIP A. S. FRANKLIN, being first sworn, testified as follows:

Direct-examination by Mr. Burlingham:

Q. Mr. Franklin, you are vice-president of the International Mercantile Marine Company? A. I am.

5387 Q. That is a New Jersey Corporation? A. Right.

Q. And what is your relation with the White Star Line and the Red Star Line and all the other lines? A. Generally in charge of the business in the United States of the various lines operating under the International Mercantile Marine Company.

Q. The lines operated by the International Mercantile Marine Company are what? A. Red Star Line, White Star Line, American Line, Dominion Line; I think that is all.

Q. How long have you been vice-president of the International Mercantile Marine Company? A. Since 1903.

5388 Q. It was formed in the year 1901? A. In the early part of 1902.

Q. What has your experience been in the steamship business, taking it all around? A. I have been in the steamship business since 1891.

Q. Where? A. Started in Baltimore and then came to New York and since 1891 been in New York.

Q. What line were you connected with? A. Atlantic Transport Line.

Q. And originally that line ran between Baltimore and London? A. Baltimore and London.

Q. And later it came to New York? A. It developed a line from New York to London.

5389

Q. Did you come to New York with the Atlantic Transport Line prior to the formation of the International Mercantile Marine? A. I came to New York with the Atlantic Transport Line, which was about ten years prior to the formation of the International Mercantile Marine Company.

Q. You have been familiar with the business then for more than twenty years? A. Right.

Q. And have been actively connected with these various steamship lines since the last ten years? A. Since that time.

Q. And now you are the manager of these lines in this country—the head of these lines? A. Yes.

5390

Q. You are familiar with this Agreement "AA"? A. I am fairly well familiar with the Agreement "AA" and have worked under it since it was formed.

Q. Did you have anything to do with its drafting? A. Not the slightest.

Q. Where was that done? A. In London.

Q. You are familiar with the conference system? A. Generally familiar with the conference system.

Q. And the lines you represent are in the conference, are they? A. Right.

Q. What passenger conferences is the International Mercantile Company connected with? A. The North Atlantic Passenger Conference, the Continental Passenger Conference and the Mediterranean Passenger Conference.

5391

Q. Prior to the "AA" agreement, were there other conference agreements—passenger conference agreements? A. You had the same passenger conferences but the passenger conferences are different from passenger agreements.

Q. Quite so. Distinguish them? A. The passenger conferences are held in New York for the discussion of general matters appertaining to the business at large and not as to rates, and the agreements cover 5392 rates and conditions under which the business is to be conducted.

Q. And there are passenger conferences abroad also? A. Passenger conferences abroad also.

Q. In foreign— A. In foreign places.

Q. How long has the conference system been in existence? A. It was in existence when I came into the business—when I came to New York in 1891.

Q. You heard of it before, I suppose? A. Yes.

Q. You say you have operated under this agreement "AA." Just prior to the signing of that agreement in February, 1908—I think it was—February 5393 5th, 1908—what was the condition of things in the steamship business? A. A very serious rate war had been in existence.

Q. For how long? A. I would say, about six or eight months—I believe longer than that.

Q. Did you take any part in that? A. I took part in it and I was at that time representing the lines in the United States.

Q. Describe in a general way what the situation was? A. The situation was such that the rates for third-class passengers were reduced to a basis of ten dollars and in some cases as low as $7.50, which rate included not only the commission but the head tax 5394 which was paid out to the Government—being an absolutely demoralized condition of affairs.

Q. It is hardly necessary to ask whether there was any profit in such business? A. That meant that the third-class business was carried at a very serious loss.

Q. Do you know what led to the formation, or the execution of this new agreement in 1908? A. Well—it was unreasonable for the lines to continue such a ruinous fight.

Mr. Guiler: I should think that Mr. Franklin should state the facts instead of characterizing them. I object to the way he has stated it.

5395

Mr. Burlingham: State, if you know, what led to the formation—to the execution of this agreement? A. The very natural result of conducting the business in that chaotic state.

Q. What do you say, from your experience, as to the necessity of agreements of some form in the steamship business?

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as calling for a conclusion.

A. I do not see how the steamship passenger business can be conducted satisfactorily without agreements, just as any other transportation business. It 5396 requires agreements.

Q. Explain that more fully? A. Our first and second-class agreements are no more than the arrangements under which the railroads are working in the United States.

Q. Give an instance? A. We simply establish minimum rates for certain specified steamers—specific steamers, exactly as a railroad does from New York to Buffalo; in one case the Lehigh Valley, in the other case the New York Central and in another case a better train on the New York Central. They merely establish a rate based on the efficiency of their service, length of time required, and the train service which 5397 they are offering.

Q. Do you say that the business of the steamship transportation is analogous to that? A. As far as I can see it is exactly the same.

Q. I direct your attention to this question, what is the necessity of agreements?

Mr. Guiler: Same objection.

A. The necessity is exactly the same as the necessity in the case of the railroads. If the railroads or the steamboats did not have these agreements all the 5398 best trains would get all the business and the largest steamers would get all the business and it would mean the survival of the fittest and the man who could put out the greatest number of steamers could control the business.

Q. Have you been referring to all kinds of passengers? A. I have been referring particularly to the first and second-class business because I refer to the minimum rates, but the same line of argument applies to the third-class business.

Q. I want to know what, generally, in your opinion, is the reason for establishing a system similar to "AA"
5399 for third-class passengers? A. If we did not have an agreement similar to "AA" the line that could put in, from year to year, new steamers, would gradually absorb all the business. The agreement "AA" gives and retains for the weaker lines their share of the business that they have established.

Q. How? A. By an agreement under which the business—if one operating under the agreement is exceeding his fair proportion of the business he has to advance his rates and thereby reduce the movement over his line.

Q. Give us a more particular instance of that? A. It is being done all the time. There is no particular 5400 case.

Q. You do not have the same system for the first and second-class passengers? A. No, the same system has never been adopted for the first and second-class passengers as for the third-class passengers. The conditions are absolutely different. The first and second-class passengers are entirely guided by the time they have to sail, the steamer offering at that particular time, the accommodation they can secure, the amount of money they want to pay, whether they want a bath or without a bath and things of that kind. The third-class passengers are more or less going to and from the same places and they are controlled more by agents. They go in larger groups and they can be influenced to one steamer or another.

Q. Is there a difference in the time of the year in which the first and second-class passengers and the third-class passengers travel? A. As a matter of fact, the tide is practically the other way between the first and second-class passengers who leave here—New York—in large quantities in May and June, which is the time when the third-class passengers are coming over in large quantities—during March, April and May.

5401

5402

Q. This agreement "AA" is a pooling agreement—Contains a pooling element, doesn't it? Is that essential to the agreement? A. I regard that as absolutely essential to the third-class business.

Q. When you have spoken of the necessity for some agreement, did you have in your mind the necessity of a pooling agreement? A. Yes, for the third-class passenger business.

Q. Without such an agreement, what would happen? A. Without such an agreement it would be very difficult to control the agents and the result would be the demoralization of the rates which would mean the survival of the fittest and the elimination of the weaker lines.

5403

Q. Why could you control the agents better? A. Because if the lines are not working all together under a very comprehensive agreement, the agents would be endeavoring at all times to take advantage of people.

Q. This agreement "AA" has a provision, has it not, for the payment of four pounds as compensation; is that so? A. That is right.

Q. What is the object of that? A. The object of that is no one line—it would not be to the interest of any one line to try and corral all of the business or a much larger amount of the business than it is entitled to.

5404 Q. Is the object of that to raise rates? A. To force the lines to raise rates when they have secured their proper percentage.

Q. Is the object of that provision to raise rates generally? A. No, to maintain the business on a fair basis.

Q. What does that four pounds represent? A. It does not represent anything.

Q. It is an arbitrary figure? A. Yes.

Q. Or something that reduces cost? A. It is an arbitrary figure.

5405 Mr. Guiler: Why doesn't he explain what it is?

Mr. Burlingham: It is in the agreement.

Mr. Guiler: It is not clear what it is for.

Mr. Burlingham: He has explained what it is for.

Q. Now, Mr. Franklin, is competition excluded by this agreement, in your opinion?

Mr. Guiler: I object to that question, Mr. Burlingham.

Mr. Burlingham: Why?

Mr. Guiler: As calling for a conclusion and not for a fact.

5406 Mr. Burlingham: Very well, we will withdraw the question.

Q. What is the effect of agreement "AA" as regards competition?

Mr. Guiler: The same objection.

Mr. Burlingham: That is a fair question—go ahead.

A. No effect.

Q. What do you mean by that? A. Competition is just as keen as it was before.

Q. Explain that? A. Each line is just as anxious to secure as many passengers as they possibly can and also to offer a service to the agents and facilities and accommodations, to the agents, so that they will be always securing the business from the agents.

Q. What class are you referring to now? A. Third-class.

Q. What is the situation in regard to first and second-class passengers? A. The first and second-class competition is just as keen as it can possibly be. We are all obtaining new offices and new agencies for business all the time.

5408

Q. You are referring to competition with the outside world or inside world? A. I do not know what you mean by inside or outside.

Q. Outside the conference? A. Oh, yes, with the conference just as much as anybody else.

Q. The agreement provides for certain percentages—has that changed at all? A. That I do not know.

Q. Is that a matter determined on the other side—in Europe? A. Determined on the other side.

Q. You are familiar with the steerage rates, of course, and have been for the last twenty years? A. Yes; I would not say for the last twenty years. I have been since 1902 or '03.

5409

Q. Has there been a change in the rates? A. Barring war times the rate—

Q. You mean rate war times? A. Rate war times—the rates have been practically the same.

Q. Has the cost of operation changed at all? A. The cost of operation has increased in the last three years tremendously.

Q. To what lines do you refer? A. I refer to every line and every class of passenger and every part of the business—in connection with every class of passenger and every part of the business.

5410 Q. Be a little more specific, please? A. In the first place the cost of construction has greatly increased. The wages have all been increased both ashore and afloat. The cost of food stuffs, supplies, coal, oils, everything that a steamer consumes in the conduct of transportation have all increased.

Q. What about the accommodations, have they changed at all in the last ten years? A. As far as the third-class passengers are concerned the Government regulations in the various countries have increased the amount of space and the nature of the accommodations—the character of accommodations which we have 5411 to give the third-class passenger and also the competition among the lines has resulted in their now having dining rooms as well as being served by stewards, whereas formerly they brought their own cooking utensils aboard and cooked their own food supplies.

Q. How about the rooms? A. The rooms—instead of the open steerage as formerly, which were much more economical for the carriage of the third-class passengers, the competition has resulted in the passengers being given in many cases rooms.

Q. You are referring to third? A. There is no regulation regarding either first or second-class passengers, because the room they have is greatly in ex-5412 cess.

Q. You spoke of the increase in the cost of construction. Can you state more specifically what the increase in the cost of construction has been? A. The increased cost, both in the increase in the cost of material and on account of the much better accommodations which we have to give the passengers, has resulted in an increase in the cost of the steamers of about somewhere from fifteen to forty per cent, and further, the class of steamer has so materially changed that twenty years ago we were paying 250,000 pounds for a steamer for which we are now paying 1,500,000 pounds. I might say 250,000 pounds to 400,000 pounds.

Q. The type of steamer has been improving steadily, has it? A. The traveling public are all demanding a very materially improved and new type of steamer.

Q. How about the steerage passengers, do they have a voice? A. Steerage passengers would not travel by the line if the line did not give them an improved type of steamer.

Q. In your opinion, have these agreements—passenger agreements—had any effect in regard to the development of steamships? A. If the condition of affairs such as prevailed in 1907 had continued— 5414

Q. Meaning the rate war? A. During the period of the rate war or during any other disturbed conditions, it would have been impossible for the lines to make their financial arrangements to provide for construction, excepting those that were much more strong; that is, that did not have to consider that feature of the situation.

Q. Please explain that? A. If your earnings at a certain period are extremely bad and you are operating practically at a loss and you are not setting aside any surplus for depreciation—for the construction of new steamers, it would be very difficult to find the money and therefore you will hesitate about making the contract to build a new steamer. 5415

Q. One of your lines is the American—those vessels are under the American flag? A. Right.

Q. How many steamers are there in that fleet? A. There are four steamers operating under the American Line: The St. Paul, St. Louis, New York and the Philadelphia.

Q. They run from here to Southampton? A. Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton, carrying mails.

5416

Q. What do you say as to the effect on that line of a rate war—a period without agreements among the lines? A. The effect upon that line would have been—a continuation—a rate war would have been a very serious proposition for that line to fight—to have faced.

Q. Why? A. Because it is not a profitable service now and under these conditions they would be running at a very heavy loss.

Q. Have any of the steamship lines succumbed—gone out of business during your time? A. None of the prominent carrying lines have gone out of business since I have been connected with the passenger trade.

5417

Q. Is there any heavier burden on the American Line than on a foreign owned line? A. The cost of a boat is about forty per cent greater if built in an American yard and the cost of operating it is about thirty to thirty-five per cent greater.

Q. Is that statement you make in regard to the cost of operating based upon your own investigation? A. It is based upon our experience and it is also the result of the investigation of the United States Government under the Gallinger Commission.

Q. Have you had the means of comparing in your business the cost of operation of these American steamers with other steamers of a similar type? A. You see that every day.

5418

Q. I mean in your own business? A. Oh, yes.

Q. There have been steamers of the Red Star Line more or less like the American Line boats? A. No, not the Red Star Line. We have had other steamers.

Q. The petition here charges that these companies—defendant companies—that they established or attempted to establish a monopoly. From your knowledge of the business of the last twenty years and of the present existing conditions is there any monopoly in the business?

5419

Mr. Guiler: I object to that. That is the very matter at issue here. Mr. Franklin should not answer that question. I object to that and if it is answered I will ask to have it stricken out. It is not a matter of fact. It should not be testified to by Mr. Franklin. Also, on the ground that Mr. Franklin is not qualified to give an opinion on such matters.

A. No, the ocean is absolutely free.

Q. Is there any tendency towards monopoly? A. No, there is no one line that could monopolize.

Q. What? A. No.

5420

Q. What, in your judgment, would be the effect of an absolute doing away with this agreement and of similar agreements? A. It would be a question entirely of the survival of the fittest. It would mean that the man who could build the greatest number of new steamers could control a greater part of the business and the weaker lines would have to drop out of the business.

Q. You have used the expression several times this morning "the survival of the fittest;" what do you mean by that? A. I mean that the weaker lines could not compete with the stronger lines, and the stronger lines would finally get control of the weaker lines, or the weaker lines would have to drop out of existence entirely.

5421

Q. By the "fittest" then, you mean the strongest and most powerful? A. The strongest and most powerful.

Q. Mr. Franklin, you have spoken of the situation of American vessels under the American flag; apart from this view that you have expressed as to the effect of a condition without agreements of any sort, tell me what the situation of the American owned vessels would be, the American vessels under the American flag without agreements; I mean are by the American 5422 vessels, under the American flag, in any different situation from any other weaker line; are they peculiarly open to attack?

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as conjectural.

A. It would be more difficult for a steamer built in America under the American flag to compete with a foreign flag steamer without an agreement, because the American steamer is operating under a very great handicap at any rate.

Q. Such as you have described? A. Such as I have described; in the cost of construction and cost of 5423 operation. Now, if she has got to be under a further handicap it is an absolutely impossible proposition.

Q. The American line receives certain funds for carrying the mails, from the Government, does it not? A. I know, but after all this question, I don't know whether this is—

Q. Go ahead? A. This question comes down to the matter of how you can invest your capital. You could not expect any American investor to put money in American built steamers operated at greater cost and greater—costing more money and costing more to operate, and realizing that she had to go into a competition with no agreement against the foreign constructed 5424 steamer, a steamer built abroad at less cost and operating at less expense. Nobody would invest any money in a proposition of that kind.

Q. Then, if I understand you, the agreement is essential to the operation of the American line?

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as a conclusion and the matter in issue.

A. As I have testified before, an agreement, in my opinion, is essential to the operations of the steamer, whether under American laws or foreign laws—under the American flag or the foreign flag—but the American flag is at a greater disadvantage than the foreign flag under all the circumstances.

5425

Q. In other words, as I understand it, you say it is essential in every case, but it is more essential for the American than under the foreign flag?

Mr. Guiler: Same objection.

A. Much more.

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. When was the St. Paul and her sister ships constructed? A. They were constructed in about 1895. That is, they were put in commission about 1895.

5426

Q. When was the Hanna-Payne subsidy bill—do you remember what year that was pending? A. In 1894 and 1895.

Q. It was stated at that time that it cost, as I recollect it, twenty-five per cent more—it was stated at that time it cost twenty-five per cent more to build a ship in an American yard than it cost to build the same ship in any foreign yard? A. In my opinion that was an under-estimate.

Mr. Guiler: I object to this question and any subsequent questions and answers along this line as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and ask to have them stricken out, the only question at issue here being whether the defendants have combined and conspired to restrain and monopolize trade.

5427

Q. It was stated that it cost thirty-three and one-third per cent at least, more to operate a ship under the American flag than it did a ship of corresponding tonnage under a foreign flag? A. That is about correct.

Q. Since that time, as I understand you, the difference in cost of constructing a ship in the Ameri-

5428 can yard and the same ship in a foreign yard has increased? A. No, in my opinion, it has not increased; I may be wrong, because I say that at that time it would have cost more to construct in an American yard than twenty-five per cent; previous it would have cost about forty per cent—it would have cost about forty per cent.

Q. You think it would? A. At that time.

Q. And to operate it you think the difference would be more than—it would cost more to operate it? A. It would cost to operate it about thirty-five per cent.

5429 Your statement on the operation was about correct, thirty to thirty-five per cent.

Q. Then the American ship starts out as against a ship of corresponding tonnage, or vessels carrying the register and flag of another country, would be handicapped seventy-three at least, per cent? A. Well, you can hardly add the two, for the reason that in your thirty-five per cent you have taken a lot of the charges which follow on account of the increased cost, such as increased insurance, increased depreciation and inreased interest.

Q. You are speaking now as compared with 1899 and 1901 and 1902? A. No, I am speaking that you cannot add the forty and the thirty-five, making it 5430 seventy-five per cent more; the two are absolutely distinct.

Q. What is the gross difference in your opinion? A. The gross difference—

Q. The real handicap? A. The real handicap you could put it down at thirty to thirty-five per cent.

By Mr. Beers:

Q. Mr. Franklin, from your experience in the steamship business, do you think it possible for passenger lines to be run on the North Atlantic route now in a manner which would conform with statute in the United States and England and which would conform to the requirements of the public unless passenger rates are relatively stable? I mean, for any considerable period of time? A. You could run them, but you would be running the risk of incurring heavy losses; therefore, it depends upon your financial arrangement as to how long you could run them.

5431

Q. Could passenger lines now operating in the North Atlantic be run for any considerable period of time in the manner that the public now require unless the passenger rates were relatively stable? A. Those of the stronger lines that have large interests elsewhere could be run indefinitely, but the weaker lines depending upon the results of operating across the North Atlantic would have to drop out unless reasonable and stable rates were maintained.

5432

Q. Is there any method by which reasonable and stable rates—passenger rates—can be maintained on the high seas, except by agreement of some sort between the lines? A. Not in my opinion.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. You mean agreement between the lines? A. Between the various lines.

By Mr. Beers:

5433

Q. When you speak of the additional cost of operating ships registered in the United States, have you in mind the United States statute regulating the operation of ships and the officering and manning of ships? A. I have in mind the ship built in the United States, operated under the United States flag, and running in the mail service, carrying passengers, freight and mails, across the North Atlantic, coming under the 1891 Act.

Q. What is required in reference to the officers and seamen—changed conditions—from what would be 5434 required in foreign registered ships? A. Steamers built and operated under the American flag, running under the 1891 Act, require that all the officers be American citizens, all officers and engineers be American citizens, and at least fifty per cent of the crew be American citizens; therefore, they carry the American scale of wages right straight through the entire ship.

By Mr. Burlingham:

Q. And these four boats that you have spoken of are run under that Act? A. The four boats we talked 5435 about were under that Act.

Q. Has the maintenance of stable rates in steerage passenger business any effect on freight conditions and cargo shipments from this country, and if so, what? A. Well, if you did not have a stable situation regarding the passenger, both first, second and third-class rates, and you have a demoralized condition of affairs there, you would have to try to make up your earnings in some other direction, and, therefore, you would have to try to get your freight rates up, the result being that reasonable and stable passenger rates enable the steamers to carry freight at lower rates than they might otherwise have to insist upon.

5436 Q. Apart from the lowness or highness of freight rates, that is, rates for the transportation of cargo, what do you say as to the importance of maintaining stable freight rates for merchants and manufacturers and shippers?

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, freight rates not being involved herein.

A. Stable freight rates are much more satisfactory as a rule, to merchants than the demoralized freight rates, so that a merchant booking his cargo one day may have to pay more than his competitor the following day, and, therefore, his competitor would be at an advantage in his sales abroad.

5437

Q. Generally speaking, the cargoes that we send from this country are coarser cargoes than those that we receive here? A. The bulk of the cargo that moves from this country is of a coarser nature than that which is imported.

Q. Take, for instance, the movement of steel rails, grain, flour? A. Grain, cotton, steel rails, oil cake and other food stuffs, raw materials.

Q. Many of these articles are sold on the exchanges, are they not? A. They are. 5438

Q. I want to confine my question to the effect of stable passenger rates on freight rates, what it is? A. The stable passenger rates result in regular—the maintenance of regular transatlantic sailings which are very beneficial to the merchant, both the exporter and the importer. It enables him to have a regular weekly sailing to many places where otherwise he would not have, and if you had the demoralized passenger situation you would be very apt to reduce your sailings and thereby interfere with the regular ebb and flow of freight traffic.

Q. I suppose you carry in these large express steamers here more or less freight, don't you, cargo? 5439
A. The large express steamers carry a fair quantity of the higher class of freight.

Q. Do you attribute the improvement in the quality of steamers in any part to the system that has been established here in the last few years?

Mr. Guiler: Objected to as conjectural and as calling for opinion and conclusion.

A. The present magnificent steamers would probably not have been constructed if it had not been for the passenger agreements that existed from time to time.

5440

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. Now, Mr. Franklin, you were speaking sometime ago about the four pounds which are paid into the pool by the line in excess of its share. Now, do you say now that a line can indefinitely go on being in excess and increasing its carrying irrespective of its percentage? A. The spirit of the agreement was that the lines should not carry more or less; that the lines should carry about in accordance with their percentage.

5441 Q. And should maintain that percentage practically intact as far as it is possible? A. The object of the agreement was that the lines should maintain that percentage as closely as possible.

Q. And measures would be taken by the other lines if it did not maintain that percentage as closely as possible? A. The other lines would expect the line that exceeded its percentage to increase its rate.

Q. So that you would not say, would you, that a line could go on increasing to such an extent and paying in this $20 into the pool until it took away practically all, or nearly all, of the business from the other lines? A. The very object of this agreement is to avoid the stronger lines taking away, or attempt-5442 ing to take away, all of the business from the weaker lines.

Q. That is, a line should not—a line has really, then, no incentive to go beyond its percentage, has it? A. A line has the incentive to go beyond its percentage, because it would like to carry as many people as it could, but if it continued that policy any length of time the other members of the agreement would raise very strong objection, and I think the agreement gives some right to arbitration, but I have forgotten that, as a remedy.

Q. Then there is a certain point in this—the lines may reach a certain point where they cannot go any further in increasing their carryings under this agreement? A. The lines have not the right of increasing their carryings indefinitely—

5443

Q. I mean the particular line? A. Any one line increasing its carryings far beyond its percentage under the agreement would be requested by the other parties to the agreement to increase its rate with the view of stopping the movement of traffic over that line and throwing it to the weaker lines.

Mr. Spooner: To prevent monopoly?

The Witness: To prevent monopoly.

Q. There is a certain rate, is there not, provided for in this agreement below which these lines cannot go, a minimum rate? A. There is a minimum starting rate. I don't know how that is in each case, but there was a minimum starting rate in the agreement. 5444

Q. And the line could not in order to increase its carryings go below that certain minimum, could it? A. My understanding is the lines cannot go below the minimum rate mentioned in the agreement; but that is covered by the agreement.

Q. You would say, Mr. Franklin, that this question and answer are correct? This answer is to a question put to you by Mr. Hardy, at page 599 of the investigation of the so-called shipping combine. In talking about the line going into the plus or the minus in the pool; the question is: "It is not to the interest of a company to reduce below this minimum anyhow, is it? Mr. Franklin: It is not to the interest of anybody to reduce below that minimum. Mr. Hardy: For the simple reason that if they are not getting their share of the freight and passengers, they are getting their share of the money? Mr. Franklin: Yes; if they are not getting their share of the freight they are getting their share of the money. The point I wanted to bring out was that if they are not getting their share of the business, although they are getting their share of the 5445 money, the man who is getting an excess of business is putting out more money and effort, and he is using that capital and getting no return on it." That is correct, is it? A. It applies to an entirely different proposition. It applies to the freight business; cargo, as applying to freight.

5446 Philip A. S. Franklin

Q. I think you were talking about the passenger situation? A. No, the thing does not apply in the passenger business.

Mr. Bullowa: Mr. Guiler, will you state what paper you are reading from?

5447 Mr. Guiler: I did state.

Mr. Bullowa: Will you state again?

Mr. Guiler: Page 599 of number ten of the hearings before the committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Bullowa: Is that an official document, Mr. Guiler?

Mr. Guiler: Certainly it is.

Mr. Bullowa: Won't you have it marked so that we may have it in the record?

Mr. Guiler: No, I shall not have it marked. I am asking for his recollection.

5448 Q. Now, Mr. Franklin, I ask you now if that question and answer or those questions and answers, are correct? A. Will you kindly have the questions and answers read?

Q. I was just asking if your testimony before the committee, which I have read to you, is correct? A. It is correct, yes.

Q. Now, it is a fact that when a line is minus in the pool that four pounds is paid for every passenger that that line lacks of its share, isn't that right; it is paid by the other lines? A. Well, the excess line pays into the pool and the line not carrying its percentage receives from the pool.

Q. The four pounds? A. Whatever the proper amount is.

Q. You said it was fixed at four pounds, didn't you, sometime ago? A. That is my understanding.

Q. So that whether a line carries its full percentage or not it gets that four pounds for each passenger that it lacks? A. It receives a compensation for the passengers that it has not carried, considering its percentage; but if it did not immediately force a situation which would put it in a position where it would carry its fair percentage the next time they came together to complete an agreement they would be very apt to be told that as they had not been able to show that they could carry that percentage that they were not entitled to the said percentage; therefore, every line is keen and anxious to carry its proper percentage, and that is where the competition comes in. 5450

Q. Now, on that statement there is nothing in the agreement which would induce the line or make it possible for the lines, members of the conference, to increase their percentage, is there? A. As I remember the AA agreement, there is nothing during the life of that agreement which gives the line any right to secure an increased percentage; but, if during the operation of that agreement it was clearly demonstrated that one line had a percentage of their own far in excess, or far below what it was entitled to, before that agreement could be continued it would be very difficult for either one of those lines to maintain their present position. 5451

Q. That is, the other lines would be apt to— A. Insist upon an adjustment.

Q. Insist upon an adjustment? A. Yes.

Q. What do you mean by an adjustment? A. I mean to say if a line was entitled to four per cent in the pool and it demonstrated clearly that it could only carry three per cent, when the time for renewal came around it would be very difficult for it to maintain its position and demanding more than three per cent and vice versa.

5452 Philip A. S. Franklin

Q. But the spirit of the agreement as it has been carried out is that the lines should carry their particular percentage and no more and no less, is that the idea? A. That is the spirit of the agreement. I think that it is so worded in the agreement.

Mr. Bullowa: Will you note on the record Mr. Guiler is examining the witness from the 5453 report of hearing before the committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries?

Q. Now, Mr. Franklin, you have stated as I remember it that there is competition between the lines members of the Agreement "AA" is that so? A. Yes.

Q. Now, does that apply to all the lines that are members of Agreement "AA"? A. In my opinion, yes.

Q. Does it also apply to the Hamburg American Line? A. The competition between the Hamburg and the other lines?

Q. Yes? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Didn't you state on page 641 of volume ten of 5454 the committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, as follows—this question that was put to you—"Mr. Humphrey: To put the question in another way, the Hamburg American in its field today has no active competitor, has it? Mr. Franklin: It has competitors on all its through business and indirect business and that sort of thing, but between its main North Atlantic ports it has no active competitor." That is correct, isn't it? A. I am talking entirely in that case on freight, and Agreement "AA" does not cover there, and it covers the passenger business and the passenger business is in very large per cent destined to other points than Hamburg. In other words, it is through business.

5455

Q. I want to know if that statement is correct that you gave there? A. It is correct as far as the freight destined to Hamburg is concerned. That is what it meant.

Mr. Bullowa: I don't think you should take part of that testimony; the whole thing goes together.

Q. Now, Mr. Franklin, in your experience how many vessels have you placed out for building in the United States or contracted for yourself for building in the United States? A. When I was general manager of the Atlantic Transport Line in 1899 and 1900 we let contracts for six vessels; those are the only vessels I have had anything to do with in construction.

5456

Q. Did you have anything to do with figuring out the cost of those vessels? A. A great deal to do in figuring out the cost of those vessels, also the cost of similar vessels to be constructed abroad at the same time.

Q. Did you figure them yourself, or did you have them supplied to you by others? A. Our people of the company figured them for us.

5457

Q. You had no personal experience in figuring them out yourself, had you? A. I didn't do the actual figuring; I saw that they prepared the figures.

Q. You were relying on somebody else who was doing the figuring for you? A. Of course, we were; the details of the figures themselves.

Q. You did not superintend the building of those vessels, did you? A. I did.

Q. You mean you actually superintended the construction of them yourself? A. The superintendent of those vessels, the man who actually superintended the construction, reported to me.

5458

Q. Didn't you give them out to some shipyard to build for you? A. Some of them were built on a percentage basis, and some on a contract basis and they were all inspected regularly by us.

Q. Not by you? A. By the superintendent who reported to me and I saw them from time to time.

Q. So that you had no personal experience in the actual building of vessels, or any actual figuring of the cost of building? A. I saw those vessels from time to time during the course of construction; I was generally in charge of the construction of the vessels.

5459

Q. I said you did not do the actual figuring of the cost of the vessels, did you? A. I am not an accountant.

Q. I want a direct answer to that, if you can, Mr. Franklin, and I think you can? A. Certainly we did the actual figuring.

Q. (Question read as follows): So that you had no personal experience in the actual building of vessels, or in the actual figuring of the cost of building? A. I had a great deal of personal experience in the actual figuring of the cost and construction of the vessels, because the people who figured the actual cost and inspected the vessels during the course of construction and any alterations, were all reported to and were under my supervision, reported to me.

5460

Q. You were not running the shipyard which built the vessels, were you? A. I was not running the shipyard which built the vessels, but I was running the people who were looking out to see the vessels were built in accordance without contract.

Q. Have you had any experience with the actual supply of vessels, figuring out the cost of supply and so forth, and maintenance details? A. I have had experience in figuring out what it cost to operate certain vessels in certain trades and what the cost of operation in those trades, and the cost in the trade when we are chartering or fixing vessels in other places.

Q. But not in the North Atlantic trade? A. I have had in the North Atlantic trade the detailed cost of operating the vessels in every department put before me for years and the comparison of one year versus another year.

Q. You superintended the maintenance of the vessels and the maintenance of the cost and so forth, but you did not do the actual supply work yourself? A. I did not inspect supplies as they were delivered to the vessel, but appointed a man to do that who reported to me. 5462

Q. In other words, you did not do the purchasing of the supplies yourself, did you? A. I did not personally do the purchasing of the supplies, but the man who purchased the supplies was appointed by me and reported to me.

Q. Now, you say if a rate war should supervene amongst the various lines you feel that the result would be some of the weaker lines would have to go out of business, is that true? A. I do.

Q. Now, do you see anything particularly wrong with a line that is not able to maintain itself in the business, to maintain business in competition with other lines going out of the business; what is particularly wrong about that line going out of business? 5463
A. If the results from operation do not justify the continuing in business I think it is the right thing for them to get out of the business.

Q. That is, if they do not maintain that they ought to stay in it they ought to get out? A. If they cannot make money in the business they had better get out.

Q. And they had better get out and let the stronger lines take the business if they can, isn't that right? A. That is entirely a matter for the owners of that line to decide.

5464 Mr. Burlingham: You mean the weaker line or the stronger line?

The Witness: The weaker line.

Q. What I mean is, you do not believe in the stronger lines supporting lines which have no right to exist, do you, on the basis which you have previously stated here? A. It is not a question of the lines not having a right to exist; it is a question of their financial arrangements, their earning capacity, and whether or not they can exist; they will have the right to exist.

Q. They have the right to exist, but have the ability to exist, I will change it to that, without the assistance 5465 of others? A. It is purely an economical proposition.

Q. I know; that is why I asked you; I want the benefit of your experience on that proposition.

Mr. Burlingham: You want to know if he is in favor of monopoly?

Mr. Guiler: No.

A. I think everybody has the right to exist if they possibly can.

Q. I want to know whether you think that fifteen steamship lines, we will say, should support four others which are admittedly weak and which admittedly could not exist without the support of the other 5466 fifteen? A. They could exist if reasonable and fair rates were maintained; but if the stronger line wished —or the stronger interests—wished to reduce their rates to an unreasonable basis with a view of eliminating the weaker line they might not be able to continue to exist.

Q. You say that in the strife of competition which would be induced by a rate war those other lines which I have mentioned, those four other lines, probably could not exist? A. If the rate war continued for any length of time the result of their operation might be such a loss that they would have to be sold and drop out. That has been the history of other lines in the past.

Q. Do you find that in the trade today there are enough or more than enough vessels to take care of it? I am referring to the three classes of passenger trade principally? A. There are enough vessels in the trade today to take care of three classes of business. If the business increased the steamers would have to be increased.

Q. Yes, but don't you find that for the last, say twenty-two years, there has been a tendency to build more and more vessels as time went along? A. There is a great tendency to build very much improved ves- 5468 sels, as demanded by the travelling public, and, of course, the number of vessels would increase, has increased and will increase as the general trade increases offerings for those vessels.

Q. But during that same time that increase in the construction of vessels has continued do you find that at all times the number of immigrants has increased in proportion to the number of vessels, the carrying capacity of the vessels? A. The number of emigrants moving backwards and forwards across the Atlantic varies year by year. A year of great prosperity in this country will bring in a great many more immigrants and a year of depression in this country will result 5469 in many more immigrants going home. Now, the figures all show that immigration rises and falls in accordance with the conditions in this country.

Q. So that some years there are a far greater number in capacity of vessels than in proportion to the number of emigrants, is that right? A. At certain seasons of some years the vessels have a larger capacity than the number of emigrants moving at that time.

Q. I am now referring to the period twenty years back, take your experience twenty years back? A.

5470 Philip A. S. Franklin

You have got to take the period; you have got to take the different seasons of the year.

Q. I am averaging those twenty years? A. You must take the season of the year because there are certain times of the year when third-class passenger accommodations are not half filled and you are using them for freight.

Q. I mean admitting all of that there have been some years that were better than others? A. There have been some years when the immigration has been very large and other years very much reduced.

5471 Q. Do you remember what was the situation in regard to immigration about 1907, just prior to the agreement "AA"? A. I think—my recollection is—that the spring of 1907, was a fairly good year, but not a very big year.

Q. Do you find that in the trade of these passenger vessels that the passenger situation control the freight situation? A. The passenger situation does not necessarily control the freight situation. If the passenger business was particularly bad it might result in a reduction of sailings and thereby reduce the freight service, that is all.

5472 Q. That is, in some services from your experience you have found it to be a fact that the freight carrying of the vessels is to a great extent disregarded where the vessel is essentially a passenger steamer? A. There are some services where the freight situation is a very secondary one, a secondary consideration.

Q. Don't you think that that is so in regard to the passenger services of the North Atlantic? A. I would say generally speaking no; but there are certain steamers in the North Atlantic where the freight feature is of really no importance, but when you talk of the trade as a whole it is rather a different thing.

Q. You would take the situation to Hamburg, Breman and Antwerp and Liverpool and London; now, that situation, there the passenger service controls, does it not? A. Not in every case. There are some services running across the North Atlantic that carry no passengers.

5473

Q. I mean where you have a vessel carrying passengers and also freight, the passenger vessels in those services control—do they not? A. There are certain steamers that in the Liverpool, Hamburg and Bremen trade, that are operated practically entirely for their passenger business, and the freight business a very small factor. There are other steamers in those particular trades that are operated for their freight purposes and passenger business is a small factor.

5474

Q. Now, take the Mediterranean trade, what do you find in regard to the passenger and freight situation there? A. The Mediterranean trade is, as far as the larger lines are concerned, you might say practically a passenger service.

Q. So that in that trade the freight is to a great extent disregarded, is that right? A. It is impossible to say that it is disregarded. We are just as anxious to get freight as we can be; but it is not the important factor that the passenger business is, and the steamers are run for their passenger business.

Q. The rates you have stated for third-class passenger trade have been practically stable for the last ten years, is that right? A. Barring certain times of rate war they have been more or less stable for the last ten years.

5475

Q. That has been, has it not, more or less, the result of agreement "AA" and other subsidiary agreements, has it not? A. It has.

Q. And that state of affairs then has been by agreement between the various lines who were members of the "AA" agreement? A. Whenever the agreements existed.

Q. Yes. And the rates both under "AA" and under the first and second-class agreements have been 5476 fixed also by agreement, have they not? A. They are all fixed today by agreement.

Q. But they have been, have they not since those agreements have been in effect? A. They have been practically since 1908.

Q. The number of vessels upon the North Atlantic trade sailing under the American flag are very small, are they not? A. Very small.

Q. What proportion of those vessels would you say are American vessels? A. You mean on the North Atlantic trade?

5477 Q. Yes. I mean running between here and London and Liverpool, Hamburg, Bremen and various other points? A. You don't take in the Mediterranean?

Q. Yes? Take that in? A. It would be purely a guess on my part; it would be a very small per cent on account of the regularity of the American Line's service; they make a good many voyages.

Q. Practically the American Line is the only third-class passenger carrying line under the American flag, is it not? A. It is the only third-class passenger carrying line as a line, but the Red Star Line have two steamers, the Finland and Kroonland, they carry first, second and third-class passengers to Antwerp. There are only six steamers carrying the American 5478 flag carrying passengers across the North Atlantic.

Q. You believe then, to come back to another subject, that without agreement "AA" there would be several lines that could exist and could take care of passenger business upon the North Atlantic? A. I would not express any opinion as to how many lines could continue without that agreement.

Q. What lines did you have in mind? A. I haven't any lines in mind.

Q. You would not nominate what you term the strong lines that would exist? A. It would depend upon the financial position of the line.

5479

Q. But there would be several of them in your mind that could exist irrespective of the agreement "AA"? A. Some of them are bound to exist.

Q. About what proportion of them would you say? A. I could not say, because I don't know enough about their finances, their committments and how economically they can carry their business.

Q. But you feel that in your opinion there would be some lines that could exist irrespective of "AA" whether it existed or not? A. I am going by past experience, as in the days of very fierce competition there were certain lines that had to drop out, and I take it for granted there are others that would have to do the same if the situation should revert to that condition.

5480

Q. But there would be some that could continue; I think you mentioned "the survival of the fittest"? A. There is no doubt in my mind that there would be some that could continue and would continue.

Q. That would be the fittest of the various lines? A. Those would be the lines that are now strongest financially and have the greatest number of the most modern ships, and could afford to build more modern ships.

Q. Of course, we are predicting here, Mr. Franklin, in your prediction in regard to what would happen your opinion is that those lines, could, those stronger lines, could adequately take care of the business? A. That I would do what?

5481

Q. That those stronger lines could adequately take care of the business? A. In time they could if you gave them time to build.

Q. That is, the dropping out of the smaller lines would be a matter of some years, would it not? A. That is entirely a question of how severe the fight would be; how long it would last, and depend upon the movement of traffic at the time.

Q. But in your experience, looking back on previous rate wars, you don't think, do you, that the lines would go out of business immediately, the weaker lines would go out of business immediately? A. Oh, not necessarily immediately.

Q. But you feel that there would result certain lines that would take care of the business finally? A. The result would be that the weaker lines could not improve their tonnage; they could not build new ships, whereas the stronger line could make financial arrangements which would enable them to build ships and, therefore, the weaker lines will in due course 5483 find themselves with nothing but obsolete tonnage and obsolete tonnage cannot compete with modern tonnage; it would be a gradual elimination of the people who were not strong enough to handle the business.

By Mr. Beers:

Q. Mr. Franklin, do I understand you to testify that steerage rates varied in respect to the quality of the different ships; that is, that the rates on the slower and older ships were lower than on the newer and faster express steamers? A. The rates will vary on the ships even of a particular line. The line may have minimum third-class rates, but it may charge a little more for a 5484 faster and better steamer than it charges for one of its other steamers.

Q. As a rule, are the newer and faster steamers built by the lines having the greater financial resources? A. I think that applies to the North Atlantic passenger business, but it may not apply to the shipping as a whole, because there may be some smaller companies whose financial position may be a great deal stronger than the larger and more prominent company, but they may not want to add large passenger carrying ships to their fleets.

Q. If the weaker lines were to be driven out of the North Atlantic passenger business would that in your judgment tend to deprive the public of the advantage of the cheaper ships? A. The driving out or the elimination of any of the weaker lines would probably be done by the construction of larger and faster steamers by companies whose finances would permit such construction, and that may gradually eliminate the less expensive too. The less expensive steamer; it might result ultimately in a higher rate, but that would be quite a long time; a long process. 5485

Q. In your judgment and from your experience in the steamship business do you think the present steerage rates on the North Atlantic charged by the lines parties to Agreement "AA" are reasonable? 5486

Mr. Guiler: I object and ask to have the answer stricken out if put in.

Mr. Beers: Do you object to it as leading?

Mr. Guiler: No; objected to as calling for a conclusion and for matter in issue on the facts

A. I consider them extremely reasonable, and I think the recent increased costs justify a further increase in the rate.

Q. During your experience in the steamship business has there ever been a time when the steerage passenger got more for his money than he does now? 5487

Mr. Guiler: Same objection.

A. Never as much as he is getting now.

Q. Has there ever been a time when the cost of building ships and running them was greater than it is now?

Mr. Guiler: Same objection.

A. Never; and feeding the passenger.

By Mr. Bullowa:

Q. Would the elimination of the weaker lines ultimately tend to a monopoly by the survival of the stronger lines?

5488

Mr. Guiler: Same objection.

A. It certainly would.

By Mr. Spooner:

Q. Mr. Franklin, you have been asked what would be the effect if none of the lines were permitted by law to be member of the "AA" Agreement, and your answer to that was that the weaker lines would be eliminated? A. My answer to that, if I remember was it would be very apt to bring on rate wars from time to time and gradually result in the elimination of the weaker lines.

5489

Q. That might not be so gradual either? A. It might not be.

Q. Suppose the laws of England and Germany and Holland and France, flag states of all of these lines, prohibited any agreement or understanding between the steamship lines, and by steamship lines I mean steamship companies owning and operating lines of steamships, in respect of the restraint of competition, what would be the effect?

Mr. Guiler: I object and ask to have it stricken out as immaterial, irrelevant and incompetent.

5490

Mr. Spooner: I ask to have it answered because it is material, relevant and competent.

Mr. Guiler: And calling for a conclusion and conjectural.

A. The effect would be demoralization in passenger —a great tendency towards a demoralization in passenger rates both east and westbound across the North Atlantic, and you would reach exactly the same conclusion; it would be the elimination of the weaker and the survival of the stronger who would ultimately get control of the business.

5491

Q. That is the very weak would go out quickly and then the less weak and leave the field in possession of the stronger? A. Quite right.

Q. Now, operating under that what would be the ultimate result? A. The ultimate result would be the business would get into the hands of one or two or three steamship lines.

Q. Imagine there would be no understanding or agreement in regard to rates, what would be the result as to that? A. If you have no understanding or no agreement regarding rates two people can work with less ruinous competition between themselves than ten people or fifteen people, and you can apply that as you go along.

5492

Q. If they did not have some understanding with each other in some way or other about keeping up the fares— A. They would gradually work into a point where they would have just as good an understanding as if they had a written agreement, if they got down to two lines.

Q. Suppose they had not? A. Then one or the other is bound to swallow the other in time.

By Mr. Guiler:

Q. Mr. Franklin, while these various lines were going through the process of swallowing each other the public would get the benefit of lower rates, would they not? A. The public might have the benefit of lower rates, which would only be a temporary matter during the swallowing process; ultimately they would have to pay for it.

5493

Q. That is, those particular persons would not have to pay for it? A. The people that travel today or at the time might not have to pay for it, but their children or others might have to.

Q. You mean the lines would make them pay for it by raising the rates to make up for what they had lost?

5494 A. They would ultimately have to come back and raise the rates for the cost of building and operating their ships and getting a fair revenue, which is all they are getting out of it now.

Q. But supposing those two lines that you spoke of that were left, those lines you think would continue much longer competing with each other than say ten or twelve lines? A. Of course, we are rather narrowing it down to a ridiculous number when we talk of two lines for this tremendous business.

Q. I am taking your own views; that is what you said; two lines could get along better competing with 5495 each other than half a dozen? A. I said that if you could finally narrow it down to two lines they could get along without violating any laws, and yet maintain reasonable and profitable rates and conditions among themselves.

Q. And they could get along likewise in competition with each other? A. They could probably get along in competition because by that time you would have narrowed down to a point where they would be on all fours; they would be practically equal.

Q. That is, they would be two highly efficient lines, is that what you mean? A. If I could bring it down to that ridiculous number you might find yourself with 5496 two highly efficient lines, with very simliar steamers, operating very similar services, and with such conditions, briefly, there would not be so much necessity for an agreement.

Mr. Spooner: They would simply have to nod to each other or else there would be a smash.

The Witness: I think that, of course, brings it down to a ridiculous point.

At the request of Mr. Bullowa "Hearings before the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries, House of Representatives, number ten" is marked Defendants' Exhibit #23 for identification.

5497

Hearing adjourned to Monday, April 7th, 1913, at 11 o'clock A. M.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

5498

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

Before Charles E. Pickett, Esq., examiner.

New York, April 7th, 1913.

5499

Upon consent hearing adjourned to Tuesday, April 8th, 1913, at 11:00 A. M.

5500 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT - ACTIEN - GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants.

5501 Before Charles E. Pickett, Esq., examiner.

New York, April 8th, 1913.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

Appearances:

Henry A. Wise, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate and Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, 5502 Esq., for the Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton, by J. C. Spooner, Esq., for the Allan Line, et al.

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for the Russian East Asiatic Company, et al.

ISIDORE FREDERICK HELLMUTH, called on behalf of the defense, testified as follows:

Direct-examination by Mr. Spooner:

Q. What is your full name? A. Isidore Frederick Hellmuth.

Q. Where do you reside? A. In Toronto, Canada.

Q. How long have you resided there? A. Well, in Toronto I have resided for about thirteen years.

Q. You have lived in Canada, however? A. I have lived in Canada for a great many more years than that.

Q. Are you a member of the Bar in Canada? A. I am a member of the Bar in Ontario and have been 5504 since 1887.

Q. Are you a king's counsellor? A. I am one of his majesty's counsel in the Province of Ontario and have been for some ten or fifteen years.

Q. Are you a member of the Bar in England? A. I am a member of the Bar in England, I am a member of the Inner Temple of the Bar in England, and have been since the same year 1887. I was called in that year in England and afterwards in Ontario.

Q. You have been engaged and are now in the active practice of your profession? A. I have been—I may also say—since 1877—if one dare state so long in the practice of the profession. I have been a little more 5505 active in the last fifteen to twenty years, perhaps.

Q. You are acquainted with the law in Canada in respect to the restraint of trade and commerce? A. I am.

Q. And with the laws of England? A. I am.

Q. And decisions of the courts? A. I am.

Q. In both countries? A. I am. We have in Canada, we have to follow the decisions of the Courts in England, they are binding upon us, because our highest Appellate Tribunal is controlled by the Privy Counsel.

5506 Isidore Frederick Hellmuth

Q. Have you read what is known as Agreement "AA" entered into February 5th, 1908? A. Yes, sir, I have.

Q. By the various steamship companies whose names are appended thereto? A. I have. I have, I may say, very carefully perused that agreement and the various articles of the same.

Q. With a view to determining whether or not the same is valid under the laws of England? A. Under the laws of England.

Q. And under the laws of Canada? A. And under the laws of Canada.

5507 Q. What is your opinion as to the validity of Agreement "AA" under the laws of England?

Mr. Guiler: I want to object to that question and also to the answer and to all subsequent answers regarding the law in England and Canada on the ground they are incompetent, immamaterial and irrelevant, and also on the ground that when a positive statute declares the law in this country, the laws of foreign countries are immaterial thereafter.

A. Well, in my opinion Agreement "AA" is a legal agreement according to both the laws of England and 5508 the laws of Canada.

Mr. Guiler: I want to object to that answer on the further ground it is a conclusion and not in regard to the facts stated.

Mr. Spooner: It is the opinion of an expert.

Mr. Guiler: Not based on any facts stated to the witness.

Mr. Spooner: The facts stated to the witness are, he says he has read the agreement.

Mr. Guiler: I have no objection to the authenticity of the copy of Agreement "AA" which Mr. Hellmuth used, if you state that the document which Mr. Hellmuth has read was and is a correct copy.

5509

Mr. Spooner: It is a correct copy.

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. Now, Mr. Hellmuth, you have made a thorough study of this Agreement "AA," have you not? A. As far as I am capable of doing.

Q. Now, taking up—I call your attention to certain phases of this agreement and ask you separately whether they are, in your opinion, legal under the laws of England, for instance, Article 17— A. Yes.

5510

Q. You observe by that article that there is a requirement for a promissory note of 1,000 pounds to be filed for each per centum proportion which each of the lines receive? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that that is stated as being for the faithful performance of the conditions of the agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And to be sued upon and collected in the event of not living up to the agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And now that it is provided in the following event, "If the party unauthorizedly withdraw from the agreement, refusing to pay the compensation, fail to replenish the deposit, as provided by the penalties, or if they start or assist in starting a new line in competition with any of the contracting parties." Now, do you consider under those circumstances that such an agreement and such fines and penalties are legal under the laws of England, taking into consideration the fact that there is a combination of the various steamship lines in this so-called conference? A. One has to take the two meanings of the word "legal." If you mean whether it is unlawful, such a provision under the laws of England and Canada, I would distinctly say no, in my opinion. If you say whether a Court would necessarily as between the parties enforce that provision I would not answer that unless I knew what had been done under the terms of the agreement. If something unlawful or illegal had been done then the Court might not enforce it. But there have been cases in England—which I think I can give you if you like—in which they have enforced provisions very similar to that,—the Court holding that it was a reasonable act that had been done. You will, of course, recall the Mogul Steamship Company actually sent out steamers to capture the trade of competing lines, and there the Court held that the Mogul Company who 5513 sued had no right as a third party—some very strong expressions were given by the lord. There are some differences—the word "legal" has two meanings. Two people can enter into an agreement which is not unlawful under certain circumstances and a Court of equity or any court would enforce it as between the two.

5511

Q. You speak of the Mogul Steamship Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you consider under that case that the agreement is lawful, per se in the sense that no punishment will be brought upon the person who enters into it? A. I consider that no punishment would be brought upon the persons who entered into it, in the 5514 view of the Mogul case. I am not saying that one of the parties to it could enforce it against the other.

Q. Well, you say—you make this distinction in that Mogul case, that there is no—that is, the agreement in the Mogul case, you will not consider indictable? A. No, certainly not.

Q. You would consider it is unenforcible—an unenforcible contract? A. No, I would not in the Mogul case, I would not answer it was. That question was left open, more or less by the House of Lords, they did not—my recollection is Lord Herschel, used some rather strong language in reference to being at all not in accord with the modern ideas of competition and thought it a good thing to eliminate competition.

5515

Q. They have recognized there, to take for instance, Lord Bowen—are you familiar with that? A. What is that?

Q. In the Mogul case. I am referring now to the Mogul case entirely? A. Yes.

Q. Lord Bowen, as I understand—stated, that his opinion was that such "contracts as they are called, in restraint of trade, are not in my opinion illegal in any sense except that the law will not enforce them"? A. Yes.

5516

Q. And he said further, "It merely declines, after they have been made, to recognize their validity. The law considers the disadvantage so imposed upon the contract a sufficient shelter to the public." Would you consider that to be the law in England today as regarding such a contract in the Mogul case, that it is merely unenforcible and not indictable A. I would consider it is unenforcible and not an indictable act. Lord Hannon in that case in the House of Lords said, he thought that the opinion expressed by Mr. Justice Crompton was erroneous in stating such an agreement was indictable. You want me to go further do you—

5517

Q. Now, I want to know whether what in your opinion is the ultimate result of the Mogul case. I am trying to sum up from the various decisions, taking the various judges together— A. I would think that in the Mogul case, that the courts would—the ultimate courts, the highest lord, would in time actually enforce it. That is a deduction I would make from that case, although, perhaps, the Court of Appeal would not have done so.

Q. Don't you find the actual decision of that case goes to this extent only—that the agreement there is that it was not illegal in the sense it was an indictable offense but, as between the parties there it would not 5518 be enforced on the ground that it was illegal in that sense? A. Well, I think—if I may state so—they rather leave the latter portion open. That is my conclusion, with some remarks one way and some the other. But, I think rather, it would be enforcible. That is my opinion on that, re-reading the cases recently, and that is my reading of the cases in the House of Lords.

Q. Well, didn't you find in an analysis of the decisions of the various judges, that only one of the eleven judges who passed upon the contention in the Mogul case that is, Lord Coleridge was squarely of 5519 the opinion that the combination was not in restraint of trade? A. Well, I would hardly say that, because Lord Halsbury, the Lord Chancellor in the case, on page 40, said, "I am of the opinion, therefore, that the whole matter comes round to the original proposition, whether a combination to trade and to offer, in respect of prices, discounts and other trade facilities, such terms as will win so large an amount of custom as to render it unprofitable for rival customers to pursue the same trade is unlawful, and I am clearly of opinion that it is not."

Q. Have you made an analysis of the opinions of the judges, so that you can say if anything, what each 5520 one of them hold, so as to tell me whether that statement of mine is correct or not? A. Well, I won't say I took up the number of opinions arithmetically. I have not done that. I have formed my own conclusions.

Q. So that you cannot say whether or not that statement in regard to the judges is correct or not? A. No. I would not like to make that absolute statement.

Q. You cannot say whether in the opinion of one judge, Lord Morris, it was doubtful whether it was not in restraint of trade, and five judges, Lords Esher, Bowen, Bramwell, Hannen and MacNaghten, who thought the terms of the combination would have been unenforcible, and the other four judges did not pass on the question at all. You cannot say whether that is correct or not, can you? A. Just one moment, I would not state that was the result of what Lord Morris said, for instance. 5521

Q. You would not agree to that then? A. I would not agree to it. I would not agree with what Lord Watson said—I do agree with what Lord Watson said, but I wouldn't agree with what you stated—

Q. You have not analyzed it with that purpose in view? A. No, sir; as a matter of fact—

Q. You are giving your opinion on the whole thing as you understand it? A. Yes, sir. I ought to add this. What is the dicta would not be binding on another case in the House of Lords, because it is not one that is absolutely necessary for the decision of the case. That is the point. 5522

Q. And the only thing in that case that was necessary was whether the plaintiff in the case could recover damages from the defendants? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the Court holds that the plaintiff could not recover damages on the ground that he had not been injured by the action of the defendants, is that right? That it was not illegal in the sense he could recover damages? A. If they had done no act that was unlawful or illegal, according to the law of England, it would not give him a right of action. That is what they lately decided. 5523

Q. Now, would you agree with Judge Taft's view of the results of the case in his decision, in the Addyston Pipe case, 85 Federal, 271, in which he says—

Mr. Spooner: Who says?

Mr. Guiler: President Taft, or Judge Taft.

Q. (Continuing): "It was held by the House of Lords that this was not an unlawful and indictable 5524 conspiracy, giving rise to a cause of action by the person injured thereby, but it was not held that the contract of association entered into by the defendants was not void and unenforcible at common law." I ask you whether you agree with that statement?

Mr. Spooner: President Taft did not say that.

Mr. Guiler: Yes, he did. I should say Judge Taft.

A. One does not like to say—differ from so eminent a judge as Judge Taft. But I think it would require 5525 a little qualification if I passed my own opinion in regard to it.

Q. And then he further says: "On the contrary, Lord Bramwell, in his judgment (at page 46) and Lord Hannen, in his (at page 58), distinctly say that the contract of association was void as in restraint of trade. But all the law lords, were of the opinion that contracts void as in restraint of trade were not unlawful in a criminal sense and gave no right of action or damages to one injured thereby." Do you agree with that? A. No, I do not think he puts it as a majority of the Courts put it at all.

Q. How would you put it? A. They simply state, we 5526 have nothing to do with the question of the enforcement of this contract and therefore we could not say whether it could be enforced or not. May I give an illustration? Suppose I make a contract with a minor. It is a perfectly good contract as long as the minor and I chose to carry it out, but the Courts won't enforce it. It does not seem to me they went any further in this case except to say they made a contract and the jurisdiction of the Court won't interefere between the parties. But if they chose to carry it out nobody can stop them. That is the only view of the contract.

5527

Q. That is the only point in that decision? A. I think you are quite right. That is the point in this decision.

Q. Now, you are acquainted, are you not, with the case of Rex against Hilbers, 2, Chit., report 3, M. S., 67? A. I don't know Mr. Guiler.

Q. Well, in that case it was held, "That while it was no offense for individuals by disunited endeavor to seek to raise the price of oil, nevertheless, if there was a confederacy for such a purpose they would be guilty of conspiracy." It was held to be indictable conspiracy. Now if that appears to be the law in England today— A. No, I would not think that was the law in England today in view of such cases as Cade & Sons, against Daly. That is a case in 1910, I Irish Reports, 306, in which the manufacturers or bottlers of mineral waters entered into an agreement whereby they fixed the prices with one another not to sell within a certain territory under that price and the case came before—

5528

Q. The Master of the Rolls A. The Master of the Rolls, and he had commented on the trial of the case. It had rather gone the other way.

Q. Now, can you tell me—

Mr. Spooner: Let him answer.

5529

A. I was going to say, there has been a very considerable change in the law, in the views of the judges in regard to dealing with contracts between parties. I think they have fallen back upon rather old decisions —I think I have it here—it is a case of Hare versus the London, etc., Railroad, 2 Johns and H. 80; it was reported in 1861. Now, it seems to me the Courts are going back to the views which were expressed in that case. That was a case in which some eight railways had entered into a pooling arrangement, whereby they were to pool their receipts and in the agreement it

5530 was provided that if any road earned more than its proportion as fixed by the agreement, a certain percentage only was to be given to it, they were to pay the balance of it to the others. Rates were to be fixed by the consent of five of the railroads and the agreement was to last fourteen years. Now one shareholder in one company brought an action to have it declared void and ultra vires and it came before the Vice-Chancellor, Sir W. Page Wood, and he held that the agreement was within the powers of the companies, not ultra vires and was to the advantage—

5531 Q. Now, let me interrupt you a moment. There wasn't any question was there, of a combination or any conspiracy or anything of that sort A. But they have raised the question that it was against public policy, and on that account by going out of competition it was a void policy—I wouldn't have stated it otherwise, and in fact, in the judgment, I have an extract or two here from the judgment—

Mr. Spooner: Read it.

5532 A. The one expression is, "With regard to the argument against the validity of the agreement, I make clear the ground of one objection by saying that I see nothing in the alleged injury to the public from the prevention of competition. It is a mistaken notion that the public is benefited by pitting two railway companies against each other till one is ruined, the result being, at last, to raise the fares to the highest possible standard. Except by fixing a maximum amount of tolls and, as far as practicable, a maximum amount of profit, the legislature has imposed no conditions in favor of a travelling public."

Now, I was going to say that view in some quite recent cases has been taken, that the public idea in regard to the free competition—I am speaking—

Mr. Guiler: I understand.

5533

A. The public idea in regard to free competition being unfavorable is quite a mistake. If you have got what is a reasonable and fair rate then if possible there should be some agreement between the parties, and the two railroads should not run alongside one another cutting one another's throat and soaking the public—if I may use a vulgarism—for higher rates. I think that is the principle that is very largely weighing with the judges in England.

Q. You started to give a case of Cade against Daly. Do you find anything in there, any further decision in there than that this was an agreement between the various bottlers within a certain limited area, say sixteen miles of the city of Cork in regard to—sufficiently limited in time and space, that the Court could hold that was a legal agreement A. No, no, that is quite true. But it is the character of an agreement that is to be looked at in regard to what is a fair limitation of time and space. Take the Maxim Nordenfelt case, stating the whole world was too wide to sell big guns. The man is restrained—his partner restrained him in the agreement from selling big guns all the world over. It says it is too wide a restraint in respect to the character—I think I had a case in the Court of Appeals in Ontario immediately after that, where they actually tried to sustain—I happened to be on the other side—they actually tried to sustain a restraint of a laundryman from dealing anywhere in the Dominion of Canada. The Court said it was—

5534

5535

Q. However, in that case of Cade against Daly, the Court did not go any further than to say that the restraint in that particular case was reasonable in view of all the facts in the case? A. Quite so.

Q. And it was also—by the way, where does the Master of the Rolls stand to decide a case—how high is he in authority in the Irish Judiciary? What does he represent as compared to one of our judges here?

A. I was going to try to get at it. He is very like the Chancellor—I don't know whether you still have a Chancellor or not—that is, the Master of the Rolls is high, not higher in grade than the Vice-Chancellor. In England the Master of the Rolls is not as high as the Lord Chancellor, but the Master of the Rolls is a sort of Chief Justice among the Vice-Chancellors.

Q. He is the first trial court for equity cases practically? A. He may be one of the judges—anyone of the Vice-Chancellors.

Q. I mean, Vice-Chancellors. A. And then he would sit on appeal as well.

5537 Q. In this decision—Cade v. Daly, the Master of the Rolls he does not sit in appeal? A. Simply sits as a trial judge, as I understand it.

Q. Now, in that case he held, did he not as follows on 319, "The fact is, every case, where the question of restraint of trade or partial restraint of trade has arisen or may arise, must be considered in the light of its own facts and circumstances." That is a correct ruling, isn't it today? A. Quite so.

Q. And a little influence one way or the other may change his opinion? A. As to the reasonableness, that would only apply as I say to the enforcement as between the parties. It might be a question as to whether 5538 the enforcement was reasonable or not.

Q. Now, don't you find that the Court in that case also considered the case of the Mogul Steamship Company and McGregor? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And where the word "unlawful" was used that the word "unlawful" in regard to contracts was used there in two senses? A. Yes, sir.

Q. First as a combination? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That would give rise to an action? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is, unlawful, per se? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Second, though not giving rise to an action, yet being such as would receive no countenance from a judicial tribunal? A. I can't say, the rule has changed so.

Q. That is substantially correct, what I said? A. Quite so. You almost got it verbatim there. I don't know whether he said it was only possible.

Q. And furthermore later on, "The Court recognized, did it not, that there might be a case where a Court did not enforce or sanction a contract or combination, which though not directed against any particular person and not being actionable by any particular person yet might injuriously affect the public 5540 —affect the community as operating in restraint of trade"? A. My recollection—

Q. That is correct? A. There was some language to that effect.

Q. In other words, the Court takes the broad view on the question of restraint of trade and says every case must be decided on its merits practically? A. In regard to the one question of the enforcement of it between the parties, not in regard to the other question.

Q. And if the public interest is affected that it might give rise to an action by private persons? A. I don't think there is any case that holds that any 5541 such action, that is treating it together, and treating it by itself, and taking anything that is not illegal, that would give rise to any action either by a private individual or the Crown in England, and the State here.

Q. Isn't that eliminated on that statement he makes there, if I got it correctly, "Might injuriously affect the public as operating in restraint of trade"? A. And then he said what the effect of that would be. You are speaking of the Master of the Rolls in dealing with the Mogul case?

5542 Q. Yes? A. No. "I recognize that the eminent lords who took part in that decision, apparently considered that there might be cases in which the Court would refuse to sanction or enforce a contract or combination, which though not directed against any particular persons or class of persons, not giving rise to any cause of action by a person or persons incidently injuriously affected, might yet be injurious to the community as operating in restraint of trade."

That is to say, if such an agreement came before the courts they would refuse to interfere at the instance of one member of the combination against the 5543 other. But that does not at all, to my mind, touch upon the question, that they—that any private individual or the State, or the Crown in England, could take any action in regard to it. I do not think they could.

Q. Now, in that connection have you considered the case of Rex against DeBerenger, 3 M. & S. 67, where it was held to be indictable to conspire by false rumors to raise the price of public government funds upon a particular day to attempt to injure those who might purchase on that day? A. I grant you that at once. Suppose that in this combination—they put out—suppose they did put out or 5544 in part of this literature they should publish statements that were untrue in connection with the rivals, that would be an unlawful act under the law of England and would be indictable.

Q. Suppose in this agreement they had a person that should suppress statements that were true by holding back certain advertisements from people, would you consider that to be illegal? A. I assume that is a hypothetical question, because I have article 16 that deals with the matter. If you want to put it in any such manner—

Q. Suppose it is hypothetical? They were to that extent? A. They were not, in giving advertising with papers that may be true statements about that? You mean that—

5545

Q. Yes? A. I think they were perfectly right in doing that. I don't think you can make a man advertise in a paper he does not like. We have had this question up in Canada on the act there, and we have felt, as I imagine you would feel here, the final way to deal with this matter, I think we have to pass special legislation. That is what we have done, passed special legislation in Canada with regard to certain matters.

Q. On that point, I suppose you are familiar with the Sherman Act? Suppose you had— A. I am not 5546 familiar with the Sherman Act.

Q. It prevents persons from engaging in a combination or conspiracy in restraint of trade or engaging in a monopoly in restraint of trade. You have the Sherman Act right there. Suppose you had that act in England, would that make any difference in your opinion in regard to this agreement that a positive act stating such a thing or agreement was indictable? A. Mr. Guiler, I would be very sorry before you and these other learned gentlemen, to express an opinion upon American Law.

Q. I am not asking that? A. I think you asked me to give an opinion as to what the effect of the 5547
Sherman Act was.

Q. I want to know. Suppose there was such an act in England?

Mr. Spooner: That is impossible.

Q. Now, under this stage of the case I think it is very practicable. Would that make any difference in your opinion whether this contract was legal or illegal? A. I really don't know as I could—I have never considered that at all. I dislike to give—to go on the record as giving final opinion. I have never considered the effect of the Sherman Act. I have only considered the effect of the act to ourselves in Canada, which does not render this Agreement "AA" void. I think it would be rather presumptuous of me to attempt to construe the Sherman Act. That is really construing in a round about way the Sherman Act.

Q. No, I think not? A. I think it is. If you asked me what would be the effect of language of that kind used in a statute passed by the English House and Parliament—

Q. Yes? A. I don't know as I could—I wouldn't like—I would have to fight such a thing. I would 5549 want to spend considerable time considering it.

Q. You want to be relieved of the duty of answering the question? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Now, do you agree with this language of Lord Ellenborough, on page 72—the case of Rex against DeBerenger, which I stated to you a few minutes ago, in regard to the false rumors to raise the price: "A public mischief is stated as the object of this conspiracy; the conspiracy is by false rumors (i. e., that Napoleon was dead) to raise the price of public funds and securities; and the crime lies in the act of conspiracy and combination to effect that purpose and would have been complete although it had not been 5550 pursued to its consequences or the parties had not been able to carry it into effect. The purpose itself is mischievious, it strikes at the price of a vendible commodity in the market, and if it gives it a fictitious price by means of false rumors, it is a fraud levelled at the public for it is against all such as may possibly have anything to do with the funds on that particular day."

Now in a case of that sort would you hold that under the laws of England a person would be indictable? A. I do. I say if a person put out false rumors, went so far as to say that the Russian-American Line was incapable of carrying a certain number of passengers when it was, any statement of that kind would be indictable in England, as a false statement. 5551

Q. That is the point in this decision as I understand it. Perhaps you understand it, there was a conspiracy there? A. Yes. I say for those parties to conspire to put out a false statement, then I say it would be indictable.

Q. If there is a conspiracy that was mischievious in its purpose in the prices of a vendible commodity, if the market is raised or lowered as the case may be, in that case the laws of England would hold such action as indictable? A. A statement that might have the effect— 5552

Q. Leave out statement, take conspiracy? A. A conspiracy. A combination of people agreeing to put forth a statement which in itself was true and which had the effect of raising prices would not in my opinion be indictable at all. If it were untrue it would, I think that is—that is not conspiracy to raise prices; that it is indictable, these untrue statements made in the agreement—rather to make untrue statements, to conspire to make untrue statements.

Q. In the aggregate you have little left. It seems to me that is the very purpose of the conspiracy, was to raise the prices—by making false statements—that is the means by which it was done. And then Bayley, J., on page 75—you happen to remember that case? A. I recognize it as you state it there. 5553

Q. Now, is this statement—would you consider it to be the law of England today: "Here then is a conspiracy to effect an illegal end, and not only so but to effect it by illegal means because to raise, the public funds, by illegal means and with a criminal view is an offense"— A. With a criminal view.

Q. (Continuing.) "An offense, perhaps not affecting the public in an equal degree as if it is done with 5554 intent to affect the purchases of the commissioners for the redemption of the national debt which would be affecting the public in its aggregate capacity, but still if it is to be completed it will certainly prejudice a large portion of the King's subjects who have occasion to purchase on that day. And it is not necessary to constitute this an offense that it should be prejudicial to the public in its aggregate capacity, but it is enough if it be prejudicial to a class of its subjects." Now, on that last statement there, prejudicial to a class of its subjects, if you found a case where a number of individual corporations or otherwise, got 5555 together to raise the prices of certain goods, and certain vendible commodities on the market, to such an extent that the public or class of the public would be injured thereby, would you hold in considering that case, which I have stated to you, that under the law of England those individuals could be indicted? A. If—it would depend, of course, on the facts of the case—it would depend on whether the methods adopted were reasonable, whether the rate perhaps was reasonable, but the mere fact it shut off rivals, so that they had less competition, would not in my judgment—

Q. I was directing your attention to the raising of prices where the only object was, of the conspiracy, 5556 was to raise the prices? A. I don't think it would be at all illegal for instance, to raise prices, if the prices that were then obtainable did not permit these people to do business at a profit. I think it would be perfectly legal in England to enter into a combination to raise prices.

Q. I was directing your attention principally to the point that it would be said—that such a combination was conspiracy and injurious to a class of the King's subjects, as stated in this DeBerenger case. Would you say that the law of England today is that such persons could be indicted? A. Well, I really in the more modern cases would think such an action could hardly rise under any combinations that are now—

Q. I am not saying whether they could arise. I am assuming it has arisen? A. You are not dealing with "AA." I certainly say not with "AA."

Q. I am dealing with the case I have supposed? A. Well, you can certainly have a case in which an indictment will lie, if you ask me. There is no doubt they can take illegal means, such outrageous things to shock the conscience in every way, no doubt an indictment would lie.

Q. You state, in such a case as I have mentioned there, a certain class of the King's subjects and the injury— A. You see how dangerous it is to say yes. Take the Cade case, a number of the King's subjects could not buy mineral water without paying as they thought an excessive price for that. The Courts hold it is not illegal. 5558

Q. Would you answer the question and state whether that is the law of England as I stated it to you? A. I think, if it came before such a Court as the Court of Appeals, or the House of Lords, there would be considerable qualification and expression in regard to it. By the more recent decisions—

Q. You would then come down to this. You would have to have all the facts before you before you could answer the question? A. That is a fair way of putting it. I don't want to be saying anything except that is a very fair way of putting it. 5559

Q. Now in that Maxim Nordenfelt case, the Court held there, did it not, that the Court would there consider, would they not, a contract between the two parties? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There wasn't any question of conspiracy or anything of that sort? A. No, sir.

Q. But they held there, didn't they, that all restraints were bad—that is Lord Macnaghten's decision—all restraints were bad—5560 Mr. Spooner: What, the restraint of trade?

Q. The restraint of trade, that there was a defense on the ground that such a restraint was reasonable and could be proved to be reasonable, then it would not be a restraint of trade; that would be a good defense to it and he also said, didn't he as follows—I won't quote it—simply said that there are two things which have to be considered in every such case; that is, the interest of the contracting parties themselves, and the interest of the public— A. I would only think it would be more or less the interest of the contracting 5561 parties in regard to the enforcement of it. I think the case you state is one in which the public did not come in at all. It was the question of contract between two people. When the Courts were asked to enforce it, they said in that case, as they said in all cases of that character, we must look to see generally if there is any restraint, and if it is illegal we won't enforce it. We look at it in these cases to see whether it is reasonable. If it is reasonable we will actually enforce it between the parties.

Q. I read you as follows in that case, and ask you if it does not represent a law of today on the question: "It is a sufficient justification, and indeed it is the only 5562 justification if the restriction is reasonable—reasonable, that is in reference to the interests of the parties concerned and reasonable in reference to the interests of the public so framed and so guarded as to afford adequate protection to the party in whose favor it is imposed while at the same time it is in no way injurious to the public. That I think is a fair result of all the authorities."

Now, that is Lord Macnaghten's statement. I suppose you agree with him? A. I would. I would apply the case as he was applying it. He was deciding a case between two parties, he was seeing whether he would or not enforce a contract between those two parties. In that sense, I quite agree with the statement.

Mr. Guiler: I think that is all.

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION by Mr. Spooner:

Q. Is that a fair statement, conclusion (handing paper to witness)? A. Yes, I think that is quite correct.

Q. Read it? A. "Agreement AA is not contrary to the law of England or Canada, and the decisions of the Courts of England indicate that one party to such 5564 an agreement could enforce it as against the other. But it is clear that under the law of England one party to such an agreement could enforce it against the other party, if it was shown the agreement was reasonable." If it is shown the agreement is reasonable, there is no doubt about that. There are some decisions—I have not attempted to go through them all.

RE-CROSS EXAMINATION by Mr. Guiler:

Q. In regard to the statement the Senator just read to you. You would, however, like to have before you all the facts stating or showing the way in which the 5565 agreement "AA" was carried out before making up the final decision of the whole case?

Mr. Spooner: He has not testified to that. We have called him as to the agreement, the validity of the agreement. He stated at the outset that his testimony would have no relation to the manner in which it was carried out.

A. What you say in reference to the enforcement of it would certainly depend on the reasonable manner in which it was carried out. There is no doubt about it. That, I don't know anything about.

5566 Q. You merely gave your statement of the law as you understand it in regard to the agreement without knowing how it is being carried out? A. I do not know how it is carried out.

Q. With the qualifications you stated that is so? A. Yes.

Mr. Guiler: I would like to have the statement on the record whether the defendants rest as to their testimony. Of course, there may be one or two exhibits you want to put in.

Mr. Spooner: I can't tell about that—5567 Mr. Guiler: I was going to make an application to the Court to finish this thing up but understanding that you were going to finish your case up, finish it up today, the testimony, I did not do that.

Mr. Spooner: He is my last witness as far as I can tell now.

Mr. Guiler: Have you any objection to saying the testimony is closed?

Mr. Spooner: I can't say that.

Hearing adjourned to Monday, April 14th, 1913, at eleven o'clock A. M.

5568 The defendants' attorneys will meet before the end of the week and notify Mr. Guiler as to whether the testimony is closed or not.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 5569

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG - AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others,
Defendants.

5570

Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, April 14, 1913.

Hearing resumed pursuant to adjournment.

Appearances:

Goldthwaite H. Dorr, Esq., Henry A. Guiler, Esq., for the Petitioner.

Messrs. Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, by Charles Burlingham, Esq., for the Anchor Line, Ltd., et al.

Messrs. Choate & Larocque, by Nelson Shipman, Esq., for the Norddeutscher Lloyd, et al.

Messrs. Spooner & Cotton, by J. C. Spooner, Esq., 5571 for the Allan Line, et al.

Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, by Lucius H. Beers, Esq., and Allan B. A. Bradley, Esq., for the Cunard Line, et al.

Ralph J. M. Bullowa, Esq., for the Russian East Asiatic Company, et al.

Mr. Shipman: I would like to have it noted on the record that the defendant Gustav Schwab died November 13th, 1912.

5572 Mr. Spooner: I offer in evidence statement of dividends declared out of earnings of the Hamburg-American Line during the years beginning 1847 and ending with 1912, covering its American and all other services, comprising sixty services; including the earnings of all its ships engaged in the different commerce throughout the world.

Marked Defendants' Exhibit #24.

Senator Spooner: I herewith offer all Peters' letters and parts of letters which have not been offered by Mr. Guiler to be numbered as Defendants' Exhibits No. 25, etc.

5573 Petitioner and defendants waive signature to the testimony of the witnesses.

DEFENDANTS REST.

PETITIONER RESTS.

Hearing adjourned to Wednesday, April 23rd, 1913, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of correcting testimony.

5574

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, 5575

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,
against
HAMBURG - AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others,
Defendants.

5576

Before: Charles E. Pickett, Esq., Examiner.

New York, April 23rd, 1913.

Upon consent hearing adjourned to Monday, April 28th, 1913, at 11 o'clock A. M.

New York, April 28th, 1913.

Hearing adjourned without date.

5577

TRANSCRIPT OF RECORD.

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

OCTOBER TERM, 1915.

No. 289.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, APPELLANT,

vs.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT ET AL.

Filed November 18, 1914.

File No. 24528.

Term No. 332.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT ET AL., APPELLANTS,

vs.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA ET AL.

Filed January 22, 1915.

APPEALS FROM THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

VOLUME 14.

TRANSCRIPT OF RECORD ON CROSS-APPEAL.

(24446 and 24528)

IN THE

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner-Appellee,

vs.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT
ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT and others,
Defendants-Appellants,

and

INTERNATIONAL MERCANTILE MARINE COMPANY and others,
Defendants-Appellees.

TRANSCRIPT OF RECORD ON CROSS-APPEAL

Royal Law Printing Co., Inc., 79 Wall St., N. Y.

INDEX.

	PAGE
Order Allowing Cross-Appeal	1
Petition for Cross-Appeal	2
Assignments of Error on Cross-Appeal	4
Citation on Cross-Appeal	6
Praecipe on Cross-Appeal	8
Stipulation	10
Order Overruling Demurrers to Petition	12
Stipulation	15
Clerk's Certificate	17

Order Allowing Cross-Appeal.

United States District Court,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Petitioner, vs. HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, et al., Defendants.	In Equity E-7-74.

This day came the defendants named in the annexed petition for a cross-appeal, by their solicitors, and presented the said petition and an assignment of errors accompanying the same, and thereupon, upon consideration thereof, it is hereby Ordered, that a cross-appeal be, and hereby is, granted and allowed, as prayed; and that the Clerk of the above-named Court be, and hereby is, directed to transmit forthwith to the Supreme Court of the United States a duly authenticated transcript of the record, papers and proceedings relating to said cross-appeal, in so far as the same are not already contained in the record heretofore transmitted to said Supreme Court on the main appeal of the United States of America herein.

Dated, New York, January 8, 1915.

E. HENRY LACOMBE,
ALFRED C. COXE,
H. G. WARD,
Circuit Judges.

Petition for Cross-Appeal.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Petitioner, vs. HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, et al., Defendants.	In Equity E-7-74.

To the Honorable Judges of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York:

Now comes the undersigned defendants in the above-entitled cause, by their solicitors, and conceiving themselves aggrieved by the final decree made and entered by the above-named Court in the above-entitled cause on the 9th day of November, 1914, in the manner set forth in their assignments of error filed in the said cause, to which reference is hereby made, do hereby pray a cross-appeal and do hereby so appeal therefrom to the present term of the Supreme Court of the United States.

And the said defendants further pray that a duly authenticated transcript of the record, proceedings and papers relating to said cross-appeal, in so far as the same are not already contained in the record heretofore transmitted to said Supreme Court on the main appeal of the United States of America herein, be transmitted forthwith to the said Supreme Court of the United States.

Dated, New York, January 7, 1915.

NORDDEUTSCHER LLOYD (NORTH GERMAN LLOYD LINE) AND GUSTAV SCHWAB, JR.,
By Choate, Larocque & Mitchell, their solicitors,
40 Wall Street,
New York City. 8

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT (HAMBURG-AMERICAN LINE),
CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,
THE ALLAN LINE STEAMSHIP COMPANY, LIMITED, AND BRYCE J. ALLAN,
By Spooner & Cotton, their solicitors,
14 Wall Street,
New York City.

THE CUNARD STEAMSHIP COMPANY AND CHARLES P. SUMNER, 9
By Lord, Day & Lord, their solicitors,
49 Wall Street,
New York City.

10 Assignments of Error on Cross-Appeal.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Petitioner, vs. HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACK-	In Equity E-7-74.
11 ETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, et al., Defendants.

Now comes the undersigned defendants, by their respective solicitors, and file the following assignments of error upon which they will rely upon their cross-appeal from the final decree made by this Honorable Court on the 9th day of November, 1914, in the above entitled cause:

I.

12 That said Court erred in not dismissing the petition as to all the relief prayed for therein, upon the ground that the transportation carried on by the defendants between the United States and foreign countries, and the other matters alleged in the petition, are not within the purview of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, for the reason that the Congress did not intend said Act to apply to international commerce.

II.

That said Court erred in not sustaining the defendants' demurrers to the petition upon the same ground.

Wherefore the said defendants pray that said decree may be reversed and that the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York be directed to enter a decree dismissing the said petition as to all the relief prayed for therein.

14

NORDDEUTSCHER LLOYD (NORTH GERMAN LLOYD LINE) AND GUSTAV SCHWAB, JR.,
By Choate, Larocque & Mitchell, their solicitors,
40 Wall Street,
New York City.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT (HAMBURG-AMERICAN LINE),
CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,
THE ALLAN LINE STEAMSHIP COMPANY, LIMITED, AND BRYCE J. ALLAN, 15
By Spooner & Cotton, their solicitors,
14 Wall Street,
New York City.

THE CUNARD STEAMSHIP COMPANY AND CHARLES P. SUMNER,
By Lord, Day & Lord, their solicitors,
49 Wall Street,
New York City.

16 Citation on Cross-Appeal.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Petitioner, vs. HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, et al., Defendants.	In Equity E-7-74.

17

By the Hon. E. Henry Lacombe, one of the Circuit Judges sitting in the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York in the Second Circuit.

To the United States of America, International Mercantile Marine Company (American Line), International Navigation Company, Limited (American Line), The Anchor Line (Henderson Brothers), Limited, British 18 and North Atlantic Steam Navigation Company, Limited (Dominion Line), Nederlandish-Amerikaansche Stoomvart Maatschappij (Holland Amerika Lijn), Societe Anonyme de Navigation Belge Americaine (Red Star Line), Ocean Steam Navigation Company, Limited (White Star Line), Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company, Limited (Russian-American Line), Phillip A. S. Franklin, John Lee, William Coverly, Adrian Gips, Alexander E. Johnson and Max Straus.

GREETING:

You are hereby cited and admonished to be and appear before a Supreme Court of the United States to be holden at the City of Washington in the District of Columbia on the 20th day of January, 1915, pursuant to a cross-appeal filed in the Clerk's office of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York from a judgment and decree made on or about the 9th day of November, 1914, in a certain proceeding wherein you are the petitioner and the Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt-Actien-Gesellschaft, et al., are defendants, and wherein the 20
Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt-Actien-Gesellschaft, Norddeutscher Lloyd, The Cunard Steamship Company, Canadian-Pacific Railway Company, The Allan Line Steamship Company, Limited, Gustav Schwab, Jr., Bryce J. Allan and Charles P. Sumner are cross-appellants, and you are respondents, to show cause, if any there be, why the judgment and decree in said cross-appeal mentioned should not be corrected and speedy justice should not be done in that behalf.

Given under my hand at the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, in the District and Circuit above-named, this 8th 21 day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifteen and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and thirty-ninth.

E. HENRY LACOMBE,
Circuit Judge sitting in the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York in the Second Circuit.

Praecipe on Cross-Appeal.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Petitioner, vs. HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, et al., Defendants.	In Equity E-7-74.

Alexander Gilchrist, Jr., Clerk U. S. District Court, Southern District of New York:

You will please take notice that the portion of the record to be incorporated in the transcript on the cross-appeal of the defendants, represented by the undersigned soliicitors, is as follows:

1. The order made and entered in the above-entitled cause on the 5th day of January,

1912, overruling the defendants' demurrers to the petition;

the other papers relating to said cross-appeal, viz., the demurrers, opinion overruling demurrers and final decree, being already contained in the duly authenticated transcript of the record, papers and proceedings, heretofore transmitted by you to the Supreme Court of the United States on the main appeal of the petitioner herein.

Dated, N. Y., January 12, 1915.

CHOATE, LAROCQUE & MITCHELL,
Solicitors for the Defendants Norddeutscher Lloyd and Gustav Schwab, Jr.,
40 Wall Street,
New York City.

26

SPOONER & COTTON,
Solicitors for Defendants Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt Actien-Gesellschaft, Canadian Pacific Railway Company, The Allan Line Steamship Company, and Bryce J. Allan,
14 Wall Street,
New York City.

LORD, DAY & LORD,
Solicitors for Defendants The Cunard Steamship Company and Charles P. Sumner.

27

Stipulation.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA. Petitioner, vs. HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, et al., Defendants.	In Equity E-7-74.

The parties hereto, hereby stipulate and agree that the portion of the record as set forth in the foregoing praecipe of the defendants in the above-entitled case may be incorporated in their said record on cross-appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Dated, New York, January 9th, 1914.

H. SNOWDEN MARSHALL,
U. S. Attorney,
Solicitor for Petitioner.

CHOATE, LAROCQUE & MITCHELL.
Solicitors for Defendants Norddeutscher Lloyd and Gustav Schwab, Jr.

SPOONER & COTTON,
Solicitors for Defendants Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt Actien

Gesellschaft, Canadian Pacific Railway Company, The Allan Line Steamship Company, Limited, and Bryce J. Allan.

LORD, DAY & LORD,
Solicitors for Defendants The Cunard Steamship Company, Limited, and Charles P. Sumner.

BURLINGHAM, MONTGOMERY & BEECHER,
Solicitors for Defendants International Mercantile Co., International Navigation Co., Ltd., The Anchor Line (Henderson Bros.), Ltd., British & North Atlantic Steam Navigation Co., Ltd., Holland-American Line, Societe Anonyme de Navigation Belge Americaine, Ocean Steam Navigation Co., Ltd., Phillip A. S. Franklin, William Coverly, and Adrian Gips. 32

RALPH JAMES M. BULLOWA,
Solicitor for Defendant Russian East Asiatic Co., Alexander E. Johnson and Max Straus. 33

34

Order Overruling Demurrers to Petition.

At a Stated Term of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, held at the United States Court and Post Office Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 5th day of January, 1912.

Present—Hon. E. Henry Lacombe,
35 Hon. Alfred C. Coxe,
Hon. Henry G. Ward,
Hon. Walter C. Noyes,
Circuit Judges.

The United States of America,
Petitioner,

vs.

Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt Actien-Gesellschaft, and others,
Defendants.
36

Demurrers having been heretofore filed to the petition herein by defendants, The Allan Line Steamship Company, Limited, International Mercantile Marine Company, International Navigation Company, Limited, The Anchor Line (Henderson Brothers), Limited, Canadian Pacific Railway Company, the Cunard Steamship Company, Limited, British and North Atlantic Steam Navigation Company, Limited, Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt Actien-Gesellschaft, Nederlandsh-Amerikaansche Stoomvaart Maatschappij (Holland Amerika Lijn), Norddeutscher Lloyd, Societe Anonyme de Navigation Belge Americaine, Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company, Limited, Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, Limited, Bryce J. Allan, Phillip A. S. Franklin, William Coverley, Charles P. Sumner, Emil L. Boas, Adrian Gips, Gustav H. Schwab, Herman G. Van Post, Gustav H. Schwab, Jr., Alexander E. Johnson and Max Strauss, and a certificate having been filed herein on the 31st day of October, 1911, 38

by the Attorney General of the United States, praying that this case be expedited, and the Court having ordered that the argument of these demurrers be heard before all of the Circuit Judges for the Second Circuit, and said demurrers having, in accordance therewith, duly come on to be heard before us on the 11th and 12th days of December, 1911, and after hearing William G. Choate, Esq., counsel for Norddeutscher Lloyd and others, Charles C. Burlingham and William S. Montgomery, counsel for International Mercantile Marine Company and others, Lucius H. Beers, Esq., counsel for Cunard Steamship Company, Limited, and others, John C. Spooner, Esq., counsel for 39
Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt-Actien Gesellschaft, and Messrs A. L. & S. F. Jacobs, solicitors for the Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company, Limited, and others, all in support of said demurrers, and Henry A. Wise, United States Attorney, in opposition thereto, and due consideration thereon having been had,

Now, upon motion of Henry A. Wise, United States Attorney, solicitor for the petitioner, it is Ordered, that the said demurrers be, and they are hereby overruled, with costs to be taxed, with leave to the aforesaid defendants to answer the said petition on or before the first Monday of March, 1912.

E. HENRY LACOMBE,
Circuit Judge.

ALFRED C. COXE,
Circuit Judge.

41

H. G. WARD,
Circuit Judge.

WALTER C. NOYES,
Circuit Judge.

42

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Petitioner, vs. HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others, Defendants.	In Equity E-7-74.

44

It is hereby stipulated and agreed, that the foregoing is a true transcript of the record of the said District Court in the above-entitled matter as agreed on by the parties.

Dated, New York, January 15, 1915.

H. SNOWDEN MARSHALL,
U. S. Attorney,
Solicitor for Petitioner.

45

CHOATE, LAROCQUE & MITCHELL,
Solicitors for Defendants Norddeutscher Lloyd and Gustav Schwab, Jr.

SPOONER & COTTON,
Solicitors for Defendants Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt Actien

Stipulation.

Gesellschaft, Canadian Pacific Railway Company, The Allan Line Steamship Company, Limited, and Bryce J. Allan.

LORD, DAY & LORD,
Solicitors for Defendants The Cunard Steamship Company, Limited, and Charles P. Sumner.

BURLINGHAM, MONTGOMERY & BEECHER,
Solicitors for Defendants International Mercantile Co., International Navigation Co., Ltd., The Anchor Line (Henderson Bros.), Ltd., British & North Atlantic Steam Navigation Co., Ltd., Holland-American Line, Societe Anonyme de Navigation Belge Americaine, Ocean Steam Navigation Co., Ltd., Phillip A. S. Franklin, William Coverly, and Adrian Gips.

RALPH JAMES M. BULLOWA,
Solicitor for Defendant Russian East Asiatic Co., Alexander E. Johnson and Max Straus.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Southern District of New York, } ss.:

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Petitioner,

vs.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, and others,
Defendants.

50

I, ALEXANDER GILCHRIST, JR., Clerk of the District Court of the United States of America for the Southern District of New York, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a correct transcript of the record of the said District Court in the above-entitled matter as agreed on by the parties.

In Testimony Whereof, I have caused the seal of the said Court to be hereunto affixed, at the City of New York, in the Southern District of New York, this 18th day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifteen and of the Independence of the said United States the one hundred and thirty-ninth. 51

ALEX. GILCHRIST, JR.,
Clerk.

(Seal.)

IN THE

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Petitioner-Appellant,

vs.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT, and others,

Defendants-Appellees.

INDEX.

	Page
Pleadings	1-2
Testimony	2-3
Testimony of Exhibits	3-124
Defendants' Exhibits	126-153
Opinion	154

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, PETITIONER,

against

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKET-FAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, AND OTHERS, DEFENDANTS.

INDEX.

THE REPORTER CO., WALTON, N. Y.
New York Office: 253 Broadway, Room 205. 'Phone 6575 Barclay.
Brooklyn Office 375 Fulton Street, Room 58. 'Phone 2300 Main.
1913

Index to Pleadings.

	Page
Petition of the United States under the so-called Sherman Anti-Trust Act	1
Answer of Anchor Line (Henderson Brothers), Limited and William Coverly	66
Answer of Nederlandsch-Amerikaansche Stoomvaart Maatschappij (Holland-America Line) and Adrian Gips	84
Answer of International Mercantile Marine Company, International Navigation Company, Limited, British and North Atlantic Steam Navigation Company, Limited, Societe Anonyme De Navigation Belge Americaine, Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, Limited and Phillip A. S. Franklin	102
The Joint and Several Answer of the Defendants Gustav H. Schwab, Herman C. Von Post and Gustav Schwab, Junior	123
The Separate Answers of the Defendant, Norddeutscher Lloyd, Schwab, Schwab, Jr. and Von Post	126
Answer of the Allan Line Steamship Company, Limited	147
Answer of Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt-Actien-Gesellschaft	165
Answer of Emil L. Boas	185
Answer of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company	204
Answer of Bryce J. Allan	221
Answer of the Cunard Steamship Company, Limited	228

Pleadings (continued)

	Page
Answer of Charles P. Sumner	254
Answer of the Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company, Limited (Russian-American Line)	258
Answer of Alexander E. Johnson and Max Straus, Copartners doing business under the firm name of A. E. Johnson & Co.	264
Replication of the United States of America to the Answers of the Several Defendants	267
Order to Show Cause	269
Order for Special Examiner	272
Notice of Hearing	275
Order (Nunc pro tunc)	277

Index to Testimony.

WITNESSES CALLED ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER:

	Page
Lawson Sandford:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	291
John Peter Zurmand:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	303
Lawson Sandford, recalled:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	304
Matthew R. Malinowsky:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	370
Samuel Jacob Beckerman:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	375
Deborah Beckerman:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	377
Cross-examination (by Mr. Beecher)	381
Jacob Shapiro:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	381
Emanuel M. Beckerman:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	382
Leon Konciewiz:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	385
John Konciewiz:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	386
Cross-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	386
Veronica Konciewiz:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	387
Helen Wladarsky:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	388
Cross-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	389
Anton Yonuska:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	389
Agata Gutanchute:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	390
Cross-examination (by Mr. Beecher)	391
Frank Yuska:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	392

Testimony (continued)

	Page
Mariona Yuska:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	393
Francisco Kwesclis:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	394
Cross-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	396
Kazimero Kwesclis:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	396
Cross-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	397
Peter Paplawski:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	397
Pablina Paplawski:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	398
Cross-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	400
Lawson Sandford, recalled:
Direct-examination (continued by Mr. Dorr)	402
Anne C. H. Nyland:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	452
Cross-examination (by Mr. Burlingham) ..	492
Re-direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	500
Re-cross examination (by Mr. Burlingham)	548
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Dorr)	549
Paul G. Fourman:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	551
Cross-examination (by Mr. Burlingham) ..	594
Cross-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	610
Cross-examination (by Mr. Beers)	617
Cross-examination (by Mr. Bullowa)	618
Edward O. Thomas:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	641
Cross-examination (by Mr. Burlingham) ..	660
Cross-examination (by Mr. Bullowa)	668
Cross-examination (by Mr. Beers)	672
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Dorr)	673
Emil Lederer:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	693
Cross-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	721
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Dorr)	725

Testimony (continued)

	Page
Max Straus:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	735
Cross-examination (by Mr. Bullowa)	759
Cross-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	767
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Dorr)	776
Oscar L. Richard:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	789
Cross-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	808
C. C. McCain:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Crim)	842
Cross-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	855
Max Straus, recalled:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	882
Cross-examination (by Mr. Bullowa)	896
Oscar L. Richard, recalled:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	902
Samuel Nahmschik:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	903
Jacob Jurgensen:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	904
Oscar L. Richard, recalled:
Direct-examination (continued by Mr. Dorr)	915
Cross-examination (by Mr. Burlingham) ..	929
Cross-examination (by Mr. Bullowa)	931
Cross-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	938
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Guiler) ...	945
Joseph Bruce Ismay:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1002
Arthur Belcher Canty:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1015
Cross-examination (by Mr. Beecher)	1081
De-direct examination (by Mr. Crim)	1097
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Guiler) ...	1104
Re-cross examination (by Mr. Beecher) ...	1106

Testimony (continued)

	Page
Hermann Winter:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Dorr)	1157
Cross-examination (by Mr. Beers)	1408
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1417
WITNESSES CALLED ON BEHALF OF THE DEFENDANTS:
Bryce James Allan:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	1428
Cross-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1431
George Hannah:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	1431
Cross-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1454
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Spooner) ..	1479
Sidney John Lister:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Beers)	1493
Cross-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1520
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Beers)	1555
Sidney John Lister (continued):
Re-cross examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1558
Hans Herman Kellermann:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Beers)	1569
Cross-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1578
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Beers)	1584
Re-cross examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1584
Robert Kerr:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	1588
Cross-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1602
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Spooner) ..	1621
Re-cross examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1624
Direct-examination (continued by Mr. Spooner)	1630
Re-cross examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1635
James C. Barr:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Beers)	1648
Cross-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1655
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Beers)	1659

Testimony (continued)

	Page
Edward A. Drake:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Bullowa)	1662
Cross-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1672
Direct-examination (by Mr. Beers)	1686
Direct-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	1689
Edward O. Thomas, recalled:
Cross-examination (by Mr. Bullowa)	1693
Horace Robert Bowden-Smith:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Shipman)	1721
Cross-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1722
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Shipman) .	1724
Direct-examination (by Mr. Beers)	1725
Re-cross examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1723
Hermann Winter, recalled:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Beers)	1730
Cross-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1741
Paul C. Schnitzler:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Shipman)	1764
Cross-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1771
Philip A. S. Franklin:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Burlingham) ..	1796
Cross-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1814
Isidore Frederick Hellmuth:
Direct-examination (by Mr. Spooner)	1835
Cross-examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1837
Re-direct examination (by Mr. Spooner) ..	1850
Re-cross examination (by Mr. Guiler)	1855

Index to Petitioner's Exhibits.

	Page
1. Subpoena to International Mercantile Marine Co., June 4, 1912	1
2. Copy of Agreement between Hamburg-America Line and Holland-American Line and Others, Jan. 19, 1892	3
3. Agreement "AA" Feb. 5, 1908	49
4. Agreement "L" Eastbound Pool between the N. D. L. V. (North Atlantic Steamship Lines Association), the Transat (French Line) and the American Line, Jan. 1, 1904	83
5. Agreement "G" between Hamburg-American Line, Holland Amerika Line, Norddeutscher Lloyd, Red Star Line and Transat (French Line) 1903 or early part of 1904	90
6. Agreement of Feb. 8, 1909, with Italian Lines relating to the Mediterranean Steerage Traffic	95
7. Special Agreement "B" between Italian Lines and Cunard and Austro-American Lines, Oct., 1908	113
8. Special Agreement "A" between Italian Lines and French, American and White Star Lines, Sept. 12, 1908	116
9A. English Copy of Agreement "N" between N. D. L. V. (North Atlantic Steamship Lines Association), and Austro-Americano, Nov. 13, 1904	120
9B. German Copy of 9A	127
10. Agreement "W" for second-class business Feb. 5, 1908 with Appendix 1, April 28, 1908, and Appendix 2, Aug. 7, 1908	134
11. Agreement "V" for first-class business Feb. 5, 1908, with Appendix 1, April 28, 1908; Appendix 2; Appendix 3,

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

with Amendment to Appendix 1, Aug. 7, 1908 145
12A. English translation of Jan. 29, 1909 and minutes of meeting of the Conference at Paris, Jan. 29, 1909 157
12B. German copy of 12A 182
13. Letter from C. B. Richard & Co., to Lawson Sandford, Feb. 28, 1907 208
14 for Identification. Letter from O. L. Richard to S. E. Morse Sept. 25, 1906 209
15-16-17-18 for Identification. Letter Books of the New York office of the Holland-American Line 210, 211, 212, 213
19. Letter to the Holland-Amerika Line New York from the Holland-Amerika Line, June 21, 1904 214
20. Circular containing Rules of the North Atlantic Conference 1906 216
21. Circular No. 12 Third Series Continental Conference, dated New York June 1, 1903 222
22. Continental Conference Circular of August 15, 1905 227
23. Minutes of Meeting No. 3 of the North Atlantic Passenger Conference at New York, 1896 232
24. Letter of Feb. 7, 1908, in letterpress copy book of Holland Amerika Line .. 244
25 for Identification. Minutes of the American Atlantic Conference and of the Continental Conference 247
26. Minutes of the Mediterranean Conference 248
27. Letter of May 28, 1908 to Holland Amerika Line, Rotterdam from Holland Amerika Line, New York 272
28. Cablegram of June 17, 1909, addressed "Tranconfer" 274

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
29. Cablegram of Sept. 17, 1909, addressed "Tranconfer," signed "Secretary" ...	275
30. Letter of May 24, 1909, from letter book of Holland Amerika Line with initials "A. G."	275
31. Cablegram of June 9, 1909	276
32. Cablegram addressed "Tranconfer" signed "Secretair," Aug. 3, 1909	276
33. Copy of letter from Adrian Gips to Holland-American Line, Aug. 3, 1909	277
34. Original letter from Holland-American Line, Home Office, to Holland-American Line, New York, Aug. 12, 1909 ..	278
35. Copy of letter of April 27, 1909, from Adrian Gips	279
36. Original letter of reply of May 4, 1909 ..	280
37. Original letter from Holland-American Line, Rotterdam, to Holland-American Line, New York, Mar. 29, 1909	281
38. Original letter from Holland-American Line, Rotterdam to Holland-American Line, New York, May 25, 1909	283
39. Letter from Holland-American Line, Rotterdam, to New York Office, Aug. 4, 1909	284
40. Letter from Holland-American Line, Rotterdam to New York Office, Aug. 31, 1908	285
41. Cablegram of 1908 relating to Russian East Asiatic Company	285
42. Copy of letter from Adrian Gips to the Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, Aug. 28, 1908	286
43. Circular of Sept. 1, 1908, of Continental Conference advising membership of Russian-American Line	287
44. Letter of Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam to New York Office, June 19, 1908	288

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
45	for Identification. Map of Passenger Associations of America	289
46.	Agreement of Steamship Lines with Central Passenger Association, Dec. 3, 1908	290
47.	Letter from Lawson Sandford to H. A. Eschenburg, Nov. 12, 1908	293
48.	Proceedings of Meeting between Steamship Lines and Western Passenger Association, Feb. 25, 1909	298
49.	Letter from Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, to New York Office, Nov. 16, 1909	307
50.	Letter from Holland-Amerika Line to New York Office, May 28, 1907	313
51.	Original letter from Holland-Amerika Line to New York Office, July 6, 1906	315
52.	Ticket stub book of the Uranium Steamship Company	319
53.	Second ticket stub book of the Uranium Line	329
54.	Prepaid ticket bought by S. J. Beckerman on the N. W. T. L. from Rotterdam to New York, 1910	335
55.	Receipt for 54 (missing)	337
56.	Letter from Debora Beckerman to S. J. Beckerman	339
57.	Uranium Line ticket of Helena Waldarsky and telegram	340
58.	Receipt for ticket of Francisco Kwesclis over Holland-Amerika Line	345
59.	Minutes of Meeting of Transatlantic Passenger Conferences with Western Passenger Association, New York, Nov. 10 and 11, 1909	346
60.	Westbound agreement between Steamship Lines and Western Passenger Association, entitled "Appendix A," containing Amendments up to Jan. 26, 1905	374

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

61. Minute No. 184, American Atlantic Conference, Nov. 9, 1909 385
62. Minutes 1, 2 and 4 of American Atlantic Conference, June 23, 1908 388
63. Minutes 9, 10, 16 to 28 inclusive, American Atlantic Conference, July 2, 1908 391
64. Minutes 30 and 32 American Atlantic Conference, July 23, 1908 395
65. Minutes 35, 38, 40, 44 American Atlantic Conference, July 30, 1908 398
66. Minutes 49, 51, 52, 54, 59, 62, 63, 66 to 68 inclusive, American Atlantic Conference, Aug. 13, 1908 400
67. Minutes 70, 80 to 87 inclusive, American Atlantic Conference, Sept. 3, 1908 403
68. Minute No. 92, American Atlantic Conference, Sept. 17, 1908 405
69. Minutes 99, 109 to 111 inclusive, American Atlantic Conference, Oct. 15, 1908 406
70. Minutes 113, 118 and 121, American Atlantic Conference, Nov. 19, 1908 408
71. Minute 128, American Atlantic Conference, Jan. 7, 1909 410
72. Minutes 134 and 136 American Atlantic Conference, Mar. 19, 1909 411
73. Minute 138, American Atlantic Conference, April 2, 1909 414
74. Minutes 139, 140 and 143, American Atlantic Conference, April 15, 1909 415
75. Minute No. 167, American Atlantic Conference, June 3, 1909 418
76. Minutes 184 to 189 inclusive, American Atlantic Conference, Nov. 9, 1909 419
77. Minute 1067, Continental Conference, Oct. 7, 1907 424
78. Minutes 1053, 1054 and 1059, Continental Conference, Oct. 17, 1907 425

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

79. Minutes 1074, 1075, 1076 and 1083, Continental Conference, Jan. 21, 1908 427
80. Minutes 1319 to 1321 inclusive, Continental Conference, Sept. 3, 1908 428
81. Letter from Holland-America Line, Home Office to New York Office, May 29, 1906 430
82. Copies and originals of correspondence between Lawson Sandford and Schiavone 431
83. Letter from Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, to Holland-Amerika Line, New York, April 26, 1909 438
84. Circular of Hamburg-American Line, Jan. 8, 1910 439
85. Circular of Hamburg-America Line, Jan. 15, 1910, rates of Graf Waldersee ... 440
86. Circular of Hamburg-American Line, Jan. 24, 1910 442
87. Circular of Hamburg-American Line for sailing of "President Lincoln," Jan. 29, 1910 443
88. Circular of Red Star Line, New York-Antwerp Service, Jan. 18, 1910 445
89. Circular of Hamburg-America Line, Jan. 31, 1910 446
90. Circular of Hamburg-American Line, regarding sailing of "President Grant," Feb. 5, 1908 447
91 to 93. Letters from Holland-Amerika Line, New York to Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, with initial "N," and dated as follows:
    91. June 5, 1908 449
    92. June 9, 1908 451
    93. June 12, 1908 452

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

94. Letter from Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, to Holland-Amerika Line, New York, June 23, 1908 452

95 to 99. Copies of letters from Holland-Amerika Line, New York, to Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, dated as follows:

95. June 26, 1906 453
96. July 17, 1908 455
97. July 20, 1908 456
98. July 24, 1908 457
99. Aug. 18, 1908 458

100. Original letter from Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, to Holland-Amerika Line, New York, July 29, 1908 459

101 to 107. Copies of letters from Holland-Amerika Line, New York, to Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, dated as follows:

101. Aug. 21, 1908 460
102. Sept. 4, 1908 461
103. Oct. 16, 1908 462
104. Mar. 29, 1909 463
105. Mar. 16, 1909 .....
106. Apr. 16, 1909 464
107. Apr. 27, 1909 467

108. Same as Exhibit No. 83 468

109 to 118. Copies of letters from Holland-Amerika Line, New York, to Holland-America Line, Rotterdam, dated as follows:

109. May 14, 1909 468
110. Nov. 12, 1901 470
111. May 20, 1909 471
112. May 24, 1909 472
113. June 4, 1909 473
114. June 11, 1909 474

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

115. June 18, 1909 475
116. June 25, 1909 476
117. July 9, 1909 477
118. July 23, 1909 478
119. Original letter from Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, to Holland-Amerika Line, New York, July 20, 1909 479
120 to 124. Copies of letters from Holland-Amerika Line, New York, to Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, dated as follows:
120. Aug. 3, 1909 479
121. Aug. 17, 1909 480
122. Aug. 25, 1909 481
123. Sept. 23, 1909 481
124. Oct. 8, 1909 482
125. Original letter from Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, to Holland-Amerika Line, New York, Oct. 6, 1909 483
126. Copy of letter from Holland-Amerika Line, New York, to Holland Amerika Line, Rotterdam, Nov. 5. 1909 483
127. Original letter from Holland-America Line, Rotterdam, to Holland-Amerika Line, New York, Oct. 25, 1909 484
128 and 129. Copies of letters from Holland-Amerika Line, New York, to Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, dated as follows:
128. June 22, 1906 485
129. June 30, 1906 486
130. Original letter from Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, to Holland-Amerika Line, New York, July 3, 1906 487
131 to 136. Copies of letters from Holland-Amerika Line, New York to Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, dated as follows:

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

131. July 12, 1906 489
132. July 17, 1906 490
133. Nov. 5, 1906 492
134. May 10, 1907 493
135. June 21, 1907 495
136. Sept. 13, 1907 497

137 to 139. Original letters from Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, to Holland-Amerika Line, New York, dated as follows:

137. Feb. 22, 1908 500
138. Mar. 23, 1908 501
139. Mar. 25, 1908 502

140. Circular of Continental Conference, Dec. 27, 1906 504

141. Circular of Continental Conference Mar. 2, 1907 505

142 for Identification. Minutes of Meetings of American Atlantic Conference, from Jan. 7, 1909, to June 7, 1909 505

143 for Identification. Agreement between Transatlantic Steamship Lines and Rail and Transportation Companies, covering Westbound steerage business, January 26, 1905 505

144 for Identification. Proceedings of Joint Meeting of the Steamship Lines and the Western Passenger Association and Others, Feb. 25, 1909 505

145 for Identification. Circular letters to the Steamship Lines re Eastbound Steamship Passenger Traffic over Central Passenger Association Railroads, Oct. 2, 1908 505

146 for Identification. Circular letter to the Steamship Lines re Offer of Canadian Pacific Railway covering Eastbound

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
	Steamship Passenger Traffic via Port Arthur, Ont., Feb. 5, 1909	505
147	for Identification. Circular letter to the Steamship Lines concerning Commercial Allowance for Westbound Immigrant Business on Trunk Line "local territory," May 8, 1912	505
148	for Identification. American Atlantic Conference Joint Proceedings No. 10, Jan. 7, 1910	506
149	for Identification. Rates of Railroad Fare between points in Germany, Austria, Switzerland, etc., and Bremen, for April 1911	506
150	for Identification. Rates of Railroad Fare between points in Germany, Austria, Switzerland, etc., and Bremen for April, 1909	506
151.	European Inland Tariff—Russian East Asiatic Company	506
152	for Identification. European Inland Railroad Tariff—Russian American Line, April, 1911	532
153	for Identification. European Inland Railroad Tariff—Russian American Line, Sept., 1911	532
154.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1906	533
155.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1907	607
156.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1908	683
157.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1909	770
158.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1910	856
159.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1911	948
160	for Identification. Minutes of the American Atlantic Conference for 1908	1042
161	for Identification. Minutes of Continental Conference for 1908, including Nos. 172, 173 and 174	1042

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

162. Copy of letter from Holland American Line, New York to the Home Office re Rule 9, Sept. 7, 1906 1043
163. Steerage and Third Cabin Circular, No. 1, of Hamburg-American Line, Jan. 3, 1910 1045
164. Circular of Northwest Transport Line re Sailing of S. S. Uranium on Jan. 15, 1910 1054
165. Circular of Northwest Transport Line re Sailing of S. S. Uranium on Jan. 18, 1910 1056
166. Polish Circular of North German Lloyd re Sailing of S. S. Neckar, Jan. 18 1057
167. Announcement of sailing of S. S. Napolitan Prince, Jan. 29, 1910 1057
168. Circular of Northwest Transport Line advertising rate of $22 for S. S. Napolitan Prince, Jan. 20, 1910 1060
169. European Inland Railroad Tariff from Rotterdam issued by Uranium Steamship Company 1061
170. Circular of Northwest Transport Line reducing rate for sailing of S. S. Sicilian Prince, Feb. 5, 1910, to $23 1084
171. Circular of Northwest Transport Line advertising sailing of S. S. Volturno on April 2, 1910 1085
172. Circular of White Star Line reducing rate on S. S. Laurentic for April 2, 1910, to $27 1086
173. Circular of Northwest Transport Line announcing change of sailing of S. S. Volturno to April 9, 1910, at a $28 rate 1087
174. Circular of White Star Line reducing rate on S. S. Adriatic, April 9, to $27 1088

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

175. Circular of Northwest Transport Line re sailing of S. S. Sicilian Prince at $28, March 19, 1910 1089
176. Circular of North German Lloyd re sailing of S. S. Darmstadt on Mar. 19, at $27 steerage rate 1090
177. Circular of Northwest Transport Line re sailing of S. S. Uranium on Dec. 4 ... 1091
178. Circular of Russian-American Line announcing change in rates for sailing of S. S. Lituania on Dec. 4, 1909 1094
179. Circular of Northwest Transport Line advertising sailing of S. S. Volturno at $25 rate on Nov. 20, 1909 1095
180. Circular of Russian-American Line advertising reduction in rates on S. S. Estonia Nov. 20, 1909 1096
181. Letter to Vesely and Co. from F. C. Donald, July 26, 1909 1097
182. Ticket and receipt of Joseph Marusewski, marked "Zuruck Ottlochin," July 10, 1911, signed "Arthur Oelsner" ... 1098
183. Circular of Red Star Line advertising sailing of S. S. Lapland Jan. 22, at $22 rate 1102
184. Circular of Red Star Line issued Jan. 1, 1910, containing the advertised third-class rates 1103
185 to 201. Circulars of Hamburg-American Line announcing the sailing of the following ships on the dates named:
    185. Aug. 9, 1910 1109
    186. Oct. 5, 1909, S. S. Graf Waldersee 1111
    187. Mar. 25, 1908, S. S. Pretoria.. 1112
    188. Oct. 6, 1909, S. S. Graf Waldersee 1114

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

189. Jan. 8, 1910, S. S. Graf Waldersee 1115
190. Jan. 24, 1910, S. S. President Lincoln 1116
191. Jan. 31, 1910, S. S. President Grant 1117
192. Nov. 17, 1910, S. S. Amerika.. 1118
193. Dec. 16, 1910, S. S. Pennsylvania 1119
194. Dec. 30, 1910, S. S. Amerika .. 1120
195. Feb. 24, 1911, S. S. Amerika .. 1121
196. Mar. 11, 1911, S. S. Kaiserin Auguste Victoria 1122
197. May 20, 1911, S. S. Kaiserin Auguste Victoria 1123
198. Dec. 18, 1911, S. S. President Lincoln 1124
199. Dec. 30, 1911, S. S. Amerika .. 1125
200. May 18, 1912, S. S. Pennsylvania 1126
201. June 14, 1912, S. S. Cleveland 1127
202 to 204. European Railroad Tariffs—Hamburg-American Line, dated as follows:
202. May, 1909 1128
203. Sept., 1901 (for identification) 1142
204. April, 1910 (for identification) 1162
205. European Railroad Tariff—Holland-America Line, July, 1911 (for identification) 1176
206. Circulars marked for identification 1190
207 for Identification. G. J. Minutes (p. 39) Lederer testimony Paper with figures "39" in upper corner 1190
208 for Identification. Correspondence and papers produced by Max Straus relating

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
	to Opposition steamers and the Relations of the Russian-East Asiatic Steamship Companies with the Conference	1190
209.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1899	1191
210.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1901	1248
211.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1902	1312
212.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1903	1376
213.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1904	1450
214.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1905	1520
215.	Transatlantic Passenger Movement, 1900	1596
216	for Identification. Minutes of Meetings No. 145, January 17, 1907, to No. 166, May 12, 1908, of Standing Complaint Committee, Continental Conference ..	1657
217.	North Atlantic Passenger Conference Circular No. 1—Rules and Regulations relating to Steerage Passengers, July ger Conference, April 17, 1907	1668
218.	Circular No. 3, North Atlantic Passenger Conference to all agents, New York, May 1, 1906	1662
219.	Circular No. 4, North Atlantic Passenger Conference, April 17, 1907	1658
220.	Circular No. 5, North Atlantic Fassenger Conference, May 6, 1908	1669
221.	Circular No. 6, North Atlantic Passenger Conference, Sept. 2, 1910	1670
222A-222T.	Circulars Nos. 1 to 21 third series, Continental Conference, ranging from April 14, 1887 to Feb. 9, 1909...	1671
223.	Minutes of Meeting of North Atlantic Passenger Conference, held in New York, April 23, 1896	1723
224.	Correspondence between Lawson Sandford, H. A. Eschenburg and H. Clausenius and Co. re Zimmer, Bock & Co.	1736

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
225	for Identification. Minutes of Meetings of the Mediterranean Conference held in New York in 1907, 1908 and 1909 (Same as Exhibit 142)	1744
226.	Arrangements with Trunk Lines between Jan. 1, 1908, and May 1, 1912, East and Westbound. Also notices to Agents and various letters referring to commercial allowances	1744
227	for Identification. Documents showing changes in rates between June 11, 1907, and Dec. 28, 1911	1765
227A.	Letter from Copenhagen, 15 Sept., 1908, addressed "A. E. Johnson & Co.," signed "Capt. Schmiegelow" (read into Testimony on page 883)	1765
228.	Letter from the Russian-East Asiatic Steamship Co. to A. E. Johnson and Co., Aug. 27, 1908	1766
229.	Copy of cablegram to Russian-East Asiatic Steamship Co. from A. E. Johnson and Co., Aug. 27, 1908	1767
230.	Letter to A. E. Johnson and Co. from Russian-East Asiatic Steamship Co. Sept. 1, 1908	1768
231.	Copy of cablegram to A. E. Johnson and Co. from Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co., Sept. 2, 1908	1769
232.	Letter to A. E. Johnson and Co. from Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co., Sept. 2, 1908	1770
233.	Letter to A. E. Johnson and Co. from Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co., Sept. 5, 1908	1771
234.	Copy of Cablegram from Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co. to Maxolaf, N. Y., Sept. 2, 1908	1772

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
235. Cablegram to Maxolaf, N. Y., from Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co., Dec. 7, 1908	1773
236. No exhibit.
237 for Identification. Large number of slips showing changes in third-class rates	1773
238 for Identification. Circulars of Italian Lines	1773
239. Statement of gross income of Lloyd Italiano for 1910	1774
240 for Identification. Official report of Lloyd Italiano for 1911	1775
241. Return of Annual Net Income of Lloyd Italiano for 1910	1776
242. Return of Annual Net Income of Lloyd Italiano for 1911	1781
243. Copy of letter from Adrian Gips to Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, May 13, 1908	1788
244 for Identification. Press copy book No. 13 of A. E. Johnson and Co.	1789
245 for Identification. Press copy book No. 8 of A. E. Johnson and Co.	1789
246 for Identification. Letterpress copy book No. 12 of A. E. Johnson and Co.	1789
247 for Identification. Letterpress copy book with letters from May 29, 1907 to Dec. 24, 1907	1789
248 for Identification. Letterpress copy book with letters from June 3, 1907 to July, 1907	1789
249 for Identification. Letterpress copy book with letters from July 1, 1907 to Aug. 1907	1789
250. for Identification. Letterpress copy book with letters from Aug. 7, 1907 to Sept 10, 1907	1790

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
251	for Identification. Russian-East Asiatic Co. letterpress copybook with letters from May 14, 1907 to June 22, 1911 ..	1790
252	for Identification. Russian-East Asiatic Co. letterpress copy book with letters from Sept. 10, 1907 to Oct. 1, 1907 ...	1790
253	for Identification. Russian-East Asiatic Co. letterpress copy book with letters from Nov. 21, 1907 to Dec 24, 1907..	1790
254	for Identification. Russian-East Asiatic Co. letterpress copy book with letters from Oct. 24, 1907 to Nov. 21, 1907..	1790
255	for Identification. Russian-East Asiatic Co. letterpress copy book with letters from Dec. 26, 1907 to Jan. 20, 1908..	1791
256	for Identification. Letterpress copy book No. 14 with letters from June, 1908 to July 14, 1908	1791
257	for Identification. Letterpress copy book with letters from Feb. 25, 1908 to Mar. 20. 1908	1791
258	for Identification. Letterpress copy book No. 11 with letters from April 16, 1908 to May 12, 1908	1791
259	for Identification. Letterpress copy book No. 15 with letters from July 15, 1908 to Aug. 5, 1908	1791
260	for Identification. Letters of White Star Line as follows: Liverpool to New York, Jan. 18, 1908; New York to Liverpool, Feb. 17, 1908; New York to Liverpool, Feb. 21, 1908; Liverpool to New York, Feb. 12, 1908; Liverpool to New York, Feb. 15, 1908; Liverpool to New York, Feb. 19, 1908	1791
261 to 268.	Original letters from Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam, to Holland-Amerika Line, New York:

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

261. Oct. 9, 1908 1792
262. Oct. 16, 1908, with annexed copy of letter of French Line to Holland-America Line, Oct. 15, 1908 1793
263. April 7, 1909 1794
264. Nov. 6, 1900 1796
265. Aug. 25, 1899 1797
266. Aug. 31, 1906 1805
267. April 8, 1908 1806
268. May 8, 1908 1808

269 to 314. Letterbook copies of letters from Holland-Amerika Line, New York to Holland-Amerika Line, Rotterdam as follows:

269. June 26, 1908 1809
270. Sept. 18, 1908 1811
271. Jan. 26, 1909 1812
272. Feb. 9, 1909 1814
273. Nov. 18, 1909 1817
274. Mar. 26, 1909 1819
275. April 8, 1909 1821
276. July 30, 1909 1822
277. Oct. 8, 1909 1824
278. Nov. 12, 1909 1826
279. Jan. 18, 1910 1829
280. Nov. 10, 1905 1831
281. Dec. 5, 1905 1833
282. Dec. 14, 1905 1834
283. Dec. 27, 1905 1836
284. Feb. 9, 1906 1838
285. Feb. 16, 1906 1840
286. May 25, 1906 1842
287. Sept. 7, 1906 1843
288. Oct. 5, 1906 1845
289. Nov. 22, 1906, No. 234 1847
290. Nov. 22, 1906, No. 236 1848

25

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
291.	Dec. 7, 1906	1849
292.	Feb. 11, 1907	1851
293.	Mar. 8, 1907	1853
294.	Sept. 20, 1907	1855
295.	Oct. 28, 1907	1859
296.	Nov. 15, 1907	1861
297.	Dec. 20, 1907	1862
298.	Mar. 25, 1908	1863
299.	April 3, 1908	1866
300.	April 14, 1908	1868
301.	April 27, 1908	1870
302.	April 28, 1908	1871
303.	May 6, 1908	1872
304.	May 22, 1908	1874
305.	Feb. 3, 1899	1877
306.	Mar. 31, 1899, No. 257	1879
307.	Mar 31, 1899, No 261	1881
308.	Oct. 3, 1899	1885
309.	Nov. 3, 1899	1887
310.	Nov. 20, 1900	1891
311.	Nov. 12, 1901	1893
312.	Dec. 27, 1901	1894
313.	July 25, 1902	1896
314.	Jan. 24, 1905	1897
315	for Identification. Memorandum of Rates in operation for the Scandinavian and Finnish Business Marked "A1" Liverpool, July 11, 1893, (in evidence, page 2602)	1899
316	for Identification. North Atlantic Passenger Conference. Revised regulations for Agents for steerage and second cabin business, marked "A2," July 1, 1898	1899
317	for Identification. Agreement between the undersigned representatives of the Hamburg-American Packet Co., North

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
	German Lloyd and other lines including the Cunard marked "B1" Liverpool, Sept. 10, 1895, (in evidence, p. 2604)	1899
318	for Identification. Continental Business Agreement between the following British Lines, viz: Allan and Allan State and other lines including Cunard, marked "B2," (in evidence, p. 2608) ..	1899
319	for Identification. British Business. Agreement between the following British Lines namely Allan and Allan State and other Lines including the Cunard marked "B3" Liverpool, Sept. 10, 1898, (in evidence, p. 2611)	1899
320	for Identification. Appendix to Minute 217, Scandinavian and Finnish Steerage Passenger Business including Iceland, marked "B4," (in evidence, p. 2614)	1899
321	for Identification. Agreement in regard to the Scandinavian and Finland Steerage Passenger Business to be enforced on and from date hereof, marked "B4" Sept. 10, 1895	1899
322	for Identification. Continental Business Agreement between the undersigned representatives of the Hamburg-Amerika Lines and other Lines including the Cunard, marked "C1" London, June, 1908	1899
323	for Identification. Continental Business Agreement between the following British Lines namely: Allan and Allan State and other lines including the Cunard, marked "C2" Liverpool, 15 June, 1898, (in evidence, p. 2621) ...	1899

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
324	for Identification. British Business (Steerage Westbound). Headed "Agreement between the following British Lines, viz: Allan and Allan State and other Lines including Cunard," marked "C3," July 1, 1898, (in evidence, p. 2626)	1899
325	for Identification. Agreement of Britsh Lines re Scandinavian and Finnish Steerage Passenger Business including Iceland," marked "C4" Liverpool, June 15, 1898, (in evidence, p. 2637) .	1899
326	for Identification. Agreement of British Lines re "British Business, Third Class" marked "D1" Liverpool, Jan. 14, 1905, (in evidence, p. 2647)	1899
327	for Identification. "Amended Scandinavian Third Class Business—To Agents" marked "D2" Liverpool, Jan 21, 1905, (in evidence, p. 2659)	1899
328	for Identification. "Amended Finnish Third Class Business," addressed to agents and marked "D3," Liverpool Jan. 21, 1905 (in evidence, p. 2664) ..	1899
329	for Identification. "Agreement AA.", between the Allan Line Steamship Co. Ltd., and other lines including the Cunard with Appendices 1, 2, 3 and 4 marked "E1" Feb. 5, 1908.	1899
330	for Identification. "Agreement Z" between the Hamburg-American and other Lines including Cunard and Allan and Donaldson Lines with Appendices 1, 2, and 3, marked "E2," Feb. 5, 1908, (in evidence, p. 2667)	1899

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

331 for Identification. "Agreement BB" between the Allan Line Steamship Co. Ltd. and other lines, including Cunard and Russian Eastasiatic Steamship Co., marked "E3," and dated Jena, Dec. 10, 1908, Mar. 31, 1908, (in evidence, p. 2682) 1899

332 for Identification. Agreement of British Lines entitled "Agreement on British Westbound Third Class Business." Marked "F1," Liverpool May 23, 1908 Revised up to Aug. 15, 1910, (in evidence, p. 2697) 1899

333 for Identification. Agreement of British Lines, headed "Scandinavian and Finnish Third Class Passenger Business (including Iceland)." Marked "F2" Liverpool Feb. 20, 1908 (in evidence, p. 2713) 1899

334 to 336. Letters from Ismay, Imrie & Co. to White Star Line, New York, dated as follows:

334. Mar. 7, 1908 1899
335. " 28, 1908 1901
336. " 14, 1908 1903

337. Letter from White Star Line to Ismay, Imrie & Co. Liverpool, Mar, 24, 1908. 1904

338. Copy of letter from Ismay, Imrie & Co. to Lee & Franklin, New York, Mar. 24, 1908 1905

339 and 340. Letters from Ismay, Imrie & Co. to White Star Line, New York, dated as follows:

339. Mar. 26, 1908 1907
340. " 28, 1908 1908

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

341. Copy of letter from White Star Line, New York, to Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, April 7, 1908 1909

342 to 344. Letters from Ismay, Imrie & Co., to White Star Line, New York, dated as follows:

342. April 24, 1908 1910

343. " 8, 1908 1911

344. " 8, 1908 1912

345. Copy of letter from White Star Line, New York, to Ismay, Imrie & Co., April 3, 1908 1915

346. Letter from Ismay, Imrie & Co., to White Star Line, New York, April 15, 1908 and also copy of cablegram from Secretary Peters at Jena to Ismay, Imrie & Co., March 23, 1908 1918

347. Letters from White Star Line, Liverpool, to White Star Line, New York, April 25, 1908 1922

348. Copy of letter of White Star Line, New York, to Ismay, Imrie & Co., April 24, 1908 1923

349. Letter from Ismay, Imrie & Co., to White Star Line, New York, April 18, 1908.. 1926

350. Copy of letter to the Secretary of the North Atlantic Passenger Conference, James Street, Liverpool, April 15, 1908 1928

351. Copy of letter from White Star Line, New York, to Ismay, Imrie & Co., April 28, 1908 1929

352. Letter from Ismay, Imrie & Co., to White Star Line, New York, May 2, 1908 1931

353 to 356. Copies of letter from Red Star Line, New York, to Red Star Line, Antwerp, dated as follows:

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

353. March 20, 1908 1933
354. " 24, 1908 1934
355. " 27, 1908 1936
356. April 7, 1908..... 1937
357 and 358. Letters from the Red Star Line, Antwerp to Red Star Line, New York, dated as follows:
357. May 1, 1908 1938
358. March 26, 1908 1939
359 and 360. Copies of letters from Red Star Line, New York, to Red Star Line, Antwerp, dated as follows:
359. May 29, 1908 1940
360. May 28, 1908 1941
361. Letter from Red Star Line, Antwerp, to Red Star Line, New York, May 26, 1908, with annexed circular letter dated May 25, 1908 1943
362. Copy of letter from Red Star Line, New York, to Red Star Line, Antwerp, June 30, 1908 1947
363. Letter from Red Star Line, Antwerp, to Red Star Line, New York, June 19, 1908 1948
364 to 366. Copies of letters from Red Star Line, New York, to Red Star Line, Antwerp, dated as follows:
364. June 19, 1908 1949
365. June 16, 1908 1950
366. June 9, 1908 1951
367. Letter from Red Star Line, Antwerp, to Red Star Line, New York, June 9, 1908 1953
368 to 381. Copies of letters from Red Star Line, New York, to Red Star Line, Antwerp, dated as follows:
368. June 3, 1908 1954

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

369. June 14, 1908 1956
370. July 10, 1908 1957
371. July 7, 1908 1958
372. July 3, 1908 1960
373. Aug. 18, 1908, with letter to Mr. Farley and original letter from Red Star Line, New York, to Red Star Line, Antwerp, dated Aug. 3, 1908, attached 1961
374. Aug. 18, 1908 1963
375. Aug. 7, 1908 1964
376. Aug. 4, 1908 1966
377. May 12, 1908 1967
378. June 26, 1908 1969
379. June 23, 1908 1970
380. June 19, 1908 1971
381. Aug. 14, 1908 1972

382 to 385. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co., to the Russian-American Line, dated as follows:

382. March 17, 1909 1974
383. March 13, 1909 1976
384. March 11, 1909 1977
385. March 12, 1909 1978

386. Letter from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., Feb. 26, 1909... 1979

387 to 390. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co., to the Russian-American Line:

387. Feb. 22, 1909 1980
388. No exhibit 1980
389. Feb. 20, 1909 1981
390. Feb. 19, 1909 1982

391 to 395. Letters from the Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

391. Feb. 9, 1909 1983
392. Feb. 5, 1909 1984
393. Feb. 2, 1909 1985
394. Jan. 30, 1909 1986
395. Dec. 31, 1908 1987

396 to 403. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co., to the Russian-American Line, dated as follows:

396. Feb. 11, 1909 1988
397. Feb. 11, 1909 1989
398. Feb. 11, 1909 1990
399. Feb. 11, 1909 1990
400. Feb. 10, 1909 1991
401. Feb. 10, 1909 1992
402. Feb. 10, 1909 1993
403. Feb. 10, 1909 1994

404 to 406. Letters from the Russian American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:

404. Jan. 29, 1909 1994
405. Jan. 29, 1909 1995
406. Jan. 26, 1909 1997

407. Copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to the Russian-American Line, Feb. 9, 1909 1999

408 and 409. Letters from the Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated at Libau as follows:

408. Jan. 22, 1909 2000
409. Jan. 21, 1909 2001

410 to 412. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co., to the Russian-American Line, dated as follows:

410. Feb. 2, 1909 2002
411. Jan. 30, 1909 2003
412. Jan. 28, 1909 2004

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

413 and 414. Letters from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:
413. Jan 18, 1909 2005
414. Jan. 11, 1909 2006
415. Letter marked "S.S. Estonia" giving the capacity of the "Estonia" for passengers, dated New York, Jan. 25, 1909. 2007
416. Letter from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated Libau July 28, 1909 (omitted) 2007
417. Copy of cablegram to Johnson, New York, dated Copenhagen, Sept. 12, 1908 2008
418. Letter from Russian-American East Asiatic Co. Ltd., to A. E. Johnson & Co., Sept. 12, 1908 2009
419. Copy of cablegram from Johnson to Copenhagen, undated 2010
420. Cablegram from Russian East Asiatic Co. to Johnson, Sept. 4, 1908..... 2010
421. Copy of cablegram to Johnson from Russian East Asiatic Co. Ltd., dated Copenhagen, Sept. 29, 1908 2011
422. Copy of letter to A. E. Johnson & Co. from Russian East Asiatic Co. Ltd., Aug. 29, 1908 (omitted) 2011
423. Letter from Russian East Asiatic Co. Ltd. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated Copenhagen, Sept. 4, 1908 2012
424. Copy of cablegram from Russian East Asiatic Co. Ltd., to Johnson, Sept. 5, 1908 2013
425. Copy of cablegram from Russian East Asiatic Co. Ltd., to Johnson, Sept. 2, 1908 2014

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

426 to 428. Letters from the Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated at Libau as follows:

426. Sept. 1, 1910 2015

427. June 16, 1909 2017

428. June 16, 1909 2018

429. Letter from Russian East Asiatic Co. Ltd. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated Copenhagen, Sept. 15, 1908 2019

430. Copy of cablegram to Russian-East Asiatic Co., from Johnson, undated... 2020

431. Copy of cablegram to Russian-East Asiatic Co. from Johnson, undated.. 2021

432. Copy of cablegram to Johnson from Russian-East Asiatic Co. Ltd., dated Copenhagen, Sept. 1, 1908 2021

433. Letter from Russian-East Asiatic Co. Ltd., to A. E. Johnson & Co., Sept. 3, 1908, with two copies of letters annexed 2022

434. Letter from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated Libau, May 31, 1912, with copy of cablegram annexed 2024

435. Letter from Russian-East Asiatic Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated Copenhagen, Sept. 22, 1908 2025

436. Letter from Russian-East Asiatic Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated Copenhagen, Sept. 30, 1908 2026

437. Cablegram from Libau to A. E. Johnson & Co., Sept. 20, 1908 2027

438. Cablegram from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian-East Asiatic Co., undated.... 2027

439. Cablegram from Copenhagen to A. E. Johnson & Co., Aug. 25, 1908 2028

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

440. Cablegram from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian-East Asiatic Co., undated. 2029

441 to 444. Letters from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated at Libau as follows:

441. Aug. 13, 1909 2030

442. Aug. 10, 1909 2032

443. Aug. 9, 1909 2033

444. Sept. 3, 1909, with copy of letter dated Sept. 3, 1909, annexed. 2034

445. Copy of letter to Russian-American Line Libau, Oct. 11, 1909 2035

446. Copy of cablegram to Maxolaf, New York, Aug. 18, 1909 2037

447. Letter from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., Mar. 28, 1909.. 2038

448. Copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian-East Asiatic Co., Copenhagen, June 11, 1909 2039

449. Copy of cablegram from A. E. Johnson & Co., to Orient, Copenhagen, undated. 2040

450. Copy of telegram signed "Johnson" dated June, 1908 2040

451. Copy of letter to Russian-East Asiatic Co. from A. E. Johnson & Co., June 13, 1908 2041

452. Copy of cablegram from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Orient, Copenhagen, undated. 2043

453 to 455. Copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co., to the Russian-East Asiatic Co., dated as follows:

453. July 18, 1908 2043

454. June 9, 1908 2044

455. June 12, 1908 2045

456. Letter from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., Aug. 18, 1909.. 2048

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

457 to 468. Copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co., to Russian-American Line, Libau, dated as follows:

457. Nov. 30, 1910 2049
458. Nov. 15, 1910 2049
459. Nov. 9, 1910 2050
460. Nov. 4, 1910 2051
461. Nov. 1, 1910 2054
462. Mar. 18, 1909 2055
463. Mar. 19, 1909 2056
464 Mar. 22, 1909 (omitted) 2056
465. Mar. 26, 1909 (omitted) 2056
466. Mar. 25, 1909 2057
467. Mar. 23, 1909 2058
468. Mar. 23, 1909 2059

469 to 471. Original letters from the Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:

469. Mar. 9, 1909 2060
470. Mar. 27, 1909 2061
471. Mar. 29, 1909 2062

472. Statement dated April 1, 1909, containing measurements of the "Lituania".. 2063

473 to 479. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to the Russian-American Line, dated as follows:

473. April 1, 1909 2064
474. April 12, 1909 2065
475. April 14, 1909 2065
476. April 16, 1909 2066
477. April 16, 1909 2067
478. April 20, 1909 2068
479. April 23, 1909 2069

480. Original statement of Emigrant Railway Fares, dated Mar. 21, 1909 2070

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

481 to 482. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian-American Line dated as follows:
481. April 27, 1909 2071
482. April 29, 1909 2072
483. Copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Ruys & Co., Dec. 12, 1908..... 2072
484 and 485. Letters from Ruys & Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:
484. Dec. 12, 1908 2073
485. Jan. 14, 1909 2074
486 and 487. Copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Ruys & Co., dated as follows:
486. Feb. 18, 1909 2075
487. April 16, 1909 2075
488. Copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to the Russian-American Line, Nov. 4, 1908 2076
489. Letter from Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., Oct. 26, 1908 2078
490. Copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian-American Line, Nov. 9, 1908 2079
491 and 492. Original letters from Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:
491. Oct. 30, 1908 2080
492. Nov. 3, 1908 2080
493 to 497. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian-American Line, dated as follows:
493. Nov. 21, 1908 2081
494. Sept. 18, 1909 2082
495. Sept. 14, 1909 (omitted) 2083

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

496. Sept. 8, 1909 2083
497. Sept. 8, 1909 2084
498. Letter from Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., Sept. 1, 1909 2085
499 to 504. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian-American Line, dated as follows:
499. Sept. 14, 1909 2086
500. Oct. 4, 1909 2087
501. Oct. 6, 1909 2088
502. Oct. 6, 1909 2089
503. Oct. 8, 1909 2090
504. Oct. 11, 1909 2091
505. Cablegram marked "Small Committee," undated 2092
506. Cablegram to Russamerika beginning with words "Small committee" Dec. 27 2092
507 and 508. Original letters from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:
507. Dec. 2, 1909 2093
508. Dec. 6, 1909 2094
509 and 510. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co., to Russian-American Line, dated as follows:
509. Jan. 6, 1910 2095
510. Jan. 31, 1910 2096
511. Letter from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., Dec. 28, 1909... 2097
512. Cablegram from A. E. Johnson & Co., to Orient, Copenhagen, Jan. 7, 1912..... 2098
513 to 515. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian-American Line, dated as follows:

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

513. Feb. 11, 1910 2099
514. Jan. 13, 1910 2100
515. Jan. 21, 1910 2101
516. Cablegram to Russamerika, Libau re "Estonia, fighting steamer," Nov. 9... 2102
517 and 518. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co., to East Asiatic S. S. Co., Copenhagen, dated as follows:
517. Jan. 7, 1910 2103
518. Jan. 21, 1910 2104
519. Letter from Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., Jan. 8, 1910 2105
520. Cablegram to Russamerika, Libau, Nov. 22 2106
521 to 523. Original letters from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:
521. June 17, 1909 2106
522. June 14, 1909 2107
523. Sept. 2, 1909 2108
524 and 525. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson and Co. to Russian-American Line, dated as follows:
524. Oct. 29, 1909 2109
525. Nov. 19, 1909 2110
526 to 531. Original letters from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:
526. Nov. 23, 1909 2111
527. Dec. 3, 1909 2111
528. Feb. 5, 1909, with pencil notation 2112
529. May 10, 1908 2113
530. May 12, 1909 2114
531. May 15, 1909 2115
532 to 555. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to the Russian-American Line, dated as follows:

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

532. May 13, 1909 2116
533. May 14, 1909 2117
534. May 14, 1909 2118
535. May 20, 1909 2119
536. May 21, 1909 2120
537. May 21, 1909 2121
538. May 21, 1909 2122
539. May 21, 1909 2123
540. May 21, 1909 2125
541. May 26, 1909 2126
542. May 26, 1909 2127
543. May 26, 1909 2128
544. May 27, 1909 2129
545. June 2, 1909 2130
546. June 4, 1909 2131
547. June 4, 1909 2132
548. June 8, 1909 2133
549. June 8, 1909 2134
550. June 8, 1909 2135
551. June 8, 1909 2136
552. June 11, 1909 2137
553. June 12, 1909 2138
554. June 15, 1909 2139
555. June 18, 1909 2141

556. Telegram to Russamerika, Libau, dated June 8 2142

557 to 560. Original letters from East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:

557. April 15, 1908 2142
558. April 22, 1908 2143
559. April 18, 1908 2144
560. May 4, 1908 2145

561 to 567. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to East Asiatic S. S. Co., dated as follows:

561. May 30, 1908 2146

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
562. May 27, 1908	2147
563. May 29, 1908	2147
564. June 2, 1908	2148
565. June 8, 1908	2148
566. June 9, 1908	2149
567. June 10, 1908	2150
568. Original letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co., undated	2151
569 to 576. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to East Asiatic S. S. Co., dated as follows:
569. June 15, 1908	2154
570. June 25, 1908	2155
571. June 27, 1908	2156
572. July 1, 1908	2158
573. July 7, 1908	2159
574. July 6, 1908	2159
575. July 9, 1908	2160
576. July 8, 1908	2161
577. Copy of letter to A. E. Johnson & Co., from Joseph Lang, undated	2162
578. Copy of cablegram from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Orient, Copenhagen, undated	2164
579. Original letter to A. E. Johnson & Co. from East Asiatic S. S. Co., June 1, 1908	2165
580 to 581. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to East Asiatic S. S. Co., dated as follows:
580. July 11, 1908	2166
581. July 20, 1908	2166
582. Cablegram from Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., with pencil notation in regard to Pool Lines, July 20, 1908	2167

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

583. Carbon copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to East Asiatic S. S. Co., July 18, 1908 2168

584. Copy of cablegram from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Orient, Copenhagen, undated .. 2169

585 to 587. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to East Asiastic S. S. Co., dated as follows:

585. July 23, 1908 2169
586. July 23, 1908 2170
587. July 30, 1908 2170

588 to 590. Original letters from East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:

588. Feb. 21, 1908 2171
589. Feb. 24, 1908 2172
590. Mar. 17, 1908 2173

591 to 598. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian-American Line, dated as follows:

591. Dec. 2, 1909 2174
592. June 23, 1909 2174
593. June 23, 1909 2175
594. June 26, 1909 2176
595. July 21, 1909 2177
596. July 21, 1909 2179
597. July 26, 1909 2180
598. July 27, 1909 2181

599 to 602. Original letters from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:

599. June 11, 1909 2181
600. June 11, 1909 2182
601. June 21, 1909 2183
602. June 9, 1909 2184

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

603 to 613. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian-American Line, dated as follows:

603. Dec. 22, 1910 2185
604. Dec. 14, 1909 2186
605. Dec. 17, 1909 2187
606. June 26, 1909 2188
607. June 28, 1909 2188
608. June 30, 1909 2189
609. July 2, 1909 2190
610. July 9, 1909 2191
611. July 12, 1909 2192
612. July 13, 1909 (omitted) 2192
613. July 27, 1909 2193

614 to 620. Original letters from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:

614. June 10, 1909 2194
615. June 8, 1909 2195
616. June 8, 1909 2196
617. June 15, 1909 2197
618. June 28, 1909 2198
619. July 5, 1909 2200
620. July 10, 1909 2201

621. Cablegram to Maxolaf, New York, dated July 15, 1909 2202

622 to 625. Original letters from East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:

622. June 21, 1907 2203
623. July 9, 1907 2204
624. July 22, 1907 2205
625. Aug. 20, 1907 2206

626 to 627. Cablegrams to Maxolaf New York, dated as follows:

626. Aug. 17, 1907 2206
627. Aug. 26, 1907 2207

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

628 to 636. Original letters from East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:

628. Sept. 5, 1907 2208
629. Oct. 5, 1907 2209
630. Oct. 25, 1907 2210
631. Dec. 13, 1907 2211
632. Dec. 17, 1907 2212
633. Dec. 24, 1907 2214
634. Jan. 14, 1908 2216
635. Jan. 20, 1908 2217
636. Jan. 21, 1908 2218

637. Copy of letter to A. E. Johnson & Co., signed "A. J. W.," dated Chicago, Jan. 6, 1908 2219

638. No Exhibit.

639 to 647. Original letters from East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:

639. Jan. 22, 1908 2221
640. Jan. 22, 1908 2222
641. Jan. 27, 1908 2223
642. Jan. 28, 1908 2224
643. Feb. 7, 1908 2225
644. Feb. 8, 1908 2227
645. Feb. 10, 1908 2228
646. Feb. 24, 1908, with article from New York Herald mentioned therein and translation thereof 2229
647. Mar. 2, 1908 2231

648. Copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to East Asiatic S. S. Co., Aug. 3, 1908 2231

649 to 655. Original letters from East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:

649. July 18, 1908 2232
650. July 21, 1908 2233

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

651. July 24, 1908 2234
652. July 25, 1908 2235
653. July 30, 1908 2236
654. Aug. 13, 1908 2237
655. Aug. 21, 1908 2238
656 to 657. Copies of cablegrams to Maxolaf, New York, dated as follows:
656. Aug. 21, 1908 2239
657. Aug. 21, 1908, with pencil notation 2240
658 and 659. Original letters from East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:
658. Dec. 7, 1908 2241
659. Jan. 4, 1909 2243
660 and 661. Copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to East Asiatic S. S. Co., dated as follows:
660. Jan. 29, 1909 2244
661. Feb. 13, 1909 2244
662. Original letter from East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., Mar. 5, 1908 2245
663. Copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Mr. Johnson, Aug. 6, 1908 2247
664. Copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Slovak Press, Aug. 6, 1908 2248
665 to 691. Carbon copies of letters from A. E. Johnson & Co. to the following:
665. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Copenhagen, Libau and Chicago, Aug. 11, 1908 2249
666. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Aug. 11, 1908 2249
667. User Marcus, Aug. 13, 1908 ... 2250
668. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Aug. 17, 1908 2251

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
669. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Aug. 21, 1908	2252
670. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Aug. 21, 1908	2253
671. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Aug. 24, 1908	2253
672. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Aug. 26, 1908	2254
673. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Aug. 26, 1908	2255
674. L. Sandford, Aug. 27, 1908	2256
675. L. I. Grossman, Aug. 27, 1908	2257
676. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Aug. 26, 1908	2257
677. Victor P. Hlavick, Aug. 26, 1908	2258
678. Lawson Sandford, Aug. 30, 1908	2259
679. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Aug. 31, 1908	2260
680. Mr. Johnson, Aug. 31, 1908	2261
681. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Sept. 1, 1908	2262
682. A. E. Johnson & Co., Chicago, Sept. 2, 1908	2263
683. Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co., Sept. 3, 1908	2264
684. Russian Asiatic S. S. Co., Sept. 3, 1908	2265
685. Lawson Sandford, Sept. 3, 1908	2265
686. Lawson Sandford, Sept. 3, 1908	2266
687. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Sept. 4, 1908	2267
688. F. Ulrich, Sept. 9, 1908	2268
689. Mr. Lundberg, Sept. 10, 1908	2269
690. Mr. Lundberg, Sept. 10, 1908	2269
691. Mr. Johnson, Sept. 10, 1908	2270

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

692. Original letter from Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., Mar. 31, 1908 2271
693. Copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to East Asiatic S. S. Co., June 30, 1908 2271
694. Original letter from Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., June 7, 1908 2272
695. Copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co., June 29, 1908 2273
696. Letter from Ruys & Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., July 8, 1907 2274
697. Letter from Atlantic Express to A. E. Johnson & Co., Mar. 14, 1908 2275
698. Letter from Karlsberg, Spiro & Co. to A. E. Johnson & Co., April 24, 1908 2275
699. Copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Ruys & Co., May 28, 1908 2276
700. Copy of letter from A. E. Johnson & Co. to Russian-American Line, Dec. 19, 1910 2277
701 to 702. Original letters from Russian-American Line to A. E. Johnson & Co., dated as follows:
701. Sept. 14, 1910 2279
702. Oct. 28, 1910 2280
703 for Identification. Book marked "Letters received A-Z," Conference No. 2, containing circular letters, etc., received from the conference by A. E. Johnson & Co. and relating to other conference matters 2281
704. Letter from J. Bruce Ismay to Mr. Ballin, Jan. 9, 1900 2281
705. Minutes of meeting held at Savoy Hotel, London, May 25, 1908 2282

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

706. Letter from Ismay, Imrie & Co. White Star Line, New York, April 25, 1908, with copies of letters from Mr. Ismay, April 22, 1908, and Harold Sanderson, April 22, 1908, to Secretary Peters 2288

707. Letter from Ismay, Imrie & Co. to White Star Line, New York, with cable annexed and also Minutes of Meeting of Atlantic Conference at Cologne, Dec. 3, 1908 2291

708. Letter from Ismay, Imrie & Co. to W. W. Jefferies, Dec. 3, 1910, with various minutes of Conference meetings 2299

709. Letter from Ismay, Imrie & Co. to Lee & Franklin, N. Y., Mar. 31, 1909, with Minutes of Paris Meeting, Mar. 26, 1909 2306

710 for Identification. Minutes of Meetings of North Atlantic Passenger Conference from 1904-1907. Minutes 368-374, Vol. I 2309

711 for Identification. Minutes of Meetings of North Atlantic Passenger Conference from 1908-1911. Minutes 375-417. Vol. II 2309

712. Minutes of Atlantic Conference, 1908-1909. Minutes 22-155, inclusive 2310

713. Agreement on Scandinavian and Finnish Westbound Third Class Business, Liverpool, Aug. 15, 1900 2359

714. Scandinavian Agreement between the British Lines and the Scandinavian American Lines, London, March 3, 1910 2362

715. Agreement on Scandinavian and Finnish Third Class Passenger Business, including Iceland, between British and Scan-

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

dinavian American Lines and Allan Line, Canadian Pacific Railway and Donaldson Line, Liverpool, April 7, 1910 2372

716. Minutes of Meeting of Mediterranean Conference at Hotel Meurice, Paris, Feb. 6 and 8, 1909, and Minutes and Byelaws thereto annexed 2394

717. Agreement "E. E." on First and Second Class Business, between Atlantic Conference Lines and Canadian Northern Steamships, Ltd. (Royal Line) Liverpool, Aug. 15, 1910 2410

718. Agreement "D. D." on Continental Third Class Business Westbound, between Atlantic Conference Lines and Canadian Northern Steamships, Ltd. (Royal Line), Liverpool, Aug. 15, 1910 2412

719. Agreement "C. C." on Steerage Traffic from United States and Canada to European Ports, between Atlantic Conference Lines and Canadian Northern Steamships, Ltd. (Royal Line), Liverpool, Aug. 15, 1910 2413

720. Special Agreement "E," on Italian, Greek and Oriental Steerage Business to and from North America, between Italian Lines, Anchor, etc., and Austro-Americana, Hellenic, Transat Co., dated Jan. 1, 1910, and also Jena, July 1910, and Special Agreement "F" annexed thereto. 2426

721. Agreement "H2," on Interchangeable First and Second Class tickets, Jena, May 29, 1908 2439

722. Byelaws to Agreement "B," Jena, June 7, 1910, re theatrical performances, etc. 2442

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
723.	Byelaws to Agreement "W" re commissions, etc., Jena, June 7, 1910	2444
724.	Appendix "II" to Agreement "W," re Canadian Railway free transportation, Jena, Aug. 12, 1908	2445
725.	Agreement "X," re minimum I Class ocean rates, Mediterranean Trade, London, Feb. 6, 1908	2446
726.	Appendix to Agreement "X," Jena, Dec. 4, 1909	2447
727.	Atlantic Conference Weekly Statistics, Dec. 24-31, 1909	2448
728.	Atlantic Conference and Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co. Weekly Statistics, Dec. 24-31, 1908	2455
729.	Agreement on First Cabin Business, London, June 9, 1898	2457
730.	Agreement on Second Cabin Business, June 25, 1898, with Statement of Rates, annexed	2468
731.	Agreement among British Lines on Second Cabin Business, June 29, 1898, with regulations as to agents annexed	2480
732.	Agreement on Continental Business between British Lines, Liverpool, July 1, 1898	2491
733.	Agreement on British Steerage Business Westbound in letter form Sept. 18, 1900, with advance on Third-class Rates annexed, dated Sept. 15, 1900 ..	2497
734.	Agreement on Scandinavian and Finnish Westbound Steerage Business including Iceland, Liverpool, Dec. 6, 1898, with letter annexed dated Sept. 19, 1900 ...	2499
735.	Agreement on Finnish Steerage Business between British Lines and Finska Co., Liverpool, Dec. 6, 1898	2511

Petitioner's Exhibit (continued)

736. Agreement on British Steerage Business Westbound, June 15, 1898, with rules for agents of July 1, 1898, and revised to Oct. 18, 1900 2514
737. Agreement, British Lines on British Steerage Business Westbound, Liverpool, June 15, 1898, with revised regulations for agents of North Atlantic Passenger Conference July 1, 1898 and revised Oct. 18, 1900 2525
738. Agreement on Scandinavian and Finnish Business, Steerage, Westbound, including Iceland, Liverpool Dec. 6, 1898, and corrected to Feb. 10, 1903 2537
739. Agreement on Rules and Regulations for Agents relating to Scandinavian and Finnish Business, Dec. 6, 1898, and corrected up to Feb. 4, 1903 2548
740. Agreement "R" on First-class Business, London, Mar. 1905 2560
741. Agreement "F" corrected in pencil to "S" on Second-class Business, London, Mar. 1905 2569
742. Agreement on Continental Business with Appendix "A" annexed Cologne, Mar. 25, 1906 2577
743 for Identification. "G" file of circular letters from H. Peters to the White Star Line from Jan., 1908, No. 1 to 455, also letters marked "G 692" to "G 1103" inclusive for Jan., 1910 2602
744 to 758. Exhibits heretofore offered for identification now marked in evidence with new numbers as follows:
744. Old Exhibit No. 315 2602
745. Old Exhibit No. 317 2604
746. Old Exhibit No. 318 2608

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
747.	Old Exhibit No. 319	2611
748.	Old Exhibit No. 320	2614
749.	Old Exhibit No. 323	2621
750.	Old Exhibit No. 324	2626
751.	Old Exhibit No. 325	2637
752.	Old Exhibit No. 326	2647
753.	Old Exhibit No. 327	2659
754.	Old Exhibit No. 328	2664
755.	Old Exhibit No. 330	2667
756.	Old Exhibit No. 331	2682
757.	Old Exhibit No. 332 and addenda	2697
758.	Old Exhibit No. 333	2713
759.	Beschlusse (Minutes of North Atlantic Steamship Lines Combine) Nos. 397 to 477 in German, and also translation of the same	2741
760.	Agreement "J" on Continental, Scandinavian and Finnish business between Canadian Pacific Railway Co. and N. D. L. V. Lines, completed copy thereof	2760
761.	Agreement "K" Scandinavian Service	2766
762.	Agreement "E," on First Saloon Business	2768
763.	Agreement "F" on Second Cabin Business	2778
764.	Agreement "H" revised on Interchangeable First and Second-class Return Tickets	2787
765.	Agreement "M" St. Louis Exhibition	2790
766.	Translation of cable from Lloyd to Oelrichs & Co., Jan. 7, 1908	2792
767.	Translation of cable from Lloyd to Oelrichs & Co., Jan. 8, 1908	2792
768.	Translation of letter to Mr. G. Schwab from Plettenberg, Bremen, Feb. 25, 1908	2793
769.	Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, Mar. 5, 1908	2795

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

770. Translation of letter from Oelrichs & Co., to North German Lloyd, Bremen, New York, Mar. 13, 1908 2796
771. Translation of letter to Baron von Plettenberg, Bremen, from Gustav H. Schwab, New York, Mar. 16, 1908 ... 2796
772. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab from Plettenberg, Bremen Mar. 5, 1908 2797
773. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, Mar. 16, 1908 2798
774. Translation of letter to Baron von Plettenberg, Bremen, from Gustav H. Schwab, New York, Mar. 10, 1908 ... 2800
775. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab from Plettenberg, Bremen, Mar. 18, 1908 2801
776. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen from Oelrichs and Co., New York, Mar. 21, 1908 2803
777. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs and Co., New York, Mar. 23, 1908 2804
778. Translation of cable from Lloyd to Oelrichs and Co., Mar. 24, 1908 2804
779. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, Mar. 27, 1908 2805
780. Translation of letter to Baron von Plettenberg, Bremen, from Gustav H. Schwab, New York, Mar. 30, 1908 ... 2807
781 to 784. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York dated as follows:
781. Mar. 30, 1908 2808
782. April 3, 1908 2809

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

783. April 3, 1908 2810
784. April 7, 1908 2811
785. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab from Plettenberg, Bremen, April 13, 1908 2814
786 to 789. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, dated as follows:
786. April 13, 1908 2815
787. April 14, 1908 2817
788. April 20, 1908 2818
789. April 21, 1908 2820
790. Translation of letter to Baron von Plettenberg, Bremen, from Gustav H. Schwab, New York, April 21, 1908 .. 2821
791. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab from Plettenberg, Bremen, April 27, 1908 2822
792. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, April 29, 1908 2826
793. Translation of cable to Lloyd, Bremen from Oelrichs & Co., May 2, 1908 ... 2827
794. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, May 4, 1908 2828
795. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab from Plettenberg, Bremen, May 4, 1908 2829
796. Translation of letter to H. Peters, Jena, unsigned from Bremen, May 4, 1908 .. 2831
797. Translation of cable from Lloyd to Oelrichs & Co., May 5, 1908 2836
798. Translation of cable from Oelrichs & Co., to Lloyd, Bremen, dated May 5, 1908 . 2836
799. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., New York from North German Lloyd per Freyer, Bremen, May 5, 1908 2837

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

800. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, May 9, 1908 2839

801. Translation of letter to Baron von Plettenberg, Bremen, from Gustav H. Schwab, New York, May 22, 1908 ... 2840

802. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., May 22, 1908 2842

803 to 806. Translations of cables to Wiegand Carlton, London, signed "Schwab" New York, dated as follows:

803. May 22, 1908 2844

804. May 22, 1908 2844

805. May 25, 1908 2845

806. May 25, 1908 2845

807. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen from Oelrichs & Co., New York, May 25, 1908. 2846

808 and 809. Translations of cables from Lloyd to Oelrichs & Co., dated as follows:

808. May 29, 1908 2848

809. May 30, 1908 2848

810. Translation of cable to Wiegand, Lloyd Bremen signed "Helmolt" June 6, 1908 2849

811. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, June 10, 1908 2850

812. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab from North German Lloyd, V. Helmolt, Bremen, July 2, 1908 2851

813 and 814. Translations of cables from Lloyd to Oelrichs & Co., dated as follows:

813. July 4, 1908 2851

814. July 9, 1908 2852

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

815. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab from North German Lloyd Bremen, July 9, 1908 2852

816 and 817. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, dated as follows:

816. July 25, 1908 2853

817. Aug. 8, 1908 2854

818. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab, signed "Heineken," Bremen, Aug. 22, 1908 2855

819. Translation of cable to "Schwab, Oelrichs, N. Y.," signed "Wiegand," Aug. 26, 1908 2856

820. Translation of letter to director-general Wiegand, Bremen, from Gustav H. Schwab, New York, Aug. 28, 1908 .. 2857

821. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab signed "Heineken," Bremen, Aug. 28, 1908 2858

822. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab signed "Plettenberg," Bremen, Sept. 1, 1908 2861

823. Translation of letter to Director Heineken, Bremen, from Gustav H. Schwab, Sept. 2, 1908 2868

824. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., Sept. 4, 1908 2869

825. Translation of letter to Baron von Plettenberg, Bremen, from Gustav H. Schwab, New York, Sept. 9, 1908 2870

826 and 826½. Translations of cables to Wiegand Palast Hotel, Berlin, signed "Schwab," New York, dated as follows:

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

826. Sept. 16, 1908 2871
826½. Sept. 17, 1910 2871
827 and 828. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, dated as follows:
827. Sept. 26, 1908 2872
828. Oct. 16, 1908 2873
829. Translation of cable from Lloyd to Oelrichs & Co., Oct. 24, 1908 2874
830 to 833. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, dated as follows:
830. Nov. 2, 1908 2875
831. Nov. 11, 1908 2876
832. Dec. 4, 1908 2877
833. Feb. 18, 1909 2878
834. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab signed "Plettenberg," Bremen, Feb. 19, 1909 2879
835. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, Mar. 5, 1909 2881
836. Translation of letter to Mr. von Plettenberg, from Gustav H. Schwab, New York, Mar. 5, 1909 2882
837. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab signed "V. Helmolt," Bremen, Mar. 29, 1909 2883
838. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab signed "Heineken," Bremen, Mar. 30, 1909 2885
839. Translation of letter to Director Heineken, Bremen, from Gustav H. Schwab, New York, April 9, 1909 2888
840. Translation of letter to Director C. von Helmolt, Bremen, from Gustav H. Schwab, New York, April 12, 1909 .. 2890

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

841. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab from "Heineken," Bremen, April 21, 1909 2891
842. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., from "N. G. L.," Bremen, April 21, 1909 2892
843. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, April 27, 1909 2893
844. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., from "N. G. L.," Bremen, June 10, 1909 2894
845. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., from North German Lloyd, Bremen, July 12, 1909 2895
846 and 847. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., dated at New York, as follows:
846. Aug. 2, 1909 2896
847. Aug. 16, 1909 2897
848. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., signed "N. G. L." Bremen, Aug. 26, 1909 2898
848½. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab signed "Plettenberg" Bremen, Aug. 28, 1909 2899
849 and 850. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., dated at New York as follows:
849. Sept. 6, 1909 2900
850. Sept. 11, 1909 2901
851. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., signed "N. G. L.," Bremen, Sept. 22, 1909 2902
852. Translation of cable from Oelrichs & Co., to Lloyd, Bremen, Sept. 25, 1909 2902
853. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., signed "N. G. L.," Bremen, Sept. 27, 1909 2903

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

854 and 855. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., dated at New York as follows:
854. Oct. 4, 1909 2904
855. Oct. 7, 1909 2906

856. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., from North German Lloyd, Bremen, Oct. 13, 1909 2907

857 and 858. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., dated at New York, as follows:
857. Oct. 27, 1909 2909
858. Oct. 30, 1909 2910

859. Document headed "Continental Conference" beginning "Fines imposed by Continental Conference Lines, upon agents, etc.," dated New York, Oct. 30, 1909 2913

860 and 861. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., dated at New York, as follows:
860. Nov. 5, 1909 2914
861. Nov. 12, 1909 2915

862. Translation of letter to Gustav H. Schwab signed "Heineken," Bremen, Nov. 29, 1909 2916

863 to 865. Translations of letters to Oelrichs & Co., from North German Lloyd, Bremen, signed and dated as follows:
863. Signed "Seyde," Dec. 13, 1909 2917
864. Signed "Plettenberg," Dec. 21, 1909 2918
865. Signed "V. Vignan," Dec. 31, 1909 2919

866. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, Jan. 3, 1910 2921

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

867. Copy of a cablegram to Lloyd, Bremen, Jan. 18, 1910 2922

868 and 869. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, dated as follows:

868. Jan. 20, 1910 2922

869. Jan. 24, 1910 2923

870. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., from North German Lloyd, Bremen, Jan. 24, 1910 2924

871 to 873. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, dated as follows:

871. Jan. 31, 1910 2925

872. Feb. 2, 1910 2926

873. Mar. 11, 1910 2927

874. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., signed "N. G. L.," Bremen, May 6, 1910 2928

875. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, May 6, 1910 2929

876. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., signed "N. G. L.," Bremen, May 9, 1910 2930

877 to 882. Translations of letters to North Germen Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, dated as follows:

877. May 20, 1910 2931

878. June 8, 1910 2932

879. June 16, 1910 2933

880. July 2, 1910 2934

881. July 6, 1910 2935

882. July 15, 1910 2936

883 to 894. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., dated at New York, as follows:

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

883. July 19, 1910 2937
884. July 26, 1910 2938
885. Aug. 1, 1910 2939
886. Aug. 17, 1910 2940
887. Aug. 18, 1910 2941
888. Aug. 23, 1910 2942
889. Aug. 25, 1910 2943
890. Aug. 29, 1910 2944
891. Sept. 9, 1910 2945
892. Sept. 19, 1910 2946
893. Oct. 5, 1910 2947
894. Oct. 6, 1910 2948

895. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., from "N. G. L.," Bremen, Oct. 7, 1910 2949

896 to 903. Translations of letters to North Germen Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, dated as follows:

896. Oct. 7, 1910 2950
897. Oct. 7, 1910 2951
898. Oct. 11, 1910 2952
899. Oct. 18, 1910 2953
900. Oct. 22, 1910 2954
901. Oct. 24, 1910 2955
902. Oct. 26, 1910 2956
903. Nov. 1, 1910 2957

904. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., from North German Lloyd, Bremen, Nov. 17, 1910 2958

905 to 908. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, dated as follows:

905. Nov. 22, 1910 2959
906. Nov. 25, 1910 2960
907. Nov. 25, 1910 2961
908. Dec. 3, 1910 2964

909 and 910. Translation of letters to Oelrichs & Co., signed "N. G. L.," at Bremen, as follows:

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

909. Dec. 5, 1910 2965
910. Dec. 6, 1910 2966
911 and 912. Translations of letters to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, dated as follows:
911. Dec. 16, 1910 2967
912. Dec. 30, 1910 2968
913. Continental Traffic Agreement for Third-class business, with footnote, telegram Feb. 10, 1904, from Wilding to Ballin, re compensation to British Lines for Scandinavian competition 2969
914 to 1648. Peters' Letters. Circular letters or so-called Rund-schrieben of Mr. Peters, the Conference Secretary at Jena, to the Parties to the General Pool, relating to matters of interest to the Atlantic Conference headed and dated as follows:
914. G. No. 1. Begins "The Norddeutscher Lloyd informs me," date, Feb. 5, 1908 3273
915. G. No. 2. Begins "The White Star Line suggests," date, Feb. 17, 1908 3274
916. G. No. 3. Begins "The Canadian Pacific Railway have returned," date, den 21 Februar, 1908 3275
917. G. No. 4. Begins "The Hamburg-American Line have received," date, Feb. 29, 1908 3276
918. G. No. 5. Begins, "I beg to confirm," date, Feb. 29, 1908 3277
919. G. No. 6. Begins, "I beg to confirm," date den 3 März, 1908 3278
920. G. No. 7. Begins, "In the 'Frankfurter Zeitung,' " dated, Mar. 6, 1908 3279
921. G. No. 8. Newyork Continental Line, Mar. 6, 1908 3280

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
922. G. No. 9. Italian Lines and Continental Business, Mar. 6, 1908	3281
923. G. No. 10. Newyork Continental Line, den 9 März, 1908 (omitted)
924. G. No. 12. New York Continental Line (G. No. 10), Mar. 11, 1908	3283
925. Translation of G. No. 12	3286
926. G. No. 13. Newyork-Continental Line Mar. 12, 1908	3287
927. G. No. 15. Circulars, Mar. 14, 1908	3292
928. G. No. 17. Russian Steamers, Mar. 17, 1908	3294
929. G. No. 18. Rectifications of Statistics, Mar. 19, 1908	3294
930. G. No. 19. Thos. Cook & Son, Mar. 20, 1908	3296
931. G. No. 20. Newyork Continental Line (G. No. 13), Mar. 20, 1908	3297
932. G. No. 21. Russian Steamers, Mar. 23, 1908	3298
933. G. No. 22. Statistical Returns (G. 11 and 16), Mar. 23, 1908	3299
934. G. No. 24. Russian Steamers (G. No. 21), Mar. 25, 1908	3302
935. G. No. 25. Russian Steamers (G. No. 24) Mar. 26, 1908	3302
936. G. No. 27. Advance in Continental Rates Mar. 30, 1908	3305
937. G. No. 28. New York and Continental Line, Mar. 31, 1908	3306
938. G. No. 30. Russian Steamers (G. No. 25), April 2, 1908	3308
939. G. No. 31. Advance in Continental Rates (G. No. 27), April 3, 1908	3309
940. G. No. 32. Russian Steamers (G. No. 30), April 3, 1908	3311

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

941. G. No. 33. Statistical Returns (G. No. 26), April 4, 1908 3312
942. G. No. 36. Russian Steamers (G. No. 32), April 8, 1908 3316
943. G. No. 37. New York and Continental Line, April 8, 1908 3316
944. G. No. 40. Russian Steamers (G. No. 37), April 9, 1908 3319
945. G. No. 41a. Russian Steamers (G. No. 40), April 13, 1908 3319
946. G. No. 42. Newyork Continental Line, April 14, 1908 3320
947. G. No. 43. Begins "Referring to the last part of G. No. 35," Apr. 15, 1908 3321
948. G. No. 44. Russian Steamers (G. No. 41), April 16, 1908 3322
949. G. No. 45. "Avoca," April 18, 1908 3322
950. G. No. 46. Allan Line's Havre Rate (G. No. 41A), April 18, 1908 3324
951. G. No. 47. "Jelunga," 21 April, 1908 .. 3325
952. G. No. 48. Statistical Returns (G. No. 35), April 23, 1908 3326
953. G. No. 49. Weekly statistics eastbound, April 23, 1908 3327
954. G. No. 51. Russian Steamers (G. No. 44), April 23, 1908 3331
955. G. No. 52. Compensation for fighting rates (G. No. 45 and suppl.), April 24, 1908 3332
956. G. No. 53. Opposition to Newyork & Continental Line, April 25, 1908 3335
957. G. No. 55. Monthly statements, April 25, 1908 3338
958. G. No. 56. Russian Steamers (G. No. 51) April 25, 1908 3339

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

959. Letter to H. Peters, Esq., Jena, from Ismay, Imrie & Co. (Itld.) T. C. S., May 14, 1908 3344
960. G. No. 57. Regulating steerage rates for adjustment purposes, April 27, 1908 .. 3340
961. G. No. 59. Newyork and Continental Line (G. No. 47), April 29, 1908 3345
962. G. No. 61. Regulating steerage rates for adjustment purposes (G. No. 57), May 1, 1908 3348
963. G. No. 62. Direct Steamship Line Gothenburg-Newyork, May 2, 1908 3349
964. G. No. 64. Compensation for fighting rates, May 4, 1908 3351
965. G. No. 66. Continental passengers by Italian Lines (G. No. 60), May 4, 1908 3357
966. G. No. 67. Russian Steamers (G. No. 56), May 5, 1908 3362
967. G. No. 69. Continental Passengers by Italian Lines (G. No. 68), May 6, 1908 3368
968. G. No. 70. Newyork & Continental Line and Canadian Pacific Ry. Co., May 6, 1908 3370
969. G. No. 71. Newyork and Continental Line (G. No. 64), May 6, 1908 3371
970. G. No. 72. Russian Steamers (G. No. 67), May 7, 1908 3372
971. G. No. 73. Continental Passengers by Italian Lines (G. No. 69), May 7, 1908 .. 3373
972. G. No. 75. Begins "In circular letter G. No. 74," May 8, 1908 3379
973. G. No. 76. Newyork & Continental Line and Canadian Pacific Ry. Co. (G. No. 70), May 9, 1908 3380
974. G. No. 78. Newyork & Continental Line and C. P. R. (G. No. 70), May 9, 1908 3383
975 G. No. 80. Promissory Note, May 11, 1908 3385

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

976. G. No. 82. Regulating steerage rates for adjustment purposes (G. No. 61), May 12, 1908 3392
977. G. No. 83. Disqualification of American Agents (G. No. 69), May 12, 1908 ... 3395
978. G. No. 84. Libau Rate, May 12, 1908 .. 3398
979. G. No. 85. Competition by the Pool Lines with the Newyork & Continental Line Steamers, Eastbound, May 12, 1908 .. 3399
980. G. No. 86. Newyork & Continental Line (G. No. 79), May 12, 1908 3400
981. G. No. 88. Continental Passengers by Italian Lines (G. No. 81), May 13, 1908 3402
982. G. No. 89. Russian Steamers (G. No. 72), May 13, 1908 3403
983. G. No. 90. Newyork & Continental Line and C. P. R., May 13, 1908 3404
984. G. No. 91. Russian Steamers (G. No. 89), May 14, 1908 3405
985. G. No. 92. Continental Steeragers by Italian Lines (G. No. 88), May 14, 1908 3405
986. G. No. 93. Russian Lines, May 15, 1908 3406
987. G. No. 94. Continental Passengers by Italian Lines (G. No. 92), May 15, 1908 3408
988. G. No. 95. Compensation for fighting rates (G. No. 85), May 15, 1908 3409
989. G. No. 96. Newyork & Continental Line and C. P. R. (G. No. 90), May 15, 1908 3410
990. G. No. 98. Control stations; Passengers for British Lines, May 19, 1908 3412
991. G. No. 99. Pooling Assisted Destitute Passengers, May 19, 1908 3415
992. G. No. 100. Libau Rate (G. No. 84), May 19, 1908 3416

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

993. G. No. 102. Russian Lines, May 19, 1908 3419
994. G. No. 103. Changes in Rates, May 20, 1908 3420
995. G. No. 104. Italian Lines (G. No. 94), May 20, 1908 3421
996. G. No. 105. Italian Lines (G. No. 104), May 22, 1908 3422
997. G. No. 106. Compensation for fighting Rates (G. No. 95), May 22, 1908 3423
998. G. No. 107. Commission to Agents for passengers booked at the control stations, May 23, 1908 3425
999. G. No. 108. New York Continental Line, Can. Pac. Ry. Co. and Grand Trunk (G. No. 90), May 23, 1908 3426
1000. G. No. 109. Changes in rates (G. No. 103), May 23, 1908 3427
1001. G. No. 110. Changes in Rates (G. No. 109), May 25, 1908 3428
1002. G. No. 111. New York Continental Line (G. No. 102), May 25, 1908 3429
1003. G. No. 112. Changes in Rates (G. No. 110), May 26, 1908 3430
1004. G. No. 113. Changes in Rates (G. No. 112), May 27, 1908 3431
1005. G. No. 114. Russian Steamers (G. No. 102), May 29, 1908 3432
1006. G. No. 117. Compensation for fighting rates, May 30, 1908 3435
1007. G. No. 118. Karlsburg, Spiro & Co., Libau, May 30, 1908 3436
1008. G. No. 120. Opposition Steamers, May 30, 1908 3438
1009. G. No. 122. A. E. Johnson & Co., June 1, 1908 3440

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1010.	G. No. 123. Opposition Steamer (G. No. 120), June 1, 1908	3441
1011.	G. No. 124. Russian Volunteer Fleet (G. No. 114), June 2, 1908	3442
1012.	G. No. 126. Begins "The new steamer 'Rossea,'" June 4, 1908	3443
1013.	G. No. 129. Disqualification of Agents (G. No. 115), June 6, 1908	3445
1014.	G. No. 131. Continental Steeragers by Italian Lines (G. No. 97), June 6, 1908	3450
1015.	G. No. 133. Disqualification of Agents (G. No. 129), June 6, 1908	3452
1016.	G. No. 134. Disqualification of Agents (G. No. 133), June 9, 1908	3454
1017.	G. No. 135. Mediterranean Business (G. No. 128), June 9, 1908	3455
1018.	G. No. 136. Changes in Rates (G. No. 113), June 10, 1908	3457
1019.	G. No. 137. Proposals regarding the different agreements, June 10, 1908	3458
1020.	G. No. 138. Promissory Note, June 11, 1908	3459
1021.	G. No. 142. Mediterranean Business, June 12, 1908	3463
1022.	G. No. 144. Begins "Transat inform me that the service," June 13, 1908	3465
1023.	G. No. 145. Continental Business via Italian Lines (G. No. 144), June 13, 1908	3467
1024.	G. No. 146. Newyork & Continental Line, June 13, 1908	3469
1025	G. No. 147. Russian Steamers (G. No. 132), June 15, 1908	3470
1026.	G. No. 148. Promissory Notes (G. No. 141), June 15, 1908	3471
1027.	G. No. 150. Russian Volunteer, June 17, 1908	3473

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1028.	G. No. 151. Compensation for fighting rates, June 17, 1908. Also statement of the cases attached to G. No. 151	3474
1029.	Annex I to G. No. 151. Begins "Holland-Amerika Linie"—Account	3479
1030.	Annex II to G. No. 151. Begins "Holland-Amerika Linie"—Account	3480
1031.	G. No. 154. Begins "S. S. 'Petersburg' of the Russian Volunteer," June 18, 1908	3482
1032.	G. No. 155. II Cl. Rate "Off Cherbourg," June 19, 1908	3483
1033.	Annex to G. No. 155 headed "Award," June 16, 1908	3484
1034	G. No. 156. Reduction in Eastb. Rates by Italian Lines, June 19, 1908	3486
1035.	G. No. 157. Change in Eastbound Rates, June 20, 1908	3487
1036.	G. No. 158. Begins "The White Star write," June 20, 1908	3488
1037.	G. No. 159. Cherbourg Eastbound Rate of American & White Star, June 20, 1908	3489
1038.	G. No. 160. Mediterranean Business, June 20, 1908	3490
1039.	(Now part of 1038.) Reply of White Star Line attached to 1038	3493
1040.	G. No. 162. New York Continental Line, June 22, 1908	3495
1041.	G. No. 166. Newyork Uptown offices, June 23, 1908	3500
1042.	G. No. 169. Russian Volunteer and East Asiatic, June 24, 1908	3504
1043.	G. No. 170. New York and Continental Line, June 24, 1908	3505
1044.	G. No. 171. Opposition Steamers, June 24, 1908	3506

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
1045. G. No. 172. New Mediterranean Line from Venice, June 25, 1908	3507
1046. G. No. 174. Begins "From Holland-America Line I received"; June 26, 1908	3509
1047. Begins "The Shipping Gazette in their edition of June 25"; June 27, 1908 ...	3510
1048. G. No. 177. Fighting Opposition (G. No. 167); June 29, 1908	3513
1049. G. No. 179. Compensation for fighting rates; June 30, 1908	3514
1050. G. No. 182. Agreement "V"; July 1, 1908	3518
1051. G. No. 185. Russian Steamers (G. No. 156); July 2, 1908	3524
1052. G. No. 186. Mediterranean Business; proposed meeting (G. No. 181); July 3, 1908	3525
1053. G. No. 187. Newyork & Continental Line; July 3, 1908	3529
1054. G. No. 188. Fighting Opposition (G. No. 177); July 3, 1908	3530
1055. G. No. 189. Russian Steamers; July 4, 1908	3531
1056. G. No. 192. Competition Steamers against "Russia," June 24; July 7, 1908	3536
1057. G. No. 194. Russian Steamers; July 10, 1908	3538
1058. G. No. 195. Arbitration of Compensation for passengers carried at fighting rates (G. No. 151); July 10, 1908 ...	3539
1059. G. No. 196. Proposed Meeting (G. No. 190); July 10, 1908	3541
1060. G. No. 197. Newyork & Continental Line; July 10, 1908	3543
1061. G. No. 198. Meeting; Agenda; July 13, 1908	3544

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1062. G. No. 199. Proposed Meeting; July 14, 1908 3546
1063. G. No. 200. Newyork Uptown Offices; July 14, 1908 3548
1064. G. No. 201. Proposed Meeting (G. No. 199); July 16, 1908 3549
1065. G. No. 202. Begins "How much or little hope the lines may have had"; July 17, 1908 3552
1066. G. No. 203. Fighting Steamers; July 17, 1908 3554
1067. G. No. 204. Russian Steamers (G. No. 194); July 17, 1908 3554
1068. G. No. 205. Begins "In a Hamburg paper of 16th inst."; July 18, 1908 3555
1069. G. No. 206. Continental Eastbound Passengers by Italian Lines; July 18, 1908 3556
1070. G. No. 207. Russian Steamers (G. No. No. 204); July 20, 1908 3557
1071. G. No. 208. Begins "The Cie. Gen. Transatlantique write me"; July 20, 1908 3558
1072. G. No. 209. Continental Eastbound Passengers by Italian Lines (G. No. 206); July 21, 1908 3560
1073. G. No. 211. Begins "On July 18 I received the following telegram from Mr. Smyth," July 22, 1908 3562
1074. G. No. 212. Russian Steamers; July 24, 1908 3564
1075. G. No. 214. Bergen-Newyork; July 25, 1908 3566
1076. G. No. 215. New York & Continental Line; July 25, 1908 3567
1077. G. No. 219. Compensation accounts for fighting rates (G. No. 117); July 31, 1908 3578

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1078.	Annex to G. No. 219 beginning "Account for 406/1"	3581
1079.	Account regarding 1320 adults; June 29, 1908	3582
1080.	Annex to G. No. 219. Beginning "Account regarding 1672 adults"	3583
1081.	Annex to G. No. 219. Beginning "Account regarding 930 adults"	3584
1082.	Annex to G. No. 219. Beginning "White Star Line Account for 157 adults"; 20th June, 1908	3585
1083.	G. No. 220. Newyork & Continental Line; July 31, 1908	3586
1084.	G. No. 221. Paris meeting; Aug. 1, 1908.	3587
1085.	Translation of G. No. 221	3588
1086.	G. No. 223. Russian Steamers; Aug. 6, 1908	3590
1087.	G. No. 226. Begins "G. No. 223. The Rossia"; Aug. 10, 1908	3591
1088.	G. No. 225. Fighting Russian Steamers; Aug. 7, 1908	3591
1089.	G. No. 229. Monthly Statements for July (G. No. 193); Aug. 13, 1908	3597
1090.	G. No. 231. Russian Steamers; Aug. 14, 1908	3598
1091.	G. No. 233. New York & Continental Line; Aug. 15, 1908	3599
1092.	G. No. 234. Russian Steamer (G. No. 231); Aug. 18, 1908	3600
1093.	G. No. 235. Russian Steamers; Aug. 19, 1908	3600
1094.	G. No. 236. Italien Rates of Cie. Gen. Transatlantique; Aug. 21, 1908	3601
1095.	Translation of G. No. 236. Italian Rates of the French Line	3602
1096.	G. No. 237. Eastbound Prepaids; Aug. 21, 1908	3603

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1097. G. No. 238. Russian Steamers (G. No. 225); Aug. 21, 1908 3604
1098. G. No. 239. Begins "Enclosed I beg to send the Agenda"; Aug. 22, 1908..... 3605
1099. Enclosure in G. No. 239. Agenda of meeting in London, Savoy Hotel; Aug. 25, 1908, 10 A. M. 3606
1100. G. No. 240. East and Westbound Passenger Statistics ("Strasser's Statistic"); Aug. 22, 1908 3607
1101. G. No. 242. New York & Continental line (G. No. 233); Aug. 25, 1908 3608
1102. G. No. 244. Russian Steamers; Aug. 27, 1908 3614
1103. G. No. 245. Begins "I herewith beg to enclose"; Aug. 29, 1908 3614
1104. G. No. 248. Russian Steamers; Sept. 3, 1908 3619
1105. G. No. 249. Compensation for fighting rates; Sept. 4, 1908 3620
1106. Annex to G. No. 249. Letter from Red Star Line, New York to Red Star Line, Antwerp, date Aug. 18, 1908 3626
1107. G. No. 250. New York & Continental Line; Sept. 7, 1908 3627
1108. G. No. 251. Begins "In compliance with the wishes uttered"; Sept. 10, 1908... 3628
1109. G. No. 254. Italian Lines; Sept. 12, 1908 3633
1110 G. No. 255. Cunard's Fiume Service; Sept. 15, 1908 3638
1111. G. No. 259. Begins "The Russian-East Asiatic Co., being no longer"; Sept. 22, 1908 3644
1112. G. No. 260. Begins "By request of the Lloyd"; Sept. 23, 1908 3645

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1113. Commentary to the Provisional Agreement regarding steerage business between Italian and North American Ports as discussed at Berlin; Sept. 16, 1908 (enclosed in G. No. 260) 3646

1114. Contract beginning "Between the undersigned Director Gen. A. Ballin and Director Gen. Dr. H. Wiegand on behalf of the Continental and British Lines, and," dated Berlin Sept. 16, 1908..... 3651

1115. Agenda of the meeting in Berlin, Hotel Kaiserhof; Sept. 29, 1908, 10 A. M. .. 3658

1116. G. No. 200. Begins "Lloyd wired me as follows"; Sept. 26, 1908 3659

1117. G. No. 261. Russian-East Asiatic's Prepaids from Rotterdam (G. No. 259); Sept. 29, 1908 3660

1118. Translation of G. No. 261..... 3661

1119. G. No. 262. Cabin Passengers in the Steerage Pool 3662

1120. G. No. 263. Italian Lines, Sept. 30, 1908 3663

1121. G. No. 265. Tabling Agreements; Sept. 30, 1908 3667

1122. G. No. 266. Hellenic Line; Sept. 30, 1908 3668

1123. G. No. 267. Compensation for fighting rates (G. No. 249); Oct. 1, 1908..... 3669

1124. Annex 1 to G. No. 267. Begins "To compensation due S.S. 'Baltic' "..... 3672

1125. Annex 2 to G. No. 267. Begins "Holland-Amerika Line—Account" 3672

1126. Annex 3 to G. No. 267. Begins "Account regarding 1442 adults"..... 3673

1127. Annex 4 to G. No. 267. Begins "Account regarding 948 adults" 3674

1128. G. No. 270. Jewish Emigration Associations; Oct. 5, 1908 3680

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
1129. G. No. 272. Russian Emigrants; Oct. 5, 1908	3682
1130. Translation of G. No. 272	3683
1131. G. No. 271. Westbound Statistic Form 25, No. 27; Oct. 5, 1908	3681
1132. G. No. 273. American Transportation Co. (G. No. 161); Oct. 5, 1908	3684
1133. G. No. 274 Steeragers for New York and Continental Line, Oct. 5, 1908	3685
1134. G. No. 275. Headed "To the Parties to the Cabin Agreements"; Oct. 7, 1908	3686
1135. G. No. 276. Monthly Statements for September; Oct. 9, 1908	3688
1136. G. No. 277. Atlantic Conference and Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co. Payments for September; Oct. 10, 1908	3691
1137. Copy of G. No. 277. Same as Exhibit No. 1136	3689
1138. Memo attached to G. No. 277. Beginning "It is observed"; dated 29, 10.08.	3690
1139. G. No. 278. Meeting, Oct. 10, 1908	3692
1140. G. No. 279. Mediterranean Business; Oct. 12, 1908	3693
1141. G. No. 280. Mediterranean Business; Oct. 12, 1908	3695
1142. G. No. 281. Russian Lines' Prepaids; Oct. 13, 1908	3697
1143. G. No. 283. Change in Rates; Oct. 16, 1908	3699
1144. Agenda of the Meeting in Paris, Grand Hotel; 21st, Oct. 1908, 10 A. M.	3699
1145. G. No. 285. Begins "Enclosed I beg to send copies"; Oct. 27, 1908	3701
1146. G. No. 286. Guarantee of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., Oct. 28, 1908	3702
1147. G. No. 288. Compensation for fighting rates (G No. 267); Oct. 30, 1908	3707

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1148.	G. No. 294. Communications to the Press; Nov. 12, 1908	3720
1149.	G. No. 299. Arbitration in connection with S. S. Lützow, Nov. 20, 1908	3725
1150.	Circular letter to Norddeutscher Lloyd Hamburg-American Line, White Star Line, Anchor Line, Austro Americana, Cie. Gle. Transatlantique, headed "Mediterranean Business"; Nov. 20, 1908	3726
1151.	Circular letter to Norddeutscher Lloyd, Hamburg-American Line, Cie. Gle. Transatlantique, Austro-Americana, White Star Line, Cunard Line, beginning "The Anchor Line wish me"; Nov. 19, 1908	3727
1152.	G. No. 308. Cabin Passengers and Steerage Pool; Dec. 8, 1908	3746
1153.	G. No. 309. Monthly statements for November; Dec. 11, 1908	3747
1154.	G. No. 314. Notice, Agreement on Compensation for fighting Steamers; Dec. 18, 1908	3753
1155.	G. No. 316. New Service between Continental & Canadian Ports; Dec. 28, 1908	3756
1156.	G. No. 317. Superlatives in Advertising; Dec. 30, 1908	3757
1157.	Enclosure to G. No. 317. Headed "To our Agents"; dated Hamburg, Oct. 30, 1905	3759
1158.	G. No. 318. Austro-Americana's participation in compensation for fighting rights; Dec. 31, 1908	3760
1159.	G. No. 319. Begins, "According to Minute 53"; Dec. 31, 1908	3762
1160.	G. No. 320. Cunard Line's Fiume Service Westbound, Dec. 31, 1908	3763

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1161. G. No. 321. Compensation for steamers "Lützow" and "President Grant" for carrying passengers at fighting rates (G. No. 299); Dec. 31, 1908 3765
1162. G. No. 323. Begins "The Norddeutscher Lloyd have sent me"; January 4th, 1909 3771
1163. G. No. 326. Paris, February Meeting; Jan. 11, 1909 3774
1164. G. No. 334. Compensation for fighting rates (G. No. 288); Jan. 19, 1909.... 3795
1165. G. No. 339. A. C. Meeting; Jan. 25, 1909, with Agenda attached 3806
1166. Letter to H. Peters, Esq., Jena from Ismay, Imrie & Co., 9 Feb., 1909.... 3810
1167. G. No. 341. Payments to the Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co., Jan. 26, 1909... 3809
1168. G. No. 344. Newyork-Continental Line (G. No. 332); Feb 2, 1909 3814
1169. Atlantic Conference Agenda of the Meeting in Paris, Hotel Meurice; on 3rd February, '09, 10 A. M. 3812
1170. G. No. 345. New York & Continental Line; Feb. 4, 1909 3815
1171. G. No. 347. Monthly statements for January; Feb. 12, 1909 3818
1172. G. No. 350. Canadian Pacific Employees; Feb. 13, 1909 3821
1173. G. No. 351. Northwest Transport Line; Feb. 13, 1909 3822
1174. G. No. 352. Communications to the Press; Feb. 15, 1909 3824
1175. G. No. 355. Northwest Transport Line (G. No. 351); Feb. 16, 1909 3829
1176. G. No. 356 Northwest Transport Line (G. No. 355); Feb. 17, 1909 3830
1177. G. No. 357. North West Shipping Co. (G. No. 356); Feb. 18, 1909..... 3832

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
1178. Copy of letter annexed to G. No. 357, dated "57, Leadenhall St., London, Feb. 9, 1909"	3833
1179. G. No. 358. Northwest Transport Line (G. No. 350), Feb. 18, 1909	3834
1180. G. No. 359, North West Shipping Co. (G. No. 357), Feb. 19, 1909	3835
1181. G. No. 361. Communications to the Press (G. No. 352); Feb. 20, 1909	3837
1182. G. No. 362. Headed "(G. No. 359)"; Feb. 22, 1909	3838
1183. G. No. 364. Communications to the Press (G. No. 361); Feb. 25, 1909	3840
1184. G. No. 367. Russian Volunteer Fleet, Feb. 27, 1909	3844
1185. G. No. 368. Communications to the Press (G. No. 364); Feb. 27, 1909	3845
1186. G. No. 369. Northwest Transport Line (G. No. 362); Feb. 27, 1909	3847
1187. G. No. 370. Russian Volunteer Fleet (G. No. 367); Mar. 1, 1909	3849
1188. G. No. 371. Northwest Transport Line (G. No. 369); Mar. 1, 1909	3850
1189. G. No. 372. Northwest Transport Line (G. No. 365); Mar. 1, 1909	3852
1190. G. No. 373. Northwest Transport Line (G. No. 371); Mar. 2, 1909	3853
1191. G. No. 374. Communications to the Press (G. No. 368); Mar. 5, 1909	3854
1192. G. No. 375. North West Transport Line; Mar. 5, 1909	3855
1193. No. 376. Disqualifications, Mar. 5, 1909	3856
1194. G. No. 377. Arbitration White Star Line's Canadian Service, Mar. 8, 1909	3857

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1195.	G. No. 378. Outstanding Russian Prepaids of Russ. Volunteer Fleet, Mar. 8, 1909	3858
1196.	G. No. 380. North West Transport Line; Mar. 8, 1909	3860
1197.	G. No. 381. Payments to the Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co., Mar. 9, 1909...	3861
1198.	G. No. 382. Begins "Enclosed I beg to hand a copy"; Mar. 11, 1909	3862
1199.	G. No. 384. Begins "Enclosed I beg to hand the Agenda"; Mar. 13, 1909...	3867
1200.	Atlantic Conference Agenda of the Meeting in Paris, Hotel Meurice, on 25th Mar., 1909, at 10 A. M.	3867
1201.	Atlantic Conference—Supplement to the Agenda of the Meeting in Paris 25th Mar., 1909	3887
1202.	G. No. 385. North West Transport Line; Mar. 13, 1909	3869
1203.	G. No. 387. North West Transport Line (G. No. 385); Mar. 15, 1909	3873
1204.	G. No. 388. North West Transport Line and Russian Volunteer Fleet (G. No. 367); Mar. 16, 1909	3874
1205.	G. No. 390. North West Transport Line (G. No. 385); Mar. 17, 1909	3876
1206.	G. No. 393. Meeting March 25th; dated Mar. 19, 1909	3884
1207.	G. No. 394. North West Transport Line; Mar. 20, 1909	3885
1208.	G. No. 395. Begins "Please find"; dated, Mar. 20, 1909	3886
1209.	Atlantic Conference, Supplement to the Agenda of the Meeting in Paris, 25th March, 1909	3886
1210.	G. No. 397. North West Transport Line; Mar. 22, 1909	3892

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
1211. G. No. 398. Cunard Line's Fiume Service; Mar. 23, 1909	3893
1212. G. No. 399. North West Transport Line; Mar. 25, 1909	3895
1213. G. No. 400. North West Transport Line; Mar. 29, 1909	3899
1214. G. No. 402. North West Transport Line; Mar. 31, 1909	3907
1215. G. No. 403. North West Transport Line; April 1, 1909	3908
1216. G. No. 405. Advance in Continental Eastbound Steerage Rates; April 2, 1909	3909
1217. G. No. 407. North West Transport Line (G. No. 402); April 5, 1909 ...	3912
1218. G. No. 408. North West Transport Line (G. No. 407); April 7, 1909	3913
1219. G. No. 409. White Star £5 Greek Rate; April 8, 1909	3914
1220. G. No. 411. Agreement B. B., April 8, 1909	3916
1221. G. No. 412. Payments to and from the Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co.; April 10, 1909	3917
1222. G. No. 415. North West Transport Line (G. No. 414); April 13, 1909 ..	3920
1223. G. No. 416. Pooling Passengers to and from Newfoundland; April 14, 1909 ..	3921
1224. G. No. 417. North West Transport Line (G. No. 408); April 15, 1909 ...	3924
1225. G. No. 418. White Star £5 Greek Rate; April 15, 1909	3925
1226. G. No. 419. North West Transport Line; April 19, 1909	3929
1227. G. No. 420. White Star £5 Greek Rate (G. No. 418); April 20, 1909	3930

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1228.	G. No. 421. Communications to Parties outside the Agreements; April 20, 1909	3932
1229.	G. No. 422. North West Transport Line; April 20, 1909	3933
1230.	G. No. 423. II Cabin Rates; April 23, 1909	3934
1231.	G. No. 425. Proposed Second Cabin Pool; April 24, 1909	3936
1232.	G. No. 426. North West Transport Line; April 26, 1909	3937
1233.	G. No. 427. Pooling passengers to and from Newfoundland (G. No. 416); April 26, 1909	3938
1234.	G. No. 428. North West Transport Line; April 26, 1909	3940
1235.	G. No. 429. II Cabin Rates; April 28, 1909	3941
1236.	G. No. 430. II Cabin Rates (G. No. 429); April 29, 1909	3942
1237.	G. No. 431. II Cabin Statistics (G. No. 425); April 29, 1909	3943
1238.	G. No. 432. Arbitration Clause 107; April 30, 1909	3944
1239.	Carbon copy of letter to the Secretary, North Atlantic Passenger Conference, Liverpool, headed "Revision of Second Class Rates;" May 10, 1909	3948
1240.	G. No. 434. Begins "As next week I have to go"; May 1, 1909	3954
1241.	G. No. 435. Superlatives (G. No. 317); May 3, 1909	3955
1242.	G. No. 436. North West Transport Line (G. No. 433); May 4, 1909	3956
1243.	G. No. 437. Arbitration under Minute 107 (G. No. 432); May 6, 1909	3957
1244.	G. No. 438. Arbitration Allan-White Star Line (G. No. 396); May 6, 1909	3958

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1245.	G. No. 439. Revival Byelaw 22; May 6, 1909	3959
1246.	G. No. 440. Superlatives (G. No. 435); May 11, 1909	3960
1247.	G. No. 441. North West Transport Line (G. No. 436); May 11, 1909	3962
1248.	G. No. 442. II Cabin Rates; May 11, 1909	3963
1249.	G. No. 443. Begins, "Referring to the Monthly Statements"; May 11, 1909	3964
1250.	G. No. 445. Arbitration under Minutes 107 (G. No. 437); May 12, 1909	3966
1251.	G. No. 446. Printed as Exhibit No. 1332	3967
1252.	Circular letter to Hamburg-American Line, Holland-American Line, Norddeutscher Lloyd, Red Star Line, Cie. Gle. Transatlantique, Cunard Line, White Star Line, Anchor Line, beginning, "Enclosed I beg to hand"; May 13, 1909	3969
1253.	G. No. 448. North West Transport Line; May 13, 1909	3970
1254.	G. No. 449. Byelaw 21; May 15, 1909	3971
1255.	G. No. 450. Agent Büchel in Buchs (Switzerland); May 15, 1909	3972
1256.	Appendix to G. No. 450. Beginning, "For the information of the Croatian travelers"	3973
1257.	Translation of G. No. 450	3974
1258.	G. No. 451. Superlatives (G. No. 440); May 15, 1909	3975
1259.	G. No. 453. Superlative (G. No. 451); May 19, 1909	3977
1260.	G. No. 454. Arbitration under Minute 107 (G. No. 445); May 19, 1909	3978

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1261.	G. No. 455. Begins, "Of the passengers S. S. 'Uranium'"	3979
1262.	G. No. 11. Statistics; den 10 März, 1908	3282
1263.	G. No. 14. Begins "With regard to the Contract"; March 13, 1908	3289
1264.	G. No. 16. Begins "With reference to G. No. 11"; den 16 März,, 1908	3293
1265.	G. No. 23. Competition against "Volturno"; Mar. 24, 1908	3301
1266.	G. No. 26. Statistical Returns (G. Nos. 11, 16, 22); Mar. 30, 1908	3303
1267.	G. No. 29. Competition against "Volturno" (G. No. 23); April 1, 1908	3307
1268.	G. No. 35. Statistical Returns (G. No. 33); April 6, 1908	3314
1269.	G. No. 38. Competition for Continental Eastbound Steerage Business via Mediterranean Ports, Johnson & Co., April 8, 1908	3317
1270.	G. No. 50. Continental Passengers by Italian Lines (G. No. 38); April 23, 1908	3328
1271.	G. No. 54. Continental Passengers by Italian Lines (G. No. 50); Apr. 25, 1908	3336
1272.	G. No. 58. Begin "By bookpost registered I beg to send"; Apr. 28, 1908	3342
1273.	G. No. 60. Continental Passengers by Mediterranean Lines (G. No. 54); April 30, 1908	3346
1274.	G. No. 63. Monthly account, May 2, 1908	3350
1275.	G. No. 65. Pooling assisted destitute passengers (G. No. 39); May 4, 1908	3355
1276.	G. No. 68. Continental Passengers by Italian Lines (G. No. 66); May 5, 1908	3363

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1277.	G. No. 74. Monthly statement Atlantic Conference and Canadian Lines for March, 1908 (G. No. 63); May 7, 1908	3375
1278.	G. No. 77. Monthly statements for April (G. No. 55); 9th May, 1908...	3382
1279.	G. No. 79. New York & Continental Line (G. No. 71); May 9, 1908	3384
1280.	G. No. 81. Continental Passengers by Italian Lines (G. No. 73); May 11, 1908	3387
1281.	G. No. 87. Amended Monthly Statement for April (G. No. 77); May 13, 1908	3401
1282.	G. No. 97. Continental Steeragers by Italian Lines (G. No. 94), May 16, 1908	3411
1283.	G. No. 101. Begins "Informed the parties" May 19, 1908	3417
1284.	Circular letter headed "Subjects to be dealt with at the meeting in London, 25th of May, 1908, Savoy Hotel at 10 A. M."	3418
1285.	G. No. 115. Begins, "I repeat here the following cable"; May 29, 1908	3432
1286.	G. No. 125. Opposition Steamers (G. No. 123), June 4, 1908	3442
1287.	G. No. 127. Begins "Lloyd received from New York following cable"; June 4, 1908	3443
1288.	G. No. 130. Opposition Steamers (G. No. 123); June 6, 1908	3447
1289.	G. No. 140. Monthly Statements for May (G. No. 87); June 11, 1908 ...	3461
1290.	G. No. 165. Mediterranean Business; June 22, 1908	3498
1291.	G. No. 180. Definite print of the Agreements; July 1, 1908	3515

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1292.	G. No. 181. Meeting July 20th; July 1, 1908	3516
1293.	G. No. 190. Proposed Meeting; July 7, 1908	3532
1294.	G. No. 193. Monthly statements for June (G. No. 140); July 9, 1908	3537
1295.	G. No. 213. Meeting; July 24, 1908	3565
1296.	G. No. 216. Balancing pools against each other (G. No. 211); July 27, 1908	3568
1297.	G. No. 217. Advance in Eastbound Scandinavian Rates, July 29, 1908	3575
1298.	G. No. 228. Revision of percentages, Aug. 13, 1908	3592
1299.	Annex to G. No. 228. Headed "Westbound" and beginning "The westbound percentages"	3593
1300.	G. No. 252. Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co., Sept. 10, 1908	3629
1301.	G. No. 253. Monthly statements for August (G. No. 229); Sept. 11, 1908	3632
1302.	G. No. 257. Cunard's Fiume Service (G. No. 255); Sept. 21, 1908	3641
1303.	G. No. 258. Russian-Eastasiatic S. S. Co. (G. No. 252); Sept. 21, 1908	3642
1304.	G. No. 269. Agreement with Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co.; Oct. 2, 1908	3678
1305.	G. No. 287. Agreement with Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co.; Oct. 29, 1908	3704
1306.	Paper headed "Agreement B. B. Art. 3," Attached to G. No. 287	3705
1307.	G. No. 289. Highest Normal Third-class Rate (Article 13); Nov. 3, 1908	3710
1308.	G. No. 292. Agreement Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co. (G. No. 287); Nov. 9, 1908	3718
1309.	G. No. 296. First-class Rates Intermediate Season; Nov. 17, 1908	3722

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1310.	G. No. 305. Begins "Mr. A. Coshelanic-Onishcavich"; Nov. 28, 1908	3735
1311.	G. No. 311. Arbitration on Pooling of Cabin Passengers; Dec. 14, 1908	3749
1312.	G. No. 313. Italian Westbound Rates; Dec. 16, 1908	3752
1313.	G. No. 315. Pooling of Cabin Passengers; Dec. 19, 1908	3754
1314.	G. No. 322. Addressed "To the Parties interested in the Mediterranean Business"; Jan. 2, 1909	3766
1315.	G. No. 330. Commission on Cruises; Jan. 16, 1909	3784
1316.	Enclosure to G. No. 330. Headed "Allowance of more than 5% Commission to Agents in America on First-class Business dated Southampton"; 14th January, 1909	3785
1317.	G. No. 348. Begins "The Allan Line write"; Feb. 12, 1909	3819
1318.	G. No. 349. Payments to the Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co.; Feb. 13, 1909	3820
1319.	G. No. 353. Allan Line's notice (G. No. 348); Feb. 16, 1909	3825
1320.	G. No. 354. Rating S. S. "Lapland"; Feb. 16, 1909	3827
1321.	Appendix to G. No. 354, dated Southampton, Feb. 13 1909, beginning "I am asked to settle"	3828
1322.	G. No. 260. Allan Line's notice (G. No. 353); Feb. 20, 1909	3836
1323.	G. No. 363. Allan Line's notice (G. No. 360); Feb. 23, 1909	3839
1324.	G. No. 365. North West Transport Line; Feb. 26, 1909	3841
1325.	G. No. 386. Arbitration White Star Line's Canadian Service (G. No. 383); Mar. 15, 1909	3870

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1326.	G. No. 389. Mediterranean Westbound Business and Continental Lines; Mar. 16, 1909	3875
1327.	G. No. 392. Grand Trunk Railway Co.; Mar. 19, 1909	3881
1328.	G. No. 401. Begins "Enclosed I beg to hand typed copies"; Mar. 29, 1909	3906
1329.	Paper headed "Atlanta Conference-104. Revival Byelaw 22"; 1st Apr. 1909 ..	3900
1330.	G. No. 413. Advance in Eastbound Rates, April 10, 1909	3918
1331.	G. No. 433. North West Transport Line; April 30, 1909	3952
1332.	G. No. 446. Begins "The N. D. Lloyd inform me"; May 12, 1909	3967
1333.	G. No. 447. North West Transport Line (G. No. 441); May 13, 1909 ...	3968
1334.	G. No. 463. Minute 114, Commission to N. W. T. L. by Can. Railways; May 28, 1909	3993
1335.	Annex to G. No. 463. Headed "From I. I. & Co. L'pool, dated Mar. 29, 1909"	3994
1336.	G. No. 469. Min. 114 Commission to N. W. T. L. by Canadian Railways; June 1, 1909	4007
1337.	G. No. 488. Compensation "Estonia" (G. No. 470); June 12, 1909	4041
1338.	G. No. 525. American & Dominion Lines' Minus (G. No. 514); July 13, 1909	4092
1339.	G. No. 557. Compensation "Estonia" against "Volturno" 24/5. 09. (G. No. 517); Aug. 19, 1909	4138
1340.	G. No. 563. Headed "To the Parties," to Agreement V (G. No. 553); Aug. 21, 1909	4151

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1341.	G. No. 613. Payments to and from the Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co.; Oct. 7, 1909	4219
1342.	G. No. 614. Compensation Bill, Red Star Line (G. No. 593); Oct. 7, 1909	4220
1343.	G. No. 638. Appointment S. S. Russia against N. W. T. L. (G. No. 636); Nov. 3, 1909	4260
1344.	G. No. 653. A. C. Meeting (G. No. 651); Nov. 15, 1909	4281
1345.	G. No. 654. A. C. Meeting Agenda (G. No. 653); Nov. 16, 1909	4282
1346.	G. No. 659. Immco Allotment in Atlantic Conference (G. No. 35); Nov. 19, 1909	4288
1347.	G. No. 666. Begins "Enclosed I beg to send copies"; Nov. 29, 1909	4296
1348.	(Printed as part of Exhibit No. 1347.) Headed "Conference Meeting of Nov. 25, 1909, in London, Savoy Hotel."
1349.	(Printed as part of Exhibit No. 1347.) Begins "The subcommittee appointed by the General Meeting today recommends the following."
1350.	(Printed as part of Exhibit No. 1347.) Headed "Memo of Sub-Committee."
1351.	G. No. 456. Superlatives (G. No. 453); May 24, 1909	3980
1352.	Translation of G. No. 456	3980
1353.	G. No. 458. North West Transport Line; May 26, 1909	3988
1354.	G. No. 459. North West Transport Line (G. No. 452); May 26, 1909	3989
1355.	G. No. 461. North West Transport Line (G. No. 459); May 27, 1909	3991
1356.	G. No. 462. North West Transport Line (G. No. 459); May 27, 1909	3992

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1357.	G. No. 464. Prepaids Cancellation Fee; May 29, 1909	4001
1358.	G. No. 465. North West Transport Line (G. No. 462); May 29, 1909 ...	4002
1359.	G. No. 467. North West Transport Line (G. No. 447); May 29, 1909 ...	4004
1360.	G. No. 468. Superlatives (G. No. 451); June 1, 1909	4005
1361.	G. No. 470. North West Transport Line (G. No. 465); June 1, 1909 ...	4010
1362.	G. No. 471. Agent Büchel of Buchs (G. No. 450); June 2, 1909	4012
1363.	G. No. 480. Chas. Staehli (G. No. 452); June 7, 1909	4031
1364.	G. No. 482. Prepaids Cancellation Fee (G. No. 464); June 9, 1909	4033
1365.	G. No. 486. North West Transport Line; June 12, 1909	4039
1366.	G. No. 487. Corecco and Brivio (G. No. 467); June 12, 1909	4040
1367.	G. No. 489. North West Transport Line (G. No. 481); June 12, 1909 ..	4043
1368.	G. No. 490. North West Transport Line (G. No. 489); June 14, 1909 ..	4044
1369.	G. No. 491. North West Transport Line (G. No. 490); June 14, 1909 ..	4045
1370.	G. No. 492. II Cabin Statistics (G. No. 457); June 15, 1909	4046
1371.	G. No. 493. North West Transport Line (G. No. 491); June 16, 1909 ..	4047
1372.	G. No. 497. North West Transport Line (G. No. 495); June 19, 1909 ..	4052
1373.	G. No. 499. Compensation S. S. "Estonia" against "Volturno" 5/24. 09. June 22, 1909	4054
1374.	G. No. 500. Russian Volunteer prepaids from Libau (G. No. 478); June 23, 1909	4056

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1375.	Annex to G. No. 500, headed "R. V. F. Libau Prepaids carried by Russian-America Line"	4060
1376.	G. No. 502. Second Class Rate, June 26, 1909	4062
1377.	G. No. 508. Compensation "Russia" against "Uranium" June 23, '09; dated July 2, 1909	4070
1378.	G. No. 511. Second Class Rates (G. No. 502); July 3, 1909	4076
1379.	G. No. 514. Begins "On June 11th the American Line wrote"; July 6, 1909	4079
1380.	G. No. 517. Compensation "Estonia" against "Volturno" 24/5. 1909 (G. No. 499); July 7, 1909	4083
1381.	G. No. 518. North West Transport Line and Lozantcheff Freres, Monastir; July 7, 1909	4084
1382.	G. No. 519. Net Rates; July 7, 1909	4085
1383.	G. No. 523. Advance second class rates (G. No. 511); July 10, 1909	4090
1384.	G. No. 524. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 507); July 12, 1909	4091
1385.	G. No. 528. American & Dominion Lines' Minus (G. No. 525); July 19, 1909	4096
1386.	G. No. 529. N. W. T. L. and Lozantcheff Freres, Monastir (G. No. 518); July 20, 1909	4099
1387.	G. No. 531. North West Transport Line (G. No. 527); July 22, 1909	4101
1388.	G. No. 532. North West Transport Line (G. No. 531); July 22, 1909	4102
1389.	G. No. 533. Harry Cohen, Bremen, July 24, 1909	4104
1390.	G. No. 534. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 524); July 26, 1909	4105

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1391.	G. No. 535. American & Dominion Lines' Minus (G. No. 528); July 26, 1909	4106
1392.	G. No. 538. Agreement C. C. (G. No. 515); July 28, 1909	4114
1393.	G. No. 540. North West Transport Line (G. No. 537); July 30, 1909	4118
1394.	G. No. 542. N. W. T. L. Lozantcheff Freres, Monastir (G. No. 529); July 31, 1909	4120
1395.	G. No. 544. Compensation to "Oceanic" (G. No. 536); Aug. 2, 1909	4122
1396.	G. No. 545. North West Transport Line (G. No. 543); Aug. 3, 1909	4123
1397.	G. No. 548. Cruise Business; Aug. 9, 1909	4126
1398.	G. No. 551. Agreement V, Eastbound Seasons; Aug. 12, 1909	4130
1399.	G. No. 554. North West Transport Line (G. No. 552); Aug. 16, 1909	4135
1400.	G. No. 555. Minimum Rates for British & Scandinavian Business (G. No. 528); Aug. 16, 1909	4136
1401.	G. No. 559. P. Kapeller & Sons, Czernowitz; Aug. 20, 1909	4141
1402.	G. No. 561. Compensation of S. S. "Lituania" against S. S. "Raglan Castle," June 26. Compensation of S. S. "Russia," June 5, against S. S. "Uranium," June 9. Dated Aug. 21, 1909	4145
1403.	G. No. 567. P. Kapeller & Sons, Czernowitz (G. No. 559); Aug. 27, 1909	4154
1404.	G. No. 568. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 541); Aug. 28, 1909	4155
1405.	G. No. 570. P. Kapeller & Söhne, Czernowitz (G. No. 567); Aug. 31, 1909	4160

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1406. G. No. 571. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 568); Aug. 31, 1909 4161
1407. (Printed as part of Exhibit No. 1406.) Letter to the Anchor Line, Glasgow, dated Basle, 24th August, 1909 4162
1408. G. No. 572. Continental Steeragers by Mediterranean Steamers; Sept. 2, 1909 4163
1409. G. No. 573. North West Transport Line; Sept. 2, 1909 4164
1410. G. No. 574. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 571); Sept. 3, 1909 4166
1411. G. No. 575. North West Transport Line (G. No. 566); Sept. 6, 1909 4168
1412. G. No. 576. Byelaw 22 (G. No. 573); Sept. 7, 1909 4168
1413. G. No. 580. Continental Steeragers by Mediterranean Lines (G. No. 572); Sept. 10, 1909 4171
1414. G. No. 582. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 574); Sept. 11, 1909 4174
1415. G. No. 583. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 582); Sept. 13, 1909 4175
1416. G. No. 584. Compensation, Fighting Steamer "Birma"; Sept. 14, 1909 4176
1417. G. No. 585. Increased Commission for fighting purposes (G. No. 576); Sept. 14, 1909 4179
1418. G. No. 586. Change in Rates of Russ-asiatic; Sept. 14, 1909 4182
1419. G. No. 587. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 583); Sept. 15, 1909 4183
1420. G. No. 588. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 587); Sept. 17, 1909 4185
1421. G. No. 589. Increased Commission for fighting purposes (G. No. 585); Sept. 18, 1909 4187
1422. G. No. 590. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 588); Sept. 21, 1909 4188

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1423. G. No. 591. Reisebureau "Vaterland" (G. No. 588); Sept. 21, 1909 4189

1424. G. No. 592. Compensation fighting steamer "Birma" (G. No. 584); Sept. 22, 1909 4191

1425. Circular letter to Cunard Line, White Star Line, Hamburg-Amerika Linie, Norddeutscher Lloyd, headed "Extension of Byelaw 106 to Medit. Traffic"; Sept. 24, 1909 4193

1426. G. No. 594. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 590); Sept. 24, 1909 4194

1427. G. No. 595. Russian-American Line and Byelaw 22 (G. No. 592); Sept. 24, 1909 4196

1428. G. No. 596. Rates Russamerika (G. No. 586); Sept. 24, 1909 4197

1429. G. No. 599. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 594); Sept. 27, 1909 4201

1430. G. No. 600. Reise-Bureau "Vaterland" (G. No. 591); Sept. 27, 1909 4202

1431. G. No. 601. North West Transport Line (G. No. 597); Sept. 27, 1909 .. 4205

1432. G. No. 604. N. W. T. L. Lozantcheff Frères, Monastir (G. No. 542); Sept. 28, 1909 4207

1433. Circular letter to Cunard Line, White Star Line, Hamburg-Amerika Linie, Norddeutscher Lloyd, headed "Extension of Byelaw 106 to Mediterranean Traffic"; Oct. 1, 1909 4209

1434. G. No. 607. Reisebureau "Vaterland" (G. No. 600 Annex); Oct. 1, 1909 ... 4212

1435. G. No. 608. Minutes & Byelaws; Oct. 2, 1909 4213

1436. G. No. 610. N. W. T. L. Lozantcheff Frères, Monastir (G. No. 604); Oct. 5, 1909 4215

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
1437. G. No. 611. Donaldson Line, Eastbound; Oct. 6, 1909	4217
1438. G. No. 615. Byelaw 126 (G. No. 608); Oct. 9, 1909	4223
1439. G. No. 619. II Class Rates Russian-America Line (G. No. 606); Oct. 13, 1909	4236
1440. G. No. 620. Donaldson Line, Eastbound (G. No. 611); Oct. 14, 1909 ..	4237
1441. G. No. 622. N. W. T. L. Lozantscheff Frères, Monastir (G. No. 610); Oct. 18, 1909	4239
1442. G. No. 625. Scandinavian-American Line; Oct. 22, 1909	4244
1443. G. No. 627. Donaldson Line, Eastbound Passengers (G. No. 620); Oct. 23, 1909	4246
1444. G. No. 629. N. W. T. L. Lozantcheff Frères, Monastir (G. No. 622); Oct. 25, 1909	4248
1445. G. No. 630. North West Transport Line (G. No. 626); Oct. 26, 1909 ..	4249
1446. G. No. 631. Net Rates (G. No. 519); Oct. 26, 1909	4250
1447. G. No. 632. North West Transport Line (G. No. 630); Oct. 28, 1909 ..	4251
1448. G. No. 634. North West Transport Line (G. No. 626); Oct. 29, 1909 ..	4253
1449. G. No. 635. North West Transport Line (G. No. 634); Oct. 30, 1909 ..	4254
1450. G. No. 636. Appointment S. S. Russia against N. W. T. L. (G. No. 595); Oct. 30, 1909	4255
1451. G. No. 637. Dominion Line's Shortage Westbound; Nov. 1, 1909	4256
1452. G. No. 639. Net Rates (G. No. 631); Nov. 4, 1909	4261

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1453.	G. No. 640. North West Transport Line (G. No. 635); Nov. 8, 1909	4262
1454.	G. No. 642. North West Transport Line (G. No. 638); Nov. 9, 1909	4264
1455.	G. No. 646. Proposed II Class Pool (G. No. 492); Nov. 11, 1909	4267
1456.	Annex to G. No. 646 to Messrs. The Norddeutscher Lloyd; 21st October, 1909	4268
1457.	Annex to G. No. 646, headed "Copy of letter from Norddeutscher Lloyd" to "Ismay, Imrie & Co."; Bremen, 28 October, 1909	4270
1458.	Annex to G. No. 646. To Messrs. The Norddeutscher Lloyd, Bremen, from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; Oct. 30, 1909	4272
1459.	Annex to G. No. 646. To Ismay, Imrie & Co., from the Norddeutscher Lloyd, Bremen; Nov. 1, 1909	4273
1460.	Annex to G. No. 646. To Ismay, Imrie & Co., from Norddeutscher Lloyd (signed) v. Helmolt, Bremen; Oct. 17, 1909	4273
1461.	G. No. 649. Net rates (G. No. 639); Nov. 12, 1909	4276
1462.	G. No. 650. North West Transport Line (G. No. 642); Nov. 12, 1909	4277
1463.	G. No. 655. Payments to the Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co. (G. No. 647); Nov. 18, 1909	4282
1464.	G. No. 657. North West Transport Line (G. No. 650); Nov. 18, 1909	4284
1465.	G. No. 658. Proposed II Class Pool (G. No. 646); Nov. 18, 1909	4285
1466.	G. No. 662. A. C. Meeting; Nov., 1909	4290
1467.	Supplement to Agenda of A. C. Meeting, London; Nov. 25, 1909	4291

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued.)

		Page
1468.	G. No. 667. Begins "The list of representatives"; Nov. 30, 1908	4304
1469.	(Printed as part of Exhibit 1468) headed "Conference Meeting of Nov. 25th, 1909, in London, Savoy Hotel"	4304
1470.	G. No. 668. Blue Star Line; Dec. 3, 1909	4306
1471.	Circular letter to Cunard Line, White Star Line, Hamburg-Amerika Linie, Norddeutscher Lloyd, headed "Extension of Byelaw 106 to Med. Business (Sept. 24, 1909)"; dated Dec. 4, 1909	4308
1472.	G. No. 670. Minutes Meeting Nov. 25th (G. No. 657); Dec. 4, 1909	4309
1473.	(Printed as part of Exhibit No. 1472), begins "All lines agreed to make a general advance"	4310
1474.	G. No. 671. Begins "The Cunard Line mention"; Dec. 6, 1909	4311
1475.	G. No. 672. Blue Star Line (G. No. 668); Dec. 6, 1909	4312
1476.	G. No. 673. Final Statistics for 1908; Dec. 7, 1909	4314
1477.	G. No. 675. North West Transport Line (G. No. 669); Dec. 7, 1909	4316
1478.	G. No. 680. Blue Star Line (G. No. 672); Dec. 17, 1909	4322
1479.	G. No. 681. Norway-Mexico Gulf Line Passenger Service; Dec. 17, 1909....	4323
1480.	G. No. 682. North West Transport Line (G. No. 675); Dec. 20, 1909 ...	4324
1481.	G. No. 684. Blue Star Line (G. No. 672); Dec. 20, 1909	4326
1482.	G. No. 686. North West Transport Line (G. No. 682); Dec. 21, 1909	4329
1483.	G. No. 688. Blue Star Line (G. No. 685); Dec. 22, 1909	4331

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1484.	G. No. 689. North West Transport Line (G. No. 686); Dec. 22, 1909 ...	4332
1485.	G. No. 690. North West Transport Line (G. No. 689); Dec. 27, 1909 ...	4337
1486.	G. No. 691. North West Transport Line (G. No. 689); Dec. 28, 1909...	4338
1487.	Circular letter "To the Parties," headed "Secretary's Salary"; Jan. 3, 1910	4339
1488.	G. No. 693. Arbitration Allan Line, New Foundland Passengers (G. No. 683); Jan. 3, 1910	4340
1489.	Enclosure in G. No. 693. Letter to Henry Wilding, Esq., Southampton; dated Glasgow, 9th Dec., 1909.....	4341
1490.	Enclosure in G. No. 693, headed "Atlantic Conference—Arbitration"	4343
1491.	G. No. 695. North West Transport Line (G. No. 694); Jan. 5, 1910	4348
1492.	G. No. 696. Thomson Line to Canada; Jan. 7, 1910	4349
1493.	G. No. 699. Compensation for fighting rate S. S. "Baltic," Nov. 6th; dated Jan. 11, 1910	4353
1494.	G. No. 700. Compensation for passengers carried at fighting rates by S. S. "Estonia," Nov. 20, etc.; dated, Jan. 11, 1910	4355
1495.	G. No. 701. Payments to the Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co.; Jan. 11, 1910	4358
1496.	G. No. 706. Hapag & Lloyd eastbound percentages; Jan. 17, 1910	4365
1497.	G. No. 707. North West Transport Line (G. No. 698); Jan. 18, 1910 ...	4365
1498.	G. No. 709. North West Transport Line (G. No. 707); Jan. 7, 1910	4367
1500.	G. No. 711. Compensation for fighting rates; Jan. 20, 1910	4369

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1501.	G. No. 712. North West Transport Line (G. No. 709); Jan. 22, 1910	4370
1502.	Annex to G. No. 712, headed "Cut of Steamer"	4371
1503.	G. No. 714. North West Transport Line (G. No. 712); Jan. 25, 1910	4372
1504.	G. No. 715. Award Allan Line Newfoundland Passengers (G. No. 693); Jan. 27, 1910	4373
1505.	Annex to G. No. 715, headed "Allan Line—Newfoundland Passengers"; dated Southampton, Jan. 17, 1910	4374
1506.	G. No. 718. Blue Star Line (G. No. 708); Feb. 3, 1910	4379
1507.	Translation of G. No. 718	4380
1508.	G. No. 719. North West Transport Line (G. No. 716); Feb. 3, 1910	4381
1509.	G. No. 720. Compensation for passengers carried at fighting rates by S. S. "Neckar," Dec. 18; "S. S. "Zieten," Dec. 23; S. S. "Russia," Jan. 1; dated Feb. 4, 1910	4382
1510.	G. No. 722. Pool adjustment; Feb. 7, 1910	4387
1511.	G. No. 723. Allan Line, Newfoundland Passengers (G. No. 715); den 8 Februar, 1910	4389
1512.	G. No. 724. North West Transport Line (G. No. 721); February 8, 1910	4392
1513.	G. No. 726. Allan Line, Newfoundland Passengers (G. No. 723); Feb. 10, 1910	4394
1514.	G. No. 727. Pool adjustment (G. No. 722); Feb. 10, 1910	4395
1515.	G. No. 728. Payments under Agreement BB; Feb. 12, 1910	4397

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1516.	G. No. 729. Lloyd Phila-Balto Service; Feb. 12, 1910	4398
1517.	G. No. 731. Pool adjustment (G. No. 727); Feb. 14, 1910	4401
1518.	G. No. 733. Allan Line, Newfoundland Passengers (G. No. 726); Feb. 14, 1910	4403
1519.	G. No. 735. North West Transport Line (G. No. 732); Feb. 17, 1910	4409
1520.	G. No. 737. Blue Star Line (G. No. 718); Feb. 17, 1910	4411
1521.	Translation of G. No. 737	4412
1522.	G. No. 739. Arbitration Allan's Newfoundland Passengers (G. No. 733); Feb. 19, 1910	4414
1523.	G. No. 742. Change in Rates; Feb. 19, 1910	4423
1524.	G. No. 743. North West Transport Line (G. No. 738); Feb. 19, 1910	4424
1525.	G. No. 744. Allan Line, Newfoundland Passengers; Feb. 19, 1910	4425
1526.	G. No. 745. Allan Line, Newfoundland Passengers (G. No. 744); Feb. 21, 1910	4426
1527.	G. No. 746. North West Transport Line (G. No. 743); Feb. 21, 1910	4427
1528.	G. No. 749. North West Transport Line (G. No. 746); Feb. 22, 1910	4430
1529.	Annex to G. No. 749, headed "North West Transport Line," and dated New York, Feb. 5, 1910	4431
1530.	G. No. 751. Blue Star Line (G. No. 737); Feb. 25, 1910	4434
1531.	G. No. 754. Pool adjustment (G. No. 731); Feb. 26, 1910	4438
1532	G. No. 757. Blue Star Line (G. No. 751); Mar. 1, 1910	4442

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1533.	G. No. 760. Begins "With reference to the Cunard Line's advance"; Mar. 2, 1910	4446
1534.	G. No. 762. Allan Line, Newfoundland Passengers (G. No. 745); Mar. 7, 1910	4448
1535.	G. No. 766. Measures for adjustment (G. No. 760); Mar. 9, 1910	4452
1536.	G. No. 770. Measures of adjustment (G. No. 766); Mar. 10, 1910	4458
1537.	G. No. 778. Allan Line, Newfoundland Passengers (G. No. 762); Mar. 16, 1910	4470
1538.	G. No. 781. North West Transport Line (G. No. 780); Mar. 18, 1910	4476
1539.	G. No. 788. Thomson Line (G. No. 755); Mar. 26, 1910	4485
1540.	G. No. 790. North West Transport Line (G. No. 786); Mar. 26, 1910	4487
1541.	G. No. 796. G. Schyns, Antwerp; April 4, 1910	4500
1542.	G. No. 797. North West Transport Line (G. No. 790); April 4, 1910	4501
1543.	G. No. 798. North West Transport Line (G. No. 797); April 5, 1910	4502
1544.	G. No. 800. North West Transport Line (G. No. 798); April 6, 1910	4504
1545.	G. No. 806. North West Transport Line (G. No. 798); April 9, 1910	4513
1546.	G. No. 808. Metrovitz & Bonuschevitz, Belgrade (G. No. 789); April 11, 1910	4515
1547.	G. No. 809. Synopsis of Minutes; April 12, 1910	4516
1548.	Annex to G. No. 809, headed "Synopsis of Minutes to be considered as Byelaws under Agreement AA and Additions and Amendments to the Agreements V and W" including Byelaw 22, etc.	4517

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1549.	Paper headed "Additions and Amendments to Agreement 'V' " re minimum I Class rates	4522
1550.	Paper headed "Additions & Amendments to Agreement 'W,' " re minimum II Class rates	4523
1551.	G. No. 812. North West Transport Line (G. No. 780); April 13, 1910	4526
1552.	G. No. 813. North West Transport Line (G. No. 807)—Thomson Line (G. No. 801); April 15, 1910	4528
1553.	G. No. 815. Thomson Line (G. No. 813); April 16, 1910	4530
1554.	G. No. 816. North West Transport Line (G. No. 813)—Thomson Line (G. No. 815); April 18, 1910	4531
1555.	G. No. 817. North West Transport Line (G. No. 816); April 20, 1910	4532
1556.	G. No. 820. Meeting; April 21, 1910	4537
1557.	Atlantic Conference Meeting, Paris, Hotel Majestic; May 5, 1910, at 10 A. M.—Agenda	4538
1558.	G. No. 824. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd.; April 29, 1910	4542
1559.	Circular letter headed "Regulations of Continental Lines' Rates"; April 30, 1910	4545
1560.	Paper beginning "We beg to refer to Minute No. 129, reading"	4546
1561.	G. No. 826. Paris Meeting, May 5th, 1910 (G. No. 820); April 30, 1910	4550
1562.	Enclosure in G. No. 826, headed "List of gentlemen who will be present at the A. C. Meeting at Paris, Hotel Majestic"; May 5th, 1910	4551
1563.	G. No. 828. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 823); May 2, 1910	4554

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
1564. G. No. 829. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 824); May 3, 1910	4555
1565. G. No. 830. Begins "I herewith beg to send copies"; May 7, 1910	4556
1566. Annex to G. No. 830, headed "Agreement for Eastbound Steerage Business"; dated London, Mar. 3, 1910 ...	4557
1567. G. No. 831. Payments for April; May 9, 1910	4559
1567a. G. No. 899. Westbound Adjustment (G. No. 892); July 11, 1910	4663
1568. G. No. 836. Regulations to N. A. P. C. Agents; May 11, 1910	4564
1569. G. No. 838. Eastbound Agreement with Scandinavian Line; May 13, 1910	4566
1570. G. No. 839. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 837); May 14, 1910	4567
1571. G. No. 840. Agent Schyns, Antwerp, (G. No. 796); May 14, 1910	4568
1572. G. No. 842. Regulations to N. A. P. C. Agents (G. No. 836); May 14, 1910 ..	4570
1573. G. No. 843. Compensation for fighting rates & Scandinavian-American Line; May 18, 1910	4571
1574. G. No. 844. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 839); May 20, 1910	4572
1575. G. No 854. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 852); May 30, 1910	4587
1576. G. No. 857. Marked "Confidential," beginning "I am informed that these last days"; May 31, 1910	4591
1577. G. No. 860. Royal Line (G. No. 856); June 6, 1910	4593
1578. G. No. 861. Thomson Line (G. No. 848); June 7, 1910	4594
1579. G. No. 862. Revision of Byelaws (G. No. 845); June 7, 1910	4595

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
1580. G. No. 868. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 854); June 10, 1910	4601
1581. G. No. 873. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 872); June 13, 1910	4606
1582. G. No. 877. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 873); June 16, 1910	4610
1583. Circular letter to "Anchor Line, Cunard Line, White Star Line and Royal Line," beginning "I beg to confirm my yesterday's telegram, reading;" June 29, 1910	4633
1584. Circular letter to "Anchor Line, Cunard Line, White Star Line and Royal Line and Uranium S. S. Co.," beginning "Attached hereto I beg to send copies"; July 14, 1910	4673
1585. G. No. 913. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd.; July 18, 1910	4684
1586. Circular letter to "Anchor Line, Cunard Line, White Star Line," beginning "In the minutes sent to the parties"; July 20, 1910	4688
1587. G. No. 916. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 913); July 21, 1910	4688
1588. G. No. 922. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 920); July 28, 1910	4693
1589. G. No. 927. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 926); Aug. 1, 1910	4698
1590. G. No. 930. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 927); Aug. 3, 1910	4701
1591. G. No. 931. Westbound Adjustment (G. Nos. 903, 899, 892, 882); Aug. 4, 1910	4702
1592. G. No. 932. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 930); Aug. 4, 1910	4707
1593. G. No. 935. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 934); Aug. 6, 1910	4713
1594. G. No. 936. Thomson Line (G. No. 902); Aug. 8, 1910	4714

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

	Page
1595. G. No. 937. Royal Line (G. No. 925); Aug. 8, 1910	4714
1596. G. No. 491. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 935); Aug. 11, 1910	4718
1597. G. No. 946. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 943); Aug. 15, 1910	4726
1598. G. No. 947. Cunard Westbound Adjustment (G. No. 931); Aug. 16, 1910	4727
1599. G. No. 948. Modeste Kilian; Aug. 16, 1910	4728
1600. G. No. 949. Royal Line; Aug. 16, 1910	4729
1601. G. No. 950. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 946); Aug. 17, 1910	4730
1602. G. No. 953. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 950); Aug. 19, 1910	4733
1603. G. No. 959. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 958); Aug. 25, 1910	4740
1604. G. No. 964. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 961); Aug. 29, 1910	4746
1605. G. No. 966. Norwegian American Line (G. No. 702); Aug. 30, 1910	4750
1606. G. No. 971. Eastbound Agreement Royal Line (G. No. 949); Sept. 6, 1910	4756
1607. G. No. 977. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 970); Sept. 9, 1910	4763
1608. G. No. 978. Thomson Line (G. No. 963); den 10 September 1910	4764
1609. G. No. 979. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 977); Sept. 12, 1910	4765
1610. G. No. 980. Interval in Scandinavian American Line's Sailings; Sept. 15, 1910	4766
1611. G. No. 982. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 979); Sept. 15, 1910	4769
1612. G. No. 983. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 982); Sept. 16, 1910	4770

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1613. G. No. 985. Second Class Rates; Sept. 19, 1910 4772
1614. G. No. 987. Royal Line (G. No. 971); Sept. 21, 1910 4775
1615. G. No. 988. Norwegian American Line (G. No. 966); Sept. 22, 1910 4776
1616. G. No. 991. Scandinavian American Line (G. No. 980); Sept. 24, 1910.. 4779
1617. G. No. 994. Compensation fighting steamer "Graf Waldersee" Aug. 18th (G. No. 986); Sept. 24, 1910 4782
1618. G. No. 995. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 993); Sept. 26, 1910 4784
1619. G. No. 996. Second Class Rates (G. No. 985); Sept. 27, 1910 4785
1620. Annex to G. No. 996 headed "Letter of the Allan Line"; dated 21st inst. 4786
1621. G. No. 998. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 995); Sept. 29, 1910 4791
1622. G. No. 1000. Begins "I beg to promulgate the following letter"; Sept. 30, 1910 4793
1623. G. No. 1002. Second Class Rates (G. No. 996); Oct. 1, 1910 4795
1624. G. No. 1003. Scandinavian American Line (G. No. 991), Oct. 3, 1910 4796
1625. G. No. 1006. Norwegian American Line (G. No. 988) Oct. 5, 1910 4803
1626. G. No. 1009. New Greek Line, Oct. 7, 1910 4806
1627. G. No. 1013. Karlsberg, Spiro & Co. (G. No. 1005); Oct. 8, 1910 4810
1628. G. No. 1015. Sale of Steamers to competitors (G. No. 1009); Oct. 14, 1910 4812
1629. G. No. 1018. Russian American Line; Oct. 15, 1910 4817

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
1630.	G. No. 1020. Compensation fighting steamers S. S. Celtic, April 23; Lapland, May 21; Maine, June 23 (G. No. 994); dated Oct. 18, 1910	4819
1631.	G. No. 1024. Supplying tonnage to new competition (G. No. 1022); Oct. 19, 1910	4826
1632.	G. No. 1028. Banque de Sofia-Dundoff; Oct. 22, 1910	4836
1633.	G. No. 1033. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 1032); Oct. 25, 1910	4841
1634.	G. No. 1037. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 1035); Nov. 3, 1910	4845
1635.	G. No. 1047. A. C. Meeting; Nov. 9, 1910	4855
1636.	G. No. 1050 Banque de Sofia-Dundoff (G. No. 1028); Nov. 12, 1910	4858
1637.	G. No. 1052. A. C. Meeting; Nov. 14, 1910	4860
1638.	G. No. 1057. Agreement C. C.; Nov. 18, 1910	4864
1639.	G. No. 1060. Proposed changes in rates; Nov. 19, 1910	4866
1640.	G. No. 1063. A. C. Meeting, London 24th Novbr.; dated Nov. 21, 1910	4870
1641.	(Printed as part of exhibit No. 1640) headed "Supplement to the Agenda of London Meeting, Novbr. 24th, 1910"	4870
1642.	G. No. 1064. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1051); Nov. 24, 1910	4871
1643.	G. No. 1077. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1076); Dec. 3, 1910	4887
1644.	G. No. 1086. Initial steerage rates 1911; Dec. 10, 1910	4895
1645.	G. No. 1090. Rates from Jan'y 1st, 1911; dated Dec. 17, 1910	4900
1646.	G. No. 1098A. Secretary's Salary; Dec. 29, 1910	4919

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1647. G. No. 1100. Compensation for fighting steamers (G. No. 1096) etc.; Dec. 30, 1910 4922

1648. G. No. 1103. Begins "The Holland American Line inform me"; Dec. 31, 1910 4925

1649 to 1671. Letters to the Hamburg American Line, Hamburg from the Hamburg American Line, New York, dated as follows:

1649. Mar. 10, 1908 2979
1650. April 8, 1908 2980
1651. April 14, 1908 2982
1652. April 22, 1908 2983
1653. April 24, 1908 2984
1654. May 1, 1908 2985
1655. May 4, 1908 2986
1656. May 12, 1908 2989
1657. Feb. 11, 1909 2990
1658. Mar. 1, 1909 2991
1659. Sept. 28, 1909 2992
1660. Oct. 11, 1909 2993
1661. Oct. 15, 1909 2994
1662. Oct. 25, 1909 2994
1663. Oct. 29, 1909 2995
1664. Nov. 12, 1909 2996
1665. Dec. 7, 1909 2997
1666. Dec. 21, 1909 2998
1667. Dec. 28, 1909 2999
1668. Dec. 31, 1909 3000
1669. Jan. 5, 1910 3001
1670. Jan. 17, 1910 3002
1671. Jan. 25, 1910 3003

1672 to 1677. Letters to Hamburg American Line (Passenger Department) Hamburg, signed "Hamburg American Line, per E. Lederer," dated as follows:

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1672. Feb. 1, 1910 3004
1673. Feb. 8, 1910 3005
1674. Mar. 16, 1910 3006
1675. Mar. 21, 1910 3007
1676. Mar. 22, 1910 3008
1677. April 5, 1910 3009
1678 to 1693. Translations of letters to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg signed "Hamburg American Line per E. Lederer" unless otherwise stated, and dated as follows:
1678. April 12, 1910 3010
1679. May 3, 1910 3011
1680. May 12, 1910 3011
1681. May 27, 1910 3012
1682. June 13, 1910 3013
1683. July 11, 1910 3014
1684. July 11, 1910 3015
1685. July 22, 1910 3016
1686. Aug. 5, 1910 3017
1687. Sept. 16, 1910 3018
1688. Oct. 13, 1910, signed "per H. Doblin" 3019
1689. Oct. 14, 1910 3020
1690. Oct. 31, 1910, signed "per H. Doblin" 3021
1691. Nov. 14, 1910 3022
1692. Nov. 28, 1910 3023
1693. Dec. 12, 1910 3024
1694 to 1713. Cables from Hamburg American Line, New York, to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, dated as follows:
1694. Jan. 2, 6, 7, 8, 1908 3025
1695. Jan. 9, 10, 11, 11, 1908 3026
1696. Jan. 13; Feb. 3, 1908 3027
1697. Jan. 14, 15, 1908 3028

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1698. Jan. 20, 21, 29; Feb. 10, 18, 1908 3029
1699. Feb. 24, 25, 26; Mar. 1, 1908 3031
1700. Mar. 14, 24, 25, 26, 27, 1908 3032
1701. Mar. 24, 30; April 8, 11, 1908 3033
1702. Apr. 15, 20, 20, 22, 22, 1908 3034
1703. Apr. 28, 28; May 4, 6, 7, 13, 1908 3036
1704. June 10, 22, 24, 29, 30; July 3, 1908 3038
1705. July 7, 23; Aug. 6, 7; Sept. 5, 1908 3040
1706. Nov. 4, 19, 20; Dec. 2, 1908 3041
1707. Dec. 11, 1908 3042
1708. Feb. 11, 1909 3043
1709. Feb. 2; April 12, 26; May 12, 18, 22, 1909 3043
1710. May 25; June 9; Oct. 11, 23, 25, 1909; Nov. 8, 1909 3045
1711. Nov. 22; Dec. 6, 1909 3046
1712. Jan. 4, 24, 31; Feb. 14; 1910; Mar. 9, 1910 3047
1713. Mar. 14, 24; April 4, 11, 1910 3048

1714 to 1720. Translations of cables from Hamburg American Line, New York to Hamburg American Line, Hamburg, dated as follows:

1714. April 26, 28; May 2, 10, 25, 1910 3049
1715. June 7, 11, 24; July 8, 8, 1910 3051
1716 July 22; Aug. 5, 10, 19; Sept. 2, 1910 3052
1717. Sept. 7, 12, 16, 30; Oct. 8, 1910 3053
1718. Oct. 11, 14, 18, 28, 1910; Nov. 11, 1910 3054
1719. Nov. 12, 23, 25; Dec. 5, 9, 1910 3056

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
	1720. Dec. 23, 1910	3057
1721 to 1728.	Translations of cables from Hamburg American Line, Hamburg to Hamburg American Line, New York, Dated as follows:
	1721. Feb. 18; Mar. 11, 24, 27, 1908	3058
	1722. Mar. 30, 30; April 3, 9, 1908	3059
	1723. April 19, 28; May 6, 16, 1908	3060
	1724. May 18, July 1, 1908; Mar. 4; April 16, 1909	3062
	1725. June 5; Oct. 23; Nov. 11, 10; Dec. 31, 1909	3063
	1726. July 8; Aug. 15; Sept. 7, 12, 1910; Oct. 18, 1910	3064
	1727. Nov. 21, 22; Dec. 16, 22, 1910	3065
	1728. Dec. 30, 1910; Jan. 6, 1911..	3066
1729.	Letter from Red Star Line, New York to Red Star Line, Antwerp, June 17, 1910	3066
1730.	Letter to W. W. Jefferies, Esq., New York from Red Star Line, Antwerp, June 9, 1910	3067
1731.	Letter to W. W. Jeffries, Esq., from F. Swain, Liverpool, May 25, 1910	3067
1732.	Letter to W. W. Jefferies, Esq. from Red Star Line, Antwerp, May 17, 1910	3068
1733.	Letter to Mr. Ed. Strasser, beginning "In thinking the matter over again"; Mar. 24, 1910	3068
1734.	Letter to W. W. Jefferies, Esq. from A. B. Cauty, Feb. 28, 1910	3069
1735.	Letter to W. W. Jefferies, Esq. from A. B. Cauty, Liverpool, Feb. 8, 1910	3070
1736.	Letter to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co., Dec. 17, 1909	3071
1737.	Letter to Lawson Sandford, signed "Passenger Department per "; Dec. 8, 1909	3072

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1738. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from "Passenger Department per "; Dec. 7, 1909 3074

1739. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from "Passenger Department per "; Dec. 7, 1909 3075

1740. Letter to American Line, New York from American Line, Liverpool; July 29, 1910 3077

1741. Letter to American Line, Liverpool from American Line, New York; July 29, 1910 3078

1742. Letter to American Line, New York from American Line, Liverpool, June 11, 1910 3079

1743. Letter from Red Star Line, New York to Red Star Line, Antwerp, June 3, 1910 3079

1744. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York, May 6, 1910.. 3080

1745. Cable to Internavco, New York from Liverpool, May 6, 1910 3081

1746. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co., from White Star Line, New York; Feb. 8, 1910 3081

1747 to 1750. Letters from Ismay, Imrie & Co. to White Star Line Offices at the following places and dated as follows:

1747. New York, 19th February, 1910 3082

1748. Boston, 19th February, 1910 3083

1749. New York, 19th February, 1910 (omitted).....

1750. Boston, 18th February, 1910 (omitted) .....

1751. Letter to Red Star Line, Antwerp from Red Star Line, New York; Oct. 11, 1910 3084

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1752. Letter to Red Star Line, New York from Red Star Line, Antwerp; Sept. 6, 1910 3085

1753. Letter "to the Parties" headed "Fighting steamers against the Uranium Steamers S. S. Co." (G. No. 967) unsigned; Sept. 5, 1910 3086

1754 and 1755. Letters Red Star Line, Antwerp from Red Star Line, New York, dated as follows:

1754. Nov. 11, 1910 3089

1755. Feb. 1, 1910 3090

1756. Letter to Red Star Line, Antwerp from American Line, New York; Jan. 28, 1910 3091

1757 and 1758. Letters to the Red Star Line, Antwerp from Red Star Line, New York, dated as follows:

1757. Jan. 25, 1910 3092

1758. Jan. 26, 1910 3093

1759 to 1761. Letters to Red Star Line, New York from Red Star Line, Antwerp, dated as follows:

1759. April 20, 1910 3094

1760. April 23, 1910 3095

1761. May 26, 1910 3095

1762. Letter to American Line, Southampton from American Line, New York; April 26, 1910 3096

1763. Letter to American Line, New York from American Line, Southampton; Sept. 14, 1910 3097

1764 and 1765. Letters to American Line, Southampton from American Line, New York, dated as follows:

1764. Sept. 23, 1910 3098

1765. July 26, 1910 3100

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1766. Letter to American Line, New York from American Line, Southampton; June 11, 1910 3102

1767. Letter to American Line, Southampton from American Line, New York; June 17, 1910 3103

1768. Letter to American Line, New York from American Line, Southampton; June 6, 1910 3104

1769 and 1770. Letters to American Line Southampton from American Line, New York, dated as follows:

1769. June 7, 1910 3105

1770. May 24, 1910 3106

1771. Letter to American Line, New York from American Line, Southampton; May 27, 1910 3108

1772 to 1774. Letters to American Line, Southampton from American Line, New York, dated as follows:

1772. May 31, 1910 3109

1773. May 6, 1910 3110

1774. May 10, 1910 3112

1775. Letter to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co. Liverpool; April 3, 1908 3113

1776. Letter to Secretary Peters, Jena from Mr. J. B. Ismay; April 2, 1908 3114

1777 to 1779. Letters to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co., dated as follows:

1777. Feb. 15, 1908 3115

1778. Mar. 27, 1909 3116

1779. Mar. 30, 1909 3118

1780. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; April 27, 1909 3122

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1781. Letter to Lee & Franklin from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; May 6, 1909 3124
1782. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool from White Star Line, New York; Dec. 13, 1910 3126
1783. Letter to White Star Line, Boston from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; Sept. 15, 1909.. 3127
1784. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; Sept. 17, 1909 3128
1785. Letter to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; Sept. 15, 1909 3129
1786. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; Sept. 24, 1909.. 3130
1787 to 1791. Letters from Ismay, Imrie & Co. to following officers of White Star Line dated as follows:
1787. Sept. 18, 1909 3131
1788. Sept. 18, 1909 3132
1789. Sept. 22, 1909 3132
1790. Sept 24, 1909 3133
1791. Sept. 29, 1909 3135
1792. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; Oct. 5, 1909.... 3136
1793. Letter to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; Sept. 1, 1909 3137
1794. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; Sept. 10, 1909 3138
1795 to 1800. Letters from Ismay, Imrie & Co. to the following officers of the White Star Line, dated as follows:
1795. Boston, Sept. 8, 1909 3138
1796. New York, Sept. 8, 1909 3139
1797. New York, Sept. 11, 1909 .. 3140
1798. New York, Sept. 29, 1909 3141

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1799. New York, Oct. 8, 1909 3142
1800. New York, Oct. 8, 1909 3142
1801. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; Oct. 19, 1909 3143
1802. Letter to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; Oct. 15, 1909 3144
1803. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; Oct. 26, 1909 3145
1804. Letter to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; Oct. 22, 1909 3146
1805. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co., from White Star Line, New York; Nov. 2, 1909 3147
1806. Letter to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; Nov. 3, 1909 3148
1807. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; Nov. 12, 1909 3149
1808. Letter to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co., Nov. 10, 1909 3150
1809. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; Nov. 19, 1909 (omitted) .....
1810. Letter to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; Nov. 17, 1909 3151
1811 and 1812. Letters to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York, dated as follows:
1811. Nov. 26, 1909 3152
1812. Nov. 30, 1909 3152

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1813 to 1815. Letters to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co., dated as follows:
1813. Nov. 24, 1909 3153
1814. Feb. 22, 1908 3155
1815. Mar. 7, 1908 3157

1816 and 1817. Letters from White Star Line, New York to Ismay, Imrie & Co., dated as follows:
1816. Feb. 25, 1908 3158
1817. May 21, 1908 3159

1818. Letter to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; Feb. 12, 1908 3160

1819 to 1821. Letters to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York dated as follows:
1819. Feb. 21, 1908 3161
1820. Feb. 17, 1908 3162
1821. Jan. 26, 1908 (omitted)

1822. Letter to White Star Line, Boston from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; Jan. 18, 1908 (omitted)

1823. Letter to North Atlantic Passenger Conference. Secretary's Office; dated Liverpool, Dec. 31, '07 3163

1824 to 1826. Letters to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co. dated as follows:
1824. Mar. 14, 1908 3164
1825. Mar. 25, 1908, with letters attached to Mr. T. C. Swain, Liverpool, from Ferd. J. Elster, Christiania, Mar. 16, 1908, and Gerh. Dahl, Trendhjan, Mar. 16, 1908 3165
1826. April 1, 1908 3169

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1827. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; April 7, 1908 3170

1828 to 1833. Letters to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; dated as follows:

1828. April 11, 1908 3171
1829. " 24, 1908 3172
1830. " 25, 1908 3174
1831. " 25, 1908 with paper attached headed "Conference Meeting 22nd April, 1908—Head Tax" 3175
1832. April 29, 1908 3177
1833. May 6, 1908 3178

1834 to 1836. Letters to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York, dated as follows:

1834. May 13, 1908 3180
1835. May 15, 1908 3181
1836. May 15, 1908 3182

1837 and 1838. Letters to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., dated as follows:

1837. Aug. 1, 1908 3183
1838 " 7, 1908 3185

1839. Letters to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; Aug. 11, 1908 3186

1840. Letter to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; Aug. 12, 1908 3188

1841 and 1842. Letters to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York, dated as follows:

1841. Aug. 14, 1908 3190
1842. " 18, 1908 3192

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1843. Letter to White Star Line, New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co.; Aug. 19, 1908 3193

1844. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; Aug. 21, 1908 3194

1845 to 1848. Letters to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., dated as follows:

1845. Aug. 22, 1908 3195

1846. " 22, 1908 3196

1847. " 26, 1908 3197

1848. " 29, 1908 3198

1849 and 1850. Letters from White Star Line, New York to Ismay, Imrie & Co., dated as follows:

1849. Sept. 1, 1908 (omitted)

1850. " 8, 1908 3199

1851 and 1852. Letters to White Star Line New York from Ismay, Imrie & Co., dated as follows:

1851. Sept. 2, 1908 3200

1852. Sept. 9, 1908 3201

1853. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co. from White Star Line, New York; Sept. 18, 1908 3202

1854 and 1855. Letters to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., dated as follows:

1854. Sept. 12, 1908 3203

1855. " 16, 1908 3204

1856. Letter to Ismay, Imrie and Co., from White Star Line, New York, Sept. 29, 1908 3205

1857 and 1858. Letters to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., dated as follows:

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1857. Sept. 19, 1908 3205
1858. " 23, 1908 3206
1859 and 1860. Letters to Ismay, Irmie & Co., from White Star Line, New York, dated as follows:
1859. Oct. 6, 1908 3207
1860. " 13, 1908 3207
1861 to 1864. Letters to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., dated as follows:
1861. Oct. 3, 1908 3208
1862. " 7, 1908 3209
1863. " 10, 1908 3211
1864. " 14, 1908 3212
1865. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co., from White Star Line, New York, Oct. 23, 1908 3213
1866. Letter from H. Peters, Jena, to J. Bruce Ismay, Esq., 6/4/08 3214
1867. Letter to Secretary Peters, Jena, from J. Bruce Ismay, headed "Atlantic Conference Eastbound Pool Percentages," Apr. 22, 1908 3215
1868. Letter to Secretary Peters, Jena, from Harold A. Sanderson, headed "Eastbound Pool Percentage Arbitration," April 22, 1908 3216
1869. Letter to H. Peters, Esq., Jena, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., headed "Clause 8, Third Class Agreement of 1898," dated Feb. 11, 1907, with statement attached, headed, "Third Class Continental Eastbound Rates" 3217
1870. Letters to H. Peters, Esq., Jena, from Harold A. Sanderson, Liverpool, Aug. 14, 1907 3220

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1871. Letter to Secretary Peters, Jena, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., headed, "Revision of Percentages," Aug. 17, 1908, with letter attached to White Star Line, Liverpool, from H. Peters, Jena, Aug. 22, 1908 3222

1872. Letter G. No. 659 "To the Parties," headed "Immco Allotment in Atlantic Conference (G. No. 35)," dated Jena, Nov. 19, 1909 3227

1873. Copy of letter to J. Bruce Ismay, Esq., from H. Peters, Jena, Jan. 25, 1908 3228

1874 to 1878. Copies of letter to H. Peters, Esq., Jena, from J. Bruce Ismay (unless otherwise stated), dated as follows:

1874. Jan. 28, 1908 3229

1875. " 29, 1908 3229

1876. Feb. 7, 1908 3230

1877. April 2, 1908, from Harold A. Sanderson 3231

1878. Sept. 28, 1910 3232

1879. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co., from Passenger Department, New York, Dec. 24, 1908 3233

1880. Copies of cables to Ismay, Liverpool, April 24, 1908; to Internavco, N. Y., April 24 and April 25, 1908 3234

1881. Letter to Ed. Strasser, Esq., Antwerp, unsigned, April 15, 1910 3235

1882 and 1883. Letters to Ismay, Imrie & Co., from White Star Line, New York, dated as follows:

1882. Dec. 23, 1909 3236

1883. Sept. 17, 1909 3237

1884. Letter to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., May 15, 1909; with paper attached, beginning

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

"The Chairman explained the reasons," dated Liverpool, May 13, 1909; and letter to H. Peters, Esq., Jena, from E. S. Smyth, Liverpool, May 14, 1909; and copy of paper, beginning, "It is understood," signed C. M. T. Cold, Liverpool, May 14, 1909 3238

1885. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co., from White Star Line, New York, May 11, 1909 3243

1886. Letter to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, April 30, 1909 3244

1887 and 1888. Letters to Ismay, Imrie & Co., from White Star Line, New York, dated as follows:

1887. April 20, 1909 3245

1888. " 9, 1909 3246

1889 and 1890. Letters to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., dated as follows:

1889. April 8, 1909 3247

1890. Mar. 31, 1909 3248

1891. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co., from White Star Line, New York, March 29, 1909 3249

1892. Cablegram from Liverpool to Internavco, N. Y., March 29, 1909 3250

1893. Letter to Red Star Line, Antwerp, from Red Star Line, New York, Sept. 10, 1908 3250

1894. Letter to H. Peters, Esq., Jena, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., April 29, 1908; with copy of telegram, attached, from Secretary Peters, April 29, 1908 3251

1895. Letter to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., June 20, 1908 3252

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

Page

1896. Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co., from White Star Line, New York, headed, "Special—Frank Zotti & Co.," undated 3253

1897. Letter to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., Dec. 30, 1910 3255

1898. Letter to W. W. Jefferies, Esq., New York, from Red Star Line, Antwerp, Nov. 21, 1910 3256

1899. Letter to Edward Strasser, Esq., Antwerp, unsigned, Sept. 30, 1910 3256

1900. Letter to American Line, Southampton, signed "Passenger Department," July 8, 1910 3257

1901. Letter to American Line, New York, from American Line, Southampton, June 21, 1910 3258

1902. Letter to W. W. Jefferies, Esq., New York, from Red Star Line, Antwerp, May 13, 1910 3259

1903. Paper headed, "North Atlantic Passenger Conference—Important Notice to Agents," dated Liverpool, April 20, 1910 3259

1904. Letter to Mr. T. C. Swain, Liverpool, unsigned, Jan. 27, 1910 3260

1905 and 1906. Letters to Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, signed "Passenger Department," dated as follows:

1905. Nov. 15, 1909 3260

1906. June 7, 1909 3261

1907. Letter to Lee & Franklin, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., May 19, 1909; with attached paper beginning "The Committee appointed under the Minutes," dated, Liverpool, May 13, 1909; also copy of paper beginning, "It is understood," signed C. M. T. Cold,

Petitioner's Exhibits (continued)

		Page
	Liverpool, May 14, 1909; and unsigned letter to Director C. M. T. Cold, Copenhagen, dated, Liverpool, May 14, 1909	3262
1908.	Letter to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, May 19, 1909	3266
1909.	Unsigned letter to Mr. T. C. Swain, Liverpool, April 21, 1909	3266
1910.	Letter to W. W. Jefferies, Esq., New York, from T. C. Swain, Liverpool, April 8, 1909	3267
1911 and 1912.	Unsigned letters to Mr. T. C. Swain, Liverpool, dated as follows:
	1911. March 30, 1909	3268
	1912. Jan. 4, 1909	3268
1913.	Letter to White Star Line, New York, from Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, Dec. 23, 1908	3269
1914.	Letter to Ismay, Imrie & Co., Liverpool, signed, "Passenger Department," Dec. 8, 1908	3270
1915.	Letter to H. Peters, Esq., Jena, signed "Passenger Department," Sept. 1, 1908	3271
1916.	Peters' circular letter G. No. 875, addressed "To the Parties," headed "Withdrawal from Byelaw 22," Jena, June 14, 1910	4608

Index to Defendants' Exhibits.

	Page
1. Circular of Northwest Transport Line to their agents (same as Petitioner's Exhibit No. 90)	447
2. Letter to the editor of "Shipping Illustrated," from Admiral Radloff, St. Petersburg, Jan. 25, 1911, read into the testimony at page 820
3. Translation of letter to Oelrichs & Co., signed "N. G. L.," Bremen, July 18, 1910	4927
4. Translation of letter to North German Lloyd, Bremen, from Oelrichs & Co., New York, July 26, 1910	4928
5. Circular letter G. No. 1068 from Secretary Peters, Jena, addressed "To the Parties," headed "Agreement BB," Nov. 29, 1910	4877
6. Translation of G. No. 1068 (Defendants' Exhibit 5)	4878
7 to 15. Menus of the meals served on the Cunard Line's S. S. Laconia on the following days:
7. Sunday, Jan. 21, 1912
8. Monday, " 22, 1912
9. Tuesday, " 23, 1912
10. Wednesday, " 24, 1912
11. Thursday, " 25, 1912
12. Friday, " 26, 1912
13. Saturday, " 27, 1912
14. Sunday, " 28, 1912
15. Monday, " 29, 1912
(Not printed)
16. Circular letter G. No. 1066 from Secretary Peters, Jena, addressed "To the Parties," headed "Steerage Agreements," dated, Nov. 28, 1910	4873

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

17 (for id.). Canadian Railway Act (not printed).

18a (for id.). Map of the Canadian Pacific Railway entitled "The World's Greatest Highway" (not printed).

18. Tenth Annual Report of the Canadian Northern Railway Co., and map 4929

19. Report on Bond Court House, Wallbrook, E. C., London, England 4949

19a. Decisions of the German Imperial Court regarding cartels and syndicates 4952

20. Imperial Rules and Regulations in force in Germany in regard to emigration .. 5003

21. List of dividends paid by the Norddeutscher Lloyd since its organization, for all services 5094

22. Transatlantic Passenger Movement, No. 14, for 1912, pages 2, 3, 4 and 5 5096

23 (for id.). Hearings before the Committee on the Merchant, Marine and Fisheries, House of Representatives Number Ten (not printed).

24. Statement of dividends declared by the Hamburg-American Line for 1847 to 1912, covering all services 5102

25 to 479. Circular letters from H. Peters, Jena, addressed "To the Parties," and numbered, headed, and dated as follows:

25. G. No. 34. Filip Lazzlo; April 6, 1908 3313

26. G. No. 116. Beginning "Enclosed I beg to send"; May 29, 1908 3434

27. G. No. 119. Emigration to Chile; May 30, 1908 3437

27. G. No. 121. Changes in Rates (G. No. 113); May 30, 1908 3439

29. G. No. 128. Mediterranean Business; June 5, 1908 3444

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

	Page
30. G. No. 132. Headtax; June 6, 1908 ...	3451
31. G. No. 139. Immigration to Canada via U. S.; June 11, 1908	3460
32. G. No. 141. Promissory Note (G. No. 138); June 11, 1908	3462
33. G. No. 143. Change in Rates; June 12, 1908	3464
34. G. No. 149. Change in Rates (G. No. 143); June 17, 1908	3472
34a. G. No. 152. Monthly Statements for May (G. No. 140); June 17, 1908 ...	3480
35. G. No. 153. Change in Rates (G. No. 149); June 18, 1908	3481
36. G. No. 161. Amerikanische Transport Gesellschaft; June 22, 1908	3494
37. G. No. 163. Change in Rates; June 22, 1908	3496
38. G. No. 164. Headtax; June 22, 1908 .	3497
39. G. No. 167. Fighting Rates; June 23, 1908	3501
40. G. No. 168, Ruijs & Co., agents of the Russasiatic at Rotterdam; June 24, 1908	3503
41. G. No. 173. Head tax (G. No. 164); June 25, 1908	3508
42. G. No. 175. Change in Rates; June 27, 1908	3509
43. G. No. 176, Headtax (G. No. 173); June 29, 1908	3512
44. G. No. 183, Russian Volunteer Fleet (G. No. 93); July 1, 1908	3519
45. G. No. 184, Newyork uptown offices (G. No. 166); July 2, 1908	3523
46. G. No. 191, Karlsberg, Spiro & Co. (G. No. 183); July 7, 1908	3535
47. G. No. 210, British Lines' passengers at Controlstations; July 21, 1908	3561

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

48. G. No. 218, Meeting, Paris, August 7th; dated July 29, 1908 3577
49. G. No. 222, Begins "Enclosed I beg to send"; Aug. 3, 1908 3589
49a. G. No. 224, Change in Rates; Aug. 6, 1908 3590
50. G. No. 227, Begins "Enclosed I beg to send"; Aug. 11, 1908 3592
51. G. No. 230, New York & Continental Line; Aug. 14, 1908 3598
52. G. No. 232, Change in Rates; Aug. 14, 1908 3599
53. G. No. 241, Change in Rates; Aug. 22, 1908 3607
54. G. No. 243, Greek Line "Moraitis"; Aug. 25, 1908 3608
55. G. No. 246, Begins "I herewith beg to enclose"; Aug. 31, 1908 3615
56. G. No. 247, Headtax; Sept. 2, 1908 3616
57. G. No. 256, Italian Lines westbound; Sept. 21, 1908 3640
58. G. No. 264, Russian Eastasiatic Lines' Prepaids from Rotterdam; Sept. 30, 1908 3665
59. G. No. 268, Hellenic Line (G. No. 268); Oct. 1, 1908 3675
60. G. No. 282, S. S. Moraitis (G. No. 268); Oct. 14, 1908 3698
61. G. No. 284, Begins "At the request of some parties"; den 26 October, 1908 3701
62. Circular letter to Hamburg American Line, Norddeutscher Lloyd, Anchor Line, Austro Americana, Cunard Line, Cie. Gle. Transatlantique, headed "Mediterranean Prepaid Business and Rate of Commission"; Nov. 3, 1908 3714

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

63. G. No. 290, Begins "In pursuance of G. No. 284"; Nov. 5, 1908 3716
64. G. No. 291, Monthly Statements for October; Nov. 9, 1908 3717
65. G. No. 293, Supplement to Minute 87b; Nov. 12, 1908 3719
66. G. No. 297, Change in Rates; Nov. 19, 1908 3724
67. G. No. 298, Cunard Line, Adriatic Service Eastbound; Nov. 19, 1908 3724
68. G. No. 300, Separate collection of Head-tax; Nov. 23, 1908 3729
69. Circular letter to Hamburg American Line, Norddeutscher Lloyd, Cie. Gen. Transatlantique, Austro Americana, Anchor Line, Cunard Line, White Star Line, beginning "The Anchor Line write"; Nov. 23, 1908 3731
70. G. No. 302, Russian East-Asiatic S. S. Co., Nov. 27, 1908 3732
71. Circular letter to Hamburg American Line, Norddeutscher Lloyd, Anchor Line, White Star Line, Austro Americana, Cunard Line, beginning "In reply to the circular letter of 20th instant"; Nov. 28, 1908 3733
72. G. No. 304, First class rates proposed intermediate season; Nov. 28, 1908 ... 3734
73. G. No. 306, Begins "I herewith beg to send written copies"; Dec. 5, 1908 3736
74. G. No. 307, Norwegian America Line; Dec. 8, 1908 3737
75. G. No. 310, Begins "Enclosed I beg to send printed copies;" Dec. 12, 1908 .. 3748
76. G. No. 312, Statistics; Dec. 15, 1908 .. 3750
77. G. No. 324, Begins "In view of the U. S. Immigration Act;" Jan. 4, 1909 .. 3772

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

78. G. No. 325, Monthly Statements for December, 1908; dated Jan. 11, 1909 ... 3773
79. G. No. 327, Newyork & Continental Line; Jan. 14, 1909 3775
80. G. No. 328, Returned emigrants; Jan. 14, 1909 3779
81. Translation of G. No. 328 3781
82. G. No. 329, Change in rates; Jan. 15, 1909 3783
83. G. No. 331, Rating new steamer; Jan. 16, 1909 3788
84. G. No. 332, Newyork & Continental Line (G. No. 327); Jan. 16, 1909 3791
85. G. No. 333. Returned Emigrants (G. No. 328); Jan. 19, 1909 3794
86. G. No. 335. Emigration to U. S. and Canada; Jan. 21, 1909 3797
87. G. No. 336. Returned Emigrants (G. No. 328); Jan. 21, 1909 3798
88. G. No. 337. Returned Emigrants (G. No. 336); Jan. 23, 1909 3799
89. G. No. 338. Newyork & Continental Line (G. No. 332); Jan 25, 1909 3800
90. G. No. 340. Canadian Pacific Employees; Jan. 25, 1909 3808
91. G. No. 342. Returned Emigrants (G. No. 328, 333, 336, 337); Jan. 27, 1909 ... 3811
92. G. No. 343. Agenda of Paris Meeting; Jan. 28, 1909 3813
93. G. No. 346. Returned Emigrants (G. No. 342); Feb. 11, 1909 3817
94. G. No. 366. Begins "Mr. Ballin cables me"; Feb. 26, 1909 3843
95. G. No. 379. Monthly Statements for February; Mar. 8, 1909 3859
96. G. No. 383. Arbitration White Star Lines' Canadian Service (G. No. 377); March 12, 1909 3865

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

97. G. No. 391. Arbitration Allan Line—White Star Line (G. No. 386); Mar. 18, 1909 3878
98. G. No. 396. Arbitration Allan Line—White Star Line (G. No. 391); Mar. 22, 1909 3888
99. G. No. 404. Begins "Under separate cover"; Apr. 2, 1909 3909
100. G. No. 406. Northwest Transport Line (G. No. 400, 402); April 3. 1909 ... 3911
101. G. No. 410. Monthly Statements for March; Apr. 8, 1909 3915
102. G. No. 414. North West Transport Line; April 10, 1909 3919
103. G. No. 424. North West Transport Line; Apr. 23, 1909 3935
104. G. No. 444. Payments to the Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co.; May 12, 1909 3965
105. G. No. 452. North West Transport Line; (G. No. 448); May 17, 1909 3976
105a. G. No. 457. II Cabin Statistics (G. No. 431); May 25, 1909 3981
106. G. No. 460. Arbitration under Minute 107; May 27, 1909 3990
107. G. No. 466. Arbitration rates Mauretania, etc. (G. No. 460); May 29, 1909 4003
108. G. No. 472. North West Transport Line (G. No. 465); June 2, 1909 4014
109. G. No. 473. Arbitration rates Mauretania, etc. (G. No. 466); June 2, 1909 4015
110. G. No. 474. Calling at Lisbon of New-york Liners; June 3, 1909 4016
111. G. No. 475. North West Transport Line (G. No. 472); June 3, 1909 4019
112. G. No. 476. Arbitration rates Mauretania, etc. (G. No. 473); June 3, 1909 4020

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

	Page
113. G. No. 477. Arbitration rates Mauretania, etc. (G. No. 473); June 4, 1909	4023
114. G. No. 478. Outstanding Russian Ppds. of Russ. Vol. Fleet (G. No. 378); June 4, 1909	4028
115. G. No. 479. Arbitration rates Mauretania, etc. (G. No. 47[illegible]); June 7, 1909	4029
116. G. No. 481. North West Transport Line (G. No. 475); June 7, 1909	4032
117. G. No. 483. Monthly Statements for May; dated June 10, 1909	4034
118. G. No. 484. Union Ticket Office; June 10, 1909	4035
119. G. No. 485. Arbitration Cabin Rates; June 12, 1909	4037
120. G. No. 494. Payments to and from the Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co.; June 16, 1909	4048
121. G. No. 495. North West Transport Line (G. No. 493); June 16, 1909	4050
122. G. No. 496. North West Transport Line (G. No. 493); June 18, 1909	4051
123. G. No. 498. North West Transport Line (G. No. 496); June 21, 1909	4053
124. G. No. 501. North West Transport Line (G. No. 498); June 26, 1909	4061
125. G. No. 503. North West Transport Line (G. No. 501); June 29, 1909	4063
126. G. No. 504. North West Transport Line (G. No. 498); June 29, 1909	4064
127. G. No. 505. North West Transport Line (G. No. 504); July 2, 1909	4065
128. G. No. 506. North West Transport Line (G. No. 503); July 2, 1909	4067
129. G. No. 507. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 484); July 2, 1909	4068

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

130. G. No. 509. Control stations; July 3, 1909 4071
131. G. No. 510. Funds of immigrants; July 3, 1909 4075
132. G. No. 512. North West Transport Line (G. No. 506); July 5, 1909 4077
133. G. No. 513. North West Transport Line; July 5, 1909 4078
134. G. No. 515. Monthly Adjustment Payments with the Scandinavian American Line; July 7, 1909 4081
135. G. No. 516. Monthly Adjustment Payments with the Russ. Eastasiatic S. S. Co.; July 7, 1909 4082
136. G. No. 520. Monthly Statements for June; dated July 8, 1909 4087
137. G. No. 521. Funds of immigrants (G. No. 510); July 9, 1909 4088
138. G. No. 522. North West Transport Line; July 10, 1909 4089
139. G. No. 526. North West Transport Line (G. No. 522); July 13, 1909 4094
140. G. No. 527. North West Transport Line (G. No. 522, 526); July 16, 1909 4095
141. G. No. 530. North West Transport Line (G. No. 527); July 21, 1909 4100
142. G. No 536. Compensation S. S. "Oceanic;" June 9, 1909 (G. No. 495); July 27, 1909 4109
143. G. No. 537. North West Transport Line (G. No. 532); July 27, 1909 4113
144. G. No. 539. North West Transport Line (G. No. 530); July 28, 1909 4117
145. G. No. 541. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 534); July 31, 1909 4119
146. G. No. 543. North West Transport Line (G. No. 539); Aug. 2, 1909 4121

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

147. G. No. 546. North West Transport Line; Aug. 6, 1909 4124
148. G. No. 547. North West Transport Line (G. No. 546); Aug. 9, 1909 4125
149. G. No. 549. Monthly Statements for July; dated Aug. 10, 1909 4128
150. G. No. 550. Payments to and from the Russ. East Asiatic S. S. Co., Aug. 10, 1909 4129
151. G. No. 552. North West Transport Line (G. No. 547); Aug. 12, 1909 4131
152. G. No. 553. Addressed "To the Parties to Agreement V"; headed "Through booked passengers"; Aug. 14, 1909 .. 4132
153. G. No. 556. North West Transport Line (G. No. 554); Aug. 16, 1909 4137
154. G. No. 558. Change in Rates; Aug. 19, 1909 4140
155. G. No. 560. North West Transport Line (G. No. 556); Aug. 21, 1909 4142
156. G. No. 562. Arbitration Allan Line & White Star Line (G. No. 438); Aug. 21, 1909 4147
157. G. No. 564. North West Transport Line (G. No. 560); Aug. 21, 1909 4152
158. G. No. 565. North West Transport Line (G. No. 564); Aug. 24, 1909 4152
159. G. No. 566. North West Transport Line (G. No. 565); Aug. 27, 1909 4153
160. G. No. 569. Cruise business (G. No. 548); Aug. 31, 1909 4157
161. G. No. 577. Monthly Statements for August; dated Sept. 8, 1909 4169
162. G. No. 579. North West Transport Line (G. No. 575); Sept. 9, 1909 4170
163. G. No. 581. North West Transport Line (G. No. 579); Sept. 11, 1909 4173

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

164. G. No. 597. North West Transport Line (G. No. 581); Sept. 25, 1909 4199
165. G. No. 598. Final Statistics for 1908; Sept. 25, 1909 4200
166. G. No. 602. Rates Rusamerika (G. No. 596); Sept. 27, 1909 4205
167. G. No. 603. North West Transport Line (G. No. 601); Sept. 28, 1909 4206
168. G. No. 605. Union Ticket Office (G. No. 599); Oct. 1, 1909 4208
169. G. No. 606 Rates Rusamerika (G. No. 602); Oct. 1, 1909 4210
170. G. No. 609. North West Transport Line (G. No. 603); Oct. 5, 1909 4214
171. G. No. 612. Monthly Statements for September; dated Oct. 7, 1909 4218
172. G. No. 616. North West Transport Line (G. No. 609); Oct. 11, 1909 4224
173. G. No. 617. Cunard Lines Prepaid rate for Russian steeragers; Oct. 11, 1909 4225
174. G. No. 618. North West Transport Line; Oct. 12, 1909 4235
175. G. No. 621. North West Transport Line (G. No. 618); Oct. 18, 1909 4238
176. G. No. 623. North West Transport Line (G. No. 621); Oct. 19, 1909 4241
177. G. No. 624. Compensation S. S. Birma August 21st (G. No. 592); Oct. 19, 1909 4242
178. G. No. 626. North West Transport Line (G No. 623); Oct. 23, 1909 4245
179. G. No. 628. Final Statistics for 1908; dated Oct. 23, 1909 4247
180. G. No. 633. Final Statistics for 1908; dated Oct. 29, 1909 4252
181. G. No. 641. North West Transport Line (G. No. 640); Nov. 8, 1909 4263

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

182. G. No. 643. Payments for October; dated Nov. 9, 1909 4265
183. G. No. 644. Change in II Class rates (G. No. 602); Nov. 10, 1909 4266
184. G. No. 645. North West Transport Line (G. No. 642); Nov. 10, 1909 4266
185. G. No. 647. Payments to the Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co.; Nov. 12, 1909 4274
186. G. No. 648. Begins "I herewith beg to enclose"; Nov. 12, 1909 4275
187. G. No. 651. A. C. Meeting (G. No. 648); Nov. 13, 1909 4279
188. G. No. 652. Compensation S. S. "Graf Waldersee" October 8th (G. No. 624) —G. No. 618; Nov. 15, 1909 4280
189. G. No. 656. Changes in rates; Nov. 18, 1909 4283
190. G. No. 660. Eastbound Statistics 1908; Nov. 19, 1909 4289
191. G. No. 661. Net rates (G. No. 649); Nov. 19, 1909 4290
192. G. No. 663. North West Transport Line (G. No. 657); Nov. 23, 1909 4292
193. G. No. 644. Westbound Statistics 1908; Nov. 24, 1909 4294
194. G. No. 665. North West Transport Line (G. No. 663); Nov. 24, 1909 4295
195. G. No. 669. North West Transport Line (G. No. 665); Dec. 4, 1909 4307
196. G. No. 674. Payments for November (G. No. 643); Dec. 7, 1909 4315
197. G. No. 676. Payments to and from the Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co., Dec. 8, 1909 4317
198. G. No. 677. North West Transport Line (G. No. 675); Dec. 11, 1909 4318

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

	Page
199. G. No. 678. Arbitration Allan Line Newfoundland passengers (G. No. 633); Dec. 13, 1909	4320
199a. G. No. 679. North West Transport Line (G. No. 677); Dec. 13, 1909 ..	4321
200. G. No. 683. Arbitration Allan Line Newfoundland Passengers (G. No. 678); Dec. 20, 1909	4325
200a. G. No. 685. Blue Star Line (G. No. 684); Dec. 21, 1909	4327
201. G. No. 687. Final Statistics for 1908.—Payments from the Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co., Dec. 22, 1909	4330
202. G. No. 692. Begins "In Form 35, No. 5"; Jan. 3, 1910	4338
203. G. No. 694. North West Transport Co. (G. No. 691); Jan. 4, 1910	4347
204. G. No. 697. Payments for December, 1909; dated Jan. 8, 1910	4351
205. G. No. 698. North West Transport Line (G. No. 695); Jan. 8, 1910	4352
206. G. No. 702. Norway-Mexico Gulf Line (G. No. 681); Jan. 12, 1910	4360
207. G. No. 703. Thomson Line to Canada (G. No. 696); Jan. 15, 1910	4362
208. G. No. 704. N. Y. State Board of Charities; Jan. 15, 1910	4363
209. G. No. 705. Compensation for fighting rates; Jan. 17, 1910	4364
210. G. No. 708. Blue Star Line (G. No. 688); Jan. 19, 1910	4366
211. G. No. 710. Reduced transportation for Alien Charity persons from New York State Board of Charities; Jan. 20, 1910	4368
212. G. No. 713. North West Transport Line (G. No. 709); Jan. 24, 1910	4372

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

213. G. No. 716. North West Transport Line (G. No. 714); Feb. 1, 1910 4376
214. G. No. 717. Reduced transportation for Alien Charity persons from New York State Board of Charities (G. No. 710); Feb. 1, 1910 4377
215. G. No. 721. North West Transport Line (G. No. 719); Feb. 7, 1910 4386
216. G. No. 725. Compensation payments for January; dated Feb. 9, 1910 4393
217. G. No. 730. Next A. C. Meeting; Feb. 12, 1910 4400
218. G. No. 732. North West Transport Line (G. No. 724); Feb. 14, 1910 4402
219. G. No. 734. Compensation for passengers carried at fighting rates by S. S. "Estonia" Jan. 18th and S. S. "Baltic" Jan. 22nd (G. 720); dated Feb. 16, 1910 4406
220. G. No. 736. Meeting (G. No. 730); Feb. 17, 1910 4410
221. G. No. 738. North West Transport Line (G. No. 735); Feb. 18, 1910 4413
222. G. No. 740. Thomson Line (G. No. 703); Feb. 19, 1910 4421
223. G. No. 741. North West Transport Line (G. No. 738); Feb. 19, 1910 4422
224. G. No. 747. Lloyd's Phila-Balto Service (G. No. 729); Feb. 21, 1910 4428
225. G. No. 748. Russian Volunteer Prepaids from Libau (G. No. 500); Feb. 22, 1910 4429
226. G. No. 750. Lloyd's Phila-Balto Service (G. No. 747); Feb. 23, 1910 4432
227. G. No. 752. Lloyd's Phila-Balto Service (G. No. 750); Feb. 25, 1910 4436

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

	Page
228. G. No. 753. A. C. Meeting (G. No. 736); Feb. 26, 1910	4437
229. G. No. 755. Thomson Line (G. No. 740); Feb. 26, 1910	4439
230. G. No. 756. Lloyd's Phila-Balto Service (G. No. 752); Feb. 28, 1910	4440
231. G. No. 758. Mitrovitz & Bonuschevatz, Belgrad; Mar. 1, 1910	4444
232. G. No. 759. North West Transport Line (G. No. 749); Mar. 2, 1910	4445
233. G. No. 761. Blue Star Line (G. No. 757); Mar. 7, 1910	4447
234. G. No. 763. Lloyd's Phila.-Balto. (G. No. 756); Mar. 8, 1910	4449
235. G. No. 764. Payments for February; Mar. 9, 1910	4450
236. G. No. 765. North West Transport Line (G. No. 759); Mar. 9, 1910	4451
237. G. No. 767. Blue Star Line (G. No. 761); Mar. 10, 1910	4454
238. G. No. 768. Lloyd's Phila.-Balto. Service (G. No. 763); Mar. 10, 1910	4455
239. G. No. 769. North West Transport Line (G. No. 765); Mar. 10, 1910	4457
240. G. No. 771. Payments with Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co., Mar. 11, 1910	4460
241. G. No. 772. Blue Star Line (G. No. 767); Mar. 11, 1910	4461
241a. G. No. 773. North West Transport Line (G. No. 769); Mar. 12, 1910 ..	4463
242. G. No. 774. Lloyd's Phila.-Balto. Service (G. No. 768); Mar. 12, 1910	4465
243. G. No. 775. Mitrovitz & Bonuschevatz, Belgrade (G. No. 758); Mar. 14, 1910	4467
244. G. No. 776. North West Transport Line (G. No. 773); Mar. 14, 1910	4468

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

245. G. No. 777. North West Transport Line (G. No. 776); Mar. 15, 1910 4469
246. G. No. 779. Compensation for Passengers carried at fighting rates by S. S. "Prinzess Irene" Decbr. 30th, '09, S. S. "Kronprinz Wilhelm," Jan. 22nd, '09, etc., dated Mar. 17, 1910 4472
247. G. No. 780. North West Transport Line; Mar. 17, 1910 4475
248. G. No. 782. Mitrovitz & Bonuschevatz, Belgrad (G. No. 775); Mar. 21, 1910 4477
249. G. No. 783. Steerage Rates of competing lines; Mar. 21, 1910 4478
250. G. No. 784. Equivalences of cabin rates; Mar. 21, 1910 4479
251. G. No. 785. North West Transport Line (G. No. 781); Mar. 22, 1910 4482
252. G. No. 786. North West Transport Line (G. No. 785); Mar. 23, 1910 4483
253. G. No. 787. Lloyd's Phila.-Balto. Service (G. No. 774); Mar. 24, 1910 4484
254. G. No. 789. Mitrovitz & Bonuschevatz (G. No. 782); Mar. 26, 1910 4486
255. G. No. 791. Canadian Northern Steamship Company; Mar. 26, 1910 4488
256. G. No. 792. Russian Transport Co., Rotterdam; Mar. 29, 1910 4489
257. G. No. 793. Next Meeting; Mar. 30, 1910 4491
258. G. No. 794. Statistics; Mar. 31, 1910 .. 4492
259. G. No. 795. Lloyd's Phila.-Balto. Service (G. No. 787); Apr. 5, 1910 4499
260. G. No. 799. British Naval Passengers; April 6, 1910 4503
261. G. No. 801. Thomson Line (G. No. 788); April 7, 1910 4505

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

	Page
262. G. No. 802. Payments to & from the Russian-America Line; April 7, 1910	4509
263. G. No. 803. Payments for March; dated April 7, 1910	4510
264. G. No. 804. Payments to & from the Russian-American Line (G. No. 802); April 8, 1910	4511
265. G. No. 805. Lloyd's Phila.-Balto. Service (G. No. 795); April 8, 1910	4512
266. G. No. 807. North West Transport Line (G. No. 800); April 11, 1910	4514
267. G. No. 810. Lloyd's Phila.-Balto. Service (G. No. 803); Apr. 12, 1910	4524
268. G. No. 811. North West Transport Line (G. No. 807); Apr. 12, 1910	4525
269. G. No. 814. British Naval Passengers (G. No. 797); Apr. 15, 1910	4529
270. G. No. 818. Compensation for passengers at fighting rates by S. S. "Lapland," Jan. 22nd, S. S. "Rhein," March 5th, S. S. "Darmstadt," March 19th (G. No. 779); April 20, 1910 ..	4533
271. G. No. 819. North West Transport Line (G. No. 817); Apr. 21, 1910	4535
272. G. No. 821. North West Transport Line (G. No. 819); April 25, 1910	4540
273. G. No. 822. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 821); Apr. 26, 1910	4540
274. G. No. 823. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 822); April 27, 1910	4541
275. G. No. 825. Begins "In view of the Meeting on 5th May"; dated April 29, 1910	4543
276. G. No. 827. North West Transport Line (G. No. 812); May 2, 1910	4553
277. G. No. 832. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 830); May 9, 1910	4560

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

278. G. No. 833. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 829); May 9, 1910 4561
279. G. No. 834. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 833); May 10, 1910 4562
280. G. No. 835. Payments to the Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co.; May 11, 1910 4563
281. G. No. 837. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 834); May 12, 1910 4565
282. G. No. 841. Begins "I beg to send today printed copies"; May 14, 1910 4569
283. G. No. 845. Revision of Byelaws (G. No. 841); May 21, 1910 4573
284. G. No. 846. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 844); May 21, 1910 4574
285. G. No. 847. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 846); May 24, 1910 4574
286. G. No. 848. Thomson Line (G. No. 815); May 26, 1910 4575
287. G. No. 849. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 847); May 26, 1910 4577
288. G. No. 850. Royal Line (G. No. 791); May 26, 1910 4578
289. G. No. 851. Royal Line; May 27, 1910 4579
290. G. No. 852. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 849); May 27, 1910 4580
291. G. No. 853. Begins "Enclosed I beg to send one copy"; May 28, 1910 4581
292. G. No. 855. Karlsberg, Spiro & Co.; May 30, 1910 4588
293. G. No. 856. Royal Line (G. No. 851); May 31, 1910 4590
294. G. No. 858. Begins "Having audited the Statistics of the N. D. L. V. Lines"; June 4, 1910 4592
295. G. No. 859. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 854); June 4, 1910 4592

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

296. G. No. 863. Payments to and from the Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co.; June 8, 1910 4596
297. G. No. 864. Payments from the Scandinavian-American Line; June 8, 1910 4597
298. G. No. 865. Payments for May; dated June 8, 1910 4598
299. G. No. 866. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 859); June 8, 1910 4599
300. G. No. 867. Notice of withdrawal of Messrs. Ismay, Imrie & Co. from Byelaw 22; June 9, 1910 4600
301. G. No. 869. Royal Line (G. No. 860); June 11, 1910 4602
302. G. No. 870. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 859); June 11, 1910 4603
303. G. No. 871. Byelaw 22; June 11, 1910 4604
304. G. No. 872. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 868); June 11, 1910 4605
305. G. No. 874. Monthly Statement A. C. and Canadian Lines; June 13, 1910 .. 4607
306. G. No. 876. Withdrawal from Byelaw 22 (G. No. 875); June 15, 1910 4609
307. G. No. 878. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 870); June 17, 1910 4610
308. G. No. 879. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 878); June 22, 1910 4611
309. G. No. 880. Byelaw 22; June 23, 1910 4612
310. G. No. 881. Thomson Line and Knie, Falk & Co., Libau; June 24, 1910 .. 4613
311. G. No. 882. Westbound Adjustment; June 24, 1910 4615
312. G. No. 883. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 879); June 25, 1910 4618
313. G. No. 884. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 877); June 25, 1910 4623

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

		Page
314.	G. No. 885, Thomson Line (G. No. 881); June 28, 1910	4624
315.	Translation of G. No. 885	4629
316.	G. No. 886. U. S. Citizens and II Cl. Rates; June 29, 1910	4632
317.	G. No. 887. Strasser's Statistics, June 30, 1910	4634
318.	G. No. 888. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 884); June 30, 1910	4635
319.	G. No. 889. Compensation for fighting rates for S. S. "Philadelphia," April 2nd, S. S. "St. Paul," April 30th, S. S. "Kroonland," April 2nd, S. S. "Finland," April 9th, S. S. "Adriatic," March 12th (G. No. 818); dated July 2, 1910	4636
320.	G. No. 890. Westbound Adjustment (G. No. 882); July 4, 1910	4643
321.	G. No. 891. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 888); July 6, 1910	4645
322.	Circular letter to Anchor Line, Cunard Line, White Star Line, beginning "As stated in my today's telegram"; July 6, 1910	4646
323.	G. No. 892. Westbound Adjustment (G. No. 890); July 7, 1910	4647
324.	G. No. 893. Compensation for fighting rates for S. S. "Philadelphia," April 2nd, S. S. "St. Paul," April 30th, S. S. "Philadelphia," May 7th, etc.; dated July 8, 1910	4648
325.	G. No. 894. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 884); July 8, 1910	4656
326.	G. No. 895. Payments for June; dated July 9, 1910	4657
327.	G. No. 896. Payments from the Scandinavian-American Line; July 11, 1910	4658

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

328. G. No. 897. Payments from the Russian-East Asiatic S. S. Co.; July 11, 1910 .. 4659
329. G. No. 898. First and Second Class rates of S. S. "Franconia;" July 11, 1910 .. 4660
330. G. No. 900. Royal Line (G. No. 869); July 11, 1910 4664
331. G. No. 901. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 894); July 11, 1910 4665
332. G. No. 902. Thomson Line (G. No. 881); July 11, 1910 4665
333 G. No. 903. Westbound Adjustment (G. No. 899); July 11, 1910 4666
334. G. No. 904. Thomson Line & Knie Falk & Co. (G. No. 881); July 13, 1910 4668
335. G. No. 905. Compensation payments for fighting rates (G. No. 893); July 14, 1910 4671
336. G. No. 906. Westbound Adjustment (G. No. 903); July 14, 1910 4672
337. G. No. 907. U. S. Citizens II Cl. Passengers and reimbursement of headtax (G. No. 886); July 15, 1910 4676
338. G. No. 908. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 901); July 15, 1910 4676
339. G. No. 909, begins "I beg to communicate in the annex"; July 15, 1910 4677
340. G. No. 910. Royal Line (G. No. 900); July 15, 1910 4681
341. G. No. 911. Techxz Sulmoni & Co., Giubiasco; July 16, 1910 4682
342. G. No. 912. Westbound Adjustment (G. No. 906); July 16, 1910 4683
343. G. No. 914. Catholic divine service on board; July 19, 1910 4685
344. G. No. 915. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 908); July 20, 1910 4687

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

		Page
345.	G. No. 917. Compensation for fighting rates S. S. Graf Waldersee, Jan. 15th, '10 (G. No. 893); July 22, 1910	4689
346.	G. No. 918. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd.; July 22, 1910	4690
347.	G. No. 919; begins "With reference to G. No. 909"; July 23, 1910	4691
348.	G. No. 920. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 918); July 23, 1910	4691
349.	G. No. 921. Royal Line (G. No. 910); July 23, 1910	4692
350.	G. No. 923. Byelaw 11b; July 28, 1910	4694
351.	G. No. 924. Begins "The Russian-America Line inform me"; July 29, 1910 ..	4695
352.	G. No. 925. Royal Line (G. No. 910); July 29, 1910	4696
353.	G. No. 926. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 920); July 29, 1910	4697
354.	G. No. 928. Catholic Divine Service on board steamers (G. No. 914); Aug. 1, 1910	4700
355.	G. No. 929. Byelaw 95, Cinematical Entertainments; Aug. 1, 1910	4700
356.	G. No. 933. Pooling of Cabin Passengers (G. No. 909); Aug. 5, 1910	4708
357.	G. No. 934. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 930); Aug. 5, 1910	4712
358.	G. No. 938. Payments for July; dated Aug. 8, 1910	4715
359.	G. No. 939. Payments from the Russian-America Line; Aug. 9, 1910	4716
360.	G. No. 940. Payments to the Scandinavian—American Line; Aug. 9, 1910	4717
361.	G. No. 942. Deported Passengers; Aug. 12, 1910	4719
362.	G. No. 943. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 941); Aug. 12, 1910	4722

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

363. G. No. 944. Byelaw 11B (G. No. 923); Aug. 12, 1910 4723
364. G. No. 945. Advance in westbound steerage rates; Aug. 13, 1910 4726
365. G. No. 951. Eastbound deported passengers (G. No. 942); Aug. 17, 1910 4731
366. G. No. 952. Thomson Line (G. No. 936); Aug. 18, 1910 4732
367. G. No. 954. Thomson Line (G. No. 952); Aug. 19, 1910 4733
368. G. No. 955. Uranium S. S. Co., Ltd. (G. No. 927); Aug. 20, 1910 4734
369. G. No. 956. Thomson Line (G. No. 954); Aug. 20, 1910 4736
370. G. No. 957. Eastbound deported passengers & charity passengers (G. No. 951); Aug. 22, 1910 4737
371. G. No. 958. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 955); Aug. 22, 1910 4739
372. G. No. 960. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 959); Aug. 26, 1910 4741
373. G. No. 961. Uranium S. S. Co.; Aug. 26, 1910 4742
374. G. No. 962. Direct S. S. Line between Sweden and U. S.; Aug. 27, 1910 4744
375. G. No. 963. Thomson Line (G. No. 956); Aug. 27, 1910 4745
376. G. No. 965. Cunard's Hungarian Deported Passengers (G. No. 944); Aug. 29, 1910 4747
377. G. No. 967. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 955); Sept. 1, 1910 4751
378. G. No. 968. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 967); Sept. 3, 1910 4751
379. G. No. 969. Eastbound Deported & Charity Passengers from Canada (G. No. 957); Sept. 5, 1910 4752

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

380. G. No. 970. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 968); Sept. 5, 1910 4755
381. G. No. 972. Payments to the Scandinavian-American Line; Sept. 7, 1910 4757
382. G. No. 973. Payments for August; dated Sept. 7, 1910 4758
383. G. No. 974. Payments with the Russian American Line; Sept. 7, 1910 4759
384. G. No. 975. Cunards Non-Hungarian Passengers via Fiume; Sept. 8, 1910.. 4760
385. G. No. 976. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 977); Sept. 9, 1910 4763
386. G. No. 981. Cunard Line's deported Hungarians via Fiume (G. No. 965); Sept. 15, 1910 4768
387. G. No. 984. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 983); Sept. 17, 1910 4771
388. G. No. 986. Compensation for fighting rates S. S. "New York," May 21st, "Celtic," May 21st, S. S. "George Washington," June 9th (G. No. 917); Sept. 20, 1910 4773
389. G. No. 989. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 955); Sept. 22, 1910 4777
390. G. No. 990. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 989); Sept. 23, 1910 4778
391. G. No. 992. Thomson Line (G. No. 936); Sept. 24, 1910 4780
392. G. No. 993. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 990); Sept. 24, 1910 4781
393. G. No. 997. Eastbound Deported and Charity Passengers from Canada (G. No. 969); Sept. 27, 1910 4789
394. G. No. 999. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 998); den 29. September 1910 4792
394. G. No. 1001. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 999); Oct. 1, 1910 4795

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

	Page
395. G. No. 1004, Eastbound Deported and Charity Passengers from Canada (G. No. 997); Oct. 4, 1910	4797
396. G. No. 1005. Karlsberg, Spiro & Co., Oct. 5, 1910	4799
397. G. No. 1007. Payments account Atlantic Conference; den 7. October 1910	4804
398. G. No. 1008. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1001); Oct. 7, 1910	4805
399. G. No. 1010. Payments account Royal Line; Oct. 8, 1910	4807
400. G. No. 1011. Payments account Russian East-Asiatic S. S. Co.; Oct. 8, 1910	4808
401. G. No. 1012. Payments account Scandinavian-American Line; Oct. 8, 1910	4809
402. G. No. 1014. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 1008); Oct. 12, 1910	4811
403. G. No. 1016. Byelaw 95, cinematical entertainments (G. No. 929); Oct. 14, 1910	4815
404. G. No. 1017. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1008); Oct. 15, 1910	4816
405. G. No. 1019. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 1008); Oct. 15, 1910	4818
406. G. No. 1021. Compensation S. S. "Adriatic" February 12th; dated Oct. 18, 1910	4822
407. G. No. 1022. Supplying tonnage to new competition (G. No. 1015); Oct. 18, 1910	4824
408. G. No. 1023. Byelaw 22; Oct. 19, 1910	4825
409. G. No. 1025. Amended Computation of payments for fighting steamers (G. No. 1023); Oct. 21, 1910	4828
410. G. No. 1026. Compensation fighting steamers S. S. "Russia" September 15th (G. No. 994); Oct. 21, 1910	4832

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

411. G. No. 1027 Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 999); Oct. 21, 1910 4835
412. G. No. 1029. Byelaw 95, cinematical entertainments (G. No. 1016); Oct. 22, 1910 4837
413. G. No. 1030. Thomson Line (G. No. 992); Oct. 24, 1910 4838
414. G. No. 1031. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 1027); Oct. 24, 1910 4839
415. G. No. 1032. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 1019); Oct. 24, 1910 4840
416. G. No. 1034. Eastbound Deported and Charity Passengers from Canada (G. No. 1004); Oct. 27, 1910 4842
417. G. No. 1035. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 1033); Oct. 29, 1910 4843
418. G. No. 1036. Russian American Line number of eastbound sailings (G. No. 1018); Nov. 1, 1910 4844
419. G. No. 1038. Thomson Line (G. No. 1030); Nov. 3, 1910 4846
420. G. No. 1039. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 1037); Nov. 4, 1910 4847
421. G. No. 1040. Opposition steamer "Grosser Kurfürst" Septbr. 1st. (G. No. 970); Nov. 5, 1910 4848
422. G. No. 1041. Thomson Line (G. No. 1038); Nov. 5, 1910 4849
423. G. No. 1042. Payments account Atlantic Conference; Nov. 7, 1910 4850
424. G. No. 1043. Begins "My physician states"; Nov. 8, 1910 4851
425. G. No. 1044. Payments account Royal Line; Nov. 9, 1910 4852
426. G. No. 1045. Payments account Scandinavian-American Line; Nov. 9, 1910 4853

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

Page

427. G. No. 1046. Payments account Russian-Eastasiatic S. S. Co.; Nov. 9, 1910 4854
428. G. No. 1048. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. G. No. 1039); Nov. 10, 1910 4856
429. G. No. 1049 Thomson Line (G. No. 1041); Nov. 11, 1910 4857
430. G. No. 1051. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 1048); Nov. 12, 1910 4859
431. G. No. 1053 Begins "I surely had not expected"; Nov 17, 1910 4860
432. G. No. 1054. Begins "Mr. Holst of the Scandinavian-American Line"; Nov. 17, 1910 4861
433. G. No. 1055. A. C. Meeting (G. No. 1052); Nov. 17, 1910 4862
434. G. No. 1056. Uranium S. S. Co. Ltd. (G. No. 1051); Nov. 18, 1910 4863
436. G. No. 1058 Changes in rates; Nov. 19, 1910 4865
437. G. No. 1059. A. C. Meeting; dated Nov. 19, 1910 4865
438. G. No. 1061. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1056); Nov. 21, 1910 4867
439. G. No. 1062. Thomson Line (G. No. 1049); Nov. 21, 1910 4869
440. G. No. 1065. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1064); Nov. 26, 1910 4872
441. G. No. 1067. Cabin Agreements; Nov. 28, 1910 4875
442. G. No. 1069. Steerage Agreements (G. No. 1066); Nov. 30, 1910 4879
443. G. No. 1070. Cabin Agreements (G. No. 1067); Nov. 30, 1910 4880
444. G. No. 1071. Steerage Agreements (G. No. 1069); Dec. 1, 1910 4881

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

	Page
445. G. No. 1072. Cabin Agreements (G. No. 1070); Dec. 1, 1910	4882
446. G. No. 1073. Passenger Agreements (G. No. 1069, 1070); Dec. 1, 1910 ..	4883
447. G. No. 1074. Agreement B B.; Dec. 1, 1910	4884
448. G. No. 1075. Steerage Agreements (G. No. 1073); Dec. 1, 1910	4885
449. G. No. 1076. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1065); Dec 2, 1910	4886
450. G. No. 1078. Begins "The following are the departures"; Dec. 3, 1910	4888
451. G. No. 1079. Changes in Prepaid rates; Dec. 5, 1910	4889
452. G. No. 1080. Payments account Atlantic Conference; Dec. 7, 1910	4890
453. G. No. 1081. Payments account Russian-Eastasiatic S. S. Co.; Dec. 8, 1910	4891
454. G. No. 1082. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1078); Dec. 8, 1910	4892
455. G. No. 1083. Payments account Scandinavian-American Line; Dec. 8, 1910	4893
456. G. No. 1084. Payments account Royal Line; Dec. 8, 1910	4894
457. G. No. 1085. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1082); Dec. 9, 1910	4895
458. G. No. 1087. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1085); Dec. 10, 1910	4897
459. G. No. 1088. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1087); Dec. 16, 1910	4898
460. G. No. 1089. Funds of immigrants (G. No. 521); Dec. 17, 1910	4899
461. G. No. 1091. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1088); Dec. 17, 1910	4901
462. G. No. 1092. Compensation payments for fighting steamers (G. No. 1026); Dec. 19, 1910	4902

Defendants' Exhibits (continued)

	Page
463. G. No. 1093. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1088); Dec. 22, 1910	4906
464. G. No. 1094. Compensation payment for fighting steamers (G. No. 1092) S. S. "Grosser Kurfürst" 10th Nov., '10; dated Dec. 23, 1910	4907
465. G. No. 1095. Begins "I received from an agent"; Dec. 23, 1910	4908
466. G. No. 1096. Compensation for fighting steamers (G. No. 1094) S. S. "Lituania" Sept. 9th, "Russia" Sept. 15th (Supplement); Dec. 24, 1910	4909
467. G. No. 1097. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1091); Dec. 24, 1910	4911
468. G. No. 1098. G. Schyns; Dec. 27, 1910	4912
469. G. No. 1099. Begins "The following is the list"; Dec. 29, 1910	4921
470. G. No. 1101. Uranium S. S. Co. (G. No. 1097); Dec. 30, 1910	4924
471. G. No. 1102. Begins "In circular letter G. No. 1096"; Dec. 30, 1910	4925

ADDENDA.

	PAGE
Defendants' Demurrers	5103
Opinion of Court on Demurrers	5123
Opinion of Court on Facts	5127
Notice of Entry	5134
Final Decree	5136
Order Allowing Appeal	5139
Petition for Appeal	5140
Notice of Appeal	5142
Petitioner's Assignments of Error	5144
Notice of Assignments of Error	5164
Praecipe	5166
Citation	5167
Stipulation	5169
Certification	5170

CONTENTS.

	Page.
STATEMENT OF THE CASE	1
Introduction	1–4
Description of Defendants	4–7
Description of the Business	7–9
History of the Combination	9–12
The General Pool Agreement	12–18
Rate Fixing by the Combination	18–22
Unfair Methods of Competition Against Independent Lines	22–29
1. Fighting ships	23–26
2. Boycotting agents who sell tickets for independent lines	26–28
3. Requiring railroads to discriminate against independent lines in the payment of "commercial allowances"	28–29
Effect of Unfair Competitive Methods	29–33
1. Against the Russian Volunteer Fleet	29–31
2. Against the Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company	31–32
3. Against the New York and Continental Line—Northwest Transport Company—Uranium Line.	32–33
The Present Status	33–37
Substance of the Defense	38–40
Decree of District Court	40–41
Assignments of Error	41–42
THE ARGUMENT	43
Outline	43–44
I. The Anti-Trust Act is applicable to ocean transportation between ports of the United States and foreign ports	44–56
1. As to the power of Congress	44–45
2. As to the intent of Congress	45–56
II. The Anti-Trust Act being applicable to ocean transportation between ports of the United States and foreign ports, a combination to restrain or monopolize such commerce can not escape because formed in a foreign country and composed of foreign corporations, if, as here, the combination is operative within the territorial limits of the United States	56–79
1. As to the power of Congress	57–65
2. As to the intent of Congress and herein as to the test of extraterritoriality	65–79

THE ARGUMENT—Continued. Page.

III. Defendant steamship lines are parties to a combination and conspiracy to pool traffic in steerage passengers between ports of the United States and foreign ports and to fix the rates of passage, thereby restraining foreign commerce in violation of the Anti-Trust Act 80–90
1. Statement of the law 80–84
2. Application of the law 84–90

IV. The Combination and Conspiracy by Unfair and Oppressive Methods of Competition also Prevents other Lines From Engaging in the Transportation of Steerage Passengers Between Ports of the United States and Foreign Ports, Thereby Further Restraining Foreign Commerce in Violation of the Anti-Trust Act 91–106
1. Statement of the Law 91–94
2. Application of the Law 95
a. The wrongful methods 96–101
b. The result 101
c. The purpose 101–106

V. The Alleged Good Done by the Combination in Stabilizing the Business is no Defense 107–114

VI. The Fact, if it be a Fact, that the Rates Charged by Members of the Combination have been Reasonable is no Defense 115–117

VII. The Reasoning of the District Court Considered. 118–124

VIII. Concerning the Remedy 124–125

CONCLUSION 125

CASES CITED.

Page.

Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211; 85. Fed. 271. 45, 82, 97, 114, 115

American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U. S. 347..... 66, 77, 79

Anderson v. Jett, 89 Ky. 375..... 50, 83

Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56..... 58, 69

Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co. v. Riverside Mills, 219 U. S. 186..... 58, 60

Attorney General v. Adelaide S. S. Co., L. R. 1913 A. C. 781..... 116

Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. 519..... 74

Beale, Foreign Corporations, sections 112, 118, 120..... 74

Bloomer v. State, 48 Md. 521..... 70

Boise City I. & L. Co. v. Clark, 131 Fed. 415..... 36

Brown v. Elliott, 225 U. S. 392..... 57, 58, 70

Burton v. United States, 202 U. S. 344..... 58

Buttfield v. Stranahan, 192 U. S. 470..... 61

Chesapeake & Ohio Fuel Co. v. United States, 115 Fed. 610..... 82, 114

Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Wabash, etc. R. Co., 61 Fed. 993.... 82

Church of the Holy Trinity v. United States, 143 U. S. 457.....

Cincinnati Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179..... 49, 82

Clarke v. Central R. R. Co., 50 Fed. 338..... 74

Cole Transportation Co. v. White Star Line, 186 Fed. 63..... 50, 83

Commonwealth v. Corlies, 3 Brews. (Pa.) 575..... 70

Commonwealth v. Gillespie, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 469 70

Commonwealth v. Macloon, 101 Mass. 1..... 69, 79

Commonwealth v. Smith, 11 Allen 243..... 79

Constitution, Art. I, sec. 8..... 45

Cosmopolitan Shipping Co. v. Hamburg-American Packet Co., 13 I. C. C. 266..... 53

Craft v. McConnoughy, 79 Ill. 346..... 82

Cummings v. Union Blue Stone Co., 164 N. Y. 401..... 81

D., L. & W. R. Co. v. Frank, 110 Fed. 689 82

Eastern States Retail Lumber Dealers' Assn. v. United States, 234 U. S. 600..... 91, 98, 111

European, The, 120 Fed. 776..... 65

Ex parte Rogers, 10 Tex. App. 655..... 70

Gibbs v. Baltimore Gas Co., 130 U. S. 395..... 82

Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1..... 44, 46

Grenada Lumber Co. v. Mississippi, 217 U. S. 433..... 95

Page.

Harvard Law Review, May, 1909, vol. 22, p. 495 123
Hooker v. Vandewater, 4 Denio (N. Y.) 434 50
Hyde v. Shine, 199 U. S. 62 ..... 58, 70, 83
Hyde and Schneider v. United States, 225 U. S. 347 ..... 57, 68, 70, 71

Import Rate Case, 162 U. S. 197 55
India Bagging Co. v. Koch, 14 La. An. 168 81
In re Palliser, 136 U. S. 257 ..... 58, 68
Insurance Cos. v. State, 75 Miss. 25 70
International Harvester Co. v. Missouri, 234 U. S. 199 ..... 58, 70, 107, 112
International Harvester Co. v. Missouri, 237 Mo. 369 70
International Harvester Co. v. Kentucky, 137 Ky. 668 70
Interstate Com. Com. v. U. P. R. Co., 222 U. S. 541 117

Kennett v. Chambers, 14 How. 38 69

Leonard v. Abner Drury Brewing Co., 25 App. Cas. (D. C.), 161 82
Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274 98
London, Paris & American Bank v. Aronstein, 117 Fed. 601 74

Miles Medical Co. v. Park & Sons Co., 220 U. S. 373 80
Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor, L. R. 1892, A. C. 25 97
Montague v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38 ..... 92, 114
Moore's Digest of International Law, vol. 2, p. 244 78
Morris Run Coal Co. v. Barclay Coal Co., 68 Pa. St. 173 82

National Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas, 197 U. S. 115 108
Nester v. Continental Drilling Co., 161 Pa. St. 473 81
Noble State Bank v. Haskell, 219 U. S. 104 59
Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197 ..... 45, 80, 110, 113
Noyes, Intercorporate Relations, 513, Note 1 81
Noyes v. State, 41 N. J. L. 418 70

O'Carrol v. The Havre, 45 Fed. 764 65
Oceanic Steam Navigation Co. v. Stranahan, 214 U. S. 320 ..... 60, 69
Oil Co. v. Adoue, 83 Tex. 650 ..... 81, 82
Oregon Steam Navigation Co. v. Winsor, 20 Wall. 64 50
Oscanyan v. Winchester &c. Co., 103 U. S. 261 69

Page on Contracts, Vol. III, sec. 1729 70
Park & Sons v. Hartman, 153 Fed. 24 120
Passenger Cases, The, 7 How. 283 44
Patterson v. Bark Eudora, 190 U. S. 169 59
Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. 168 74
Pearce v. Territory, 11 Okla. 438 70
Pearsall v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 161 U. S. 646 115
People v. Arnold 46 Mich. 268 70
People v. Mather, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 229 70
People v. Sheldon, 139 N. Y. 251 81
Pipe Line Cases, 234 U. S. 548 ..... 58, 60
Pollock on Contracts, Williston's Ed., p. 506 69

Page.

Rates for Transportation of Anthracite Coal, 31 I. C. C. 282..... 113
Reg. v. Connolly, 25 Ontario 151..... 70
Report of Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries (Doc. 805, 63d Cong., 2d sess.)..... 122
Rex v. Brisac, 4 East 164..... 58, 70

Salt Co. v. Guthrie, 35 O. St. 666..... 81
Shawnee Compress Co. v. Anderson, 209 U. S. 423..... 94
Simpson v. State, 92 Ga. 41..... 69, 79
Southern Pacific Terminal Co. v. I. C. C. 219 U. S. 498..... 36
Southern Ry. Co. v. Reid, 222 U. S. 424..... 58
Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States, 226 U. S. 20..... 81, 95, 111
Stanton v. Allen, 5 Denio (N. Y.) 434..... 50, 83
State v. Hamilton, 13 Nev. 386..... 70
State v. Nugent, 77 N. J. L. 84..... 70
Story, Conflict of Laws, sections 242, 244..... 69
Strassheim v. Daily, 221 U. S. 280..... 58, 68, 77, 78
Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375..... 81, 92

Thomsen v. Union Castle Mail S. S. Co., 166 Fed. 251..... 50, 76, 82, 106
Trenton Potteries Co. v. Olyphant, 58 N. J. Eq. 507..... 81

United States v. American Tobacco Co., 221 U. S. 106. 60, 74, 81, 101, 121, 122
United States v. Baltic Mills, 124 Fed. 38..... 65
United States v. Craig, 28 Fed. 795..... 65
United States v. Delaware & Hudson Co., 213 U. S. 366..... 59
United States v. D., L. & W. R. Co., 238 U. S. 516..... 115
United States v. Dwight Mfg. Co., 210 Fed. 74..... 65
United States v. Goldenberg, 168 U. S. 95..... 51, 52
United States v. Great Lakes Towing Co., 208 Fed. 733..... 50
United States v. Hamburg-American Line, 200 Fed. 805..... 2, 50, 76, 83
United States v. Joint Traffic Association, 171 U. S. 505..... 20, 44, 46, 81, 85, 106, 109, 113, 115
United States v. Kissell, 218 U. S. 601..... 70, 72
United States v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 203 Fed. 295..... 82
United States v. Lavarello, 149 Fed. 297..... 64
United States v. Linton, 223 Fed. 677 70
United States v. National Cash Register Co., 222 Fed. 599..... 112
United States v. Nicholson, 12 Fed. 522..... 65
United States v. Nord Deutscher Lloyd Co., 223 U. S. 512... 57, 64, 68, 69, 77
United States v. Pacific & Arctic Co., 228 U. S. 87..... 48, 74, 75, 77, 91
United States v. Prince Line, 220 Fed. 230..... 50, 76
United States v. Reading Co., 226 U. S. 324..... 91, 92, 93
United States v. St. Louis Terminal Ry., 224 U. S. 383..... 92, 93
United States v. Standard Oil Co., 221 U. S. 1..... 80, 81, 93, 116, 121
United States v. Thayer, 209 U. S. 39..... 69
United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Association, 166 U. S. 290... 36, 46, 66, 81, 85, 106, 108, 113, 115, 124
United States v. Union Pacific R. R. Co., 226 U. S. 61. 49, 81, 82, 85, 107, 119

Page.

United States v. United States Steel Corporation, 223 Fed. 55 ..... 82, 83, 84, 111, 114

Veazie v. Moor, 14 How. 568..... 71
Vulcan Powder Co. v. Hercules Powder Co., 96 Cal. 510..... 82

Walworth v. Harris, 129 U. S. 355..... 69
Watson v. Harlem, etc. Navigation Co., 52 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 348.... 50, 83
Westlake on Private International Law, 3d ed. 259..... 70
Wheeler-Stenzel Co. v. Window Glass Jobbers' Ass'n, 152 Fed. 864... 82
Williston's Pollock on Contracts, 506..... 69
White Star Line v. Star Line Steamers, 141 Mich. 604..... 50, 83
Wildenhus's Case, 120 U. S. 1..... 79
Williams v. Gold Hill Mining Co., 96 Fed. 454..... 74
Wyman, Control of the Market, 103, 106..... 95, 96

STATUTES CITED.

Antitrust Act, 26 Stat., 209..... 1, 45
Expediting Act, 32 Stat., 823; 36 Stat., 854..... 2
Trade Commission Act, 38 Stat., 717, 719..... 112
Act of December 19, 1908, 35 Stat., 583..... 63
Act of February 20, 1907, 34 Stat., 898..... 63
Act of August 2, 1882, 22 Stat., 186..... 63

In the Supreme Court of the United States.

OCTOBER TERM, 1915.

No. 289.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, APPELLANT,

v.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT ET AL.

No. 332.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT ET AL., APPELLANTS,

v.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

APPEALS FROM THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

BRIEF FOR THE UNITED STATES.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE.

INTRODUCTION.

These are cross appeals from a decree of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York dismissing, except in one subordinate particular, a suit in equity brought by the United States under the Federal Anti-Trust Act, 26 Stat. 209, c. 647, to dissolve a combination of steamship lines in respect of the transportation of steerage passengers between the United States and Europe. The case comes directly from the District Court as provided by the Expediting Act, 32 Stat. 823, c. 544; 36 Stat. 854, c. 428.

The petition charges that the defendants, comprising practically all the steamship lines engaged in the North Atlantic steerage trade, have entered into a combination in respect to the transportation of steerage passengers to and from the United States; have apportioned that business among themselves in definite percentages; have fixed rates; and also, by various unfair competitive practices, including the joint operation of "fighting ships," have driven from the field competitors outside the combination, and thus attained a virtual monopoly.

On demurrer the District Court held, December 20, 1911, that the petition stated a good cause of action under the Anti-Trust Act. United States v. Hamburg American Line (200 Fed. 806; 10 R. 5123). On final hearing, however, it reversed itself. Whilst apparently sustaining all essential allegations of fact contained in the petition,[1] it nevertheless held that the combination was a "reasonable one" and dismissed the petition absolutely except as to the subordinate feature of the "fighting ships" (Opinion, 216 Fed. 971; 10 R. 5127; Decree, 10 R. 5136).

The Record consists of 14 volumes. All of the oral evidence, together with the petition and answers, is contained in three volumes—11, 12, and 13. Volumes 1 to 10, inclusive, consist of documentary exhibits—agreements, resolutions, correspondence, etc.—of which the most important are the following:

[1] It did not find that the rates were excessive, as charged; but that was not an essential allegation. See infra, pp. 115–117.

Description of exhibits.	Volume and page.	Exhibit No.
Agreement A. A., the general pool agreement....	1 R. 49.....	3.
The Mediterranean Agreement.....	1 R. 95.....	6.
Minutes of Atlantic Conference.....	5 R. 2282, 2294, 2301, 2306, 2310.	705, 707, 708, 709, 712.
Minutes of American Atlantic Conference.....	1 R. 388–424.	62–76.
Typical weekly statements showing percentage carried by each line.	5 R. 2448..	727.
Typical compensation accounts showing sums payable or receivable for variations from pool percentages.	7 R. 3382, 3401, 3597	1278, 1281, 1089.
Agreement adopting general schedule of rates for British trade.	5 R. 2697..	757.
Agreement adopting general schedule of rates for Scandinavian trade.	5 R. 2713..	758.
Agreement adopting general schedule of rates for Finnish trade.	5 R. 2664..	754.
Agreement adopting general schedule of rates for Continental trade.	9 R. 4895..	1644.
Fighting ship agreement.....	5 R. 2283, sec. 1.	705.
Typical compensation accounts dividing expense of fighting ships.	9 R. 4382, 4406, 4819, 4902, 4922.	1509, 219, 1630, 462, 1647.
Rule 9, boycotting agents of independent lines.	1 R. 219, 229.	20, 22.
Railroad agreements to refuse "commercial allowances" to independent lines.	1 R. 359–360, 376 – 377, Art. III sec. 1.	59, 60.
Tables showing carryings of each line and of the respective groups of lines each calendar year 1906–1911.	2 R. 533–1041.	154–159.

The opinions of the court below, both on demurrer and on final hearing, together with the final decree and the Government's assignments of error, are in volume 10. The defendants' assignments of error on cross appeal are in volume 14.

DESCRIPTION OF DEFENDANTS.

The corporate defendants are as follows:

THE ALLAN LINE STEAMSHIP COMPANY, LIMITED, hereafter called the "Allan Line," a British corporation, operating from Portland, Boston, and Philadelphia to London, Liverpool, and Glasgow and return (Pet. 11 R. 3; Ans. Allan Line, 11 R. 148).

INTERNATIONAL MERCANTILE MARINE COMPANY, a New Jersey corporation, operating from New York and Philadelphia to Liverpool and Southampton and return. Its ships, together with those of its subsidiary company, defendant INTERNATIONAL NAVIGATION COMPANY, LIMITED, also operating from New York and Philadelphia to Liverpool and Southampton, are hereafter jointly referred to as the "American Line." Besides International Navigation Company, Limited, it also controls through stock ownership the defendants British and North Atlantic Steam Navigation Company, Limited, Societe Anonyme de Navigation Belge Americaine, and Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, Limited (Pet. 11 R. 4–5; Ans. 11 R. 104).

BRITISH AND NORTH ATLANTIC STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY, LIMITED, a British corporation, hereafter called the "Dominion Line," operating from Portland to Liverpool and return (Pet. 11 R. 9; Ans. 11 R. 104).

SOCIETE ANONYME DE NAVIGATION BELGE AMERICAINE, a Belgian corporation, hereafter called the "Red Star Line," operating from New York and Philadelphia to Antwerp and return (Pet. 11 R. 14; Ans. 11 R. 104).

OCEANIC STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY, LIMITED, a British corporation, hereafter called the "White Star Line," operating from New York and Boston to Liverpool and Southampton and return (Pet. 11 R. 17; Ans. 11 R. 104).

THE ANCHOR LINE (HENDERSON BROTHERS), LIMITED, a British corporation, hereafter called the "Anchor Line," operating from New York to Glasgow and return.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY, a Canadian corporation, operating a regular line of steamships, hereafter called the "Canadian Pacific Line," from Montreal, Quebec, and St. John in the Dominion of Canada to Liverpool, England, and return. It also owns and operates a transcontinental railroad which, partly through branches running into the United States and partly through connections with the Wabash and other American railroads, transports a substantial proportion (12%) of its steamship passengers to and from points in this country (Pet. 11 R. 7; Ans. 11 R. 204–205; Kerr 13 R. 1598–1612).

THE CUNARD STEAMSHIP COMPANY, LIMITED, a British corporation, hereafter called the "Cunard Line," operating from New York and Boston to Liverpool in England, Fiume in Hungary, and Trieste in Austria, and return (Pet. 11 R. 8; Ans. 11 R. 229–230).

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT, a German corporation, hereafter called the "Hamburg-American Line," operating from New York to Hamburg and return (Pet. 11 R. 10; Ans. 11 R. 166).

NORD DEUTSCHER LLOYD, a German corporation, hereafter called the "North German Lloyd Line," operating from New York, Baltimore, and Galveston to Bremen and return (Pet. 11 R. 13; Ans. 11 R. 128).

NEDERLANDSH-AMERIKAANSCHE STOOMVAART MAATSCHAPIJ (HOLLAND-AMERIKA LIJN), a Netherlands corporation, hereafter called the "Holland-America Line," operating between New York and Rotterdam and return (Pet. 11 R. 12; Ans. 11 R. 86).

RUSSIAN EAST ASIATIC STEAMSHIP COMPANY, a Russian corporation, hereafter called the "Russian-America Line," operating between New York and Libau, Russia, and return (Pet. 11 R. 15; Ans. 11 R. 259).

The individual defendants are principal officers or general agents in this country of the defendant corporations, as follows:

BRYCE J. ALLEN is agent of the Allan Line at the port of Boston (Pet. 11 R. 4; Ans. 11 R. 222; Allan 13 R. 1428).

PHILIP A. S. FRANKLIN is vice-president of the International Mercantile Marine Company (Pet. 11 R. 6; Ans. 11 R. 104).

WILLIAM COVERLEY is general agent of the Anchor Line and manager of its business in the United States (Pet. 11 R. 7; Ans. 11 R. 68).

CHARLES P. SUMNER is general agent of the Cunard Line and manager of its business in the United States (Pet. 11 R. 9; Ans. 11 R. 255).

EMIL L. BOAS (now deceased) was resident director of the Hamburg-American Line and general manager of its business in the United States (Pet. 11 R. 11; Ans. 11 R. 186).

ADRIAN GIPS is general agent of the Holland-America Line in the United States (Pet. 11 R. 12–13; Ans. 11 R. 86).

GUSTAV H. SCHWAB (now deceased), HERMAN C. VON POST and GUSTAV H. SCHWAB, Jr., partners doing business under the firm name of Oelrichs and Company, were general agents of the North German Lloyd Line and in charge of its affairs in the United States (Pet. 11 R. 14; Ans. 11 R. 124).

ALEXANDER E. JOHNSON and MAX STRAUS, copartners under the firm name of A. E. Johnson and Company, are general passenger agents of the Russian-America Line in the United States (Pet. 11 R. 16; Ans. 11 R. 265; Straus, 12 R. 745).

DESCRIPTION OF THE BUSINESS.

The transportation of steerage passengers between the United States and Europe is a business of great importance. The average number of such passengers transported in each of the years 1907–1911, inclusive, was over 1,400,000 (2 R. 694, 776,862, 954). In 1911, the year in which this suit was filed, the number was as follows:

East bound	515,491
West bound	785,765
Total	1,301,256

As the average steerage rate is $35 (Nyland, 11 R. 509), the annual revenue from this traffic must be approximately $50,000,000.

Speaking generally, the steamship lines carry not only steeragers but also first-class passengers, second-class passengers,[1] and freight. The ships are so constructed that whenever steerage travel is light the bunks and partitions in the steerage can be removed, making the space available for freight (Straus 12 R. 894).

The steamship lines are divided naturally and by long trade practice into three groups:

(1) The British Lines, comprising those whose eastern termini are in the British Isles or in Scandinavia, including Norway, Sweden, and Denmark.

(2) The Continental Lines, comprising those whose eastern termini are in continental Europe north of Cadiz, Spain, but excluding Scandinavia.

(3) The Mediterranean Lines, which, as their name indicates, operate from Mediterranean ports.

Representatives of these groups are accustomed to meet from time to time for discussion and concerted action on matters of mutual interest. This practice has given rise to permanent associations called conferences. The British Lines constitute the North Atlantic Conference, the Continental Lines the Continental Conference, and the Mediterranean Lines the Mediterranean Conference. The British Lines and the Continental Lines together constitute the Atlantic Conference.

[1] First and second class passengers are referred to collectively as "cabin" passengers. Some ships also carry third-class passengers, so-called; but for the purposes of this case third-class and steerage are the same (General Pool Agreement, 1 R. 60, Art. 13, Commentary a).

HISTORY OF THE COMBINATION.

While this case is chiefly concerned with the so-called Agreement AA—the General Pool Agreement of February 5, 1908—described hereinafter, p. 12, nevertheless, in order to present the situation adequately, a brief reference to several earlier agreements is necessary.

The famous N. D. L. V.[1] agreement of January 19 1892, is the earliest known pooling arrangement in this trade (Ismay, 12 R. 1007; Winter, 12 R. 1165, 1168; Govt. Ex. 2, 1 R. 3). It included only the Continental Lines and apportioned among them in definite percentages the steerage traffic, westbound and eastbound, between the United States and continental Europe.[2] The British Lines were not parties to this agreement, but 14 per cent of the continental traffic was set apart for them, that being the proportion which on the basis of past carryings they might be expected to secure[1] (Winter, 12 R. 1166).

[1] Nord-Atlantischer Dampfer-Linien Verband or North Atlantic Steamship Lines Combine.

[2] The original N. D. L. V. agreement covered only westbound traffic, but from the minutes of its later meetings and from subsequent agreements with other lines it is clear that it was subsequently extended to cover eastbound traffic also (6 R. 2749, m. 434, 435 a; 1 R. 83; 90; 165–166 m. 837–838; 179, m. 904, note).

An agreement between the N. D. L. V. lines—i. e., the Continental Lines—and the British Lines, was contemplated, however, and on September 10, 1895, was entered into (Govt. Ex. 745, 5 R. 2604). By this agreement the Continental Lines entirely withdrew from the transportation of steerage passengers between British, Scandinavian, and Finnish ports and the United States, both westbound and eastbound (5 R. 2604, sec. 2; Ismay, 12 R. 1035). In return the British Lines accepted 6 per cent[2] as their share of the continental steerage traffic with the United States and promised to maintain minimum rates not lower than the lowest rate fixed by the Continental Lines (5 R. 2604, secs. 3, 5, 6). There were also provisions for the compilation of pool statistics, for the payment of compensation in case the allotted percentages were exceeded by either group, and otherwise insuring the agreed distribution of traffic.

By a separate pooling agreement dated June 27, 1896, the British Lines apportioned among themselves the 6 per cent of continental business allotted to them (5 R. 2608; Ismay, 12 R. 1036).

These agreements have all been renewed from time to time and theoretically at least are still in existence, though largely superseded in fact by the General Pool

[1] At that time there were no direct Mediterranean Lines to be considered (Winter, 12 R. 1165).

[2] The 14 per cent set apart for the British Lines in the original N. D. L. V. agreement included the Scandinavian trade (1 R. 5, Commentary to Article I).

Agreement (Winter, 12 R. 1165; 1 R. 157, Resolution 801; 6 R. 2741, 2749; 5 R. 2621; Ismay, 12 R. 1037; Cauty, 12 R. 1092).

In 1902 dissension arose, due partly to the establishment by the Cunard Line at the request of the Hungarian Government of a direct Mediterranean service from Fiume, Hungary (Winter, 12 R. 1175–1178, 1181), and partly to a contest for first-cabin business precipitated by the building of new vessels with luxurious first class accommodations[1] (Winter, 12 R. 1178–1181). These difficulties were composed in 1905 but broke out afresh in 1907 with the building of the Mauretania and Lusitania (Winter, 12 R. 1176, 1182, 1188–1190). This second disagreement was of brief duration. Late in 1907 negotiations began which resulted, February 5, 1908, in Agreement AA—the General Pool Agreement—discussed hereinafter p. 12 (Winter, 12 R. 1190; Govt. Ex. 3, 1 R. 49).

Meanwhile, with the growth of traffic between southeastern Europe and Asia and the United States, direct Mediterranean lines had sprung up, particularly lines from Italy and Greece. These lines commenced to bid for continental traffic. The Continental Lines in turn sought Mediterranean traffic. A period of competition ended with the so-called Mediterranean Steerage Traffic Agreement of February 8, 1909, by which the Mediterranean Lines withdrew from continental business both eastbound and westbound, and the [1] This case has nothing to do with the first-class passenger business.

British and Continental lines, except those having direct Mediterranean services, withdrew from Mediterranean business both eastbound and westbound [1] (Govt. Ex. 6, 1 R. 95, 104, Article 17; Nyland, 11 R. 545; Richard, 12 R. 804–805; Winter, 12 R. 1191). This agreement is still in effect (Ismay, 12 R. 1043). Incidentally, the Mediterranean Lines are parties to pooling agreements of their own, similar to Agreement AA, covering this Mediterranean business from which the British and Continental lines withdrew (1 R. 95–96, 113–114, 116–117; 5 R. 2426–2428, 2434–2435).

As a result of these arrangements the trans-Atlantic steerage traffic is divided into two parts, (1) the North Atlantic traffic, including passengers from the British Isles and continental Europe north of Cadiz, Spain; (2) the Mediterranean traffic, principally from Italy, Greece, and Asiatic countries. As to each, competition is suppressed by pooling agreements among the interested lines. The defendants in this suit are engaged in the North Atlantic traffic.

THE GENERAL POOL AGREEMENT.

Agreement AA, known as the General Pool Agreement, which is the foundation of the present case, was entered into February 5, 1908, by both the N. D. L. V.

[1] Though all the Mediterranean Lines were not originally parties to this agreement, they subsequently became so; the French Line, the American Line, and the White Star Line under Special Agreement A, February 18, 1909 (1 R. 116; Ismay, 12 R. 1043); the Austro Americana Line and the Cunard Line by Special Agreement B, October 1, 1908 (1 R. 113), and Special Agreement E, January 1, 1910 (5 R. 2426; Ismay, 12 R. 1042–1043; and the Greek Lines by Special Agreement E, January 1, 1910 (5 R. 2426), and Special Agreement F, January 1, 1910 (5 R. 2432).

or Continental Conference Lines and the British or North Atlantic Conference Lines. The original parties were—

The Allan Line,

The Anchor Line,

The Cunard Line,

The Hamburg-American Line,

The Holland-America Line,

The North German Lloyd Line,

The Red Star Line,

International Mercantile Marine Company,

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company (Atlantic steamship lines),

The French Line.

(1 R. 50–51; 1 R. 81, Appendix III, clause f; Sandford, 11 R. 334–335; Winter, 13 R. 1412.)

Agreement Z, dated February 5, 1908, admitted certain Canadian lines, namely, the Allan Line (Canadian Services), the Dominion Line and the Donaldson Line (5 R. 2667; Ismay, 12 R. 1041).

Agreement BB, dated September 1, 1908, admitted the Russian East Asiatic Line (5 R. 2682; Ismay, 12 R. 1041; Straus, 12 R. 776–777, 742–743; Ans. 11 R. 259, sec. 2).

The Royal Line, a subsidiary of the Canadian Northern Railroad Company, was admitted by Agreement CC, August 15, 1910 (5 R. 2413), and Agreement DD, August 15, 1910 (5 R. 2412; Kerr 13 R. 1603; Ismay, 12 R. 1042; Winter, 12 R. 1192).

The Scandinavian-American Line was admitted by two agreements dated March 3, 1910 (5 R. 2358, sec. 1; 5 R. 2362; Ismay, 12 R. 1028; Minutes of the Atlantic Conference, 5 R. 2337, m. 87; 2339–2342; 2347, m. 120; 2351, m. 134; 2355, m. 150; Govt. Ex. 715, 5 R. 2372).

Thus the General Pool Agreement included or has come to include practically every steamship line engaged in the steerage traffic between the United States and all of Europe north of Cadiz, Spain, including the British Isles and Scandinavia. The only exceptions are the Russian Volunteer Fleet, which was soon driven out of business, and the New York and Continental Line, which commenced after the pool was formed and which, twice ruined and forced to reorganize by the unfair and oppressive practices of the combination hereinafter set forth, persists to-day in an insolvent condition as the Uranium Line, the sole surviving independent (Winter, 12 R. 1192; 13 R. 1420–1421; Thomas, 13 R. 1702, 1703).

The General Pool Agreement is reproduced in full in the record (1 R. 49), and in substance provides as follows:

(1) The parties guarantee to each other certain definite percentages of the entire steerage traffic carried by them both eastbound and westbound between European ports and the United States and Canada, except Mediterranean passengers (1 R. 51–53, Arts. 1–3).

(2) Any line exceeding its allotment must pay into the pool a compensation price of £4 for each excess passenger, which sum is to be paid proportionately to the line or lines which have not carried their full quota. It is expressly stated that this provision "forms one of the main features of the entire contract" (1 R. 55–56, Art. 6).

(3) Each line must make a weekly report of the number of steerage passengers carried, and from these the secretary of the pool compiles weekly statements showing the pool position of each line. He also prepares each month provisional accounts of the compensation due from lines which have exceeded their quota. This must be paid immediately on pain of heavy penalties. Final settlements are made at the end of each year (1 R. 57, Art's 8 and 10).

(4) Each line undertakes to arrange its rates and service in such manner that the number of steerage passengers it actually carries shall correspond as nearly as possible with the number allotted to it by the contract. If any line exceeds its proportion it is in duty bound to adopt measures calculated to bring about a correct adjustment. The other lines may either await the action of the individual line or a majority of the lines representing 75 per cent of the pool shares can immediately order rates on a plus line to be raised or rates on a minus line to be lowered, and from this order there is no appeal. It is expressly stated, however, that "all parties were unanimously of the opinion that the adjustment is, whenever practicable, to be effected not by reducing the rates of one Line but on the contrary by raising the rates of one or several of the Lines" (1 R. 58, Art's 9 and 11).

(5) No line has the right to alter its steerage rates without having previously informed the secretary; i. e., all lines are bound to maintain existing rates until the other pool members are notified (1 R. 60, Art. 12).

(6) No circulars or publications shall be issued by any line reflecting upon or instituting comparisons with any other conference line unfavorable to the latter, and no party shall support (advertise in) any newspaper which shall systematically attack any conference line (1 R. 63, Art. 16).

(7) To insure the faithful performance of the agreement, each line deposits with the secretary a promissory note in the amount of £1,000 for each per cent of traffic allotted to it in the pool. From this amount penalties may be collected ranging from £250 for smaller infractions to the forfeiture of the entire deposit if the line withdraws from the agreement before its expiration, refuses to pay compensation money, or assists directly or indirectly any opposition line (1 R. 64–66, Art's 17–21).

(8) New lines may be admitted or the terms of the agreement altered only by unanimous vote, unless otherwise provided in the contract (1 R. 66, Art. 22).

(9) To assist in the carrying out of the agreement a Secretary was appointed—Mr. H. Peters at Jena, Germany (1 R. 67, Art. 23; Ismay, 12 R. 1017). Arbitrators are also provided for (1 R. 67–68, Art's 23 and 24).

(10) Regular meetings are to be held alternately at London and Cologne for the purpose of carrying out this agreement and agreements collateral thereto (1 R. 71, Art. 25). These meetings constitute what is called The Atlantic Conference (Cauty, 12 R. 1047). A considerable portion of the minutes of The Atlantic Conference, showing the various matters discussed and the action taken thereon, are set forth in the record (5 R. 2282, Govt. Ex. 705; 5 R. 2301, Govt. Ex. 708; 5 R. 2310, Govt. Ex. 712).

Representatives of the Atlantic Conference Lines likewise meet in New York in what is called the American Atlantic Conference or New York Conference, the secretary of which, at the time this suit was filed, was Mr. Lawson Sandford (Sandford, 11 R. 292, 312–313, 339; Cauty, 12 R. 1047; Ismay, 12 R. 1016; Minutes American Atlantic Conference, 1 R. 388; Letter showing object of American Atlantic Conference, 6 R. 2873). Minutes of the American Atlantic Conference are also in the record (Govt. Ex's 61–76, 1 R. 385–419).

(11) The agreement was originally for three years, until February 22, 1911, and thereafter from year to year unless notice should be given on or before December 1, 1910 (1 R. 73, Art. 27). December 3, 1910,[1] it was renewed for five years (Ismay, 12 R. 1031).

It is not disputed that the terms of this agreement have been and are being faithfully carried out—that the pool percentages have been accepted, weekly statistics circulated of steerage passengers carried by the various lines, rates raised and lowered, and compensation payments regularly collected from the lines exceeding their quota and distributed to those falling short (Ismay, 12 R. 1019, fol. 3057; Lister, 13 R. 1532; Franklin, 13 R. 1800).

[1] One month before this suit was filed, January 4, 1911.

RATE FIXING BY THE COMBINATION.

The fixing of rates is the primary purpose to which all other provisions of the General Pool Agreement—such as the apportionment of traffic—are subordinate. The defendants do not deny this. As testified by Cauty, vice president of the International Mercantile Marine (12 R. 1092–1093):

> Now, in arriving at a pool we did not say to ourselves "This business must be pooled." I do not know whether you can understand the distinction; I want to make it clear. We did not approach it as a pool with one object in view. We had been working almost entirely up to then under rate agreements, and I may tell you it was a very, very difficult thing when you had to give a separate minimum rate to each individual steamer on the Atlantic. We did accomplish that in respect of first and second-class passengers, but with regard to third-class the difficulties between the various lines were insurmountable, and I think I can say that for nearly two years negotiations were going on in a desultory fashion between various interests in an endeavor to find some way out of this deadlock in regard to third-class business, and it was only after considering a great many different ways of arriving at a solution of the question > that this pool, the AA Agreement, about which so much has been said, was made. That pool was established as an alternative to a rate agreement, and we have found it has got over a great many of the difficult questions which had to be considered in connection with third-class business. [Italics ours.]

To the same effect see Hannah, 13 R. 1466, 1474, 1476–1477; Lister, 13 R. 1495–1496; Cauty, 12 R. 1079; Circular letter, 7 R. 3318 fol. 9954.

In stating that the combination fixes rates we do not refer merely to the provisions in Agreement AA permitting lines representing 75 per cent of the pool shares to alter individual rates for pool adjustment purposes, and requiring each line to maintain existing rates until notice has been given to the other parties. We refer also to the adoption of whole schedules of rates and to the inauguration of general and uniform advances.

In Agreement AA itself a general schedule of rates was approved (Appendix I, sec. (2), 1 R. 76). Subsequent changes were made as follows:

A general schedule of Scandinavian rates was adopted February 20, 1908, and with amendments is in effect to-day (5 R. 2713; Ismay, 12 R. 1040).

A general schedule of British rates was adopted May 23, 1908, amended August 15, 1910, and is in effect to-day (5 R. 2697; Ismay, 12 R. 1042).

It seems to have been the practice to fix the Continental rates at the beginning of each year. The last schedule of continental rates shown in the record is that agreed upon effective January 1, 1911, three days before this suit was filed (9 R. 4895, Govt. Ex. 1644).[1]

The officers of the defendant lines themselves admitted that the present steerage rates are all reached by agreement.

For example, Franklin, vice president of the International Mercantile Marine, testified (13 R. 1825–1826):

> Q. And the rates both under "AA" and under the first and second-class agreements have been fixed by agreement, have they not?
>
> A. They are all fixed to-day by agreement.
>
> Q. But they have been, have they not, since those agreements have been in effect?
>
> A. They have been practically since 1908.
>
> [Italics ours.]

---

[1] For other instances of rate fixing by general agreement see 8 R. 3909; 7 R. 3340 et seq.; 6 R. 2871, 2893, 3169, 3182, 3188, 3194, 3195; 5 R. 2254, 2255, 2257, 2267, 2659, 2664; 4 R. 2000, 2012, 2013, 2069; 9 R. 4545–4548; Lister 13 R. 1496, 1544–1545; 8 R. 4301–4302 m. 18, 19, 20; Franklin, 13 R. 1815, 1825–1826.

That an individual line might theoretically initiate changes in its own rates on notice to the other parties is of course immaterial. The rates so initiated are subject to the control of a majority of the lines representing 75 per cent of the shares, and rate changes resulting in deviation from allotted percentages are not tolerated (1 R. 59, Art. 11). As said by this court in United States v. Joint Traffic Assn., 171 U. S. 505, 563:

"It is obvious, however, that if such deviation from rates by any company from those agreed upon, be tolerated, the principal object of the association fails of accomplishment, because the purpose of its formation is the establishment and maintenance of reasonable and just rates and a general uniformity therein. If one company is allowed, while remaining a member of the association, to fix its own rates and be guided by them, it is plain that as to that company the agreement might as well be rescinded. This result was never contemplated. * * * the board undoubtedly has authority and power to enforce the uniformity of rates * * *."

Similarly, Winter, passenger manager of the North German Lloyd, testified (13 R. 1748):

> Q. They [steerage rates] have increased to a certain extent, have they not?
>
> A. Yes, with the demand.
>
> Q. And the rates practically now are $35?
>
> A. Yes, on an average.
>
> Q. That is by agreement amongst the lines also?
>
> A. Yes, and the demand. [Italics ours.]

The following correspondence illustrates how general advances take place:

Circular letter, March 30, 1908, Secretary Peters to Pool Members (7 R. 3305):

> On Thursday last I informed the Parties that the Continental Lines intended to advance steerage rates all round four dollars except for Continental steamers sailing about same date as steamers of opposition lines, and that they further intended to advance westbound steerage rates all round by ten marks, requesting British Lines to increase their eastbound and westbound Continental steerage rates accordingly.
>
> To-day I wired as follows:
>
> "All lines have agreed immediate advance Continental steerage rates eastbound four dollars, westbound ten marks."

Circular letter, April 10, 1909, Secretary Peters to Pool Members (8 R. 3918):

> The Mediterranean Lines having finally agreed to increase their eastbound rates by three dollars after 17th instant and Mr. Smyth having informed me that the British Lines will agree to the proposed advance of Continental eastbound steerage rates when the Mediterranean Lines have advanced theirs, I shall cable Mr. Sandford on Thursday next, that circulars announcing the immediate advance of Continental eastbound rates by three dollars are to be issued on April seventeenth.

Letter, August 21, 1908, White Star Line to Ismay, Imrie & Co. (6 R. 3194):

Scandinavian-Finnish prepaid Third-Class Rates.

We have just received through the Secretary of conference copy of cable just received from Secretary Smyth, reading as follows:

"All Lines agreed advance Scandinavian-Finnish prepaids $1.25 for aliens, except "Lusitania" "Caronia" class $1.50 to rectify parity rates, and charge $4.00 less citizens, Canadians, in force 24th."

We will, of course, take joint action with the other Lines and circularize agents promptly, notifying them that the new rates will go into effect Aug. 24th.

UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION AGAINST INDEPENDENT LINES.

The parties to the General Pool Agreement above described—the Atlantic Conference Lines—have concertedly employed the following unfair and oppressive methods to destroy the few independent lines that have existed and to prevent the creation of new ones:

1. The use of "fighting ships."

2. Boycotting agents who sell tickets for independent lines.

3. Requiring railroads to discriminate against independent lines in the payment of "commercial allowances."

By these methods they have driven out one competitor—the Russian Volunteer Fleet; have forced another—the Russian East Asiatic Company—to join the pool; and have inflicted such severe losses upon a third—the New York and Continental Line—that it has been twice compelled to reorganize, first as the Northwest Transport Company and second as the Uranium Line, and exists to-day in an insolvent condition sustained only by the large financial resources of certain of its stockholders. (Infra, pp. 29–33.)

1. FIGHTING SHIPS.

Whenever a line outside the combination advertised an eastbound steamer to sail on a specific date, one of the lines in the combination, in accordance with the common design, would immediately advertise the sailing of an opposition steamer [1] on the same or about the same day and at the same or lower rates. These were called "fighting ships" by the defendants themselves (9 R. 4922, 4902, 4832, 4382; 5 R. 2316 (m. 45); 2332 (m. 75); 2335 (m. 79); 4 R. 2092–2093; 1 R. 275). Usually the rate advertised for the fighting steamer was $1 below the rate advertised by the outside line.[1] The outside line would then reduce its rate and the fighting steamer would follow with another reduction (Fourman, 11 R. 559, 568–569, 573–585), with the result that both steamers usually sailed at rates far below those normally charged, in fact so low as necessarily to result in losses to both parties (Ans., 11 R. 137, 155, 174; Fourman, 11 R. 566–569).

[1] Designated by the so-called "Small Committee" appointed for that purpose in New York (Nyland, 11 R. 454–455; Cauty, 12 R. 1053; Winter, 12 R. 1158).

The line furnishing the fighting steamer was compensated for its losses by contributions from the other parties to the combination in proportion to their interest in the pool (9 R. 4382, 4406, 4902; Cauty, 12 R. 1055). If the fighting steamer booked more passengers than it could carry they were distributed among the steamers of other members of the combination, and for these passengers also compensation was paid by the entire pool (Nyland, 11 R. 479, 537–538). Thus, by distributing the loss among the several members of the combination each constituent line would suffer proportionately much less than the one line which was being fought by the entire group and which must inevitably soon exhaust its resources in the unequal contest (6 R. 2801, fol. 840; Ismay, 12 R. 1023).

[1] Some of defendants' witnesses testified that the fighting steamers did not undercut the rates of the independent lines. In so testifying, however, they referred to net rates, the independent lines being obliged to pay their ticket agents a commission of $3 per passenger as against a $2 commission paid by the conference lines, because the independent agents were boycotted by the conference lines and therefore received income from only one instead of several companies (Fourman, 11 R. 564). The fact remains, however, that the published rates of fighting steamers were lower than the published rates of the independent lines (Fourman, 11 R. 559, 567–569, 573–578; Winter, 12 R. 1164; 1 R. 449–450).

This scheme was agreed upon at a meeting of the Atlantic Conference held at the Savoy Hotel, London, May 25, 1908, shortly after Agreement AA, the General Pool Agreement, was entered into (5 R. 2282; Ismay, 12 R. 1018, 1019; Cauty, 12 R. 1049, 1055), and was subsequently incorporated in the minutes and by-laws of the Atlantic Conference as By-Law 22 (5 R. 2310). As such it forms part of Agreement AA itself (1 R. 80, m. 21; 9 R. 4516, 4517, Minute 128).

The fighting ships were so effective, in conjunction with other oppressive practices, that before the end of 1908 all outside opposition was gotten rid of. The Russian Volunteer Fleet went out of business in July (Sandford, 11 R. 358; Fourman, 11 R. 561; Richard, 12 R. 790). The New York and Continental Line went out of business in August (Richard, 12 R. 790; Thomas, 12 R. 651). The Russian East Asiatic Company joined the combination in September (1 R. 283–287; 406, Minute 92). Thereupon the fighting ship arrangement temporarily fell into disuse.

In February, 1909, however, the New York and Continental Line, having undergone reorganization, reentered the field as the Northwest Transport Company (Thomas, 12 R. 650–651; Fourman, 11 R. 567–568; Richard, 12 R. 790). At once the fighting ship arrangement was revived by Atlantic Conference By-Law 104 (5 R. 2307, 2344). It has been in continuous operation ever since, first against the Northwest Transport Company, which in turn was driven out of business in April, 1910, and later against its successor, the Uranium Line (Fourman, 11 R. 569–570). Indeed, fighting ships were constantly sent against the Uranium Line while the testimony in this case was being taken (Fourman, 11 R. 571; Nyland, 11 R. 503).

With reference to this fighting ship arrangement Mr. Ismay, President of the International Mercantile Marine Company, testified (12 R. 1023):

> Q. The consequence of that situation was, in a word, to prevent other competition, was it not?
>
> A. Yes.

2. BOYCOTTING AGENTS WHO SELL TICKETS FOR INDEPENDENT LINES.

The same meeting of the Atlantic Conference which adopted the fighting ship arrangement, also resolved upon a further measure against competitors, namely, the strict enforcement of so-called Conference Rule 9 (5 R. 2285, par. 4), which reads as follows:

> Agents are prohibited from booking passengers for any steamer except those of the Lines, Members of the Continental, the Mediterranean and the North-Atlantic Passenger Conferences unless Conference gives express permission in writing * * *. (1 R. 219; 1 R. 229.)

There is no dispute that the American Atlantic Conference has enforced and continues to enforce this rule by money penalties or by disqualification (Rule 15, 1 R. 221; Sandford, 11 R. 311, 338, 359; Ismay, 12 R. 1023; Cauty, 12 R. 1056; Winter, 13 R.

1743-1746; Peters' cablegram, 5 R. 2312, m. 25; Minutes of Am. Atl. Conference, 1 R. 401, m. 58, 59; 1 R. 403, m. 70; 1 R. 390, m. 4; 1 R. 391–393). Agents are required to report violations of Rule 9 by other agents (1 R. 221, Rule 16). Detectives are sometimes employed for the same purpose (1 R. 399, m. 44). An "eligible list" of agents is maintained, and those whose names are stricken therefrom are for all practical purposes blacklisted (1 R. 392, m. 10; 1 R. 431–432, Govt. Ex. 82).

An agent serving all the lines in the combination could do a profitable business. The business of the independent lines, on the other hand, was so small that it would not pay an agent to work for them alone (Peters' letter, 7 R. 3347; Nyland, 11 R. 513; Winter, 13 R. 1743, 1748). Consequently the boycott rendered it almost impossible for the independent lines to secure desirable agents.

Thus, while the Russian East Asiatic Company remained an outside line, all of the lines in the combination canceled their booking arrangements with A. E. Johnson & Co., its general agents (1 R. 390, m. 4; 1 R. 403, m. 70). The defendant Straus, a member of that firm, admitted that the difficulty met by the Russian East Asiatic Company in securing agents was one of the chief reasons which induced it to join the combination (Straus, 12 R. 765–766).

Similarly Richard, formerly general agent for the Russian Volunteer Fleet, the New York & Continental Line, and its successor the Northwest Transport Company, testified that he considered the enforcement of Rule 9 the greatest obstacle these independent lines encountered (12 R. 792, 794). He offered to raise his rates and follow the other rules of the combination if they would stop enforcing Rule 9 against him, but without success (12 R. 814, 827). Substantially his entire force of 1,200 trained sub-agents was taken away and in the end he, too, was forced to go over to the combination—the Conference Lines (Richard, 12 R. 802, 817; 12 R. 792–793; 1 R. 307; Fourman, 11 R. 563, 570). Though now a Conference agent, he testified that the enforcement of Rule 9 tended to put out of business any line not party to the combination and tended to prevent the establishment of new competitors (12 R. 918, 919).

3. REQUIRING RAILROADS TO DISCRIMINATE AGAINST INDEPENDENT LINES IN THE PAYMENT OF "COMMERCIAL ALLOWANCES."

Steerage passengers as a rule are uneducated and comparatively helpless. Not 1 per cent are informed as to what railroad will take them to their destination. They make no inquiry and apparently have no interest in how they shall be routed (McCain, 12 R. 848, 849; Kerr, 13 R. 1611). Consequently the defendant steamship companies have the power, if they desire to exercise it, to direct this traffic over any railroad route they choose (4 R. 1818). They have jointly exercised this power to compel the railroads to pay them for each steerage passenger delivered, eastbound or westbound, a "commercial allowance," so-called, amounting to 10 per cent of the entire railroad fare paid by such passenger.[1]

Furthermore, they have exacted from the railroads an agreement not to pay any similar "allowances" to independent lines (1 R. 360; 1 R. 376, Art. III). Pursuant to this agreement the railroads refused to pay allowances to the Northwest Transport Company (3 R. 1097), and still refuse them to its successor, the Uranium Line, except as to part of the westbound traffic (Fourman, 11 R. 586–588).[2]

EFFECT OF UNFAIR COMPETITIVE METHODS.

1. AGAINST THE RUSSIAN VOLUNTEER FLEET.

Shortly after the Russian-Japanese War the Russian Volunteer Fleet, which theretofore had operated between Odessa and Vladivostock, started a direct line from Libau on the Baltic to New York City, touching en route at Rotterdam (Richard, 12 R. 791). It hoped to develop Libau as a port and to attract a portion of the Russian trade, then carried by way of Germany, no direct line between Russia and the United States having theretofore existed

[1] No allowance is paid where the railroad fare is less than $2.50 (McCain, 12 R. 845–846, 874, 878), and the maximum allowance is fixed at $4 per passenger (Sandford, 11 R. 420; 1 R. 369). No allowances whatever are paid in the case of first-class or second-class passengers, these being too intelligent to be controlled by the steamship company (McCain, 12 R. 846, 878–879). No allowances are paid on eastbound steerage passengers originating in trunk-line territory, the zone bordering the Atlantic (Sandford, 11 R. 417), presumably because such traffic can not be satisfactorily apportioned. European railroads, being government-owned, pay no commercial allowances at all (Straus, 12 R. 789).

[2] The Russian East Asiatic Company received partial allowances from some of the weaker lines (not from the "standard lines") while not a member of the combination, but this was before the express contract with railroads in that territory (Straus, 12 R. 782–787).

(Fourman, 11 R. 552–533). Its boats were fast, good, and especially fitted for the North Atlantic steerage traffic—indeed, they were much superior to the boats of the Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company subsequently opposed to them by the combination (Fourman, 11 R. 621, 551, fol. 1653; Richard, 12 R. 791, 818, 820; Gips, 1 R. 485).

Even before its ships began to run, however, the combination had planned its ruin (1 R. 487–488). The Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company, which had never theretofore been engaged in the Libau-New York trade, was set up as a competitor of the Russian Volunteer Fleet with steamers furnished by members of the combination (Nyland, 11 R. 524, 527; Fourman, 11 R. 553).

A bitter and relentless struggle ensued. "Fighting steamers" were sent against the Volunteer Fleet at rates admittedly so low that losses necessarily resulted (Ans., 11 R. 137, 155, 174). The losses of the "fighting steamers" were borne at first by the N. D. L. V. Lines alone, and after the formation of the General Pool Agreement, by all the parties thereto (11 R. 487–488; Fourman, 11 R. 553, 559–561; Richard, 12 R. 802).

The agents of the Volunteer Fleet were taken away by the boycott declared against them by the combination—the Conference Lines (Richard, 12 R. 792–793, 794–795). Conference agents made misrepresentations as to its service, stating that its ships were unseaworthy, that they had been shot full of cannon balls and were liable to sink at any time, that they required 17 to 20 days in passage, that the food was unfit to eat and the accommodations "not fit to send a dog by" (Letter Feb. 28, 1907, 1 R. 208; Fourman, 11 R. 565–566; Richard, 12 R. 796–797).

Richard, general agent of the Volunteer Fleet, repeatedly protested against this treatment, but without avail (1 R. 208–209; Sandford, 11 R. 431–433; Richard, 12 R. 796). In July, 1908, the Volunteer Fleet was driven out of the trans-Atlantic business (Straus, 12 R. 765; Richard, 12 R. 812, 819, 939; Winter, 13 R. 1758, 1760).[1]

2. AGAINST THE RUSSIAN EAST ASIATIC STEAMSHIP COMPANY.

This company, originally set up by the defendants as a competitor of the Russian Volunteer Fleet, withdrew from the combination December 27, 1906 (1 R. 504–505), and thereafter suffered equally with the Volunteer Fleet from the unfair competition of the combination. Its steamers were opposed by fighting ships furnished by members of the combination (Straus, 12 R. 742; letter canceling order for fighting ship when R. E. A. rejoined conference, 1 R. 286), and its agents were boycotted (Straus, 12 R. 765–

[1] To show that the Russian Volunteer Fleet was not driven out by the unfair competition of the pool lines, defendants introduced a letter from A. Radloff, now president of that company. This document, a mere letter to the editor of a newspaper, was written January 25, 1911, after this suit had been brought (12 R. 820). Furthermore, Radloff was not president of the Volunteer Fleet in 1908, when that line went out of the Atlantic business, and this statement, post litem motam, is directly contrary to the contemporaneous statement of the then president to Mr. Richard, the then general agent of the company, and also contrary to the contemporaneous statement of the then general manager at Libau to Mr. Fourman, an employee in Mr. Richard's office (Richard, 12 R. 818–819, 939; Straus, 12 R. 765; Winter, 13 R. 1758, 1760).

766; 1 R. 390; 1 R. 403 m. 70). Its operations resulted in financial loss (Ans., 11 R. 261). Ultimately it was forced to rejoin the combination, being admitted into the General Pool Agreement under Agreement BB, September 1, 1908, and receiving a fixed percentage of the North Atlantic traffic (Ans., 11 R. 150, 168; Sandford, 11 R. 357–358; 1 R. 406, 285–286, 287, 461; Lister, 12 R. 1535; 6 R. 1766–1772; 5 R. 2682).

3. AGAINST THE NEW YORK AND CONTINENTAL LINE—NORTHWEST TRANSPORT COMPANY—URANIUM LINE.

The New York and Continental Line, subsequently reorganized as the Northwest Transport Line and still later as the Uranium Line, originally operated a freight service consisting of 17 ships (Thomas, 12 R. 642–646). In April, 1908, it began to carry passengers as well as freight between New York and Rotterdam (Richard, 12 R. 790). It immediately suffered severe losses from the unfair competition of the combination. Its rates were undercut by fighting ships and its agents boycotted (Richard, 12 R. 794–795; Thomas, 13 R. 1702; 4 R. 2116, 2148; 7 R. 3335). From the start the New York and Continental Line was a losing proposition and in August, 1908, after only seven passenger carrying trips, it was driven out of business (Thomas, 12 R. 647, 649, 673; Richard, 12 R. 790).

The Northwest Transport Company, a reorganization of the New York and Continental Line, reentered the New York and Rotterdam freight and passenger trade with six ships February 27, 1909, and continued until May 7, 1910 (Thomas, 12 R. 650, 651, 673). The same practices which had been employed against its predecessor were employed with equal success against the Northwest Transport Company (5 R. 2307; Fourman, 11 R. 567–569). It continually lost money and its principal backers finally chartered its three remaining vessels themselves and turned them over to a new company, the Uranium Line, which continued in the same trade (Fourman, 11 R. 609; Thomas, 12 R. 651, 673).

The unfair practices continued and still continue (Nyland, 11 R. 523; Fourman, 11 R. 570–574, 576; Thomas, 13 R. 1702; 12 R. 676). Fighting steamers, both westbound and eastbound, are employed against the Uranium Line (Thomas, 12 R. 685; 13 R. 1702; Nyland, 11 R. 503). Its agents are still boycotted and the railroads refuse to pay it commercial allowances (Fourman, 11 R. 570, 586–587; 3 R. 1097). While it has made some profit recently, nevertheless its operations taken as a whole have been unprofitable and its liabilities far exceed its assets (Thomas, 13 R. 1700, 1702, 1712–1713). In fact it is only saved from insolvency by the fact that certain of its stockholders possessing large resources are willing to guarantee its obligations (Thomas, 13 R. 1698, 1715–1716).

THE PRESENT STATUS.

At the time this suit was filed only a single independent, the Uranium Line, remained in all the North Atlantic steerage trade (Thomas, 13 R. 1703; Winter, 12 R. 1192; 13 R. 1420–1421).

The overwhelming proportion of the steerage trade controlled by the members of the combination in the calendar year 1911, is shown by the following figures taken from Government Exhibit 159 (2 R. 948):

Steerage passengers carried in 1911 between the United States and British or Continental European ports north of Cadiz, Spain, with percentages.

	Number of passengers carried.			Per cent of total.
	West-bound.	East-bound.	Total.
Atlantic Conference Lines (members of the combination) [a]	612, 624	333, 360	945, 984	97. 39
Uranium [illegible] (the only independent)	12, 027	13, 286	25, 313	2. 61
All lines [c]	624, 651	346, 646	971, 297	100. 00

[a] 2 R. 955, 956.
[b] 2 R. 1035.
[c] The carryings to and from Mediterranean ports—344,263 passengers (2 R. 957)—are not included because under the terms of the Mediterranean agreement, supra p. 11–12, the trade is parceled out, the Mediterranean Lines withdrawing from competition for North Atlantic business and the North Atlantic Lines withdrawing from competition for Mediterranean business.

Reference should be made at this point to the alleged withdrawal of three of the defendants from the combination.

The Allan Line, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and the Russian East Asiatic Company maintained in their briefs below that they had withdrawn from Agreement AA prior to the filing of the present suit. The two former also claimed to have withdrawn from the fighting ship arrangement by a special notice to that effect. The Russian East Asiatic Company made no claim as to the fighting ship arrangement other than its general claim of withdrawal from Agreement AA.

The District Court found that the Allan Line and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company had in fact withdrawn from the fighting ship arrangement and exempted them from the decree enjoining that arrangement (10 R. 5133, 5138). Since the petition was dismissed absolutely as to all other charges, it was unnecessary for the court to pass upon their wider claim as to withdrawal from Agreement AA, and it did not do so.

Impliedly, though not expressly, the District Court seems to have held that the Russian East Asiatic Company had not withdrawn from the combination, for it included that company in the decree against fighting ships (10 R. 5138). The Russian East Asiatic Company has not appealed from this decree except, as hereafter shown, on jurisdictional grounds. It may, however, renew its claim to exemption from the wider decree requested by the Government.

The facts as to the alleged withdrawals are as follows:

Agreement AA was entered into February 5, 1908, effective March 1, 1908, to continue until February 28, 1911, and thereafter from year to year unless due notice should be given to the Secretary not later than December 1, 1910 (1 R. 73, art. 27). Between November 28, 1910, and December 1, 1910, a number of lines notified the Secretary of their intention to withdraw. Among them were the Allan Line,[1] the Canadian Pacific Railway Company,[1] and the Russian East Asiatic Company (9 R. 4873~~-4874~~). -4885).

These notices were not to take effect immediately, however. Under Article 27 of Agreement AA (1 R. 73) it was impossible to withdraw from that agreement prior to February 28, 1911, and the notices above referred to expressly stated that they were not to be effective until that date. The petition in this case was filed January 4, 1911 (11 R. 147, 165, 204). On defendants' own showing, therefore, the petition was filed almost two months before any of the members had actually withdrawn.

In accordance with the opinion of this Court in the Trans-Missouri Freight Association Case, 166 U. S. 290, 308 (see also So. Pac. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 219 U. S. 498; Boise City I. & L. Co. v. Clark, 131 Fed. 415, C. C. A. 9th), the Government is entitled, of course, to a decree as of the date of the filing of the petition—especially in view of the fact that none of the lines admit the illegality of the agreement but on the contrary stoutly aver its propriety and necessity, and also in view of the further fact that the defendants' own witness, Kerr, admitted (3 R. 1594) that the withdrawal of the Canadian Pacific Railway was in contemplation

[1] This notice was entirely distinct from the notice of withdrawal from the fighting ship arrangement. The Allan Line gave notice of its intention to withdraw from the fighting ship arrangement December 16, 1908, and did actually withdraw January 17, 1909 (Ans. Allan Line, 11 R. 154; Hannah, 13 R. 1434). The Canadian Pacific Railway Company gave notice of withdrawal from the fighting ship arrangement June 15, 1910, which notice became effective July 15, 1910 (Ans. C. P. R. Co., 11 R. 213; Kerr, 13 R. 1603-1604).

of the impending action of the United States Government.[1]

[1] It may be doubted, however, whether there was in fact any bona fide withdrawal. The burden rests on the defendants to show it, and the burden has not been sustained. Ismay, President of the International Mercantile Marine, which company it will be remembered also gave notice of withdrawal, testified as follows (12 R. 1031):

"Q. In December, 1910, the various members of the conference had some trouble with one another as to whether Agreement 'AA' should continue to exist or not, or November, 1910?

A. Do you know what the circumstances were?

Q. I will show you a letter. See if that refreshes your recollection. (Letter head to Mr. Ismay and examined.)

A. Yes, I must have been present.

Q. And any troubles that arose at that time were——?

A. They were patched up.

Q. Were settled up, so that the conference is just as strong as ever.

Mr. CRIM: When was that?

Mr. GUILER: December 3rd, 1910.

Mr. ISMAY: We renewed the agreement for five years, I think.

Ismay further testified that Agreement Z, under which the Allan Line, the Donaldson Line and the Dominion Line were admitted to the combination (5 R. 2667), is still in effect, saying (12 R. 1041):

Q. Is that arrangement in effect today?

A. Still in force, but the percentage is altered.

Q. Do these three lines, the Allan, the Dominion and the Donaldson's receive more or less?

A. The Allan and Donaldson's both get more. I am satisfied that the Allan get more and Donaldson's get a little bit more. The Dominion has not been increased.

Similarly, Hannah, passenger manager of the Allan Line, a witness for the defendants, testified positively that the Allan Line is still a member of the combination, saying (13 R. 1455):

Q. And up to date you are a member of Agreement AA, one of the members signatory of Agreement AA and have continued to be a member under that agreement of the Atlantic Conference?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your line has?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is a member of it today?

A. Yes, sir.

Ismay also testified that Agreement BB, under which the Russian East Asiatic Company was admitted to the combination is still in effect, saying (12 R. 1041–1042):

Q. Now BB?

A. I have it here.

Q. Is that in effect today?

A. Yes, it is in effect today with certain amendments.

Q. Do you recall briefly what the amendments are?

A. I do not know. I have never been present, but I am told that we doubled the percentage.

Q. In other respects it is in effect today?

A. Yes, we doubled the percentage to the Russian East Asiatic Company east and west, otherwise it is the same.

The shifting and contradictory testimony of the defendant Straus, general passenger agent of the Russian East Asiatic Company, corroborates rather

SUBSTANCE OF THE DEFENSE.

The defendants admit that the terms of the General Pool Agreement and the agreements collateral thereto are being faithfully observed. They admit also, in substance, the use of fighting ships, the than disproves Ismay's categorical statement. On direct examination by Government counsel, Straus testified (12 R. 736):

---

Q. Is it [the Russian East Asiatic Co.] a member of the North-Atlantic Conference?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Continental Conference?
A. No, sir.
Q. Of any conference?
A. No, sir, except in New York, if that is what you mean.
Q. Is it a member of the North-Atlantic Conference?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. Is it?
A. Yes, New York.

* * * * *

Q. Do you recall the date when you joined or rejoined, as the fact may be, the Continental Conference; does this refresh your recollection, if you do not (handing witness paper)?
A. Yes, I do recall that.
Q. That was September, 1908, was it not?
A. Yes. (739).

* * * * *

Q. Do you mean to say that there is no agreement by which the Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company, Limited, secured a certain pro rata share of the steerage passenger business of the North Atlantic?
A. No, sir; all I know is that we pay a pro rata to the Conference in order to maintain it.
Q. You pay a pro rata share?
A. Yes.
Q. State just what you mean?
A. For instance, it takes probably fifteen or twenty thousand dollars a year to run a Conference and our share is probably five hundred dollars or six hundred dollars a year; we pay our share towards the payment of Sandford's salary, or the official salaries of those there.
Q. Do you mean to say there is no agreement between the Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company, Limited; no agreement since September, 1908, by which the Russian East Asiatic Company, Limited, is allowed a certain pro rata share of the steerage passenger business of the North Atlantic?
A. What they are allowed I don't know; they may be allowed a percentage, but what that percentage is, I don't know anything about it.
Q. What is your best information; that they are allowed a percentage, is it not?
A. I believe they are.
Q. What are the sources of that belief or that information?
A. I suppose one has to have a certain amount of imagination. They know there must be some percentage, but what that percentage is, I don't know. (742-743.)

boycotting of agents of independent lines and the agreements requiring railroads to refuse allowances to independent lines. In justification they urge (1) the alleged beneficial results of the combination in stabilizing the business and averting ruinous com-

---

Cross examination by counsel for the Russian East Asiatic Company:

Q. In 1908 you were informed, I understand, by cable that you were admitted to a conference?
A. Yes, sir. * * *
Q. Since that time I assume you have been informed that you are out of the conference?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. I understand your information was that some time in September you entered the conference and got out of it some time in February, 1911?
A. I received that information from you. (752)

Re-direct examination by Government counsel:

Q. Now, Mr. Straus, with regard to this conference, you regard it as something of great advantage to your line, do you not?
A. I think so.
Q. Why did you leave?
A. I never left it.
Q. When did your line leave it?
A. I wasn't the passenger agent of the line when you said they left it.
Q. Are you in it now?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You are in the conference now?
A. Yes, sir; in New York. (776-777).

After recess, Mr. Straus was recalled by counsel for the Russian East Asiatic Company and testified as follows:

Q. As I understand, your most recent information is that your company is not a member of the conference?
A. That is my information, that they are not a member of the conference. (898)

This testimony was all given July 1 and 2, 1912, and if, as defendants contend, the Russian East Asiatic Company had in good faith withdrawn from the combination in December, 1910, over a year and a half before, it is inconceivable that their general passenger agent in the United States would never have heard of it until informed by counsel just before he testified (12 R. 745, 751, 752, 777).

The fighting ship compensation account rendered December 30, 1910, (the last the record contains), rendered only 5 days before this petition was filed, shows that the Russian East Asiatic Company was still sharing the expense of operating the fighting ships (9 R. 4923, 4925).

And finally, if there was in fact a bona fide withdrawal from the combination, would the Russian East Asiatic Company and the Allan Line have failed, as they did fail, even to mention it in their answers? Indeed the answers of practically all the defendants, responding to the allegations petition, and (2) the alleged fact that the rates charged by the combination have not been unreasonable. They also argue that Congress had neither (1) the power nor (2) the intention to make trans-Atlantic steamship lines amenable to the provisions of the Anti-Trust Act.

DECREE OF DISTRICT COURT.

The District Court, while holding the Anti-Trust Act applicable to ocean carriers engaged in the foreign commerce of the United States (10 R. 5123), and while finding that—

> It is practically not disputed that, by the various agreements and conferences which together constitute the combination complained of, that branch of trans-Atlantic commerce which is concerned with the transport of steerage passengers is arbitrarily interfered with so that the proportions of it carried by the various lines, which have so combined, are not as they would be if full, free and unrestricted competition were the sole controlling power to effect the distribution (10 R. 5127, 5128);

further held that—> in view of the peculiarities of ocean transportation, the method adopted by the defend-of section B of the petition (1 R. 24), expressly admit that the Russian East Asiatic Line is still party to the combination either under Agreement AA or some equivalent arrangement (see, for example, Ans. Allan Line, 1 R. 157; Ans. Hamburg-American Line, 1 R. 175; Ans. Cunard Line, 1 R. 234).

---

We submit, therefore, that there has been no bona fide withdrawal on the part of either the Allan Line, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, or the Russian East Asiatic Company.

> ants—if purged of its obnoxious feature, the "fighting ships"—is a reasonable one, which so far from restraining trade really fosters and protects it by giving it a stability which insures more satisfactory public service for all concerned (10 R. 5133).

It therefore dismissed the bill except as to the use of fighting ships—a subordinate feature of the case. That practice it enjoined, though inadequately, as the Government maintains.

ASSIGNMENTS OF ERROR.

Broadly speaking, the assignments of error come to this—

First, on the part of the United States, that the court erred in not adjudging the combination above described to be in restraint of trade and commerce and a monopolization of a part thereof in violation of the Anti-Trust Act, and in not preventing its continued operation (10 R. 5144–5163).

Second, on the part of the defendants, that the court erred in not holding that the transportation carried on by the defendant steamship lines is beyond the purview of the Anti-Trust Act "for the reason that the Congress did not intend said Act to apply to international commerce" (14 R. 4–5), and in not dismissing the bill on that ground.

Two general questions are thus presented by the assignments of error—

First. Is the Anti-Trust Act applicable to combinations affecting ocean transportation between ports of the United States and foreign ports; i. e., is it within the power of Congress to legislate in respect of such combinations, and did it intend by the Anti-Trust Act to do so?

Second. If the Act is applicable, is a combination of trans-Atlantic steamship lines to suppress competition in transportation eastbound and westbound between ports of the United States and foreign ports by pooling the traffic, fixing rates and wrongfully excluding other lines from the business a combination in restraint of trade or a monopolization thereof?

THE ARGUMENT.

OUTLINE.

I. The Anti-Trust Act is applicable to ocean transportation between ports of the United States and foreign ports.

II. The Anti-Trust Act being applicable to ocean transportation between ports of the United States and foreign ports, a combination to restrain or monopolize such commerce cannot escape because formed in a foreign country and composed of foreign corporations, if, as here, the combination is operative within the territorial limits of the United States.

III. Defendant steamship lines are parties to a combination and conspiracy to pool traffic in steerage passengers between ports of the United States and foreign ports and to fix the rates of passage, thereby restraining foreign commerce in violation of the Anti-Trust Act.

IV. The combination and conspiracy by unfair and oppressive methods of competition also prevents other lines from engaging in the transportation of steerage passengers between ports of the United States and foreign ports, thereby further restraining foreign commerce in violation of the Anti-Trust Act.

V. The alleged good done by the combination in stabilizing the business is no defense.

VI. The fact, if it be a fact, that the rates charged by members of the combination have been reasonable is no defense.

VII. The reasoning of the District Court considered.

VIII. Concerning the remedy.

I.

THE ANTI-TRUST ACT IS APPLICABLE TO OCEAN TRANSPORTATION BETWEEN PORTS OF THE UNITED STATES AND FOREIGN PORTS.

1. AS TO THE POWER OF CONGRESS.

The transportation of persons and property by water, for hire, is commerce within the meaning of the Constitution, and when between this country and foreign nations it is foreign commerce. Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 189–191, 215; The Passenger Cases, 7 How. 283, 401.

Except as limited by the Constitution itself, Congress has all the powers of sovereignty in respect of the regulation of foreign commerce. As said by Chief Justice Marshall in Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 196:

> This power, like all others vested in Congress, is complete in itself, may be exercised to its utmost extent, and acknowledges no limitations other than are prescribed in the Constitution.

The regulations imposed by the Anti-Trust Act are within the limits prescribed by the Constitution. United States v. Joint Traffic Ass'n, 171 U. S. 505;

Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197.

It follows of course that it was within the power of Congress to make the provisions of the Anti-Trust Act applicable to the transportation of persons and property between ports of the United States and foreign ports.

2. AS TO THE INTENT OF CONGRESS.

It is equally clear that Congress intended to do so. The contention of defendants to the contrary—"that the Congress did not intend said Act to apply to international commerce" (Assignments of Error on Cross Appeal, 14 R., 4)—is directly opposed to the language of the Act, which prohibits every combination or conspiracy to restrain or monopolize—> commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations (26 Stat. 209, c. 647).

The commerce committed by the Constitution to the control of Congress is—> commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes (Art. 1, Sec. 8).

Leaving out of consideration commerce with the Indian Tribes, which is not involved, it will be observed that the commerce to which the Anti-Trust Act applies is defined by the Act itself in the very words employed in the Constitution to define the commerce over which the power of Congress extends—"commerce with foreign nations" and "commerce among the several States".

The Anti-Trust Act being an exercise of the power to regulate commerce conferred by the Constitution, in thus defining the commerce to which that Act applies in the same terms in which the Constitution defines the commerce to which the power of the Federal Government extends, it must be presumed, in the entire absence of evidence to the contrary, that Congress intended these terms to have the same scope in the Anti-Trust Act that they have in the Constitution. What that scope is, so far as foreign commerce is concerned, with which alone we are now concerned, was thus stated by Chief Justice Marshall in Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 193:

> It has, we believe, been universally admitted, that these words comprehend every species of commercial intercourse between the United States and foreign nations. No sort of trade can be carried on between this country and any other, to which this power does not extend. It has been truly said, that commerce, as the word is used in the constitution, is a unit, every part of which is indicated by the term.

The question whether the Anti-Trust Act applies to transportation by railroad was raised shortly after the passage of the Act. This Court held that it does (United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Ass'n, 166 U. S. 290; United States v. Joint Traffic Ass'n, 171 U. S. 505), saying (166 U. S. 324–325):

> Congress has, so far as its jurisdiction extends, prohibited all contracts or combinations in the form of trusts entered into for the purpose of restraining trade and commerce. The results naturally flowing from a contract or combination in restraint of trade or commerce, when entered into by a manufacturing or trading company such as above stated, while differing somewhat from those which may follow a contract to keep up transportation rates by railroads, are nevertheless of the same nature and kind, and the contracts themselves do not so far differ in their nature that they may not all be treated alike and be condemned in common. It is entirely appropriate generally to subject corporations or persons engaged in trading or manufacturing to different rules from those applicable to railroads in their transportation business; but when the evil to be remedied is similar in both kinds of corporations, such as contracts which are unquestionably in restraint of trade, we see no reason why similar rules should not be promulgated in regard to both, and both be covered in the same statute by general language sufficiently broad to include them both. We see nothing either in contemporaneous history, in the legal situation at the time of the passage of the statute, in its legislative history, or in any general difference in the nature or kind of these trading or manufacturing companies from railroad companies, which would lead us to the conclusion that it can not be supposed the legislature in prohibiting the making of contracts in restraint of trade intended to include railroads within the purview of that act.

> Neither is the statute, in our judgment, so uncertain in its meaning, or its language so vague, that it ought not to be held applicable to railroads. It prohibits contracts, combinations, etc., in restraint of trade or commerce. Transporting commodities is commerce, and if from one State to or through another it is interstate commerce. To be reached by the Federal statute it must be commerce among the several States or with foreign nations. When the act prohibits contracts in restraint of trade or commerce, the plain meaning of the language used includes contracts which relate to either or both subjects. Both trade and commerce are included so long as each relates to that which is interstate or foreign. Transportation of commodities among the several States or with foreign nations falls within the description of the words of the statute with regard to that subject. [Italics ours.]

Necessarily this reasoning also brings within the operation of the Act transportation by water, whether between points within the United States or between the United States and foreign countries.

Furthermore, in United States v. Pacific & Arctic Co., 228 U. S. 87, this Court directly held that the Anti-Trust Act applies to ocean transportation. In that case the defendant railroad companies were held guilty of attempting to create a monopoly, not of railroad transportation but of transportation by water between Vancouver, British Columbia; Seattle, Washington; and Skagway, Alaska.

The same conclusion seems to have been reached in United States v. Union Pacific R. Co., 226 U. S. 61. In that case the Government challenged the combination of the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific because of its effect on competition not only as to land transportation, but also as to water transportation, and particularly as to their respective lines of ocean steamers theretofore competing for the Oriental trade (Petition, pp. 7, 9; Govt. Br., p. 92; Opinion, 221 U. S. at 80–81). While of course the restriction of water competition was not the principal feature of the case, nevertheless this Court recognized it as one of the illegal elements, saying (p. 93):

> Conceding for this purpose that it might have been legitimate, had it been practicable, to acquire the California connection at Ogden over the old Central Pacific line, we must consider what was in fact done, and that was the purchase of the controlling interest in the entire Southern Pacific system, consisting of ocean and river lines with a mileage of about 3,500 miles and railroad lines aggregating over 8,000 miles, together forming a transportation system from New York and other Atlantic ports to San Francisco and Portland and other Pacific coast points, with various branches and connections, besides a steamship line from San Francisco to the Orient and a half interest in another line between the two latter points. [Italics ours.]

Again, in Cincinnati Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179, the applicability of the Act to water lines was assumed, otherwise it would have been unnecessary to decide the case upon the merits.

The United States circuit judges of the Second Circuit have three times applied the Act to ocean transportation. Thomsen v. Union Castle Mail S. S. Co., 166 Fed. 251; United States v. Hamburg American Line, 200 Fed. 806; United States v. Prince Line, 220 Fed. 230.

Transportation on the Great Lakes has also been held within the Act both by the circuit judges of the Sixth Circuit and by the Supreme Court of Michigan. United States v. Great Lakes Towing Co., 208 Fed. 733; Cole Transportation Co. v. White Star Line, 186 Fed. 63; White Star Line v. Star Line Steamers, 141 Mich. 604, 611.

Nor was any distinction ever taken at common law between water transportation and other forms of business with respect to contracts and combinations in restraint of trade. Oregon Steam Nav. Co. v. Winsor, 20 Wall. 64, 70; Anderson v. Jett, 89 Ky. 375; Stanton v. Allen, 5 Denio (N. Y.) 434; Hooker v. Vandewater, 4 Denio (N. Y.) 349; Watson v. Harlem, etc., Nav. Co., 52 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 348.

The question as to the application of the Anti-Trust Act to ocean transportation has thus already been decided. Supposing it were open, however, there is no ground for assuming that when Congress used in that Act the words "commerce with foreign nations" it did not intend to include the most distinctive kind of "commerce with foreign nations"— transportation between ports of the United States and foreign ports.

It is an easy thing to say that the letter of a statute is contrary to its spirit, etc., and therefore must be rewritten by the Court. The language of a statute, however, must always be accepted as the best guide to the legislative intent. As stated by this Court, speaking through Mr. Justice Brewer, in United States v. Goldenberg, 168 U. S. 95, 102:

> The primary and general rule of statutory construction is that the intent of the lawmaker is to be found in the language that he has used.

We embark upon a sea of speculation when we substitute what Congress is presumed to have intended for what Congress actually said.

The principle—> that a thing may be within the letter of the statute and yet not within the statute, because not within its spirit, nor within the intention of its makers (Church of the Holy Trinity v. United States, 143 U. S. 457, 459)— is applicable only in those rare and extreme cases where to follow the written words would produce a result so amazing, so irrational, so unconnected in any possible way with the evils at which the Act was aimed, that the inference that Congress intended something different would be irresistible among reasonable men. United States v. Goldenberg, 168 U. S. 95, 102, 103.

We have no such case here. There is nothing absurd or irrational in applying to combinations of steamship lines—trans-ocean, lake or coastwise—the same rules against monopoly that apply to all other branches of industry. There is no ground for claiming that monopoly of water transportation is so different from monopoly generally that its prohibition has no possible relation to the evils at which the Anti-Trust Act was aimed.

Indeed there is greater reason for holding the Act applicable to ocean carriers than to railroads, since Congress by separate enactment had already provided in respect of railroads a complete system of governmental control and regulation with power to prevent excessive or discriminatory rates and unfair or discriminatory practices. As regards ocean carriers, however, there is no such control, and if they are not subject to the Anti-Trust Act they are free to conspire to exact whatever rates their cupidity may dictate and to destroy any competitor who may be inclined to act independently.

It is insinuated that permitting combination between steamship lines would somehow tend to build up an American merchant marine. Waiving the irrelevancy of the point, how could it, when these defendants are already combined for the very purpose and with sufficient power to destroy all new competitors—the Government (ex hypothesi) being impotent to prevent their doing so?

Again, it is said that to apply the Anti-Trust Act to ocean transportation might result in foreign complications. But unregulated monopoly would not be tolerated. And would not foreign complications be far more likely to ensue from any attempt to apply an effective system of positive regulation than from a mere prohibition against undue restriction of competition? Whatever foreign countries may permit, we are not aware that any of them require combinations of steamship lines.

The Act to Regulate Commerce, it is true, has been held inapplicable to trans-Atlantic steamship lines, but for reasons entirely inapplicable here, namely (1) the legislative history of the Act, which shows that railroad regulation was its primary object, (2) internal evidence in the Act itself, particularly in section 1, and (3) the manifest impossibility of applying to trans-ocean carriers its requirements as to filing rates and adhering thereto. These reasons are stated in Cosmopolitan Shipping Co. v. Hamburg-American Packet Co., 13 I. C. C. 266, 281–282, the only case in which this point has been squarely raised and fully discussed. Commissioner Lane there said:

> The Act to regulate commerce arose out of the unjust and discriminatory practices of the rail lines; and all other carriers, when entirely independent thereof, were exempted from the restrictions imposed by this act and denied its benefits. Indeed, it may be said that the primary purpose of the law, judging from the reports and debates of Congress prior to and succeeding the enactment of the act of 1887, was to regulate rail carriers. (270)
>
> * * * * *

The jurisdiction of this Commission is not to be determined by anything other than the language of Section 1 of the act, and in this section we find a clear distinction drawn as between interstate commerce and foreign commerce to a country not adjacent to the United States; and this distinction, in our opinion, saves such foreign commerce from the effect of that provision of the section as to continuous carriage beyond the American seaboard. (271)

* * * * *

If it were the intention of Congress to give to this Commission jurisdiction over carriers by water engaged in the transportation of foreign commerce, it would be expected that such purpose would be manifested in other portions of the act and that adequate machinery for the enforcement of its provisions would be provided. * * * If such was the intention it must be confessed that Congress succeeded in presenting a piece of legislation to the world which is of singular and distinguished incompleteness. (274, 276–277.)

* * * * *

There is not to-day, and never has been, such a thing as stability of rates upon the water. Perhaps it is not desirable that there should be. The ocean is a highway free to all. No franchise is needed to sail the seas, nor is the establishment of a line of ships founded, either in law or in economics, upon the theory of a public-serving monopoly which underlies the relation of the railroad to the State. It may well be, therefore, that without regulation, and by reason of natural competitive con- > ditions, the public will be best served, and in the end treated more equitably, by leaving the water carriers to foreign lands entirely unhampered by legal restrictions such as the people of this and other lands have found it necessary to impose upon the railroads. Under the ruling here made the fluctuation in the total through rate charged from an inland point in the United States to a European or Asiatic country will fall where in fact the fluctuation is, at the seaboard. The competition in rates will thus manifest itself where the competition really exists, and where the law presumes it will unrestrictedly continue, viz, where the ships bid against each other for cargo. (281–282.) [Italics ours.][1]

Similarly, Mr. Justice Harlan's dissenting opinion in the Import Rate Case, 162 U. S. 197, contains with regard to Section 1 of the Act to Regulate Commerce, the following statement, which is not in contravention of anything said by the majority of the Court (p. 245):

> From this section it is clear that the Texas and Pacific Railway Company is, and that the ocean lines connecting with that company are not, subject to the provisions of the act. [Italics ours.]

In the case of the Anti-Trust Act, however, there is no impossibility, or even difficulty, in applying the Act to ocean carriers. Its language plainly includes them, and there is no legislative history from which to impute a narrower purpose than the unambiguous words convey.

[1] As to the fluctuation of ocean rates see also Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 78, and the Report of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, pp. 309–311, 420 (Doc. 805, 63d Cong., 2d Sess.).

We submit, therefore, that the decision of the Court below on this point was right. It said (10 R., 5124):

> The prohibitions of the Anti-Trust Statute apply broadly to contracts in restraint of trade or commerce with foreign nations. This contract directly and materially affects such commerce, and if it unlawfully restrains it, it comes within the statute. We see nothing to warrant the contention that the act should be narrowly interpreted as prohibiting only contracts which are to be formed wholly within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States nor—if it were for us to consider—any reason for concluding that a broader construction would lead to international complications.

II.

THE ANTI-TRUST ACT BEING APPLICABLE TO OCEAN TRANSPORTATION BETWEEN PORTS OF THE UNITED STATES AND FOREIGN PORTS, A COMBINATION TO RESTRAIN OR MONOPOLIZE SUCH COMMERCE CAN NOT ESCAPE BECAUSE FORMED IN A FOREIGN COUNTRY AND COMPOSED OF FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, IF, AS HERE, THE COMBINATION IS OPERATIVE WITHIN THE TERRITORIAL LIMITS OF THE UNITED STATES.

In the Court below the defendants maintained not only (1) that the Anti-Trust Act has no application to ocean transportation, but (2) that in any event combinations affecting such commerce are not within the Act when formed in a foreign country and composed of foreign corporations. Their assignments of error, while still maintaining the first point (just discussed), make no mention of the second (14 R. 4). Since, however, the second may yet be renewed, we proceed now to consider it, discussing first the power of Congress to deal with such combinations, and second, its intent as expressed in the Anti-Trust Act.

1. AS TO THE POWER OF CONGRESS.

What constitutional limitation is violated by Congress prescribing that our foreign commerce shall not be restrained or monopolized by foreign citizens any more than by our own citizens—that combinations and conspiracies like the present, operative within this country, intended to be operative here, and consummated by acts performed here, are illegal whether initiated here or abroad? Defendants point to none.

None but the "due process" clause of the Fifth Amendment—or, in criminal cases, the requirements as to trial in the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed—could even conceivably apply.

It is elementary, however, that consistent with both these constitutional provisions, conspiracies—or for that matter, acts of any sort—may be dealt with by the law of the place in which they are operative, regardless of where they were initiated or of the citizenship of the parties. Brown v. Elliott, 225 U. S. 392, 401–402; Hyde and Schneider v. United States, 225 U. S. 347; United States v. Nord Deutscher

Lloyd Co., 223 U. S. 512; International Harvester Co. v. Missouri, 234 U. S. 199; 237 Mo. 369; Strassheim v. Daily, 221 U. S. 280, 285; Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 76; Hyde v. Shine, 199 U. S. 62, 76; Burton v. United States, 202 U. S. 344; In re Palliser, 136 U. S. 257; Rex v. Brisac, 4 East, 164, 171.

Otherwise all statutes against conspiracies and combinations could be evaded by the simple expedient of going abroad to make the agreement.

The case of Brown v. Elliott, supra, is conclusive in this regard. In that case the defendants were indicted for conspiracy to defraud, the place where the conspiracy was formed being unknown. This Court, holding that prosecution might be had at Omaha, where overt acts in pursuance of the conspiracy had been committed, said (225 U. S. 402):

> The Constitution of the United States is not intended as a facility for crime. It is intended to prevent oppression, and its letter and its spirit are satisfied if where a criminal purpose is executed the criminal purpose be punished. It is there that its victims are sought and defrauded. It is there that its perpetrators should be brought to the bar of justice for their acts; not for the mere conception of them, but for the actual execution of them.

Again, the power to regulate commerce includes the power to prohibit it except upon conditions that will safeguard the public welfare; and the Anti-Trust Act may be read as prohibiting foreign corporations from engaging in the interstate or foreign commerce of the United States if they combine to suppress competition therein. Pipe Line Cases, 234 U. S. 548–560; Southern Ry. Co. v. Reid, 222 U. S. 424, 438; Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co. v. Riverside Mills, 219 U. S. 186, 195, 203; Noble State Bank v. Haskell, 219 U. S. 104, 111–113; United States v. Delaware & Hudson Co., 213 U. S. 366.

In Patterson v. Bark Eudora, 190 U. S. 169, where a statute forbidding the prepayment of seamen's wages and giving a right of action at the expiration of the voyage for the full amount of wages earned, regardless of prepayment, was sustained by this Court even as to foreign vessels, Mr. Justice Brewer said (p. 178):

> Indeed, the implied consent to permit them [foreign merchant vessels] to enter our harbors may be withdrawn, and if this implied consent may be wholly withdrawn it may be extended upon such terms and conditions as the Government sees fit to impose.

It is immaterial that in the Anti-Trust Act the condition upon the right of foreign corporations to engage in the interstate or foreign commerce of the United States is not express but implied. The statute in Patterson v. Bark Eudora, supra, was not expressly conditional. The statute which in Noble State Bank v. Haskell, supra, this Court interpreted as going—> from regulation to prohibition except upon such conditions as it may prescribe (219 U. S. 113)— was not in terms conditional. The same is true of the Carmack Amendment (34 Stat. 584, 595), which the Atlantic Coast Line Case, supra, held to require interstate carriers—> as a condition of continuing in that traffic to obligate themselves to carry to the point of destination, using the lines of connecting carriers as their own agencies * * *. (219 U.S. 203.)

Similarly in the Pipe Line Cases, supra, the statute in question, though not in terms conditional, was interpreted as follows:

> * * * while the amendment does not compel them to continue in operation it does require them not to continue except as common carriers. That is the plain meaning as has been held with regard to other statutes similarly framed (234 U. S. 560).

And finally, this Court has already held that the Anti-Trust Act itself contains such an implied condition, for in the Tobacco Case, 221 U. S. 106, the Chief Justice declared that as an appropriate means of enforcing the law the Court might issue—> a permanent injunction restraining the combination as a universality and all the individuals and corporations which form a part of or cooperate in it in any manner or form from continuing to engage in interstate commerce until the illegal situation be cured (p. 186) [Italics ours.]

If this power of conditional prohibition exists as to state and interstate commerce, then for stronger reasons it exists as to foreign commerce, for, as held by this Court in the tea case, Buttfield v. Stranahan, 192 U. S. 470, 492-493:

> Whatever difference of opinion, if any, may have existed or does exist concerning the limitations of the power, resulting from other provisions of the Constitution, so far as interstate commerce is concerned, it is not to be doubted that from the beginning Congress has exercised a plenary power in respect to the exclusion of merchandise brought from foreign countries; not alone directly by the enactment of embargo statutes, but indirectly as a necessary result of provisions contained in tariff legislation. It has also, in other than tariff legislation, exerted a police power over foreign commerce by provisions which in and of themselves amounted to the assertion of the right to exclude merchandise at discretion.
>
> * * * * *
>
> As a result of the complete power of Congress over foreign commerce, it necessarily follows that no individual has a vested right to trade with foreign nations, which is so broad in character as to limit and restrict the power of Congress to determine what articles of merchandise may be imported into this country and the terms upon which a right to import may be exercised. This being true, it results that a statute which restrains the introduction of particular goods into the United States from considerations of public policy does not violate the due process clause of the Constitution. [Italics ours.]

If defendants' contention were accepted, Congress would be as impotent to regulate monopoly in our ocean trade (which is principally carried on by foreign corporations) as it would be to prevent it. To insist on freedom of trade is merely one way of regulating trade. If Congress can not prevent rates from being made by agreement it can not prevent them from being made arbitrary, excessive or discriminatory.

Indeed, in the court below defendants boldly adopted this extreme position, the brief for the Hamburg-American Line, the Allan Line, and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company saying (p. 5):

> Manifestly, if foreign vessels are permitted to enter and clear at our ports, the transportation furnished by them in respect of rates and of other matters connected with the whole trans-Atlantic voyage can be regulated only by a treaty with the nation to which they belong.

And again, page 17, the same brief continues:

> The lawful entering of our ports by foreign steamers, in the exercise of rights secured to them by treaty, can not confer upon Congress the power to prescribe what rates the foreign owners of the steamers shall charge upon the ocean or what contracts they shall be at liberty to enter into with regard to transportation on the ocean.

In other words, we can neither prohibit ocean carriers engaged in our foreign commerce from fixing their rates and practices by agreement, nor regulate the rates and practices so fixed, no matter how excessive and arbitrary they may be.

This extraordinary contention can not be supported either on principle or authority. A decision adopting it would instantly invalidate our whole system of immigration laws designed to secure to steerage passengers humane and decent treatment not only in New York Harbor but throughout the entire voyage.

The Act of December 19, 1908 (35 Stat. 583), for example, reenacting the provisions of earlier statutes, prescribes minimum requirements as to light, ventilation, space between decks, number of cubic feet of air per passenger, decent sleeping and toilet facilities, etc.

The Act of February 20, 1907 (34 Stat. 898, 901, sec. 9), in effect requires steamship companies to subject their passengers to thorough medical examination in Europe prior to embarkation.

Section 19 of the same Act (34 Stat. 904) requires immigrants of the excluded classes to be carried back by the vessels which brought them and prohibits the owners of such vessels from making any charge or receiving any security for the return passage.

The Act of August 2, 1882 (22 Stat. 186), requires three meals a day, wholesome and sufficient food and water, seats and tables at meal times, space for exercise and medical attendance in transit.

Other regulations, designed to protect American labor but necessarily operative abroad, prohibit employers from contracting with or even advertising for laborers in foreign countries or assisting them to come to the United States. Still other provisions with similar purpose limit the rights of steamship companies to advertise abroad for passengers. (Act of Feb. 20, 1907, 34 Stat. 898, 899.)

We are aware of no case in which any of these regulations has been held beyond the power of Congress. On the contrary most of them, as the following cases show, have been expressly sustained, though indirectly affecting the conduct of foreign citizens outside the United States.

Oceanic Steam Navigation Co. v. Stranahan, 214 U. S. 320, 332.—Statute placing a "duty * * * on the owners of all vessels, to subject all alien immigrants, prior to bringing them to the United States, to medical examination at the point of embarkation."

United States v. Norddeutscher Lloyd, 223 U. S. 512, 518, supra.—Statute prohibiting the taking of security for return passage if deported.

United States v. Lavarello, 149 Fed. 297.—Seats and tables at regular meals. The court said:

> The most important question raised by the demurrer relates to the power of Congress to make penal an omission by a foreign vessel to provide tables and seats at regular meals, for passengers bound to the United States and actually brought into a port of landing. * * * it is considered that the power exists, and it is unnecessary in reaching this conclusion to follow the history of passenger acts from an early time in the last century, or the decisions pertaining thereto (p. 298).

The European, 120 Fed. 776.—Serving insufficient food.

United States v. Nicholson, 12 Fed. 522.—Overcrowding of passengers.

O'Carrol v. The Havre, 45 Fed. 764.—Proper toilet facilities.

United States v. Craig, 28 Fed. 795, 800.—Employer held to violate the contract-labor law by making a contract in Quebec.

United States v. Dwight Mfg. Co., 210 Fed. 74.—Employer held to violate the contract-labor law by an offer of employment made abroad without any contract whatever.

United States v. Baltic Mills, 124 Fed. 38.—Employer held to violate the contract-labor law by merely advertising for employees in Manchester, England.

2. AS TO THE INTENT OF CONGRESS AND HEREIN AS TO THE TEST OF EXTRA-TERRITORIALITY.

Defendants may further contend that conceding the application of the Anti-Trust Act to ocean transportation generally and conceding the power of Congress to make it applicable to combinations affecting such commerce, even though formed in a foreign country and composed of foreign corporations, nevertheless it must be presumed that Congress did not intend to make it applicable to combinations of that description, because to do so would give the statute extra-territorial effect in violation of international law.

We concede that the Anti-Trust Act is not to be applied extra-territorially as to foreign citizens or even as to our own citizens. American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U. S. 347.

The question then becomes, What is the test of extra-territoriality? The following seems to have been the test advanced by the defendants below (brief for Hamburg American Line, Allan Line, and Canadian Pacific Railway Co., p. 14):

> The Sherman Act operates only within the territorial limits of the United States and does not reach any restraint or monopolization of our commerce with foreign nations which results from acts done outside of the jurisdiction of the United States.

Taking this to mean that combinations, though operative here, are not subject to the Anti-Trust Act if entered into abroad, the proposition is manifestly unsound. Such a construction would render the evasion of the Act so easy as virtually to nullify it altogether.

Would the defendants in the Trans-Missouri Freight Association Case have escaped if only, like the present defendants, they had held their meetings alternately at London and Cologne?

If manufacturers in the United States should go to Canada and there agree upon a schedule of prices to be charged in the United States, would they not be subject to the operation of the Anti-Trust Act, though nothing were done by them here except to sell their goods at the agreed prices? And if a conspiracy as to interstate trade is illegal, though formed abroad, would not a conspiracy as to foreign trade, fixing the price at which exports and imports shall be bought and sold in this country, be equally illegal?

Suppose parallel and competing railroads ran between Chicago and Winnipeg. Could they by agreement entered into at Winnipeg fix through rates and apportion the through traffic to and from Chicago? Would it make any difference if some of the roads were owned by foreign corporations?—or if Canadian law did not prohibit such agreements?—or if water lines via the Great Lakes were substituted for the railroad companies in the supposed case?

Defendants have laid down no general test of extra-territoriality and no general test can be laid down which would exempt them from the application of the Anti-Trust Law and would not at the same time exempt the conspirators in all the suppositious cases above. The truth is that in none of these cases, nor in the case of the defendants, is the restraint of trade or monopoly really accomplished by acts committed abroad. It is merely initiated there. The plan takes effect in this country; it is intended to do so; its consummating acts are performed here. The mere place where it was initiated is immaterial; and all suppositious cases involving combinations whose whole existence—beginning, consummation and end—takes place abroad are entirely irrelevant.[1]

In the criminal law, where the question most frequently arises, the general test of extra-territoriality is not, Where was the act, as shooting, counterfeiting, forgery, bribery, libel, etc., initiated? but, Where did it take effect? An act, properly speaking, is a voluntary muscular contraction, nothing more. In the broad legal sense, however, a man who is physically outside this country "acts" within it if he produces here effects so dangerous and so proximate to the muscular contraction by which they are initiated that this country is justified on grounds of expediency in holding him responsible. In such a case the actor is "constructively present" within the jurisdiction where the effect is produced, though he may be physically abroad. Hyde v. United States, 225 U. S. 347, 362; Strassheim v. Daily, 221 U. S. 280; In re Palliser, 136 U. S. 256, 265; United States v. Nord Deutscher Lloyd, 223 U. S. 512, 516; Oceanic Steam Nav. Co. v. Stranahan, 214 U. S. 320, 332; Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 76; Burton v. United States, 202 U. S. 344; United States v. Thayer, 209 U. S. 39, 44; Simpson v. State,

[1] Thus, for example, the case of the Chicago-Winnipeg railroads might be very different if the tracks on the American side of the boundary and the tracks on the Canadian side were owned by two sets of wholly independent corporations. In such a case there might conceivably be a combination between the Canadian railroads, involving only the local rates from Winnipeg to the boundary, in which the American roads would take no part whatever, and which, therefore, would have its whole existence outside the United States. But that is not the present case.

92 Ga. 41; Commonwealth v. Macloon, 101 Mass. 1, 6, 18.

United States v. Nord Deutscher Lloyd and Oceanic Steam Nav. Co. v. Stranahan, supra, are good examples of the application of the principle. In the first this Court, though expressly stating that the statute "of course, has no extra-territorial operation," nevertheless held the defendant, a foreign corporation, criminally liable for taking from an immigrant in Germany security for payment of his return passage if deported, placing this holding on the ground that such taking "created a condition which was operative in New York." In the second the defendant, a foreign corporation, was punished here for failure to provide adequate medical inspection in Europe—a mere nonfeasance—resulting in the introduction of a diseased person into this country.

Similarly in the case of contracts to be performed in other countries, their validity is governed by the law of the place of performance. Story, Conflict of Laws, sections 242, 244. Contracts permissible in other countries are not enforcible in our courts if they contravene our laws, our morality, or our policy. Oscanyan v. Winchester, &c., Co., 103 U. S. 261, 277; Kennett v. Chambers, 14 How. 38; Walworth v. Harris, 129 U. S. 355; Williston's Pollock on Contracts, 506; Page on Contracts, Vol. III, sec. 1729; Westlake on Private International Law, 3d ed., 259, 260.

These principles of criminal law and of contract law are peculiarly applicable in the case of conspiracies.

This Court and other courts have repeatedly held that conspiracies are "continuing offences" and may be enjoined or punished wherever operative regardless of where initiated. Hyde v. United States, 225 U. S. 347, 362; Brown v. Elliot, 225 U. S. 392, 402; Hyde v. Shine, 199 U. S. 62, 76; United States v. Linton, 223 Fed. 677, 679; International Harvester Co. v. Missouri, 237 Mo. 369; 234 U. S. 199; International Harvester Co. v. Kentucky, 137 Ky. 668, 674; People v. Mather, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 229, 259; Commonwealth v. Gillespie, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 469, 478; Commonwealth v. Corlies, 3 Brews. (Pa.) 575, 578; Noyes v. State, 41 N. J. L. 418; State v. Nugent, 77 N. J. L. 84, 86; Bloomer v. State, 48 Md. 521, 535; People v. Arnold, 46 Mich. 268, 275; Insurance Cos. v. State, 75 Miss. 25, 34; State v. Hamilton, 13 Nev. 386, 393; Pearce v. Territory, 11 Okla. 438, 446; Ex parte Rogers, 10 Tex. App. 655; Rex v. Brisac, 4 East 164; Reg. v. Connolly, 25 Ontario 151.

For jurisdictional purposes, all the conspirators are treated as though personally present and conspiring whenever and wherever acts in furtherance of the conspiracy are performed. The Statute of Limitations does not bar prosecution merely because the conspiracy originated more than three years before the indictment. United States v. Kissell, 218 U. S. 601, 607. For like reason the defense of extra-territoriality does not apply merely because the conspiracy originated abroad. The conspiracy exists wherever it operates. As said by this Court in Hyde v. United States, 225 U. S. 347, 363:

> We have held that a conspiracy is not necessarily the conception and purpose of the moment, but may be continuing. If so in time, it may be in place—carrying to the whole area of its operations the guilt of its conception and that which follows guilt, trial and punishment. [Italics ours.]

Again, the same conspiracy may be operative in more than one country. In the very nature of things this must be so of conspiracies affecting foreign commerce, since every current of foreign commerce must run into the territorial limits of more than one country; otherwise it would not be foreign commerce. As said in Veazie v. Moor, 14 How. 568, 573:

> Commerce with foreign nations must signify commerce which in some sense is necessarily connected with these nations, transactions which either immediately, or at some stage of their progress, must be extra-territorial. [Italics ours.]

In accord with these settled principles the test of extra-territoriality for which the Government contends is this, Is the conspiracy operative within this country and consummated by acts performed here—or, on the contrary, is the plan completely accomplished and exhausted abroad?

That is a question of fact in each case. Its determination may undoubtedly depend upon the distinction between "acts" and the mere "continuance of the result" of acts. The Government does not contend that the Anti-Trust Act reaches every combination or conspiracy which has any effect, however remote, within this country. But, in the words of the Kissell Case, supra, "when the plot contemplates bringing to pass a continuous result that will not continue without the continuous cooperation of the conspirators to keep it up, and there is such continuous cooperation" within this country, it is a perversion of natural thought to call that intra-territorial cooperation the mere "continuance of the result" of extra-territorial acts.

Let us apply this test of extra-territoriality to the facts of the present case. As we attempt hereinafter to show, the purpose and effect of the steamship combination is to restrain and monopolize the transportation of steerage passengers between the United States and Europe. The combination therefore directly and materially affects a current of foreign commerce of the United States and it affects it during its course within the territorial limits of the United States as well as without.

Not only is the combination thus operative within the territorial limits of this country, but many of the acts in pursuance of it are actually performed here. Offices and agents are maintained throughout the United States. Passengers are solicited here. Tickets, both eastbound and westbound, are sold here. Ships enter and depart from our ports, embarking and disembarking passengers, many of whom are American citizens. Eastbound steerage passengers from inland cities purchase through transportation, both rail and water, from the steamship agents. They are known as "steamship passengers" all the way to the coast and must show their steamship tickets to the railroad officials whenever called for. (Sandford, I R. 365.)

The various acts of unfair competition were and are performed here. The fighting ships sail from New York, their rates are there advertised, and until just prior to the filing of this suit they were chosen there by the so-called "Small Committee" (Nyland, 11 R. 454–455; Cauty, 12 R. 1053; Winter, 12 R. 1158). The boycotting of independent agents and the exaction of discriminatory "commercial allowances" from the railroads also go on within this country.

Finally, the agents of the steamship lines meet in New York in the American Atlantic Conference for the express purpose of carrying out the provisions of the General Pool Agreement and the agreements collateral thereto. (Letter showing purpose, 6 R. 2873; minutes of American Atlantic Conference, 1 R. 388, 385–419; Cauty, 12 R. 1047.)

These facts meet every test of jurisdiction laid down in the conspiracy cases. More than that, they show an actual doing of business in combination within this country. The doing of business is not a technicality; it is a fact. Each nation may prescribe how business shall be done within its borders. Comity no more requires us to permit these foreign corporations to conduct their business here in combination, than it requires us to permit them individually to exercise here charter powers contrary to our laws or public policy. Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. 168, 181; Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. 519, 589; Clarke v. Cent. R. R., 50 Fed. 338; Williams v. Gold Hill Mining Co., 96 Fed. 464; London, Paris & America Bank v. Aronstein, 117 Fed. 601; Beale, Foreign Corporations, sections 112, 118, 120, and cases cited.

In two similar cases, this Court has held the Anti-Trust Act to be applicable.

In the Tobacco Case, 221 U. S. 106, 185, a contract between the American Tobacco Company and two British corporations—The Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain and Ireland and the British-American Tobacco Company, Ltd.—which parceled out the world's trade, kept the British companies from sending their goods here and kept the American company from sending its goods to England, was held by this Court to violate the Anti-Trust Act, though entered into "in the city of London, where such contract was a legal and proper one." (164 Fed. 703.)

The case of United States v. Pacific & Arctic Co., 228 U. S. 87, is even more directly in point. That case, like the present, involved a combination of carriers operating partly within and partly without the United States, i. e., from Seattle, Washington, and Vancouver, British Columbia, by water to Skagway, Alaska, and thence by railroad into the Yukon district of Canada. The railroads (Canadian owned) leading into the interior and a company owning the docks at Skagway entered into exclusive through routing arrangements with three steamboat companies (two from Seattle and one from Vancouver) for the purpose of giving the latter a monopoly of the Alaska-Yukon trade. This court said in answer to the same jurisdictional contentions now made (105–106):

> The next contention of defendants is that as part of the transportation route was outside of the United States the Anti-Trust Law does not apply. The consequences and, indeed, legal impossibility are set forth to such application, and, it is said, "make it obvious that our laws relating to interstate and foreign commerce were not intended to have any effect upon the carriage by foreign roads in foreign countries, and . . . it is equally clear that our laws can not be extended so as to control or affect the foreign carriage." This is but saying that laws have no extraterritorial operation; but to apply the proposition as defendants apply it would put the transportation route described in the indictment out of the control of either Canada or the United States. These consequences we can not accept. The indictment alleges that the four companies which constitute the White Pass & Yukon Route (referred to as the railroad) and owned and controlled by the same persons, entered into the combination and conspiracy alleged, with the intention alleged, with the wharves company and the defendant steamship companies. In other words, it was a control to be exercised over transportation in the United States, and, so far, is within the jurisdiction of the laws of > the United States, criminal and civil. If we may not control foreign citizens or corporations operating in foreign territory, we certainly may control such citizens and corporations operating in our territory, as we undoubtedly may control our own citizens and our own corporations. [Italics ours.]

The United States circuit judges of the Second Circuit have three times decided against the same contentions. Thomsen v. Union Castle Mail S. S. Co., 166 Fed. 251; United States v. Hamburg American Line, 200 Fed. 806; United States v. Prince Line, 220 Fed. 230, 234.

In the present case they said (10 R. 5124–5125):

> The agreement directly and materially affects foreign commerce and is partly intra-territorial because it is to be carried out in part in the United States. Confining ourselves to east bound traffic, it is evident that the contract contemplates the solicitation of business; the making of contracts of carriage; the taking on board of passengers, and the actual commencement of transportation within the territory of the United States. It requires acts to be done in this country; such acts are as material and essential as those to be performed abroad, and the part of the contract requiring them can not be separated from the remainder.
>
> The prohibitions of the Anti-Trust Statute apply broadly to contracts in restraint of trade or commerce with foreign nations. This contract directly and materially affects such commerce, and if it unlawfully restrains it, it comes within the statute. We see nothing to warrant the contention that the act should be narrowly interpreted as prohibiting only contracts which are to be performed wholly within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States nor—if it were for us to consider—any reason for concluding that a broad construction would lead to international complications.

As the contract directly and materially affects the foreign commerce of this country by being put into effect here, it is immaterial where it was entered into or by what vessels it was to be, or has been, performed. Citizens of foreign countries are not free to restrain or monopolize the foreign commerce of this country by entering into combinations abroad nor by employing foreign vessels to effect their purpose. Such combinations are to be tested by the same standard as similar combinations entered into here by citizens of this country. The vital question in all cases is the same. Is the combination to so operate in this country as to directly and materially affect our foreign commerce? [Italics ours.]

The case of American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U. S. 347, on which defendants chiefly rely, was brought to the attention of this Court in the Pacific & Arctic Case, supra, in the Nord Deutscher Lloyd Case, supra, and in Strassheim v. Daily, supra, and also to the attention of the court below in the present case, but without effect. It is clearly inapplicable here. The circumstances are exactly reversed. In the Banana Case the agreements were made in this country, but were executed abroad. In the present case the agreements were made abroad, but are executed here. In the Banana Case damages were sought for acts not tortious where committed. In the present case the Government seeks to enjoin acts which are operative here and many of which are actually committed here and which clearly violate our laws.

The principles of international law, far from prohibiting, expressly sanction the application of our statutes to a combination like the present one. The universally accepted view is stated in Moore's Digest of International Law, volume 2, page 244, as follows:

> The principle that a man who outside of a country willfully puts in motion a force to take effect in it is answerable at the place where the evil is done, is recognized in the criminal jurisprudence of all countries. And the methods which modern invention has furnished for the performance of criminal acts in that manner has made this principle one of constantly growing importance and of increasing frequency of application. [Citing numerous cases.]

The same principle was stated as follows by this Court in Strassheim v. Daily, 221 U. S. 280, where the defendant, while in Illinois had contrived through an agent to defraud the State of Michigan (284–285):

> If a jury should believe the evidence and find that Daily did the acts that led Armstrong to betray his trust, deceived the board of control, and induced by fraud the payment by the State, the usage of the civilized world would warrant Michigan in punishing him, although he had never set foot in the State until after the fraud was complete. Acts done outside > a jurisdiction, but intended to produce and producing detrimental effects within it, justify a State in punishing the cause of the harm as if he had been present at the effect if the State should succeed in getting him within its power. Commonwealth v. Smith, 11 Allen 243, 256, 259; Simpson v. State, 92 Ga. 41; American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U. S. 347, 356; Commonwealth v. Macloon, 101 Mass. 1, 6, 18.

In Wildenhus's Case, 120 U. S. 1, where the jurisdiction of a State court over one charged with murder committed on board a foreign merchant vessel in a harbor of the State was sustained, Mr. Chief Justice Waite said (11):

> It is part of the law of civilized nations that when a merchant vessel of one country enters the ports of another for the purposes of trade, it subjects itself to the law of the place to which it goes, unless by treaty or otherwise the two countries have come to some different understanding or agreement.

In the present case defendants are carrying on business in this country and to deny our right to require them while so doing to comply with our laws and public policy is to deny us that supremacy within our own domain which is inherent in sovereignty. This is not usurping extra-territorial power. It is merely insisting upon a reasonable degree of control over our own affairs.

We submit, therefore, that the contention that the Anti-Trust Act is inapplicable to the present case has no foundation either in principle or authority.

III.

DEFENDANT STEAMSHIP LINES ARE PARTIES TO A COMBINATION AND CONSPIRACY TO POOL TRAFFIC IN STEERAGE PASSENGERS BETWEEN PORTS OF THE UNITED STATES AND FOREIGN PORTS AND TO FIX THE RATES OF PASSAGE, THEREBY RESTRAINING FOREIGN COMMERCE IN VIOLATION OF THE ANTI-TRUST ACT.

1. STATEMENT OF THE LAW.

In general, price-fixing agreements amongst competitors are in restraint of trade and illegal. No rule of law is more conclusively established. The principle was thus stated by Mr. Justice Hughes in Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. Park & Sons Co., 220 U. S. 373, 408:

> But agreements or combinations between dealers, having for their sole purpose the destruction of competition and the fixing of prices, are injurious to the public interest and void.

Such agreements belong to the class described by the Chief Justice in the Standard Oil Case (221 U. S. 1, 56, 59) as "in restraint of trade in the subjective sense"—agreements by which one "voluntarily and unreasonably restrains his right to carry on his trade or business"; or, in the language of Mr. Justice Holmes:

> They are contracts with a stranger to the contractor's business (although, in some cases, carrying on a similar one), which wholly or partially restrict the freedom of the contractor in carrying on that business as otherwise he would. (Northern Securities Case, 193 U. S., 197, 404.)

See also:

Standard Sanitary Co. v. United States, 226 U. S. 20;

Swift v. United States, 196 U. S. 375;

People v. Sheldon, 139 N. Y. 251;

Cummings v. Union Blue Stone Co., 164 N. Y. 405;

Trenton Potteries Co. v. Olyphant, 58 N. J. Eq. 507;

Nester v. Continental Drilling Co., 161 Pa. St. 473;

Salt Co. v. Guthrie, 35 O. St. 666;

Oil Co. v. Adoue, 83 Tex. 650;

India Bagging Co. v. Koch, 14 La. An. 168;

Noyes, Intercorporate Relations, 513, Note 1, where the cases are collected.

The rule is as applicable to the fixing of rates among common carriers, by land or water, as it is to the fixing of commodity prices. This was expressly decided as to railroads in United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Ass'n, 166 U. S. 290, 324, and also in United States v. Joint Traffic Ass'n, 171 U. S. 505.

The decisions in those cases have since been unanimously reaffirmed not only in the Northern Securities Case, 193 U. S. 197 (Mr. Justice Harlan's opinion, p. 330; Mr. Justice Brewer's opinion, p. 360; Mr. Justice Holmes's opinion, in which the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice White, and Mr. Justice Peckham concurred, p. 405), but also in the Standard Oil Case, 221 U. S. 1, 68, the Tobacco Case, 221 U. S. 106, 179, the Standard Sanitary Case, 226 U. S. 20, 49, and the Union Pacific Case, 226 U. S. 61, 84, 88.

In The Union Pacific Case, 226 U. S. 61, 80–81, 93, and in Cincinnati Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179, 185, this Court apparently assumed that carriers by water are equally within the rule; and in Thomsen v. Union Castle Mail Steamship Co., 166 Fed. 253 (C. C. A. 2d), the Circuit Court of Appeals so held.

Pooling agreements have the same purpose and effect and stand upon exactly the same footing before the law as agreements to fix prices or rates. Pools were held illegal in—

Addyston Pipe Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211;

Gibbs v. Baltimore Gas Co., 130 U. S. 396, 406, 411;

United States v. United States Steel Corp., 223 Fed. 55, 155, 172;

C. & O. Fuel Co. v. United States, 115 Fed. 610 (C. C. A. 6th);

Wheeler-Stenzel Co. v. Window Glass Jobbers' Ass'n, 152 Fed. 864 (C. C. A. 3d);

Leonard v. Abner Drury Brewing Co., 25 App. Cas. (D. C.) 161;

Morris Run Coal Co. v. Barclay Coal Co., 68 Pa. St. 173;

Craft v. McConnoughy, 79 Ill. 346;

Vulcan Powder Co. v. Hercules Powder Co., 96 Cal. 510;

Oil Co. v. Adoue, 83 Tex. 650.

Pools among carriers by railroad were held illegal in—

D. L. & W. R. Co. v. Frank, 110 Fed. 689;

C. M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 61 Fed. 993 (C. C. A. 8th).

United States v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. 203 Fed. 295.

Pools among carriers by water were held illegal in—

United States v. Hamburg-American Line, 200 Fed. 806 (the present case upon demurrer);

Cole Transportation Co. v. White Star Line, 186 Fed. 63, 66–67;

White Star Line v. Star Line Steamers, 141 Mich. 604, 611;

Anderson v. Jett, 89 Ky. 375;

Stanton v. Allen, 5 Denio (N. Y.) 434;

Hooker v. Vandewater, 4 Denio (N. Y.) 349;

Watson v. Harlem etc. Nav. Co., 52 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 348.

These settled principles were well stated by the circuit judges of the Third Circuit in the case of United States v. United States Steel Corporation, decided June 3, 1915, 223 Fed. 55. Judge Buffington with whom Judge McPherson concurred, said (p. 155):

> This country has always been committed to the principle of fair and real competition in business—the struggle between individuals to sell goods in a market free from artificial control or influence—and the Sherman Act merely repeats this principle when it condemns, in the first section, "every contract or combination in restraint of trade." When, therefore, individuals or corporations make distinct contracts with each other, either in the form of pools or other agreements, dividing territory, limiting output, or fixing prices, there can be no question about the illegality of such contracts. [Italics ours.]

Judge Woolley, with whom Judge Hunt concurred, said (p. 172):

> I know of no law which makes the steadying of the market a justification for fixing and maintaining prices by the concerted action of otherwise competing companies, when the effect of steadying the market is to dominate the industry by establishing prices for its products. The perfection of stabilizing prices can be reached only when monopoly is perfect, and as nothing justifies monopoly, I am of opinion that the stabilizing benefits claimed by the defendants in fixing and maintaining prices are no justification or excuse for what they did. Prices are perfectly stabilized by pools, when entered into and lived up to, yet no one would contend that a pool, however beneficent its results, is either justifiable or legal. If the establishment of uniform prices for the products of an industry should ever be found advantageous or necessary, such an economic policy should be inaugurated and pursued under authority of law, and not by the will of the industry itself. [Italics ours.]

2. APPLICATION OF THE LAW.

No new question is presented by the facts of this case. We have here simply the application of old principles to an old form of combination—a combination which is doubly illegal, for it not only fixes rates, thereby suppressing competition in that regard, but also pools traffic and divides territory, thereby suppressing competition as regards both rates and service.

If there were nothing more here than a rate-fixing agreement it would fall directly within the principle of the Freight Association and Joint Traffic Cases, supra, p. 81.

The General Pool Agreement, however, is far more restrictive of competitive conditions than any simple rate agreement. Competition in rates is not the only kind of competition which the law aims to preserve. Competition in service is quite as important. As observed by this Court in the Union Pacific Case, 226 U. S. 61, 87:

> Competition between two such systems consists not only in making rates, * * * but includes the character of the service rendered, the accommodation of the shipper in handling and caring for freight and the prompt recognition and adjustment of the shipper's claims.

Under simple rate agreements competition in service may continue as actively as ever, for the efficient competitor is immediately and certainly rewarded by securing a larger share of the business. But pooling combinations, by fixing the share of the trade which each member may take, not only remove all inducement to competition in respect of rates, but also prevent, or at least greatly diminish, competition in service as well.

Thus, under the present agreement the more efficient line can not hope to increase its share of the business by improving its service, since its share is absolutely fixed at a definite percentage and it is bound so to arrange its service as not to exceed that percentage. And lest, in spite of all it should do so, the agreement expressly provides that for every passenger above its allotted quota it shall pay to the other parties a "compensation price" of approximately $20, which payment is secured by heavy penalties.

All incentive to competition either as regards service or rates is thus killed. And it was so intended, for the commentaries to Agreement AA, which are part of the agreement itself (1 R. 73), expressly say (1 R. 56)—

> (a) The stipulation of a compensation payment for each steerager carried beyond the proportion allotted by this contract forms one of the main features of the entire contract. The payment of such compensation is certainly not the intent and purpose of the contract, but it is the requisite means to deter the lines from following the tendency to exceed their proportion. [Italics ours.]
>
> (b) The possibility ought not to be excluded to effect alterations with regard to the figure of £4 in the event of it becoming evident, that from extraordinary causes, the stipulated compensation proves to be too low or too high for the purposes of this contract.
>
> * * * * *
>
> (d) It was therefore agreed that the compensation can be advanced and lowered by a majority of the Lines representing at least 75 per cent of the shares as fixed in Article 3.

With respect to this provision, Franklin, vice president of the International Mercantile Marine, testified (13 R. 1814):

> The spirit of the agreement was that the lines should not carry more or less; that the lines should carry about in accordance with their percentage.
>
> * * * * *
>
> The object of the agreement was that the lines should maintain that percentage as closely as possible.
>
> * * * * *
>
> The very object of this agreement is to avoid the stronger lines taking away, or attempting to take away, all of the business from the weaker lines.

Cauty, also a vice president of the International Mercantile Marine, testified as follows (12 R. 1097–1098):

> Q. Mr. Cauty, I understand you to testify on cross-examination that the purpose of establishing £4 as a standard of compensation was to deter a company from carrying more than its allotment?—A. May I say to remove any inducement to the company to carry more than its allotment. I think perhaps that would be a more correct term.
>
> Q. Likewise it was fixed on that basis of £4 so as to not compensate a line that had not carried its allotment to the extent of a profit for being a drone?—A. Well, I hardly think that is correct, Mr. Crim, because supposing a line is overcarrying largely, and you can get a considerable number of £4 without > having to do anything for it, it is not a bad business. The check really was on the line that overcarried * * *. [Italics ours.]

It is said that the General Pool Agreement is not perpetual but must be periodically renewed, and that a line which demonstrated its ability regularly to attract more than its quota would at the next renewal demand a larger percentage. The agreement was originally for three years (1 R. 73, art. 27), and in December, 1910, one month before this suit was filed, was renewed for five years more (Ismay, 12 R. 1031). It is obvious therefore that the remote possibility of a larger share of the business five years hence, contingent upon the acquiescence of the other parties, and subject meanwhile to carrying any excess at a loss, is hardly an incentive to competition.

The defendants' own witnesses admitted this by word and conduct. Thus Cauty when shown a letter in which he had suggested in the following terms a pool agreement covering also second-class passengers (12 R. 1079):

> We are quite of your opinion that a general advance of at least 20/– all round should be made in the second-class rate. We think a pool would secure a larger increase, but I hope the advance of at least 20/– may be agreed, if a pool is found impossible, testified in explanation:

> Failing to get what we thought a satisfactory rate agreement we thought perhaps the reluc- tance of any lines to advance would be overcome if there was a pool, so that their position was protected.

Hannah testified (13 R. 1476–1477):

> A conference I have said a minute or two ago was where two or three men came together, one representing each line, and arranged for the operation of their several lines, both as to runs, rates and many other matters, and one said you will be satisfied to have $32 for your line, and you will be satisfied to have $25 for your line, and you $30 for your line, and each of these differences was because of some confessed knowledge of superiority or inferiority on the part of one or the other of these lines. Then they would publish their rates on that basis and adhere to them for a time at least, and that was the differential;[1] they each got as much business as they could; they could beat each other as much as they liked. There was no division of the business then. That was done in conference in the year 1868.
>
> Q. Now, take the pooling arrangement under AA?—A. The pooling went further than that; it was made by some of the continental lines, not the British lines—they never were ingenious enough I think for that. That conference was not effective enough to secure the desired end.

[1] This was called "the principle of differentials against great speed and superior accommodations." (5 R. 2222.)

Lister testified (13 R. 1496):

> Q. Do you know what the reasons were which led the lines to make the agreement AA; if so, will you state what they were?—A. Yes, I think that the main reason for making the agreement AA was to prevent, if possible, these frequent breakings away from the agreements which had been the practice under the previous rate agreements.
>
> * * * * *
>
> Q. Was AA made to affect the same—to act for the same general purpose in the business but with a stronger obligation as to the lines—I mean as compared with the conference?—A. Yes, to insure more stability in the business.

Finally, a line is not permitted to advertise its superiority of service even if it has any. Article 16 of the General Pool Agreement reads (1 R. 63):

> No circulars or publications shall be issued by any line reflecting upon or instituting comparisons with any conference line unfavorable to the latter * * *.

To insure observance of this rule the lines are required to send copies of their advertising circulars to the secretary, to dismiss immediately any agent who violates the rule, and to join with all other lines in refusing business relations with such agent thereafter. (1 R. 63, 225, 230.)

IV.

THE COMBINATION AND CONSPIRACY BY UNFAIR AND OPPRESSIVE METHODS OF COMPETITION ALSO PREVENTS OTHER LINES FROM ENGAGING IN THE TRANSPORTATION OF STEERAGE PASSENGERS BETWEEN PORTS OF THE UNITED STATES AND FOREIGN PORTS, THEREBY FURTHER RESTRAINING FOREIGN COMMERCE IN VIOLATION OF THE ANTI-TRUST ACT.

1. STATEMENT OF THE LAW.

Combinations and conspiracies to prevent or hinder those outside from competing by employing against them other than normal and legitimate business methods fall within the narrowest conception of combinations and conspiracies in restraint of trade. The following are typical cases:

Eastern States Retail Lumber Dealers' Ass'n v. United States, 234 U. S. 600—a combination among retail dealers to compel wholesalers not to sell directly to consumers by refusing to buy from wholesalers who do so.

United States v. Pacific & Arctic Company, 228 U. S. 87, 104—a combination between three steamship lines, a wharf company and a railroad system, which were connecting carriers, whereby the wharf company and the railroad entered into exclusive through routing arrangements with the steamship lines in order to exclude other steamship lines from the trade affected.

United States v. Reading Company, 226 U. S. 324, 351–353—a combination of six railroads to prevent the building of a new competitive line by purchasing the coal mines and lands from which its prospective traffic would be principally derived.

Montague v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38—a combination of wholesale dealers in tile in San Francisco and of manufacturers of tile in other States by which the dealers agreed not to purchase from nonmember manufacturers and the manufacturers agreed not to sell to nonmember dealers.

The distinguishing mark of this type of combination is the purpose to exclude or interfere with the competition of others. It is not necessary that the exclusion or interference be actually accomplished. If the purpose stated exists and is coupled with adequate power, it becomes dangerously probable that the purpose will be executed, and that is enough to bring the combination within the condemnation of the law. Swift v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 396; United States v. St. Louis Terminal Railway, 224 U. S. 383, 394; United States v. Reading Company, 226 U. S. 324, 351–352, 370.

The purpose to exclude others is seldom expressed. The principal factors in determining it by inference doubtless are the conduct of the combination toward its competitors and the comprehensiveness of the combination.

The bearing upon its purpose of a combination's conduct toward its competitors of course requires no elucidation.

As to the second factor, where a combination takes in so large a proportion of the units in any branch of trade that those outside can not hope effectively to compete with it except by sufferance, it is a legitimate inference that one of the purposes of the combination is to prevent effective competition by those outside. This is clear from the Standard Oil Case, 221 U. S. 1, 75, where it was held that—> the unification of power and control over petroleum and its products which was the inevitable result of the combining in the New Jersey corporation by the increase of its stock and the transfer to it of the stocks of so many other corporations, aggregating so vast a capital, gives rise, in and of itself, in the absence of countervailing circumstances, to say the least, to the prima facie presumption of intent and purpose to maintain the dominancy over the oil industry, not as a result of normal methods of industrial development, but by new means of combination which were resorted to in order that greater power might be added than would otherwise have arisen had normal methods been followed, the whole with the purpose of excluding others from the trade and thus centralizing in the combination a perpetual control of the movements of petroleum and its products in the channels of interstate commerce. [Italics ours.]

Again, in United States v. St. Louis Terminal Ry., 224 U. S. 383, 394–395, and in United States v. Reading Co., 226 U. S. 324, 370, it was recognized that an intent to exclude others might be inferred from the "extent of the control" acquired by the combination, the Court saying in the latter case:

> In the instant case the extent of the control over the limited supply of anthracite coal by means of the great proportion theretofore owned or controlled by the defendant companies, and the extent of the control acquired over the independent output which constituted the only competing supply, affords evidence of an intent to suppress that competition and of a purpose to unduly restrain the freedom of production, transportation and sale of the article at tide-water markets. [Italics ours.]

There was a similar ruling in Shawnee Compress Co. v. Anderson, 209 U. S. 423, 433-434, where it was said:

> To what object was the assembling in one ownership or management so many compresses, and keeping the means and declaring the purpose of acquiring more? The answer would seem to be obvious. The first effect would necessarily be the cessation of competition. If there was left a possibility of other compresses being constructed, it was made less by the power that could be opposed to them. * * * This case presents something more than the lease of property by the Shawnee Company, induced or made necessary by financial embarrassment. It presents something more than the acquisition by the Gulf Company of another compress—of a mere addition to its business. It presents acts in aid of a scheme of monopoly.

2. APPLICATION OF THE LAW.

The facts heretofore stated (supra, pp. 22–33) show conclusively that the defendant steamship lines in combination have employed against other lines wrongful methods of competition, with the result and for the purpose of excluding them from the field and acquiring a monopoly.

It is useless for defendants to say that individually they might have employed these methods. There is a potency in numbers which creates a difference—in kind as well as in degree—between the acts of individuals and the acts of combinations. "The Sherman Law is a limitation of rights, rights which may be pushed to evil consequences and therefore restrained." Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States, 226 U. S. 20, 49. The principle is thus stated in Grenada Lumber Co. v. Mississippi, 217 U. S. 433, 440-441:

> An act harmless when done by one may become a public wrong when done by many acting in concert, for it then takes on the form of a conspiracy, and may be prohibited or punished, if the result be hurtful to the public or to the individual against whom the concerted action is directed.

The authorities are reviewed and the result stated in Wyman, Control of the Market, as follows:

> * * * There is the intermediate assumption that the individual refusal by a single man is of the same character as a concerted refusal by many men. This may well be challenged as law, since it is contrary to fact. Even if it were in the face of the logic of the law, most men would call this competition unfair. For most men firmly believe in the perpetuation of the open market; and they realize that if a combination may work its will in this way, the end of industrial liberty is at hand (p. 103).

* * * * *

* * * It seems the real truth that the very concert gives combined action a higher potentiality for harm than individual action ever can have. Formal logic does not now support the minority view that the combination is as free to act in this way as an individual is. And public policy certainly seems to be with the majority view that the individual trader should be protected against the pressure of the combination which is breaking up his business relations with those who might otherwise deal with him. The reality of such oppression carries with it, in most minds, the conviction of the essential wrongfulness of such dictation by the combination (p. 106).

(a) The Wrongful Methods.

Fighting ships.—Fighting ships, heretofore described (supra, p. 23), were condemned by the Report on Shipping Combinations, etc., made by the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries under House Resolution 587, Sixty-third Congress, and the bill accompanying the report specifically forbids them. (Report, vol. 4, p. 421; Bill, sec. 2.)

The use of fighting ships is analogous to price cutting by a combination in particular localities for the purpose of destroying competition, only to raise the price when the competition has been gotten rid of. The individual line has against it in the contest the aggregate resources of all the members of the combination, and, of course, must succumb.

On this branch of the case the defendants relied in the court below upon Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor, L. R. 1892, A. C. 25. That case does not support their position. All that was decided there was that admitting the contention that the agreement or combination which caused the alleged injury was in restraint of trade, the plaintiff still had no case because such an agreement or combination was not indictable or actionable at common law. (L. R. 1892, A. C. 36; L. R., Q. B. D., 619, 620, 626.) While not necessary to the decision, three of the judges who sat in the case—Lord Bramwell and Lord Hannen in the House of Lords, and Lord Esher in the Court of Appeals—expressed the view that the agreement or combination in controversy did restrain trade. In the Addyston Pipe Case, 85 Fed. 271 (C. C. A. 6th), Judge Taft carefully analyzed the Mogul Steamship case, concluding as follows (p. 286):

> * * * but it was not held that the contract of association entered into by the defendants was not void and unenforceable at common law. On the contrary, Lord Bram- > well, in his judgment (at page 46), and Lord Hannen, in his (at page 58), distinctly say that the contract of association was void as in restraint of trade; but all the law lords were of opinion that contracts void as in restraint of trade were not unlawful in a criminal sense, and gave no right of action for damages to one injured thereby. The statute we are considering expressly gives such contracts a criminal and unlawful character. It is manifest, therefore, that whatever of relevancy the Mogul Steamship Co. case has in this discussion makes for, rather than against, our conclusion. [Italics ours.]

The District Court decided that the use by the defendants in combination of fighting ships violated the Anti-Trust Act, but its decree, as we think, was inadequate. (See infra, p. 125.)

Boycotting of nonmember agents.—As previously shown (supra, p. 26), the parties to the combination concertedly refuse to employ as agents any persons who also act as agents in the selling of tickets for independent lines. As the business of the independent lines has been so small that it would not pay an agent to work for them alone, the result has been to prevent the independent lines from obtaining satisfactory agents (supra, p. 27).

This is a true secondary boycott—a combination to coerce A to cease dealing with B in order to injure B. Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 204; Eastern States Lumber Dealers Ass'n v. United States, 234 U. S. 600.

It is not, as defendants would have us believe, a means of securing honest agents.[1] The test is not, "Is the agent honest," but "Does he serve any independent line." Ismay himself admitted that the rule was really a competitive measure, saying (12 R. 1023):

> Q. In general then that rule 9 was enforced to meet the competition of the Volunteer Fleet, the Russo-East Asiatic and the New York & Continental Line?—A. Not those lines specifically, I think it was put in there to meet the competition of any outside lines which might come along. [Italics ours.]

Furthermore, this is not a case where an employer requires the exclusive service of his agents. Each steamship line in the combination permits its agents to serve all other lines in the combination—indeed it expects them to do so and holds out that opportunity as an inducement to successful agents to desert independent employers. (Winter, 13 R. 1743, 1745–1746; Peters' letter, 7 R. 3347; Nyland, 11 R. 513; Richard, 12 R. 792–793.)

Thus the right to select agents, like the right to select through-route connections in the Pacific & Arctic case, 228 U. S. 87, is exercised not for natural trade reasons—to secure greater responsibility or

[1] The dishonest ("bunco") agencies, of which so much is said, were almost gone by 1880, and by 1894 had entirely disappeared; not because of the boycotting of nonconference agents, however, but because of the refusal to pay commissions to runners, the insistence upon reliable, bonded agents, and particularly because of the criminal prosecution against a notorious swindler, Henry Rice, which served "to clear out the whole field." (Hannah, 13 R. 1451, 1469–1470; Winter, 13 R. 1732, 1733.) efficiency—but for the purpose of building up a monopoly.

Exaction of discriminatory railroad allowances.—As also shown above (supra, p. 28), the parties to the combination, whilst themselves receiving from railroad companies "commercial allowances," so called, amounting to 10 per cent of the railroad fare paid by steerage passengers, both eastbound and westbound, have at the same time exacted from the railroads an agreement not to pay similar allowances to independent steamship lines.

It is claimed that these allowances are paid for services rendered.[1] If so, then the independent lines are equally entitled to receive them, and the conduct of the defendants in combining to prevent the railroads from paying them is all the more reprehensible.

[1] The flounderings of defendant's witnesses when called upon to describe these "services," however, were humorous (Kerr, 13 R. 1624, 1626; McCain, 12 R. 850, 870.) The only service is the sale to the prospective passenger of an order for rail transportation simultaneously with the sale of the steamship ticket. True the steamship company is responsible to the railroad for the ticket money thus paid, but the steamship agents are bonded (Winter, 13 R.1734); their defalcations are practically nil (Kerr, 13 R. 1628); the steamship companies have the use of the passengers' money (no inconsiderable sum) sometimes for several months before paying it over (McCain, 12 R. 873); and it is really as much an advantage to them as to the railroads to be able to sell through transportation, both rail and water, at the same time.

That they should receive 10 per cent of the entire railroad fare for such "services" as these is palpably absurd. The fact is they have demonstrated to the railroads their power to control this traffic and they use their power to extort these 10 per cent concessions, which ultimately, of course, have to be paid by the passengers themselves. (1 R. 348 (a); 4 R. 1818, 1819; 1 R. 375, sec. 1; 1 R. 376, sec. 3; McCain, 12 R. 850, 862–863, 870.)

(b) The Result.

The effect of these wrongful methods has been set forth in detail in the Statement of the Case. (Supra, pp. 29–33.) It is enough now to repeat that they have been completely successful in throttling competition and keeping the combination in full possession of the steerage traffic between the United States and all of Europe north of Cadiz, Spain, including the British Isles and Scandinavia.

(c) The Purpose.

The character of the methods employed by the combination against competitors and the result, as above set forth, establish beyond question that one of the purposes of the combination was to exclude from this particular field of commerce any steamship line which refused to join the combination. If confirmation of that purpose were needed we have it in the very comprehensivness of the combination, in attempts to cover up its actions and in express declarations.

Enough has already been said of the comprehensiveness of the combination. No important line was left out.

Attempts of the combination to cover up its actions show an "ever-present manifestation * * * of a conscious wrongdoing." Tobacco Case, 221 U. S., 106, 182.

The roundabout method of selecting fighting steamers, first by a small committee in New York which signed no papers, made no agreements and kept no minutes regarding its proceedings (4 R. 2091), and later by agencies in Europe (11 R. 539–540), is typical.

Conference proceedings are regarded as "sacred," "confidential in the highest degree" (1 R. 79, par. 15; 1 R. 251.) Secretary Peters, in a circular letter, November 12, 1908, says (7 R. 3721):

> It needs no mention that all reports about pool and what is in connection therewith may in view of the United States laws turn very much to the detriment of all the parties * * *. [Italics ours.]

In another letter, January 4, 1909, he says (7 R. 3771):

> The lines no doubt will all be convinced that it will be well done if on their part the word "pool" is absolutely avoided in correspondence as well as in negotiations, agreements etc. * * * it would certainly be advisable to eliminate the word "pool" and substitute "arrangement" or some other synonymous word. [Italics ours.]

The Mediterranean agreement has the following commentary (7 R. 3650):

> the Italian Lines consider it extremely important that the conclusion of the whole agreement should not become public, but kept secret for the reason that according to Italian law pool agreements are forbidden. [Italics ours.]

Urging caution with respect to the boycotting of nonconference agents, the Holland-America Line writes (2 R. 1043):

> Similar matters, if brought before a court, may easily lead to further investigation of the present methods employed by the steamship companies, which, in many respects would cause unsatisfactory results. The course followed by the steamship companies in their different meetings to maintain control of the agents under their supervision is in many ways very arbitrary, and although from the steamship companies' standpoint justifiable, may be condemned if brought before an investigation committee. [Italics ours.]

In another letter on the same subject it says (I R. 214):

> We strongly fear that by enforcing conference rules we would drive Cunard[1] to freely use anti-trust legislation against us in whatever way this would be possible and with Mr. Sandford as a Cunard employee we may be certain that if any evidence against us could be presented, it would certainly be expert evidence.

Finally, the documentary evidence contained in the exhibits—the agreements, the conference minutes, and correspondence of the parties—is replete with declarations of the purpose to drive out the independent lines. The following examples are sufficient:

"Agreement AA," the General Pool Agreement itself, provides for the admission of new lines only by the unanimous vote of all the parties (I R. 66, Art. 22), and imposes the heaviest penalty possible for assisting directly or indirectly opposition lines (I R. 64, Art. 18).

[1] At the time this letter was written the Cunard Line was not a member of the conference.

Atlantic Conference minute No. 1, March 25, 1909 (5 R. 2307):

> The competition of the Northwest Transport Line is considered serious * * * but by resuscitating by-law 22 [the fighting ship arrangement] to meet their eastbound departures it is hoped to make their service unprofitable * * *. [Italics ours.]

Letter, Russian East Asiatic Co., June 8, 1908 (4 R. 2148):

> The New York & Continental Line steamer which left Saturday had only 350 steerage passengers. This gives you an idea as to how the pooled lines are bucking up against this line in order to make it nonprofitable * * *. The Hamburg Line people are certainly very much incensed over this and they will leave no stone unturned if they can drive them out of the business. [Italics ours.]

Letter, Russian East Asiatic Co., May 13, 1909 (4 R. 2116):

> The committee is watching the Northwest Transport Line and it has been agreed among them all that it would be a short life with them.

Peters's letter, April 25, 1908 (7 R. 3335):

> Steamer Volturno sailed on the 14th inst. with 473 passengers * * * the New York & Continental Line had at the beginning prepared themselves for S. S. Volturno for 1,400 > passengers, but soon came down in their expectations to 700 until at last even this calculation turned out to be wrong. * * * We therefore are of the opinion that the first fight against the New York & Continental Line has been excellently won. [Italics ours.]

Letter, Holland-America Line, June 21, 1907 (1 R. 495):

> The Hamburg Line especially was of the opinion that the steamers of the pool lines leaving on the same day as those of the Volunteer and Russian East Asiatic Lines, should offer a lower rate to the Continent, in order to reduce the revenue of both Russian Lines, to such an extent as to compel them to abandon this policy. As all the pool lines are equally interested, the loss resulting from such reduction should be participated in by all of them. [Italics ours.]

Letter, North German Lloyd, May 6, 1908 (7 R. 3368), referring to the contest with the Italian Lines just prior to the Mediterranean agreement (supra, p. 11):

> We hope not only to ruin the business for the Italian Lines but at the same time to increase the number of returning Italians to such an extent that little room will be left to the direct lines for continental steeragers. [Italics ours.]

Peters' Letter, April 30, 1908, referring to the boycotting of agents (7 R. 3347):

> Since there is a pool all the members of it are likewise interested that no part of the business that comes under the pool is diverted to outside lines * * *.

Circular Letter, April 8, 1908, Peters to pool members (7 R. 3318)—

> if under the pooling arrangement it is not possible to get a better control of the agents working for the Parties, so as to prevent them from working for outside competing Lines, then the contract will fail in the hoped-for result of obtaining higher rates, for the uncontrollable agents will always find it to their interest to attract and to encourage competition. [Italics ours.]

We thus have here a combination in respect of transportation which is much more flagrantly violative of the law than the voluntary rate agreements condemned in the Freight Association Case and the Joint Traffic Case. We have here a combination which not only suppresses competition between its own members in respect of rates, as in those cases, but also in respect of service, and which, in addition, attempts by wrongful and oppressive methods to destroy any competitor who refuses to become a member. As said in Thomsen v. Union Castle S. S. Co., 166 Fed. 251 (C. C. A. 2d)— > * * * if there be any exception to the rule that the purpose of the statute is to preserve competition, it will not be found in a combination of carriers which not only eliminates competition among themselves, but attempts, in the manner shown in this record, to prevent outside competition (p. 253).

V.

THE ALLEGED GOOD DONE BY THE COMBINATION IN STABILIZING THE BUSINESS IS NO DEFENSE.

The main ground of defense is the familiar one advanced in behalf of every combination of this nature, namely, that pooling agreements and rate agreements are really beneficial, "stabilizing" the industry and averting ruinous competition.

This, of course, is a plea of confession and avoidance. In the statement of defendants that "in ocean commerce there is no happy medium between war and peace," "peace" can only mean cessation of competition. In short, the argument is that combination would be a better law of trade than competition; that in order to avoid the possibility of ruinous competition all competition should be abolished.

That, however, is a matter of opinion, a purely legislative question, and Congress with power to decide has decided in favor of competition. In United States v. Union Pacific R. Co., 226 U. S. 61, 87, the purpose of the Anti-Trust Law was thus stated:

> To preserve from undue restraint the free action of competition in interstate commerce was the purpose which controlled Congress in enacting this statute, and the courts should construe the law with a view to effecting the object of its enactment.

In International Harvester Co. v. Missouri, 234 U. S. 199, 209, referring to Anti-Trust laws in general, this Court said:

> The purpose of such statutes is to secure competition and to preclude combinations which tend to defeat it.

And again in National Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas, 197 U. S. 115, 129:

> According to them, competition not combination, should be the law of trade.

Precisely the same argument was advanced as to railroads in the Freight Association Case, 166 U. S. 290, the defendants contending, as here, that in the absence of rate agreements ruinous competition would inevitably follow. This Court said in reply, adopting the language of Shiras, J., in the court below (p. 337):

> It may be entirely true that as we proceed in the development of the policy of public control over railway traffic, methods will be devised and put in operation by legislative enactment whereby railway companies and the public may be protected against the evils arising from unrestricted competition and from rate wars which unsettle the business of the community, but I fail to perceive the force of the argument that because railway companies through their own action cause evils to themselves and the public by sudden changes or reductions in tariff rates they must be permitted to deprive the community of the benefit of competition in securing reasonable rates for the transportation of the products of the country. * * * balancing the benefits as against the evils, the law of competition remains as a controlling element in the business world. * * * The time may come when the companies will be relieved from the operation of this law, but they can not, by combi> nation and agreements among themselves, bring about this change.

The same argument was reiterated by Mr. Carter in his brief in the Joint Traffic Association Case, 171 U. S. 505, at pp. 521–522, 526, was answered by the Solicitor General, at pp. 546–547, and was again rejected by this Court as follows (pp. 576–577):

> It is stated that the only resort open to railroads to save themselves from the effects of a ruinous competition is that of agreements among themselves to check and control it. * * * There can be no doubt that the general tendency of competition among competing railroads is towards lower rates for transportation, and the result of lower rates is generally a greater demand for the articles so transported, and this greater demand can only be gratified by a larger supply, the furnishing of which increases commerce. This is the first and direct result of competition among railroad carriers.
>
> * * * * *
>
> It is not only possible but probable that good sense and integrity of purpose would prevail among the managers, and while making no agreement and entering into no combination by which the whole railroad interest as herein represented should act as one combined and consolidated body, the managers of each road might yet make such reasonable charges for the business done by it as the facts might justify. An agreement of the nature of this one which directly and effectually stifles competition, must be regarded under the statute as one in > restraint of trade, notwithstanding there are possibilities that a restraint of trade may also follow competition that may be indulged in until the weaker roads are completely destroyed and the survivor thereafter raises rates and maintains them.

In the Northern Securities Case, 193 U. S. 197, this Court again refused to consider the argument that disastrous consequences would ensue from competition, Mr. Justice Harlan saying in his opinion announcing the affirmance of the judgment below (pp. 351, 352):

> Many suggestions were made in argument based upon the thought that the Anti-Trust Act would in the end prove to be mischievous in its consequences. Disaster to business and wide-spread financial ruin, it has been intimated, will follow the execution of its provisions. Such predictions were made in all the cases heretofore arising under that act. But they have not been verified. It is the history of monopolies in this country and in England that predictions of ruin are habitually made by them when it is attempted, by legislation, to restrain their operations and to protect the public against their exactions.
>
> * * * The suggestions of disaster to business have, we apprehend, their origin in the zeal of parties who are opposed to the policy underlying the act of Congress or are interested in the result of this particular case; at any rate, the suggestions imply that the court may and ought to refuse the enforcement of the provisions of the act if, in its judgment,

> Congress was not wise in prescribing as a rule by which the conduct of interstate and international commerce is to be governed, that every combination, whatever its form, in restraint of such commerce and the monopolizing or attempting to monopolize such commerce shall be illegal.

Very recently, in the case of United States v. United States Steel Co., 223 Fed. 55, the circuit judges for the Third Circuit unanimously held that pooling agreements and rate agreements can not be justified as a means of steadying the market, Judge Wooley saying (p. 172):

> I know of no law which makes the steadying of the market a justification for fixing and maintaining prices by the concerted action of otherwise competing companies, when the effect of steadying the market is to dominate the industry by establishing prices for its products. The perfection of stabilizing prices can be reached only when monopoly is perfect, and as nothing justifies monopoly, I am of opinion that the stabilizing benefit claimed by the defendants in fixing and maintaining prices are no justification or excuse for what they did.

The same general defense—that the combination produced results beneficial to the public—was also rejected by this Court as a matter of law in Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States, 226 U. S. 20, 40, 49, and Eastern States Retail Lumber Dealers' Ass'n v. United States, 234 U. S. 600, 613, and in Interna- tional Harvester Co. v. Missouri, 234 U. S. 199, where it was said (p. 209):

> It is too late in the day to assert against statutes which forbid combinations of competing companies that a particular combination was induced by good intentions and has had some good effect.

The contention that competition would itself lead to monopoly, because some single company would ultimately drive all others from the field is based upon one or the other of two false assumptions. It either assumes in some one company a monopoly of efficiency such as never has existed and probably never will exist (Cash Register Case, 222 Fed. 599, 619; Steel Case, 223 Fed. 55, 163), or it assumes that, irrespective of efficiency, the company possessing the greater resources would be permitted to ruin all the rest; i. e., that neither the Anti-Trust Law nor the "unfair competition" section of the Trade Commission Act (38 Stat., p. 719, sec. 5) provides a remedy against systematic and persistent selling below cost or carrying below cost, with the intention of destroying a competitor.

Defendants attempt to distinguish the railroad cases upon the ground that railroads have a certain amount of local, noncompetitive traffic to sustain them in times of competition, whereas steamship lines are competitive as to their entire business. We dispute this distinction. Obviously, steamship lines from Hamburg, Antwerp, Rotterdam, Liverpool and Libau each possesses a certain local tributary area as against the others. On the other hand, railroads also are competitive as to the great bulk of their business, and this was particularly true as to the transcontinental lines involved in the Trans-Missouri Freight Association Case, the Joint Traffic Case, and the Northern Securities Case. The through traffic, which is the competitive traffic, is of absolutely vital importance. Nor would the railroads be permitted to recoup losses on competitive traffic by raising rates on local traffic above a reasonable return for the particular service rendered. (Rates for Transportation of Anthracite Coal, 35 I. C. C. 282.)

Again, in the case of steamship lines, the fact that ships unsuccessful in a given trade may be sold or transferred to other ports or to another trade suggests a way of moderating competition where it has become excessive. Railroads, however, have no such mobility. They can not move about. Their lines—rights of way, station buildings, etc.—are fixed. They must get business where they are or not at all. It would seem, therefore, that railroads would be even more in danger of "ruinous" competition than would steamship lines.

Moreover, the ground advanced to differentiate steamship lines from railroads, namely, that the former have only competitive traffic, would, if true, merely serve to identify them with many industrials. It would exempt from the Anti-Trust Act not only rate-fixing combinations amongst steamship lines but also price-fixing combinations among merchants or manufacturers serving substantially the same territory—e. g., a combination of all the aluminum manufacturers at Niagara Falls, or of all the anthracite producers in Pennsylvania, or of all the textile manufacturers of New England. It would have exempted the agreements in the Addyston Pipe Case, 175 U. S. 211, in Montague v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, in the C. & O. Fuel Case, 115 Fed. 611 (C. C. A. 6th), and the pooling agreements and "Gary dinners" so recently condemned in the Steel Case.

Finally, whilst, as above shown, the defense that this combination has stabilized the business is legally irrelevant, it is by no means established in point of fact that ruinous or even excessive competition would break out if there were no such combination. Thus, Mr. Ismay, president of the International Mercantile Marine and certainly as well qualified as anyone to speak upon the subject, testified (12 R. 1044):

> Q. Would you say that but for the conferences and pools now in existence the rates would be much less? Would you be fighting each other?—A. I think we have more sense now than we had a few years ago. I do not think we should be fighting now. [Italics ours.]

Mr. Franklin, vice president of the same company, also testified (13 R. 1806) that,

> None of the prominent carrying lines have gone out of business since I have been connected with the passenger trade, and further stated that any talk of competition narrowing this great business down even to two lines would be "ridiculous." (13 R. 1832.)

VI.

THE FACT, IF IT BE A FACT, THAT THE RATES CHARGED HAVE BEEN REASONABLE IS NO DEFENSE.

The Anti-Trust Law is designed not to regulate monopoly but to prevent it—not to regulate prices fixed by combinations but to assure the fixing of prices under competitive conditions and to preclude combinations which would defeat that end.

In this view of the law the test of the legality of a combination is not its present effect on prices, but its effect on competition. If it unduly restricts competition, then it is immaterial that for the time being the combination may exercise its power benevolently.

Accordingly, it has been held over and over again that the fact that the rates or prices charged by a combination are reasonable is no defense under the Anti-Trust Act. United States v. D. L. & W. R. Co., 238 U. S. 516, 535; Union Pacific case, 226 U. S. 61, 88; Addyston Pipe Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 238; United States v. Joint Traffic Ass'n, 171 U. S. 505, 565, 568, 569; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Ass'n, 166 U. S. 290, 324; Pearsall v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 161 U. S. 646, 676, 677. In United States v. Joint Traffic Ass'n the whole matter was thus summarily disposed of (p. 565):

> It was considered in the other case [United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Ass'n] that the rates actually fixed upon were reasonable, while the rates fixed upon in this case are also admitted to be reasonable.

With respect to the case of Attorney General v. Adelaide S. S. Co., L. R. 1913 A. C. 781, cited by the defendants, it is enough to say that that case was decided under the peculiar terms of the Australian Industries Preservation Act making actual intent to cause "detriment to the public" an essential ingredient of the offense. The distinction between the Australian statute and the Sherman Act is so fundamental that the House of Lords itself in the Adelaide Steamship Case refused to consider the decisions of this Court, saying, with particular reference to the Standard Oil Case (801):

> Their Lordships do not think that the decisions themselves are of any real assistance in the present case. The Sherman Act construed strictly makes every contract or combination in restraint of trade and every monopoly or attempt to monopolize a statutory misdemeanor irrespective of any sinister intention on the part of the accused, and irrespective of any detriment to the public. The actual decision is that contracts in restraint of trade which are enforceable at common law are impliedly excepted from the express provisions of the Act. The enforceability of the contract becomes in this way the test of its legality. [Italics ours.]

Whilst the reasonableness of the rates established by the present combination is thus wholly immaterial, nevertheless we do not wish to leave the Court with any mistaken impression as to the facts. We, therefore, set forth in a footnote grounds for regarding the existing rates as excessive. [1]

[1] In the first place the general statements by some of defendants' witnesses that the existing rates are "reasonable" establish nothing. "Reasonableness of rates can not be proved by categorical answers." (Interstate Commerce Commission v. U. P. R. Co., 222 U. S. 541, 549.)

Statements of dividends paid are also inconclusive. Operating expenses may be swelled by capital expenditures for new ships and equipment. Earnings may be carried to surplus. Cabin passenger or cargo rates may be too low. Capitalization may be figured according to the English method of accounting which, as shown in the Kansas City Southern Case, 231 U. S. 423 (Government brief, p. 4), has resulted in a capitalization of English railroads at $265,000 per mile as against less than $60,000 per mile in the United States. Only by a complete analysis of the carrier's accounts would it be possible to tell with any degree of accuracy the profits on their steerage business. No such analysis exists. The carriers themselves have never made one. They do not even apportion their operating expenses and fixed charges between passenger traffic and cargo. (Ismay, 12 R. 1027; Thomas, 12 R. 668.)

Two witnesses, Hannah (13 R. 1440) and Richard (12 R. 932), testified that rates to-day are slightly lower than in 1870. Two others, Lister (13 R. 1507) and Winter (13 R. 1740), testified, however, that rates have remained about the same since 1880, increasing slightly. It is true that the service has improved. It is equally true that progress in the art, such as multiple expansion engines, resulting in economy of fuel (Hannah, 13 R. 1460), larger ships, resulting in less cost per passenger (Hannah, 13 R. 1469 fol. 4406; Lister, 13 R. 1552), and greater speed, resulting in more trips and in more complete utilization of capital (Hannah, 13 R. 1442-1443), have tended so greatly to diminish expenses that the mere fact that rates have remained about the same gives rise in and of itself to a presumption of unreasonableness.

Furthermore, several witnesses agreed that the "out of pocket cost" of carrying steerage passengers is approximately $12 (Thomas, 12 R. 651, 661-667; Cauty, 12 R. 1070). Competent witnesses testified that a rate of $20 or $21 would pay all expenses and, under favorable conditions (steerage, cabin and cargo space all well occupied) might even result in profit (Lederer, 12 R. 720, 721; Thomas, 12 R. 662-663; Straus, 12 R. 774; Winter, 13 R. 1749-1750; Hannah, 13 R. 1478-1479).

The average steerage rate is $35 on ordinary steamers and from $3 to $5 more on steamers of the highest type (Nyland, II R. 509). Taking the view most favorable to the defendants, a $35 rate upon a service costing $21, results in a profit of $14—66⅔ per cent.

Inasmuch as the "fighting rates" were usually about $21, defendants have attempted to show an inconsistency between the above figures and the Government's contention that the Russian Volunteer Fleet, the New York & Continental Line and the Northwest Transport Company were driven out of business. No such inconsistency exists. The fighting ships

VII.

THE REASONING OF THE DISTRICT COURT CONSIDERED.

The decision of the District Court seems to proceed upon the theory that the legality of the combination is to be determined not by ascertaining whether the restriction of competition brought about by it is undue or unreasonable, but by ascertaining whether the "course of conduct" pursued, considered apart from its effect upon competition, is undue or unreasonable. In other words, though the combination may totally suppress competition, as here, it is yet not unlawful if that seems to the judge a reasonable thing to do under the circumstances of the particular case. Thus the opinion states (10 R., 5129–5130):

> To determine whether any particular course of conduct is "undue" or "unreasonable" involves, of course, a consideration of all the surrounding circumstances, which may be multifarious. Moreover, opinions will sometimes differ as to what should be the answer to such a question. Upon a given statement of facts twelve unprejudiced jurymen will sometimes unanimously reach a conclusion that the conduct of an individual evidenced "due" and "reasonable" care and prudence, when upon prevented their opponents from getting full quotas of passengers. Being new lines, the initial expenses of the independents were naturally very great, particularly the Volunteer Fleet which was developing a new port and had additional difficulty securing freight cargo. Furthermore, the independent lines were forced to pay larger commissions to their agents. In most cases they were unable to secure the 10 per cent "commercial allowances" from the railroads. And finally, once the determined character of the opposition had been demonstrated, they could hardly be expected to continue indefinitely to carry on business even at cost. (Straus, 12 R. 765.)

---

> the same state of facts twelve other unprejudiced jurymen will unanimously reach a different conclusion. * * * So, too, when question arises in an equity court as to the "reasonableness" of certain transactions, different chancellors may differ in their answers. [Italics ours.]

And in another passage (10 R. 5133):

> * * * in view of the peculiarities of ocean transportation, the method adopted by the defendants—if purged of its obnoxious feature, the "fighting ship"—is a reasonable one * * *.

Thus, apparently, the Court construed the law as if it read "no unreasonable conduct in trade shall be permitted." But competition may be materially abridged—in fact may be completely suppressed—by combinations whose conduct in and of itself, apart from its effect upon competition, might be wholly reasonable, indeed laudable.

The distinction is absolutely vital. The Government does not contend that all combinations of competitors are prohibited. It does contend, however, that where a combination necessarily results in "greatly abridging the free operation of competition" (Union Pacific Case, 226 U. S., at p. 88), and a fortiori where it practically destroys competition, the law is violated irrespective of the reasonableness of the conduct of the parties otherwise considered.

Furthermore, if there were no more definite standard for determining violations of the law than the varying opinions of judges as to what constitutes reasonable conduct, then indeed would there be ground for complaining of the uncertainty of the law. For example, a pooling agreement among all the competitors in one branch of trade might be held illegal, while another pooling agreement of precisely similar character involving another branch of trade might be held legal.

Under such a construction of the law there would really be no standard whatever but "the variant economic views of individual judges"; and before a judge not in sympathy with the law all combinations would escape. As said by the late Mr. Justice Lurton (then a circuit judge) in Park & Sons v. Hartman, 153 Fed. 24, 46:

> It has been suggested that we should have regard to new commercial conditions and a tendency toward a relaxation of old common-law principles which tend to prevent development on modern lines. This is an argument better addressed to legislative bodies than to the courts. Neither is it wise for the courts to countenance the introduction of artificial distinctions dependent upon the variant economic views of individual judges. Distinctions which are specious or analogies which are but apparent will but afford opportunities to whittle away broad economic principles lying at the bottom of our public policy, principles which have long received the sanction of statesmen and the approving recognition of a long line of jurists. A like argument is expected whenever some new method of circumventing freedom of com> merce comes under the tests of the law. It was made and answered by Judge Taft in the Addyston Pipe Case (85 Fed. 271, 282–283) with a strength to which we can add nothing. [Italics ours.]

But, says the court below, this is the "rule of reason" adopted in the Standard Oil Case, 221 U. S. 1. On the contrary, as we think, instead of adopting any such construction of the law, the Chief Justice both in the Standard Oil Case and in the Tobacco Case, expressly disavowed it. In the Standard Oil Case, 221 U. S. 1, 65, 67, he said, with reference to the railroad rate agreement cases:

> That as considering the contracts or agreements, their necessary effect and the character of the parties by whom they were made, they were clearly restraints of trade within the purview of the statute, they could not be taken out of that category by indulging in general reasoning as to the expediency or nonexpediency of having made the contracts or the wisdom or want of wisdom of the statute which prohibited their being made (65).
>
> * * * * *
>
> The confusion which gives rise to the question results from failing to distinguish between the want of power to take a case which by its terms or the circumstances which surrounded it, considering among such circumstances the character of the parties, is plainly within the statute, out of the operation of the statute by resort to reason, in effect to establish that the contract ought not to be treated as within the statute, and the duty in every case where it > becomes necessary from the nature and character of the parties to decide whether it was within the statute to pass upon that question by the light of reason (67). [Italics ours.]

This was reiterated in the Tobacco Case, 221 U. S. 106, 179–180:

> In other words, it was held [in the Standard Oil Case], not that acts which the statute prohibited could be removed from the control of its prohibitions by a finding that they were reasonable, but that the duty to interpret which inevitably arose from the general character of the term restraint of trade required that the words restraint of trade should be given a meaning which would not destroy the individual right to contract and render difficult if not impossible any movement of trade in the channels of interstate commerce—the free movement of which it was the purpose of the statute to protect. [Italics ours.]

In these passages this Court anticipated precisely the error into which the Court below fell in the present case. That is to say, although agreements by carriers to pool traffic and fix rates are prohibited by the law, the District Court here attempted to remove such an agreement from the operation of the law by a finding that it was reasonable under the circumstances of the particular case.

The District Court also relies upon the report of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries on shipping combinations (63d Cong., 2d sess., Doc. No. 805), which in substance recommended that rate and pooling agreements among steamship lines be permitted, subject to rigid Government regulation, including the control of rates. (Report, pp. 419–421; bill, H. R. 17328, 63d Cong., 2d sess.) Obviously, however, this is not a finding that such agreements are not now prohibited. It is a recommendation that the law prohibiting them be changed under certain conditions. Indeed, section 3 of the bill introduced by the chairman of the committee, Mr. Alexander, to carry out the recommendations of the report, expressly provides for exempting such agreements from the Anti-Trust Laws, when approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. (H. R. 17328, 63d Cong., 2d sess.)

Whether Congress will see fit to adopt this recommendation is at least problematical. Similar recommendations have been repeatedly made regarding railroad combinations, notably by President Roosevelt (messages, May 4, 1906; Dec. 3, 1907; and Mar. 25, 1908), and by the Interstate Commerce Commission (see Freight Association Case, 166 U. S. at 365–369). These recommendations have never been adopted and railroads still operate on a competitive basis. Congress may hold the view of Mr. Morawetz, long chairman of the board of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad, who, writing in the Harvard Law Review, May, 1909, said (vol. 22, p. 495):

> The only effective means of regulating railway rates have been and still are competition by rail and by water, the necessities of trade > and commerce, and the enlightened self interest of the railway companies themselves. [Italics ours.]

If competition is desirable as to railroads, whose rates and practices are subject to regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission, for greater reason it is desirable as to steamship lines, which are subject to no regulation at all. In any event, unless exempted by statute, steamship lines, like all other enterprises, must continue subject to the Anti-Trust Law. As said in the Freight Association Case, 166 U. S. 290, 337:

> The time may come when the companies will be relieved from the operation of this law, but they can not, by combination and agreements among themselves, bring about this change.

VIII.

CONCERNING THE REMEDY.

The General Pool Agreement, known as Agreement AA, is the heart of the combination and the principal means by which the main object of the combination, namely, suppression of competition amongst its own members, is attained.

Therefore, that agreement should be adjudged in violation of the Anti-Trust Act and ordered to be canceled and the parties should be enjoined from further carrying out its provisions and from entering into or performing any similar agreement in respect of the transportation of steerage passengers, eastbound or westbound, between the ports of the United States and European ports. The defendants should also be enjoined from fixing by agreement the rates for such transportation.

They should also be enjoined from concertedly refusing to employ as agents persons also employed as agents by other lines; and from combining, conspiring, or otherwise acting together for the purpose of preventing any other lines receiving from railroads "commercial allowances," so-called, in respect of steerage passengers.

The provision of the decree relating to fighting ships merely prohibits the defendants from combining to operate "extra vessels" as fighting ships, and does not prohibit them from operating regular vessels as fighting ships. (10 R. 5138.) It should be made to do so. Obviously there is no distinction in principle between the operation in this manner of extra vessels and of regular vessels.

CONCLUSION.

We have here a combination of all the more powerful trans-Atlantic steamship lines which not only completely suppresses competition amongst the members of the combination both in respect of rates and of service for a very important class of traffic, but also attempts by wrongful and oppressive methods to destroy any line which refuses to become a member.

We submit, therefore, that the decree of the District Court should be reversed, with directions that relief be awarded as hereinabove indicated.

G. CARROLL TODD,
Assistant to the Attorney General.
THURLOW M. GORDON,
Special Assistant to the Attorney General.

OCTOBER, 1915.

O

No. 282.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Appellant,

v.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, et al.,

Respondents.

No. 283.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, et al.,

Appellants,

v.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Respondent.

Appeals From the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

Brief for the Defendants, The Cunard Steamship Company, Ltd., and Chester P. Sumner.

Chas. P. Young Co., Printers, 49 Beaver St., N. Y.

CONTENTS.

PAGE.

Introductory statement 1
The argument 3
Point I.—The Agreement AA does not violate the provisions of the Anti-Trust Act 3
A.—The physical and financial conditions controlling the carriage of steerage passengers on the North Atlantic, as those conditions affect the subject of combinations between carriers 4
B.—The attitude and policy of the United States Government toward combinations affecting the carriage of passengers. 11
C.—The reasons and conditions which led up to the making of Agreement AA 25
D.—The provisions of Agreement AA 28
E.—The actual effect of Agreement AA on the carriage of steerage passengers 32
Point II.—Congress did not intend by the Anti-Trust Act to prohibit and punish the making in other countries of such agreements as Agreement AA 52
A.—Words of general import in an Act have not been construed as applying to persons outside the territorial jurisdiction of Congress unless the Act as a whole demanded such construction 56
B.—Acts of Congress ought, if possible, to be so construed as not to violate the rights of other nations having concurrent jurisdiction with the United States 57
C.—Having regard to the general plan of the Anti-Trust Act and to the rules of construction above discussed, the language of that Act taken as a whole does not indicate that Congress intended to prohibit and punish the making abroad of such an agreement as Agreement AA 60
D.—When Congress, in the exercise of its jurisdiction over foreign commerce, desires to make its will effective outside of our territorial borders, certain unavoidable obstacles must be overcome. These obstacles can sometimes be overcome, but this can only be done by the exercise of powers which are possessed by Congress and are frequently used but which Congress did not use in the Anti-Trust Act 62
Point III.—Various matters referred to in the testimony were not covered by the provisions of Agreement AA, and do not affect the validity of that agreement 73
1.—Fighting Ships 73
2.—Commercial Allowances 73
3.—Control of Agents 75

PAGE.

Conclusion.—This proceeding ought to be dismissed on the ground that Congress did not intend the Anti-Trust Act to apply to agreements like Agreement AA made in good faith abroad. But if this Court is of opinion that Congress did intend the act to apply to such agreements, then the decree below should be affirmed..... 79

INDEX OF CASES CITED.

American Banana Co. v. United States Co., 213 U. S., 347....56, 57, 69
Antelope, The, 10 Wheat., 66..... 57
Appollon, The, 9 Wheat., 362..... 54
Bond v. Jay, 7 Cranch (U. S.), 350..... 53
Buttfield v. Stranahan, 192 U. S., 470..... 71
Canada Southern R. Co. v. Gebhard, 109 U. S., 527..... 55
Cinn. Pocket Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S., 179..... 70
Eastern States Retail Lumber Dealers Ass'n v. U. S., 234 U. S., 600..... 77
Farnum v. Blackstone Canal Corporation, 1 Sumner, 46..... 54
Hopkins v. U. S., 171 U. S., 578..... 78
Liverpool Steam [illegible] v. Phenix Ins. Co., 129 U. S., 397..... 54
Loewe v. Lawlor, [illegible] U. S., 274..... 77
Mattson, In re, [illegible]ed., 535..... 58
Murray v. The Charming Betsy, 2 Cranch, 64..... 58
Nielson v. Oregon, 212 U. S., 315..... 59
Noble State Bank v. Haskell, 219 U. S., 104..... 71
Oceanic Steam Navigation Co. v. Stranahan, 214 U. S., 320.. 71
Patterson v. Bark Eudora, 190 U. S., 169..... 65
Re Transportation of Immigrants from New York, 10 Interstate Commerce Reports, 13..... 12
Tobacco Case, The, 221 U. S., 106..... 71
U. S. v. Joint Traffic Ass'n, 171 U. S., 505..... 79
U. S. v. Nord Deutscher Lloyd, 223 U. S., 215..... 71
U. S. v. Pacific & Arctic Co., 228 U. S., 87..... 70
U. S. v. Palmer, 3 Wheat., 610..... 53
U. S. v. St. Louis Terminal, 224 U. S., 383..... 75
U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 226 U. S., 61..... 70
Western Union Tel. Co. v. Brown, 234 U. S., 542..... 56

STATUTES CITED.

Act of Aug. 30, 1890 (U. S. Compiled Stat., 1913, Sec. 8731).. 67
Anti-Trust Act (26 Stat., 209).....1, 11, 57, 60, 61
Immigration Act of 1903 (32 Stat., 825)..... 23
Immigration Act of 1907 (34 Stat., 898).....20, 67
Interstate Commerce Act, 1887 (24 Stat., 384).....11, 14, 24
McKinley Tariff Act (26 Stat., 140)..... 67
Wilson Tariff Act (28 Stat., 509)..... 67

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States,

OCTOBER TERM, 1915.

No. 289.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Appellant,

v.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT, et al.,
Respondents.

No. 332.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT, et al.,
Appellants,

v.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Respondent.

Appeals From the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

BRIEF FOR THE DEFENDANTS, THE CUNARD STEAMSHIP COMPANY, LTD., AND CHARLES P. SUMNER.

This is a suit in equity brought by the United States under the Federal Anti-Trust Act, 26 Stat., 209, C., 647. Most of the North Atlantic passenger lines and their agents in the United States are named as defendants. It is alleged in the petition that on February 5th, 1908, at London, England, the defendant-lines entered into an unlawful combination and executed a contract bearing date that day, generally known as "Agreement AA," a copy of which is annexed to the petition.

After this suit was started, the Standing Committee of the House of Representatives on Merchant Marine and Fisheries made a most thorough investigation of the whole subject of steamship agreements and affiliations in the American foreign trade (House Res., 525 and 587, 62nd Congress and House Res., 205, 63rd Congress). The testimony and record in this suit were furnished to the Committee by the Department of Justice and are referred to extensively in the Committee's Report, to which we shall later allude. An analysis of the provisions of agreement AA is set forth at pages 31-33 of the Report of the Congressional Committee and is copied verbatim in this brief for the convenience of the Court.

The defendants demurred to the petition. The question presented by the demurrers, briefly stated, was whether Congress had intended the Anti-Trust Act to apply to the international commerce referred to in the petition. The demurrers were overruled. (Opinion, 10 R., 5123-5126; 200 Fed., 806).

On final hearing, the Court considered the case upon the merits and found that with the exception of the running of "fighting ships" (a matter not provided for by the Agreement AA) the agreement was a reasonable one and that commerce was not unduly or unreasonably restrained, and accordingly issued an injunction against the continuance of "fighting ships" and dismissed the petition with respect to all other prayers for relief. (Opinion, 10 R., 5127-5133; 216 Fed., 971; Final Decree, 10 R., 5136-5138.)

The United States appeals from the final decree. Its assignments of error will be found in Vol. 10 of the Record, pp. 5144-5163.

Most of the defendant steamship lines and their agents filed cross appeals from the final decree and assigned as error that the District Court erred in not dismissing the petition as to all the relief prayed for, upon the ground that the Anti-Trust Act was not intended by Congress to apply and does not apply to the international commerce covered by the issues in this case. (Transcript of Record on Cross Appeal, 14 R., pp. 4-5.)

POINT I.

The Agreement AA does not violate the provisions of the Anti-Trust Act.

The question here presented is, whether, under the Anti-Trust Act, as recently interpreted by this Court, the agreement of the defendant companies and their acts in carrying out that agreement are an unreasonable restraint of international commerce so as to come within the condemnation of the act. The discussion of this subject is primarily a discussion of facts, and it will, therefore, serve no useful purpose to make a preliminary statement of facts which shall be independent of the discussion which those facts invite.

The question whether an agreement or an act is, or is not, an unreasonable restraint of a certain branch of commerce depends chiefly on facts relating to that particular subject. This Court has frequently pointed out that Congress cannot have intended by the Anti-Trust Act to condemn all combinations which might, in any sense, be regarded as a restraint of trade or commerce, for, if that had been the intention, a large proportion of all the necessary and proper agreements relating to interstate or foreign trade or commerce would be illegal. In applying the rule of reason to this proceeding, it is, therefore, necessary to consider:

A.—The physical and financial conditions controlling the carriage of steerage passengers on the North Atlantic, as those conditions affect the subject of combinations between carriers.

B.—The attitude and policy of the United States Government toward combinations affecting the carriage of passengers.

C.—The reasons and conditions which led up to the making of Agreement AA.

D.—The provisions of Agreement AA.

E.—The actual effect of Agreement AA on the carriage of steerage passengers.

A.

The physical and financial conditions controlling the carriage of steerage passengers on the North Atlantic, as those conditions affect the subject of combinations between carriers.

The complaint which the government makes in the petition in this proceeding is, in effect, that the public suffers by reason of the combination of the defendants. It is not claimed that the combination results in giving the public inferior service; indeed, the government admits "that the service has improved" (Govt.'s Brief, note, p. 117), but the government claims that it results in the charging of arbitrary and excessive rates and that it is the combination which makes these excessive rates possible.

There is no claim and no proof of any pooling of earnings, but it was claimed, and to an extent proved, that Agreement AA was intended to operate, and did operate, to give to the various defendant lines the share in the steerage traffic which they had previously had and to maintain their previous percentages of the traffic.

It will be shown hereafter that Agreement AA did not, and could not, make an arbitrary division of the business and was not intended to do so; that there has been constant competition among the defendant lines since 1908; that the percentages fixed by the agreement are subject to revision at short intervals and that the lines are constantly trying to increase their earnings with a view of getting better percentages on these readjustments. But Agreement AA had, and was intended to have, a tendency to protect each line in retaining the business it had previously shown itself able to get and keep.

This combination differs in essential features from most of the combinations which have been made by land carriers, but aside from this difference there is an essential difference between transportation conditions on the sea and transportation conditions on the land. And this essential difference makes the legal aspects of a combination of sea carriers entirely different from those of a combination of carriers on land, so far as regards the matter complained of in this proceeding; that is, a monopolizing for the purpose of charging arbitrary and excessive rates. This distinction between land combinations and sea combinations grows out of the physical distinction between the two methods of carriage.

For example: If four lines of railroad extend between two terminals, as say New York and Chicago, and if these four lines form a combination, that combination will, as a practical matter, monopolize the traffic, because a fifth line could not afford to go to the expense of acquiring franchises, buying rights of way and terminals, constructing tracks, tunnels and bridges and buying rolling stock on the chance that, after a fight with the combination, it could acquire a remunerative part of the business. It would be physically possible to build a fifth road, but financially it would be practically impossible. In other words, the difficulties standing in the way of the construction of a new railroad between terminal points already connected are so great that where the existing roads combine it means the sort of a monopoly which cannot be broken, and, therefore, the sort of a monopoly which can raise its rates to an arbitrary figure.

On the sea conditions are entirely different. Steamers of a fair grade can be used for almost any traffic on any sea. A steamer changing from one trade to another, or from one route to another, goes to no expense except possibly for minor readjustments between decks. The owners are not required to obtain franchises or permits, and do not even need to acquire piers. Thus, a steamer which fourteen years ago may have been carrying troops and supplies to South Africa, may a few years later have been carrying immigrants on the North Atlantic, and then later carrying hides from the Argentine and may now be carrying horses to Europe, and so it may go on seeking a profit wherever that profit may be found anywhere in the carrying trade of the world. At the present time the demands of our export trade, due to the European war, have attracted tonnage from all over the world and will continue to do so as long as freight rates remain high and the business remunerative. As Mr. Lister, of the Cunard Line, in comparing competitive conditions on land and sea, testified: "In the steamship trade on the ocean you only want one boat with a tight bottom to cross the Atlantic with, and the Atlantic is yours" (13 R., 1498). This is particularly true of the carriage of steerage passengers, for many steamers are available for that purpose which would not be available for first cabin passengers. Thus, it happens that the carrying trade on the sea is on an intensely competitive basis.

If, then, lines attempting to maintain regular sailings and schedules in a given trade—that is, attempting to maintain a service corresponding to that of a railroad on land, as distinguished from the roving work of the so-called "tramp steamers"—form a combination, they cannot raise rates to an arbitrary and excessive amount. They could not do it if they wished to. As soon as any combination of lines raises rates to anything more than a reasonably remunerative figure, the condition caused is analogous to that caused by a vacuum in the physical world; the tonnage of the whole world is attracted, and other lines and vessels come in. Lines which have established regular sailings and schedules over a particular route cannot afford to create fictitiously high rates, for that is just what will bring in new competitors. A combination of sea carriers may be used to maintain reasonable rates, to prevent disorganization of the business and to maintain regularity of sailings and schedules, but it cannot be used to maintain fictitious prices.

Another difference between carriage conditions on land and those on the sea is that rate wars not only develop more easily on the sea, but are much more disastrous to both the carrier and the public than is the case with rate wars on land.

A railroad has a natural monopoly of the carriage from most of its stations, and generally has to meet competition only between terminal points. In the settled portions of any community there will be found along the line of any of the railroads a series of towns and cities practically dependent on the railroad for transportation and a railroad can often exist on this traffic which it monopolizes, even if it has to cut rates and lose money on business between terminals. In the United States the Interstate Commerce Act has somewhat affected this power of the railroads to live on way stations, but as a matter of natural condition it is obvious that a railroad could often live on this short haul traffic, in spite of rate wars between terminals.

On the sea the business is all substantially between terminals, and if a line cannot get that business it has no intermediate business on which to live.

On the sea, then, conditions are not only intensely competitive, but the effects of competition are much more disastrous, and so it will be found that wherever rate wars on the sea are discussed from an impartial attitude, they are referred to as calamitous not only to the carriers, but to the public. The carrier which is defeated and driven out of the trade suffers. The victorious carrier suffers hardly less, because the victory has involved such a cutting of rates as to involve a loss.

And then ultimately comes the time for the public to suffer, and this the public does in various ways. Intense competition calls for severe economy. This tends to get the service down to the cheapest possible basis; cheapest as to quality of steamers, cheapest in respect to diminished sailings, and cheapest in respect to all that goes to the upkeep of the service, and the payment of the officers and crew. And, then, when the rate war is over, human nature being what it is, the victorious line will try to charge a rate which will not only be remunerative, but which will help to recoup the losses of the war. And this will go on until the artificial rate draws in new competitors and then the process will be repeated. In this condition of recurrent rate wars and of constant uncertainties, there is little inducement to maintain regular schedules of sailings, to improve the service or to maintain the existing service at anything better than the lowest grade the public will stand.

In respect to freight carriage, these rate wars disorganize conditions for the shippers as well as for the carriers, and there is constant uncertainty as to whether rates and sailings will be maintained so as to be available for future deliveries, and even uncertainty whether service to some less important ports will be maintained at all.

A vessel on the high seas cannot take courts and police with her, and so the ship's company must furnish its own government. It is equally true in the relations between vessels on the high seas that thus far no attempt has been made by international agreement to regulate ocean carriage, and so they have had presented to them the alternatives of self-government or anarchy. They have chosen self-government, and it will be shown that Agreement AA was entered into for the purpose of legitimate self-government and not for the purpose of oppression. If any oppressive acts have been performed by the lines which were parties to Agreement AA, they were not a necessary incident to the combination. In fact, the important question here is not whether Agreement AA or any other of the long sequence of agreements was legal by the laws of the United States, but the underlying question is, whether under our laws ocean carriers have the right to combine in order to avoid rate wars.

In passing on Agreement AA it is also desirable to bear in mind that considerations which apply to a combination with respect to carrying freight do not necessarily apply to combinations respecting the carriage of passengers. The public interest is generally best served by keeping rates at the lowest possible figure when freight is to be carried. But the lowest rate is not necessarily most to the public interest in the carriage of passengers, particularly on the sea, where there are involved the elements of safety and the comfort and protection of the passengers.

It will hereafter be shown that on the two occasions when the United States Government conducted official investigations of combinations among ocean carriers analogous to the combination in this case, it was in both cases decided that the public interest required the maintenance of the combination. One of these decisions rested on the distinction between a freight combination and a passenger combination, and one rested on the distinction between combinations on the sea and combinations on the land.

B.

Attitude and policy of Congress and of the United States Government toward combinations affecting carriage of passengers.

The issue of reasonableness now before this Court is closely connected with the public policy of the United States with respect to combinations of this character. It is therefore material and necessary to examine the action taken by the United States Government on this subject—particularly the action taken by Congress.

Interstate Commerce Act.

I.—The passage of the Interstate Commerce Act in 1887 marked the culmination of an agitation to prevent improper combinations and improper practices on the part of transportation companies. That act related to the carriage of both passengers and property and it dealt with the subject of pools, but the only provision of the act prohibiting pools is that contained in the fifth section and this relates only to the pooling of freights. This indicates that as a matter of national policy in the control of transportation companies there are not the same objections with respect to a combination affecting the carriage of passengers as exists where the pool has to do with the carrying of freight.

Anti-Trust Act.

II.—In the year 1890 the Fifty-first Congress took up generally the subject of anti-trust legislation, and the debates preliminary to the adoption of the Anti-Trust Act of that year covered the whole range of grievances at which the act was aimed, including freight pools. The legislative history of the act will be searched in vain for any reference to grievances growing out of passenger combinations. This is merely negative testimony, and, if it stood alone it could not be given great weight, but where it accords with other expressions of the intentions of Congress and of other branches of the government of the United States it is significant.

INVESTIGATION BY INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

III.—In the year 1904, the Interstate Commerce Commission formally investigated and reported upon the immigrant pool between the railroads in respect to the inland carriage of immigrants by rail westbound from New York. Re Transportation of Immigrants from New York (10 Interstate Commerce Reports, 13).

The investigations of the commission, which are set forth in their report, showed that the railroads carrying immigrants westbound from New York had, for many years, been operating under a pooling agreement which, while not the same in form, was analogous in its essential principles to Agreement AA. The report of the commission indicates what the abuses were which led to the formation of that pool and shows that it was formed in part to protect the railroads against practices of agents and others which tended to break up the traffic and also in part to protect the immigrants. To avoid stating the conclusions of the Commission from any controversial standpoint, it is, perhaps, safest to quote the syllabus appearing in the official report of the case as showing just what was decided. It is as follows:

> "Upon investigation by the Commission of practices applied in the westbound transportation of immigrants from New York and other Atlantic ports, it appeared, among other things, that this immigrant traffic is divided between the carriers in agreed proportions based upon the proportion of the domestic passenger traffic done by each line; that, apparently, such a practice cannot be made effective in respect to any other class of passenger business; that the immigrants are carried from the seaboard at domestic published rates; and that the arrangements adopted by the carriers in connection with the immigration authorities of the United States for handling immigrant business have efficiently promoted the protection and greatly improved the treatment and comfort of immigrants. Held, That whether section 5 of the Act to regulate commerce, prohibiting carriers from entering into any contract, agreement or combination 'for the pooling of freights by different and competing railroads or to divide between them the aggregate or net proceeds of the earnings of such railroads or any portion thereof,' applies to such a division of passengers as has been shown to exist in this case is, at least, doubtful; that no discrimination as against individuals, classes or localities results from the handling by the carriers of this immigrant business at domestic published rates, and that there is no justification at this time for the issuance of any order in the premises."

Counsel for the Government in the present case noted their objection on the record when certain of the witnesses referred to this decision of the commission, on the ground that that decision was merely to the effect that the Interstate Commerce Act did not extend to that immigrant pool. That is not the point. The point is that the same immigrants who have crossed the Atlantic by lines which were parties to the Agreement AA have for years, on arrival at Ellis Island, been forwarded to their destination by railroads operating under an agreement analogous in its essential principles and in its essential purposes to Agreement AA; that this has been done with the knowledge, consent and co-operation of the United States immigration authorities; that this railway pool has been investigated officially by a commission of the Federal Government which was expressly charged by law with the duty of making such investigations (see §14 Interstate Commerce Act), and which was composed of men of high standing, and of great experience in respect to matters of this character, and that this commission then reported officially that it was in the interest of the immigrant, and of the public that this steerage pool should continue.

Investigation and Report by House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

IV.—After the suit at bar was commenced, Congress made a most thorough investigation of the whole subject of steamship agreements and affiliations in the American foreign trade, under House Resolutions 525 and 587 of the House of Representatives of the Sixty-second Congress and 205 of the Sixty-third Congress.

By those resolutions, the standing committee of Congress on Merchant Marine and Fisheries was empowered and directed to make a complete and thorough investigation of the methods and practices of the various ship lines, both domestic and foreign, engaged in carrying our oversea or foreign commerce to learn "Whether any such ship lines have formed any agreements, understandings, working arrangements, conferences, pools or other combinations, among one another or with railroads * * * for the purpose of fixing rates and tariffs * * * or for the purpose of pooling or dividing their earnings, losses or traffic, or for the purpose of preventing or destroying competition."

The testimony taken by that committee, and its report, comprising four printed volumes have now been published by the government. Without here attempting to describe one of the most thorough investigations which Congress has made for many years, it is sufficient to say that the committee conducted a nation wide, and in many respects a world wide, investigation; that it obtained documents and agreements from practically all the steamship companies; that it had before it, and frequently referred to, the Record in the case at bar; that it examined shippers and officers of land and ocean transportation companies from all parts of the country interested in traffic of every sort and representing all possible conflicts of interest which could arise in reference to the foreign and international commerce of the United States.

This Committee of twenty-one members were unanimous in their report, and the report states (Vol. 4, page 418) that those who had testified or communicated with the Committee were nearly unanimous in approval of the recommendations of the Committee.

As indicating the attention given by the Committee to the agreements relating to the passenger traffic between America and Europe, it is important to note that that is the first subject taken up in the committee's report, and the first fifty-one pages of the report are devoted to a statement and review of the facts. It appears from this report and from the testimony that the committee went over exactly the same ground as that covered by the testimony and exhibits here, and indeed had before it the testimony and exhibits in this suit, furnished by the Department of Justice. The committee states its conclusions that "the steamship business differs essentially from that of the railroads" (p. 420). As one of the reasons for this difference the committee reports (p. 310):

> "Railroads enjoy property rights acquired often at the expense of the state, operate by virtue of special privileges, and should, therefore, be held to the performance of the functions for which they were created. Steamship lines, on the other hand, are not tied like the railroads to a definite route of travel, i. e., vessels are not fixtures in any trade and are not limited in their operation to any fixed line. They have received no public aid or franchise, are essentially enterprises of a private nature, and are not bound to maintain a definitely prescribed service. The vessels may come and go by whatever route or in whatever direction they please and the only incentive to engage in any particular trade is to develop that trade to a point where the profit will justify the operation of a regular and continuous service."

The committee reports (p. 415) that the facts which it has learned show that it is the almost universal practice of steamship lines engaging in the American foreign trade (and indeed in trade the world over), to operate under the terms of written agreements and conference arrangements which have, for their particular purpose, the regulation of competition through either (1) the fixing or regulation of rates; (2) apportionment of traffic; (3) pooling of earnings, or (4) meeting of competition.

As to the reason of these agreements the committee reports (p. 416):

> "The entire history of steamship agreements shows that in ocean commerce there is no happy medium between war and peace when several lines engage in the same trade. Most of the numerous agreements and conference arrangements discussed in the foregoing report were the outcome of rate wars, and represent a truce between the contending lines. To terminate existing agreements would necessarily bring about one of two results: the lines would either engage in rate wars which would mean the elimination of the weak and the survival of the strong, or, to avoid a costly struggle, they would consolidate through common ownership. Neither result can be prevented by legislation, and either would mean a monopoly fully as effective, and it is believed more so, than can exist by virtue of an agreement." (Italics ours.)

This proceeding is brought to have Agreement AA cancelled on the ground that it constitutes an unreasonable restraint of trade; that is, that it tends to monopoly. But here is a report of an investigation by Congress of this very subject and, inter alia, of this very agreement, which results in finding that the prohibition of this and similar agreements would mean a monopoly more effective than any which could exist under the agreement.

On the same subject the committee reports (p. 416): "It is the view of the committee that open competition cannot be assured for any length of time by ordering existing agreements terminated." And the committee goes on to recommend that the steamship companies be allowed to enter into agreements such as Agreement AA, but that a commission be created (either an independent commission or an enlarged Interstate Commerce Commission), and that all the carriers be required to file with that Commission for approval all written agreements with other companies, and that the commission be empowered to order cancelled such agreements or any parts of them which it may find discriminating or unfair or detrimental to the interests of the United States, and that the commission may be empowered to investigate complaints as to unreasonableness of rates.

The Congressional Committee had before it the blue books containing the report of the Royal Commission on shipping rings, which was presented to the British Parliament in 1909 (see page 4, Report). It received special reports from our consular and diplomatic officers everywhere. The Congressional Committee, therefore, studied the methods by which ocean commerce is carried on the world over and found that combinations between ocean carriers were practically universal. If Agreement AA were peculiar to this particular traffic, or to this particular time, a different situation might be presented. But it is not. It corresponds to the world wide method adopted for ocean carriage. It is idle to contend that such a world wide practice could have grown up out of anything less than the actual necessities of carriage on the sea or that it could have grown up merely in the interests of the carriers.

On this subject, the Congressional Committee reports (p. 415) "Either the agreements and understandings, now so universally used, may be prohibited with a view to attempting the restoration of unrestricted competition, or the same may be recognized along lines which would eliminate existing disadvantages and abuses." The Committee recommends the latter course.

V.—Policy of the United States as to Immigration.

It is impossible to deal with the questions involved in this proceeding in the same way as though the proceeding related to the transportation of merchandise. We are here considering the carriage of human beings. Where merchandise is being carried, safety is mainly a question of insurance rates and the quality of the service mainly affects prices and profits. Here safety means safety to life, and everything which affects the quality of the service involves the health and comfort of many human beings.

In the carriage of freight, the thing sought is to accomplish all possible cheapening of the rate, and anything which may stand in the way of that cheapening is apt to be regarded as contrary to the public policy. In the carriage of passengers, the cheapness of the fare is not the most important consideration, and a combination which would be against public policy, if freight were involved, may be in accordance with public policy if it tends to promote safety and health and the self-respect and good condition of those who travel. And it is worthy of consideration that, generally speaking, the lower the rate the more undesirable as a class do the immigrants become.

In this connection, it is important to note that Agreement AA applies to what is probably the greatest immigrant route known in historic times. The report of the Congressional Committee above referred to (p. 21) comments on the fact that of 2,165,600 passengers who were carried in the year 1912 on the North Atlantic trunk route, 1,539,200 were third class. The last two reports of the Commissioner General of Immigration show that from 84% to 86% of all the immigrants to the United States came in at North Atlantic ports.

It is not practicable here to trace, except in the briefest manner, the development of the immigration policy of the United States: At first the States felt compelled to supervise and restrict immigration; then, in 1882, the Federal Government entered upon the work and by a series of statutes, particularly those of 1891, 1903 and 1907, our national system has been developed and our national policy declared.

19

The present immigration law makes not less than twenty-five different classes of immigrants inadmissible. This list of the inadmissible classes has grown as our immigration policy has developed, and the tendency of this development has been toward preventing and discouraging the immigration of those aliens who have been, or are likely to be, unsuccessful in earning their living. Thus, the last immigration act added to the list of those previously excluded all aliens who were imbeciles or feeble minded; all those who, though not suffering from a disease, in itself necessitating exclusion, are certified by the examining surgeon as being mentally or physically defective where such defect may affect the ability to earn a living. The law prohibits carriers from encouraging immigration and debars assisted immigrants (Immigration Act of 1907, Sections 2 and 7).

As previously noted, the conclusion of the Congressional Committee was that either one of two alternatives must be accepted in this sea transportation; that is, there must be combination between the lines or there must be rate war. The committee reported that "the entire history of steamship agreements shows that in ocean commerce there is no happy medium between war and peace when several lines engage in the same trade" (Report, p. 416). The Government is here seeking to prohibit combination in respect to the carrying of this great body of immigrants. What, then, will be the effect of rate war on our national immigration policy?

Mr. Lister, who is at the head of the passenger business of the Cunard line and who came to New York to be a witness in this case, testified that in the rate war of 1904 the third class rate from Europe to America dropped to $7 (13 R., 1529). Being asked whether he could state from his experience what effect a rate war has on the character of immigrants from Europe, Mr. Lister testified (13 R., 1514-1515):

> "Yes. You get during the rate war the dirty people that the steamship companies—I don't say how much or all—but it is what we are liable to get—the very people who in times of regular stable business we are keeping out. A rate war brings up again all these undesirable agents. That is the first thing it does. Then they encourage every one whatever who has got a few shillings to go to America. The natural result is that the steamship companies might be inclined to accept as many passengers as they can to make both ends meet, and the likelihood of the United States being afflicted with a very, very large number, an enormous number, of undesirable passengers."

Again, he testified on the same subject (13 R., 1530):

> "The man that comes over at $7 in a rate war time is a creation of agents whom the steamship companies at other times hear nothing of and the bulk of people that take advantage of the $7 rate are drawn from very, very narrow limits. The bulk of them are East End London passengers."

He went on to testify (13 R., 1557-1558) that at the time of the rate war of 1904 he was the head of the third class department of the Cunard line, and that he used to board every ship; that during the war the third class passengers differed to a very marked degree from the average Cunard passengers:

> "At the rate war of 1904, what happened was this: directly the rates were reduced, certain agents who were in touch, close touch, with the lowest class of passengers drawn from the East End, if I might say, the slums of London, and from such places as the lowest quarters of Leeds and lowest quarter of Manchester, and the big towns, they used to secure in advance large numbers of berths in each ship, and they used to send in as many as a hundred at a time of advice slips of the bookings of these passengers. When the passengers came along we found out that they were practically the very poorest class of men, still, having been booked we were bound to accept them.
>
> "Q. Did you personally see the passengers who embarked at that time? A. Personally. I have a very vivid recollection of what was happening at that time, I think. A class entirely different."

There was no contradiction of Mr. Lister's testimony in this regard, and it must be obvious that a rate war would tend to induce just such an immigration as he describes.

There are few subjects of Federal jurisdiction which now receive more attention than this subject of immigration, and it cannot be necessary to argue the proposition that our national policy in this regard does not favor transportation conditions which would invite such immigrants as come during the rate wars.

Another feature of our immigration policy bearing on this matter is that which relates to the part played by steamship officers and agents in sifting, inspecting and supervising immigrants.

The Immigration Act of 1903 practically threw on the steamship companies the obligation to determine whether or not immigrants are suffering from excludable disease, and punished the steamship company with a fine of $100 in every case where it accepted as a passenger an alien afflicted with one of these diseases where a competent medical examination at the time of foreign embarkation might have detected the existence of the disease (Sec. 9). Persons brought in violation of law are required to be cared for and returned whence they came at the expense of the steamship company (Sections 19, 20 and 21). The officers of the ship are required to make a physical and oral examination of the aliens aboard on their arrival here and to certify the result of the examination on oath to the Government. The immigration act bristles with civil and criminal penalties which may be inflicted on officers and agents of the steamships who shall fail to assist the Government in carrying out the immigration laws. For example, a captain or agent may be fined $1,000 or imprisoned for a year under Section 18, if he is negligent about landing an alien at any place except that designated by the immigration officers. The whole policy of the immigration act is to require ship's officers and agents to be skillful and responsible in respect to the administration of the immigration law and to make them the first, and, perhaps, the principal, agents of the Government in carrying out a strict immigration policy. This requires a trained, experienced and disciplined force and a stable business. The owner of a steamer, trading here this year and next year at the antipodes, could not effectively carry out our immigration laws. The efforts of the steamship companies in this regard will be discussed later, but it must be clear that the necessary discipline and precautions cannot be maintained under rate war conditions.

As a matter of first impression, the words "combination" and "pool" are often associated with the idea of monopoly; and this impression may well have grown up from the fact that for the last twenty-eight years freight pools have been illegal under Section 5 of the Interstate Commerce Act. But, disregarding now the bad company in which these words have sometimes been found, and studying the facts relating to this combination, it is a matter of great importance—it is submitted of controlling importance—that when a passenger combination like this was officially investigated ten years ago by the Interstate Commerce Commission, it was found to be in the interest of the public that it should continue, and that when this very combination under Agreement AA was investigated by Congress, it was found in the public interest that combinations like this should not be prohibited but should be allowed to continue subject to certain supervisory powers by a commission.

The conclusions reached by the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1904 and by the Committee of Congress in 1914 do not represent the work of advocates for the steamship companies. In both cases, the investigation was made by appropriate representatives of the Federal Government and was made in the public interest. It cannot well be urged that our national policy is opposed to this combination when two official bodies of the Federal Government, both of which were qualified and empowered to pass on the subject, have concluded to the contrary.

There is no suggestion in this case of any attempt on the part of the defendant lines to circumvent any policy of the United States, so this proceeding is not complicated by any considerations of that character.

It is not claimed by these defendants that ocean carriers who are subject to the Anti-Trust Act may legally combine for the purpose of destroying a competitor, but it is claimed that under the laws of the United States they may legally combine for the purpose of avoiding rate wars and to avoid the evil consequences to themselves, to their passengers and to the public which would result from unrestricted, unregulated and destructive competition, to which, as already pointed out, trade on the ocean is peculiarly subject and from which its only protection in the absence of international agreement must be found in reasonable self-government. It is claimed for these defendants that Agreement AA is such a measure to prevent rate wars; that it was not intended to destroy competitors; that it has not worked the destruction of competitors, and that it has not caused arbitrary and excessive rates, but that, on the other hand, it has furnished to the public regular sailings and facilities for ocean travel better and safer than any which have ever previously existed and that this service is rendered not only at a reasonable rate but at a rate which is not more than barely remunerative to the carrier.

C.

The reasons and conditions which led up to the making of Agreement AA.

It appears from the testimony that a series of agreements and understandings have been entered into from time to time between the North Atlantic passenger lines. In 1892, the written agreement known as the "NDLV" was made by the Continental Lines, and since that date a series of agreements have been made from time to time, intervals of rate war intervening between the periods when these agreements were in existence. It thus appears that agreement AA was not a peculiar or isolated agreement.

The testimony in this case and the evidence before the Congressional Committee, as well as the report of that committee, show that combinations between competing steamship lines are almost universal, not only in ocean commerce between the United States and other nations but also in the ocean commerce between other countries the world over; that they have grown out of the intense competition on the seas and that these combinations have been found necessary to avoid the destruction of weaker lines and to avoid the injury and demoralization of service and business which have been caused by rate wars. The conclusions of the Congressional Committee to this effect have already been quoted and attention has also been called to the effect of rate wars in stirring up the worst class of agents here and abroad and in attracting the least desirable class of passengers. Mr. Hannah, of Montreal, who had been in the steamship business forty-five years, first with the Inman Line in New York, and then with the Allan Line in Montreal, testified that he believed it absolutely necessary that there should be understandings among steamship lines by way of regulating competition (13 Rec., 1436). On being asked why from his experience he considered this necessary he went on to testify as to the lines that had perished in the trans-Atlantic trade: "So there are five lines that perished in the trans-Atlantic trade; five out of eight British lines that did not survive" (13 Rec., 1436) and that this was due to no cause except unrestricted competition. Mr. Cauty, of Liverpool, who since 1886 has been successively connected with the Inman, American and White Star Lines, testified on this subject in Liverpool as follows (12 Rec., 1091):

> "From 1880 to 1888 various agreements were in existence, but from 1889 to 1895 was a very strenuous time in the North Atlantic trade. All agreements went by the board, and this period was one of keen competition between all the Atlantic lines. Each line did what they thought best, and rates were down to an absolutely unremunerative level."

He went on to testify that at the time of these rate wars the rates went down to £2 and he thought down to 30 shillings. He added:

> "I think the result of this competition is very instructive, because if we look at the list of companies who were engaged in the Atlantic trade in 1880 and those who were left in after this rate war, we find there were a good many names missing. The Inman Line went into liquidation. The Beaver Line got into very serious difficulties, and was subsequently bought up. The Guion Line and the National Line went out of the business. The Warren Line, started carrying passengers, but also went out of business, and the State Line was subsequently amalgamated with the Allan. All these troubles arose, I may say, during those six years or thereabouts, and I think the lesson we have to learn from them is that if these conditions had been continued, they had only to be continued long enough for the Atlantic travel and the whole Atlantic trade to be left in the hands of one or two of the strongest companies." (12 R., 1091-1092.)

Similar statements can be found in the testimony of almost all of the witnesses who were examined on this general subject. For example, Mr. Oscar L. Richard, who was called by the Government, testified (12 R., 813) that he did not think steamship lines could exist without some arrangement between themselves.

Mr. Lister of the Cunard Line testified (13 R., 1517-1518) that under present conditions it is absolutely impossible to maintain a passenger line from Europe to the United States which shall comply with the requirements of statute in England and the United States and with the demands of the public, unless the passenger rates are practically stable, and that it is impossible to maintain stable rates without agreements between the lines.

Mr. Franklin, vice-president of the International Mercantile Marine Company, testified to the same effect (13 R., 1810-1811). He also testified (13 R., 1807-1808) as to the conditions affecting American ships in this North Atlantic traffic, and said that an American ship would be at a much greater disadvantage without such agreements than a foreign ship would be.

D.

Provisions of Agreement AA.

The report of the Congressional Committee contains (at pages 31 to 33) a condensed analysis of the provisions of agreement AA. This analysis is given verbatim below, as it is thought that this will particularly aid the court, and that such a statement will not be colored by any desire to make the terms of the agreement seem more favorable to the position of the lines than they are in fact.

"1. Agreement AA.—This agreement was entered into for a term extending from February 5, 1908, to February 28, 1911 (then to continue from year to year unless discontinued) by the Allan Line, the Anchor Line, the Cunard Steamship Co., the Hamburg-American Line, the North German Lloyd, the Holland-American Line, the Red Star Line, the International Mercantile Marine Co.'s Lines (except the Red Star Line), and the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. (Atlantic Steamship Lines). It will be observed that the above list includes all of the N. D. L. V. Lines.

According to the terms of the contract the following is provided:

(1) The companies guarantee to each other certain designated percentage allotments of the total steerage traffic forwarded by the parties from all European ports to and via the United States and Canada and vice versa, in vessels owned, leased, chartered, or controlled by them without regard to the flag. Italian and Oriental passengers, however, forwarded by direct steamers through the Straits of Gibraltar, are excepted. (This class of passenger traffic is governed by other agreements.) The percentage allotment of each line's business is specified both in the westbound and the eastbound traffic as follows:

For the westbound traffic:

Allan Line (United States services)	0.62	Red Star Line	9.71
Cunard Line	13.75	White Star Line	8.60
Hamburg-American	19.61	American Line	6.68
Holland-American	6.63	Dominion Line	6.47
Anchor Line	3.40
North German Lloyd	26.53		100.00

For the eastbound traffic:

Allan Line (Canadian services including Portland in winter)	4.95	Red Star Line	8.56
Anchor Line	3.93	White Star Line	15.49
Cunard Line (Liverpool services)	12.77	American Line	8.72
Cunard Fiume-Trieste Line	2.35	Southampton 6.74
Hamburg-American	12.35	Liverpool 1.98
Holland-American	6.10	Dominion Line	1.50
North German Lloyd	18.79	Canadian Pacific Ry. Co. (Atlantic Steamship Lines)	4.49
			100.00

(2) Lines whose steerage transportaion in a year exceeds in point of numbers the proportions fixed must pay a compensation price of £4 for each passenger carried in excess of the established proportion to the lines which have not reached their participation quota; and such payment is to be made in proportion to the number of steeragers which each line is short. This compensation feature is declared in the agreement to be 'one of the main features of the entire contract.' Compensation prices can be advanced or lowered only by a majority of the lines, representing at least 75 per cent. of the shares fixed in the allotted percentages.

(3) Each line undertakes to arrange its service in such a manner that the number of steeragers which it actually carriers corresponds as nearly as possible to the number allotted to it by the contract.

(4) No line has the right to alter its steerage and second-class cabin rates without having previously informed the Secretary of the Conference. Unless there is a second-class rate agreement, the lowest second-class cabin rate of any line westbound must be at least £2, and eastbound at least $10 higher than the highest normal third-class rates of the respective steamers.

(5) The lines agree to pay certain prescribed commissions to the agents.

(6) All advertising and printed matter sent to the agents must be submitted to the Secretary of the Conference. The conduct of the agents is also carefully regulated.

(7) Compensation accounts are prepared monthly by the Secretary, and final settlement is made at the end of each calendar year on the basis of the compensation account prepared by the Secretary, and objections to the correctness of the accounts form no release from obligations.

(8) Differences arising between the lines are settled by arbitration, and the opinion of the arbitrators has the force of a legal judgment.

(9) The resolutions of the Continental Conference and the North Atlantic Conference in New York are not binding upon the lines if the same are directly opposed to or in contradiction to the provisions of the contract.

(10) The Hamburg-American Line and the North German Lloyd will use their efforts to arrange that the passengers of the non-German lines may pass the Silesian, Saxon and German frontiers.

(11) Agents of the lines which are parties to the agreement shall not interest themselves in the booking of passengers for new outside competing lines.

(12) For each infraction of the terms of this agreement a penalty of £250 is imposed, and in case of willful infraction £2,500."

E.

The actual effect of Agreement AA on the carriage of steerage passengers.

1.—Agreement AA Has Not Prevented Competition.

The Government in its brief (page 84-90) contends that the Agreement AA results in the suppression of competition with respect to the service rendered by the defendants. The evidence in the case quite conclusively refutes this contention and shows that competition in service among the parties to the agreement has been as keen, if not keener, since the agreement was made than it was before. It has worked out in actual practice that a line getting more business than its percental allotment demands, and upon the next readjustment and renewal of the agreement, receives a greater percentage based upon the business which it has shown itself able to obtain, and that there is thus a continuous incentive to each line to offer better service and thus obtain more passengers. As a matter of fact, the percentage of the Cunard Line was increased for this very reason, as will appear from the extracts from the testimony hereafter quoted. Indeed, it is a matter of almost common knowledge that at no time in the history of the carrying trade on the ocean has there been greater competition than there has been during the period covered by Agreement AA and this competition has been evidenced not only in the quality and number of new ships, but also in the fittings, food, appointments, service and everything which goes to attract passengers.

Mr. Strauss, a witness called by the Government, testified (12 R., 776):

"We are competing just as much to-day as we ever did in our lives for every passenger we can get."

Mr. Cauty, of the White Star Line, testified (12 R., 1088-1089):

"In the working of a pool a line has to carry approximately its full percentage, and if any line was to draw behind in the race with regard to making its ships attractive, drawing the passengers, it would undoubtedly suffer. In the first place it would suffer in its revenue, falling behind in its percentage. It would ultimately have to reduce its rates. The pool in no case is made for a great period of years—this five years' agreement we have now is the longest period it has been made for, and any line that systematically shows its inability to carry its percentage would have a very difficult case to meet when the renewal of this pool came up for consideration, and I think this is evidenced by the condition on the North Atlantic to-day, that all the lines fully realize this. You have only to look at the ships we have on the Atlantic and the accommodation we provide, the improved vitualling we give the passengers, to realize how much the conditions of the passenger have been ameliorated during the recent years in crossing the Atlantic. That I think must be clearly laid down to the wish of each line to keep well up to its competitor."

Mr. Lister, of the Cunard Line, testified (13 R., 1499) that the provisions of Agreement AA "have not prevented competition in the least. The lines are just as eager now to get passengers as they were before," that the percentages provided in Agreement AA have been subject to change as affected by the experience of the lines as they proceeded under it; that the Cunard Company has demanded and received more than when the agreement started, because the line showed it was able to get it.

He said (13 R., 1500-1502): "We have demanded more than when we started, because we showed that we were able to get it. We simply went out to get the business just as we did before Agreement 'AA' was formed," and as a result the Cunard percentage was increased; that this change was made in the Cunard percentage because the line had shown that the percentage it made at the outset was not sufficient. "We proved that we were able to command a larger, and carry a larger, number of passengers, and obtained a larger number of passengers than the percentage provided." This was done not by argument, but by activity in the trade, by getting the business. The Cunard Company got more passengers by reason of its activity, "We never slackened off the least bit; the work went on just as it had gone before * * * as though there had been no 'AA' Agreement at all." There has been active rivalry in the construction of new steamers since 1908 and there is this rivalry now. "Everybody is adding to its fleet just the same way it did before." The Cunard Company "have actually ordered built, already built or ordered, five large new steamers for the Atlantic trade" and everyone of the steamship companies, except the American Line, has added new boats to its fleet since 1908, or is adding them.

Mr. Philip A. S. Franklin testified on the same subject when asked what the effect of Agreement AA is as regards competition (13 R., 1802-1803): "Competition is just as keen as it was before" * * *. "Each line is just as anxious to secure as many passengers as they possibly can," and that competition is just as much with the lines in the Conference as with anybody else.

2.—Effect of Agreement AA on Lines Not Originally Parties to the Agreement.

The allegations of the petition in respect to the effect of Agreement AA on outside lines were not proved.

With respect to the Russian Volunteer Fleet, the Government offered very little which could be called evidence, and such as it was it did not show that that company had been driven out of business by any action taken by the lines which were parties to AA. Such information as there was on the subject indicated that the company had abandoned the business from causes entirely foreign to Agreement AA or any action by the defendant lines. A letter from Admiral Radloff, president of the Russian Volunteer Fleet, was marked in evidence. After referring to a report that that line had "been driven out of business" by the action of the pool, he said: "We beg to say that the above statement, as far as it concerns the Volunteer Fleet, is not correct, as the Committee of the Russian Volunteer Fleet had decided to suspend their Libau-New York line for reasons of their own that had nothing in common with the attitude taken by the Pool" (Deft.'s Ex. 3, read into testimony at p. 820, 12 R.).

So far as concerns the Russian American Line, there was no proof that it had been forced to become a member of the combination. It did so voluntarily.

As regards the Uranium Line: A great deal of testimony was offered by the Government on the subject of "fighting ships," which were run in opposition to certain of the ships of that line. Without here discussing the subject of "fighting ships," (these defendants do not contend in this proceeding for any right to run or participate in the running of "fighting ships") a study of the returns from the business of the Uranium Company will show that, considering its small and in many respects inferior fleet and its financial vicissitudes, its carryings compare well with those of the lines which had to go to the expense of maintaining expensive fleets and permanent service. Moreover that line appears to be run by the Canadian Northern Railway Co. of Canada as a feeder to its colonization projects in Canada (12 R., 1091-1092).

3.—Agreement AA Has Not Resulted in the Charging of Arbitrary or Excessive Rates.

In the petition the Government alleged that the rates charged by defendants were excessive (1 R., 32). The evidence to the contrary was so overwhelming and conclusive that the Government now, in its brief, practically abandons that contention or, at best, gives it but half-hearted support (Government's Brief, pp. 115-117). However, the extremely low rates charged, rates lower, as we shall show, than are charged by the Government itself in carrying the same class of passengers, are so clearly the effect of the stability resulting from Agreement AA that we shall briefly refer to the evidence on that branch of the case.

Mr. Richard, who was called by the Government and who testified that he had been in the steamship business for forty years, was asked whether, in his opinion, the steerage rates are or are not reasonable, and he testified that they are very reasonable (12 R., 813). He said that when he first went into the business forty years ago the steerage rate was $30 to Hamburg, and $40 from Hamburg, in gold; "it made a higher rate in currency."

Mr. Hannah (formerly of the Inman and later of the Allan Line) testified (13 R., 1439-1446) that in 1868 the rates were as high as $40; that in 1869 the Cunard rate was $40 for British business and the Inman Line rate was $37; the Continental rate $45 and the Scandinavian rate was $50, although, as Mr. Hannah testified, "The cost of a steamer to-day is four times as great as the cost of the ships that were running then," and operating expenses of every kind have increased greatly.

After having been amply qualified as an unprejudiced expert, Mr. Hannah was asked whether or not the current steerage rates are reasonable rates, and he answered: "I think they are very reasonable considering what is done for the passengers. The distance the passenger is carried is 3,000 miles; the highest charge is $31.25. This is a small fraction over a cent a mile, and the companies feed the passengers during that time and provide him with medicine if he is sick, provide him with a doctor and charge him one cent a mile. I don't know of any traveling in the world that is as cheap as that by land or sea," and that this cost is "relatively very much lower than it once was in view of the accommodations provided."

As showing the increasing expense to the carrier, Mr. Hannah went on to testify (13 R., 1446-1449) that by reason of the recent laws of the United States and of Canada, "The ships cannot carry anything like the same number of passengers as they could twenty years ago. We could not carry any more, for instance, say 950 in one of our ships that are 11,000 tons, when, as I have already said, in steamers of 3,500 or 4,000 tons we have carried 1,400 passengers, so that that is the difference between ships twenty-five or thirty years ago and the ships of to-day." He said that any reasonable person examining the accommodations provided for passengers could not form any other conclusion than that the steerage rates are entirely reasonable; that the wages of crews have risen 20% in the last twenty-five years and the cost of provisions 40%; that the cost of coal is nearly double what it was twenty-five years ago, and shore expenses, e. g., office, pier rentals and stevedoring had also greatly increased.

As showing the viewpoint and qualifications of Mr. Hannah, it is worth noting that when he testified he was about to retire from the steamship business after having devoted his whole active life to that business.

The testimony of Mr. Drake, Vice-President of the Panama R. R. Company, was very significant as showing the cheapness of the North Atlantic steerage rates which have prevailed since Agreement AA was made (13 R., 1662, 1665-1666). He testified that his company was owned by the United States Government; that it operates a line of steamers from New York to Colon in connection with its railroad; that the steerage rate from New York to the Isthmus was $30, and that the distance was 1,985 miles, and that this rate was at times remunerative and at other times not. Considering the distance traversed by the North Atlantic passenger ships, the steerage rate on the North Atlantic ought to be more than $50 if the Panama rate is taken as a fair standard, to say nothing of the difference between the cost of the Panama ships and the cost of the modern passenger ships on the North Atlantic.

In other words, the Government, which is the petitioner herein, has on its own line established a steerage rate which it finds not always remunerative, yet if this Government rate were applied to the steerage business of the defendants, the prevailing rate would be increased from about $32 to over $50. And yet the Government is here contending that the effect of Agreement AA has been to subject the public to arbitrary and excessive rates.

Mr. Lister testified (13 R., 1506-1510) that comparing steerage rates before and after the making of Agreement "AA" there has been not more than a very little variation; that some ships crossing the Atlantic, as the "Lusitania" and "Mauretania," were able to command a higher rate, but, on the whole, there had been very little variation; that about 1897 the Cunard Company was paying 11 or 12 shillings a ton for coal, where it is costing now at least 18 shillings; and in 1912 cost 21 shillings; and that at the same time the steamers of to-day consumed a great deal more coal than older and slower boats did; that nearly every item in the cost of provisions has gone up; that a ship which could have been built possibly two years ago for £200,000 would probably cost to-day £250,000.

Mr. Franklin testified (13 R., 1803, 1828) that steerage rates had been practically the same since 1902 (except during periods of rate wars), while the cost of operation had increased tremendously; that the rates will vary on the ships, even of a particular line, so that the line may have a minimum third class rate, but it will charge a little more for a faster and better steamer.

Being asked as to existing rates, Mr. Franklin testified, "I consider them extremely reasonable, and I think the recent increased cost justifies a further increase in the rate" (13 R., 1829).

Mr. Lister testified (13 R., 1512-1514) that there had been a great deal of expense thrown upon the Cunard Company and other companies under the United States Immigration Act, and in that connection he described the precautions which the company adopted to control its agents and to avoid taking on board immigrants who would not be admissible. He testified (13 R., 1518-1520) that the third class rates were reasonable, and, going on to explain the increase in expenses, he testified that all the steamers now in use were larger consumers of coal than a few years ago, that the Cunard Company has steamers now with a speed equal to twice the average speed of its steamers twenty years ago, and that stevedoring charges and pier rates are increasing everywhere.

Mr. Franklin testified (13 R., 1803-1804) that in the carriage of passengers, "The cost of operation has increased in the last three years tremendously" * * *. "In the first place, the cost of construction is greatly increased. The wages have all been increased, both ashore and afloat. The cost of all food stuffs, supplies, coal, oils, everything that a steamer consumes in the conduct of transportation have all increased."

This subject of reasonableness of rates received much attention during the hearings, but there was no evidence offered to contradict the statements made by the witnesses who have been quoted above. To present the subject to the court in another aspect, the Cunard Company was at considerable pains to show the facts in its own financial history which demonstrate that the steerage rates which have been charged since 1908 have not been arbitrary or excessive.

For that purpose Mr. Lister, the officer of the company most familiar with all the bearings of its passenger business, came to the United States from England for the express purpose of testifying in this proceeding (13 R., 1493). He brought and referred to the necessary statements bearing on this subject. He testified (13 R., 1515) that between 80% and 90% of all the tonnage of the Cunard Company comes to ports of the United States and it was testified by many of the witnesses that the Cunard ships, especially the larger ones, carried very little cargo. It follows from these facts that the profits of the Cunard Company would be especially affected by the return from this passenger business on the North Atlantic, and a comparison of the relative earnings of the company will be especially illuminating on the question of whether or not since the making of Agreement AA an excessive rate has been charged for this largest part of the company's business.

The facts on this subject are (13 R., 1515, 1552-1557):

For the last thirty years the average dividends paid by the Cunard Company were 2 81/100%; that for the past ten years they were 3 30/100%, and that since February, 1908, they were 2 75/100%. For the purpose of showing that these profits were not computed on any fictitious capitalization, it was proved that there was no water in the company's stock, and it was also proved that there was no fictitious writing off of earnings into capital account, and that the amount written off for depreciation only sufficed to cover what had actually been found by experience to be sufficient to cover loss from depreciation.

It was probably not necessary to prove that the Cunard Company having been engaged in carrying passengers on the North Atlantic route for seventy years might be presumed to be able to conduct its business without unnecessary waste. It being then recognized that the income from this steerage business on the North Atlantic is its largest source of income, that its dividends are computed on an actual capital (its capital stock is estimated to be worth, if its assets were distributed, 150 on a par of 100) and without any unnecessary writing off, it is most significant that, since the making of Agreement AA, the average dividends have been lower than the average for either the past ten yars or for the past thirty years, that is, 2 75/100% on par value and 1 83/100% on market value.

This subject of rates cannot be fully considered without taking into account what steerage passengers now get for their money, as compared with what they got say twenty-five years ago. The improvement in the service commenced a number of years before 1908, but the era of improved steerage service has been the era of combinations between ocean carriers; that is, it has been in the period elapsed since say 1892; and, while all this improvement cannot be credited to Agreement AA, most of it can be credited to that willingness to co-operate which has made the business of carrying passengers a stable one, and not a wild competitive venture.

4.—Improvement of Passenger Service, Particularly of Third Class Service.

As showing the changes in third class service which have taken place in the last twenty years, Mr. Kellerman, manager of the third class department of the Cunard Line, testified (13 R., 1569-1572) first as to the conditions twenty years ago. He said, "Steerage passengers were accommodated in big, open compartments, fitted with bunks, three or four tiers high, five or six berths wide, so that in many places people occupying the inner berth had to crawl over the outer berth to get into their bunks. And the bedding and eating utensils had to be provided by the passenger himself, at his own expense." That the number of bunks ran all the way up to two or three hundred in a big compartment; that the passenger himself had to take charge of the bedding of his bunk—"He brought it on board and took it from board if he wanted it or threw it overboard if he didn't want it. He had to care for it on the voyage and in fact it was all left in his charge. He had all to do with it."

In respect to the system pursued at that time in giving the third class passengers their food, Mr. Kellermann testified (13 R., 1573-1575): "In those days the food was brought into each compartment by a steward, who called the passengers around him with their utensils and he measured out whatever stuff they wanted from a big receptacle, a can, tin can or iron can, and dealt it out to each passenger, and had a basket or—yes, a big basket of bread and gave them a couple slices of bread and let them go about their business." That the passengers received this food in their own utensils and that then they had to go and sit down wherever they could to eat it. "Some sat down on their bunks, some on their trunks, different places; stairways, wherever they could find a place to sit down and eat," and that each passenger had to keep his own utensils clean; and he went on and described toilet and sanitary arrangements in those days—"In fact they had no privacy."

Describing, then, the present arrangements in the better class of passenger ships running to the port of New York, Mr. Kellerman testified (13 R., 1573) that at present "the third class accommodations are arranged into rooms containing two, four and six berths. The mattress, pillows, blankets, whatever necessary are furnished by the company, free of charge to the passenger, and in each room there is besides a washstand, a can of water to wash in, water carafe, glasses." That in these rooms there is "a towel and a settee; they can sit down on it when they are undressing or dressing, and each room can be locked; there is a key for each room and it can be locked to secure privacy. Besides this, there is on the modern steamers a shower bath." That these rooms are now taken care of by a large number of stewards and stewardesses provided by the company, that the rooms are kept clean and attended to by the stewards' department on just the same system as is pursued in the first and second cabin, except that the furnishings are different.

Describing, then, the present system as to serving food, Mr. Kellerman testified (13 R., 1574): "The better ships nowadays have big dining rooms fitted with long or small tables and with revolving chairs. The tables are set by the stewards" * * * "the company's stewards; and the passengers sit down at the tables and are served there by the company's stewards." That, so far as the arrangement of tables and chairs is concerned, it is practically the same as that prevailing in the first and second cabin, and that the utensils are provided by the company and taken care of by the stewards, and that the third class passengers are not required to take care of them any more than the first or second cabin passengers.

As to provisions for the comfort and amusement of the third class passengers, he testified (13 R., 1574-1575), "They have, for instance, in the dining room, a piano which they use for concert and entertainment during the afternoon and evening when they are not using the dining room for eating purposes. They have smoking rooms for the men and social rooms for the womenfolk, large open and closed promenade decks, with settees and benches along where the passengers can either sit down or promenade as they desire. Besides that for the passengers' comfort are shower baths, hot and cold shower baths, lavatories built according to the latest sanitary improvements, with running water." * * * "There is a wash room, where women with children on board can go and wash the children's clothes whenever they want to." That in the afternoon and evening our third class passengers get together in the dining room and have concerts and entertainments of various sorts.

Mr. Kellerman produced sample bills of fare in the third cabin of one of the smaller Cunard steamers (13 R., 1576). These bills of fare, fourteen in number, were offered in evidence as model exhibits, though not printed in the record. They were used on the S. S. "Laconia" for the week beginning Sunday, January 21, 1912. Each bill was printed in English and in Swedish (hence the fourteen copies) and they will be produced for examination if the court desires. Without here attempting to give particulars, these bills of fare indicate that the nature of the food, its abundance and its variety, was at least equal to what would be found on the table of a well-to-do family in the United States. As to the quality of the food, Mr. Kellermann testified that it was all taken from the general stores from which all the food on the ship was taken (13 R., 1578).

On this subject of improved service Mr. Lister testified (13 R., 1502) that the effect of the making of Agreement AA was, "That with the AA agreement behind them, the steamship companies felt that they could embark out and build new ships. It is perfectly obvious that if there was no stability in the business we could not embark out and put a lot of capital in new ships." It was the stability of the business that justified the risk involved in these large investments.

Mr. Lister went on to testify (13 R., 1503-1504) that since the making of Agreement AA, the other lines that were parties to the agreement had gone on adding new ships to their fleet, and he then described substantially as Mr. Kellermann had done, the improvements in third class accommodations. As to the food, he said, "There is only one store on the ship in which all the eatables are stored, and the food comes from the same stores. I don't want you to think that we gave them grouse and oysters and things of that kind, but what they do get is cooked from the same stuff that is cooked up for the saloon passengers * * * and the same quality of food."

He said (13 R., 1505), "The third class passenger now is not the third class passenger that he was twenty years ago. Now he is just as keen as the saloon passenger in getting the very best that can be provided for him, and so far as that is concerned, certain passengers will pay for the best, and willingly. I think I am right in saying that our two fastest boats, the 'Lusitania' and 'Mauretania,' are our most popular third class ships, despite the fact that we charge a little more for them in return for the extra speed we give them than the other ships of our fleet."

Mr. Lister testified (13 R., 1506) that there never was a time when a third class passenger received more for his money than he does now, and that he is getting more all the while.

Mr. Franklin testified as to the same improvements in third class service; that is, as to the difference in the food and the service of food, difference in the rooms and in the improved type of steamers (13 R., 1804-1805).

5.—Increased Safety.

The subject of improvement in steamship construction and appliances which afford increased safety is too familiar a one to require much discussion. Mr. Lister testified (13 R., 1510-1511) briefly as to the increased size, cost, and the improved construction of ships; also to the substitution of twin screws for single screws; the use of submarine signals; the installation of wireless apparatus, and the substitution of electric lights for the old oil lamps. All these constitute improved machinery, which is expensive and efficient. But travel at sea cannot be made safe merely by mechanical devices, for there is too much play for the elements of personal skill and personal discipline.

Under present conditions, it is probable that the greatest peril of the sea grows out of the tendency of ship's officers to grow careless with respect to a danger after it has become familiar. And conversely, the best protection at sea is a careful watchfulness by skillful men with respect to familiar dangers, or, in other words, the maintenance of discipline and skill.

The expensive improvements which appear in the new passenger ships are not due to the making of Agreement AA alone, but, as previously noted, these improvements and the increased expense they involved were made possible by the willingness of the steamship companies to combine for self-government, as that willingness is shown by Agreement AA and earlier agreements.

These combinations have also had a direct effect in making possible the discipline without which travel by sea cannot be made safe. Capt. Barr, the Commodore of the Cunard fleet, who has been for twenty-seven years in its service, testified on this subject (13 R., 1648-1652). He said that after thirteen years' general experience at sea, he joined the Cunard Company as a fourth officer, and rose by promotion through six intermediate positions until he became a captain. He described the system of education and training which, to his knowledge, were required by the Cunard Company. He testified that the Cunard Company never appoints an officer who is not of its own training. "They all come in at the bottom grade and work up"; that twice annually every officer is officially reported upon by the captain with whom he sails, and that these reports have a strong bearing on the officer's promotion; that promotions are not made on time basis, but on a merit basis. He described what the responsibilities of a captain of a modern passenger steamer are in addition to his duties in navigating the ship; that is, that he is responsible to the Government and the Company for all things happening on the ship; for the supervision of the cleanliness, morals and safety of the passengers; for everything that concerns the health of passengers and crew; for the maintenance of order; that he is a representative of organized government on the ship; that he has plenary powers and that he himself has had to exercise those powers; that he is the sole judge in reference to all matters of complaint or grievance arising on the voyage; that he is responsible for the training of his own subordinate officers and for reporting on their qualifications.

Capt. Barr went on to testify (13 R., 1653-1659) that from his forty years' experience at sea, he did not think that desirable officers could be obtained for passenger steamships unless they were kept under observation for a considerable period of years before being entrusted with ultimate authority. He testified as to the peculiarly trying conditions to which the captain of a passenger steamer was subject on the North Atlantic; and that the requirements of that passenger service called for special training of officers for the service; that if a ship which had been engaged in traffic of a different sort were transferred with its former officers into the North Atlantic passenger business, he did not think that the requirements of that business could be met, and that he did not think it possible to meet the requirements of this class of business without a relatively long training of officers. He further testified that in the Cunard Company the subordinate officers in the navigating department of the ship and the officers in the engine force, and of the steward's department, did not get those positions until they had been with the company for a considerable period of time.

This testimony from a man trained for responsibility and occupying one of the most responsible positions on the sea shows the somewhat obvious fact that there cannot be safety at sea without the discipline and training and opportunities for selection which come from a long continued service. It follows from this that conditions which make for stability and continuity in business have a direct bearing on safety, and that there is not the same element of safety when officers and vessels from another traffic come temporarily into the North Atlantic passenger service.

6.—Compliance With the United States Immigration Laws.

The attention of the court has already been called to the class of immigrants who are invited to come to this country during rate wars and to the provisions of the United States immigration laws which throw upon steamship companies the responsibility for making the preliminary examination of immigrants.

As showing what the Cunard Company had done to carry out these laws, Mr. Lister testified (13 R., 1512-1514) that the Cunard Company has been at great expense to comply with the immigration statute. "We have had to see that all our agents live up to a higher standard; we have got to see that the whole of our business is conducted in the same fashion"; that the Cunard Company had got rid as fast as possible of all undesirable agents, and that along with the other companies it has for two or three years adopted a system to insure obtaining good agents, all of which was expensive; "we keep travelers who are continually going around to educate the agents up to what is required of them, to explain any point that they must be particular about, before accepting money from a passenger or attempting to book a passenger. We are continually watching the agents both by circulars and by personally visiting them to see that we have the best people and to see that they are doing just what they really ought to do. * * * We absolutely have turned down all Continental agents in Liverpool. For instance, we won't let any foreign agent in Liverpool book any passenger such as an Armenian or Turk, or any of those that we know there is any suspicion about"; that since 1898, the company has taken into its employ a medical superintendent, who is a member of the company's staff, and gives his whole time to the company's work at a heavy cost to the company; that this medical superintendent not only examines the passengers before embarkation, but if an immigrant has been debarred by the United States authorities, this superintendent "sees exactly what the United States officials have rejected that man for and it is a guide and aid to him in future; if he came across a passenger who had been rejected for a certain thing, he would stop such passengers in future from going to America at all. We are very proud at the present time of our medical arrangements." * * * "They have been built up from many years' experience."

Mr. Lister testified (13 R., 1517) that from his experience there would be very grave difficulties in conducting the business of a passenger line in conformity with the United States immigration law unless passenger rates are practically stable. Obviously, a line which comes into this great immigrant route as the result of a temporary condition caused by rate wars, and comes knowing that it may possibly soon be driven out—obviously, such a line cannot maintain a proper system of co-operation in the enforcement of the immigration laws.

If this Court is of the opinion that Agreement AA is not an unreasonable restraint of commerce, then nothing more needs to be considered. If, however, the Court should consider that Agreement AA is an unreasonable restraint of commerce, then it will remain for the Court to consider whether or not Congress intended the Anti-Trust Act to apply to such agreements.

POINT II.

Congress did not intend by the Anti-Trust Act to prohibit and punish the making in other countries of such agreements as Agreement AA.

It is not intended to question the power of Congress over foreign commerce, but the proposition sought to be established here is that Congress did not intend to exercise that power in the Anti-Trust Act so as to prohibit the making abroad of Agreements like AA.

1.—Statutes by which Congress exercises its jurisdiction over foreign commerce may involve the interests and rights of other nations. This Court has, therefore, announced certain principles to be followed in construing such statutes affecting commerce which is really international in character. If the Anti-Trust Act is construed according to those principles, it does not apply here.

2.—When Congress exercises its jurisdiction over international commerce, it has to overcome certain obstacles if it is to make its will effective outside of our territorial borders. These obstacles can sometimes be overcome, but this can only be done by the exercise of powers which are possessed by Congress and are frequently used, but which Congress did not use in the Anti-Trust Act.

A.

Words of general import in an Act have not been construed as applying to persons outside the territorial jurisdiction of Congress unless the Act as a whole demanded such construction.

Agreement AA was made in London between corporations, all but one of which were organized and doing business under the laws of foreign countries. As shown by the record in this case and by the report of the Congressional Committee referred to under Point I the agreement was made in accordance with a world wide practice, which had existed for many years, and was in aid of commerce. Under the law of England it was a legal and proper contract (13 R., 1835-1856).

The question whether or not the agreement and the financial adjustments made under it were legal, must be determined according to the law of the country where the agreement was made. This rule has been applied by this Court for a century or more.

Chief Justice Marshall said in the case of Bond v. Jay, 7 Cranch U. S., 350:

> "It is so unusual for a legislature to employ itself in framing rules which are to operate only on contracts made without their jurisdiction between persons residing without their jurisdiction, that Courts can never be justified in putting such a construction on their words if they admit of any other interpretation which is rational and not too much strained."

And again in 1818 in U. S. v. Palmer, 3 Wheat, 610, Chief Justice Marshall in considering an "act for the punishment of certain crimes against the United States," the language of which was "that if any person or persons shall commit upon the high seas," &c., said:

> "The words of the section are in terms of unlimited extent. The words 'any person or persons' are broad enough to comprehend every human being. But general words must not only be limited to cases within the jurisdiction of the state but also to those objects to which the legislature intended to apply them."

In The Appollon, 9 Wheat, U. S., 362, 370, it is said:

> "The laws of no nation can justly extend beyond its own territories, except so far as regards its own citizens. They can have no force to control the sovereignty or rights of any other nation within its own jurisdiction. And however general and comprehensive the phrases used in our municipal laws may be, they must always be restricted in construction to places and persons upon whom the legislature have authority and jurisdiction."

Mr. Justice Story said in Farnum v. Blackstone Canal Corporation, 1 Sumner 46, 62:

> "Now the general rule certainly is that every legislative act ought to receive a reasonable construction; and it cannot be presumed, that a legislature authorizes any act to be done in a foreign territory, when that act is beyond the reach of its proper jurisdiction or sovereignty. Every legislature, however broad may be its enactments is supposed to confine them to cases or persons within the reach of its sovereignty."

This Court has uniformly applied this rule in matters relating to commerce, as in Liverpool Steam Co. v. Phenix Ins. Co., 129 U. S., 397.

In the case of Canada Southern R. Co. v. Gebhard, 109 U. S., 527, this Court held that a settlement by a Canadian railroad company with its bondholders consented to by a majority of them was binding on the minority holders under Canadian law and therefore American holders of such bonds were also bound. The Court said (p. 536):

> "That the laws of a country have no extra-territorial force is an axiom of international jurisprudence, but things done in one country under the authority of law may be of binding effect in another country. * * *
>
> "A corporation 'must dwell in the place of its creation, and cannot migrate to another sovereignty' (Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet., 588), though it may do business in all places where its charter allows and the local laws do not forbid. Railroad v. Koontz, 104 U. S., 12. But wherever it goes for business it carries its charter, as that is the law of its existence (Relf v. Rundel, 103 U. S., 226), and the charter is the same abroad that it is at home. Whatever disabilities are placed upon the corporation at home it retains abroad, and whatever legislative control it is subjected to at home must be recognized and submitted to by those who deal with it elsewhere. A corporation of one country may be excluded from business in another country (Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall., 168), but if admitted, it must, in the absence of legislation equivalent to making it a corporation of the latter country, be taken, both by the government and those who deal with it, as a creature of the law of its own country, and subject to all the legislative control and direction that may be properly exercised over it at the place of its creation." (Italics ours.)

The same principle was stated by this Court recently in a case which involved the question whether a State statute had an extra territorial effect and where this Court held:

> "The injustice of imposing a greater liability than that created by the law governing the conduct of the parties at the time of the act or omission complained of is obvious; and when a State attempts in this manner to affect conduct outside its jurisdiction or the consequences of such conduct, and to infringe upon the power of the United States, it must fail." Western Union Tel. Co. v. Brown, 234 U. S., 542, 547.

The rule on this subject is concisely stated in American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co. (213 U. S., 347, 356), where the question under consideration was whether the Anti-Trust Act applied to acts performed in Costa Rica:

> "The general and almost universal rule is that the character of an act as lawful or unlawful must be determined wholly by the law of the country where the act is done. Slater v. Mexican National R. R. Co., 194 U. S., 120, 126. This principle was carried to an extreme in Milliken v. Pratt, 125 Massachusetts, 374. For another jurisdiction, if it should happen to lay hold of the actor to treat him according to its own notions rather than those of the place where he did the acts, not only would be unjust, but would be an interference with the authority of another sovereign, contrary to the comity of nations, which the other state concerned justly might resent. Phillips v. Eyre, L. R., 4 Q. B., 225, 239; L. R., 6 Q. B,. 1, 28; Dicey, Conflict of Laws (2d. ed.), 647. See also Appendix, 724, 726, Note 2, ibid."

This principle that the character of an act as lawful or unlawful must be determined wholly by the law of the country where the act is done does not, of course, extend so far as to compel us to submit to the effects of an act done abroad, or contract made abroad, where the statutes here declare in clear and unmistakable terms that such acts or contracts are illegal. But the question now being considered is whether the statute does show an intention on the part of Congress to declare agreements made abroad like agreement AA to be illegal. On that question of construction the presumptions are in favor of the usual rule that acts of Congress are to be understood to apply to persons residing and acts committed within its territorial jurisdiction. And the mere use of the words "foreign commerce" in the first and second sections of the Anti-Trust Act does not justify the conclusion that Congress intended to do so unusual a thing as to prohibit and punish acts committed abroad by persons not within its jurisdiction.

B.

Acts of Congress ought, if possible, to be so construed as not to violate the rights of other nations having concurrent jurisdiction with the United States.

If the Anti-Trust Act here applies to a contract made by the Cunard Company in Great Britain, then the United States has sought to deny to a British corporation the freedom of contract accorded to that corporation by the laws of Great Britain. This is an undue interference with international relations. American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co. (supra); The Antelope, 10 Wheat., 66.

If the United States may regulate commerce on the high seas with foreign nations—commerce which is really international—then other nations must have the same power, and, if such powers were exercised by all the nations participating in such commerce, hopeless confusion and conflict would ensue. It is to prevent this confusion and conflict that international law holds that a ship is, for certain purposes, a part of the territory of the nation to which she belongs, and in respect to matters which cannot be covered by this principle, international commerce is regulated by international agreement.

There is nothing in the Anti-Trust Act to indicate that Congress intended to disregard these principles of international law, and an intention to disregard them ought not to be implied.

On this subject, Chief Justice Marshall said:

> "It has also been observed that an act of Congress ought never to be construed to violate the law of nations if any other possible construction remains, and, consequently, can never be construed to violate neutral rights, or to affect neutral commerce further than is warranted by the law of nations as understood in this country.
>
> "These principles are believed to be correct, and they ought to be kept in view in construing the act now under consideration." Murray v. The Charming Betsy (2 Cranch., 64, 117-118).

The rule to be applied when two sovereignties have concurrent jurisdiction is discussed in the case of In re Mattson, 69 Fed. Rep., 535. Mattson was imprisoned for Sunday fishing in the Columbia River within the territorial limits of the State of Washington in violation of the laws of Oregon. Washington and Oregon had concurrent jurisdiction over the river and the Court held that the State of Oregon had no authority to declare the act done within the territorial limits of the State of Washington criminal.

In the year 1909 this Court had occasion to consider the same question in connection with a law of Oregon against operating or maintaining a purse net in the Columbia River. Nielson v. Oregon, 212 U. S., 315, 321. In discussing the case, Mr. Justice Brewer said:

> "The plaintiff in error was within the limits of the State of Washington doing an act which that State in terms authorized and gave him a license to do. Can the State of Oregon, by virtue of its concurrent jurisdiction, disregard that authority, practically override the legislation of Washington, and punish a man for doing within the territorial limits of Washington an act which that State had specially authorized him to do? We are of opinion that it cannot. It is not at all impossible that in some instances the interests of the two States may be different. Certainly, as appears in the present case, the opinion of the legislatures of the two States is different, and the one State cannot enforce its opinion against that of the other, at least as to an act done within the limits of that other State. * * * It is enough to decide, as we do, that for an act done within the territorial limits of the State of Washington under authority and license from that State one cannot be prosecuted and punished by the State of Oregon.
>
> There is little authority upon this precise question, but see In re Mattson, U. S. Circuit Court for the District of Oregon, 69 Fed. Rep., 535, and Ex parte Desjeiro, same court, 152 Fed. Rep., 1004. See also Roberts v. Fulerton, 117 Wisconsin, 222; Rorer on Interstate Law, p. 438, and following."

If the facts here indicated an attempt to circumvent the laws of the United States, a different question might be presented; as, for example, if the parties to a proposed agreement had reached an understanding on the subject within the United States and had then adjourned to meet beyond the Canadian border for the purpose of making the agreement there and had done this to circumvent our laws. But here there was no effort at concealment. The agreement made was a usual one, of a sort which has been frequently made the world over in reference to transportation of this character. It was legal where made and no attempt to circumvent our laws is involved.

C.

Having regard to the general plan of the Anti-Trust Act and to the rules of construction above discussed, the language of that Act taken as a whole does not indicate that Congress intended to prohibit and punish the making abroad of such an agreement as Agreement AA.

Section 1 operates on contracts and on persons. It declares illegal every contract in restraint of trade. It punishes every individual who shall make such a contract. Applying the rules of construction which have just been discussed, it is proper to conclude that in thus dealing with contracts and persons Congress intended to deal only with such as came within its territorial jurisdiction.

Section 2 of the Act deals with and punishes persons who monopolize, or attempt to monopolize, trade or commerce. Here it is certain that the Act has reference only to persons within the territorial jurisdiction of Congress, for Congress cannot have intended to punish a person not in its territorial jurisdiction. Yet Sections 1 and 2 of the Act both refer in the same words to foreign commerce. What one refers to the other refers to. It is certain that Section 2 cannot refer to an act committed abroad and we cannot conclude that Congress used the same words in different senses in these two adjoining sections and intended to reach by the first section acts which it certainly did not intend to reach by the second.

Section 3 again deals with contracts and persons; that is, it declares illegal contracts in restraint of trade in any Territory, etc., and it punishes every person who shall make such contract. The same comment applies here as in the case of Section 1 of the Act.

Sections 4 and 5 relate to courts and procedure.

Section 6 then takes up another subject, that is, the forfeiture of property owned under a contract mentioned in Section 1 of the Act. Now, if the Government were right in claiming that Section 1 of the Act applies to Agreement AA, then we ought to find in Section 6 that the penalty of forefeiture applied to property in the course of transportation, whether it was going to a foreign country or coming from a foreign country. But that is not what Congress provided in Section 6. Congress provided that the penalty of forfeiture should apply only to such property in the course of transportation "to a foreign country." Congress thus deliberately and expressly distinguished between commerce originating in the United States and commerce originating abroad.

It is not necessary to argue the proposition that the remedies provided by such an Act as this are exclusive and cannot be extended by implication.

D.

When Congress, in the exercise of its jurisdiction over foreign commerce, desires to make its will effective outside of our territorial borders, certain unavoidable obstacles must be overcome. These obstacles can sometimes be overcome, but this can only be done by the exercise of powers which are possessed by Congress and are frequently used but which Congress did not use in the Anti-Trust Act.

If Congress desires to prohibit the performance of certain acts abroad which may affect our foreign commerce, then, while it may not have jurisdiction over the person abroad who may commit the act, it has jurisdiction over the commerce affected by the act. The effective and usual method of carrying out the will of Congress in such a case is to exclude or to hinder the particular commerce in connection with which the act is performed. If the circumstances call for so drastic a remedy, any independent sovereignty may prohibit all aliens from crossing its borders and may prohibit the importation of all merchandise. And where it is desired to exclude a certain class of aliens or certain kinds of merchandise, an independent sovereignty may exclude these by proper statutes.

The unquestioned power of Congress to detain foreign commerce, or to exclude it, does not purport to be exercised by the Anti-Trust Act, and, as this was the only power by which Congress could make its will effective if it intended to prohibit the making of contracts in foreign countries, it is reasonable to conclude that the failure of Congress to use this familiar power indicated that it did not intend the Act to apply to such contracts made abroad.

In giving as it did in the Anti-Trust Act powers to the Federal courts, Congress must have intended that the judgments to be rendered should be effective. A study of the prayer of this petition will show the practical difficulties which are involved in attempting to apply the Anti-Trust Act in this case. Had Congress intended the Act to apply to such Contracts as Agreement AA it could not well have overlooked such difficulties, especially as the difficulties could have been readily removed had it used its undoubted power to hinder or exclude the commerce affected.

The first clause of the prayer of the petition is, that Agreement AA be declared to be in violation of the Anti-Trust Act; that the defendants and their employees be enjoined from carrying it out, and that the contract be cancelled.—It is obvious that our government cannot prevent British ships from carrying passengers on the high seas, and it is equally obvious that it cannot enjoin a British corporation from paying over in England to a Dutch, German or Belgian corporation a part of the money which the British corporation has collected from its passengers.

The most that our Government can do with respect to a British corporation or its steamers, is to prevent them from entering our ports and from landing passengers or discharging merchandise here. The Act does not purport to do this.

The third clause of the prayer of the petition is, that the defendants and their employees be prohibited from further combining to maintain an established steerage rate or from doing anything in aid of a combination which will deprive the traveling public of such facilities and rates as will be afforded by free competition between the defendants. It is again obvious that our Government has no power to prevent these acts abroad or on the high seas, and all that our Government can do is to exclude the foreign ships.

The fourth clause of the prayer of the petition is that defendants and their employees be enjoined from combining to injure or destroy business of other lines engaged, or to be engaged, in carrying steerage passengers, or from acting together to monopolize such business. And the fifth clause of the prayer is that the defendants and their employees be prohibited from making or performing any contract, the object of which will be to restrain or monopolize the carriage of steerage passengers.—Here again our government is unable, in the nature of things, to control acts performed by foreign subjects or corporations in foreign countries or on the high seas, and must content itself with excluding from our ports foreign ships, the financial affairs of whose owners are claimed not to accord with our domestic statutes.

In this examination of the various clauses of the prayer, Clause II has been omitted because that merits separate consideration, for it is the only one in which the petition asks for relief which it is in the power of the United States Government (but not, it is submitted, of this Court) to give.

By the second clause it is asked that the defendant lines be enjoined from entering or clearing their ships at any port of entry within the United States so long as they continue to operate under Agreement AA or any similar combination.

Congress has power, by appropriate action, to close our ports, in whole or in part, but it has not exercised that power in the Anti-Trust Act, and still less has it, by that Act, delegated the power to the Federal courts.

The closing of our ports to the ships of a foreign nation is an act within the sphere of international relations and not within the sphere of the administration of justice. It is an act which closely affects our peaceful relations with foreign countries. It cannot be supposed that Congress would delegate to the Federal courts, or to any officer of the Department of Justice, the power to perform such an act and to commit the nation to such a policy, still less can it be supposed that such a power could be given by Congress by implication in a statute which contains no express language on the subject.

The case of Patterson v. Bark Eudora, 190 U. S., 169, cited by the Government (Government's Brief, p. 59) emphasizes the point for which these defendants here contend. The Government now claims that there is an implied condition in the Anti-Trust Act that foreign vessels are to be excluded from United States ports in case the owners of the vessels are guilty of a breach of the Act, and cites the Patterson case in support of that proposition. As a matter of fact, however, Congress has been very careful to use explicit terms whenever it has attempted to exclude a foreign ship or punish a foreign shipowner. In the Patterson case the statute under consideration related to the prepayment of seamen and so far from leaving the enforcement of the statute to implication Congress expressly provided as follows, p. 171:

> "(f) That this section shall apply as well to foreign vessels as to vessels of the United States; and any master, owner, consignee, or agent of any foreign vessel who has violated its provisions shall be liable to the same penalty that the master, owner, or agent of a vessel of the United States would be for a similar violation: Provided, that treaties in force between the United States and foreign nations do not conflict."

If we refuse entry to the ships of these foreign lines, because the lines have made in their own country an agreement which the law of their country permits, we must anticipate that foreign countries will have sufficient self-respect to exclude our ships from their ports. But this would be imposing one of the evils of war on nations who are seeking to live at peace. The Anti-Trust Act has been exposed to criticism, but no one has suspected that it was as dangerous as this portion of the prayer of the petition would seem to suggest.

It is idle to argue that these foreign companies might avoid exclusion from our ports by conducting their financial affairs in their own countries in accordance with our domestic statutes. Suppose Great Britain should decide to admit to her ports only such of our ships as were owned by companies which conducted their financial affairs in conformity with the acts of the British Parliament. Such an act of exclusion would hardly be submitted to, for it would be in derogation of the sovereignty of this nation.

No self-respecting nation could permit its citizens to submit to such dictation by a foreign power, and the controversy would at once become an international issue. This might well cause retaliation, so that the nation which had first moved in the matter might have to submit to all the evils of international exclusion.

If Congress had intended to prohibit and punish the making abroad of an agreement like AA, it could readily have made that intention effective by expressly exercising its power to exclude. This will be seen by observing cases where Congress has used its power to hinder or exclude foreign commerce in order to control acts performed in foreign countries. In all such cases it has exercised its powers expressly.

For example: In this country there is a certain policy against using the products of convict labor. That policy cannot directly affect the employment of convict labor in other countries, but in so far as convict labor produces in foreign countries articles which are imported into this country, our policy in this regard has been made, at least in part, effective by the provisions of the Wilson Tariff Act, 28 St., 509, where (continuing a similar provision in the McKinley Tariff Act of 1890) it excluded all goods manufactured in whole or in part in any foreign country by convict labor (Sec. 24).

Again, our domestic laws as to the adulteration of foods cannot control individuals in foreign countries, but by Act of August 30, 1890 (U. S. Compiled St., 1913, Sec. 8731) power is given to the President to suspend by proclamation the importation from foreign countries of all food products so far adulterated as to be dangerous to health.

Again, Section 9 of the Immigration Act declares it unlawful for transportation companies to bring to our shores aliens who are suffering from certain diseases. It is clear from the section that Congress intended to require that a competent medical examination of aliens be made by the ship owner at the port of embarkation abroad before receiving the alien as a passenger, and intended to punish the ship owner if that medical examination was not a proper one. Congress proceeds therefore to make its will effective by utilizing its power to check or prohibit commerce, and so it provides that if, when the alien arrives and is examined here, it appears that he is suffering from a complaint which might have been detected had a competent examination been made on embarkation, then a fine shall be imposed on the ship owner and the ship shall be refused clearance until the fine is paid.

It is inherently improbable that Congress intended the Anti-Trust Act to apply to agreements like AA made abroad and legal where made. It is true that agreement AA has a certain connection with our foreign commerce but so have agreements affecting the importation of merchandise from foreign countries to the United States. For example if a syndicate or combination exists in Germany which controls the preparation and export of potash and which would violate the Anti-Trust Act if made here, does the Anti-Trust Act extend to such a combination abroad and can our Federal courts enjoin the sale in this country of the potash exported from Germany under such a combination?

It is probable that many articles imported into the United States were produced by combinations or monopolies which would be illegal here. Those monopolies affect our foreign commerce and if by reason of that connection with foreign commerce the Anti-Trust Act applies to them, then Congress when it passed that act legislated for a considerable part of the world.

Again the penal provisions of the Anti-Trust Act show how improbable it is that Congress could have intended it to apply to a case like this.—The chief officials of the Cunard Company, for example, come to the United States at relatively short intervals. If the Government is right in claiming that Section I of the Anti-Trust Act applies to Agreement AA, then it would become the duty of the proper Federal Attorney to indict such a steamship official under Section I of the Act on his arrival here and to seek to have the official fined or imprisoned for taking part in the making of a contract which was both legal and usual in his own country where the contract was made. It would be essentially wrong to punish a man in such a case and we cannot attribute to Congress the intention to impose such a duty on the Department of Justice. The view of this Court on the subject is shown by the words of Mr. Justice Holmes, already quoted, where he said in the American Banana Company case, "for another jurisdiction, if it should happen to lay hold on the actor to treat him according to its own notions rather than those of the place where he did the acts, not only would be unjust, but would be an interference with the authority of another Sovereign, contrary to the comity of nations, which the other state concerned justly might resent."

The brief for the Government seeks to show that the Anti-Trust Act extends to ocean transportation, and therefore that the Act extends to this case. (Government's brief, pp. 45-56.) But this does not follow. The question is not whether the Act applies to ocean transportation, but whether it was intended to apply to the international ocean transportation here involved. If a number of American steamship companies operating lines to foreign countries should make a contract here in the United States which was an unreasonable restraint of commerce, then the illegal act would have been committed within our borders and our Federal courts would have jurisdiction over the offending American corporations and over their business, and those courts could, therefore, declare the agreement invalid and enjoin the American corporations from doing business under it. To that extent the Anti-Trust Act may be said to extend to ocean transportation. But where, as in this case, the agreement is made in good faith abroad and is valid there, then, although the contract may affect our foreign commerce, it is, nevertheless, the precedent in this court that before an American statute can be construed to extend to such a foreign contract the statute must conform to the rules laid down by this Court for the interpretation of statutes which may operate beyond our territorial borders and affect the rights of other nations. It is sought to be shown in this brief that the Anti-Trust Act, when tested by those principles of construction, does not apply here. Therefore, from the fact that the Anti-Trust Act may, in certain imaginable cases, apply to ocean transportation it does not follow that it applies here.

On this particular subject, the Government cites:

U. S. v. Pacific & Arctic Co., 228 U. S., 87;
U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 226 U. S., 61,
and
Cinn. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S., 179.

An examination of these three cases will show that none of them is authority for extending the Anti-Trust Act to this case.

A number of cases are cited for the government to sustain the proposition that Congress has jurisdiction and actual power over foreign commerce.

These defendants do not dispute that proposition. In fact, some cases cited by the government (as Oceanic Steam Navigation Co. vs. Stranahan, 214 U. S., 320, which grew out of Section 9 of the Immigration Act above referred to) show how Congress makes its intention plain in cases where it does intend to control or prohibit acts performed abroad but affecting our commerce.

In the case of U. S. v. Nord Deutscher Lloyd, 223 U. S., 215, referred to by the government, there was a palpable attempt to evade a plain provision of the Immigration Law for it was unmistakably the intention of Congress to prohibit and punish the very thing which the owner of the ship did in that case. In the case at bar, the question is not as to the powers of Congres, but as to the intent of Congress.

In support of the proposition that there is in the Anti-Trust Act an implied authority to exclude foreign vessels in cases of violation of the Act, the Government cites (Govt.'s Brief, pp. 59, 60 and 61) the following cases:

> Noble State Bank v. Haskell, 219 U. S., 104;
> The Tobacco Case, 221 U. S., 106, and > Buttfield v. Stranahan, 192 U. S., 470.

Referring to the first of these cases the Government says:

> "The statute which in Noble State Bank v. Haskell (supra) this Court interpreted as going from regulation to prohibition, except upon such conditions as it may prescribe (291 U. S., 113), was not in terms conditional."

The language thus quoted by the Government was not used by this Court in reference to the terms of a statute, but in reference to the powers of a State to regulate banking.

The reference made to the Tobacco case is to that part of the Court's opinion where the Court says that as an appropriate means of enforcing the law the Court might issue "a permanent injunction restraining the combination as a universality * * * from continuing to engage in interstate commerce until the illegal situation be cured."

This has reference to interstate commerce and as such commerce is entirely within the jurisdiction of Congress, without any complications growing out of territorial limitations or the rights of other nations, the injunction order of the court in respect to interstate commerce is entirely effective. This principle does not affect the proposition for which these defendants are here contending, which is, that where Congress has intended to exclude foreign vessels and to punish foreigners for acts committed abroad, it has not failed to make that intention clear in the terms of the statute.

The case of Buttfield v. Stranahan is cited by the Government apparently to sustain the proposition that Congress has power to exclude. This is not disputed. In fact, the decision in Buttfield v. Stranahan goes to sustain the contention of these defendants for it related to the exclusion of impure teas and the statute under consideration expressly prohibited their importation.

POINT III.

Various matters referred to in the testimony were not covered by the provisions of Agreement AA, and do not affect the validity of that agreement.

1.

FIGHTING SHIPS.

The fighting ships were not run under any provisions of Agreement AA, but in pursuance of a Minute of the Conference adopted several months later. The Congressional Committee referred to in Point 1 recommended that only two of the practices known to the shipping combinations be declared illegal; one was the use of deferred rebates, which does not appear in this case and would be impossible in passenger business, and the other was the use of "fighting ships." The running of "fighting ships" was not provided for in AA and some of the lines, including the Cunard Line, objected to having their steamers designated as "fighting ships" (12 R., 1162, 1163). That company has not contended in this proceeding for any right to run or to participate in the running of fighting ships.

2.

COMMERCIAL ALLOWANCES.

The petition in this suit contains no reference to the "commercial allowances" (commissions) which are given by the American railroads to the Transatlantic Lines, nor does Agreement AA contain any provision relating thereto.

The steamship companies maintain agencies in Europe and sell to the prospective emigrant a ticket for his ocean transportation and also an order for his rail transportation from New York to inland destination. This is really an agency service rendered by the steamship lines to the railroads and the so-called "commercial allowance" is in payment for that service. It is obviously a convenience to the passenger to buy through tickets and it is equally clear that the steamship lines could not afford to do it unless paid for it by the railroads. It is to be kept in mind that the steamship lines incur all the expense and run all the risks connected with these agencies in Europe and the railroads are totally relieved of this expense and risk (12 R., 872-877).

The testimony taken in this proceeding respecting commercial allowances was carefully digested and considered by the Congressional Committee referred to in Point I. The report of the Committee (pp. 48-51) discusses the effect of this arrangement at considerable length and shows it to be in the interest of the public.

These arrangements as to commercial allowances relate, in a general way, to the carriage of steerage passengers, but they are not a part of the combination to prevent rate wars effected by the lines under Agreement AA. The Congressional Committee concurs with the Interstate Commerce Commission in finding that the arrangements between the steamship companies and the American railroads are in the interest of the public, and the only criticism made by the Committee is against the provision that allowances shall be paid exclusively to the contracting steamship lines. If this Court now considers that this subject comes within the issues and that this provision in respect to paying allowances only to the contracting steamship companies is illegal, there is no reason why the objections to that minor feature of the arrangement should render illegal the general features of the agreement which have been held both by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Congressional Committee to be in the public interest. It is understood to be the policy of this Court not to declare illegal an entire contract or arrangement where the law would be satisfied by eliminating certain offending provisions.

U. S. v. St. Louis Terminal, 224 U. S., 383, 411.

3.

CONTROL OF AGENTS.

The rule complained of by the Government in this connection reads as follows:

> "9.—Agents are prohibited from booking passengers for any steamer except those of the Lines, Members of the Continental, the Mediterranean and the North-Atlantic Passenger Conferences, unless Conference gives express permission in writing. Agents are prohibited from selling passage tickets under false representations as to the Line or the route by which the passenger is to be transported."

Monopolizing the attention of a ticket agent does not involve monopolizing trade or commerce, or any part of trade or commerce. If two principals allow the same agent to represent them on the stipulation that he shall not represent competitors, they adopt one of the commonest precautions of the business world, but they do not thereby prevent the public from dealing with other agents or other principals. If it is an illegal restraint of trade or commerce for two principals to appoint the same agent on the stipulation that he shall not represent their competitors, then it must result from such a rule that agents must either represent only one concern, or, if they represent more than one, must be free to represent all, however antagonistic their interests may be. Business could not well endure such a rule and an intention to lay down such a rule cannot well be imputed to Congress.

And the application of such a rule would be particularly disastrous both to carriers and to the public if applied to ticket agents. Much of the money taken in by transportation companies passes through the hands of ticket agents. They must, therefore, be selected for integrity and efficiency and must become familiar with the facilities offered by the transportation companies whose tickets they sell. But, except in the largest cities, the sale of the tickets of any one transportation company would not warrant the maintenance of a separate agency by that company, and it is well known that, by general custom, there exist throughout this country ticket agencies where the tickets of a number of different transportation companies may be bought.

The claim of this portion of the petition would seem to be that in such a case there has been an illegal restraint of trade, unless the various companies who employ the agent also permit him to use the facilities and standing and business experience which they have helped him to acquire to serve every competing line, however irresponsible or untrustworthy such a line may be.

There is a broad distinction between this case and the case of principals who are dealing with purchasers. If two or more companies sell to a purchaser on the stipulation that he will not buy of any other concern, then they may restrain the freedom of that purchaser to deal with others, and the freedom of others to sell to that purchaser, and, to that extent they may restrain trade. But here, the agent is not a purchaser, but is the representative and employee of the line and the line pays his compensation, either by salary or by commission on sales. The agreement by which the agent is prevented from selling the tickets of other lines does not prevent any one of the public from buying the tickets of those other lines, and it does not prevent those other lines from selling tickets to any one of the public. The only thing monopolized is a portion of the time of the ticket agent.

The cases cited by the Government at page 98 of its brief are not authorities sustaining the contention of the Government on this point.

In Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S., 274, the Court was dealing with a labor combination which aimed at compelling third parties and strangers involuntarily not to engage in the course of trade except on conditions that the combination imposes.

In Eastern States Retail Lumber Dealers' Ass'n. v. U. S., 234 U. S., 600, the combination complained of was one of retail dealers who refused to deal with certain wholesale dealers, and the Court held that its effect was to hinder and impede the trade of the listed wholesalers.

The commerce herein involved is the transportation of passengers and freight. How is that commerce restrained by the selection of agents? Are not all persons wishing transportation free to go to other agents or to the steamship companies themselves to obtain accommodation? As this Court has repeatedly said the effect of the combination must be direct and proximate.

In Hopkins v. U. S., 171 U. S., 578, the Government complained that the Anti-Trust Act had been violated because certain rules adopted by the members of the Kansas City Live Stock Exchange provided that commissions charged by members for selling should not be less than certain named amounts and prohibited the employment of any agent, solicitor or employee, except upon a stipulated salary, not contingent upon commissions earned, and provided that not more than three solicitors shall be employed at one time by a firm or corporation, and that no member of the exchange should transact business with any persons violating the rules of the exchange, or with expelled or suspended members. The Court said (p. 592):

> "The contract condemned by the statute is one whose direct and immediate effect is a restraint upon that kind of trade or commerce which is interstate. Charges for such facilities as we have already mentioned are not a restraint upon that trade, although the total cost of marketing a subject thereof may be thereby increased. Charges for facilities furnished have been held not a regulation of commerce even when made for services rendered or as compensation for benefits conferred. Sands v. Manistee River Improvement Co., 123 U. S., 288; Monongahela Navigation Co. v. U. S., 148 U. S., 312, 329, 330; Kentucky & Indiana Bridge Co. v. Louisville &c. R. R., 37 Fed. Rep., 567.
>
> "To treat as condemned by the Act all agreements under which, as a result the cost of conducting an inter-state commercial business may be increased would enlarge the application of the act far beyond the fair meaning of the language used. There must be > some direct and immediate effect upon inter-state commerce in order to come within the act. * * * Many agreements suggest themselves which relate only to facilities furnished commerce or else touch it only in an indirect way, while possibly enhancing the cost of transacting the business and which at the same time we would not think of as agreements in restraint of inter-state trade or commerce. They are agreements which in their effect operate in furtherance and in aid of commerce by providing for its facilities, conveniences, privileges or services, but which do not directly relate to charges for its transportation nor to any other form of inter-state commerce. To hold all such agreements void would, in our judgment, improperly extend the act to matters which are not of an inter-state commercial nature."

In U. S. v. Joint Traffic Ass'n., 171 U. S., 505, 567, this Court pointed out that certain forms of contract had never been regarded as in the nature of contracts in restraint of trade or commerce, and said:

> "It might also be difficult to show that the appointment by two or more producers of the same person to sell their goods on commission was a matter in any degree in restraint of trade."

LAST POINT.

This proceeding ought to be dismissed on the ground that Congress did not intend the Anti-Trust Act to apply to agreements like Agreement AA made in good faith abroad. But if this Court is of opinion that Congress did intend the act to apply to such agreements, then the decree below should be affirmed.

LORD, DAY & LORD,
Solicitors for the Cunard Steamship Co., Limited, and Charles P. Sumner.

LUCIUS H. BEERS,
ALLAN B. A. BRADLEY,
Of Counsel.

In the Supreme Court of the United States.

OCTOBER TERM, 1915.

No. 289.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, APPELLANT,

v.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT ET AL.

No. 332.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT ET AL., APPELLANTS,

v.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

REPLY MEMORANDUM FOR THE UNITED STATES.

We desire to reply briefly upon five points.

I.

AS TO THE APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO OCEAN TRANSPORTATION, AND HEREIN AS TO THE ANTITRUST PROVISION OF THE WILSON TARIFF ACT.

Defendants concede the power of Congress to make the antitrust act applicable to themselves.

The question now is merely as to the intent of Congress. On this point it is not entirely clear whether the defendants contend that the antitrust act is not applicable at all to ocean transportation between the United States and foreign countries, or whether they contend that the act is not applicable to combinations affecting such transportation when made in a foreign country and composed of foreign corporations. They seem to waver back and forth upon these two positions.

We take it, however, that the latter position is the one on which they principally rely. In fact, the brief for the Cunard Company expressly concedes that the act is applicable to a combination formed in this country by American steamship lines engaged in transportation between this and foreign countries. It says (p. 69–70):

> If a number of American steamship companies operating lines to foreign countries should make a contract here in the United States which was an unreasonable restraint of commerce, then the illegal act would have been committed within our borders and our Federal courts would have jurisdiction over the offending American corporations and over their business, and those courts could, therefore, declare the agreement invalid and enjoin the American corporations from doing business under it. To that extent the antitrust act may be said to extend to ocean transportation.

But it contends that a combination formed in a foreign country by foreign steamship lines engaged in that same transportation would not be subject to the act. It would follow, therefore, if this view were sound, that there would be one rule for American steamship lines engaged in transportation between this and foreign countries and another and (from the standpoint of the shipowner) more favorable rule for foreign steamship lines engaged in that same traffic.

We do not believe that Congress intended any such discrimination against American ships.

The defendants are not consistent in any construction, however, for in another place in the brief for the Cunard Company they say (p. 73):

> That company has not contended in this proceeding for any right to run or participate in the running of fighting ships.

Likewise, the brief for the Hamburg-American Line, the Allan Line, and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company states (p. 17) that none of those companies—> have appealed from the decree of the District Court enjoining the continuance of the [fighting ship] methods complained of.

Thus several of the principal defendants admit that the antitrust act applies even to combinations of foreign steamship lines under some circumstances, for unless it does apply the defendants have a perfect right to operate fighting ships as much as they please.

It is difficult to see just what the antitrust provision of the Wilson Tariff Act has to do with this case. The scope of the Sherman Act is defined in sweeping terms, covering "every" combination in restraint of " trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations." As already shown in the Government main brief (pp. 45–46), these are the very words which are used in the Constitution to describe the power of Congress itself. Their meaning was definite and long settled by innumerable decisions of this court, as in the case of Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat., 1, 193. It must be presumed that in using these words, familiar to everyone, and particularly to the eminent lawyers who framed the Sherman Act, Congress intended to include all commerce over which the Federal power extends.

Indeed, Mr. Justice Peckham so stated in United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Assn., 166 U. S. 290, the first case wherein affirmative relief under the Sherman Act was accorded by this court, saying (pp. 324–325):

> Congress has, so far as its jurisdiction extends, prohibited all contracts or combinations in the form of trusts. * * *
>
> Transportation of commodities among the several States or with foreign nations falls within the description of the words of the statute with regard to the subject. [Italics ours.]

Defendants seem to contend, however, that the provisions of the Wilson Act, specifically prohibiting combinations as to imported goods, reflexly indicate that Congress supposed such combinations were not already covered by the Sherman Act. But cumulative and overlapping legislation is so frequent that the inference to be drawn from the mere enactment of a subsequent statute covering in part the same ground is far too weak to counteract the overwhelming presumption that Congress, when using familiar and unambiguous language, meant exactly what it said. As pointed out in Bishop, Statutory Crimes, 3d ed., section 160:

> Our jurisprudence is full of instances in which two or a dozen distinct laws cover one question, or cluster of facts, and all stand together, parties having their election on which one to proceed.

Our public-land laws constitute a notorious example of such overlapping legislation. The Indian liquor laws constitute another. As shown in the cases of Ex parte Webb 225 U. S., 663, and United States v. Wright, 229 U. S., 226, the offense of introducing liquor into that portion of Oklahoma formerly known as Indian Territory may be punished under three independent statutes, each prescribing a different penalty, namely, the act of July 23, 1892 (27 Stat., 260), the act of March 1, 1895 (28 Stat., 693), and the act of January 30, 1897 (29 Stat., 506). In the Wright case, Mr. Justice Pitney said (229 U. S., 233):

> It seems to us, upon the whole, that during this transition period preceding the admission of Oklahoma as a State, the several acts referred to were intended to and did stand together, excepting so far (if at all) as they were necessarily repugnant to one another * * *.

In United States v. Claflin, 97 U. S., 546, it was held that an express recital in a statute that a former law had been repealed by subsequent legislation was not conclusive as to such repeal, that being a judicial, not a legislative, question.

Endlich on the Interpretation of Statutes, sec. 372, collects a great number of instances where legislative bodies have acted without clearly apprehending the existing law.

Furthermore, the circumstances under which the antitrust provision of the Wilson Tariff Act was passed completely negative the suggestion that it indicates any belief whatever on the part of Congress as to the scope of the Sherman Act.

The Wilson Tariff Act was passed at 10.47 p. m. on the night of July 3, 1894 (26 Cong. R., 7136). On the very evening of its passage Senator Morgan, who was not a member of the committee in charge of the bill and who acted purely on his own initiative, proposed on the floor of the Senate the amendment concerning combinations with regard to imports.

The entire debate upon the proposed amendment occupies only three pages in the Congressional Record (26 Cong. R., 7117–7120), and consists almost entirely of discussion as to the propriety of offering amendments at that critical moment. The Senate, weary of the long debate over the tariff act and willing to do almost anything to avoid a controversy which might prevent or delay its passage, acquiesced in the proposal practically without discussion on the merits. It is significant that none of the leading members of the Judiciary Committee who framed the Sherman Act in 1890 had anything to do with this rider on the Wilson Tariff Act.

Senator Morgan seems to have been actuated by the thought that Judge Jackson's opinion in In re Greene, 52 Fed., 104, had virtually nullified the Sherman Act, so far as interstate commerce was concerned. Apparently, however, he hoped by a specific provision based upon the plenary power of the Federal Government to exclude imports, to accomplish something, at least, with regard to foreign commerce.

The character of the debate is shown by the following excerpt from the argument of Senator Morgan himself (26 Cong. R., 7117):

> I believe that the difficulties which have been found in the judicial decisions of Judge Jackson and some judges of inferior grade in regard to the language of the act of 1890, predicated upon the interstate commerce features of the Constitution, have been obviated entirely by the provisions of this section (p. 7117).
>
> * * * * *
>
> I wish to remark in regard to the amendment that it can not possibly do any harm if we will take it for granted that no man is ever to be convicted under it; that it is such a sieve as that it will hold nothing in the way of judicial determination. Yet there it stands for two purposes. One is to threaten and alarm these men from entering into such combinations. The other is the expression of the view of the Congress of the United States that these trusts in all their multiplied hideousness, I will say, are against our common conviction and meet our stern reprobation (p. 7119).

Senator Gray said:

I confess that I appreciate the importance of it, and I appreciate the difficulties that exist in the way of attaching so important an amendment to this tariff bill at this time, in these hours which we hope are the closing hours of this debate. * * * I feel that this unusual and abnormal method of introducing such important punitive legislation is not at this time, in the heat and hurry of these hours, to be considered wise on our part (p. 7119).

Senator Morgan replied:

The suggestion offered by the Senator from Delaware it does not seem to me has very great weight, because the proposed punishment of these combinations does not affect any person whatsoever—it can not affect any person whatsoever—who is honestly engaged in free and fair competition in trade under the new revenue law (p. 7119).

Senator Daniels said:

Before I take my seat I should like to have an understanding between the Senator from Alabama and the committee. He tells us that he consulted the committee before he offered the amendment, and was encouraged to do it.

Mr. MORGAN. No; I did not say that.

Mr. DANIELS. I beg pardon, sir; I am trying——

Mr. MORGAN. I said the committee had no objection to it, and I did not consider it any breach of the agreement that I should offer it (p. 7120).

Senator Dolph said:

I am afraid it will not accomplish very much if enacted into a law, but it is a move in the right direction. As has been said, it can not hurt any innocent man (p. 7120).

Thereupon the amendment was agreed to without even calling the roll.

Furthermore, if the words " commerce with foreign nations " as used in the Sherman Act do not mean " commerce with foreign nations," what do they mean? The only rational inference to be drawn from the Wilson Tariff Act, assuming that any inference whatever should be drawn from it, is that the Sherman Act did not cover inbound foreign commerce.

But that would not help the defendants, for they are engaged in outbound commerce as well as inbound.

Surely it can not be maintained that the Sherman Act was not intended to apply to commerce which in any way involves relations with other countries, for all foreign commerce is necessarily of that character. Such a construction would read the words " commerce with foreign nations " wholly out of the act.

The defendants themselves do not contend this, for, as shown above, the brief for the Cunard Line concedes that a combination doing precisely the same things, but composed of American lines and formed in this country, would be amenable to the act.

They are forced to rely upon the wholly untenable proposition that one rule exists for American steamship lines and another and (from the standpoint of the shipowner) more favorable rule for foreign steamship lines in the same traffic.

II.

AS TO THE SUGGESTION THAT POOLING AGREEMENTS BE PERMITTED SUBJECT TO CONTROL BY THE INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION OR TO REGULATION BY INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENT.

Defendants in their briefs place great reliance upon the fact that proposals have been made in Congress (1) to permit ocean carriers to form pooling combinations, subject, however, to the most rigid control by the Interstate Commerce Commission, extending even to the fixing of their rates; or (2) to regulate the rates and practices of ocean carriers by international agreement.

It may be that the application to ocean carriers of the law against restraint of trade is not as good a way of controlling their rates and practices as regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission would be. It may be, again, that a still better way of controlling their rates and practices would be by international agreement.

Assuming all this, however, it does not follow that until regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission shall be provided for by Congress, or until an international agreement shall be reached, ocean carriers should be left free to exact by combination whatever rates their cupidity may suggest, and free to attack any line inclined to pursue an independent course.

Assuming, we repeat, that it is possible to devise a better remedy, it does not follow that we should throw away the only remedy now in our hands.

On the contrary, the very fact that these proposals have been made shows that it is generally recognized that these combinations must be subject to some governmental check.

The argument of the defendants comes to this: While conceding that the situation calls for some form of governmental check, and while conceding that the check provided by the antitrust act in terms applies to the situation, nevertheless, it was not the intention of Congress that the check prescribed by the antitrust act shall apply because it is possible to devise a better check.

It needs no argument to demonstrate that the prospect of an international commerce commission, with power to fix freight rates, regulate practices, etc., is extremely remote. As stated in Mr. Alexander's speech, quoted in the brief for the North German Lloyd Company (p. 12) all that has been done thus far is to authorize Mr. Lubin, the American representative at the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, to propose to the permanent committee of that institute a resolution with regard to the creation of such an international commission. Mr. Alexander says:

> If they regard it favorably, they will present the resolution to the general assembly in 1915. If the general assembly agrees that it is a subject that will promote the interests of the farmers and they regard the time opportune, they will then take steps to call an international conference in 1917 to consider the question of organizing this international commerce commission, to be vested with powers set out in the resolution. * * * Whether it is possible to accomplish our purpose in that way or not, of course, we do not know. That will depend upon the attitude of the nations controlling the larger part of the ocean-borne commerce of the world.

The impracticability of securing such joint action among fifty-four different nations, especially in view of the present disturbed condition of international affairs, is conceded by the brief for the Hamburg-American Company et al., which says (p. 59):

> No international commission is now existing or is likely to be in existence for many years to come.

The report of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, to which the defendants so frequently refer, is most emphatic in its statement that some form of governmental regulation is absolutely necessary, and the bill which accompanied the report of the committee and which embodies its recommendations, provides for exempting from the antitrust laws such agreements as the present only when approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission (H. R. 17328, 63d Congress, 2d session).

The defendants in their briefs quote only the chapter of the committee's report regarding the advantages of pooling agreements. There is also another chapter regarding their disadvantages, from which we quote the following (Doc. No. 805, 63d Cong., 2d sess., p. 304 et seq.):

> I. The monopolistic nature of such conferences and agreements.—Nearly all the objections advanced against steamship agreements relate to the limited monopoly, at least, which the conference lines are able to exercise over the trade in their respective areas. Briefly outlined the objections advanced under this heading are the following:
>
> 1. All monopolies are liable to abuse, and in our foreign carrying trade the monopoly obtained by the conference lines has not been subjected to any legal control. While carriers by land are supervised and must conform to statutory requirements in the matter of rates and treatment of shippers, steamship companies, through private arrangements, have secured for themselves monopolistic powers as effective in many instances as though they were statutory. Even granting the advantages claimed for steamship conferences and agreements, all may be withdrawn in the absence of supervisory control without the shippers having any redress or protection. The lines are under no legal obligation to continue these advantages. They exercise their powers as private combinations and are apt to abuse the same unless brought under effective governmental control.

2. The primary object of such conferences and agreements is to prevent new lines from being organized in a trade and to crush existing lines which refuse to comply with the conditions prescribed by the combination, or which for other reasons are not acceptable as members of the conference. The methods which have been adopted from time to time to eliminate competition show the futility of a weak line attempting to enter a trade in opposition to the combined power of the established lines when united by agreement. By resorting to the use of the "fighting ship" or to unlimited rate cutting the conference lines soon exhaust the resources of their antagonists. By distributing the loss resulting from the rate war over the several members of the conference each constituent line suffers proportionately a much smaller loss than the one line which is fighting the entire group. Moreover, the federated lines can conduct the competitive struggle with the comfortable assurance that, following the retirement of the competing line, they are in a position to reimburse themselves through an increase in rates. To allow conferences, therefore, generally means giving the trade to the lines now enjoying it. Only a powerful line can hope to fight its way into the trade, and with the inevitable result, if successful, that it will join the combination or be allowed to exist by virtue of some rate understanding.

* * * * *

4. Conference lines, through their monopolistic powers, so completely dominate the shippers with whom they deal that these shippers can not afford, for fear of retaliation, to place themselves in a position of active antagonism to the lines by openly giving particulars of their grievances. This condition is well illustrated by the frequency with which communications, addressed to the committee, referred to the confidential nature of the information furnished. The various lines constituting a conference have the same interests, and their organization is effective. Shippers, on the contrary, live far apart, and because of their different and frequently antagonistic interests can only combine for mutual protection with the greatest difficulty. [Italics ours.]

In another section of the report the committee again referred to the difficulty it experienced in securing witnesses who dared to testify regarding the practice of the pool lines, saying (p. 417):

> A considerable number of complaints were also filed with the committee objecting to excessive rates, discrimination between shippers in rates and cargo space, indifference to the landing of freight in proper condition, arbitrariness in the settlement of just claims, failure to give due notice to shippers when rates were to be increased, refusal to properly adjust rates as between various classes of commodities, and the unfairness of certain methods—such as fighting ships, deferred rebates, and threats to refuse shipping accommodations—used by some conference lines to meet the competition of nonconference lines. Unfortunately the truth of many of these complaints could not be ascertained because of the confidential nature of the information furnished. As pointed out in the report (p. 306), it seemed to be the general impression among shippers who filed complaints with the committee that the conference lines—> so completely dominate the shippers with whom they deal that these shippers can not afford, for fear of retaliation, to place themselves in a position of active antagonism to the lines by openly giving particulars of their grievances.

Referring to the inherent vices of shipping pools, the committee report continues (pp. 417–418):

> While admitting their many advantages, the committee is not disposed to recognize steamship agreements and conferences, unless the same are brought under some form of effective Government supervision. To permit such agreements without Government supervision would mean giving the parties thereto unrestricted right of action. Abuses exist, and the numerous complaints received by the committee show that they must be recognized. * * *

The committee believes that the disadvantages and abuses connected with steamship agreements and conferences as now conducted are inherent, and can only be eliminated by effective Government control. * * * [Italics ours.]

III.

AS TO THE CONTENTION THAT REASONABLE RATES AND IMPROVEMENTS IN SERVICE ARE EVIDENCE THAT COMPETITION HAS NOT BEEN SUPPRESSED.

Defendants contend that competition between them really has not been suppressed even as regards rates or service. Rates, they maintain, are no higher than before the combination, and as to service, they maintain that the lines vie with each other in building new and splendid ships. Precisely the same thing was said in behalf of the combination in the Union Pacific case, 226 U. S., 61. This court answered, however, that whatever the present effect upon rates and service, the necessary tendency of suppressing competition among competing carriers is to increase rates and to slacken service. Mr. Justice Day said (p. 88):

> The consolidation of two great competing systems of railroad engaged in interstate commerce by a transfer to one of a dominating stock interest in the other creates a combination which restrains interstate commerce within the meaning of the statute, because, in destroying or greatly abridging the free operation of competition theretofore existing, it tends to higher rates. United States v. Joint Traffic Assn., supra, 577. It directly tends to less activity in furnishing the public with prompt and efficient service in carrying and handling freight and in carrying passengers, and in attention to and prompt adjustment of the demands of patrons for losses, and in these respects puts interstate commerce under restraint. Nor does it make any difference that rates for the time being may not be raised and much money be spent in improvements after the combination is effected. It is the scope of such combinations and their power to suppress or stifle competition or create monopoly which determines the applicability of the act. Pearsall v. Great Northern Railway Co., 161 U. S., 646, 676; United States v. Joint Traffic Assn., supra. [Italics ours.]

IV.

AS TO THE WISDOM OF PROHIBITING STEAMSHIP POOLS.

On the question whether the combination here assailed is a combination in restraint of trade, it will be found that the contentions of defendants, while in varying forms, all come to this, namely, that it is economically disadvantageous to prohibit pooling combinations among steamship lines. But that is a question of policy for Congress to decide, and Congress has decided it contrary to the view of the defendants. They discuss the matter as if the question were, What should be the law? when in fact the question is, What is the law?

Every argument which is made here based on the economic expediency and alleged necessity of such agreements amongst carriers was made with double force in the Trans-Missouri Freight Association and Joint Traffic Cases. For there the parties to the agreement were carriers by railroad, which were already subject to a complete system of statutory regulation, but Congress has made no such provision for carriers by water, and unless they are subject to the Anti-Trust Act they are free, as already stated, to exact by combination any rates within their power and are free likewise to attack any line inclined to pursue an independent course.

Obviously, therefore, this defense having been rejected in those cases, for stronger reason it must be rejected here. See further main brief of Government, pages 107–114.

V.

AS TO THE CONTENTION THAT THE CASE HAS BECOME MOOT BY REASON OF THE EUROPEAN WAR.

It is suggested in one of the briefs for the defendants that the General Pool Agreement has become, of necessity, suspended by the European war, and that for this reason the case has become moot.

This contention is conclusively answered by the case of United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Ass'n, 166 U. S. 290, 308; see also So. Pac. Termi- nal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 219 U. S. 498; Boise City I. & L. Co. v. Clarke, 131 Fed. 415 (C. C. A. 9th).

In the Freight Association Case, supra, the court said (p. 308):

> The prayer of the bill filed in this suit asks not only for the dissolution of the association, but, among other things, that the defendants should be restrained from continuing in a like combination, and that they should be enjoined from further conspiring, agreeing, or combining and acting together to maintain rules and regulations and rates for carrying freight upon their several lines, etc. The mere dissolution of the association is not the most important object of this litigation. The judgment of the court is sought upon the question of the legality of the agreement itself for the carrying out of which the association was formed, and if such agreement be declared to be illegal, the court is asked not only to dissolve the association named in the bill, but that the defendants should be enjoined for the future.
>
> The defendants, in bringing to the notice of the court the fact of the dissolution of the association, take pains to show that such dissolution had no connection or relation whatever with the pendency of this suit, and that the association was not terminated on that account. They do not admit the illegality of the agreement, nor do they allege their purpose not to enter into a similar one in the immediate future. On the contrary, by > their answers the defendants claim that the agreement is a perfectly proper, legitimate, and salutary one, and that it or one like it is necessary to the prosperity of the companies. [Italics ours.]

Indeed, much stronger reason exists for not holding the present case moot than existed in the Freight Association Case. In the Freight Association Case, as shown by the excerpt from the opinion quoted above, the agreement was dissolved by the voluntary action of the parties. The dissolution had no connection with the pending suit and the court might properly have presumed it final. In the present case at most the agreement is merely suspended by force of circumstances. The parties have given no assurance that they will not renew it at the close of the war, but on the contrary insist upon their right to do so, and indeed insist upon the necessity of doing so.

In United States v. Prince Line, 220 Fed. 230, precisely the same contention now advanced was rejected by the Circuit Judges of the second circuit.

G. CARROLL TODD,
Assistant to the Attorney General.
THURLOW M. GORDON,
Special Assistant to the Attorney General.
NOVEMBER, 1915.

○

In the Supreme Court of the United States.

OCTOBER TERM, 1914.

THE UNITED STATES, APPELLANT, v. HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKET-FAHRT Actien-Gesellschaft et al.	No. 702.
HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKET-FAHRT Actien-Gesellschaft et al., appellants, v. THE UNITED STATES.	No. 784.

APPEAL AND CROSS-APPEAL FROM THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

MOTION BY THE UNITED STATES TO ADVANCE.

Comes now the Solicitor General, and in accordance with the provisions of the Expediting Act, 32 Stat. 823, as amended by the Act of June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 854, respectfully moves the court to advance the above-entitled causes for hearing on a day convenient to the court during the next term.

This is a proceeding in equity by the United States under the Act of Congress of July 2, 1890, ships," but the bill was dismissed as to other prayers for relief on the ground, inter alia:

That the contract and methods employed by defendants, outside of the "fighting ships," as alleged in the petition, did not constitute an "unreasonable" or "undue" restraint of trade within the meaning of the Antitrust Act as construed in the decisions of this court in the cases of Standard Oil Company v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, and United States v. American Tobacco Company, 221 U. S. 106.

The decision is one of general public importance, and it is believed that the questions involved should be settled as promptly as possible.

Opposing counsel concur.

JOHN W. DAVIS,
Solicitor General.

May ~~JANUARY~~, 1915.

Office Supreme Court, U. S.
FILED
NOV 3 1915
JAMES D. MAHER
CLERK

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER TERM, 1915

No. 289

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Appellant,

v.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT, et al.

No. 332

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT, et al., Appellants,

v.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

BRIEF FOR AMERICAN, ANCHOR, DOMINION, HOLLAND-AMERICA, RED STAR AND WHITE STAR LINES AND DEFENDANTS COVERLY, FRANKLIN AND GIPS, APPELLEES

BURLINGHAM, MONTGOMERY & BEECHER,
Solicitors for American Line, Anchor Line, Dominion Line, Holland-America Line, Red Star Line, White Star Line, and Defendants Coverly, Franklin and Gips.

The Evening Post Job Printing Office, Inc., 156 Fulton St., N. Y.

CONTENTS

	PAGE
Statement	1-9
Description of Defendants	2
The defense	2
The principles on which the defense is based	2-3
The Decision of the District Court	3
The Government's contention as to the error of the District Court	4-5
This has become a moot case	5-6
(a) The European War has dissolved the Conference Agreement	5-6
(b) This Court will not entertain dead issues	6
Results of Congressional Investigation of the matters now before this Court	7-9
(a) The Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries of the House of Representatives found no violation of our laws and reported against abolishing steamship conferences	9
(b) The District Court found this Report "most persuasive"	9
Argument	10-67
FIRST POINT
The purpose of the Conference Agreement was to prevent the demoralization of ocean steerage traffic and destruction of the weaker steamship lines which would result from rate wars and unrestricted competition.	10
The Conference Agreement fixes the percentages of steerage passengers to which each line is entitled	10-11
Monopoly inappropriately describes combination under the agreement as the lines already had practically the entire steerage traffic	11
The lines serve different European ports and are not natural competitors for all traffic	11

PAGE

The immediate reasons for making the Conference Agreement arose from rate wars and demoralization of the traffic..... 12
The testimony 12-15
If monopoly had been the object the Conference Agreement would have been unnecessary. 15

SECOND POINT

The purpose of the Conference Agreement as thus shown arose from a real necessity, proved by the testimony of steamship men of the widest experience and the Government's own witnesses..... 16
This Court will not find the defendants' methods improper unless some other method less prejudical to the public can be shown..... 16
Conditions on the ocean differ entirely from those on land..... 16-17
Agreements similar to Agreement AA are absolutely necessary to the favorable conduct of the steamship business, both as to the lines and the public..... 17
The testimony 17-24
The Government has produced no evidence to the contrary..... 24-25

THIRD POINT

In carrying out the Conference Agreement the defendants have not charged unreasonable or excessive rates and have not impaired the standard of service. On the contrary, the rates are affirmatively shown to be reasonable and the service to be improved..... 25
The Government makes no proof against the service and has practically abandoned its attempt to prove the rates unreasonable.. 25
Under the Conference system the rates have been reasonable and the service improved.. 26
Testimony and discussion..... 26-32
Competition in service has not been eliminated. 32-33

Fourth Point.

PAGE

The alleged unfair methods of competition against lines not parties to the Conference Agreement are no part of the agreement. The rules for ticket agents and the system of commercial allowances of which the Government complains are neither illegal in themselves nor have they been applied to the accomplishment of illegal purposes..... 33

Fighting ships, rules for agents and commercial allowances are not mentioned in Agreement AA and have no necessary connection with it..... 33-34

A. The competition of the Russian Volunteer Fleet, the Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company and the New York & Continental Line (continued as Northwest Transport Line and Uranium Line) was not eliminated by the use of fighting ships 35

The defendants had the right to reduce their rates to meet this competition 35-36

Testimony and discussion..... 36-43 as to

(1) Russian Volunteer Fleet.... 36-39

(2) Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company or Russian-American Line..... 39

(3) New York and Continental Line, Northwest Transport Line and Uranium Line.. 39-41

Figures show that these lines secured a fair share of the steerage traffic.. 41-43

B. Rules for Agents..... 43-47

Rule 9 of the Agency Rules has existed since 1879, and was adopted by the steamship lines for the proper control and protection of their own business. 43-45

PAGE

The defendants have not cornered the supply of agents, and the agents themselves are free to choose whom they will serve 45

The effect of the Government's contention is that the defendants can be charged with monopoly for refusing to permit their own agents to serve their competitors 45-46

There is no restraint of trade in restricting the activities of an agent to the business of his employers 46-47

C. Commercial Allowances 48

The petition does not mention commercial allowances 48

They were not forced from the railroads as part of a conspiracy, but are paid for services, and non-Conference lines have received them .. 48-49

FIFTH POINT

The Sherman Act does not prohibit agreements as to steerage rates and distribution of steerage traffic irrespective of the purpose and effect of such agreements and the conditions and circumstances under which they are made. The act does not come into operation until the public interest is adversely affected 49

The purpose and effect of the Agreement in view of all the conditions and circumstances must be considered in determining whether it is prohibited by the Sherman Act 49-50

Mere agreement as to rates is not undue restraint of trade 50-54

Neither is a mere pooling agreement undue restraint of trade 54

The Conference Agreement is not in reality a pooling agreement 54-55

The test of whether the Conference Agreement is illegal is whether the public interest is thereby adversely affected 55-60

Sixth Point

PAGE

Congress did not intend by the Sherman Act to regulate passenger traffic with foreign nations or to condemn traffic agreements between ocean carriers..... 60

1. The Sherman Act is a penal statute and must be presumed to have no extra-territorial effect 61
2. The history of the times when the Sherman Act was passed as well as the inherent difficulty of regulating ocean traffic carried by foreigners shows that it was not aimed at combinations of ocean carriers..... 62-64
3. The Anti-Trust provisions of the Wilson Tariff Act are inconsistent with an intention on the part of Congress to regulate steerage traffic by the Sherman Act..... 64-67

Last Point

The decree dismissing the petition should be affirmed.. 67

CASES CITED

	PAGE
American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U. S. 347.	66
American Tobacco Case, 221 U. S. 106	3, 53
Attorney General v. Adelaide S. S. Co. [1913] A. C. 781, 809-10	53
Bitterman v. Louisville & Nashville R. R. Co., 207 U. S. 205, 223-4	52
Board of Flour Inspectors v. Glover, 160 U. S. 170	6
Bucks Stove, etc., Co. v. American Federation of Labor, 219 U. S. 581	6
California v. San Pablo & T. R. Co., 149 U. S. 308	6
Covington, etc., Bridge Co. v. Kentucky, 154 U. S. 204	63
Criminal Conspiracies, 23 Harvard Law Review, 541	53
Cutting Case, 2 Moore Int. Law Dig. 242	63
Dolph v. Troy Laundry Machinery Co., 28 Fed. Rep. 553, 555-6	53
Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. Park & Sons Co., 220 U. S. 373	47, 53, 55
Gibbs v. Baltimore Gas Co., 130 U. S. 396, 409	56
Gompers v. Bucks Stove & Range Co., 221 U. S. 418, 451	6
Holy Trinity Church v. United States, 143 U. S. 457, 472	62
In re Corning, 51 Fed. Rep. 205, 211-12	46
In re Greene, 52 Fed. Rep. 104, 117	46
In re Pooling Freights, 115 Fed. Rep. 588	54
In re Terrell, 51 Fed. Rep. 213, 215	46
Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago G. W. Ry., 209 U. S. 108, 120	25
Jones v. Montague, 194 U. S. 147	6
Little v. Bowers, 134 U. S. 547	6
Lough v. Outerbridge, 143 N. Y. 271	47
Mills v. Green, 159 U. S. 651	6
Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor, 23 Q. B. D. 598, aff'd. [1892] A. C. 25	62
Montgomery v. United States, 15 Wall. 395	5
7 Moore's International Law Digest, 244, 250	5
Northwestern Salt Co. v. Alkali Co. [1914] A. C. 461, 469	53
Passenger Cases, 7 How. 392, 399	63

PAGE

Richardson v. McChesney, 218 U. S. 487 6
Rose v. Himeley, 4 Cranch, 241 66
San Mateo County v. Southern Pacific R. R. Co., 116 U. S. 138 6
Southern Pacific Terminal Co. v. Int. Comm. Comm., 219 U. S. 498, 515 6
Standard Oil Case, 221 U. S. 1 ..... 3, 51, 55, 58
Texas & Pac. Railway v. Interstate Com. Com., 162 U. S. 197 57
Texas Standard Oil Co. v. Adoue, 83 Tex. 650, 657 52
United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Brunet, [1909] A. C. 330, 336, 342-3 47
United States v. Freight Ass'n., 166 U. S. 299 ..... 6, 52
United States v. Knight, 3 Int. Com. Rep. 801 63
United States v. Lapène, 17 Wall. 601 5
United States v. Pacific & Arctic Co., 228 U. S. 87, 106 .. 66
United States v. Prince Line, 220 Fed. Rep., 230 ..... 5, 47
United States v. Terminal Railroad Association, 224 U. S. 383 ..... 34, 56
United States v. Whiting, 212 Fed. Rep. 466 ..... 51, 58
United States v. Winslow, 227 U. S. 202, 216-8 11
Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co., 125 Fed. Rep. 454 46
Wingert v. First Natl. Bank of Hagerstown, 223 U. S. 670 6

STATUTES CITED

Dingley Tariff Act of 1897, sec. 34, 30 Stat. L. 213 64
Sherman Anti-Trust Act, sec. 6, 26 Stat. L. 210 64
Wilson Tariff Act of 1894, secs. 73 and 76, 28 Stat. L. 570 64

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER TERM, 1915

No. 289.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Appellant,

v.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT, et al.

No. 332.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT, et al., Appellants,

v.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

BRIEF FOR AMERICAN, ANCHOR, DOMINION, HOLLAND-AMERICA, RED STAR AND WHITE STAR LINES AND DEFENDANTS COVERLY, FRANKLIN AND GIPS, APPELLEES

STATEMENT

The above named defendants do not appeal from the decree of the District Court, but are here solely as appellees.

The bill was filed January 4th, 1911, in the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, against thirteen Steamship Companies, six of which are British corporations, one Canadian, two German, one Dutch, one Belgian, one Russian, and one, the International Mercantile Marine Company, is a New Jersey corporation. The individual defendants are the New York agents of the several lines.

The bill is summarized at pages 12-18 of the Government's brief. What the Government considers to be the substance of the defense is stated at pages 38-9 of its brief. The answers of the appellees in whose behalf this brief is filed are at 11 R. 66-122.

The substance of the defense detailed in these answers is—and we shall argue here—that neither on the face of the Conference agreement nor in its purposes or effects is it contrary to the Sherman Act; that, so far from being detrimental to the public interest, it is beneficial to the public as well as to the Steamship Lines and is a necessary method of conducting the steamship business; that steerage rates under this agreement are not excessive, but, on the contrary, are reasonable; that the oppressive and illegal acts charged by the Government (which we shall show have not been proved) have no necessary connection with the Conference agreement and in no way affect its validity.

In making this argument we shall keep constantly in mind the guiding principles enunciated by the Chief Justice in the Standard Oil Case, namely, that if a contract unduly restrains trade and thus falls within the condemnation of the Sherman Act it cannot be excepted from its operation by a finding that it was a reasonable contract; that in determining whether the contract is in fact prohibited by the Sherman Act it is proper to consider the facts surrounding its making, as well as the character of the parties; and that injury to the public is the foundation upon which the prohibitions of the statute rest. 221 U. S. 1, 65, 67, 78.

The Decision of the District Court

The opinion of the District Court by Lacombe, C. J., is at 10 R. 5127-33, and is reported in 216 Fed. Rep. 971. It is based on the decisions of this Court in the Standard Oil Case and the American Tobacco Case. Judge Lacombe said (fols. 15387-8):

"To determine whether any particular course of conduct is or is not 'undue' or 'unreasonable,' involves, of course, a consideration of all the surrounding circumstances, which may be multifarious."

He observed that under the same state of facts different decisions might be arrived at as to the reasonableness of certain transactions. As to the facts of this case he found (fols. 15391-3) that fighting ships constituted an unreasonable method of conducting the business. He said (fols. 15393-4) that the testimony did not satisfy the Court that any of the defendants had charged excessive or exorbitant rates for the transportation of passengers "especially when it is considered that vastly more in the way of safety, speed, sanitary conditions, physical comfort, etc., is now given to the passenger than was given to him before these agreements and conferences were entered into". As to the Government's argument with respect to agents he found (fols. 15394-5) that this method of business was unobjectionable, dealing, as it did, "merely with the control of defendants' agents, who are free to accept or decline such agency", and said that in view of the deplorable conditions which existed before it was adopted "it would seem that such an arrangement has greatly benefited the travelling public". On the main subject matter of the controversy, the controlling of transportation so as to allow proportionate shares to the different defendants, he found (fols. 15396-8) that the method adopted by the defendants "is a reasonable one, which so far from restraining trade really fosters and protects it by giving it a stability which insures more satisfactory public service for all concerned".

The Government suggests (Brief, pages 118-24) that the District Court fell into the error pointed out by this Court in the Standard Oil Case, by seeking to remove from the prohibitions of the statute acts which the statute prohibited, by a finding that they were reasonable. We confidently assert that this suggestion can only arise from an utter misapprehension and misunderstanding of the District Court's opinion. Judge Lacombe makes it perfectly clear that his words "course of conduct" refer to the making of the agreement in suit, as well as the acts of the defendants under and outside of that agreement. Thus at fol. 15396 he refers to "the controlling of transportation so as to allow proportionate shares of it to the different defendants," etc., and at fol. 15381 he refers to "the various agreements and conferences which together constitute the combination."

This Has Become a Moot Case

Before proceeding to our argument we deem it proper to direct the attention of the Court to the fact that by the operation of events, as well as by the terms of the agreement itself, the agreement is now dissolved, and there seems to be no longer a subject matter of controversy. As the bill shows, among the parties are corporations of Great Britain, Germany, Belgium and Russia, countries now at war, by reason of which the agreement, being in effect a partnership between these corporations, is absolutely at an end and all further transactions under it are void and illegal. All commercial intercourse between these parties has been prohibited, as can be judicially noticed. Montgomery v. United States, 15 Wall. 395; United States v. Lapène, 17 Wall. 601; 7 Moore's International Law Digest, 244, 250. In United States v. Prince Line, 220 Fed. Rep., 230, 231, 234 Lacombe, C. J., in the District Court for the Southern District of New York, said that a similar agreement between British and German corporations had been practically dissolved by the war, and suggested that the decision of the case was not a determination of live issues, but merely the performance of an autopsy. Under articles 23, 24 and 25 of the agreement, 1 R. 67-72, many things are to be performed in England and in Germany, where obviously they cannot now be performed. By article 27, 1 R. 73, the withdrawal of any Line from the contract releases all other Lines from all future obligations unless the latter agree among themselves to continue the contract.

We need not argue at length that ordinarily this Court will not entertain moot cases or cases in which the issues have already been settled by lapse of time or otherwise. See Richardson v. McChesney, 218 U. S. 487; Bucks Stove etc. Co. v. American Federation of Labor, 219 U. S. 581; Gompers v. Bucks Stove & Range Co., 221 U. S. 418, 451; Wingert v. First Natl. Bank of Hagerstown, 223 U. S. 670; Little v. Bowers, 134 U. S. 547; Board of Flour Inspectors v. Glover, 160 U. S. 170; California v. San Pablo & T. R. Co., 149 U. S. 308; San Mateo County v. Southern Pacific R. R. Co., 116 U. S. 138; Mills v. Green, 159 U. S. 651; Jones v. Montague, 194 U. S. 147. This case is not like United States v. Freight Association, 166 U. S. 290. There, as Mr. Justice McKenna said in Southern Pacific Terminal Co. v. Int. Comm. Comm., 219 U. S. 498, 515, there was an attempt to defeat the purpose of the suit by a voluntary dissolution of the agreement. Here the dissolution took place by operation of law without any act or fault on the part of the defendants.

These defendants, however, do not seek to avoid the decision of this Court if the Court is of opinion that the appeal may properly be entertained.

Results of Congressional Investigation of the Matters Now Before this Court

At the outset of our discussion of the merits we refer to the investigation of the Committee of the House of Representatives on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries under House Resolution 587, 62d Congress, 2nd Session. The resolution directed the Committee "to make a complete and thorough investigation of the methods and practices of the various ship lines * * * engaged in carrying our oversea or foreign commerce * * * and the connection between such ship lines and railroads * * * and to investigate whether any such ship lines have formed any agreements, understandings, working arrangements, conferences, pools, or other combinations among one another, or with railroads, * * * for the purpose of fixing rates * * * or for the purpose of pooling or dividing their earnings, losses, or traffic, or for the purpose of preventing or destroying competition; * * * and said committee shall further investigate whether the conduct or methods or practices of said foreign steamship lines are in contravention of our commercial treaties, or in violation of our laws, and what effect said methods and practices have on the commerce and freight rates of the United States; and shall further investigate what effect such combinations, agreements, understandings, working arrangements and practices * * * of railroads and oversea shipping lines, * * *, if any are found to exist, have on the commerce and freight rates of the United States, and whether the same are in violation of the laws of the United States." (Italics ours.)

The Committee particularly considered the Conference agreement here in suit and investigated the workings of similar agreements throughout the whole steamship world, and the entire investigation was made with a thoroughness that probably has not been surpassed in any Congressional investigation. Substantially all of the evidence in this suit was before the Committee. The conclusions and recommendations of the Committee are given at pages 415-421 of Volume 4 of its report. At pages 416-7 the Committee says:

"It is the view of the Committee that open competition cannot be assured for any length of time by ordering existing agreements terminated. The entire history of steamship agreements shows that in ocean commerce there is no happy medium between war and peace when several lines engage in the same trade. Most of the numerous agreements and conference arrangements discussed in the foregoing report were the outcome of rate wars, and represent a truce between the contending lines. To terminate existing agreements would necessarily bring about one of two results: the lines would either engage in rate wars which would mean the elimination of the weak and the survival of the strong, or, to avoid a costly struggle, they would consolidate through common ownership. Neither result can be prevented by legislation, and either would mean a monopoly fully as effective, and it is believed more so, than can exist by virtue of an agreement. Moreover, steamship agreements and conferences are not confined to the lines engaged in the foreign trade of the United States. They are as universally used in the foreign trade of other countries as in our own. The merchants of these countries now enjoy the foregoing advantages of cooperative arrangements, and to restore open and cutthroat competition among the lines serving the United States would place American exporters at a disadvantage in many markets as compared with their foreign competitors. (Italics ours.)

"Steamship line representatives, as well as the patrons of the lines, were almost a unit in emphasizing to the Committee the importance and necessity of the aforementioned advantages of agreements and conferences, and in asserting that these advantages can only be effected by permitting the several lines in a given trade to co-operate in the regulation of their rates and the expeditious handling of their business. Very few of the many exporters and importers, who communicated with the Committee, were opposed to agreements and conferences in themselves, provided they are fairly and honestly conducted."

The Committee expressed decided views against abolishing steamship agreements and conferences. Although it was specifically directed to investigate whether these agreements were in violation of our laws its report contains no suggestion that such agreements are contrary to the Sherman Act, and in its recommendations the Committee expressly recommends that in order to retain the advantages of these agreements and prevent the abuses complained of they be placed under supervisory control. This is very far from saying that they violate our laws. We emphasize the conclusions of the Committee for the bearing they have on the purpose and necessity of the Conference agreement. The Court below found this report "most persuasive to the conclusion that, in view of the peculiarities of ocean transportation, the method adopted by the defendants—if purged of its obnoxious feature, the fighting ship—is a reasonable one, which so far from restraining trade really fosters and protects it by giving it a stability which ensures more satisfactory public service for all concerned" 10 R., 5133, fol. 15397. (Italics ours.)

FIRST POINT

THE PURPOSE OF THE CONFERENCE AGREEMENT WAS TO PREVENT THE DEMORALIZATION OF OCEAN STEERAGE TRAFFIC AND DESTRUCTION OF THE WEAKER STEAMSHIP LINES WHICH WOULD RESULT FROM RATE WARS AND UNRESTRICTED COMPETITION.

The Government asserts (Brief, page 18) that the fixing of rates is th primary purpose of the Conference agreement. This is hardly true. Rate fixing is only a means of avoiding ruinous competition. The gist of the entire agreement is found in Article I, which reads:

"The Companies before named guarantee to each other the percental participation, as defined and provided for in Article 3 of this Contract, of the entire steerage traffic forwarded by the parties to this Contract from all European Ports to and via the United States of America and Canada and vice versa in vessels owned, leased, chartered or controlled by them without regard to the flag. Excepted are Italian and Oriental passengers forwarded by direct steamers through the Straits of Gibraltar (Oriental passengers mean passengers to or from Greece, Africa and Asia)" 1 R. 51.

Every other material provision of the agreement is directed to the fulfillment of this purpose. The agreement does not purport to apportion the entire steerage traffic of the North Atlantic, but only the traffic "forwarded by the parties to this contract." It fixes the percentage of steerage passengers to which each line is entitled, and provides for payment by a line of compensation for steerage passengers carried in excess of its agreed percentage and for compensation to a line carrying less than its percentage.

The Government has adduced no evidence as to the purpose of the agreement except as it would have purpose inferred from the acts alleged, and has contented itself with the rather frequent characterization of these acts as conspiracy and monopoly. But monopoly inappropriately describes combination under the agreement. It cannot be said that the motive of the defendant lines was to gather to themselves the entire steerage traffic or to drive others lines out of business. They already had virtually the entire steerage traffic and, practically speaking, there were no other lines to be driven out. See United States v. Winslow, 227 U. S. 202, 216-8. For many years prior to the agreement of February 5, 1908, the defendant lines had done business side by side, both under express and tacit agreements of the same nature. The agreement did not effect a consolidation of separate interests.

In considering the purpose of the agreement it should be remembered that the defendant lines serve different European ports and that geographically they are not all natural competitors for all traffic. The British lines principally serve Liverpool, London, Southampton and Glasgow; the German lines, Hamburg and Bremen; and the Holland-America Line, Rotterdam. It is therefore not unnatural that the lines should desire—and the Conference agreement is only the natural outgrowth of this desire—to secure to themselves such fixed proportions of the traffic as experience shows they may reasonably expect to carry by their respective lines to and from the ports at which for many years their respective businesses have been principally centered. If all the lines ran between the same ports a different situation might arise.

The more immediate reasons for making the conference agreement arose from unrestricted competition, rate wars, and the consequent demoralization of ocean trade and destruction of the weaker lines. Mr. Franklin testified, 13 R. 1798:

"Q. You say you have operated under this agreement 'AA.' Just prior to the signing of that agreement in February, 1908—I think it was—February 5th, 1908—what was the condition of things in the steamship business? A. A very serious rate war had been in existence.

Q. For how long? A. I would say, about six or eight months—I believe longer than that.

Q. Did you take any part in that? A. I took part in it and I was at that time representing the lines in the United States.

Q. Describe in a general way what the situation was. A. The situation was such that the rates for third-class passengers were reduced to a basis of ten dollars and in some cases as low as $7.50, which rate included not only the commission but the head tax which was paid out to the Government—being an absolutely demoralized condition of affairs.

Q. It is hardly necessary to ask whether there was any profit in such business? A. That meant that the third-class business was carried at a very serious loss.

Q. Do you know what led to the formation, or the execution of this new agreement in 1908? A. Well, it was unreasonable for the lines to continue such a ruinous fight."

Mr. Lister, of the Cunard Line, testified, 13 R. 1495-7, that for twenty years there had been a series of conferences, practically continuous (fol. 4484), in some of which the notice to terminate was only fourteen days, the result being that any party with a grievance flew to the notice clause and made chaos of the whole business, leading to rate wars and the breaking of all regulations for the conduct of the business (fols. 4485-6); and that Agreement AA was made to "insure more stability in the business" (fol. 4487). He testified (fols. 4488-9):

"Q. Can you state what the effect of rate wars has actually been on the business of the lines? A. The most disastrous effect, not only on the business of the lines, but on everybody concerned; disastrous to the lines in that a very low rate was in operation, disastrous to the passenger in that he did not get all of the comforts that it might have been possible to have given him under different conditions, and disastrous also to the United States, because it encouraged a lot of agents whom the lines, in other times except rate wars, had weeded out of the business drifting in again to the business and endeavoring to book a lot of totally undesirable emigrants."

Mr. Lister further testified that in rate wars he had known third-class rates to be down to £2. and that one line went down to 30 shillings, which meant that a steamship company was doing business at a loss (fol. 4490).

Mr. Cauty, of the White Star Line, particularly well qualified to discuss steerage traffic and steamship business generally, testified very fully as to the reasons for Agreement AA, 12 R. 1090-5. We quote from his testimony at fols. 3271-5:

"Our first agreement we have any record of dates back to 1880, when there was a Scandinavian pool established, which lasted for a short period, I do not remember how long. But from 1880 to 1888 various agreements were in existence, and from 1889 to 1895 was a very strenuous time in the North Atlantic trade. All agreements went by the board, and this period was one of keen competition between all the Atlantic lines. Each line did what they thought best, and rates went down to an absolutely unremunerative level.

Q. Such as, for example? A. Well, I think it went down to £2. I think the rate that Mr. Ismay mentioned is one that has been resorted to in a subsequent rate war. I think we went down to £2. I believe it was 30/—, but I am not sufficiently sure about it to make the statement definitely, but I can safely say £2, and I think the result of this competition is very instructive, because if we look at the list of companies who were engaged in the Atlantic trade in 1880 and those who were left in after this rate war, we find there were a good many names missing. The Inman Line went into liquidation. The Beaver Line got into very serious difficulties, and was subsequently bought up. The Guion Line and the National Line went out of the business. The Warren Line started carrying passengers, but also went out of business, and the State Line was subsequently amalgamated with the Allan. All these troubles arose, I may say, during those six years or thereabouts, and I think the lesson we have to learn from time is that if these conditions had been continued, they had only to be continued long enough for the Atlantic travel and the whole Atlantic trade to be left in the hands of one or two of the strongest companies. When the lines got together in 1895 we do not find any line then standing back. We find everybody very, very anxious to remedy this very unfortunate state of affairs. The lines then got together, and that first agreement in regard to Continental business which has been put in as evidence which allotted the British lines a share of the Continental business, was arrived at, and I may say that that is really the foundation stone of our present agreements. It is true the negotiations have not proceeded along a smooth path always. We have had breaks in our peaceful relations, in 1903 to 1908 we were again more or less at loggerheads with one another. But the fight in those days was comparatively a short one. We only got to reducing rates towards the end of the period, and it was in 1908 that our present agreements were established."

Mr. Cauty is corroborated by Mr. Hannah of the Allan Line Steamship Company, 13 R. 1436-8.

The purpose of the agreement as thus declared by those most competent to know would seem to have been honest and commendable. So far from being an attempt at monopoly, its tendency is to the contrary. It can hardly be doubted that some of the stronger steamship lines, parties to the agreement, could by ruthless competition, had they so desired, have driven out of business the weaker parties. Had monopoly been the object, an agreement whereby the weaker lines were assured of life by being given a certain percentage of traffic, and whereby lines overcarrying were to make compensation to those undercarrying their percentages, would appear to have been about the most ineffective means that could have been chosen to accomplish the desired result.

SECOND POINT

THE PURPOSE OF THE CONFERENCE AGREEMENT AS THUS SHOWN AROSE FROM A REAL NECESSITY, PROVED BY THE TESTIMONY OF STEAMSHIP MEN OF THE WIDEST EXPERIENCE AND THE GOVERNMENT'S OWN WITNESSES.

Necessity is the first law of any business. But the Government takes no account of this. Having instituted this suit before the decision in the Standard Oil Case, it has proceeded throughout on the theory that if any restraint of trade could be shown, whether the public were thereby injured or not, its case would be established.

Nevertheless, this Court will not find the methods of the defendants in conducting their business improper unless some other method less prejudicial to the public can be shown. This country has been and is now almost entirely dependent for its freight and passenger transportation on foreign steamship lines. The welfare of the country demands that the steamship business be conducted and maintained with a high degree of efficiency, and that it be neither hampered nor destroyed.

In considering the questions submitted the Court will bear in mind that conditions on the ocean are entirely different from those on land. Indeed, in this case the physical and geographical conditions are such that the Conference agreement cannot create a monopoly. It is utterly beyond the power of the Conference Lines to keep other lines off the seas or out of the ports, and they have not sought to do so. Given the requisite capital and ships, a new line may in normal times establish itself in business any day and secure such traffic as the natural competition between the total number of lines afloat for the total traffic will permit.

The positive and unanimous opinion of the steamship men who testified, whether witnesses for the Government or for the defendants, based upon experience and reasoning which demand respect, is that Agreement AA and similar agreements are absolutely necessary to the favorable conduct of the steamship business, both from the point of view of the lines and of the public. Mr. Richard, 40 years in the business, who represented various non-conference lines, 12 R. 790, fol. 2369, testified, 12 R. 938, fol. 2812:

"And I was going to say before that if the Court should hold this working agreement illegal the commissioner of general emigration of the United States or some such commissioner as the Interstate Commerce Commission will have to be empowered to fix rates also, otherwise some of the steamers, if not some of the lines, especially the weaker lines, will have to go out of business entirely, with the result that commerce between the United States and Europe will be curtailed."

At page 929, fol. 2786, Mr. Richard said the Conference was good for the weak lines because it protected them and put them on a parity with the stronger lines.

Mr. Cauty, in the business since 1886, 12 R. 1046, said, 12 R. 1096-7, fols. 3287-90:

"My own opinion is undoubtedly that we could not continue to maintain the business on a satisfactory ser-mal level without agreements. I do not think it is possible, the jealousies of the different lines and the different interests are too keen, and given that unrestrained competition and low rates there is only one conclusion that one could expect, and that is the elimination of all the weaker lines and the monopoly in the hands of the stronger lines.

* * * * * *

"Q. What effect do you think that would have upon the character of the services rendered to the traveling public? A. I think the services rendered to the traveling public would be very much curtailed.

* * * * * *

"Q. And frequency of sailings? A. And frequency of sailings and accommodation on board ship would all suffer. In fact, I think that those who cross the Atlantic, those mercantile interests which require constant communication across the Atlantic, would all be very seriously prejudiced by a termination of rate agreements, pooling agreements, between the lines."

Mr. Hannah, 45 years in the business, 13 R. 1432, after stating that he believed it absolutely necessary that there should be understandings among steamship lines by way of regulating competition, said, 13 R. 1436, fols. 4307-8:

"Q. Now go on and tell me why from your experience you believe it necessary? A. The Inman Company, with which I was identified from 1869 until it went out of existence, was at one time one of the most prosperous lines, and it was followed into business by the National Line, established to do the same class of business, and later by the Guion Line. Those three lines were strong lines in the trans-Atlantic trade. They all perished because of unregulated competition. I might add to that also the Monarch Line, which came into business later, and still later the State Line.

So there are five lines that perished in the trans-Atlantic trade. Five out of eight British lines that did not survive."

At page 1449, fol. 4347, Mr. Hannah gave it as his opinion that a line could not be maintained without some stability of rates, and said, page 1450, fol. 4348:

"Many a voyage has been made when the total returns of the voyage are not half of the amount of the disbursements, and the lines kept on as long as they could, hoping that times would change and things would improve and rates would be better and largely from the fact of disagreement amongst themselves and the strong trying to oppress the weak they went out of existence."

At pages 1465-6, fols. 4395-6, Mr. Hannah said:

"Q. The condition which you have spoken of under the conference I think you have said protects the weaker lines, does it not? A. Yes, by a differential rate.

Q. That is, the weaker lines are able to live, whereas they could not live if there wasn't those agreements; is that the idea? A. Exactly, that is the idea.

Q. And those agreements also contemplate, do they not, a certain fixity or stability of rates? A. Yes, they do; stability of rates."

Mr. Lister, 21 years in the business, 13 R. 1493, testified, 13 R. 1517-8, fols. 4549-50, 4552:

"Q. From your experience in the steamship business can you state whether it is possible, under present conditions, to maintain a passenger line from Europe to the United States which shall comply with the requirements of statute in England and in the United States and with the demands of the public unless the passenger rates are practically stable? A. It is absolutely impossible.

* * * * * * *

"Q. From your experience in the steamship business can you state whether it is possible in the North Atlantic passenger trade to maintain stable rates without agreements between the lines? A. You cannot maintain stable rates without agreements between the lines.

Q. And have the lines ever been able to make stable rates without agreements between themselves? A. Never."

After stating his opinion that if agreements between the passenger lines were prohibited the business would become demoralized, Mr. Lister said, 13 R. 1563-4, fols. 4689-90:

"Q. Would such a condition, in your judgment, lead to losses which would result in the retirement of some lines? A. I think it would. You would find that the lines, if there were no agreements, for a time would try and keep a fairly average rate for the carriage of their passengers, but if one line saw then that it was not getting its passengers against another line it would naturally tend to reduce rates and then the battle would be to the strongest, of course."

He continued, fol. 4691, to the effect that the steamship companies themselves, in the absence of any government on the ocean, tried to devise rules for carrying on business and controlling the conditions of traffic on the sea just as a country devises laws for the conduct of passengers and traffic on land, a sort of local self-government of the sea. He said, fol. 4692, that stable rates were every bit as important to the public as to the steamship lines. As bearing on the relation of Agreement AA to the building of new ships, Mr. Lister testified, 13 R. 1502, fols. 4504-6:

"Q. Can you state what effect the making of the AA agreement had in making possible the ordering of those ships? A. Yes, I think I can say that with the AA Agreement behind them the steamship companies felt that they could embark out and build new ships. It is perfectly obvious that if there was no stability in the business we could not embark out and put a lot of capital in new ships. You might enter an agreement which was subject to fourteen days, or even a month's notice, and at any time you might order a ship costing a very large sum of money and directly you have ordered that ship they get a rate war and the natural disorganization that follows a rate war would—we launch the new ship at a time when it was bound to be a most unprofitable undertaking. With the AA agreement the lines feel they have something behind them which enables them to build these new ships, to obtain all the improvements that time shows and to provide better transport for the passengers."

Mr. Franklin, in the business since 1891, 13 R. 1796, testified as follows, 13 R. 1799-1800, fols. 5396, 5397-8, 5399:

"I do not see how the steamship passenger business can be conducted satisfactorily without agreements, just as any other transportation business. It requires agreements.

* * * * * * *

"The necessity is exactly the same as the necessity in the case of the railroads. If the railroads or the steamboats did not have these agreements all the best trains would get all the business and the largest steamers would get all the business and it would mean the survival of the fittest and the man who could put out the greatest number of steamers could control the business.

* * * * * * *

"Q. I want to know what, generally, in your opinion, is the reason for establishing a system similar to 'AA' for third-class passengers? A. If we did not have an agreement similar to 'AA' the line that could put in, from year to year, new steamers, would gradually absorb all the business. The agreement 'AA' gives and retains for the weaker lines their share of the business that they have established."

Speaking of the American Line, he said, 13 R. 1806, fol. 5416:

"Q. What do you say as to the effect on that line of a rate war—a period without agreements among the lines? A. The effect upon that line would have been—a continuation—a rate war would have been a very serious proposition for that line to fight—to have faced.

Q. Why? A. Because it is not a profitable service now and under these conditions they would be running at a very heavy loss."

The cost of ships built in American yards is 40 per cent. greater, and the cost of operation under the American flag is about 30 per cent. greater than the cost of building abroad and of operating foreign ships. As to running such ships without agreements, Mr. Franklin said, page 1808, fols. 5422-3:

"It would be more difficult for a steamer built in America under the American flag to compete with a foreign flag steamer without an agreement, because the American steamer is operating under a very great handicap at any rate.

Q. Such as you have described? A. Such as I have described; in the cost of construction and cost of operation. Now, if she has got to be under a further handicap it is an absolutely impossible proposition."

Speaking broadly as to all lines, Mr. Franklin said, 13 R. 1810, fols. 5430-2:

"Q. Mr. Franklin, from your experience in the steamship business, do you think it possible for passenger lines to be run on the North Atlantic route now in a manner which would conform with statute in the United States and England and which would conform to the requirements of the public unless passenger rates are relatively stable? I mean, for any considerable period of time? A. You could run them, but you would be running the risk of incurring heavy losses; therefore, it depends upon your financial arrangement as to how long you could run them.

Q. Could passenger lines now operating in the North Atlantic be run for any considerable period of time in the manner that the public now require unless the passenger rates were relatively stable? A. Those of the stronger lines that have large interests elsewhere could be run indefinitely, but the weaker lines depending upon the results of operating across the North Atlantic would have to drop out unless reasonable and stable rates were maintained."

Q. Is there any method by which reasonable and stable rates—passenger rates—can be maintained on the high seas, except by agreement of some sort between the lines? A. Not in my opinion."

Referring to the improvement in the quality of steamers, he said, page 1813, fol. 5439:

"The present magnificent steamers would probably not have been constructed if it had not been for the passenger agreements that existed from time to time."

Mr. Winter, in the business since 1885, 13 R. 1730, testified 13 R. 1740, fol. 5218:

"Every rupture we have had has practically had a tendency to bring us together again with a view of establishing stable rates and stable conditions. Without them we cannot favorably conduct the business."

Mr. Straus, in the business 25 years, 12 R. 735, testified 12 R. 773, fol. 2319:

"Q. Now, without some conference agreement, some arrangement between the lines, would it be possible for the lines to build up the present fleet of steamers, differing from your own fleet and retain the regularity of service? A. I don't think it would be possible."

And at page 775, fols. 2324-5:

"Q. Then it would not be possible for steamship lines to maintain the present type of steamer and regularity of sailing, consisting of a steamer almost every day? A. I don't think it would be possible for them to keep it up."

Coming from men of such character and experience, this testimony would in any event be entitled to very great weight. It is, of course, such testimony as men closely identified with the making and administration of Agreement AA would naturally be expected to give. But the testimony is positively corroborated and supported by the unanimous conclusions of the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries of the House of Representatives, quoted supra, page 8.

Against the weight of all this testimony as to the necessity and purpose of the Conference agreement the Government has produced no evidence and now finds itself obliged to rely solely on the legal proposition that mere agreement on rates and pooling are illegal. We submit that proved facts cannot be overcome by the mere assertion of legal propositions.

THIRD POINT

IN CARRYING OUT THE CONFERENCE AGREEMENT THE DEFENDANTS HAVE NOT CHARGED UNREASONABLE OR EXCESSIVE RATES AND HAVE NOT IMPAIRED THE STANDARD OF SERVICE. ON THE CONTRARY, THE RATES ARE AFFIRMATIVELY SHOWN TO BE REASONABLE AND THE SERVICE TO BE IMPROVED.

The Government makes no proof whatever about service. In the Court below it sought strenuously to show that the steerage rates charged were unreasonable and excessive, but apparently has now practically abandoned that attempt. In this Court it contents itself with a foot-note (Brief, page 117) to the effect that certain methods of testing the reasonableness of rates are inconclusive, and with stating that there are grounds for regarding existing rates as excessive. It is undeniably difficult to determine the reasonableness of rates, but the burden is on him who challenges their reasonableness. Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago G. W. Ry., 209 U. S. 108, 120.

The Government now asserts (Brief, pages 2 and 115) that it is unnecessary to show that the rates are unreasonable, and practically rests its entire case for cancellation of the agreement (except as to three collateral matters which we shall discuss in our next point) upon the proposition that any agreement on rates is prohibited by the Sherman Act.

The Government's virtual silence as to service and rates is in itself a strong argument for the defendants. We shall, however, show affirmatively that under the Conference system the rates have been reasonable and the service improved, for these facts have a bearing on the purpose of the agreement and show the absence of injury to the public interest. The reasonableness of rates depends to a large extent on the character of the service and the testimony as to both rates and service is closely correlated.

In the Court below the Government took the position that $21 was a profitable steerage rate. This is the figure to which rates were reduced in the competition between the Conference and non-Conference Lines. Fourman, 11 R. 569, fol. 1707. For the purpose of the Government's argument with respect to fighting steamers this was the low rate which caused the other lines "serious losses" and forced them out of business. Now, either that rate is profitable or it is not. If it is, the non-Conference lines must have given up business for some other reason than low rates made by fighting steamers. If it is not, and the non-Conference Lines were forced out by such a rate, it cannot be argued now that higher rates are excessive.

Mr. Winter of the Cunard Line testified, 13 R. 1750, fols. 5248-9:

"Q. Supposing you had a five thousand ton boat and carried one thousand passengers on that boat at a $21 rate, that rate would not necessarily result in a loss? A. It might.

"Q. Not necessarily? A. The probability would be that it would. One single trip cannot determine the reasonableness of a rate. That is quite impossible. Because you carry one thousand immigrants, that would not enable you to run a boat successfully.

"Q. From your experience it is possible for you to make a profit? A. Not unless the first and second-class cabins and freight would combine to do it.

"Q. Take the ordinary voyage? A. No—$21 would not bring a profit."

Mr. Hannah said, 13 R. 1478-9, fols. 4434-5:

"It is pretty difficult to determine just the loss on a steerage passenger, because, no doubt, as Mr. Ismay or someone else explained, the total earnings of the steamer are taken, the earnings from the cargo, from cabin passengers and second cabin passengers and steerage passengers that take the trip, the voyage, we will say that is all added together; the disbursements for the voyage of the steamer is taken on the other side of the same book and it is either a profit or a loss. A ship may have a large passenger list and still have a loss if she has practically no cargo. So it is very difficult to answer that question yea or nay. It depends on other conditions, whether they would be profitable or unprofitable. For instance, I should think it would be very much better to have a thousand passengers at $25 apiece than one hundred passengers at $35 apiece."

Mr. Thomas said, 12 R. 663, fol. 1987:

"Passengers can be carried on certain classes of ships from $20 up and make money." (Italics ours.)

"Q. Everything depends on the kind of ship it is? A. You could not carry them on the Lusitania."

And Mr. Straus said, 12 R. 774, fol. 2322:

"You will have to have a large number of passengers in order to make any profit out of a rate like $20. The ship must be practically full."

Mr. Thomas said, 12 R. 651, fol. 1953, that the cost of carrying steerage passengers by the Uranium Line was "around about $12"; but at pages 676-7, fols. 2027-9, he testified as follows:

"Q. Now what are the elements again that you have taken into consideration in arriving at your estimate of the cost of carrying steerage passengers, New York to Rotterdam and Rotterdam to New York? A. All of the items, all of the expenses that the ship is put to in carrying those passengers; in other words suppose that ship carried nothing but cargo, there would be no expense at all for passengers; all the additional expense she is put to in carrying passengers, such as stewards, feeding these passengers and stewards, the upkeep and care of the passenger department, but that does not cover the running expenses of the ship, such as the steamship expenses.

"Q. The coal? A. Does not cover the coal, does not cover the crew, except the stewards; does not cover any of the officers, does not cover the insurance, does not cover any port expense, does not cover the depreciation. According to our disbursements account it might show $20 a passenger profit and yet the ship might make a large loss."

And Mr. Cauty testified, 12 R. 1070, fols. 3209-10:

"It varies a great deal according to the number of passengers carried on ship. That does not take into account what we call the steamship expenses, coal, the upkeep of the ship, the engine repairs, insurance, etc."

And at page 1076, fols. 3227-8:

"Q. What elements of cost have you left out of that calculation? A. Well, we have left out the insurance of the ship, for instance, to which all the earnings must contribute. We have left out the establishment charges on shore. We have large offices to maintain. We have left out the running expenses of the ship, the payment of the crews of the deck and engine department, the engine department repairs, and the cost of the coal. I think that is about all that I can think of at the moment.

"Q. Have you taken into consideration the salaries of the various officers? A. No. We only take into consideration the victualling department expense; that is to say, the stewards' wages when actually attending on the people."

The average steerage rate is taken by the Government to be about $35. It has fluctuated between that figure and $30. Winter, 13 R. 1749, fol. 5247. In April, 1908, the lines of the International Mercantile Marine Company reduced their Continental rate to $28, 7 R. 3341, fol. 10022. In July, 1909, the American Line reduced both its British and Continental rates, 8 R. 4106, fol. 12317. Mr. Hannah said the highest rate of the Allan Line was $31.25, 13 R. 1445, fol. 4334.

This rate is lower than the rate of the early days.

Hannah, 13 R. 1440, fols. 4318-9; Richard, 12 R. 932, fol. 2794. Never before has the steerage passenger got so much for his money as now. Lister, 13 R. 1506, fol. 4518; Franklin, 13 R. 1829, fols. 5486-7; Winter, 13 R. 1740, fol. 5219. Yet during the last twenty-five years the expenses of maintaining steamship service, including ship building, wages and provisions and expenses imposed by Government requirements have increased very largely. Lister, 13 R. 1507-14; Hannah, 13 R. 1443, fol. 4328. Mr. Franklin said that the cost of operation with respect to every line, every class of passenger and every part of the business had increased tremendously in the last three years. 13 R. 1803, fol. 5409.

The record contains no end of expert testimony as to the reasonableness of rates. Mr. Richard said: "They are very reasonable." 12 R. 814, fol. 2440. He said that the test of a reasonable rate was the dividends the different companies pay. 12 R. 828, fol. 2483. He also said that he considered $20 an unreasonable rate, and that if such a rate were made the lines would be forced to suspend numbers of their sailings. 12 R. 821, fol. 2462.

Mr. Straus, said:

"A fair reasonable rate in my judgment for third class passengers would be from $35 to $40." 12 R. 774, fol. 2322.

Mr. Hannah said: "I think they are very reasonable considering what is done for the passengers." 13 R. 1445, fol. 4333.

Mr. Franklin testified:

"I consider them extremely reasonable, and I think the recent increased costs justify a further increase in the rate." 13 R. 1829, fol. 5486.

Mr. Lister said: "They are reasonable." 13 R. 1518, fol. 4553.

So far as can be indicated by dividends, rates are certainly not excessive. The dividends of the North German Lloyd from 1892 to 1911 averaged 3.95 per cent. 10 R. 5095, fols. 15283-5; and of the Hamburg-American Line from 1847 to 1912 6.958 per cent. 10 R. 5102, fols. 15305-6. Mr. Lister stated that the average dividend of the Cunard Line for the last ten years has been 3.30 per cent., and since Agreement AA 2.75 per cent. 13 R. 1516, fol. 4547. Mr. Ismay said that some of the older vessels of the International Mercantile Marine Company are carrying passengers at a loss. 12 R. 1026, fol. 3077.

A rate of from $28 to $35 for carriage and maintenance with safety and comfort over a distance of some 3,000 miles exhibits on its face a strong presumption that it is reasonable. The Panama Railroad Company and Steamship Line, owned by the Government itself, charges a $30 steerage rate from New York to Cristobal and Colon, a distance of 1985 miles, which rate Vice-President Drake of that Company says at times is remunerative and at others not. 13 R. 1665-6, fols. 4995-6.

In conjunction with the maintenance of reasonable rates, steerage accommodations and conveniences have increased immeasurably in the last twenty years. Kellermann, 13 R. 1571-7; Hannah, 13 R. 1440-1; Cauty, 12 R. 1089-90. It is unnecessary to quote this testimony at length, since this subject is referred to in more detail in the briefs submitted for other defendants.

In line with these arguments it should not be overlooked that competition between the Conference Lines themselves has not been eliminated.

Mr. Straus of the Russian American Line said, 12 R. 776, fol. 2327:

"We are competing just as much today as we ever did in our lives for every passenger we get."

Mr. Cauty of the White Star Line said that there was competition in every class of the business, and that in the working of the pool a line has to carry approximately its full percentage, and that if it fell behind in making its ships attractive and securing passengers it would suffer in its revenue and would have a difficult case to meet when the renewal of its pool percentage came up for consideration, 12 R. 1088-9, fols. 3262, 3264-5. Mr. Lister of the Cunard Line stated that the various lines are just as eager to get passengers as before Agreement AA, 13 R. 1499, fol. 4496; that the Cunard Line percentage has been increased, 13 R. 1500, fols 4499-4500, and that there is now rivalry between the lines in adding to their fleets, 13 R. 1501, fol. 4502; and Mr. Franklin testified, 13 R. 1802-3, fols.

5406-8, that competition is just as keen as it was before between Conference Lines as well as with the lines outside. The testimony is convincing, and it is common knowledge, that great improvements in safety, speed and comfort have been effected by all the lines in the last few years, and this Court can judicially notice the seemingly endless procession of magnificent steamers which the larger lines have supplied to the traffic.

FOURTH POINT

THE ALLEGED UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION AGAINST LINES NOT PARTIES TO THE CONFERENCE AGREEMENT ARE NO PART OF THE AGREEMENT. THE RULES FOR TICKET AGENTS AND THE SYSTEM OF COMMERCIAL ALLOWANCES OF WHICH THE GOVERNMENT COMPLAINS ARE NEITHER ILLEGAL IN THEMSELVES NOR HAVE THEY BEEN APPLIED TO THE ACCOMPLISHMENT OF ILLEGAL PURPOSES.

The only features of the defendants' conduct in the United States of which the Government makes any serious complaint are (a) fighting ships; (b) rules for agents; and (c) commercial allowances.

It must first of all be observed that these matters are not mentioned in Agreement AA, and in their nature have no necessary connection with it. There is no proof that they have anything whatsoever to do with the agreement or that the doing of the acts mentioned would further its apparent purpose, notwithstanding their being incidents of the business of the various lines parties to the agreement, and notwithstanding also their being mentioned in certain minutes of meetings subsequent to the agreement. Properly considered, therefore, the legality of what may have been done in connection with fighting ships, rules for agents, and commercial allowances, has no bearing upon the legality of the Conference agreement itself. If any one of these features should be held illegal the agreement would still stand. The Court below took this view and merely enjoined the use of fighting ships, leaving the agreement itself in full force. In United States v. Terminal Railroad Association, 224 U. S. 388, 410-11 this Court held that the statute would be vindicated by the elimination of certain administrative abuses.

We shall nevertheless meet the Government's contentions on these points. The District Court having decreed against fighting ships, these defendants do not here contend that they should be permitted to compete in this manner, and we shall only refer to the matter of fighting ships for the purpose of showing that the competition of outside lines was not destroyed as contended for by the Government.

A. THE COMPETITION OF THE RUSSIAN VOLUNTEER FLEET, THE RUSSIAN EAST ASIATIC STEAMSHIP COMPANY AND THE NEW YORK & CONTINENTAL LINE (CONTINUED AS NORTHWEST TRANSPORT LINE AND URANIUM LINE) WAS NOT ELIMINATED BY THE USE OF FIGHTING SHIPS.

In order to meet the competition of these lines the defendant lines reduced the steerage rate on their ships sailing from New York at about the time ships of those lines sailed to about the same figure as that of those lines. The rates, which ranged at various times from $28 down to $21, were not, with one possible exception, undercut by the defendants, and the defendants' rates were sometimes higher. Nyland, 11 R. 459; Lederer, 12 R. 724; Ismay, 12 R. 1021; Cauty, 12 R. 1052, 1110; Lister, 13 R. 1536. Neither did the defendants endeavor to exhaust the traffic by more frequent sailings with low rates, nor did they delay their sailings to meet the sailings of the competing lines named. Passengers have at all times been free to sail by whatever line they chose.

The competition of the Russian Volunteer Fleet, Russian-American Line and the New York & Continental Line had to be met, and the defendant lines had the right to reduce their rates to meet it. Indeed, it is just such competition that the Government is crying for here. Had the lower rates of those lines not been met, the traffic of the defendant lines would have been demoralized for days. Straus, 12 R. 774.

Such a reduction of rates to meet competition evinces no purpose to eliminate competition. Had that been desired it could undoubtedly have been accomplished by any one of the large lines without the coöperation of any other line. Cauty, 12 R. 1109, 1093, fols. 3278-9. The bona fide character of this competition is well stated by Mr. Cauty, 12 R. 1110:

"Mr. Guiler: Mr. Cauty, the fair share of the business you have spoken of as somewhat smaller is like the Irishman's share of the whisky—it is at the bottom? A. Oh, no. It is rather interesting when you hear sympathizers of the Uranium Company saying that the Conference ship was put on with the idea of taking all they can get. What do they think the Uranium ship is put on for? The answer is undoubtedly to get all they can. If we put out a ship at a ten dollar rate you could justly accuse us of attacking her unfairly, because we would be using the resources of the Conference Lines on what was manifestly a ridiculous rate. But we do not do that; we have never done that. The Conference has kept its rate up almost invariably at a higher level than the Uranium Company. It is the Uranium Company that has set the pace and then squealed because something has followed."

We come now to consider the Government's charges with respect to each of these lines:

1. Russian Volunteer Fleet.

Mr. Richard, who represented the Russian Volunteer Fleet from July, 1906 to July, 1908, 12 R. 790, fol. 2370, did not suggest any objection to fighting ships on the part of his Line or that its traffic had thereby been impaired, 12 R. 826-7, fols. 2478-80. He said:

"Q. The Volunteer Fleet went out with full cabin and full steerage? A. Not full steerage. I think we got a fair share, I think we had better than any other conference line.

"Q. And notwithstanding that you thought the conference ought to give you their agents too? A. Yes.

"Q. You thought that would be fair and reasonable? A. Yes, because it was the intention of the Volunteer Fleet to have a weekly service instead of a semi-monthly service. We wanted to get more steamers.

* * * * * * *

"Q. In what respect did you regard it as unfair competition? A. In preventing conference agents from representing the Volunteer Fleet. That was my sole objection to it." (Italics ours.)

That Line did not go out of business, but only out of the Trans-Atlantic business. Winter, 13 R. 1760, fol. 5280. There may have been many reasons for its discontinuance, and for anything that appears it may have withdrawn because it found more profitable trade elsewhere. In a letter dated January 25, 1911, 12 R. 820, Admiral Radloff, then President of the Russian Volunteer Fleet, stated that "The Committee of the Russian Volunteer Fleet had decided to suspend their Libau-New York line for reasons of their own that had nothing in common with the attitude taken by the Pool."

The Government states (Brief, page 30) that the vessels of the Volunteer Fleet were "especially fitted for the North Atlantic steerage traffic." But Mr. Fourman testified on direct-examination, 11 R. 551, fol. 1653, that these vessels were built originally for the Far Eastern traffic between the Black Sea and Vladivostock. Mr. Richard said they were expensive vessels to run and that one of them, the old Prince Bismarck of the Hamburg Line, was not especially fitted or equipped for a mechanical running in the North Atlantic under modern conditions, 12 R. 818, fol. 2453. Mr. Gips said that they were good, "at least the speed." 11 R. 485, fol. 1455.

The Government also contends (Brief, page 30) that Conference Line agents made misrepresentations as to the service of the Volunteer Fleet. The only proof cited is a letter written by C. B. Richard & Co. to the effect that an agent had written them saying that two well known Conference agents had approached a reverend gentleman of responsibility after he had bought a ticket by the Russian Volunteer Line and told him that that Line was not fit to send his dog by, had poor steamers and served unfit food. 11 R. 208, fol. 624. This proof is of equal weight with Mr. Richard's complaints against agents' remarks that the steamers were unseaworthy and had been shot full of cannon balls during the Russo-Japanese war and would be liable to sink at any time. 12 R. 797, fol. 2390. When asked if any further remarks were made Mr. Richard said "It is so long ago I don't recollect." 12 R. 797, fol. 2391. The Government cannot seriously contend that this silly talk of ticket agents is evidence of a purpose on the part of the Conference Lines to destroy the business of the Russian Volunteer Fleet.

2. Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company or Russian American Line.

The contention with respect to this Line is not that it was forced out of business, but that it was forced into the Conference, and this by the identical methods which it is claimed drove the Russian Volunteer Fleet out of the North Atlantic trade! When upon the admission of the Russian American Line to the Conference its percental share of the traffic eastbound was fixed at 2½ and 3 per cent., 5 R. 2683-4, the Conference Lines were very far from showing a purpose to secure all the traffic for themselves.

Mr. Straus testified that the reason this Line sought admission to the Conference was to have the benefit of the reliable agents of the Conference, 12 R. 765-6, fols. 2295-6, and that it felt confident that it could win its way into the Conference. 12 R. 749, fol. 2245. He suggested no objection on its part to fighting ships.

3. New York & Continental Line, Northwest Transport Line and Uranium Line.

These three lines, which in reality represent only one continuous line, are alleged to have been oppressed and put to serious losses by the same methods which the Government alleges were used against the Russian Volunteer Fleet and the Russian American Line. The evidence as to this, however, is entirely vague and indefinite and is expressly contradicted. Mr. Fourman could not remember whether rates were reduced against the New York & Continental Line, 11 R. 561, fol. 1682, and Mr. Thomas testified, 13 R. 1703, fol. 5107:

"So far as the New York-Continental is concerned the only opposition we had was the new Hamburg Line, which belongs to the Hamburg-American Line."

This new Hamburg Line, according to the best information Mr. Thomas could give, was operated by the Hamburg American Line, 12 R. 645, fol. 1935.

As to the Northwest Transport Line the evidence is, if possible, even more flimsy. There is no evidence that that Line lost money, or that if it did such loss was in any way due to the Conference Lines. The fact that C. B. Richard & Co. retained the money for prepaid tickets in order to have money to refund to purchasers in case the Line went out of business, Straus, 12 R. 766, fol. 2298, indicates that they regarded it as somewhat irresponsible financially.

With regard to the Uranium Line the evidence is of the same nature. Mr. Thomas said he knew nothing about the financial end of the Uranium Line, except that he could tell when a ship makes money. 13 R. 1713, fol. 5137. At page 1709, fol. 5125, he said he believed the Line was making money, and at page 1698, fol. 5093, he said that for quite a while now the Line has been profitable.

The lowest rate at which the Uranium Line and the others mentioned did business in competing with the Conference Lines, $21, is the rate at which the Government strenuously contended below that steerage traffic could be profitably carried by all the Lines. If higher rates are excessive why should it be contended that the Uranium Line thus suffered severe losses?

Conceding, as it must, that the Uranium Line has not been driven out of business, the Government suggests (Brief, page 33) that it is only saved from insolvency by the fact that certain of its wealthy stockholders guarantee its obligations. The testimony of Mr. Richard, 12 R. 822; Mr. Cauty, 12 R. 1094; Mr. Thomas, 13 R. 1693-1701, and Mr. Smith, 13 R. 1721-7, sufficiently proves that it is a railroad-owned or controlled line and but a mask for the Canadian Northern Railway Company. The financial responsibility of the Uranium Line is somewhat indicated by the fact that Mr. Thomas "may have thought it was a good thing" to have his contract with the Line guaranteed by Mr. Hannah, 13 R. 1696, fol. 5087, who is the third Vice-President of the Canadian Northern Railway Company, 13 R. 1693, fol. 5079.

If figures would have supported the Government's charge that these various lines were robbed of their just share of traffic by fighting ships, it may be assumed that it would have called attention to such figures, as they could readily have been compiled from the Trans-Atlantic Passenger Movement Tables for the years 1906 to 1911, which the Government put in evidence, 2 R. 593-1041, and from the table for 1912, put in evidence by the defendants, 10 R. 5096. A careful analysis of these tables by the solicitors for the North German Lloyd, at page 28 of their brief, shows conclusively that throughout the period of competition of which the Government complains, the ships of the outside lines secured on an average, trip by trip, well up to the number of steerage passengers carried by any of the Conference Lines, and in many instances even a higher average than the Conference Lines. Government Exhibit 159 (Brief, page 34) is worthless for lack of analysis and comparison with other lines.

According to Mr. Cauty's statement of eastbound steerage traffic, 12 R. 1095, fol. 3285,

"In 1908 the non-pool Lines carried 9.09 per cent. of the business; in 1909, 6.46; in 1910, 11.13; in 1911, 12.77; in 1912, up to July 31, they carried 9.84. The carryings probably of the eastbound business are, of course, much stronger in the second half of the year."

The Holland-America Line statement of eastbound steerage passengers secured by the New York & Continental Line from April to August, 1908, 7 R. 3804, fol. 11410, shows:

"Volturno	from New York	April 12th.....	472
"Avoca	from New York	May 5th.....	745
"Jelunga	from New York	May 10th.....	721
"Volturno	from New York	June 6th.....	321
"Jelunga	from New York	June 20th.....	259
"Jelunga	from New York	July 28th.....	300
"Volturno	from New York	Aug. 22nd.....	302

From these facts it is a fair and reasonable conclusion that these three outside lines were not driven out of business by the so-called fighting ships. It is undoubtedly true that the outside lines made less profit than if there had been no such competition; but that is an incident of all competition, and such a detriment to a line, so long as it is not ruinous, is not a detriment to the public, but rather a boon.

B. Rules for Agents.

The petition alleges that pursuant to and in furtherance of the alleged conspiracy the defendants agreed "that no one of them shall continue in its employ as agent for the sale of tickets over its line any person who shall act as agent for the sale of third class or steerage tickets over any independent line in competition with said defendants' lines."

and that this measure was employed as a part of the alleged illegal and oppressive attack on the Northwest Transport Line. 11 R. 32, fol. 95. The agreement alleged is in substance Rule 9 of the Agency Rules, 1 R. 219, fol. 655. As to its being put in force to oppress the Northwest Transport Line, the evidence shows that it existed many years before that line came into existence and before Agreement AA, dating back to November, 1879. Richard, 12 R. 930, fols. 2789-90. The whole body of rules of which that is a part, 1 R. 216-21, was adopted for the proper conduct of the business of the lines. The need for effective control over ticket agents is shown by the testimony of Mr. Hannah, 13 R. 1451-4, 1489-91, and Mr. Winter, 13 R. 1731-9.

Enforcement of these rules for agents constituted Mr. Richard's sole objection to Conference Line methods. 12 R. 827, 930, fols. 2480, 2789. Perhaps his objection arose partly from the fact that the Russian Volunteer Fleet, of which he was agent, wished to establish a weekly service and thought it only fair that the Conference should give that line the benefit of its agents. 12 R. 827, fol. 2470.

As a mere means of business protection, the lines would seem to have a right to control their agents, in view of the testimony of Mr. Straus that before joining the Conference the Russian-American Line would offer Conference agents more commission than it did its own "in order to induce them to put some of their business over our line." 12 R. 760, fol. 2279. In such methods Mr. Richard admitted that he cooperated with Mr. Straus, and did all he could "to seduce the agents of the Conference," and that in some instances he succeeded. 12 R. 814, fols. 2441-2. Mr. Richard did not think it would be unreasonable for a railroad ticket office to refuse to sell the tickets of a competing railroad. 12 R. 814, fol. 2442.

The Government complains of the disqualification and fining of agents for violation of the agency rules, but has brought no agent to testify in complaint of any treatment received or to deny the justice of such disqualification or fining. Agents have not been arbitrarily disqualified and have been given the option to remain in the service of the Conference Lines. 8 R. 4040. Nor are they disqualified except by the consent of all the lines. 8 R. 4189, fol. 12567. Appendix II to Agreement AA provides that an agent cannot be disqualified by the lines unless the line employing him proposes the disqualification. 1. R. 78, fol. 232.

The Government suggests that the purpose of Rule 9 was to prevent outside lines from securing the services of agents and to secure a monopoly of the steerage traffic through control of the agents who direct the supply. The purpose seems rather to have been to secure and retain trustworthy agents for themselves. If the argument suggested were forced to its logical conclusion the Conference Lines would be obliged to afford other lines the services of their agents, for failure to do which the securing of traffic through such agents would constitute a monopoly. A complete answer to such an argument is that the Conference Lines have not cornered, or sought to corner, the available supply of persons fit and willing to act as agents. Any agent is free to choose whether he will represent a Conference or a non-Conference Line. It is of no legal consequence that it may be more profitable to represent a Conference Line. The business success of one line and its agents has no bearing on the methods and persons by which another line and its agents can secure business.

Nobody doubts that any one and all of the defendants may themselves refuse to sell tickets for competing lines. They need not put agents in the field at all, and if they do may allow themselves to be represented on such terms as they desire. They may all choose the same person for their agent, and make it a condition of his employment that he does not at the same time represent other persons. If they were all represented by separate agents upon condition that the respective agents should not serve other persons, a practice quite usual and entirely proper, the effect upon the business of the outside lines would be no different from that complained of. Neither in law nor in morals are the Conference Lines required to allow their agents to aid their competitors. This would place agents in an inconsistent position. So long as the non-Conference Lines have an opportunity to sell tickets either directly or through agents, and the public has every opportunity to buy such tickets in preference to those of Conference Lines—and such opportunity is not questioned—there is no restriction of passenger traffic and no restraint of trade.

It is no restraint of trade to restrict the sale of goods to customers who will refrain from handling the goods of competitors. Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co., 125 Fed. Rep. 454 (C. C. A., 8th Circ. 1903). By like reasoning there can be no objection to restricting the activities of an agent to the business of a single employer. This situation does not differ in principle from those cases where it is held that rebates in exchange for exclusive trading do not contravene the Sherman Act. See In re Greene, 52 Fed. Rep. 104, 117, decided by Jackson, C. J., later Mr. Justice Jackson; In re Terrell, 51 Fed. Rep. 213, 215; In re Corning, 51 Fed. Rep. 205, 211-12; United States v. Prince Line, 220 Fed. Rep. 230; Lough v. Outerbridge, 143 N. Y. 271. In Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. Park & Sons Co., 220 U. S. 373, an elaborate scheme for regulating the price of medicines to retailers and the public was declared to be in restraint of trade, but it appears from the opinion of Mr. Justice Hughes and the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Holmes at page 411, that had the retail dealers been made agents in law of the plaintiff the prices could have been thus controlled. In United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Brunet, [1909] A. C. 330, 336, 342-3, the Privy Council upheld as not in restraint of trade leases of shoe machinery whereby the lessee became bound not to use the machinery in the manufacture of shoes the various parts of which were not made by machinery also leased from the lessor. Lord Atkinson said, page 343:

"The respondents are at liberty to hire or not to hire the appellants' machines, as they choose, irrespective altogether of the injury the refusal to deal may inflict upon others. The same privilege entitles the appellants to dispose of the products they manufacture on any terms not in themselves illegal, or not to dispose of their products at all, as they may deem best in their own interests, irrespective of the like consequences."

From these considerations we think it fairly results that the agency system of the Conference Lines does not restrain trade and has not caused injury either to the public interest or to the outside lines.

C. Commercial Allowances.

The Government sees evil in the failure of some non-Conference Lines to secure railroad commercial allowances. For such failure there may have been various reasons on the part of the railroads themselves with which the Conference Lines are not shown to have had any connection. Some non-Conference Lines have received the allowances. Mr. Straus testified that before the Russian East Asiatic Line entered the Conference in 1908 it received allowances, in many instances more than the Conference Lines received, 12 R. 754-5, fols. 2262-3. But however the fact may be, or whatever the reasons, we do not perceive the bearing of these allowances on the charges of monopoly and conspiracy.

The petition makes no charge with respect to commercial allowances, and they are not mentioned in Agreement AA. We do not understand that it is here intended to question the act of the railroads in paying such allowances. The railroads are not parties to this suit. The subject would seem to be entitled to no consideration here. The arguments advanced against them are quite immaterial so far as showing a tendency to restrain trade is concerned. There is no showing that the movement of passengers is in any way restricted on account of such allowances.

Commercial allowances were not forced from the railroads as part of a conspiracy, but they had their origin about 1886 in the competitive struggle by the railroads for immigrant business. McCain, 12 R. 855, fol. 2565; part of the consideration being services and financial risks assumed by the steamship companies, McCain, 12 R. 875, 877, fols. 2625, 2631. It is hardly an objection to such payments that the steamship lines have to employ agents anyway. They result in a convenience to the immigrant, in that he can buy his ticket through for cash, McCain, 12 R. 861, fol. 2581. Once arrived in this country, an immigrant may travel by any railroad for which he expresses a preference, McCain, 12 R. 856, fol. 2568. The immigrant traffic is apportioned among the railroads by the railroads themselves, and the steamship lines have nothing to do with the apportionment, McCain, 12 R. 863, fol. 2588. The agreement between the railroads pursuant to which the apportionment is made was considered by the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1904, in In re Transportation of Immigrants from New York, 10 I. C. C. Rep. 13, and the Commission refused to condemn it.

FIFTH POINT

THE SHERMAN ACT DOES NOT PROHIBIT AGREEMENTS AS TO STEERAGE RATES AND DISTRIBUTION OF STEERAGE TRAFFIC IRRESPECTIVE OF THE PURPOSE AND EFFECT OF SUCH AGREEMENTS AND THE CONDITIONS AND CIRCUMSTANCES UNDER WHICH THEY ARE MADE. THE ACT DOES NOT COME INTO OPERATION UNTIL THE PUBLIC INTEREST IS ADVERSELY AFFECTED.

Up to this point we have sought to show that the purpose and effect of the conference agreement, by reason of the conditions and circumstances surrounding its making and the peculiar geographical and physical conditions under which steerage traffic is carried on, were not unduly to restrain trade and injure the public, but were to prevent ruinous competition between the parties to it, and consequently to benefit the public.

The Government takes no account of these circumstances and conditions nor of the purpose of the agreement which they illuminate. It will have nothing but "combination and conspiracy", as to which—thus begging the whole question of law on this appeal—it contends that neither the good done in stabilizing the business nor the fact of reasonable rates charged is any defense (Brief, pages 43-4). We do not say that if there is a conspiracy to restrain trade within the terms of the Sherman Act as interpreted by this Court it can be excused by a showing that the business has thereby been stabilized and reasonable rates are charged. Our contention, based squarely on the doctrine of the Standard Oil Case and subsequent cases on which the Government itself lays emphasis (Brief, pages 21-2), is that the purpose to stabilize the business and thus prevent disastrous results both to the steamship lines and to the public, together with the fact that in doing this the rates have been kept reasonable and the service improved, must be considered in determining, by the light of reason, whether the agreement is in effect a conspiracy prohibited by the statute.

First, as to the alleged conspiracy to fix rates, we challenge the Government's statement (Brief, page 80) that price-fixing agreements among competitors are "in restraint of trade and illegal". Under the language quoted from Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. Park & Sons Co., it appears that with the fixing of prices there must be a purpose to destroy competition; and that decision implies that if there is any other purpose consistent with the public interest the price-fixing agreement will not be void. Under the Standard Oil Case, referred to on the same page, the price-fixing agreement must be an unreasonable restraint.

The authorities sustain the right of competitors to make reasonable rate-fixing agreements. As Morton, D. J., said in United States v. Whiting (D. C. Mass.), 212 Fed. Rep. 466, 474-5:

"That prices were affected by the alleged agreement seems by itself not enough to render the agreement unreasonable. 23 Harv. Law Rev. 541, citing many cases. The very object of agreements as to price and of most business combinations is to affect prices; if that alone invalidates them, all such agreements and most combinations are either nugatory or unlawful. The only combination permitted would be one which was of advantage to its members simply by reducing the cost of the goods sold; but this seems a shadowy and impractical distinction; it has never, so far as I am aware, been adopted by any court.

* * * * * *

"The public has no right to unrestricted competition among all the persons engaged in any given business, nor to the benefit of prices produced by such competition."

Judge Morton cited Texas Standard Oil Co. v. Adoue, 83 Tex. 650, 657, where it was said:

"If the object of the contract had been merely to provide in good faith a uniformity of prices among the parties thereto to avoid unhealthy fluctuations in the market, or if the contract had contemplated a joint and mutual association between the parties for the common benefit in the nature of a partnership, and had simply fixed the prices at what they considered the business would bear, instead of combination between independent manufacturers and dealers for the purpose of at least destroying all competition between themselves, then there might have been nothing in such an arrangement which the courts could denounce as pernicious and forbidden by law."

Demoralization of rates has been frowned upon by this Court. Bitterman v. Louisville & Nashville R. R. Co., 207 U. S. 205, 223-4.

In United States v. Freight Ass'n., 166 U. S. 290, 369, the Chief Justice in his dissenting opinion quoted approvingly from a report of the Interstate Commerce Commission as follows:

"When competition degenerates to rate wars, they are as unsettling to the business of the country as they are mischievous to the carriers, and the spirit of existing law is against them."

And at page 364 et seq. he excerpted from a report of the Interstate Commerce Commission statements

"indicating that agreements among carriers, competitive as well as connecting, for the purpose of securing a uniform classification and preventing of undercut-ting of rates, underbilling, etc., existed prior to the Interstate Commerce Act, were continued thereafter, and were deemed not to be forbidden by law, but, on the contrary, were considered as instruments tending to secure its successful evolution."

See also the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Holmes in Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. Park & Sons Co., 220 U. S. 373, 412-3; Dolph v. Troy Laundry Machinery Co., 28 Fed. Rep. 553, 555-6; Attorney General v. Adelaide S. S. Co. [1913] A. C. 781, 809-10; Northwestern Salt Co. v. Alkali Co. [1914] A. C. 461, 469.

In the case last named Lord Chancellor Haldane said:

"Unquestionably the combination in question was one the purpose of which was to regulate supply and keep up prices. But an ill-regulated supply and unremunerative prices may, in point of fact, be disadvantageous to the public. Such a state of things, may, if it is not controlled, drive manufacturers out of business, or lower wages, and so cause unemployment and labour disturbance. It must always be a question of circumstances whether a combination of manufacturers in a particular trade is an evil from a public point of view. The same thing is true of a supposed monopoly."

In a learned article on "Criminal Conspiracies in Restraint of Trade," 23 Harvard Law Review, at page 541, it is said with respect to the civil validity of contracts fixing the prices of commodities, dividing up territory for the sale of commodities among competitors, and the like (with the citation of many cases):

"The Courts will enforce such contracts if they are reasonable even though trade is restrained, prices are fixed, and competition is reduced."

Second, as to the alleged conspiracy to pool steerage traffic, which the Government regards as subordinate to rate fixing (Brief, page 18), exactly the same considerations as mentioned in the above cited authorities apply. None of the cases cited by the Government (Brief, pages 82-3) presented similar circumstances or a similar form of agreement to those presented by this case. The only authority on which the Government lays emphasis is United States v. United States Steel Corporation (223 Fed. Rep. 55). But the language of that case as to pools on its facts is not inconsistent with the authorities we have cited.

It should be noted that the Conference agreement, although frequently called a pool agreement, is not in reality a pool at all in the sense that the term has been known in this country. See In re Pooling Freights, 115 Fed. Rep. 588. It does not pool either earnings or traffic. None of the parties give up any traffic to any other parties, but the percentages were fixed at what each of the parties could reasonably expect to secure under ordinary circumstances entirely apart from the agreement. As we have shown (supra, pages 11-12) not all the parties are natural competitors for the same traffic and the agreement was in effect an undertaking that the parties would not seek unduly to deprive each other of the traffic to which they were already naturally entitled, and was not at all a voluntary giving up of traffic in consideration of compensation. The provision for compensation to lines undercarrying their percentages did not contemplate a gift to drones, in order that the more active and powerful lines should gather all the traffic to themselves, and the record shows that undercarrying lines were urged to take steps to increase their steerage traffic when they had fallen below their percentages, and that this was done by the lowering of rates. 7 R. 3341, fol. 10022; 8 R. 4106, fol. 12317. The Government can point to no instance where any line a party to this agreement lessened its activity to secure passengers or withdraw any of its ships from service. Compensation was to be paid only after a line, in spite of its best activity, could not secure its percentage, and not as a reward for remaining idle.

The test of whether the Conference agreement is illegal is whether the public interest is thereby adversely affected. As the Chief Justice said in the Standard Oil Case, 221 U. S. 1, 78:

> "In applying remedies for this purpose, however, the fact must not be overlooked that injury to the public by the prevention of an undue restraint on, or the monopolization of trade or commerce is the foundation upon which the prohibitions of the statute rest."

This doctrine was reiterated in the American Tobacco Case, 221 U. S. 106, 179; and in Dr. Miles Medical Company v. Park & Sons Co., 220 U. S. 373, 406,

Mr. Justice Hughes quoted from Gibbs v. Baltimore Gas Co., 130 U. S. 396, 409:

" 'Public welfare is first considered, and if it be not involved, and the restraint upon one party is not greater than protection to the other party requires, the contract may be sustained. The question is, whether, under the particular circumstances of the case and the nature of the particular contract involved in it, the contract is, or is not, unreasonable.' "

In United States v. Terminal Railroad Association, 224 U. S. 383, 395, Mr. Justice Lurton said that whether the unification of the terminal facilities of St. Louis was a facility in aid of interstate commerce or an unreasonable restraint

"will depend upon the intent to be inferred from the extent of the control thereby secured over instrumentalities which such commerce is under compulsion to use, the method by which such control has been brought about and the manner in which that control has been exerted."

At page 405 Mr. Justice Lurton continued:

"It cannot be controverted that, in ordinary circumstances, a number of independent companies might combine for the purpose of controlling or acquiring terminals for their common but exclusive use. In such cases other companies might be admitted upon terms or excluded altogether. If such terms were too onerous, there would ordinarily remain the right and power to construct their own terminals. But the situation at St. Louis is most extraordinary, and we base our conclusion in this case, in a large measure, upon that fact."

This doctrine has an important bearing on this case in view of the conditions and circumstances under which we have shown that the Conference agreement was made and the Trans-Atlantic steerage traffic is carried on.

Another decision of this Court, even more specific to the effect that all the circumstances must be taken into consideration, is Texas & Pac. Railway v. Interstate Com. Com., 162 U. S. 197. There the Railway Company was charged with a violation of the Interstate Commerce Act for unjust discrimination in having accepted as its pro rata share of through freight rates from foreign ports an amount less than the local rate between inland points. The Railway Company alleged that in order to secure foreign traffic it was necessary to give through rates from the places of shipment to the places of final destination, and that in fixing these rates it was controlled by an ocean competition (page 216). The Interstate Commerce Commission directed that the Railway Company desist from distinguishing in its charges between foreign and inland traffic, justifying its decision on the ground that it was forbidden to consider the "circumstances and conditions" attendant upon foreign traffic. Mr. Justice Shiras for this Court said, page 218:

"We read the [Interstate Commerce] act in question to direct the Commission, when asked to find a common carrier guilty of a disregard of the act, to take into consideration all the facts of the given case—among which are to be considered the welfare and advantage of the common carrier, and of the great body of the citizens of the United States who constitute the consumers and recipients of the merchandise carried; and that the attention of the Commission is not to be confined to the advantage of shippers and merchants who deal at or near the ports of the United States, in articles of domestic production. Undoubtedly the latter are likewise entitled to be considered; but we cannot concede that the Commission is shut up by the terms of this act to solely regard the complaints of one class of the community."

And at page 219 his language exactly fits the case at bar:

"The very terms of the statute, that charges must be reasonable, that discrimination must not be unjust, and that preference or advantage to any particular person, firm, corporation or locality must not be undue or unreasonable, necessarily imply that strict uniformity is not to be enforced; but that all circumstances and conditions which reasonable men would regard as affecting the welfare of the carrying companies, and of the producers, shippers and consumers, should be considered by a tribunal appointed to carry into effect and enforce the provisions of the act."

The force of the Chief Justice's language in the Standard Oil Case, that injury to the public "is the foundation upon which the prohibitions of the statute rest", is strikingly illustrated by the case of United States v. Whiting, supra, where Judge Morton thus defined unreasonable restraint (212 Fed. Rep. at page 475):

"In order to make a restraint unreasonable, it must, it seems to me, appear either (1) that the normal volume of interstate trade has been interfered with by artificial agencies affecting to a substantial degree, to the disadvantage of the public the prices or supply of the product, commodity or business which is the subject of the alleged restraint, and going beyond what is fairly required for the proper protection of the parties accused; or (2) that by means of a combination or agreement between the parties concerned, either by themselves alone or in connection with others, the price or supply of the product, commodity, or business which is alleged to be the subject of undue restraint, is or may be affected to a substantial extent to the disadvantage of producers or purchasers, so as thereby to operate in a material degree to the injury of the public, and beyond what can fairly be said to constitute a proper protection for the parties to the alleged combination or agreement; or (3) that there has been direct and intentional interference with the transportation of commodities between the states." (Italics ours.)

That case was an indictment under the Sherman Act on account of an agreement to destroy competition and keep up prices. Although by reason of the positive allegations of the indictment it was sustained on demurrer, Judge Morton emphasized the fact that the price agreement in order to be objectionable must work injury to the public. No person can be held guilty for taking what are merely reasonable steps to protect his business so long as he does not at the same time injure the public. What amounts to a public injury does not, of course, differ as the particular case in which the question arises may be civil or criminal.

We have already shown that the public interest is not injuriously affected by the Conference agreement or by the methods by which the defendant lines are now conducting their business. They do not seek to drive any existing outside lines from the steerage trade, and there is no evidence that new interests are prevented from entering the trade by the attitude of the defendants. The fourth head of the Government's argument (Brief, pages 91-106) is without merit. Each case must stand on its own facts. None of the cases cited by the Government show any controlling similarity with the case at bar. Generally speaking, they were all cases where there was either a consolidation of previously competing interests, or an attempt to drive competitors out of business, the necessary effect of which under the circumstances there shown was the complete elimination of competition to the injury of the public.

SIXTH POINT

CONGRESS DID NOT INTEND BY THE SHERMAN ACT TO REGULATE PASSENGER TRAFFIC WITH FOREIGN NATIONS OR TO CONDEMN TRAFFIC AGREEMENTS BETWEEN OCEAN CARRIERS.

The Government argues at considerable length that Congress has power, and that in enacting the Sherman Act it intended, to make foreign passenger traffic subject to its terms. We do not dispute either the power or intent of Congress to regulate any acts with respect to foreign commerce which take place within the boundaries of the United States. Neither do we dispute the power of Congress to regulate, within the limits recognized by comity and by international law, foreign commerce beyond our boundaries. What we do contend is that Congress did not by enacting the Sherman Act intend to declare the power which the Government now seeks to exercise. This question is discussed fully in the briefs submitted by other counsel, and we shall therefore state our contentions very briefly.

In the first place, the Sherman Act is a penal statute and must be presumed to have no extra-territorial effect. It provides that it shall be a misdemeanor punishable by fine and imprisonment to combine in restraint of commerce with foreign nations. Although this proceeding is equitable in form, it is for the enforcement of a penal statute, and an injunction is not authorized unless the defendants have committed the offense which has been created a misdemeanor. When the statute was enacted there was a subject matter to which the words "foreign commerce" referred without applying it to transportation beyond our shores. In Coe v. Erroll, 116 U. S. 517, it was held that goods are in foreign commerce as soon as their transportation from an inland place to their foreign destination begins. Obviously such foreign commerce while moving in a state might become the subject of a combination between carriers within the State to restrain or monopolize it. The application of the Sherman law to such a combination presents no difficulties. Unless the express words of the statute unmistakably apply to transportation beyond our shores they should therefore be confined to such foreign commerce as is conducted within our borders.

In the second place, the history of the times when the Sherman Act was passed shows that the country was suffering from dangers arising from unrestrained combination of capital in industrial business within the country. Neither in Congress nor out of Congress does there appear to have been any suggestion that combinations of ocean carriers were an evil which threatened our prosperity. See Holy Trinity Church v. United States, 143 U. S. 457, 472. This silence, however, could not have been due to any ignorance of the fact that combinations and agreements between ocean carriers had long been recognized by the great ship-owning countries as a necessary and proper method of conducting the business. The famous case of Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor had been decided by the English Court of Appeal in 1889 (23 Q. B. D. 598, aff'd. [1892] A. C. 25). It was well known that foreign ship owners united in combinations. Notwithstanding this, no reference whatever was made to these combinations and to this method of conducting ocean transportation. The reason is obvious. The United States was then and for a long time prior to the passage of the Sherman Act had been compelled, as it is now, to rely almost wholly upon foreigners to conduct its ocean transportation. Those foreign shipowners and their ships were, of course, governed by the laws of their own countries.

Effective regulation of commerce depends upon power to regulate at both ends. Over interstate commerce the Federal Government has this power, but over passenger traffic, originating in Germany, France, Holland or Great Britain, it has no power, unless and until the same reaches our ports. Westbound traffic is subject to the regulating power of the Governments named, and it is inconceivable that in the absence of international agreement the business organization under which an ocean carrier may engage in business should be subject to the control at the same time of both Great Britain or Germany, for instance, and the United States. See the Passenger Cases, 7 How. 392, 399; Covington, etc., Bridge Co. v. Kentucky, 154 U. S. 204; U. S. v. Knight, 3 Int. Com. Rep. 801. The regulating power of Congress would necessarily in any event be confined to eastbound traffic originating at United States ports.

The Government suggests that this country could prohibit foreign steamship lines from carrying on commerce with the United States unless they complied with any conditions prescribed by the United States. This is true only to the extent that the conditions imposed were rational and reasonable, and, as Secretary of State Bayard said in the case of Cutting, 2 Moore's International Law Digest, 242, with respect to the entry of foreigners into a country:

"No condition can be regarded as rational, or as consistent with those amicable relations which nations should seek to cultivate and foster, that derogates from the sovereignty and exclusive jurisdiction of foreign states over their own territory."

It is, of course, not to be presumed that Congress intended to impose unreasonable conditions in the absence of express words.

In the third place, subsequent anti-trust provisions show that in passing the Sherman Act Congress never had in mind the regulation of steerage traffic. By sections 73 and 76 of the Wilson Tariff Act of 1894, 28 Stat. L. 570, continued in force by section 34 of the Dingley Tariff Act of 1897, 30 Stat. L. 213, trusts and combinations in the importation of foreign goods were forbidden and declared illegal, thus indicating that Congress did not then conceive that in enacting the Sherman Act it had covered even the importation of foreign goods. Obviously if it did not forbid combinations with respect to goods, it did not intend to regulate the means by which such goods were brought to this country. Not even when its attention was directed to the evils which might result from combinations with respect to goods did Congress take any action to prohibit or restrain any possible evil with respect to the ships by which goods should be brought. If the general language of the Sherman Act had covered the importation of goods it would also necessarily have covered carriage of passengers.

Further than this, the seizure clauses of the Sherman Act and of the Wilson Tariff Act show that Congress recognized its lack of power over ocean transportation between the United States and foreign countries. Section 6 of the Sherman Act (26 Stat. L. 210) confines itself to property intended for export. Section 76 of the Wilson Act relates only to property imported. The Sherman Act permits the seizure of certain property when in the course of transportation to a foreign country. The Wilson Act does not permit the seizure of such property while in course of transportation from a foreign country to the United States, but only while in the course of interstate transportation.

By this significant omission Congress recognized that by the Sherman Act it had jurisdiction over unlawful property while it was in course of transportation to a foreign country so long as that transportation took place within the United States. It did not however in express terms, in this seizure section of the act, limit the power of seizure to that period of time when the goods were in course of transportation within the territorial jurisdiction. As in the earlier portions of the act referring to commerce with foreign nations, it used broad language. In each case the language, literally interpreted, is broad enough to make the act apply to foreign commerce and transportation of passengers to a foreign country, whether within or without the territorial jurisdiction of the United States, but it is equally clear that in each instance Congress recognized the limitations of its powers and intended the words used to have a limitation consistent with the power which it possessed.

The consequences of a contention that the seizure section of the Sherman Act was intended to confer power upon the Government to seize property without the territorial jurisdiction of the United States make it impossible to impute such a purpose to Congress. Cargoes "in the course of transportation * * * to a foreign country" by foreign vessels are under the exclusive jurisdiction of the country of the vessels from the time they leave our shores. See Rose v. Himeley, 4 Cranch, 241.

The omission from the seizure clauses of the Wilson Tariff Act of any provision for seizure while unlawful goods are in course of transportation from a foreign country is the clearest proof that Congress then, as when the Sherman Act was passed, recognized the limitations of its powers and refrained from any legislation which would attempt to extend the jurisdiction of the United States beyond our own shores.

If Congress has by the Sherman Act exercised a power to regulate steerage traffic in any respect before it has reached or after it has left our shores, that power extends to whatever may be done in the course of any voyage which may have been undertaken as part of a purpose opposed to the Act, as well as to whatever is done in England, Germany and other foreign countries in administering the Conference agreement, settling accounts, publishing agreed rates and many other matters. The very statement of this proposition is enough to condemn it. See American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U. S. 347. The proper limitation is stated by Mr. Justice McKenna in United States v. Pacific & Arctic Co., 228 U. S. 87, 106:

"If we may not control foreign citizens or corporations operating in foreign territory, we certainly may control such citizens and corporations operating in our territory, as we undoubtedly may control our own citizens and our own corporations."

We respectfully submit, therefore, that the Sherman Act carries no authority to prohibit the execution of any other features of the Conference system complained of than those actually carried out in this country, as to which, however, as well as all other features of the Conference system, we submit the Government has not established any well founded objection, even under the broadest possible construction and application of the Act.

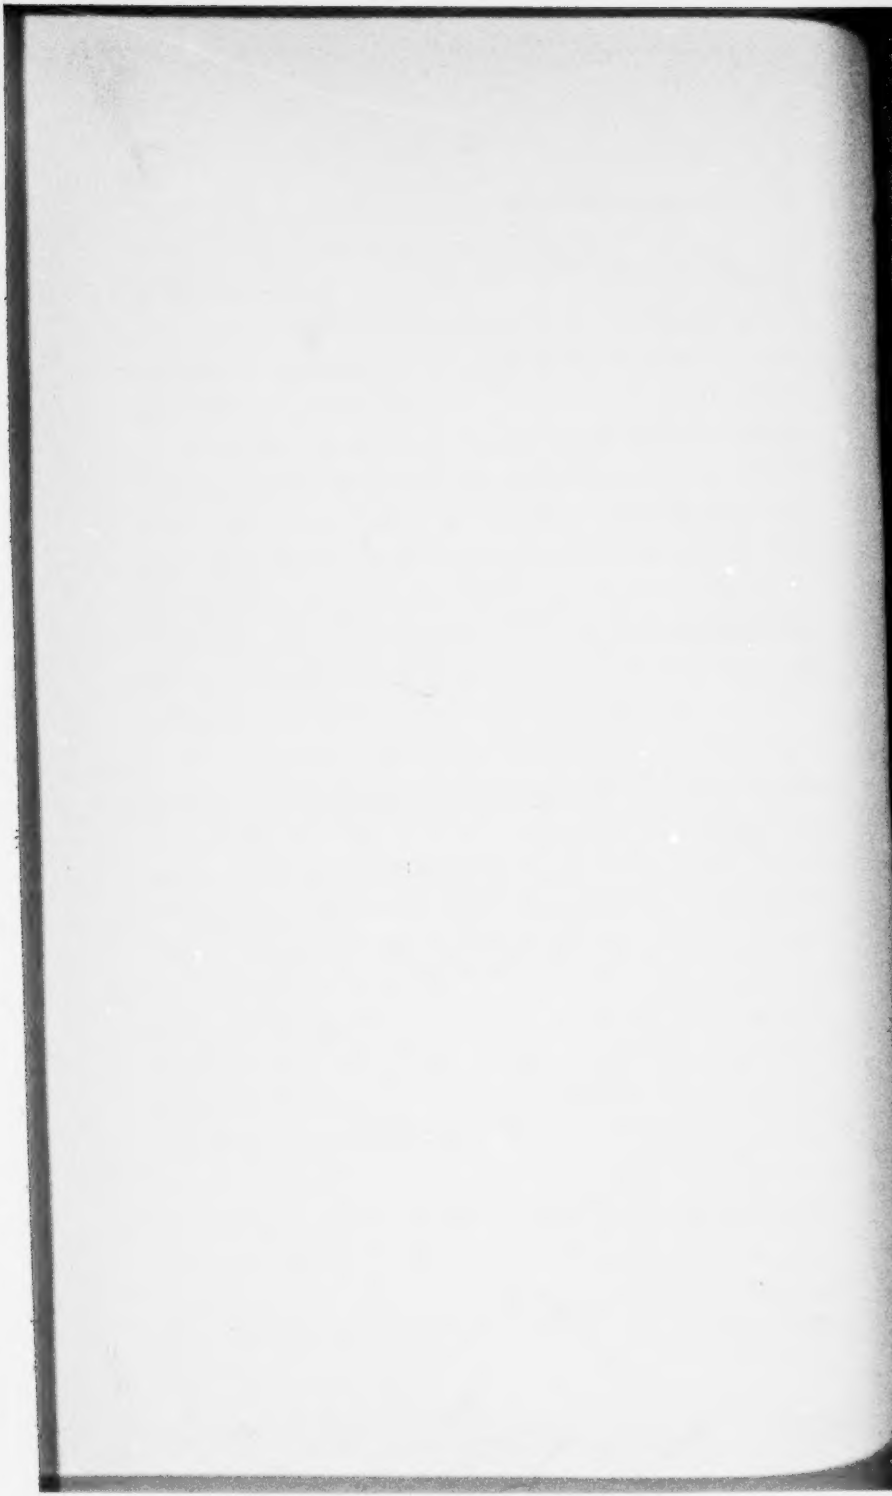
LAST POINT

THE DECREE DISMISSING THE PETITION SHOULD BE AFFIRMED.

New York, November 1, 1915.

BURLINGHAM, MONTGOMERY & BEECHER,
Solicitors for American Line, Anchor Line, Dominion Line, Holland-America Line, Red Star Line, White Star Line, and Defendants Coverly, Franklin and Gips, Appellees.

CHARLES C. BURLINGHAM,
ROSCOE H. HUPPER,
Of Counsel.



IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM, 1915.

No. 289.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, APPELLANT,

v.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT ET AL.

No. 332.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT ET AL., APPELLANTS,

v.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

Appeals from the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

BRIEF FOR THE RUSSIAN EAST ASIATIC STEAMSHIP COMPANY, LTD., ALEXANDER E. JOHNSON AND MAX STRAUS.

It is not the purpose of this brief to enter into a discussion of the principles of the law involved in view of the fact that these defendants contend that they were not members of the alleged conspiracy to violate the law at the time of the institution of this suit.

These defendants contend that the District Court did not, on final hearing, "reverse itself" (brief of United States, p. 2), but held, in view of all the facts, that the alleged combination was not a violation of the Anti-Trust Law.

Even with the large record in this case there are only three methods pointed out by the United States as methods of unfair competition (brief of United States, p. 22), with an additional charge not however pressed that the rates were excessive (brief of United States, pp. 116, 117).

It is submitted that a careful examination of the record will establish that the operation of the alleged pool was to the benefit, not only of the immigrants, to which it is charged that it primarily related, but to the traveling public in general and to the economic conditions of these United States of America. If, in place and stead of the term "light of reason" its equivalent "detriment to the public" is applied to the record, there is no evidence of a single act detrimental to the public. At most, the alleged conference was a voluntary association of various steamship lines formed for the purpose of exchanging views, preparing statistics, and preventing abuses in the treatment of immigrants. The United States has pointed out with great vigor, in its brief, that the Uranium Line was attempted to be driven out of business. That line never applied for admission to the so-called conference (2 R. 3576).

The attitude of the officials of the United States with respect to the conference have considerable bearing as to whether the action was reasonable or not.

The evidence shows that for many years the United States of America was familiar with the operation of the American Conference; and the tabulations prepared by the Secretary of the American Conference were furnished it (1 R. 903); the Department of Commerce and Labor communicated its wishes and desires for carrying out certain regulations to all the lines through the office of the Secretary; as did likewise the Department of the Treasury (3 R. 4243, 4247). The American Conference operated at Ellis Island, on territory leased by the United States (2 R. 2568-2575 inclusive).

The United States in operating the Steamship Line of the Panama Railroad Company attended the meetings of a similar conference known as the Caribbean Conference (3 R. 5001).

The methods alleged to have been adopted were not wrongful and did not have the results claimed by the United States.

The brief of the United States alleges that the Russian Volunteer Fleet was driven out of business due to the unfair method of competition. There is no satisfactory evidence to that effect. The vessels of that line were expensive vessels to run and not especially fitted or equipped for economical running in the north Atlantic (2 R. 2453), and the president of that company assigned the real reason for the withdrawal (Defendant's Exhibit 3, 2 R. p. 820).

The New York & Continental Line, or its successor, the Northwest Transport Line, or the Uranium Line, were never in a financial condition to operate successfully. Their own agents were even afraid to turn over the passage money prior to the embarkation of the passengers (1 R. 1859, 1861; 2 R. 2297, 2298, 2801). The agent of the Uranium Line was not satisfied with an agreement for his own employ (3 R. 5086). At the same time he was willing to accept passage money for the transportation of poor immigrants at a time when the company's liabilities exceeded its assets (3 R. 5100). These successive lines deliberately mis-stated facts to the public, which is conclusively shown to be one of the things which the members of the alleged conference were forbidden to do.

Rule 9, which is alleged to be one of the unfair methods adopted by the Conference, provides, in substance, for the control of the persons appointed by the various steamship lines to sell the tickets of the respective lines, and provides that no person selling tickets for outside lines shall sell the tickets of the lines. It is virtually a provision that the employer can choose its own employee. Rule 9 was optional with the lines (3 R. 5416). It was adopted at a time when the abuses referred to in the testimony were flagrant, such as the selling of tickets under false representations as to the lines or as to the route by which passengers were to be transported (1 R. 925). It disqualified Zotti (1 R. 988), and Zotti subsequently absconded with a large amount of money belonging to immigrants. It operated to prevent runners, prevalent before the enactment of the rule (2 R. 2282, 2283). It was a voluntary act of the various steamship lines to secure responsibility among the agents, which some of the states have been endeavoring to secure by legislation, and which is provided for in Italy by a state license (2 R. 2811; 2 R. 4352, 4467, 4468). In some of the states there are provisions which make the operation of the rule unnecessary (3 R. 5269), but not in all.

The agent was free to choose whether he would represent the outside line. The so-called outside line was at liberty to, and at times did secure agents who were trained by his competitor (2 R. 2441, 2442).

In view of the charge that the existing rates are excessive, the following pertinent facts are submitted:

As to some of the members of the alleged Conference it is pointed out that the rates charged by them were investigated by a foreign government and found satisfactory (2 R. 2809). While the finding of a foreign government is not conclusive upon this court, it is evidence of a high character that the rates were not unreasonable. In fact, the evidence establishes that the rates have not been increased proportionately to the increased cost in wages, coal, wharfage, wireless and with the added facilities and improvements (3 R. 4341, 4521, 4871). The United States' own witness has testified that the rates were reasonable (2 R. 2439, 2444), and that the rates prior to the establishment of the so-called Conference were higher (2 R. 2794).

Moreover, the United States' own officer admits that the rates were not unreasonable (3 R. 4984 et seq.). The average rate charged by members of the Conference was about $31 per carriage of a minimum distance of 3,000 miles, or a small fraction over a cent a mile; the minimum rate charged by the Government for service of similar character for a distance of 1,985 miles is $30 (3 R. 4995, 4996), or more than 33 1/3% higher than the rates collected by the alleged members of the so-called pool.

In determining what a reasonable rate is, it is submitted that the traffic is seasonable (2 R. 2216, 2290); that the economic loss of supply and demand have considerable effect (2 R. 2807, 2809; 3 R. 5036, 5128); that the earnings of the respective lines not only depend upon the number of passengers carried but upon the movement of freight, which, in turn, depends not upon domestic conditions but upon world-wide conditions; that the cost of operation has increased (3 R. 4442, 4945, 5070). In this connection the present conflict in Europe shows that without any notice the expensive plants necessary to operate are rendered useless, so to speak, over night.

It is charged in the brief of the United States that the profits of the lines were undue. Again the testimony of the Government's own officer must be considered, to wit, that it is necessary for a steamship line to earn from twelve to twenty per cent to make it equivalent to a six per cent dividend by a railroad (3 R. 4988). The brief for the first time raises the question that the rates were unreasonable. The United States has introduced no evidence as to "the value of the property that is employed in the public service" (Kansas City Southern R. R. Co. v. The United States, 231 U. S., 433).

The commercial allowance criticised by United States (brief, p. 28) had no relation whatsoever to the so-called Conference (1 R. 1586). The defendant, the Russian East Asiatic Steamship Co., Ltd., received the allowance at all times whether in or out of the Conference (2 R. 2262, 2263, 2354). The Uranium Line secured the commercial allowance (1 R. 1759, 1868).

It is respectfully submitted that bill of complaint should be dismissed.

RALPH JAMES M. BULLOWA,
Solicitors for Defendants, Russian East Asiatic Steamship Co., Ltd., Alexander E. Johnson and Max Straus.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Appellee,

v.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT et al.,

D. C., A. 28-8.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT et al., Appellants,

v.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

APPEALS FROM THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

BRIEF FOR NORTH GERMAN LLOYD, AND OELRICHS & CO., GENERAL AGENTS.

WILLIAM G. CHOATE,
JOSEPH LAROCQUE,
NELSON SHIPMAN,
Of Counsel.

CHOATE, LAROCQUE & MITCHELL,
Solicitors for North German Lloyd.

The Standard Press Art Printing Office, Nos. 203 William St., N. Y.

INDEX.

Cross Appeal.

PAGE

Statement.....

POINT I.

The District Court erred in not dismissing the petition on the ground that the ocean transportation carried on by the defendant steamship lines, mainly of foreign countries, is commerce of an international character, in which other countries are as vitally interested as our own, and which it is not to be presumed Congress would assume to regulate in view of our international policy of comity and co-operation as shown in our foreign relations, without international agreement and consent, and is therefore not within the purview of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act 3

Proposal of our Government to Establish an International Commerce Commission on Ocean Freight Rates..... 5

Provisions of Wilson Tariff Act..... 13

POINT II.

MAIN APPEAL.

The conference system of regulating ocean steamship traffic prevails in all maritime countries of the world and has existed from early days. It arose from the peculiarities of ocean trade, and particularly from the great inequality between passenger steamships with respect to their power to compete, due to difference in size, speed and equipment. This necessitated the fixing of differential rates, in order to avoid destructive rate wars and enable the different lines to devote their resources and energies towards giving the efficient and constantly improving service which trade and travel demanded, and not at all with the purpose of effecting a monopoly.

This system has rendered possible the highly efficient service given by the Atlantic Lines, which has been maintained with but small pecuniary benefit to them, and has greatly increased and developed trade and intercourse with Europe. 15

PAGE

Great Individual Rivalry and Competition between Lines..... 15
Heavy Coal Consumption..... 16
Small Earnings of Lines..... 17
Advantages of Conference System Recognized and Maintenance Recommended, after Investigation by the United States and England..... 18
Necessity of Differential Rate in Passenger Business..... 18
Early Conferences.—Fixing of Differential Rate..... 19
Rate Wars.—Failure to Secure Differential Rate..... 19
Period of Formal and Binding Conference Agreements..... 20
Present Differential Rate System..... 21
First and and Second Cabin..... 21
Third Cabin.—British Business..... 21
The AA or Pooling System as an Alternative of the Differential Rate System..... 21
General Scale of Rates..... 23
Origin of the AA System..... 23
Other Agreements Entered Into with AA.... 23
Admission of Outside Lines to AA.—No Line Refused Admission..... 24

POINT III.

The steerage rates under Agreement AA have been reasonable..... 25
Average AA Steerage Rate about One Cent a Mile, Including Food..... 25
Government Rate on Panama Line About One and a Half Cents a Mile..... 25
Testimony as to Reasonableness of Conference Rate..... 26

Point IV.

PAGE

There was no unfair competition by the conference lines. They merely protected their own steerage traffic against the attacks of the outside lines..... 28

Average Carryings per Trip of Outside Lines Nearly Equal to those of Conference Lines..... 28

Tables of Average Carryings per Trip of Conference and Outside Lines, Eastbound and Westbound..... 28

Outside Lines Not Attempting to Do a Remunerative and Legitimate Business..... 30

The Outside Lines had not Built Up a Proper Agency System..... 30

The Russian Volunteer Fleet Was Not Driven Out of Business, nor the Russian East Asiatic Co. Forced to Join the Conference.

Russian Volunteer Fleet..... 31

Statement by President of Russian Volunteer Fleet..... 32

Reasons Why the Russian Volunteer Fleet Suspended its Atlantic Service..... 33

Russian East Asiatic Co..... 35

The Line Known Successively as the N. Y. & Continental, North West Transport and Uranium Line was controlled by the Canadian Northern R. R. Interests, and Operated at Low Rates to Aid in Land Colonization along its Railroad, and was not a bona fide Steamship Enterprise..... 35

Affiliation of New York & Continental, North West Transport and Uranium Lines with Canadian Northern R. R..... 38

Control of the Three Lines by Mr. Mackenzie, President of the Canadian Northern R. R..... 38

Canadian Northern starts Royal Line. 39

Efforts by Conference Lines to Have Royal and Uranium Lines Join the Conference, and Admission of Royal Line..... 40

Alexander Committee's Inquiry..... 48

Point V.

PAGE

The right of the conference lines to receive a commission or commercial allowance from the railroads for undertaking the sale of their tickets in Europe and this country by means of the conference agency system cannot be raised in this suit, as this point is not pleaded in the petition and the introduction of evidence thereon was duly objected to by the defendants (fols. 1080, 1208, 2426)..... 51

APPENDIX.

Policy of United States in regard to Ocean Transportation.

Advantages of Shipping Conferences and Agreements in the American Foreign Trade From Report of Alexander Committee (pp. 295–303.)..... 1

I. Improvement in service..... 2

1. Regularity of service, resulting in the following advantages..... 2

2. Greater security is given to capital invested in the steamship business..... 4

II. Stability of rates over long periods of time..... 5

III. Uniform freight rates secured to all merchants.. 9

IV. Prevent the elimination of weaker lines in the various trades..... 10

V. Maintenance of rates from the United States to foreign markets on a parity with those from other countries, thus enabling American merchants to compete successfully with foreign merchants..... 12

VI. Reduction in the cost of service, eventually resulting in lower freight rates for a high standard of service..... 13

VII. Cost of service can be more economically distributed over the traffic so as to develop the trade. 14

From "Recommendations" of the Committee (pp. 416–7)..... 16

PAGE

Proposal of the United States to other Countries for the Establishment of a Permanent International Commerce Commission on Merchant Marine and on Ocean Freight Rates.. 18

Joint Resolution of Congress of September 19, 1914 (H. J. Res. 311) 18

International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, Italy. Created by Convention between the United States and 39 Other Powers. Signed at Rome, June 7, 1905..... 20

Resolution by the Congress of the United States Presented to the International Institute of Agriculture, at Rome, Italy, February 27th, 1915 (Steadying the World's Price of the Staples)..... ... 24

Policy of England in Regard to Ocean Transportation. 28

INLAND POLICY OF DIFFERENT COUNTRIES.

ENGLAND:—

1. Att'y Gen'l of Commonwealth of Australia v. Adelaide Steamship Co., Ltd. and others, L. R. (1913) App. Cas. 781 30

Common Law Right of Freedom of Trade, and its Limitations where Just Cause or Excuse for Interference Exists 31

Just Cause or Excuse for Interference: (1) Where Acts done with a Single View of the Doer's own Interests. (2) Monopoly Grants from Crown. (3) Contracts in Restraint of Trade 31

Monopoly Grants from Crown Required a Consideration Moving to the Public.—Vexatious Interference with Trade Under Cover of Void Grants... 32

Evils Formerly Considered as Attending Monopolies..... 33

PAGE

Contracts in Restraint of Trade.—The Old Rule and the Modern Rule..... 33
The Modern Rule.—The Nordenfelt Case.... 34
Term "Monopoly" as Popularly Used Equivalent to "Pernicious Monopoly"..... 35
Chief Evil Entailed by Monopoly was Rise in Prices and Influenced Courts in their Attitude towards Contracts in Restraint of Trade..... 36
Pernicious Monopoly, Calculated to Enhance Prices to an Unreasonable Extent..... 36
Common Law Offence of Engrossing Not Abolished in Australia.—Effect of Protective Tariff 37
Burden of Establishing a Pernicious Monopoly No Light One Where Court is Satisfied Restraint is Reasonable as Between the Parties 37
Question One of Public Policy..... 38
Contracts or Combinations in Restraint of Trade Never an Offence at Common Law Unless Amounting to a Criminal Conspiracy 38
Right of Combining in a Common Course of Action Legal if with a Single View to the Interests of Combining Parties and not with a View to Injure the Public..... 38
Provisions of the Australian Act..... 39
"Destructive Monoply" in Australian Act Equivalent to "Pernicious Monopoly" ... 41
"Detriment to Public" in Australian Act Refers to Producing and Distributing Public as well as Consuming Public..... 42
Solidarity of Interest Between All Members of the Public, Producers as Well as Consumers..... 42
Mere Intention to Raise Prices not Sufficient to Prove Intention to Injure the Public.—Intent to Charge Excessive or Unreasonable Prices Must Be Apparent..... 43
Privy Counsel Refers to Decision of U. S. Supreme Court in Standard Oil Co. Case. 43

(EXTRACTS.)

PAGE

Standard Oil Co. v. U. S., 221 U. S. 1..... 45
U. S. v. American Tobacco Co., 221 U. S. 106.. 46

---

2. The Northwestern Salt Co., Ltd., v. The Electrolytic Alkali Co., Ltd. L. R (1914) App. Cas. 461..... 46

GERMANY.

Decision of the Imperial Court in the Case of the German Booksellers' Association of Leipzig—June 25, 1890 (Record, vol. 10, p. 4952)..... 48
Decision of the Imperial Court in the Case of the Saxon Wood Pulp Manufacturers' Syndicate—Feb. 7, 1897 (Record, vol. 10, p. 4955)..... 50
Inquiry made for Alexander Committee by Dep't of State of American Ambassador at Berlin and American Consul-General at Hamburg..... 54-5

In the Supreme Court of the United States,

OCTOBER TERM, 1915.

No. 289.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Appellant,

v.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT et al.

No. 332.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT et al., Appellants,

v.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

APPEALS FROM THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

BRIEF FOR NORTH GERMAN LYOYD, AND OELRICHS & CO., GENERAL AGENTS.

Statement.

Cross-Appeal.

The United States District Court, in overruling the demurrers to the petition, held that the Sherman Anti-trust Act applied to ocean transportation between this country and foreign countries (200 F. R. 806), and on final hearing the Court followed this ruling as the law of the case.

Demurrers, vol. 10, pp. 5103–22.
Opinion Overruling Demurrers, Id., pp. 5123–6.
Order Overruling Demurrers, vol. 14, pp. 12–14.
Final Decree, Main Record, vol. 10, pp. 5136–8.
Opinion of Final Hearing, Id., pp. 5127–33.
Assignment of Error, vol. 14, p. 4.

The cross-appeal is taken from the final decree insofar as it involves the above ruling.

POINTS.

I.

Cross-Appeal.

The District Court erred in not dismissing the petition on the ground that the ocean transportation carried on by the defendant steamship lines, mainly of foreign countries, is commerce of an international character, in which other countries are as vitally interested as our own, and which it is not to be presumed Congress would assume to regulate in view of our international policy of comity and co-operation as shown in our foreign relations, without international agreement and consent, and is therefore not within the purview of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act (Assignment of Error, vol. 14, fol. 12).

Commerce with foreign nations is regulated not only by acts of Congress passed pursuant to the commerce clause of the Constitution, but also, and to much greater extent, by international treaties, conventions and agreements entered into by the President and Senate pursuant to their control of our foreign relations and the treaty-making power.

Regulation by international convention or agreement with the different powers is the method commonly adopted by our Government in recent years, and shows the strong and constantly increasing tendency of the different governments of the world to recognize each others' rights and co-operate in matters of mutual interest and concern, and thereby bring about harmonious action, which could not be attained by individual and conflicting legislation.

Instances of these international conventions with other powers are as follows:

Revised International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea, adopted by Act of March 3, 1885 (23 Stat. 483).

Act of July 9, 1888, providing for an international conference to secure greater safety for life and property at sea and to formulate and submit for ratification to the Governments of all the maritime nations proper international regulations for the prevention of collisions and other avoidable marine disasters (25 Stat. 243); and Regulations adopted by Act of August 19, 1890 (26 Stat. 320).

International Sanitary Convention, to prevent the spread of plague and cholera by vessels. Paris, December 3, 1903 (35 Stat. 1834); and Arrangement for Establishment of the International Office of Public Health pursuant to Art. 181 of said Convention (35 St. 2061).

International Convention for the Unification of Certain Rules with respect to Assistance and Salvage at Sea. Brussels, September 23, 1910 (37 Stat).

International Wireless Telegraph Convention, relating to ships, Berlin, November 3, 1906 (37 Stat.); and International Radiotelegraphic Convention, London, July 5, 1912 (38 Stat.).

International Marine Conference to consider uniform laws and regulations for the greater security of life and property on merchant vessels at sea (Joint Resolution of June 28, 1912, 37 Stat. 637–8).

There are also many other international conferences and conventions referred to in the statutes on other subjects, showing the mutual co-operation of the different countries in matters of common interest, as for example, the convention creating the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, referred to below.

Proposal of Our Government to Establish an International Commerce Commission on Ocean Freight Rates.

Recently this Government has proposed to the International Institute of Agriculture, at Rome, Italy, of which it and 54 other nations are adhering members, that the Institute invite the adhering governments to participate in an international conference to be held at Rome in 1917 on the subject of steadying the world's price of staples, which is to consider the advisability of formulating a convention for the establishment of a permanent International Commerce Commission on Merchant Marine and on Ocean Freight Rates, with consultative, deliberative, and advisory powers (Joint Resolution of Congress, approved Sept. 19, 1914, 38 Stat. 779, and summary of International Convention creating the Institute, printed in Appendix to this Brief).

On February 27, 1915, at a meeting of the Permanent Committee of the Institute, composed of delegates from Great Britain, France, Russia, Germany, Austria, and other countries, the joint resolution of Congress was submitted to that body by our delegate and a motion made by him to have the matter made part of the program of the next General Assembly of the Institute, in accordance with the instructions contained in the resolution of our Government.

The proposal of the United States was received with great favor by all the delegates and the motion unanimously carried (see Minutes of Proceedings printed in Appendix of Brief).

The joint resolution of Congress was the culmination, with respect to the great part of ocean freight traffic, of the first investigation either branch of Congress had made into the subject of ocean transportation.

This investigation covered the whole field of ocean transportation as affecting the interests of this country, and was made, pursuant to special resolutions of the House of Representatives, by its Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, of which Mr. J. W. Alexander of Missouri was Chairman. It was begun in the Fall of 1912, some time after the present suit was commenced, and was concluded in the Spring of 1914, before the final argument of this case in the court below.

The report of the Committee recognizes the great advantages of the system of steamship conferences and agreements, which has grown up in the ocean trade and is in use generally throughout the world, and recommends its maintenance rather than its destruction, as being in the interest of the shippers of this country (see Recommendations of the Committee in Appendix).

The report says:

> "Moreover, steamship agreements and conferences are not confined to the lines engaging in the foreign trade of the United States. They are as universally used in the foreign trade of other countries as in our own. The merchants of these countries now enjoy the foregoing advantages of co-operative arrangements, and to restore open and cutthroat competition among the lines serving the United States would place American exporters at a disadvantage in many markets as compared with their foreign competitors."

Believing, however, that there should be some governmental supervision of the matter, the Committee recommends that the whole subject be placed under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which it proposes to enlarge for that purpose, and that the agreements when approved by the Commission be excepted from the provisions of the Sherman Anti-Trust, which had previously been held by the court below to cover the subject of ocean transportation.

This is the general effect of the proposed bill to carry out the recommendations of the Committee, which was introduced in the House by Chairman Alexander on June 18, 1914, and referred to his committee (House Bill No. 17,328).

Before any action was taken on this bill, and on July 31, 1914, Mr. Alexander introduced the Joint Resolution previously mentioned (H. J. Res. 311), which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs (Cong. Record, vol. 51, Part 13, p. 13,098); and on August 18, 1914, that committee reported the resolution without amendment, accompanied by a report (Id., Part 14, p. 13,959).

On September 1, 1914, the joint resolution was debated in the House, on a motion to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (Id., pp. 14,566–14,583).

It appears from these debates and proceedings that the reasons which gave rise to this resolution were as follows:

That of the entire ocean freight traffic, about 2/9ths is package traffic, consisting of manufactured articles, on which the rate is fixed, and not subject to change without giving 30 or 60 days notice to shippers.

That about 7/9ths of the ocean freight traffic is bulk traffic, consisting principally of staples of agriculture, on which the rate varies from day to day, and hour to hour.

That the domestic price of the staples of agriculture is governed by the export price, which fluctuates with the rise and fall of ocean freight rates on bulk traffic.

That the world's price of the staples of agriculture cannot be steadied until a fixed rate can be established on bulk traffic the same as on package traffic, and that there is no good reason why the shippers of bulk traffic should not enjoy the same fixity and certainty of rates as the shippers of package traffic.

In other words, the ocean carriers who, in the absence of any supervisory power, and following the course pursued in ocean trade everywhere, have fixed the rates on package traffic, are impliedly criticized because they have not gone further and fixed the ocean rates on bulk traffic. The carriers certainly have not failed to do this with a view to deriving great profits from bulk traffic, as the earnings on their whole business represent but a small return on their capital invested as shown in the succeeding point.

Mr. Alexander's speech in support of the resolution was as follows:

MR. ALEXANDER. Mr. Speaker, the subject of this resolution was called to my attention by Mr. David B. Lubin, who is the permanent delegate of the United States to the National Institute of Agriculture at Rome. He had read my report on steamship conferences and agreements in the domestic and foreign trade, and he was convinced that our Government would be impotent to enforce reasonable rates or stabilize rates on farm products in international trade in the absence of an international agreement, and that is true. In the bill which was drawn to carry out the recommendations of the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries, House bill 17328, we have gone just as far as we may under the law to bring all the lines, domestic and foreign, under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and, so far as those engaged in the coastwise trade are concerned, to regulate their rates; but many reasons will suggest themselves to gentlemen why it is wholly impracticable for this Government to regulate international freight rates. I have not the time to enumerate them, much less to discuss them in detail, nor is it necessary at this time. The investigations made by the committee showed that, so far as package freight is concerned, the conference lines have a uniform rate, which usually is not raised or lowered until after 60 days' notice. The shippers who appeared before the committee were all unanimous in the opinion that the stabilizing of rates was very important in the export trade, and that it was very desirable that they might know how to make their contracts. They would then know one of the factors—and a very important one—in the price of the commodity they would sell for future delivery, namely, the freight rates to be charged on the commodity. Now, so far as grain is concerned, the testimony before the committee showed that the rate varies daily, if not hourly, often depending upon the demand upon the part of the great ocean liners for ballast. Under the agreement between the conference committee the quantity of grain that one of the ocean liners may carry is limited. Mr. Lubin contends, and with great force, that in order to steady the world's price of the staples it is necessary to stabilize the freight rates on the staples, and that this cannot be done until the ocean freight rate on the commodity from the seaboard to the point of delivery in Europe or South America or elsewhere in our over-sea trade is known with reasonable certainty. In years past, as the gentleman from California [Mr. KAHN] has said, the operators on boards of trade and chambers of commerce influenced the price of wheat, cotton, and other staples from day to day by giving out information, more or less guesswork and in many instances manipulated, with reference to the condition of crops and the probable yield in the different countries of the world.

The international institute at Rome, in which Mr. Lubin has so ably represented this Government as permanent delegate, has undertaken to correct this evil. The Government reports, the official reports, the forecasts, are made from time to time by the Government agencies of the 54 signatory States to this institute, and are compiled and disseminated to the different countries, and that element of speculation has been largely eliminated. Having accomplished this task, Mr. Lubin is in favor of taking another step. He is an enthusiast, but not an idle dreamer. He is of the opinion that if the 54 nations parties to the international convention of 1905 creating the International Institute of Agriculture, and supporting the institute, can be brought to agree to the establishment of an international commerce commission, vested with power to stabilize the rates or regulate the rates on the staples of agriculture, another essential factor in steadying the world's price of the products of the farm will be fixed and another element of speculation eliminated. I fully realized when I introduced this resolution that we were undertaking a difficult task, but that is no reason why we should not make the effort. It cannot be accomplished in any other way. It is an international problem, and can only be solved by international agreement. This resolution does no more than to authorize Mr. Lubin, in October, to propose to the permanent committee the resolution set out in this joint resolution, which is as follows (resolution quoted):

If they regard it favorably they will present the resolution to the general assembly in 1915. If the general assembly agrees that it is a subject that will promote the interests of the farmers and they regard the time opportune, they will then take steps to call an international conference in 1917 to consider the question of organizing this international commerce commission, to be vested with the powers set out in the resolution. That is the whole question in a nutshell. We all agree that that is the only rational way to get at it. Whether it is possible to accomplish our purpose in that way or not, of course we do not know. That will depend upon the attitude of the nations controlling the larger part of the ocean-borne commerce of the world. I am quite sure it is worthy of the effort. [Applause.]

There were also other speeches in support of the resolution, and two-thirds having voted in favor of it, the rules were suspended and the joint resolution was passed.

On September 2, 1914, the ~~bill~~ resolution was read in the Senate and referred to the Committee on Commerce (Id., Part 15, p. 14,610); and on September 4 it was reported back by that committee without amendment (Id., p. 14,707).

On September 9th and 10th the resolution was considered by unanimous consent and passed (Id., pp. 14,867 and 14,917), and on September 19th was approved by the President.

This action by Congress shows clearly that it did not consider that the fixing of ocean freight rates by the lines has been improper, but rather that they have not gone far enough and fixed the rates on bulk as well as package traffic, and that the matter is one for international regulation.

Provisions of Wilson Tariff Act.

Sections 73 to 77 of the Wilson Tariff Act of August 27, 1894 (28 Stat. 570), which were a substantial re-enactment of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, with respect to goods imported into the United States from a foreign country, seem strongly to confirm the view that the Sherman Act was never intended to cover the field we have been discussing, as no such enactment was necessary if the Sherman Act already covered the matter.

This was apparently the view taken by the Senate, who has charge of our foreign relations, on the passage of the above sections of the Wilson Tariff Act (Cong. Rec., vol. 26, Part 6, p. 5719; Id., Part 17, pp. 7117–7120).

Section 73 provides:

> "That every combination, conspiracy, trust, agreement, or contract is hereby declared to be contrary to public policy, illegal, and void, when the same is made by or between two or more persons or corporations either of whom is engaged in importing any article from any foreign country into the United States, and when such combination, conspiracy, trust, agreement, or contract is intended to operate in restraint of lawful trade, or free competition in lawful trade or commerce, or to increase the market price in any part of the United States of any article or articles imported or intended to be imported into the United States, or of any manufacture into which such imported article enters or is intended to enter. Every person who is or shall hereafter be engaged in the importation of goods or any commodity from any foreign country in violation of this section of this Act, or who shall combine or conspire with another to violate the same, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof in any court of the United States such person shall be fined in a sum not less than $100. and not exceeding $5000, and shall be further punished by imprisonment, in the discretion of the court, for a term not less than 3 months nor exceeding 12 months."

The other sections are substantially the same as in the Sherman Act.

These sections were expressly kept in force by the Dingley Tariff Act of July 24, 1897, ch. 11, Sec. 34 (30 Stat. 213), and were amended only in minor particulars by the Act of February 12, 1913, ch. 40 (37 Stat. 667).

II.

Main Appeal.

The conference system of regulating ocean steamship traffic prevails in all maritime countries of the world and has existed from early days. It arose from the peculiarities of ocean trade, and particularly from the great inequality between passenger steamships with respect to their power to compete, due to difference in size, speed and equipment. This necessitated the fixing of differential rates, in order to avoid destructive rate wars and enable the different lines to devote their resources and energies towards giving the efficient and constantly improving service which trade and travel demanded, and not at all with the purpose of effecting a monopoly.

This system has rendered possible the highly efficient service given by the Atlantic Lines, which has been maintained with but small pecuniary benefit to them, and has greatly increased and developed trade and intercourse with Europe.

Great Individual Rivalry and Competition between Lines.

That the conference system of formal agreements covering the past twenty years, by reason of the stability it has given to the passenger business, has been the means of greatly encouraging individual rivalry and competition between the lines is evidenced by the many magnificant steamers that have been added to the Atlantic service during this period.

The Hamburg-American line, just prior to the war, had added to its service the steamer "Vaterland" and launched the steamer "Bismarck", both sister ships of the "Imperator", each estimated to cost in the neighborhood of $8,000,000. The Cunard line had added to its service the "Aquitania", a vessel of the same class as the "Lusitania" and the "Mauretania". The White Star line was building the "Britannic", which is similar to the "Olympic". The Holland-American Line had launched the "Statendam", and the North German Lloyd was about to add to its service the "Columbus".

These ships represent millions of dollars of invested capital. They are types of the highest development of modern ship-building, with every conceivable provision for safety and comfort of passengers.

The North German Lloyd express steamer "Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse" had recently been devoted entirely to steerage and third cabin traffic, and on the other express steamers of the German lines third cabin accommodations are provided, in which the privacy of the passengers is equal to that of the first class.

Heavy Coal Consumption.

In order to show the great cost of operation of these trans-Atlantic ships, we call attention to the immense amount of coal consumed by them. The coal bill of the Cunard line for 1912 amounted to over £600,000 (Test'y, fol. 4555).

Every knot that is added to the speed of a steamer increases very greatly the cost of fuel and expense of operation.

Small Earnings of the Lines.

Although the building and operation of these modern ships has involved an enormous outlay of capital and a great increase in running expenses, the lines have received but a meagre return on their investment.

There is probably no form of business in which more enterprise has been shown and less pecuniary advantage derived than that of the transatlantic passenger lines.

The Cunard Line, 80 to 90 per cent. of whose tonnage comes to ports of the United States, has paid dividends on its actual capital averaging but 2.81 per cent. during the thirty years prior to 1912; 3.31 per cent. during the ten years prior; and 2.75 per cent. since the making of Agreement AA (Test'y, fols. 4545–9, 4656–62).

The Canadian Pacific Railway's Atlantic steamship service for the twelve months ending February 1, 1911, showed a net profit of only 3 per cent. on the capital invested, after allowing for depreciation (Test'y, fols. 4797–9).

The dividends paid by the North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American lines have averaged but 3.95 and 5.7 per cent. respectively, during the twenty years from 1892 to 1911 inclusive (Exhibits, fols. 15,825; 15,306).

Advantages of Conference System Recognized and Maintenance Recommended, after Investigation by the United States and England.

The great advantages of the conference system, particularly to the shippers of this country, have been recognized and the maintenance of the system recommended in the report of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, of which Mr. Alexander was chairman, which was submitted to Congress in the Spring of 1914. This report was made after an exhaustive investigation into the whole subject of ocean transportation as affecting this country, which was the first investigation into the subject that was ever made by Congress (see Appendix to brief).

In 1909, the Royal English Parliamentary Commission appointed to investigate Shipping Rings and Combinations arrived at a similar conclusion with respect to England (Id.); and the public policy of Germany and other continental countries unquestionably favors the maintenance of the system (Id.).

Necessity of Differential Rate in Passenger Business.

Ocean steamships vary so much in their size, speed and attractiveness of internal equipment that the new steamers, which are constantly being added to the service, attract the travel from the older steamers, even of the same line. This necessitates the fixing of a differential rate in order to put them all on an equal footing to compete, which is the aim of the conference system.

Early Conferences.—Fixing of Differential Rate.

Mr. Hannah testified that conferences existed on this side of the Atlantic between the British lines as early as 1868 and between the Continental lines since about 1875 (fols. 4315, 4317, 4429); that it was part of the work of a conference to regulate rates in order to prevent ruinous competition, by recognizing the weaker lines and giving them a lower rate in view of the fact that they were weaker. He mentions the fact that as far back as 1868, there was a differential of $3. allowed the National Line by the Cunard Line because of the latter's greater prestige and much faster and finer ships (fol. 4316); that the "Egypt" of the National Line was allowed a differential of about $2. as against the Inman Line (fol. 4423, p. 1475).

These conferences, however, were mere voluntary meetings of the representatives of the lines, and did not bind the lines to continue in them.

Rate Wars.—Failure to Secure Differential Rate.

If a line failed to secure its differential rate the cutting of prices ensued, and this developed into a general rate war between the lines, driving prices down to a ruinously low level, the steerage rate in some cases reaching a point as low as $10. These rate wars attained great violence between the British lines during the latter part of the eighties and the early nineties, depleting their resources, retarding the construction of new steamers, and ultimately driving many of them out of business. The Inman, National, Guion, Monarch and State Lines, comprising five of the eight British lines then engaged in the transatlantic trade, succumbed from the effect of these disastrous rate wars, due solely to unregulated competition (Hannah, fols. 4308–13, 4376–83, 4385–6; Cauty, fols. 3272–3, 3296).

Period of Formal and Binding Conference Agreements.

Some agreements appear to have been entered into in the eighties between the British lines, but they were not of a sufficiently stable character to prevent destructive rate wars (Cauty, fol. 3271), and as ocean trade and travel increased, it became evident that the construction of larger, faster and finer ships, requiring greater outlay of capital, could not be successfully carried out under these conditions; that more formal and stable agreements were necessary between the lines than had theretofore existed in the earlier conferences; and during the nineties and since that time, conference agreements of this character have been entered into in regard to all classes of the passenger business, for short periods of time and subject to renewal and modification as occasion required to meet new conditions.

The systems involved in these agreements are of two kinds, (1) the Differential Rate System and (2) the alternative AA or Pooling System; the purpose of both systems being to equalize conditions and enable each line to preserve its normal traffic.

Present Differential Rate System.
First and Second Cabin.

This system is shown in the minimum rate agreements, V and W, relating respectively to first and second cabin business, which were entered into between the Continental and British Lines on February 5, 1908 (pp. 145, 134), and which appeared to be still in force, except as they were modified by the addition of new steamers. By referring to these agreements, it will be seen that the passenger steamers of the Atlantic are divided into some sixteen classes, commencing with the Lusitania and Mauretania and ending with the smallest and least favored boats, each class being specially rated. New steamers are to be rated as they come out on a similar basis, such rating to be subject to revision by arbitration in case of difference of opinion (see arbitrations in Peter's Circular Letters, at pp. 4038, 3944, 3948, 4024; 3789, 3828, 4661). Above these minimum prices, each line is at liberty to fix its rate independently of the others.

Third Cabin.--British Business.

The differential rate system also appears in the third cabin or steerage agreement entered into between the British lines in regard to British business, dated May 23, 1908 (p. 2700).

The AA or Pooling System as an Alternative of the Differential Rate System.

This system is in force between the Continental and British Lines only with respect to Continental steerage traffic (Agreement AA, Art. 1, p. 51), and was adopted as an alternative to a differential rate agreement to avoid the great difficulties in fixing the proper differential rates (Cauty, fols. 3276–7).

The purpose of this system is to bring about a periodical adjustment of the temporary fluctuations in the carryings of the different lines so as to give each line a share of the total carryings of all, proportionate to its average carryings for a prior period of years, which is fixed in the agreement as a certain percentage (Arts. 3, 9; Exhibits, fols. 16–20, 7797; Test'y, fols. 3264, 3085). This percentage is subject to modification by agreement of the parties where conditions later warrant it (Test'y, fols. 5450–2). Considerable fluctuations take place in the carryings, as is shown by the extent to which the lines become plus or minus in the pool (Exhibits, pp. 2448, 2917–9). The adjustment of the carryings is brought about by requiring the lines which have carried in excess of their stated percentages or become plus in the pool, to raise their rates if practicable and thus throw the excess of traffic to the lines which have carried less than their percentages or become minus in the pool, and if this is inconvenient or proves to be ineffectual, the lines which have undercarried must reduce their rates to attract travel and bring them back to their fixed percentages (Art. 11). The line which is thus in excess of its percentage is also required to pay to the short-carried lines a compensation of £4 for each excess passenger, which is provided as a deterrent to a line's exceeding its fixed percentage (Arts. 6, 9).

There is no pooling of profits nor any pooling of traffic beyond the adjustment of these temporary fluctuations in carryings.

General Scale of Rates.

The general scale of rates for all the lines is adjusted from time to time, but it has been kept at a reasonable level, as shown in Point III.

Origin of the AA System.

The pooling system above described originated in the Continental steerage agreement of 1892 between the four Continental lines, North German Lloyd, Hamburg-American, Red Star and Holland-American (p. 3). The agreement is still in force with modifications (pp. 157, 2741).

Other Agreements Entered Into with AA.

At the time Agreement AA was made, there were also entered into Agreements V and W, above referred to, relating to the North Atlantic first and second cabin business, and Agreement X of February 6, 1908, relating to the Mediterranean first and second cabin business (p. 2446); also Agreement Z of February 5, 1908, between the AA lines and the Canadian lines, in regard to Continental steerage traffic, which is similar in form to Agreement AA (p. 2667). Later an agreement was entered into between the AA lines and the Italian lines in regard to the Mediterranean steerage traffic, which is on the same plan as Agreement AA (Agreement of Feb. 8, 1909, p. 95).

Admission of Outside Lines to AA.—No Line Refused Admission.

No line has ever been refused admission to Agreement AA or the Atlantic Conference. Agreement AA was made with a view to admitting outside lines (Art. 22, pp. 66–7; see also p. 36), and it has been carried out in this spirit.

Since Agreement AA was made, the following among other lines have been admitted to the agreement: Russian East Asiatic Co. (Agreement BB of September 1, 1908, p. 2682); Royal Line of the Canadian Northern Steamships, Ltd. (Agreements CC and DD of August 15, 1910, pp. 2413, 2412). The Royal Line has also been admitted to Agreements V and W, relating to first and second cabin business (Agreement EE of August 15, 1910, p. 2410), and to the agreement of May 23, 1908, between the British lines in regard to British steerage business (Agreement of August 15, 1910, p, 2697). An agreement has also been entered into between the British lines and the Scandinavian-American Line in regard to Scandinavian and Finnish business (Agreement of March 3, 1910, p. 2362; see also pp. 3238–42, 3263–4), and the Royal Line has become a party to this agreement (Agreement of August 15, 1910, p. 2359).

III.

The steerage rates under Agreement AA have been reasonable.

The high efficiency of the trans-Atlantic passenger service, and the meagre profits derived from it by the Lines, have already been referred to under Point II.

Average AA Steerage Rate about One Cent a Mile, Including Food.

The average Continental steerage rate of the ordinary steamers of the AA lines has been about $35 (Test'y, fols. 5244, 5264) and for improved steerage or third cabin on express steamers about $3 to $5 more.

The British steerage rates under the agreement of May 23, 1908, relating to British business have been about $32 and for the Lusitania and Mauretania about $35 (p. 2700).

The distance from this country to England is about 3,100 miles, and to Bremen and Hamburg about 3,500 miles, which makes the British and Continental steerage rates equivalent to about 1 cent a mile, or slightly more for improved steerage or express steamers, which is certainly a cheap rate of transportation, considering that it includes food.

Government Rate on Panama Line About One and a Half Cents a Mile.

The distance from New York to Colon is 1,985 miles, and the steerage rate is $30 on the steamers of the Panama Railroad, which are owned and operated by this Government (Drake, fols. 4995–6). On this basis the steerage rate for the British lines would be about $47 and that for the Continental lines about $52.

Mr. Drake, the vice-president of the Panama Railroad, whose experience with its line of steamers dates back to 1893 when the line was commenced (fols. 4984–5), says that this $30 rate is sometimes remunerative and at other times not (fol. 4997); that he considers it a well recognized maxim in transportation circles, verified by his own experience, that a steamship line must earn from 12 to 20 per cent. to make it equivalent to 6 per cent. earned by a railroad, owing to the exigencies that affect the operation of a steamship line or vessel that cannot possibly apply to the operation of a railroad (fols. 4988, 5047–9).

Testimony as to Reasonableness of Conference Rate.

Mr. Richard, who had been the agent for the Russian Volunteer Fleet and New York and Continental Line, and whose experience as an agent for many lines dated back forty years (fol. 2368), was examined as a witness for the Government and testified that the prevailing rates for steerage passengers were very reasonable (fols. 2439–40); that $30 to $45 was a reasonable rate (fols. 2482–3, 2513, 2515, 2758–9, 2773–4), and $20 an unreasonable one and would drive some lines out of business (fols. 2462–3, 2476, 2513); that the minimum steerage rate fixed by the Italian Royal Immigration Commissioner was about $40 (fols. 2518, 2810, 2838). He further testified that the elements of first and second cabin capacity and rates and the freight rates must be taken into consideration (fols. 2791–3), and if no freight is carried, passenger rates must be very much higher (fol. 2485); that he based his statement that the prevailing rates were reasonable on the dividends paid by the companies (fol. 2483), and on his forty years' experience as a steamship agent (fol. 2507).

The estimate of £2, 6s, as the expense per head of carrying steerage passengers, which was made by Mr. Thomas of the New York & Continental North West Transport and Uranium Lines, another of the Government's witnesses, includes merely the cost of food and steward's service and "does not cover the coal, does not cover the crew, except the stewards, does not cover any of the officers, does not cover the insurance; does not cover port expenses, does not cover the depreciation" (fols. 2028–9).

Interest on the investment is a large item which is not considered by the witness as an element of cost in the passenger business.

At folio 2063, Thomas admitted that it is impossible to find out what it costs per capita to carry passengers; "no man can define that".

Government's witness Cauty, in testifying as to the per capita cost of carrying steerage passengers, eliminated the same elements of expense. He said: "That does not take into account what we call the steamship expenses, coal, the upkeep of the ship, the engine repairs, insurance, etc." (fol. 3210). He amplified his answer at folio 3227.

According to some of the witnesses a $21 steerage rate may produce a slight profit rather than a loss, where the ship sails full as to all kinds of traffic, but this is not a condition which generally exists. The average steerage carryings of the lines, as shown by the tables, infra, are not much more than half the full steerage capacity of the ships, due principally to the light eastbound traffic, which necessitates a considerably higher rate than would be required if the steerage were always filled.

IV.

There was no unfair competition by the conference lines. They merely protected their own steerage traffic against the attacks of the outside lines.

Average Carryings per Trip of Outside Lines Nearly Equal to those of Conference Lines.

The average steerage carryings per sailing of the outside lines, both eastbound and westbound, compared favorably with those of the conference lines (see Tables opposite).

Outside Lines Not Attempting to Do a Remunerative and Legitimate Business.

The outside lines, carrying as they did practically no first and second cabin passengers and little freight,

CHARTS

TOO LARGE FOR FILMING

should have kept their rates near the rates of the conference lines, which were reasonable, and adhered to their own published rates and commissions, if they intended to do a remunerative and legitimate business. But they commenced with a published rate from $7 to $10 below the conference rate, and kept undercutting and paying a large part of their quoted rates to agents in the form of secret commissions in their effort to draw away the business from the conference lines, and obtained a good share of the business by these methods. The outside lines and not the conference lines were the aggressors.

The reduction in the rate of the conference steamer drew travel from its other steamers as well as from the other conferences lines and caused overbooking, which accounts for the large number of passengers appearing in Peters' Circular Letters.

The brunt of this outside competition to the Continent, necessarily fell on the Continental conference lines, and it was because of their complaint that they were put at a disadvantage in the pool that the other conference lines agreed to divide their losses entailed from the reduction in their rates (Exhibits, vol. 6, p, 2831).

A combination is not per se unlawful and if it is a reasonable and justifiable one, as the defendants claim the conference system is, it is entitled to defend its own business against outside attack. (See the definition of a "fighting ship" contained in the bill of the Alexander Committee.)

The Outside Lines had not Built Up a Proper Agency System.

Mr. Richard and Mr. Strauss had the same agents (Exhibits, fol. 6468), who were not of high standing (Strauss, fols. 2441–2; Exhibits, 6473), and attempts were made to entice away the conference agents (Richard, fols. 2241–2). The character of the agents of the outside lines is stated in the following letter from the New York agency of the Russian East Asiatic S. S. Co. to its home office at Libau, dated Sept. 3, 1908 (Exhibits, p. 2264):

> "Your letter of 9/22 August to hand regarding Captains seriously complaining about false information given to passengers about the speed of our steamers which creates a great deal of dissatisfaction amongst passengers who are otherwise satisfied with the passage on our steamers.
>
> "Now that we are in the Conference (enclosed please find copy of circular issue announcing our admittance) we will have a different class of Agents who will not attempt to lie and who will adhere strictly to the truth. Heretofore we have been laboring here with very hard material but it was the best we could get under the circumstances. Now that this is all over we hope to get better satisfaction all around and there will be no lies told by these good agents to secure the business."

Mr. Richard, whose firm were the passenger agents for the Russian Volunteer Fleet, the New York &

Continental Line, and the North West Transport Line until May, 1909, complains of the conference rule, which existed as far back as 1879, prohibiting conference agents from booking for non-conference lines under penalty of disqualification, and this, he says, is the only objection he has to the conference system (fols. 2480–1, 2787–90).

> "In case they revoke Rule 9, I agree to raise rates and maintain commissions and follow the rules of the conference" (Richard, fols. 2481, 2441).

If the outside lines desired to avail of the conference agency system, the proper course was to have joined the conference, as did the Russian American Line later on.

The Russian Volunteer Fleet Was Not Driven Out of Business, nor the Russian East Asiatic Co. Forced to Join the Conference.

Russian Volunteer Fleet.

The Russian Volunteer Fleet maintained its principal service between Russia and the Far East under subsidies from the Russian Government.

The traffic on its Libau, Rotterdam and New York line was confined practically to steerage passengers, owing to the lack of cabin passengers and freight.

Its average steerage carryings per sailing during the time it ran to this port were as heavy as those of the conference lines (Richard, fols. 2478, 2797, and table, supra), but in 1908 the westbound steerage traffic on all the lines fell off more than half (see table), and the company decided to suspend its Libau-New York service until the westbound situation improved. It was so stated at the time by its agents, Messrs. C. B. Richard & Co., who received a cable to that effect from the company (Exhibits, fols. 6115–6, 6134, 10,418, 10,511).

Statement by President of Russian Volunteer Fleet.

After the present suit was commenced, Admiral Radloff, the President of the Russian Volunteer Fleet, upon noticing an article in the Shipping Illustrated of this city giving a statement of the allegations of the petition in regard to his company, wrote the editor of that paper as follows (Deft.'s Ex. 3, Test'y, p. 820):

"RUSSIAN VOLUNTEER FLEET,
19, Morskaia,
St. Petersburg,
12/25 January 1911
No. 165.

The Editor of the "SHIPPING ILLUSTRATED" 22, Thames Street, New York.

DEAR SIR:

In your issue of the 7th inst., we find, in an article headed: 'ACTION AGAINST THE TRANSATLANTIC POOL,' mention made of the Russian Volunteer Fleet as 'having been driven out of business' as a result of the practices adopted by the Pool.

We beg to say that the above statement, as far as it concerns the Volunteer Fleet, is not correct, as the Committee of the Russian Volunteer Fleet had decided to suspend their Libau-New York line for reasons of their own that had nothing in common with the attitude taken by the Pool.

Believe us, Dear Sir,

Yours faithfully,

(Sgd.) A. RADLOFF,

President."

While this letter is hearsay evidence, this is true of all the evidence given by the Government on this point.

Reasons Why the Russian Volunteer Fleet Suspended its Atlantic Service.

The U. S. Monthly and Consular Trade Reports for October, 1908 (No. 337, pp. 81–2), which is a Government publication, contains the following article on the subject:

"Russia

"The Voluntary Fleet Gives Up its New York-Libau Line.

"A translation from a St. Petersburg paper by Vice-Consul William Dawson, jr., states that the North German Telegraph and Correspondence Bureau received the following from Libau, under date of June 20:

'After lengthy deliberations and with the consent of the company's board of directors at St. Petersburg, the Voluntary Fleet last week adopted the important resolution to give up its line between New York and Libau, which has been in existence two and one-half years. Those on the inside have been aware for some time that on account of the heavy losses caused by this line the company would sooner or later be obliged to discontinue the service. As is well-known, the Voluntary Fleet's trips to New York were called into existence by the avowed desire of directing the stream of Russian emigration toward Libau and at the same time away from the foreign ports, notably German, Dutch and English, to which it was pouring over the German frontier.

The undertaking, which from the standpoint of the political economy of the Russian people was in every way to be commended, soon proved to be unprofitable. In spite of the fact that during 1907 the Voluntary Fleet carried about 22,000 persons to New York and had a good share of the movement in return, the lack of cabin passengers and the complete absence of freight precludes all possibility of maintaining this line at a profit. According to reliable information the company's losses in 1906 amounted to $250,000, and for the past year $300,000. For national reasons it was earnestly desired to maintain the line, and the greatest efforts have been made to accomplish this end.

However, in view of the difficulties under which the Russian financial administration has recently labored and given the conviction that for the reason indicated this line offered no prospect of prosperity for the future, it was decided, according to reports, to give up the service until further order. As a matter of fact there does not exist the slightest probability that this line will be reopened for some time to come, for the exchange of products between two countries such as Russia and the United States which compete in the world market in their principal output—namely, agricultural produce—can never become sufficiently important to maintain a regular steamer service between Libau and New York. It is impossible to build up a line on the steerage traffic alone.'"

Russian East Asiatic Co.

The carryings of the Russian East Asiatic Co. had been about half those of the Volunteer Fleet, because it had older steamers and ran in competition with it.

After the Russian Volunteer Fleet suspended its Atlantic service, the Russian East Asiatic Co. was the only line engaged in the direct Libau and New York trade, and later joined the Atlantic Conference voluntarily, as testified to by the Government's witness, Mr. Strauss, whose firm were agents for that line (fols. 2246–7, 2295).

The Line Known Successively as the N. Y. & Continental, North West Transport and Uranium Line was controlled by the Canadian Northern R. R. Interests, and operated at Low Rates to Aid in Land Colonization along its Railroad, and was not a bona fide Steamship Enterprise.

This line, which has been run successively under these names, has been run ostensibly as an independent line, but has in fact been financed and operated by the same interests as those which control the Canadian Northern Railway of Canada and the Royal Line, which is a party to the pool and maintains rates and commissions.

The defendants claim that this line was not conducted as a bona fide steamship undertaking but as a feeder to the railroad's land colonization scheme in Canada, for which purpose it could afford to carry steerage passengers at a loss.

Mr. Richard, whose firm were the general passenger agents of the New York & Continental Line and also of the North West Transport Line until May, 1909 (Exhibits, fol. 848), admitted he had always heard that the same people who were identified with the Canadian Northern Railway were also identified with the New York & Continental Line, the North West Transport Line, and the Uranium Line, and that these people were Messrs. Mackenzie & Mann of Toronto, who built the road, of which Mr. Mackenzie became the President (fols. 2464–6, 2448–9; see also fols. 4866–8).

Most of the charges of unfair competition came from Mr. Thomas, who has been the general manager of the North West Transport Line and of the Uranium Line since Mr. Richard's firm withdrew, and who was also assistant manager of the New York & Continental Line. He was the principal witness for the Government on the subject of unfair competition, and also in regard to what constitutes a reasonable steerage rate.

When he was examined as a witness, the defendants desired to ascertain from him who were the owners of his line and whether it was not controlled by persons who were identified with the Canadian Northern Railway of Canada, but he plainly attempted to conceal this fact.

He was asked on cross-examination who were the officers or persons at the head of his line, and the only person he could name with whom he had dealings was Mr. Henry W. Harding of London, England, whom he understood to be the manager of the company. The witness clearly attempted to convey the impression that Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann and the Canadian Northern Railway were not identified with the Uranium Line. We ask the Court to read this witness' testimony at the following places in the record (fols. 1998, 2002–8, 2013, 2016–9, 2056–67, 2069–70; see also fol. 1782).

The defendants afterwards ascertained that Mr. Harding was the Local Secretary for England of the Canadian Northern Railway (Exhibits, fol. 14,788), and that the office of the Uranium Line in that city was in the Canadian Northern Railway's building, in its accounting department (Testy., fol. 5164; Exhibits, fol. 14,848).

When Mr. Thomas was recalled for further cross-examination, which was towards the close of the taking of testimony, he admitted that he remitted the receipts of the Uranium Line to Mr. D. B. Hannah, the Third Vice-President of the Canadian Northern Railway, at Toronto, and that Mr. Hannah was the person whom he consulted as his superior (fols. 5079, 5082–3, 5126); that Mr. Hannah had guaranteed his contract of employment as agent of the Northwest Transport Line and also his contract with the Uranium Line (fols. 5081–2, 5086–90, 5092–3, 5115, 5117–9), which was signed "Uranium Line by D. B. H." (fols. 5139–40); that Mr. Harding and Mr. Hannah were the only persons with whom he communicated in regard to the company's affairs (fol. 5099).

He further testified that the line had not been making money for three or four years (fols. 5135–6, 5138, 5146) and that its liabilities were more than its assets (fols. 5100–1, 5146); but he said that the persons running the line did not seem to worry; that they appeared to have inexhaustible means back of them (fols. 5094, 5148–9, 5090).

We quote the following extracts from Peter's Circular Letters as showing Mr. Mackenzie's connection with the New York & Continental, North West Transport and Uranium lines, and the affiliation of the Uranium Line with the interests of the Canadian Northern Railway.

Affiliation of New York & Continental, North West Transport and Uranium Lines with Canadian Northern R. R.

Control of the Three Lines by Mr. Mackenzie, President of the Canadian Northern R. R.

The New York & Continental Line, which ran between Hamburg, Rotterdam and New York, from April to August, 1908, was under the management of a Mr. Petersen of London, but Mr. Mackenzie, the President and one of the principal stockholders of the Canadian Northern R. R., appears to have been supporting him in the undertaking and supplying the money (see Exhibits, fols. 5798, 10,142, 11,332, 11,376).

The line lost money during the four or five months of its operation, and in January, 1909, the company was reorganized as the North West Transport Line, with the aid of further advances from Mr. Mackenzie, the line still remaining under the nominal management of Mr. Petersen (Exhibits, fols. 11,330, 11,332, 11,375–6, 11,400–7, 11,444–6, 11,497–9, 11,540, 11,558). After this, it stopped at Halifax on the westbound voyage from Rotterdam (see tables, supra).

The Northwest Transport Line continued to lose money, and in April, 1910, it was taken over by Mr. Mackenzie, and was thereafter called the Uranium Line (Exhibits, fols. 13,541, 13,595, 13,662). This line also stopped at Halifax on the westbound voyage, but no longer ran to Hamburg (fol. 13,662).

Canadian Northern starts Royal Line.

The Canadian Northern Railway, in August, 1909, through negotiations conducted by Mr. D. B. Hannah, had bought two steamers for the new line it proposed to run between Canada and Bristol, England, known as the Royal Line, which was opened in March, 1910 (Exhibits, fols. 12,410; 12,955; 13,111–3; 13,463–4).

Efforts by Conference Lines to Have Royal and Uranium Lines Join the Conference, and Admission of Royal Line.

In May, 1910, Mr. Mackenzie and Colonel Davidson, the Land Commissioner of the Canadian Northern Railway (Exhibits, fol. 14,787), met a representative of the British lines with a view to negotiating for the admission of the Royal Line and Uranium Line to the Conference. The negotiations which were had and which resulted in the Royal Line becoming a party appear in Peter's Letters and other exhibits, as follows:

(Peter's Letter No. 851, May 27, 1910, p. 4579.)

"The following telegram which I received from the Cunard Line I communicated to the Continental Lines only, as the British Lines I think are already acquainted with its contents, Liverpool: 26/5, 5.25

'On behalf of British Lines Mr. Aitchison Anchor Line met representatives Royal Line London Tuesday. Mr. Mackenzie Colonel Davidson and Mr. Peterson being present, they stated have every wish to work in friendly spirit with conference lines but felt they should build up agents organization before entering into agreement, which might limit their arrangements. After discussion were favorably disposed come into agreement but make it a condition that Uranium company should also be arranged with although stated Royal line has no connection with Uranium company, latter are willing to receive approaches from continental lines. Royal line prepared maintain rates and conference commissions in every respect, Mackenzie returns Canada today but remaining representatives prepared to carry on negotiations.' "

(Id. No. 883, June 25, 1910, p. 4618)

"At the request of the Holland American Line I beg to communicate the following letter of Director J. G. v. Reuchlin dated 23rd instant

'With reference to the interview I had with Colonel Davidson on June 22nd, I may state the following:

'The British lines are aware through the exchange of telegrams which has taken place previously, of the fact that the Continental Lines hold a different view of the nature of the understanding reached in Paris under Minute 149.

'From the report submitted by Mr. Aitchison the Continental Lines had the impression that Mr. Mackenzie and Col. Davidson had shown utter indifference as to coming into contact with the Continental Lines and the latter therefore feared that in formally opening negotiation with these gentlemen the latter might gain the impression that the Continental Lines were showing great anxiety to come to an understanding with them.

'I was therefore gratified to learn from Mr. Aitchison that on his subsequent meeting with Col. Davidson, Saturday last the latter had expressed himself desirous of meeting the Continental Lines in either

London or Liverpool, or even to the extent of going to the Continent for that purpose. Mr. Aitchison further acquainted me with the fact that the proper basis had been found for an agreement on rates and commissions both for British and Scandinavian business westbound and eastbound between the "Royal" and British Conference Lines and that the completion of such an agreement only waited for the Continental Lines' coming to an arrangement with the Uranium Steamship Company. In the meantime having received word from Col. Davidson I went to see him and explained to him that having been informed that he had expressed a wish to see the Continental Lines, and being in London and having received his note, I had much pleasure in personally making his acquaintance, but not as a delegate of the Continental Lines, as I had no mission whatever. I told that I was not prepared to discuss either rates or commissions, but that I had simply in view to ask him frankly what his intentions were with the Uranium Steamship Company, which Line, I understood, was being controlled by the Canadian Northern Railway, and was competing with our company in the New York trade in which, to my knowledge, the Canadian Northern Railway as such had no natural interest.

'Col. Davidson replied that I had not been informed correctly, that the Uranium Co. had nothing to do either with the Canadian Northern Railway or with the firm of Messrs. Mackenzie & Mann, but that it should be regarded as a very unwelcome inheritance left to Mr.

Mackenzie personally who is the only one interested in the company.

'Col. Davidson further explained that Mr. Mackenzie would never have started this line on his own initiative but that Mr. Petersen with whom he entertains friendly relations had interested him some years ago in his scheme of starting a direct line from the Continent to Canada and New York. Ever since that moment Mr. Mackenzie has been obliged to invest more money in this enterprise until in the beginning of this year, Col. Davidson had been invited by Mr. Mackenzie to look into the working of this line and its prospects. Col. Davidson had thereupon in February last advised Mr. Mackenzie to either abandon the line entirely or reconstruct it by taking it out of the hands of Mr. Petersen and substituting a more careful and a more economical management. Col. Davidson assured me that Mr. Petersen has now nothing to do any more with the Uranium Steamship Company. I did not want to ask why then Mr. Peterson had been present at the first meeting of Mr. Aitchison regarding the "Royal" Line as I did not consider it wise to show that Mr. Aitchison had reported in detail to the Continental Lines.

'Col. Davidson then said that in consideration of the large sums already expended in this line, Mr. Mackenzie finally decided to go on with it once more. Three steamers were acquired by purchase, the "Uranium," the "Volturno" and the "Campania," and a new company had been formed, "The Uranium Steamship Company."

'In the course of the conversation which lasted over an hour and in which the land and rail interests of the Canadian Northern were fully discussed, I received the impression that whilst the Royal Line has been established by the Canadian Northern Railway with the firm intention to maintain it, it will largely depend on the results obtained with the Uranium Line whether the latter is going to be continued. Col. Davidson is fully convinced of the fact that the Canadian Northern Railway as such has no interest whatever in Mr. Mackenzie's maintaining a steamship service on New York. The passengers landed at Halifax are naturally to a certain extent interesting to their rail interests, but the majority of them lands in New York where practically all the cargo is discharged, and eastbound all the cargo loaded, whilst the eastbound passengers come exclu sively from the United States.

'Col. Davidson at the end again approached the question as to whether I could not agree rates with the Uranium Co., but I told him that I was not prepared to discuss any agreement. He then asked me if I would report to the Continental Lines about our conversation and said that he should like to meet the Continental Lines but that he was leaving for Canada on July 7th. I replied that as far as I could see no meeting of the Continental Lines would take place before that date. Col. Davidson then continued that there were practically no more differences between Mr. Aitchison and himself with regard to the Royal Line but that he understood that the latter's admittance to the British Conference was dependent on an understanding being arrived at between the Continental Lines and the Uranium Steamship Co. I confirmed this, whereupon Col. Davidson remarked that he could not admit that these two questions should be mixed up; for him these were two separate questions which should be treated separately.

'I consider this a very important point because it shows that there is great anxiety on the part of the Royal Line to be admitted to Conference. This should make the lines cautious; for the very reason why Col. Davidson wishes to separate these two questions, the lines must combine them.

'I may add that our conversation was carried on in a most friendly spirit and ended in the promise being made by Col. Davidson to return my visit in Rotterdam next week.

'As I had no authority to act as a representative of the Lines, I refrain from making any recommendations. I judge that within short the Continental Lines after they shall have consulted each other will be in a position to state to the British Lines which course in their opinion should be pursued in dealing with the Royal and Uranium Lines; in the meantime I think no further steps should be taken.

Yours truly,

Signed J. G. REUCHLIN.'"

(Peter's Letter No. 910, July 15, 1910, p. 4681.)

" The Holand America Line write :

' Although it is to be borne in mind that it is a rumor emanating from Mr. Peterson, we consider it of sufficient interest to the Lines to inform them that according to our informant it is said to be the intention of the Canadian Northern Railway to lay up the Royal Line steamers " Royal Edward" and " Royal George" by the end of October on account of their heavy running expenses and to substitute these steamers in the Bristol Line by those employed at present by the Uranium SS. Co. in the Rotterdam service, thereby discontinuing the latter.' "

(Id. No. 949, Aug. 16, 1910, p. 4729)

" Last night I received following telegram from the Secretary of the N. A. P. C.:

' Arrangements concluded with Royal Line who enter British and Scandinavian westbound third class rate agreements on same lines as Canadian Pacific and same rates as Empress steamers, Continental business westbound: Royal Line to charge not less than lowest rate of any British Canadian line and only to carry Uranium passengers in the event of steamer breaking down of which they must produce satisfactory evidence. Eastbound: Royal line joins subsidiary agreement to AA with percentage of one decimal fifteen. For first and Second class business join Agreements V and W taking same rates as Empress steamers '."

(Oelrichs & Co. to N. G. Lloyd, Oct. 7, 1910, p. 2951):

"Today we received a visit from Mr. William Phillip, Traffic Manager of the Canadian Northern Line, which, as you know, supports the Royal Steamship Line between Bristol and the Canadian ports, and which was admitted to the conference on the other side only a short time ago.

"Mr. Phillip advises us that they had already considered putting more steamers into service to increase the same and, of course, in this connection had thought of the steamers of the Uranium S. S. Co., which was supported by some of their principal stockholders. We intimated to Mr. Phillip that the withdrawal of these steamers from the New York service would undoubtedly help adjust the existing difficulties here, as Mr. Phillip since his connection with the Royal S. S. Co. has undoubtedly always endeavored to conduct the business in conformity with the agreement and the existing regulations and usages. Today, also, he repeatedly expressed the opinion that it was absolutely not necessary to resort to measures, such as had been used by the S. S. Co. mentioned, the Uranium S. S. Co. and its predecessors."

We believe that all the charges of unfair competition made by Mr. Thomas originated with him personally and not with his line from what follows:

Alexander Committee's Inquiry.

When the Alexander Committee was in session, it requested United States Consuls to furnish reports upon " Methods and practices of Steamship Lines, etc." In compliance with this request the American Consul General at Rotterdam made a report dated June 8, 1912, which was published in the record of the proceedings of the Alexander Committee, Vol. 3, page 88.

It is evident from this report that the only grievance of the Uranium Line was that it was unable to transport passengers through Germany on account of the German Government regulations.

The following extracts from this report refer clearly to the Uranium Line, as no other non-conference line meets the description given:

> " The regular steamship lines running to the ports of the Netherlands and engaged in the foreign carrying trade of the United States comprise the Holland-America Line, the Uranium Steamship Co. and the Russian-American Line. The first two companies maintain regular services between Holland and the United States, whereas the Russian-American Line steamers only call at Rotterdam on the way from America to Russia.
>
> * * * * * *
>
> " The Uranium Steamship Co. is reported to be owned and controlled by the Canadian Northern Railway. It carries on a fortnightly passenger and freight service to New York via Halifax, at which latter port it lands passengers and discharges cargo for Canada before proceeding to New York.

* * * * * *

" Shippers and importers here deny that the rates charged by the various steamship lines are detrimental to commerce or trade relations with America, and even the _____ an opposition line to the Holland-American line —which latter is supposed to belong to the 'pool'—declines to say that any undue competition or discrimination in rates is practiced by the 'pool' lines, except in a certain instance, as stated below.

" I beg here to quote some expressions obtained from the _____ of the aforementioned _____ and from certain shippers and importers, who have been interviewed by this office.

_____ of the _____, upon being requested by the writer to state any grievance which he might have against the so-called 'pool' lines forming the steamship combination plying between Europe and the United States, replied that he had no definite charges to make, except as follows:

" The _____ Co., not being a member of the North Atlantic Conference, cannot bring passengers through any part of the German Empire. Russian passengers, whether from the north or south, have to be routed over Krakau (Austrian-Russian frontier); and thence to Vienna—Basel, Switzerland—Delle, Swiss French frontier—Nancy and Belfort, France—Antwerp, Belgium—and finally to Rotterdam. Austrians and others are all routed by way of Vienna, and then the route already shown is followed. This long, circuitous route not only inflicts considerable hardship on the passengers, but is a great source of expense to the company—our rate must absorb the difference between travelling by way of Germany and the route prescribed herein.

* * * * *

"When the instruction to furnish a report re the 'Methods and Practices of Steamship Lines, etc.', was received from the Department of State, the writer went at once to the aforementioned_____of the_____ _____Line and invited him to make any statement or any complaint he might desire regarding the actions, discriminations, and general methods of any steamship combination or 'pool' which he might know to exist, but the foregoing statement was all he could be induced to make. _____ was asked specifically to state whether or not the_____ Line had even tried to prevent him from getting passengers or freight at this port, or had offered lower rates, in order to get traffic away from the_____Line, but these questions were answered in the negative."

Government's counsel, on the argument of the present case in the court below, announced that they withdrew any further contention in regard to the control stations on the German frontier, as they had come to the conclusion that they were under Government supervision. As the grievance which is referred to in the above consular report involves substantially the same point, no further discussion of the subject seems necessary. The Uranium Line was not licensed to transport immigrants through German territory.

V.

The right of the conference lines to receive a commission or commercial allowance from the railroads for undertaking the sale of their tickets in Europe and this country by means of the conference agency system cannot be raised in this suit, as this point is not pleaded in the petition and the introduction of evidence thereon was duly objected to by the defendants (fols. 1080, 1208, 2426).

The granting of a commission or commercial allowance to the steamship lines by the railroads has existed since about the middle of the eighties, in connection with the arrangement between them for the routing of passengers through the immigrant station at this port. (10 Interstate Commerce Com'n Reports, 27.) A sufficient consideration exists for the payment of this commission, as the steamship lines completely relieve the railroads of the work of selling their railroad tickets in Europe and this country, this service being performed by the conference agency system. The agency system of the outside lines was evidently not such that the railroads were willing to entrust them with their business.

The defendants have not attempted to offer proof on this subject, because the matter is not presented by the petition in this suit.

CHOATE, LAROCQUE & MITCHELL,
Solicitors for North German Lloyd.

WM. G. CHOATE,
JOSEPH LAROCQUE,
NELSON SHIPMAN,
Of Counsel.

APPENDIX.

Policy of United States in regard to Ocean Transportation.

From Report of Alexander Committee (pp. 295-303).

Advantages of Shipping Conferences and Agreements in the American Foreign Trade.[1]

Practically all steamship representatives who testified before the Committee, as well as a majority of the leading American exporting and importing firms who expressed their views on the subject to the Committee, contended that shipping agreements, conference relations, or oral understandings which steamship lines have effected among themselves in nearly every branch of our foreign trade are a natural evolution and are necessary if shippers are at all times to enjoy ample tonnage and efficient, frequent, and regular service at reasonable rates. Such agreements, it is contended,

[1] The reader is referred to the "Summary of replies received by the Committee in answer to its circular letter of Feb. 18, 1913, relating to the advantages and disadvantages of steamship agreements and conferences," published in Vol. 2, pp. 1397-1408 of the Committee's proceedings. This summary represents the views of leading exporting and importing firms operating at our most important ports. Portions of this summary are reproduced in this chapter. The reader is also referred to the report submitted to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries by the Committee appointed by the representatives of steamship lines maintaining established services from New York to foreign countries, including Porto Rico and the Philippines, under date of Mar. 3, 1913. This Report is published in Vol. 2, pp. 1357-1374.

are a protection to both shipper and shipowner. To the shipper they insure desired stability of rates and the elimination of secret arrangements with competitors. To the shipowner they tend to secure a dependable return on the investment, thus enabling the lines to provide new facilities for the development of the trade. Furthermore such agreements are held to furnish the means for taking care of the disabilities of the weaker lines, whereas unrestricted competition, based on the survival of the fittest, tends to restrict the development of the lines and in the end must result in monopoly. Briefly outlined, the advantages secured through agreements and cooperative understandings, as presented to the Committee, are the following:

I. Improvement in service:

1. Regularity of service, resulting in the following advantages:

(a) Opportunities to merchants for shipping are increased, resulting in a much greater increase in the volume of trade, especially to new or remote markets, than would be the case if goods could be supplied only at irregular intervals.

(b) Fixed dates of sailings at regular intervals enable shippers to work with smaller stocks than they otherwise could, thus reducing unnecessary risks, as well as storage charges.

(c) Makes unnecessary the engaging of cargo space considerably in advance, and shippers incur no penalty or other inconvenience if unable or unwilling to ship goods at the last moment.

(d) Merchants are enabled to make forward contracts for the delivery of goods at a definite date. This factor is important in connection with stability and uniformity of rates. In view of both factors merchants can make contracts for forward delivery at a definite date and price, including cost, freight, and insurance. Such contracts are of vital importance in the trade of to-day, which is largely conducted in large quantities and on the basis of orders placed months ahead and calculated on a small margin of profit.

(e) Without regularity of service in the long-distance voyages, or in the new and undeveloped services, American merchants and manufacturers would be operating at a great disadvantage as compared with European merchants, who now have the benefit of a more highly developed service from European ports to foreign markets.

(f) A better distribution of sailings is secured. Under unrestricted competition a number of vessels may sail from the same port within a day or week, resulting in no sailings from that port for a considerable period thereafter. Under a system of co-operation, however, both the time and ports of sailings are agreed upon, thus "avoiding the waste involved in several ships calling at ports which require only one, and giving an excess tonnage on one date and a corresponding lack of tonnage at other times."

(g) A large portion of American exports coming from the interior, it follows that, with regular sailings, goods arriving late and missing one steamer may be dispatched by the next steamer of another line, thus causing only a short period of waiting, with the result that unnecessary port charges are avoided, the accumulation of goods is prevented, and the loading and delivery of cargo is facilitated.

2. Greater security is given to capital invested in the steamship business and because of this greater security shipowners are enabled to supply an adequate number of vessels of a higher class and greater speed than the ordinary tramp. Moreover, conditions surrounding most trades are dissimilar as regard the depth of water at the ports, the nature of the cargo offered, and the quantity of freight moving during certain seasons. By giving vessel owners a dependable return on the investment they are enabled to provide new facilities for the development of the trade and to adequately adapt the sailings, speed, and equipment to the particular trade. To many merchants the adaptability of the service to the requirements of the trade is highly essential, because of the nature of their exports and imports. The benefits claimed for this advantage are the following:

(a) Cargo is delivered in better order and with greater dispatch and regularity.

(b) Insurance premiums on cargo are reduced, and the rate of insurance may be counted upon as more uniform and stable, thus again favoring merchants in making contracts for the forward delivery of goods.

(c) Loss of interest on the cargo while in transit is reduced.

(d) Shippers are relieved of anxiety as to the class of vessel by which their freight will be shipped.

II. Stability of rates over long periods of time:

1. Removes the inconvenience which would exist if merchants and shippers were obliged to quote different propositions on nearly every consignment, thus eliminating what was formerly an undesirable speculative risk under the open competitive system. A uniform selling price in foreign markets is considered highly essential by merchants. Moreover, conference lines seek to give reasonable notice of alteration in rates, and when increasing their rates shippers are allowed to declare outstanding contracts at the lower rate.

2. Reduces the complaints from buyers abroad. American exporters assert that during periods of rate competition complaints from foreign buyers are numerous if sales to them do not happen to be on the lowest basis of cost and freight, while if there is uniformity in rates, even though these rates be on a higher level, it is seldom that foreign consignees make complaints.

3. Enables shippers and merchants to calculate laid-down costs and sell goods for delivery in the future. American exporters assert that such contracts for future delivery are to-day a necessity, and in this respect nothing is regarded so detrimental to the export trade as uncertainty regarding sailings and violent fluctuations in freight rates. Fixed rates under a system of co-operation, on the contrary, make possible the contracting for space for months, for a year, or even longer in advance, if desired. Such facilities are enjoyed by foreign exporters to competitive markets, and it is essential that American shippers should be placed on an equally favorable basis. Prominent exporting firms have again and again asserted to the Committee that they have experienced various rate wars during the past 10 to 15 years and are convinced that the present condition of fixed rates and regular sailing opportunities places all merchants upon the same basis as regards their estimates on contracts and produces much better results for the exporter and manufacturer than could be possible under the old order of things.

4. During periods of rate cutting buyers abroad generally pursue a policy of buying from hand to mouth instead of placing large orders for shipments ahead, because they never know what the goods will cost them by the time the same are received. If they foresee serious fluctuations in rates during the one or more months which are required to dispose of large lots of merchandise, they prefer to buy small lots, even at a greater cost, in order to have a chance to meet their competitors.

5. During periods of rate cutting steamship owners are reluctant to make forward contracts for the carriage of freight because of unwillingness to sell cargo space for the future at a loss.

6. While competition in rates between conference lines ceases, competition in facilities continues. Although the conference system largely results in placing rates outside the influence of competition, by pursuing a policy of charging "what the traffic will bear," these rates must ultimately be reasonable for the following reasons:

(a) It is to the interest of the lines not to charge rates detrimental to the development of traffic. Shipowners depend for success on the good will of shippers, and to build up business must establish rates which will enable their American clients to compete successfully with foreign merchants engaged in the same trade.

(b) Shippers are not placed at the mercy of the conference lines, because in nearly all the important branches of the American foreign trade there is competition from regular lines serving European merchants to the same ports. The lines serving American merchants must meet the rates of the regular lines trading to the same ports from foreign countries. In other words, world conditions govern ocean rates to and from the United States.

(c) If the rates of the regular lines, to quote the New York committee, "should exceed or even approximate the chartered rate for tramp steamers, large shippers immediately protect themselves by the employment of tramps for the transportation of their shipments. Small individual shippers who can not accumulate merchandise in quantities sufficient to justify the charter of tramp steamers are at such times served by charter brokers, who are always ready, when rates by the regular lines advance to such a point that a profit can be made by charter, to lay chartered ships on the berth, themselves accumulating the shipments of numbers of small merchants, who by this means can always protect themselves against oppression" (Vol. 2, p. 1363).

Despite the great increase in ocean rates in recent years the great majority of leading exporting and importing houses which have expressed their views on the subject to the Committee consider the present rates charged by the steamship lines as fairly reasonable when compared with charter rates prevailing the world over, and taking into consideration the capital invested, the increased cost of operation, the better character and reater speed of the vessels, the greater regularity of ailings, the maintenance of depreciation and sinking nds, the facilities of the ports of call, and the frequent sence of return cargo. While many of the firms ex-ess a desire for a lower level of rates than exists -day, provided they are uniform, they frankly ad-it that the present high rates, as long as they are eady over considerable periods of time and equally plicable to all without rebates or other special vors, do not militate against them nearly so much as uld a lower level of rates if the same was a fluctuat-g one and was accompanied by irregularity in sailings. oreover, the large increase in the number of steamers d in their size during the past 15 years in nearly all isions of our foreign trade is pointed to as showing e desire of the lines to keep pace with the growth of country's export trade. It was also the general ertion that the regular lines give shippers advantages contrasted with tramp steamers. Not only are their es uniform and their sailings reasonably regular, but ir steamers are faster and their service better, and he main these advantages overbalance the increase ates.

III. Uniform freight rates secured to all merchants.

Uniform rates protect the small against the large ppers, and relieve all shippers from the effects of erhand discrimination. Under open competition erful shippers, or combinations of shippers, can ob- preferential rates, while under a system of co-ation it is not to the interest of the conference to give special terms to powerful clients. Rate wars are detrimental to the interests of small shippers because the object in every rate war is to obtain the freight of large shippers by offering special rates. The inevitable result of rate wars is a gradual monopolization of the trade in given commodities by the more powerful shippers.

Almost without exception, the testimony before the Committee of conference line representatives shows that it is the purpose of their lines to charge uniform rates and to extend equal opportunities to all shippers. Practically all shippers, also, who in their statements to the Committee were favorable to agreements and conferences, took the view that to maintain equal treatment toward small and large shippers it is absolutely necessary that steamship lines should be allowed to co-operate, and that the improvement toward greater fairness between shippers is due to the fact that the lines have co-operated. Competition in the steamship business was regarded by them as the demoralization rather than the life of trade; as the means of introducing uncertainty instead of certainty, and inefficiency instead of efficiency; and that, inevitably, while all shippers are placed ultimately at a disadvantage through open competition, the small shipper fares much worse than his stronger competitor.

IV. Prevent the elimination of weaker lines in the various trades.—Unrestricted competition, based on the survival of the fittest, tends to restrict the development of the lines and in the end results in monopoly. Just as rate wars result in the monopolization of trade by the larger shippers, so also do they result in the monopolization of the carrying trade by one or a few of the most powerful carriers. This is especially true in the long-voyage trade where pooling becomes desirable. Here equal rates cannot be charged by all the lines in a given trade unless all are equal in speed and equipment. High-class freight, paying the most remunerative rates, would go to the best ships, while the least remunerative cargo would be shipped by the inferior boats. As reported by the New York Committee of steamship representatives: "By means of pooling the weaker line is compensated for its failure to obtain a fair share of the more remunerative goods and by living alongside the strong line adds to the total of the shipping facilities which the trade may reasonably require." (Vol. 2, p. 1368.)

In addition to the combinations by agreement there are numerous instances of consolidations among steamship lines by actual amalgamation or through stock control of subsidiaries. (The most notable examples of such consolidations are the International Mercantile Marine Co., the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co., the Hamburg-American Lines, and Furness, Withy & Co.). This movement toward actual consolidation by ownership, various witnesses have emphasized, would have taken place more rapidly and on a much larger scale if the making of steamship agreements and conferences had been impossible. In the absence of co-operation through written or oral agreements, according to these witnesses, only two alternatives present themselves, viz., consolidation by actual ownership or the elimination of the weaker lines through cut-throat competition.

V. Maintenance of rates from the United States to foreign markets on a parity with those from other countries, thus enabling American merchants to compete successfully with foreign merchants. It has been the contention of all the conference line representatives who have appeared before the Committee that their lines make every effort to keep American rates to foreign markets on a parity with European rates. The Committee has received only 27 complaints from exporting interests charging that American and European rates to the same destination are not kept on a parity, to the detriment of their business; and it should be noted that less than half of these complaints present any definite data tending to confirm the complainant's charge. A majority of the complaints are general in character and merely call attention to the desirability of having some properly constituted authority investigate this subject from time to time. In answer to these charges the New York Committee of steamship line representatives maintains that—> while occasional differences arise, as a rule shippers are not charged higher rates from this country than shippers in Europe are called upon to pay on the same commodity. In this respect the lines running from ports of the United States are at a decided disadvantage compared with the European services, because the classes of cargo offered from American ports are of lower grade than those received by the European lines. A ship sailing from Europe will obtain better freight earnings because it carries a larger percentage of high-class cargo, while the expenses incurred in United States ports are always considerably higher than those of a vessel loaded at European ports. Besides, many of the lines running from this country to foreign ports, unlike the European lines, obtain no return cargoes, and are obliged to return to our ports either directly in ballast, or via some other loading port. These facts tend to increase the running expenses of the American services and would therefore justify a somewhat higher freight rate from American ports.

VI. Reduction in the cost of service, eventually resulting in lower freight rates for a high standard of service.

1. By eliminating wasteful competition among the lines, thus reducing the aggregate cost of service of all the lines.

2. By arranging the order of the sailings of the several lines at definite dates, and by regulating the sailings of the vessels of the various lines in such a manner as to prevent a number of vessels calling at ports which require only one at a given date.

VII. Cost of service can be more economically distributed over the traffic so as to develop the trade.

1. By reducing rates on articles where the rate would bear too heavily, and securing compensation on other items where the value and size justify the same.

2. By enabling the lines to view the trade "not only as it is, but as it may become." Certain ports may be placed on a reasonable footing in freight rates, although the present movement of freight would warrant much higher rates. This is especially true where pooling is practiced. "In connection with the operation of a steamship conference," as reported by the New York Committee, > poolings is nothing more than an equalization of expenses and earnings by the component members of a conference with the object that the conference shall furnish all the facilities that are demanded for the transportation both of profitable and unprofitable cargo and for the accommodation of the least profitable as well as the most profitable ports. Under its operations regularity of service is maintained, whether full cargoes are offered or not, whether the cargoes offered at any particular time be of a more or a less profitable kind, and whether the going rates as embodied in the tariff be profitable as compared with the general market value of tonnage or not; it enables the conferees to give service within the area of the conference operations at small or unimportant ports, often at a loss, which would have to be neglected unless such loss could be equalized by being brought > into a division of the earnings with the other vessels which serve the more important ports. The conferees, in substance and effect, become partners for the purpose of supplying tonnage for the particular trade in which the pool operates, and they divide their earnings and losses in proportion to the capital represented by tonnage which is furnished to supply the needs of the trade. (Vol. 2, pp. 1367–1368.)

3. By increasing the number of sailings to the smaller ports. On most routes there are many ports of destination which should be served, and no one owner could serve all except at great expense, such as extra steaming and port charges, and by greatly prolonging the voyage to the dissatisfaction of consignees. The natural tendency where all lines are competing would be for each owner, in order to compete in rates and speed, to avoid extra expenses and loss of time by not calling at the comparatively unimportant ports. Without pooling, it is asserted, the United States would have no direct communication to-day with many of the minor ports throughout the world whose aggregate trade with this country is very considerable. If the pooled lines, however, have agreed to compensate each other for the losses, these undesirable ports will be served as may be reasonably required.

4. By equalizing the earnings on large contracts over the members of a joint service. As expressed by the New York Committee,

> Our large manufacturers and exporters have extensive outstanding contracts for the supply of rails, locomotives, car material, bridge work, oil, etc., to various ports. No one service alone could possibly handle such products. Shippers are often obliged at stated periods to make large shipments of a kind of material which would be quite unsuitable for a steamer, such as rails, on which the earnings would be much below those of succeeding steamers which would carry other portions of construction material covered by the same contract, the rates for which would be far more remunerative. Only a joint service which could equalize the earnings under the whole contract would carry the materials covered by these large contracts without charging freight rates so prohibitive as to deprive the American manufacturer of the opportunity of securing the contracts in competition with foreign manufacturers. So the conference lines are able to maintain their schedules and provide for the export trade even at a loss to the individual ship. (Vol. 2, pp. 1368–1369.)

* * * * * *

From "Recommendations" of the Committee (pp. 416-7).

These advantages, the Committee believes, can be secured only by permitting the several lines in any given trade to co-operate through some form of rate and pooling arrangement under Government supervision and control. It is the view of the Committee that open competition cannot be assured for any length of time by ordering existing agreements terminated.

The entire history of steamship agreements shows that in ocean commerce there is no happy medium between war and peace when several lines engage in the same trade. Most of the numerous agreements and conference arrangements discussed in the foregoing report were the outcome of rate wars, and represent a truce between the contending lines. To terminate existing agreements would necessarily bring about one of two results: the lines would either engage in rate wars which would mean the elimination of the weak and the survival of the strong, or, to avoid a costly struggle, they would consolidate through common ownership. Neither result can be prevented by legislation, and either would mean a monopoly fully as effective, and it is believed more so, that can exist by virtue of an agreement. Moreover, steamship agreements and conferences are not confined to the lines engaging in the foreign trade of the United States. They are as universally used in the foreign trade of other countries as in our own. The merchants of these countries now enjoy the foregoing advantages of co-operative arrangements, and to restore open and cutthroat competition among the lines serving the United States would place American exporters at a disadvantage in many markets as compared with their foreign competitors.

Proposal of the United States to other Countries for the Establishment of a Permanent International Commerce Commission on Merchant Marine and on Ocean Freight Rates.

1914–5.

(38 Stat. 779.)

Joint Resolution of Congress.

[H. J. Res. 311.]

Joint Resolution Instructing American delegate to the International Institute of Agriculture to present to the permanent committee for action at the general assembly in nineteen hundred and fifteen certain resolutions.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in accordance with the authority of letter (f) of article nine of the treaty establishing the institute, which provides that it shall "submit to the approval of the Governments, if there be need, measures for the protection of the common interests of farmers," the American delegate to the International Institute of Agriculture is hereby instructed to present (during the nineteen hundred and fourteen fall sessions) to the permanent committee the following resolutions, to the end that they may be submitted for action at the general assembly in nineteen hundred and fifteen, so as to permit the proposed conference to be held in Rome during the fortnight preceding the session of the general assembly of the institute in nineteen hundred and seventeen:

"RESOLUTIONS.

"The general assembly instructs the International Institute of Agriculture to invite the adhering governments to participate in an international conference on the subject of steadying the world's price of the staples.

"This conference shall consist of members appointed by each of the governments adhering to the institute, and is to consider the advisability of formulating a convention for the establishment of a permanent International Commerce Commission on Merchant Marine and on Ocean Freight Rates with consultative, deliberative and advisory powers.

"Said conference to be held in Rome during the fortnight preceding the session of the general assembly of the institute in nineteen hundred and seventeen."

Approved, September 19, 1914.

International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, Italy.

Created by Convention between the United States and 39 Other Powers.

Signed at Rome, June 7, 1905.

Ratification advised by the Senate, June 27, 1906.
Ratified by the President, July 7, 1906.
Ratification Deposited with the Gov't of Italy, Aug. 31, 1906.
Proclaimed January 29, 1908
(35 Stat. 1918).

The Convention recites that in a series of meetings held at Rome, from May 29 to June 6, 1905, the delegates of the Powers convened at the Conference for the creation of an International Institute of Agriculture, and agreed upon the Convention, to be dated June 7, 1905.

The important provisions of the Convention are as follows:

ARTICLE 1.

There is hereby created a permanent international institute of agriculture, having its seat at Rome.

ARTICLE 2.

The international institute of agriculture is to be a government institute, in which each adhering power shall be represented by delegates of its choice.

The institute shall be composed of a general assembly and a permanent committee, the composition and duties of which are defined in the ensuing articles.

ARTICLE 3.

The general assembly of the institute shall be composed of the representatives of the adhering governments. * * *

ARTICLE 4.

The general assembly shall elect for each session from among its members a president and two vice-presidents.

The sessions shall take place on dates fixed by the last general assembly and according to a programme proposed by the permanent committee and adopted by the adhering governments.

ARTICLE 5.

The general assembly shall exercise supreme control over the international institute of agriculture.

* * * * * * *

The presence at the general assemblies of delegates representing two-thirds of the adhering nations shall be required in order to render the deliberations valid.

ARTICLE 6.

The executive power of the institute is intrusted to the permanent committee, which, under the direction and control of the general assembly, shall carry out the decisions of the latter and prepare propositions to submit to it.

ARTICLE 7.

The permanent committee shall be composed of members designated by the respective governments. Each adhering nation shall be represented in the permanent committee by one member. However, the representation of one nation may be intrusted to the delegate of another adhering nation, provided that the actual number of members shall not be less than fifteen.

* * * * * * *

ARTICLE 8.

The permanent committee shall elect from among its members for a period of three years a president and a vice-president, who may be re-elected.

* * * * * *

ARTICLE 9.

The institute, confining its operations within an international sphere, shall—

(a) Collect, study, and publish as promptly as possible statistical, technical, or economic information concerning farming, both vegetable and animal products, the commerce in agricultural products, and the prices prevailing in the various markets;

(b) Communicate to parties interested, also as promptly as possible, all the information just referred to;

(c) Indicate the wages paid for farm work;

(d) Make known the new diseases of vegetables which may appear in any part of the world, showing the territories infected, the progress of the disease, and, if possible, the remedies which are effective in combating them;

(e) Study questions concerning agricultural co-operation, insurance, and credit in all their aspects; collect and publish information which might be useful in the various countries in the organization of works connected with agricultural co-operation, insurance, and credit;

(f) Submit to the approval of the governments, if there is occasion for it, measures for the protection of the common interests of farmers and for the improvement of their condition, after having utilized all the necessary sources of information, such as the wishes expressed by international or other agricultural congress or congresses of sciences applied to agriculture, agricultural societies, academies, learned bodies, etc.

All questions concerning the economic interests, the legislation, and the administration of a particular nation shall be excluded from the consideration of the institute.

Annual appropriations are made by the United States for its share of the expenses of the Institute and salary of the delegate (34 Stat. 635; 35 Id., 177, 678; 36 Id., 343, 774; 37 Id., 101, 693; 38 Id., 448, 1122).

Steadying the World's Price of the Staples.

Resolutions by the Congress of the United States Presented to the International Institute of Agriculture.

(February 27th, 1915.)

The President. I wish to remind the Permanent Committee that the resolution passed by the United States Congress, which Mr. Lubin, the American delegate, will now present, was already communicated to the Committee last October. As the delegate was then in the United States it was decided to defer action until his return. I now give him the floor.

Mr. Lubin (delegate of the United States). In accordance with instructions from the Government of the United States, I herewith present to the Permanent Committee the following resolutions of Congress:

(Here follows the Joint Resolution as passed.)

I now move that the proposal contained in the above resolutions be placed on the program of the next General Assembly.

The President: Gentlemen, you have heard the motion. What is your pleasure?

Mr. Dop (delegate of France): In the first place I wish to express our thanks to the Delegate of the United States, and through him to the government of his country. By placing before the Institute so important a question as that of ocean freight rates, the United States is taking a direct and effective step towards the solution of a problem which is of the greatest economic and political importance to the whole world. Ocean freight rates have become the pivot on which turns the whole problem of the cost of cereals. It is therefore both the duty and the interest of the International Institute of Agriculture to accept with the greatest favor the proposal laid before it. Consequently I feel justified in stating that my government will be quite willing to accept the proposal made by the Government of the United States.

Mr. de Miklos (delegate of Hungary). I wish here to declare that my government has authorized me to give its adherence to the proposal made by the Government of the United States that the next General Assembly should deal with the question of ocean freight rates.

Mr. Zabiello (delegate of Russia). I wish to congratulate Mr. Lubin on the great success he has had and on the valuable work he has performed in his country by getting the Government of the United States to ask that the question of ocean freight rates be placed on the program of the General Assembly. The proposal is one of the greatest importance, more especially for my country, which, in the matter of ocean freight rates, is almost entirely dependent on other countries. I can only express my entire support of the proposal that the question be made part of the program of the next General Assembly.

Dr. Muller (delegate of Germany). I wish to associate myself to the congratulations which have been addressed to Mr. Lubin for his initiative. I have not been instructed to make a special declaration on the motion before us, but I can state that my government takes a great interest in the question. If the proposal is to be brought before the General Assembly or a special conference it is necessary that a preliminary study be made. Consequently I would ask that the Secretary General be instructed to take up the subject.

Mr. de Pozzi (delegate of Austria). In the first place I wish to declare myself heartily in favor of the motion presented by Mr. Lubin. I make a motion that a reporter be at once named to study the question along with the proper Bureau of the Institute.

Sir James Wilson (delegate of Great Britain). I wish to give my entire support to the motion presented by Mr. Lubin that the resolutions of Congress be placed before the next General Assembly. I agree, however, with the President that next October will be the proper time for deciding whether the Bureau should be ordered to draw up a report on the subject dealt with in the resolutions passed by the Congress of the United States which call for a special conference to be held.

Mr. Aldunate (delegate of Chile). As the representative of a country which does not possess a merchant marine, I deem it proper for me to say a few words.

The whole of Latin America has at present to submit to the freight rates formed in the great countries which possess powerful merchant marines. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance for our countries, for their economic and commercial prosperity, that a neutral ground be found, such as is afforded by the Institute, in which it is possible for us not only to get in touch with those countries which determine freight rates, but where we may find some protection for our interests which are at stake. I deem it proper to make this statement so that the merchant marine countries may take into due consideration that situation of those nations which are subject to them for ocean carriage. These nations are of great importance to the merchant marine countries, as it is they who supply the goods to be carried, and as they also largely supply Europe with her foodstuffs and with the raw material for her factories. Consequently, although I have not received direct instructions on this head, I am interpreting faithfully the economic policy to which my government constantly adheres when I give my full support to the proposal which has been brought before the Permanent Committee by the Congress of the United States.

Mr. Pinero Sorondo (delegate of Argentine). First of all, I wish to congratulate Mr. Lubin on the fact that, thanks to his efforts, this important question has been brought before us by the Congress of the United States. It is a question of exceptional importance for the Argentine, which has not got a merchant marine, and which now finds itself compelled to pay enormous freight rates in order to export its products, freight rates which amount in certain cases to fully half the value of the product.

Mr. Rovira (delegate of Uruguay). I entirely agree with the remarks which have just been made by the delegate of Argentine, and which hold good for the country which I represent. The resolution passed by Congress has my hearty support.

The President. I put to the vote the motion submitted by Mr. Lubin that the proposal relative to ocean freight rates, contained in the resolutions passed by the Congress of the United States, be made part of the program of the next General Assembly of the Institute.

The motion was carried unanimously.

Policy of England in Regard to Ocean Transportation.

On November 30, 1906, a Royal Parliamentary Commission was appointed "to inquire into the operation of Shipping 'Rings' or Conferences generally, and more especially into the system of deferred rebates, and to report whether such operations have caused, or are likely to cause injury to British or Colonial trade, and, if so, what remedial action, if any, should be taken by legislation or otherwise".

The proceedings of the Commission are contained in five volumes, published by the English Government in 1909.

The Commission, in its Report, attributed the following advantages to the Shipping Conference and Deferred Rebate System :

1. Improvements by :
   - (a) the institution and maintenance of regular sailings and stable rates of freight ;
   - (b) the provision of steamers of high class and speed.
2. Economy in cost of service.
3. More economic distribution of cost of service.
4. The maintenance of equal rates from the United Kingdom and the Continent.
5. Uniform rates of freight to all shippers, large or small.
6. No carriage on ship's account.

The recommendations of the Commission, in brief, were that the shippers and merchants should unite by forming associations which could negotiate with the conferences with greater effect when controversies arose, and if an agreement was not arrived at, the matter could be referred to the Board of Trade for arbitration.

No legislation was enacted by Parliament.

INLAND POLICY OF DIFFERENT COUNTRIES.

England.

I.

Att'y Gen'l of Commonwealth of Australia v. Adelaide Steamship Co., Ltd and others, L. R. (1913) App. Cas. 781.

This case was decided by the Privy Council on July 25, 1913 and involved the construction of the Act passed by the Australian Legislature in 1906 for the preservation of Australian industries and for the repression of destructive monopolies. The Privy Council reviews the common law and public policy of England on the subject of monopolies and contracts in restraint of trade down to the time the Act was passed, in order to properly interpret the meaning of the words "monopoly," "destructive monopoly"and "detriment to the public" contained in the Act.

The appeal was heard before the Lord Chancellor (Viscount Haldane) and Lords Shaw, Moulton and Parker, the opinion of the Privy Council being delivered by Lord Parker, and concurred in by the other members of the court.

The case was an important one, the argument before the Privy Council having lasted 12 days, the original trial in Australia 73 days and the appeal to the High Court of Australia more than a month (29 Times Law Reports 743).

Lord Parker, in delivering the judgment of the Privy Council, says:

"The Act of 1906 was a new departure in legislation and its true construction may be a matter of far-reaching economic importance. Their Lordships propose to consider its provisions with some particularity. Before doing so, however, it will be convenient, having regard to the arguments both here and in the Courts below, to refer to the law as it existed prior to and at the passing of the Act in relation to monopolies and contracts in restraint of trade" (p. 793).

Common Law Right of Freedom of Trade, and its Limitations where Just Cause or Excuse for Interference Exists.

"At common law every member of the community is entitled to carry on any trade or business he chooses and in such manner as he thinks most desirable in his own interests, and inasmuch as every right connotes an obligation no one can lawfully interfere with another in the free exercise of his trade or business unless there exist some just cause or excuse for such interference" (p. 793).

Just Cause or Excuse for Interference: (1) Where Acts done with a Single View of the Doer's own Interests. (2) Monopoly Grants from Crown. (3) Contracts in Restraint of Trade.

"Just cause or excuse for interference with another's trade or business may sometimes be found in the fact that the acts complained of as an interference have all been done in the bona fide exercise of the doer's own trade or business and with a single view to his own interests (the Mogul Steamship Case, 23 Q. B. D. 598; [1892] A. C. 25). But it may also be found in the existence of some additional or substantive right conferred by letters patent from the Crown or by contract between individuals. In the case of letters patent from the Crown this additional or substantive right is generally described as a monopoly. In the latter case the contract on which the additional or substantive right is fou nded is generally described as a contract in restraint of trade. Monopolies and contracts in restaint of trade have this in common, that they both, if enforced, involve a derogation from the common law right in virtue of which any member of the community may exercise any trade or business he pleases and in such manner as he thinks best in his own interests" (pp. 793–4).

Monopoly Grants from Crown Required a Consideration Moving to the Public.—Vexatious Interference with Trade Under Cover of Void Grants.

"The right of the Crown to grant monopolies is now regulated by the Statute of Monopolies, but it was always strictly limited at common law. A monoply being a derogation from the common right of freedom of trade could not be granted without consideration moving to the public, just as a toll being a derogation from the public right of passage could not be granted without the like consideration. In the case of new inventions the consideration was found either in the interest of the public to encourage inventive ingenuity or more probably in the disclosure made to the public of a new and useful article or process. In the case of sole rights of trading with foreign parts it might be found in the interest of the public in new countries being opened to trade. For the validity of every monopoly some consideration moving to the public was necessary. Many of the monopolies purported to be granted by the Tudor or Stuart Sovereigns were bad for want of such consideration, and it was the vexatious interference with trade under cover of these invalid grants which led to the passing of the Statute of Monopolies" (p. 794).

Evils Formerly Considered as Attending Monopolies.

"Further, monopolies were in the eyes of the lawyers of that time attended with the following evils:—first, increase in the price of the wares, and secondly, deterioration of the wares themselves, both evils being due to the want of healthy competition (11 Rep., at 86b)" (p. 794).

Contracts in Restraint of Trade.—The Old Rule and the Modern Rule.

"Contracts in restraint of trade were subject to somewhat different considerations. There is little doubt that the common law in the earlier stages of its growth treated all such contract as contracts of imperfect obligations, if not void for all purposes; they were said to be against public policy in the sense that it was deemed impolitic to enforce them and not because every such contract must necessarily operate to the public injury. The old common law rule against enforcing such contracts has, however, been relaxed in more recent times. Though, speaking generally, it is the interest of every individual member of the community that he should be free to earn his livelihood in any lawful manner, and the interest of the community that every individual should have his freedom, yet under certain circumstances it may be to the interest of the individual to contract in restraint of this freedom, and the community if interested to maintain freedom of trade is equally interested in maintaining freedom of contract within reasonable limits" (pp. 794–5).

The Modern Rule.—The Nordenfelt Case.

"The existing law on the point is laid down in the case of Nordenfelt v. Maxim Nordenfelt Co. ([1894] A. C. 535). For a contract in restraint of trade to be enforcible in a Court of Law or Equity, the restraint, whether it be a partial or general restraint, must (to use the language of Lord Macnaghten, evidently adapted from that of Tindall, C. J., in Horner v. Graves [1831], 7 Bing. 735) be reasonable both in reference to the interests of the contracting parties and in reference to the interests of the public, so framed and so guarded as to afford adequate protection to the party in whose favor it is imposed, while at the same time it is in no way injurious to the public. Their Lordships are not aware of any case in which a restraint though reasonable in the interests of the parties has been held unenforceable because it involved some injury to the public" (p. 795).

Term "Monopoly" as Popularly Used Equivalent to "Pernicious Monopoly."

"Lindley and Bowen, L. JJ., had suggested in the Court below [in the Nordenfelt Case] that though a restraint might be reasonable as between the parties to the contract it might be unenforceable because of the "law which forbids monopolies", or because it was calculated to create "a pernicious monopoly", and there is a similar suggestion by Lindley, L. J., in Underwood v. Barber [1899] 1 Ch. 300). The term monopoly cannot be here used in its proper signification of a right granted by the Crown, nor can the expression "the law which forbids monopolies" refer to any common law or statutory rule limiting the Crown's prerogative in this respect. The learned Lords Justices are contemplating a state of circumstances in which some trade or industry has passed or is likely to pass into the hands or under the control of a single individual or groups of individuals, and are indicating that if a restraint on trade is likely to produce this result, it may on grounds of public policy be unenforceable however reasonable in the interests of the parties to the contract. Such a state of circumstances may, by eliminating competition, entail the evils thought to be incident to monopoly rights granted by the Crown, and may therefore in a popular sense be called a monopoly. It is so called by Farwell, L. J., in the case of the North Western Salt Co. v. the Electrolytic Alkali Co. (107 L. T. 439) now under appeal to the House of Lords" (since reversed, see case II, infra).

Chief Evil Entailed by Monoply was Rise in Prices and Influenced Courts in their Attitude towards Contracts in Restraint of Trade.

"The chief evil thought to be entailed by a monopoly, whether in its strict or popular sense, was the rise in prices which such monopoly might entail. The idea that the public are injuriously affected by high prices has played no inconsiderable part in our legal history. It led, no doubt, to the enactment of most, if not all, of the penal statutes repealed by 12 Geo. 3, c. 71. It also lay at the root of the common law offence of engrossing, which, according to Hawkins' Pleas of the Crown, vol. ii., book 1, ch. 79, consisted in buying up large quantities of wares with intent to resell at unreasonable prices. It influenced the Courts in their attitude towards contracts in restraint of trade" (p. 796).

Pernicious Monopoly, Calculated to Enhance Prices to an Unreasonable Extent.

"Although, therefore, the whole subject may some day have to be reconsidered, there is at present ground for assuming that a contract in restrain of trade, though reasonable in the interests of the parties, may be unreasonable in the interests of the public if calculated to produce that state of things which is referred to by Lindley and Bowen, L. JJ., as a pernicious monopoly, that is to say, a monopoly calculating to enhance prices to an unreasonable extent" (p. 796).

Common Law Offence of Engrossing Not Abolished in Australia.—Effect of Protective Tariff.

"In this connexion it should be noticed that the Act of 7 and 8 Vict. c. 24, which abolished the common law offence of engrossing, does not apply to the States of the Commonwealth, and that monopolies in the popular sense of the word are more likely to arise, and, if they do arise, are more likely to lead to prices being unreasonably enhanced in countries where a protective tariff prevails than in countries where there is no such tariff" (p. 796).

Burden of Establishing a Pernicious Monopoly No Light One Where Court is Satisfied Restraint is Reasonable as Between the Parties.

"It is, however, in their Lordships' opinion, clear that the onus of shewing that any contract is calculated to produce a monopoly or enhance prices to an unreasonable extent will lie on the party alleging it, and that if once the Court is satisfied that the restraint is reasonable as between the parties the onus will be no light one" (pp. 796–7).

Question One of Public Policy.

"Further, it must be remembered that the question whether restraint of trade is reasonable either in the interest of the parties or in the interest of the public is a question for the Court, to be determined after construing the contract and considering the circumstances existing when it was made. It is really a question of public policy and not a question of fact upon which evidence of the actual or probable consequences, if the contract be carried into effect, is admissible" (p. 797).

Contracts or Combinations in Restraint of Trade Never an Offence at Common Law Unless Amounting to a Criminal Conspiracy.

"It is only necessary to add that no contract was ever an offence at common law merely because it was in restraint of trade. The parties to such a contract, even if unenforceable, were always at liberty to act on it in the manner agreed. Similarly combinations, not amounting to contracts, in restraint of trade were never unlawful at common law. To make any such contract or combination unlawful it must amount to a criminal conspiracy, and the essence of a criminal conspiracy is a contract or combination to do something unlawful, or something lawful by unlawful means" (p. 797).

Right of Combining in a Common Course of Action Legal if with a Single View to the Interests of Combining Parties and not with a View to Injure the Public.

"The right of the individual to carry on his trade or business in the manner he considers best in his own interests involves the right of combining with others in a common course of action, provided such common course of action is undertaken with a single view to the interests of the combining parties and not with a view to injure others (the Mogul Steamship Case, 23 Q. B. D 598; [1892] A. C. 25).

"Such having been the state of the law when the Act of 1906 was passed, their Lordships will proceed to consider the various provisions of that Act and its proper interpretation" (p. 797).

Provisions of the Australian Act.

"The full title of the Act is 'An Act for the Preservation of Australian Industries and for the Repression of Destructive Monopolies,' and Part II., comprising sections 4 to 14, inclusive, is entitled 'Repression of Monopolies.'"

Sect. 4 provides that any person who either as principal or agent makes or enters into any contract, or is or continues to be a member of, or engages in any combination in relation to, trade or commerce among the States of the Commonwealth (a) with intent to restrain trade or commerce to the detriment of the public, or (b) with intent to destroy or injure by means of unfair competition any Australian industry the preservation of which is advantageous to the Commonwealth, having due regard to the interests of producers, workers, and consumers, is guilty of an offence the penalty for which is fixed at 500 l.

Sect. 6 defines unfair competition as "unfair under the circumstances," and specifies certain cases in which the competition is to be deemed to be unfair unless the contrary be proved.

Sect. 7 provides that any person who monopolizes or attempts to monopolize, or combines or conspires with any other person to monopolize, any part of the trade or commerce among the States with intent to control, to the detriment of the public, the supply or price of any service, merchandise, or commodity, is guilty of an offence the penalty of which is fixed at 500 l.

Sect. 9 provides that whoever aids, abets, counsels, or procures, or by act or omission is in any way directly or indirectly knowingly concerned in or privy to an offence under S. 4 or S. 7 shall be deemed to have committed the offence and be subject to a penalty of 500 l.

Sect. 10 of the Act enables the Attorney-General of the Commonwealth to institute proceedings for an injunction restraining the carrying out of any contract or combination which is, in fact, in restraint of trade or commerce to the detriment of the public, or is, in fact, destructive or injurious by means of unfair competition to any such Australian industry as mentioned in S. 7.

The amending Act No. 5 of 1908 contains a section, which as amended by the amending Act No. 26 of 1909, provides that in any prosecution for an offence against ss. 4, 7, or 9 of the Act of 1906 the averments of the prosecutor contained in the information, declaration, or claim shall be deemed to be proved in the absence of proof to the contrary, but so that the averment of intent shall not be deemed sufficient to prove such intent" (pp. 797–8).

"Destructive Monopoly" in Australian Act Equivalent to "Pernicious Monopoly."

"It is in their Lordships' opinion quite clear that the term 'monopolies' and 'monopolize' as used in the Act of 1906 do not refer to a monopoly in the strict legal sense, but in the more popular sense in which Lindley and Bowen, L. JJ., used the term 'monopoly' in the dicta above mentioned. 'Destructive monopoly' is equivalent to 'pernicious monopoly' as used by the learned Lords Justices, and, no doubt, undue enhancement of the prices of goods or services is contemplated as one of the evils which may render a monopoly in the popular sense destructive or pernicious, it being assumed that such enhancement is to the public injury or detriment. Similarly there can be little doubt that one of the ways in which a restraint of trade might in the view of the Commonwealth Legislature be detrimental to the public was by its creating a pernicious monopoly in this popular sense of the word. There may, of course, be other ways in which a monopoly or restraint of trade may enure to the public detriment, but undue enhancement of prices must certainly be one" (pp. 797–8).

* * * * * *

"Detriment to Public" in Australian Act Refers to Producing and Distributing Public as well as Consuming Public.

"It was also strongly urged that in the term 'detriment to the public' the public means the consuming public, and that the Legislature was not contemplating the interest of any persons engaged in the production or distribution of articles of consumption. Their Lordships do not take this view, but the matter is really of little importance, for in considering the interests of consumers it is impossible to disregard the interests of those who are engaged in such production and distribution. It can never be in the interests of the consumers that any article of consumption should cease to be produced and distributed, as it certainly would be unless those engaged in its production or distribution obtained a fair remuneration for the capital employed and the labour expended" (p. 801).

* * * * * *

Solidarity of Interest Between All Members of the Public, Producers as Well as Consumers.

"It can never, in their Lordships' opinion, be of real benefit to the consumers of coal that colliery proprietors should carry on their business at a loss, or that any profit they make should depend on the miners' wages being reduced to a minimum. Where these conditions prevail, the less remunerative collieries will be closed down, there will be great loss of capital, miners will be thrown out of employment, less coal will be produced, and prices will consequently rise until it becomes possible to reopen the closed collieries or open other seams. The consumers of coal will lose in the long run if the colliery proprietors do not make fair profits or the miners do not receive fair wages. There is in this respect a solidarity of interest between all members of the public" (p. 809).

Mere Intention to Raise Prices not Sufficent to Prove Intention to Injure the Public.—Intent to Charge Excessive or Unreasonable Prices Must Be Apparent.

"The Crown, therefore, cannot, in their Lordships' opinion, rely on the mere intention to raise prices as proving an intention to injure the public. To prove an intention to injure the public by raising prices the intention to charge excessive or unreasonable prices must be apparent" (pp. 809–10).

* * * * * *

Privy Counsel Refers to Decision of U. S. Supreme Court in Standard Oil Co. Case.

"In the argument upon the true construction of the Act of 1906 considerable stress was laid on the cases decided by the Supreme Court of the United States under the analogous statute known as the Sherman Act, and in particular on the case of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey v. United States (221 U. S. 1). Although the judgments in this case are valuable for the light they throw on the development of the common law touching monopolis and contracts in restraint of trade, their Lordships do not think that the decisions themselves are of any real assistance in the present case. The Sherman Act, construed strictly, makes every contract or combination in restraint of trade and every monopoly or attempt to monopolize a statutory misdemeanor irrespective of any sinister intention on the part of the accused and irrespective of any detriment to the public. The actual decision is that contracts in restraint of trade which are enforceable at common law are impliedly excepted from the express provisions of the Act. The enforceability of the contract becomes in this way the test of its legality. There is, however, no justification for applying a similar test in the case of an Act which, like the Act of 1906, only deals with contracts or combinations or monopolies or attempts to monopolize which involve detriment to the public and in which a sinister intention is of the essence of the offence" (p. 801).

The law and policy of England and Australia as declared by the House of Lords, and that of the United States as declared by this Court, do not, however, appear to be very different.

Standard Oil Co. v. U. S. (1910) 221 U. S. 1.

"Without going into detail and but very briefly surveying the whole field, it may be with accuracy said that the dread of enhancement of prices and of other wrongs which it was thought would flow from the undue limitation on competitive conditions caused by contracts or other acts of individuals or corporations, led, as a matter of public policy, to the prohibition or treating as illegal all contracts or acts which were unreasonably restrictive of competitive conditions, either from the nature or character of the contract or act or where the surrounding circumstances were such as to justify the conclusion that they had not been entered into or performed with the legitimate purpose of reasonably forwarding personal interest and developing trade, but on the contrary were of such a character as to give rise to the inference or presumption that they had been entered into or done with the intent to do wrong to the general public and to limit the right of individuals, thus restraining the free flow of commerce and tending to bring about the evils, such as enhancement of prices, which were considered to be against public policy" (p. 28),

* * * * * *

"The statute * * * evidenced the intent not to restrain the right to make and enforce contracts, whether resulting from combination or otherwise, which did not unduly restrain interstate or foreign commerce, but to protect that commerce, from being restrained by methods, whether old or new, which would constitute an interference that is an undue restraint" (pp. 59–60).

U. S. v. American Tobacco Co. (1910) 221 U. S. 106.

"Applying the rule of reason to the construction of the statute, it was held in the Standard Oil Case [221 U. S. p. 1], that as the words 'restraint of trade' at common law and in the law of this country at the time of the adoption of the Anti-trust Act only embraced acts or contracts or agreements or combinations which operated to the prejudice of the public interests by unduly restricting competition or unduly obstructing the due course of trade or which, either because of their inherent nature or effect or because of the evident purpose of the acts, etc., injuriously restrained trade, that the words as used in the statute were designed to have and did have but a like significance. It was therefore pointed out that the statute did not forbid or restrain the power to make normal and usual contracts to further trade by resorting to all normal methods, whether by agreement or otherwise, to accomplished such purpose" (p. 179).

II.

The Northwestern Salt Co., Ltd. v. The Electrolytic Alkali Co., Ltd. L. R. (1914) App. Cas. 461.

This case was decided by the House of Lords on February 12th, 1914, the same Judges composing the Court as in the previous case, excepting that Lord Sumner sat in the place of Lord Shaw.

The plaintiff company was a combination of salt manufacturers formed for the purpose of regulating supply and keeping up prices, and it had the practical control of the inland salt market.

The Lord Chancellor says:

> " Unquestionably the combination in question was one, the purpose of which was to regulate supply and keep up prices. But an ill-regulated supply and unremunerative prices might in point of fact be disadvantageous to the public. Such a state of things might, if it was not controlled, drive manufacturers out of business, or lower wages, and so cause unemployment and labour disturbance. It must always be a question of circumstances whether a combination of manufacturers in a particular trade was an evil from a public point of view. The same thing was true of a supposed monopoly " (p. 469).
>
> * * * * *
>
> " It may be, for all that appears, that agreements of this kind were the only effective method of preventing domestic competition from being carried to a length which would ultimately prove not merely ruinous to the parties themselves, but injurious to the public, even outside that portion of it which was dependent on the prosperity of the salt manufacturing industry " (p. 471).

47

Lord Parker says:

> " The competition between salt producers within the area covered by the agreement of September 11, 1906, either inter se or with salt producers outside of this area may have been so drastic that some combination limiting output and regulating competition within the area so as to secure reasonable prices may have been necessary, not only in the interests of the salt producers themselves, but in the interest of the public generally, for it cannot be to the public advantage that the trade of a large area should be ruined by cut-throat competition " (pp. 479–81).

Germany.

Agreement AA is valid under the laws of Germany. This was testified to by Dr. Schnitzler, a competent expert on the German Law, who shows that the law of that country does not favor unrestricted competition and refers to numerous decisions of the Imperial Court of Germany on the subject (Test'y, vol. 3, fols. 5294–5300, 5305–6; Exhibits, vol. 10, p. 492 et seq.).

The following extracts from the decisions of the Imperial Court show the policy of that country in regard to unrestricted competition:

Decision in the Case of the German Booksellers' Association of Leipzig—June 25, 1890 (Record, vol. 10, p. 4952).

In this case, the Imperial Court, in recognizing that the purpose of the association of bookdealers in regard to rebates was lawful and justified by the historical development of the book trade in Germany, says:

> "In the first place, it seems in point to deal with certain allegations made on behalf of the plaintiff according to which it would appear that the very object of the association, consisting in the imposition on all members of the trade of fixed rules as to the rebate to be allowed to customers, was in itself an unlawful interference with the free formation of prices to which the customers were entitled, as well as a restriction on the freedom of trade, and therefore constituted a violation of public order and was an act 'contra bonos mores,' and that the Association was in the nature of a 'ring.' In answer to these allegations it is necessary to point out that they might be relevant if there had been an association of persons, who, for their speculative purposes, had as their object the command of the market for a particular kind of goods and the hemming in of the free action of economic forces, which might operate against such purposes. But such combinations must be kept entirely apart from the associations of persons in the same trade, who, in good faith, co-operate for the purpose of preserving the vitality of such trade, by preventing the depreciation of the products of such trade, and the other disadvantages arising from mutual underbidding. It does not follow from the principle of the freedom of trade that the free play of economic forces is to be unassailable, to the extent of making it unlawful for traders to attempt any regulation of the operation of these forces by means of associated self-help, or to restrain each other from acts deemed to be harmful to to the common cause."

Decision in the Case of the Saxon Wood Pulp Manufacturers' Syndicate—Feb. 7, 1897 (Record, vol. 10, p. 4955).

The Imperial Court says:

"The association now suing, as is expressly stated in the articles of association and not denied by the parties, has been organized to prevent, in the future, destructive competition between the Saxon Wood Pulp Manufacturers and to make possible the obtaining of higher prices than could be obtained from unrestricted competition. Regarding the question whether a combination pursuing such objects violates the principle of freedom of trade expressed in the Trade Law, two points of view are to be considered: First, whether, by a combination of trade people for the purpose of maintaining certain minimum prices for their products, the intentions of the legislator, in so far as he desires to further the interests of the community by liberty of trade, are not militated against in an inadmissible manner; Second, whether by agreements of the kind in question, the individual freedom of a person is limited in a manner violating the intention of the legislator.

"The first question has repeatedly been answered in the affirmative, especially outside of Germany (citing text-writers), but, on the other hand, the following must be considered.

"If in a given trade the prices of the manufactures are sinking too low, and if thereby the profitable carrying on of the trade is prevented or endangered, then the crisis thereby created is not only pernicious to the individual, but also to the economical status of the people in general, and it is therefore in the interests of the community that prices in a given trade shall not permanently be inadequately low. The legislatures accordingly have often, and also recently, attempted to increase the prices of certain productions by the introduction of protective tariffs. Therefore, it cannot be stated unqualifiedly and generally, that it is contrary to the interests of the community, if manufacturers in a particular trade combine in order to prevent underbidding and the sinking of the prices of their product, or to moderate the same. If prices in fact are continuously too low, so as to threaten the manufacturers with economical ruin, their combination is not only a justified exercise of their right of self-preservation, but also a measure serving the interests of the community, and therefore, from different quarters, the formation of syndicates and cartels of the kind in question have been referred to as a means, which, if properly applied, is especially suitable to be of benefit to the entire community, by preventing uneconomical and wasteful overproduction and the catastrophies resulting therefrom (citing text-writers).

"In accordance therewith, it has been held repeatedly in the past by German and other courts that it does not violate the principle of freedom of trade, so far as the same is intended to protect the interests of the community against the self interest of the individual, if people in the same trade combine together to pursue, in good faith, the purpose of keeping a certain trade in a condition to live, by protecting their products against their becoming valueless, and the other disadvantages which result from underbidding by individuals (citing various decisions of state courts of appeal (Oberlandesgerichts), and the decision by the Imperial Court of June 25, 1890, vol. 28, p. 238).

"Agreements of the kind in question can, therefore, from the standpoint of the public interest protecting the freedom of trade, only be objected to, if in a given case objections arise on account of special circumstances, particularly if the agreement is evidently intended to create an actual monopoly and the extortionate exploitation of the consumers or if such results will in fact be produced by the agreements and manipulations made.

"As far as concerns the second of the questions raised above, the provision of the Trade Law, by which there is guaranteed to every individual the right to carry on his business at his pleasure, in so far as the laws do not specially prescribe or admit of exceptions and restrictions, cannot be interpreted to mean that the individual may not by contract subject himself to any restriction regarding the time, place or manner of the exercise of his trade. That is not the meaning of Paragraph 1 of the Trade Law has been constantly held by the Imperial Court, by answering the question, whether agreements prohibiting competition can be legally entered into, in the affirmative, with the restriction that such agreements can only limit the freedom of trade of the individual but not destroy the same forever in all or certain directions.

"The restrictions to which in the case at bar the defendant submitted himself by joining in the agreement of March 22, 1893, are, neither regarding their extent nor regarding the time for which they were entered into, so far-reaching that according to the principles just developed, a restriction limiting the individual freedom of trade in an inadmissible manner could be spelt out therefrom."

This view has never been departed from by the Imperial Court, as shown by its later decisions (Test'y, fol. 5306; Exhibits, pp. 4965, 4990, 4995, 5000).

The American Ambassador at Berlin, in his report to the State Department in reply to the inquiries made by the Alexander Committee, says:

"Although I have been unable to obtain any tangible evidence showing that the German steamship lines have entered into any formal agreement in the nature of a trust, it is quite evident that they are working harmoniously together and maintaining scheduled rates, and there is good reason to believe that this is done with the tacit approval of the Government, whose general policy seems to be to encourage agreements, within reasonable limits, between > manufacturers, miners, shippers, and other large employers of labor which guarantee stability of prices and rates that will enable them to pay good wages to the men, insure the maintenance of plants at higher standard, and the guaranty of a fair return upon the capital invested" (Vol. 3 of Proceedings before Alexander Committee, p. 47).

The American Consul-General, at Hamburg, in a similar report, says :

> "The agreement of various kinds to which German steamship owners are parties are numerous and their existence is a matter of common knowledge, although the terms of the contracts are not disclosed to the public. These agreements are permitted under German law; and, indeed, the State-owned German railways, in at least two cases, are parties to such agreements. It is a quite common matter in this country for business firms to pool their interests in various ways, and the German steamship companies merely follow the usual practice" (Id., p. 49).

In the Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM, 1911.

No. 668.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Appellant,

v.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT et al.

No. 669.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT et al., Appellants,

v.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

Appeals from the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

BRIEF FOR HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN-GESELLSCHAFT, THE HAMBURG PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY, AND THE ATLAS LINE STEAMSHIP COMPANY, LTD.

JOHN C. SPOONER,
CHARLES P. SPOONER,
JAMES L. BISHOP,
Of Counsel.

INDEX.

PAGE

The Pleadings:

1. The Petition 3
   The Participation Agreement 3-6
   Alleged Acts in Pursuance of the Agreement .. 6-8
   The Prayer of the Petition 8-9

2. The Answers 9-11

Statement of the Case:

1. Conferences and Rate Agreements 11-15

2. Other Matters Alleged by the Government as Showing Restraint of Trade 15-17

   (a) The Agency Agreement 15-17

   (b) Fighting Steamers 17-18

   (c) Commercial Allowances 18-19

   (d) The Outside Lines Alleged To Be Affected by Unfair Competition 19-23

3. Affirmative Statements of the Answers 23

POINT I.

The anti-trust Provisions of the Wilson Tariff Act of 1894 are inconsistent with the theory that the Sherman Act was intended to extend to commerce on the high seas between the United States and foreign nations 24-29

PAGE

POINT II.

The Participation Agreement of February 5, 1908 (AA), does not of itself restrain trade and commerce within the meaning of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. 30-64

1. The Terms and Provisions of the Agreement. 30-32
2. The Rule of Law to be Applied..... 32-42
3. The History of the Legislation..... 42-45
4. Reasonable Rates..... 45-48
5. Pooling agreements respecting passengers... 48-51
6. Report of the Alexander Committee..... 51-57
7. International Conference..... 57-59
8. Necessity for and beneficial effect of Conference Agreement..... 59-64

POINT III.

The agency restriction..... 65-68
The Effect of Agency Regulation..... 66-67
Circulars and Publications..... 68

POINT IV.

The commercial allowances..... 68-71

POINT V.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company..... 71-75

Conclusion..... 75

TABLE OF CASES.

	PAGE
Alexander Committee, Report of, Vol. 4, p. 417	52
Attorney General v. Adelaide S. S. Co., 1913 A. C. 781	42
American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U. S. 347	73
Bills and Debates relative to Trusts, 50th to 57th Cong., p. 535	26
Cosmopolitan Shipping Co. v. Hamburg-American, 13 I. C. R. 266	51
Dingley Tariff Act, U. S. Stat., Vol. 30, p. 213	28
Inter-State Commerce Act	49
Mogul S. S. Co. v. MacGregor, 1892 A. C. 25	42
Nash v. United States, 229 U. S. 373, 376	36
Northwestern Salt Co. Ltd. v. Electrolytic Alkali Co., 1914 A. C. 461	42
Randel v. Brown, 2 How. 406	74
Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 30	32
United States v. Prince Line, 220 Fed. Rep. 230	11
United States v. Trans-Missouri Traffic Freight Association, 166 U. S. 290	32
United States v. Joint Traffic Association, 171 U. S. 505	32
United States v. American Tobacco Co., 221 U. S. 179	34
United States v. Union Pacific R. R. Co., 226 U. S. 61-84	35
United States v. Reading Co., 226 U. S. 324, 369	35
United States v. E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., 188 Fed. Rep. 127	36
United States v. Keystone Watch Co., 218 Fed. Rep. 502	37
Wilson Tariff Act, 28 Stat., Ch. 349, Sec. 73	24

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States,

OCTOBER TERM, 1915.

No. 289.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Appellant,

v.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT et al.

No. 332.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT et al., Appellants,

v.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

APPEALS FROM THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

BRIEF FOR DEFENDANTS

Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt-Actien Gesellschaft, The Allan Steamship Company and The Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

The case arises under the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. This is an appeal by the United States from the decree of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, dated November 9th, 1914, dismissing the petition as to the defendants The Allan Line, Bryce J. Allan and The Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and enjoining the other defendants from combining to restrain the business of any owner of a vessel operated in competition with the vessel or vessels of one or other of the defendants by providing, operating or maintaining an extra vessel for the purpose of having it compete with such competing vessel, and dismissing the petition as to all other prayers for relief (Decree, 10 R. 5136). The assignments of errors filed by the United States (10 R. 5140-5144) claim that the Court erred in dismissing the petition as to the defendants named above, and in not granting the prayers of the petition in full as to all the defendants.

There are also cross appeals by the defendants upon the ground that the Court erred in not dismissing the petition as to all the relief prayed for upon the ground that the transportation carried on by defendants between the United States and foreign countries, and the other matters alleged in the petition, are not within the purview of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, for the reason that the Congress did not intend said act to apply to international commerce, and that the Court erred in not sustaining the defendants' demurrers to the petition upon that ground (14 R. 4).

The defendants filed general demurrers to the petition (10 R. 5103), which were overruled by order of the Court dated January 5, 1912 (14 R. 12); these defendants thereupon filed separate answers (11 R. 147, 165, 204, 221).

The Pleadings.

1. The Petition.

The petition alleges that the defendants are engaged in foreign trade and commerce as common carriers of passengers and freight, and more particularly of third class or steerage passengers between ports in the United States and abroad; that they are violating the provisions of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law and that this proceeding is instituted to prevent and restrain the carrying out of the agreement, contract, combination and conspiracy in restaint of trade in the carriage of steerage passengers and the attempt to monopolize such trade and commerce as set forth in the petition.

After describing the defendants and the trade and commerce which they conduct, and the trade and commerce which they have attempted to monopolize, the petition sets forth the means alleged to have been employed in accomplishing the unlawful combination, and particularizes them as follows:

The Participation Agreement of February 5, 1908.

A copy of this agreement is attached to the petition and is known as Agreement AA (11 R. 39).

All the corporate defendants were either original parties to that agreement or have since become parties to it.

The articles of the agreement so far as they are important in this controversy may be summarized as follows:

By Art. 1 it is provided that the companies parties thereto

> "guarantee to each other the percental participation as defined in Article 3 of this contract of the entire steerage traffic forwarded by the parties to this contract from all European ports to and via the United States of America and Canada and vice versa in vessels owned, leased, chartered or controlled by them without regard to the flag."

Art. 3 designates the proportions in which the lines are to participate, west bound and east bound, and it is stated that the Allan Line's Canadian service and the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. (Atlantic S.S. lines) are not covered by the contract as far as west bound business is concerned.

Art. 6 provides that any lines whose steerage transportation a year exceeds in point of number the proportions fixed shall pay the compensation price of four pounds for each passenger carried in excess of the established proportion.

Art. 8 provides that accounts shall be prepared by the Secretary and settlements made at the end of each calendar year.

By Art. 9 each line undertakes to arrange its service in such a manner that the number of steeragers which it actually carries corresponds as nearly as possible with the number allotted to it by the contract.

Art. 10 relates to the statistics to be prepared and furnished to the lines.

Art. 11 provides that in case the results show that any line has exceeded its proportion or remained below its proportion it is bound to adopt measures to bring about a correct adjustment, and shall give notice of such proposed measures to the Secretary. The other lines are entitled to await the result of the measures and > "in so far as they represent 75% of the shares they may direct other and more forcible measures, which can only refer to rates, to be set in motion."

Art. 12 is as follows:

> "No line has the right to alter its steerage and second cabin rates without having previously informed the secretary."

Art. 14 regulates the commission to be paid to agents out of the gross steerage rates.

Art. 16 adopts the following:

> "No circulars or publications shall be issued by any line reflecting upon or instituting comparisons with any conference line unfavorable to the latter, and no party hereto shall support any newspaper which may systematically attack any conference line."

Articles 17 and 18 provide for a deposit of a promissory note by each of the parties, to be considered liquidated damages and forfeited if the line that made the deposit unduly withdraws from the contract before its expiration or resorts to actions which render the continuance of the contract impossible, and are, therefore, equivalent to a withdrawal, and also the refusal to pay compensation money, or failure to replenish the deposit, or assisting new opposition lines, or starting a line by which the business would be seriously interfered with.

Art. 22 permits other lines to be admitted to the contract and the terms to be altered or amended by unanimous vote.

The agreement also provides for the appointment of a secretary and an arbitrator. It is to continue from March 1, 1908 to February 28, 1911, and thereafter from year to year unless notice is given not later than December 1st.

Alleged Acts in Pursuance of the Agreement.

The petition further sets forth certain acts which it is alleged the defendants have performed for the purposes of the unlawful combination and conspiracy, with the result that all free and natural competition between said lines in the establishment of rates and the furnishing of facilities for steerage traffic have been thereby wholly eliminated:

That the individual defendants acting as the agents of the corporations have carried out and executed acts necessary to the accomplishment of the combination and conspiracy, and particularly in the Southern District of New York:

That at a meeting held on March 25, 1908, the defendants agreed that they would act together to eliminate competition by other lines:

That in the execution of the combination the defendants have employed so-called "fighting steamers":

That they employed such methods to suppress competition by lines of steamers running from New York to Libau in Russia, known as The Russian Volunteer Fleet and the Russian-American Line:

That the Uranium Steamship Company, Ltd., under the name of the Northwest Transport Line has been prevented by these means from obtaining a fair and reasonable share of the traffic and has been forced to carry such as it has secured at a financial loss:

That in pursuance of the combination the defendants have agreed that no one of them shall continue to employ as agent for the sale of tickets over its line any person who shall act as agent for the sale of third class or steerage tickets over any independent line in competition with the defendants' lines:

That the defendants have arbitrarily fixed their rates for steerage transportation so as to bring about the arbitrary division of traffic referred to and to maintain rates at that artificial level at which said traffic will be made to yield the highest net return, and that by such action they are depriving the public of the benefits of the normal division of traffic and the benefit of the lower scale of rates for such traffic that would normally have resulted from free competition:

That the defendants have been constrained to conduct a steerage business in compliance with the terms of the said contract under duress of loss of membership and the forfeiture of the money deposit.

The petition further alleges as the result of the unlawful contract and practices that the defendants have obtained and attempted to obtain the virtual monopoly of that part of the traffic for transporting steerage passengers between the United States and foreign nations included within the scope of the conspiracy, and that at the date of the filing of the petition upwards of ninety per cent. of the total third class or steerage passenger traffic is carried in ships belonging to the defendants, and upwards of 75% of the total steerage passenger traffic is regulated by means of the contract of February 5, 1908.

The Prayer of the Petition.

The prayer of the petition is:

That the combination and conspiracy and the contract entered into between the defendants as set forth be declared illegal as in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, and that injunction issue restraining the defendants from doing any act in pursuance thereof:

That each of the defendants be enjoined from entering or clearing any ship at any port of the United States so long as they continue to operate under the alleged unlawful combination and conspiracy:

That the defendants be enjoined from further agreeing or combining to establish rules and regulations for carrying steerage passengers between the ports of the United States and European ports in restraint of trade:

That they be enjoined from combining to injure or destroy the business of any person or corporation engaged in the business of carrying steerage passengers between the ports of the United States and European ports.

2. The Answers.

The answers of these defendants admit the general averments of the petition respecting the character of the defendants and the business in which they are engaged, but deny the allegations charging that they have been or are engaged in any combination or conspiracy, or that they have entered into any contract to restrain trade and commerce:

They admit that they entered into the participation agreement of February 5, 1908:

They admit that at a meeting held in the City of London on May 25, 1908, it was agreed that one of the lines should when necessary quote low rates in competition with the rates of any outside line:

They deny that the facts are correctly stated in the petition respecting the alleged "fighting steamers" and set out the facts as to the matters referred to in the petition in that behalf.

Answering those portions of the petition referring to the Russian Volunteer Fleet and the Russian-American Line, the defendants deny that their methods were employed to suppress competition, but allege that they were employed solely to protect their lawful business:

They admit certain facts alleged with regard to the selection of a steamer to meet the competition of the Russian Volunteer Fleet, and they allege that the steerage rates of the Russian Volunteer Fleet and those of the steamer selected to meet their competition were so low that neither the Russian Volunteer Fleet nor any other line could derive any profit therefrom.

Similarly, the defendants deny and specify the facts with regard to the Russian-American Line and the Uranium Steamship Company and the Northwest Transport Line; they justify the action of the defendants with regard to the terms of the employment of agents.

The defendants aver that the effect of the agreement between the defendants is not to destroy competition among the parties, but only to regulate such competition reasonably, so that all steamship companies may exercise a reasonable and beneficial control over the agencies for the sale of steerage tickets and may charge fair, reasonable and stable rates, and thus be able to meet the constant public demand for better ships and better accommodations, without substantial increase of rates, and so that the weaker lines may be able to live and compete for and retain fair shares of such steerage traffic.

The defendants set forth the evils of unregulated competition in transportation upon the sea and allege that the results of the operations under the agreement are in every respect beneficial.

Statement of the Case.

1. Conferences and Rate Agreements.

The Government claims that the fixing of rates was the primary purpose of the participation agreement of February 5, 1908, and that this purpose was carried out not only by that agreement but by other agreements and by conferences.

The facts respecting this feature of the case must, therefore, be examined.

Conferences of ship owners are common in all parts of the world and have been for a great many years, certainly as far back as 1868 (13 R. 1408). These conferences have had to do with freight service as well as with passenger service in the various classes. In U. S. v. The Prince Line (220 Fed. 230), where a conference agreement was before the Court, it was referred to as > "the well known sort not infrequently found among ocean carriers where two or more ship owners agree together as to the number of vessels they will operate in a particular trade, as to the number of voyages to be made between specified ports, as to the dates of sailing, as to the exchange of freight to be carried when the vessel of one or another line has her space engaged or it is more convenient to use one vessel instead of another, as to rates of freight, etc."

Such conferences are composed of those interested in particular lines of ocean traffic, thus the North Atlantic Conference is composed of the British lines; the Continental Conference principally of the German lines, the Mediterranean Conference of the Mediterranean lines. These conferences had been in the habit of discussing and determining rates (13 R. 1466).

In 1892 the Continental lines entered into a participation agreement, which is known as the N. D. L. V., a translation of which is found in the record (1 R. 37). This agreement provided for a proportional division of the steerage passenger traffic from the United States and Canada to the European continent north of Cadiz. The parties to it were the Nordd-Deutscher Lloyd, The Hamburg-American, The Red Star Line and The Rotterdam Line. The traffic was distributed in specified proportions between the parties. The agreement contemplated that each line should have the right to fix its own steerage rates, since it provided that no line should alter those rates without previously having notified the secretary (1 R. 23).

After this agreement, as before, steerage rates were fixed by conference or by agreement between ocean carriers engaged in particular lines. Instances of such agreements are found in the record as follows: Scandinavian and Finnish Business, A. D. 1900, Petitioners' Exhibits 734 (5 R. 2499); 1898, Ex. 738 (5 R. 2537); 1898, Ex. 751 (5 R. 2637); (no date) Ex. 748 (5 R. 2614); British business, 1900, Ex. 736 (5 R. 2514); 1898, Ex. 750 (5 R. 2626); 1898, Ex. 737 (5 R. 2532).

Respecting the agreements cited it is to be observed that the rates were subject to change at any time upon notice by any line considering such change necessary or desirable. In addition to these express agreements, rates were also discussed and determined upon at conferences, but the agreements and conferences did not prevent the recurrence of rate wars, from which great loss and demoralization resulted (Cauty, 12 R. 1091).

In 1908 some of the defendant corporations concluded to enter into an agreement similar to that which had been made by the continental lines in 1892. This resulted in the agreement which is the subject of this action, the particulars of which have been specified above. The essential feature of this agreement was the percental participation of the steerage traffic between the parties, while leaving each of them free to fix its own rates (Art. 12, supra, p. 5). The percentages were based on the previous performances of the companies.

After 1908, there were some agreements as to rates between particular lines, and the subject of rates naturally constituted one of the subjects of discussion at meetings of the participants and through conferences (Straus, 12 R. 762).*

The right of each line to determine its rates for itself was recognized. Thus, Mr. Winter, for many years connected with the North German Lloyd, and afterwards with the Cunard line, testified as follows:

> "Q. Are the lines which are parties to AA precluded from changing their rate? A. No, indeed not.
>
> Q. Is it not a fact that they do change it from time to time? A. Constantly, yes.
>
> Q. Since the making of agreement AA is it a fact or is it not a fact that the rate on the lines parties to that agreement have from time to time fluctuated? A. Decidedly, yes" (13 R. 1755).

Notices of change of rates by some of the lines were sent out from time to time by the secretary (Petn. Ex. 1644, 9 R. 4895), and notices by individual parties of an intention to change their rates were also sent (Petn. Ex. 733, 5 R. 2498). By this means the different parties were kept advised as to what rates were being changed and what methods were being pursued (Winter, 13 R. 1739).

The object of the participation agreement is to distribute the traffic and thus to stabilize rates at a reasonable figure.

---

* In order to avoid confusion it should be noted that many of the rate agreements which are made a part of the record by the petitioner relate to the first and second cabin business, and some of them, as pointed out before, were made long before AA and are superseded by it.

The letters referred to in the Petitioner's brief (7 R. 3305, 8 R. 3918 and 6 R. 3914), the two first of which are notices of changes of Continental rates and the third of Scandinavian rates, if they can be regarded as having been acquiesced in by the parties to whom they were addressed and hence as implied agreements, were still subject to the right of any party to the AA agreement to change its rates as provided by AA 14 which was the fundamental law for the parties to that agreement. The record does not disclose the schedule of rates referred to in the petitioner's brief.

The authority given to 75% of the traffic by Art. 11 to affect the rates of those whose proportion had changed was for a special purpose of a temporary character.

This, so far from destroying competition, protected the weaker lines and at the same time furnished an inducement to all the lines to improve and increase their facilities and service to the end of earning better rates (Ismay, 12 R. 1013 et seq.; Straus, 11 R. 776).

2. Other Matters Alleged by the Government as Showing Restraint of Trade.

(a) The Agency Agreement.

Article 14 of the AA Agreement fixes the maximum sum to be paid to agents. At a conference held subsequent to the AA agreement (Pet. Ex. 705, 5 R. 2282) the following rule of the Continental Conference (Pet. Ex. 221, R. 227) was adopted:

> "Agents are prohibited from booking passengers for any steamer except those of the lines, members of the Continental, the Mediterranean, and the North Atlantic Passenger Conference, unless conference gives express permission in writing. Agents are prohibited from selling passenger tickets under false representations as to the line or route by which the passenger is to be transported."

This is what is characterized by the Petitioner as "boycotting" agents.

It appears that a regulation similar to this was adopted by the North Atlantic Steamer Traffic Conference as far back as 1879 (Richard, 12 R. 930), and that it has always been the rule.

The regulation having been negligently enforced deplorable conditions resulted. These are described at considerable length in the record (Hannah, 13 R. 1451, 1489-91), as follows:

Almost any person could get a commission on a steamship ticket. The result was that a very undesirable class of men went into the emigrant agency business and preyed upon foreigners unfamiliar with the language and surroundings, and also imposed upon and defrauded the companies, while commissions ran to an exorbitant rate (Straus, 12 R. 762).

The Russian Volunteer Fleet, which undertook to establish a line of steamers between Libau in Russia, and New York, and the successor line the Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company, also known as the Russian-American Company, represented by Richards, were anxious to have their tickets sold through the conference agents in competition with the conference lines, and Mr. Richards insisted that the conference agreement was unfair in the particular noted above but in that respect only (14 R. 827).

Mr. Straus representing the Russian East Asiatic Line testified that the decent respectable agents of the reliable companies were all conference agents, and that the Russian line would like to have the benefit of that particular agency, and that was the reason they asked for admission to the conference (12 R. 765).

It is alleged in the Petitioner's brief that the conference agents made misrepresentations as to the service of the competing lines (Petnr.'s Brief, pp. 30-31). But these statements are, we think, unsupported by the evidence, which as to these matters is mere heresay and rumor. There is, we submit, no evidence of unfair competition in the matter of the agency agreement, unless it can be derived from the agreement itself, and that presents a question which will be considered later on.

(b) Fighting Steamers.

We do not consider it necessary to detail the evidence upon this subject. None of the companies represented by counsel presenting this brief have appealed from the decree of the District Court enjoining the continuance of the methods complained of.

The Canadian Pacific and the Allan Line each withdrew from the agreement under which the methods criticized were conducted before this suit was brought. The Allan Line joined in May, 1908, and withdrew December 16, 1908 (Hannah, 13 R. 1434). The Canadian Pacific gave notice of withdrawal June 15, 1910 (Kerr, 13 R. 1593) and this became operative by the terms of the agreement in thirty days (5 R. 2285). The petition in this suit was filed January 4, 1911.

(c) Commercial Allowances.

An agreement was made between the Western Railroad Association and the Steamship Lines which provided that the railroads should pay a commission allowance of ten per cent. on all west-bound passengers holding inland emigrant rail orders, landing at Ellis Island and ticketed by rail lines at Ellis Island, provided that —effective May 1, 1904—the maximum commission from New York to destination should be $4, so long as the traffic lines paid their present rates of commission, any change in the latter to likewise change said maximum. The party of the second part, the railroad association, further agreed that it would not pay any commission allowance to any trans-Atlantic steamship line not included in the party of the first part or to any other party or parties on business subject to this agreement (Petn.'s Ex. 60, 1 R. 374).

As to this agreement it is not contended by the Government that there were any unfair methods adopted, unless criticism can properly be made of the agreement itself. This matter, therefore, presents no question of fact for present consideration.

(d) The Outside Lines Alleged To Be Affected by Unfair Competition.

The petition alleges that certain outside lines have been hampered in their business by unfair methods of competition on the part of the defendants, and that in one instance the company was compelled to suspend business.

The particular methods of competition criticised are those referred to above, the so-called "fighting steamers," the restriction on conference agents, and the commercial allowances. With respect to the fighting steamers, in view of the injunction granted by the Court below and the acquiescence of these defendants therein, it is not now considered that this method of competition is involved.

The first outside line respecting which complaint is made is known as the Russian Volunteer Fleet. This was a Russian Government line. Mr. Straus says it belonged to the Government (12 R. 765). Mr. Fourman, who had been connected with the line, testified as follows:

> "The officers of the Russian Volunteer Fleet were all of the Russian Navy. The Russian Volunteer Fleet was receiving and is receiving now a subsidy on the other lines. The steamers in time of war are to carry soldiers, ammunition, &c., and were built for that purpose. Now, I stated that the nation owns them, as I said > before the Russian Volunteer Fleet was inaugurated through a popular subscription all through the Empire of Russia, and each state, or as we call it there, Government, subscribed a certain sum of money to the Fleet to build a steamer. . . . The Government had the management of the Russian Volunteer Fleet in that it managed the affairs of the Russian Volunteer Fleet, took charge of each department, department of war, department of marine and department of navy, etc." (Fourman, 11 R. 600).

It is claimed on behalf of the Government that this line was driven out of business by the methods of the defendants, but there is in evidence a letter from the President of the Company which was published in the "Shipping Illustrated" of New York City, which reads as follows (Deft. Ex. 3, 12 R. 819):

> "RUSSIAN VOLUNTEER FLEET,
> 19 Morskaia, St. Petersburg 12-25,
> January 1911, No. 165.
> EDITOR OF THE SHIPPING ILLUSTRATED,
> 22 Thames Street, New York.
> DEAR SIR:
>
> In your issue of the 7th inst. we find in an article headed 'Action against the Trans-Atlantic Pool' mention made of the Russian Volunteer Fleet as 'having been driven out of business as a result of the practices adopted by the pool.'
>
> We beg to say that the above statement, as far as it concerns the Volunteer Fleet, is not correct, as the Committee of the Russian Volunteer Fleet had decided to suspend their Libau-New York line for reasons of their own that had nothing in common with the attitude taken by the pool.

Believe us, dear sir,
Yours faithfully,
(Signed) A. RADLOFF, President."

It is true that this letter is evidence of a hearsay character, but we think that it is entitled to at least as much weight as a large part of the evidence submitted on the part of the Government.

The Line did not go out of business, but it did abandon its trade from Libau to New York and confined itself to the Asiatic business in which it had been formerly engaged (Petitioner's Exhibit 1027, 7 R. 3473).

There was another line which also ran from Libau to the United States, known as the Russian-East Asiatic Company.

This company applied for admission to the participation agreement within ten or eleven months after they started to run, and were promptly admitted (Straus, 12 R. 738). They complain of no unfair competition in any other particular, except that they were not permitted to employ the conference agents as their agents, though they were willing to pay them more commission than they would give their own agents, in order to induce them to put business over their line (Richard, 12 R. 827).

The New York and Continental Line, subsequently known as the Northwest Transport Company, and later as the Uranium Line (Nyland, 11 R. 458) was also engaged in the Russian trade, and in April, 1908, it instituted a service between Rotterdam and New York, which was and is in direct competition with the Holland-American. It is claimed by the defendants that the competition by this line was in many respects particularly unfair; that they concealed the rates at which they were actually carrying passengers, publishing one rate and actually conveying at a different and lower rate (Nyland, 11 R. 510); that they offered commissions to agents much higher than those given by the conference, and it seems to have been the conviction on the part of the defendants that this line of steamers was in fact owned and operated by the Canadian Northern Railway Company, although there is much mystery about the actual ownership (Richard, 12 R. 822; Cauty, 12 R. 1094, 1095; Thomas, 13 R. 1694, 1697). Whoever the interests were that were running the line they did not seem to care very much whether they made a profit or not, they seemed to have inexhaustible means at the back of them (Thomas, 13 R. 1698, 1700). The evidence is that the line has not been running at a loss during the last two years (13 R. 1713). In 1909 the Northwest Transport made 21 trips to Rotterdam and carried 3,341 steerage; in 1910 the Uranium, its successor, made 28 trips and carried 10,016 steerage; in 1911 it made 26 trips and carried 13,286 steerage (11 R. 597). The line is still in active operation and it is evident that whatever the competition by the conference lines may have been the Uranium was not only able to survive, but it increased its business.

3. Affirmative Statements of the Answers.

The defendants in their answers allege affirmatively that their business has been conducted not for the purpose of driving others out of business, but so far as they have underbid their ordinary rates it was for the purpose of meeting rates offered by their competitors. They allege that the system of transacting business under the participation agreement is highly beneficial to the public interest in securing stability of rates, uniformity of sailing and avoiding the uncertainties and losses which necessarily result from commercial warfare; that the regulations which they have established are reasonable and fair; that the rates have not been exorbitant but, on the contrary, have been reasonable and have not been increased proportionately to the increase in the cost of conducting the business and the service rendered. We contend that the evidence overwhelmingly establishes these facts. These matters are necessarily dealt with in the argument hereafter submitted.

POINT I.

The anti-trust Provisions of the Wilson Tariff Act of 1894 are inconsistent with the theory that the Sherman Act was intended to extend to commerce on the high seas between the United States and foreign nations.

That the words "trade or commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations," used in the Interstate Commerce Act of 1887 and in the Anti-Trust Act of July 2d, 1890, were used by the Congress in the same sense as being limited in their scope and operation to the territory of the United States, is made perfectly plain by subsequent legislation upon the same subject as that covered by the Act of July 2d, 1890.

Section 73 of what is known as the Wilson Tariff Act, 28 Statutes at Large, Ch. 349, page 570, provides as follows:

> "SEC. 73. That every combination conspiracy, trust, agreement, or contract is hereby declared to be contrary to public policy, illegal, and void, when the same is made by or between two or more persons or corporations either of whom is engaged in importing any article from any foreign country into the United States, and when such combination, conspiracy, trust, agreement, or contract is intended to operate in restraint of lawful trade, or free competition in lawful trade or commerce, or to increase the market price in any part of the United States of any article or articles imported or intended to be imported into the United States, or of any manufacture into which such imported article enters or is intended to enter. Every person who is or shall hereafter be engaged in the importation of goods or any commodity from any foreign country in violation of this section of this Act, or who shall combine or conspire with another to violate the same, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof in any part of the United States, such person shall be fined in a sum not less than one hundred dollars and not exceeding five thousand dollars, and shall be further punished by imprisonment, in the discretion of the court, for a term not less than three months nor exceeding twelve months."

The subsequent sections, numbered 74, 75, 76 and 77, in respect of the jurisdiction of courts and the exercise thereof, proceedings summoning additional parties, forfeiture, etc., of property affected by trust, and suits by parties injured and damages, are substantially copied from the Act of July 2d, 1890.

If the Act of July 2d, 1890, was understood by the Congress to exhaust the Federal power, by way of regulating the foreign commerce of the United States, this Act was utterly unnecessary, since, beyond question, such combinations could have been punished without this additional legislation.

The Sections referred to above were offered by Senator Morgan, of Alabama, as amendments to the Tariff Bill. While it is the rule that "there is general acquiescence in the doctrine that debates in Congress are not appropriate sources of information from which to discover the meaning of the language of a statute passed by that body,"—a rule more honored in its breach than in its observance, this rule has not been regarded as including the utterances of a member who introduced a measure, or an amendment, in exposition of its purpose, or the utterances of a member who reported a measure from a Committee, in explanation thereof.

Senator Morgan stated the object of his amendment to be:

> "The repression of trusts, as they are called, in respect of the importation of goods from foreign countries" (Page 530, Bills and Debates Relating to Trusts, 50th Congress to 57th Congress, 1st Session inclusive, prepared by direction of the Attorney General, Washington, Government Printing Office, 1903).

Senator Morgan also said, at page 532, ib.:

> "We have enacted heretofore the Act of 1890 in regard to Interstate trusts." * * *

By the use of this language, he meant, of course, Interstate and foreign commerce within our territory. No one understood better than he that the operation of the Act of July 2, 1890, was limited to foreign commerce within the territory of the United States.

Senator Voorhees, then Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate, said (ib., p. 535):

> "Mr. President, this measure has my full approbation. The Senator from Alabama submitted it to me some time ago and again still more recently. * * *
>
> "I appreciate entirely the wisdom and patriotism of the Senator from Delaware. A reference of such a measure to the Judiciary Committee is apt and proper under ordinary circumstances, and in its very nature it goes to that Committee properly. Yet, if the Senate can come to the conclusion which I have reached, and which the Senator from Alabama and others who have carefully examined this measure have reached, and can pass upon it and adopt it now, I believe it would be a measure of great wisdom and of great safety to the American people." * * *

Senator Voorhees also said, at page 536 (ib.):

> "There are variances of opinion in that committee as to whether it ought to be brought forward now or in some other shape and at some other time. As to the provisions themselves, I know no difference of opinion in the committee over which I have the honor to preside. This much, I think, it is due to the occasion to say."

Senator Palmer, of Illinois (p. 537, ib.), himself a lawyer of great experience and ability, said:

> "Mr. President, I beg to say that so far as I understand the amendment of the Senator > from Alabama, I favor it; but I cannot forget the fact that this is a proposition to add a most important chapter to the criminal code of the United States. * * *" (Italics ours.)

Senator Dolph, of Oregon, an eminent lawyer, said (p. 537, ib.):

> "I desire to vote to put this amendment on the bill. I shall vote against its reference to the Judiciary Committee. I am afraid it will not accomplish very much if enacted into a law, but it is a move in the right direction. As has been said, it cannot hurt any innocent man."

The amendment was agreed to in the Senate, because of its importance, without even a call of the roll, was agreed to by the House of Representatives and became a part of the law. This Act was carefully preserved by what is known as the Dingley Tariff Act, U. S. Statutes at Large, Volume 30, page 213 (the last provision in the Act), as follows:

> "And provided further, That nothing in this Act shall be construed to repeal or in any manner affect the sections numbered seventy-three, seventy-four, seventy-five, seventy-six, and seventy-seven of an Act entitled 'An Act to reduce taxation, to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes,' which became a law on the twenty-eighth day of August, eighteen hundred and ninety-four."

And it was not repealed by the later Tariff Act. It seems not possible to account for the enactment of this law upon any other hypothesis than that it was the understanding of Congress that the ground was not covered by the Act of July 2d, 1890. Yet it is certain from its language and from the decisions interpreting it, that that Act embraced every contract and combination, in form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States and with foreign nations, within our territory.

If the Act of July 2nd, 1890, did not embrace combinations, contracts and conspiracies to restrain trade and commerce in imports, or in respect of articles to be imported into the United States, it can hardly be said that the Congress intended by its provisions, as general and sweeping as they are, to prescribe the rule by which commerce on the high seas with this and other nations shall be governed.

If the offences created by the Act of 1894 were covered by the general language of the Act of July 2, 1890, the Act of 1894, being specific and later, modified the Sherman Act pro tanto.

It will be observed that the anti-trust provisions of the Wilson Tariff Act are confined to what may be imported. They do not apply to the bringing in of persons, whether in the steerage or elsewhere on the ship.

This act was amended to make it apply to both principals and agents by the Act of February 12th, 1913 (37 Stat. Pat. Law, p. 627). It is also referred to as existing in Clayton Law (Act of Oct. 15th, 1914, 38 Stat. 730).

POINT II.

The Participation Agreement of February 5, 1908 (AA), does not of itself restrain trade and commerce within the meaning of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

1. The Terms and Provisions of the Agreement.

The articles of the agreement are summarized above (pp. 4, 5 and 6). For the present purpose it is necessary to refer to only a few of them. The plan, as exhibited by the agreement, contemplates that carriers engaged in the transportation of emigrants between the United States and Canada and European ports shall participate proportionately in the traffic. The basis of the apportionment is the volume of business of this character previously transacted by the respective companies. The intention concededly was that each company should be limited to the proportion of the whole business allotted to it. In order that no company should exceed its proportion, it is provided that any line exceeding in point of number the proportion fixed shall pay £4 for each passenger in excess of the established proportion. The line exceeding its proportion is bound to adopt measures calculated to bring about a correct adjustment, and lines having seventy-five per cent. of the traffic may direct such measures which can only refer to rates to be set in motion (Art. 11, 11 R. 48). The purpose of this provision is not primarily the compensation, but the measure is adopted as a means to deter the lines from following a tendency to exceed their proportion (see Commentary to this Act, 11 R. 48).

The parties are at liberty to fix their own rates; that is plainly implied in the provision that "no line has the right to alter its steerage and second cabin rates without having previously informed the secretary (Art. 14).

It is quite obvious that having regard to the provisions of the agreement alone, in operation it can never result in a monopoly either by one of the participants over the others or by all of the participants over outside business.

The manifest purpose was not to defeat or destroy competition, but to regulate it. There is no provision of the agreement, express or implied, by which the participants are to act in concert in raising or lowering rates to meet outside competition. It is true that seventy-five per cent. of the traffic may regulate rates for the purpose of confining each one of the parties to the per cental participation, but this is intended as a temporary expedient for that purpose only. Whatever may have been done by either or all of the parties outside of this agreement which is open to criticism ought not, we submit, to be taken into consideration in passing upon the question whether the agreement, if operated according to its terms, violates the Sherman Law.

The plan, while it does not empower the participants to fix rates, by apportioning traffic, does, to some extent, have a tendency to lessen the inducement on the part of any one carrier to raise or lower rates.

2. The Rule of Law to be Applied.

The purpose of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law was not to render invalid all agreements in restraint of competition, but only those in which the restraint of competition is such as to unduly restrain trade and commerce. This we understand to be an accurate statement of the law as laid down by the late decisions of this Court, beginning with the Standard Oil and American Tobacco cases.

While the agreements between carriers by railroad for fixing and maintaining reasonable rates which were before the Court in United States v. Trans-Missouri Traffic Freight Association (166 U. S. 290), and United States v. Joint Traffic Association (171 U. S. 505), were condemned and those judgments have not been overruled, yet the broad language employed in the opinions of the Court in those cases, by which all contracts in restraint of trade were condemned and not merely such as are in unreasonable restraint of trade, has been modified by the Court since the decision by the Standard Oil case. In that case the Court said:

> "* * * that in so far, however, as by separating the general language used in the opinions in the Freight Association and Joint Traffic cases from the context and the subject and parties with which the cases were concerned, it may be conceived that the language > referred to conflicts with the construction which we give the statute, they are necessarily now limited and qualified." (Italics ours.)

We think that the rule of law which is applicable to the pending case will be clearly presented by an examination of the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice White in the Trans-Missouri case when compared with the later utterances of the Court. In the former case he says:

> "To define, then, the words 'in restraint of trade' as embracing every contract which in any degree produced that effect would be violative of reason, because it would include all those contracts which are the very essence of trade, and would be equivalent to saying that there should be no trade, and therefore nothing to restrain. The dilemma which would necessarily arise from defining the words 'contracts in restraint of trade' so as to destroy trade by rendering illegal the contracts upon which trade depends, and yet presupposing that trade would continue and should not be restrained, is shown by an argument advanced, and which has been compelled by the exigency of the premise upon which it is based. Thus, after insisting that the word 'every' is all-embracing, it is said from the necessity of things it will not be held to apply to covenants in restraint of trade which are collateral to a sale of property, because not 'supposed' to be within the letter or spirit of the statute. But how, I submit, can it be held that the words 'every contract in restraint of trade' > embrace all such contracts, and yet at the same time it be said that certain contracts of that nature are not included? The asserted exception not only destroys the rule which is relied on, but it rests upon no foundation of reason."

The same learned judge in the American Tobacco case (221 U. S. 179), said:

> "Applying the rule of reason to the construction of the statute, it was held in the Standard Oil case that as the words 'restraint of trade' at common law and in the law of this country at the time of the adoption of the Anti-Trust Act only embraced acts or contracts or agreements or combinations which operated to the prejudice of the public interests by unduly restricting competition or unduly obstructing the due course of trade or which, either because of their inherent nature or effect or because of the evident purpose of the acts, etc., injuriously restrained trade, that the words as used in the statute were designed to have and did have but a like significance."

We think we are justified, therefore, in assuming that if the agreement in question does not operate to the prejudice of the public interest and would have been valid at common law or under the law of this country at the time of the adoption of the Anti-Trust Act, then it is not within the reprobation of the statute.

The interpretation of the statute by the Supreme Court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco Cases is summarized by Mr. Justice Day in United States v. Union Pacific Railroad Company, 226 U. S. 61-84, as follows:

> "In the recent discussion of the history and meaning of the Act in the Standard Oil and Tobacco Cases, this Court declared that the statute should be given a reasonable construction with a view to reaching those undue restraints of interstate trade which are intended to be prohibited and punished; and in those cases it is clearly stated that the decisions in the former cases have been made upon an application of that rule, and there was no suggestion that they had not been correctly decided. In the Tobacco case, after referring to the previous decision in the Standard Oil Case and the decisions in the Trans-Missouri and Joint Traffic Cases, the doctrine was tersely summarized by the Chief Justice, speaking for the Court as follows" (citing the language quoted above).

Referring to this statement of the law, and applying it to a particular state of facts, the Court in United States v. Reading Company (226 U. S. 324, 369) said):

> "That the Act of Congress 'does not forbid or restrain the power to make normal and usual contracts to further trade by resorting to all' normal methods, whether by agreement or otherwise, to accomplish such purpose, was pointed out in the Standard Oil Case. In that case it was also said that the words 'restraint of trade' should be given a meaning which would not destroy the individual right of contract and > render difficult, if not impossible, any movement of trade in the character of interstate commerce, the free movement of which it was the purpose of the statute to protect. We reaffirm this view of the plain meaning of the statute, and in so doing limit ourselves to the inquiry as to whether this plan or system of contracts entered into according to a concerted scheme does not operate to unduly suppress competition and restrain freedom of commerce among the States."

In Nash v. United States (229 U. S. 373, 376) the result of the decisions is tersely summarized by Mr. Justice Holmes as follows:

> "Those cases may be taken to have established that only such contracts and combinations are within the Act as by reason of intent or the inherent nature of the contemplated acts prejudice the public interest by unduly restricting competition or unduly obstructing the course of trade."

In the Powder Case (United States v. E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co., 188 Fed. 127) the understanding of the Court of the result of the recent decisions in this Court is expressed as follows:

> "It is undoubtedly the policy of the statute that competitive conditions in interstate trade should be maintained wherever their abolition would tend to suppress or diminish such trade. But this being true does not read into the statute a denunciation of all agreements that may restrain competition without regard to their purpose or direct effect to restrain 'trade or commerce among the several states.' To what extent the anti-trust act condemns combinations that restrain full and free competition in interstate trade is a question that has been much debated. For a dozen years, at least, it has been settled that it does not condemn combinations which only indirectly, remotely, or incidentally restrain interstate trade.

"The recent decisions of the Supreme Court in Standard Oil Co. v. United States, and American Tobacco Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 106, make it quite clear that the language of the anti-trust act is not to receive that literal construction which will impair rather than enhance freedom of interstate commerce. As we read those decisions, restraint of interstate trade and restraint of competition in interstate trade are not interchangeable expressions. There may be, under the anti-trust act, restraint of competition that does not amount to restraint of interstate trade, just as before the passage of the act there might have been restraint of competition that did not amount to a common-law restraint of trade."

In United States v. Keystone Watch Co. (218 Fed. 502, 507) it is said:

"To fall within the prohibition of the statute it is necessary that the unlawful restraint of trade—and this is not always the same thing as the mere restraint of competition—should be direct and not merely incidental, and it should also be undue or unreasonable."

If then it be true that the statute is aimed only at restraint of competition, which unduly restrains commerce, it follows that there may be a restraint of competition which does not unduly restrain commerce. But how can such due restraint of competition be brought about? We are dealing with a restraint to be effected by mutual concessions and not by superior authority, by parties, not by the State. It is plain that in the absence of superior authority due restraint of competition by ocean carriers can be effected only by the co-operation of the competitors themselves. But the power to raise and lower rates is among the most formidable of the weapons of competitive warfare. If the use of this weapon cannot be regulated it is impossible to see how competition can be regulated. To say that there can be no due restraint of competition which will regulate prices in ocean transportation under any circumstances for the purpose of steadying market rates, is practically to say that there can be no restraint of competition in that branch of commerce whatsoever, and thus to make the rule of reason when applied to it an empty phrase.

In determining what is proper co-operation among the competitors in order to regulate competition in any particular trade, regard must be had to the character of the parties, the business in which they are engaged, the relation in which it stands to the public, and the purpose which the regulation may be regarded as designed to serve. If it be demonstrated that the public interest is best served and the rights of parties best protected by reasonable regulation among competitors, which will make and sustain reasonable rates, then it must be that such co-operation is due restraint of competition and cannot be undue restraint of commerce.

Having regard then to the parties and the subject matter here under consideration, it is earnestly contended by the defendants that the regulation of rates in ocean transportation is required by exigencies which are inherent in the nature of the business and which do not apply to transportation by rail. Competition in transportation on the sea can never be defeated, though regulation by mutual consent may hold it partially under control. This is so for the obvious reason that the ocean is a free highway and that steamers can be chartered in the markets of the world for any required service, or can be built for such service in a brief space of time. Hence, the needed steamer will always certainly be forthcoming if unreasonable or excessive rates are exacted. It is self evident, therefore, that no regulation of rates will be permanent unless they are kept at a reasonable level, and hence the self-interests of the parties will preclude unreasonable rates.

It is quite otherwise with railroads, which to a large extent monopolize the trade in the districts through which they run. There is always a tendency to raise rates in such localities. If then between competing points the railroads were permitted to combine upon their rates competition would be completely suppressed. But such a situation can never arise upon the ocean.

For these reasons and for others which have been pointed out, ocean transportation is sui generis.

It follows that the reasons which render combinations to regulate rates an unreasonable restraint of trade in the case of railroads, do not apply in the case of ocean transportation. The true limit of reasonable restraint is not the same in one as in the other. Accordingly, under the rule of reason, the same stringency should not be applied in the one case as in the other.

The evils of unrestricted competition in ocean transportation have been pointed out over and over again, not only in the evidence of the witnesses which appears in this record, but in Governmental Investigations and in the studies of economists.

We are dealing here with a subject of world-wide interest, where long experience has resulted in the evolution of effective modes of regulating this special phase of commerce, which have been found to be free from serious evils.

In the report of the Alexander Committee, referred to more fully later on, it is said (Vol. 4, p. 417):

> "Steamship line representatives, as well as the patrons of the lines, were almost a unit in emphasizing to the Committee the importance and necessity of the aforementioned advantages of agreements and conferences, and in asserting that these advantages can only be effected by permitting the several lines in a given trade to coöperate in the regulation of their rates and the expeditious handling of their business. Very > few of the many exporters and importers, who communicated with the Committee, were opposed to agreements and conferences in themselves, provided they are fairly and honestly conducted."

Referring to this report as a whole, the Court below in its opinion said:

> "There is nothing to add to the elaborate presentation of all sides of the controversy which will be found in that report, and we find it most persuasive to the conclusion that in view of the peculiarities of ocean transportation, the method adopted by the defendants—if purged of its obnoxious feature, the "fighting ship"—is a reasonable one, which, so far from restraining trade, really fosters and protects it by giving it a stability which insures more satisfactory public service for all concerned."

Long before the Sherman Anti-Trust Law was enacted, and for more than a quarter of a century since, agreements between ocean carriers to regulate the business in which they are competitors had been adopted in the trade of practically every maritime nation. There is submitted in the record a digest of decisions of the German Imperial Court (Vol. 10, beginning with Deft.'s Ex. 19-a, p. 4952, and extending to p. 5000) together with the Imperial laws and regulations, from which it will appear that agreements similar to that before the Court were valid under the German law before the adoption of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law; and testimony was introduced as to the German law by the witness Mr. Schnitzler, a doctor of laws of the University of Leipsig (13 R. 1764), and that the agreement here in question is valid under that law. Testimony that the agreement is valid under the English and Canadian law was given by Mr. Isidor Frederick Helmuth, one of His Majesty's counsel in the Province of Ontario and a member of the Bar in England (13 R. 1835), and the accuracy of his statement of the laws is supported by the following authorities:

Attorney General v. Adelaide S. S. Co., 1913 A. C. 781;
Mogul S. S. Co. v. MacGregor, 1892 A. C. 25;
Northwestern Salt Co. Ltd. v. Electrolytic Alkali Co. 1914 A. C. 461.

That the consensus of opinion of those best qualified to judge is that, in the absence of international supervision, it is in the general interest of trade and commerce that competing carriers may agree to regulate the trade by maintaining reasonable and uniform rates so as to secure stability and that they may for a like purpose also adopt other regulations as to sailings, exchange of vessels and other provisions usually contained in conference agreements, is established by the evidence in this case and seems no longer open to doubt.

3. The History of the Legislation.

The interpretation of the statute for which we contend is borne out in our opinion, by the history of the bill while in Congress, which may be dealt with briefly. It was introduced by Senator Sherman on the 14th of August, 1888, and was a bill to declare unlawful trusts and combinations in restraint of trade and production. After the enacting clause, the bill as introduced read:

> "That all arrangements, contracts, agreements, trusts or combinations between persons or corporations made with a view or which tend to prevent full and free competition in the production, manufacture or sale of articles of domestic growth or production or of the sale of articles imported into the United States, and all arrangements, contracts, agreements, trusts or combinations between persons or corporations designed or which tend to advance the cost to the consumer of any of such articles are hereby declared to be against public policy, unlawful and void."

After providing for suits for damages by persons injured, the statute proceeds:

> "And any corporation doing business within the United States that acts or takes part in any such arrangement, contract, agreement, trust or combination shall forfeit its corporate franchise and it shall be the duty of the District Attorney of the United States of the district in which such corporation exists or does business to institute proceedings to enforce such forfeiture."

Section 2 provided for suits for damages, and Section 3 provided a penalty for violation, making it a high misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000 or by imprisonment in a penitentiary for a term of not more than five years or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the Court.

A second bill introduced by him was evidently intended to apply only to imported articles.

On August 14, 1888, Mr. Sherman introduced a third anti-trust bill which denounced all arrangements, contracts, etc., which tend to prevent full and free competition in the importation, transportation or the sale of articles imported into the United States, or in the production, manufacture or sale of articles of domestic growth or production of domestic raw material that in due course of trade shall be transported from one territory or state to another, and declaring void and against public policy all arrangements, contracts, agreements, trusts or combinations between persons or corporations designed or which tend to advance the cost to the consumer of any such article. By the second section he gave parties injured a right to sue for treble damages.

As introduced by Mr. Sherman, the bill was advocated by him and after weeks of debate on the importance of full and free competition, a short but epochal speech was made by Senator Platt, of Connecticut, in which he demonstrated that unrestricted competition was the death, not the life, of trade and commerce, calling attention to the fact that each of the great trusts which had been mentioned in the debate were built upon the graves of smaller but prosperous concerns engaged in the same business, done to death by full and free competition. At the close of that speech the bill was referred to the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, with instructions to report it within twenty days, and within that period the bill was reported which became the law as it is upon the statute books to-day. In this bill the words "full and free competition" were eliminated, and the words "trade and commerce", which were not in any of the bills introduced by Mr. Sherman, were substituted.

On page 303 of a volume entitled "Bills and Debates Relating to Trusts", prepared by direction of the Attorney General and printed by the Government Printing Office in 1903, is contained the bill as it was referred to the Committee, with every line of it crossed out and the substitute therefor printed, and is followed by the bill reported from the Judiciary Committee which was passed by the Congress.

4. Reasonable Rates.

The petition alleges that excessive and arbitrary rates are charged by the defendants for steerage transportation. No evidence in support of this allegation has been submitted. The Government now takes the position that the allegation is immaterial and contents itself with an attempt to show that the defendants' evidence does not establish that such rates are reasonable.

Mr. Drake, the executive officer of the Panama

Steamships, owned by the Panama Railroad Company, which is owned and controlled by the United States, and which are run in connection with the Panama Railroad Company, by the Government, stated that in his opinion a steamship line has to earn from 12 per cent. to 20 per cent. to make it equivalent to 6 per cent. earned by a railroad (13 R. 1663). The rates charged by the Government for the carriage of emigrants from New York to Colon, a distance of 1800 miles is $30. Taking this as a criterion, the rate of $35 or $40 for carriage from Europe to the United States, a distance of 3,000 miles, would show that the steamship rates are certainly reasonable.

The evidence of Mr. Richard, who was called as a witness on behalf of the defendants, who has been in the steamship business forty years and had represented the Hamburg-American, Union, Hausa, Austro-Americano, Prince, Secula-Americana, Lloyd Italiano, New York, Continental Russian Volunteer, and North West Transport lines, is that the rates charged by the steamship companies are very reasonable (12 R. 814).

Mr. Winter, who was called by the defendants, passenger manager of North German Lloyd since 1885, testified that the rates were now slightly higher than in the early eighties, but that the passenger received a good deal more for his money than he did twenty years, or even fifteen years ago. There is a decided change in the quality and condition of the service (13 R. 1740). The evidence shows that the cost of ship building has gone up a marked degree (Lister, 13

R. 1509); wages have largely increased (1508); the cost of provisions and coal has advanced, and the emigrant receives proportionately much more than formerly.

Again, if we compare the rates charged by the steamship companies with those charged by the Italian lines which are fixed by Government regulation, it will be found that they compare favorably. The Italian rates are $37 to $42 (12 R. 937).

It appears also that the profits earned by the steamship lines, so far as they are reflected in the evidence, are extremely moderate. The Cunard Line has paid dividends on its actual capital averaging about 2.81 per cent. during the thirty years previous to 1912; 3.31 per cent. during the ten years prior to that date and 2.75 per cent. since the making of agreement AA (Lister, 13 R. 1516).

The Canadian Pacific has earned about 7 per cent. upon its capital, not deducting depreciation, which would reduce the net earnings to about 3 per cent. (13 R. 1599, 1600).

The dividends on the Hamburg-American Line are shown in Exhibit 24 (10 R. 5102) and average 6.95 per cent.

The dividends on the North German Lloyd are shown in Exhibit 21 (10 R. 5094) and average 6.04 per cent.

We submit with entire confidence that this record shows not only that the rates charged have not been extortionate or unreasonable, and that the purpose and effect of the agreement has not been to increase rates, but, on the contrary, that the rates have been reasonable and stable, and that without such agreement they would have been neither.

5. Pooling agreements respecting passengers.

In the dissenting opinion in United States v. Freight Association (166 U. S. 364), the Justice writing the opinion refers to the reports of the Interstate Commerce Commission and cites statements from those reports "indicating that agreements among carriers, competitive as well as connecting, for the purpose of securing a uniform classification and preventing of undercutting of rates, under-billing, etc., existed prior to the Interstate Commerce Act, were continued thereafter and were deemed not to be forbidden by law, but on the contrary were considered as instruments tending to secure its successful evolution". By the fifth section of the Interstate Commerce Act pooling of freights of competing roads is prohibited, and this section is commented upon in the decision just referred to. It is to be noted that the inhibition in respect to pooling is confined to freight and does not extend to passengers. In the opinion of the Interstate Commerce Commission In the Matter of Transportation of Immigrants from New York and other Atlantic Ports to Western Destinations (10 I. C. R. 13) this omission of a prohibition in respect to pooling passengers is referred to. That reported opinion was occasioned by the practice referred to above of distributing immigrants at the port of destination at the City of New York among the trunk Railroad lines in equal proportions.

The Inter-State Commerce Act does not prohibit the apportionment of passengers by a pooling agreement among railroad companies engaged in inter-state and foreign transportation of passengers. Section 5 of that Act, generally known as the Anti-Pooling section, is as follows:

> "SEC. 5. That it shall be unlawful for any common carrier subject to the provisions of this Act to enter into any contract, agreement, or combination, with any other common carrier or carriers for the pooling of freights of different and competing railroads, or to divide between them the aggregate or net proceeds of the earnings of such railroads, or any portion thereof; and in case of an agreement for the pooling of freights as aforesaid, each day of its continuance shall be deemed a separate offense."

The pooling of freights is forbidden, but not the pooling of passengers, and, therefore, under the rule expressio unius, exclusio alterius, the pooling of passengers is permitted.

For many years, with full notice to, and co-operation by the Government, the immigrants brought hither from foreign ports by the defendant lines have been divided by agreement among the railroad carriers for transportation to their destination.

Matter of Transportation of Immigrants, 10 I. C. R. R. 13.

In general the agreement of the steamship lines in the Western Passenger Association results in the delivery of all passengers holding immigrant rail orders to the rail lines as nearly as may be in equal proportions, the Railway Companies paying to the Steamship Company a percentage upon the through rate from New York to destination as commission. The conclusion of the Commission was stated as follows (p. 27):

> "The circumstances and conditions of this immigration traffic were not considered by the framers of the Act at the time of its passage. Out of it there appears to arise no injustice to domestic shippers or passengers unless by it there be restraint of competition resulting in higher passenger rates than would otherwise prevail. While large in the aggregate, it is insignificant in comparison with our general traffic, only ten or twelve per cent passing beyond the Western termini of the trunk lines. There is no discrimination as against individuals, classes or localities, since the immigrants are forwarded at domestic published rates. From the viewpoint of expediency there would seem to be no cause for interference in the hope of righting any great wrong to individuals or interests or in creating a better condition for the immigrants themselves or in respect to the importation of diseases or undesirable immigrants. These considerations would perhaps have no place in the determination of the matters involved if the law were free from doubt, it being our duty to enforce the same as it is found."

This pooling arrangement, which has been found to be of great value to immigrants arriving at Ellis Island, as appears from the testimony in this case (post p. 63), has continued until the present time, and is thus recognized as being expedient and as not obnoxious to the pooling provision of the Interstate Commerce Law.

At the time when the Sherman Anti-Trust Law was enacted, therefore, in 1890, there was a distinction recognized between pooling arrangements regarding freight and passengers, and it may justly be inferred that Congress recognized this distinction as based upon reasonable grounds existing in the nature of the business. The restraint of competition with regard to one subject matter was deemed injurious to the public interest where a similar restraint with regard to the other subject matter was not so regarded.

In Cosmopolitan Shipping Co. v. Hamburg-American Packet Co. (13 I. C. R. 266), the petitioner undertook to bring before the Commission by way of complaint what was known as the "Baltic Pool", an alleged illegal pooling of freight by the defendant and other steamship companies, and it was held that the Commission had no jurisdiction over the subject of ocean rates.

6. Report of the Alexander Committee.

The report of the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries in the investigation of shipping combinations (63rd Congress, Second Session, Doc. 805), known as the Alexander Committee, was made pursuant to a resolution of the House of Representatives. That committee examined a large number of witnesses representing various lines, some of which had agreements or affiliations with other lines and some of which were independent. They examined eighty agreements or understandings involving practically all the regular steamship lines operating on nearly every American foreign trade route.

Steerage agreements similar to that in this case are described as follows (Vol. 4, p. 23):

> "The steerage agreements allot to each line a certain percentage of the total traffic moving via certain ports, and operate on the plan that if one of the lines finds itself carrying far in excess of what it knows is its allotted percentage it must temporarily raise its rates, thus automatically throwing the excess business coming to itself to some other line which is falling short of its share of the total traffic. As soon as the line raises its rates it advises the Secretary of the Conference of the raise who at once communicates the fact to all the other lines. The several lines also obligate themselves to furnish weekly traffic statistics to the Secretary of the Conference, who keeps accounts of the same for all lines and furnishes the results to all the members of the Conference. In this way every line knows from time to time the relative standing of the other lines, as far as their share of the total traffic is concerned. In case any line exceeding its allotted share should not seek to divert traffic from itself by raising rates, it may be compelled to do so by Conference action.

"Mr. P. A. S. Franklin, Vice President of the International Mercantile Marine Company, in his testimony before the Committee (Vol. 1, p. 582) emphasized the fact that no line is permitted to reduce its rate below a certain minimum in order to obtain a stipulated share of the business, and that the spirit of the agreement is not to reduce rates, but, instead, to have any line exceeding its share advance its rates with a view to letting the other lines take the business. Moreover, if at the end of certain periods the accounts show that some lines carried in excess of their allotted portion, the agreements compel them to pay into a pool a certain sum per excess passenger for the benefit of the lines which carried less than their proportion. It therefore follows that a line exceeding its proportion might as well force the business to the other lines by raising its rates instead of carrying the business and paying back the money into the pool. It also follows that it is not to the interest of any line to cut rates below the minimum, because, according to the pooling arrangement, if it is not obtaining its share of the business, it is, nevertheless, getting its share of the money. On the other hand, there is no incentive for any line to acquire more than its share of the traffic, because, as Mr. Franklin testified, 'the line which is getting an excess of business is putting out more money and effort and is using that capital and obtaining no return on it.'

"Thus it is seen that the steerage agreements have been so arranged that the various lines will find it to their interest to carry exactly those proportions of the traffic which they considered a fair division and which they bargained to give each other. To do otherwise, it is argued, would mean that the line which brings new ships into the trade would have them filled all the time, and that the lines with the most powerful financial backing would acquire much more than their fair share of the trade, thus bringing the situation to a question of the survival of the fittest. It has been ably argued before the Committee by Mr. Franklin and others that it has always been their experience that it is most difficult for each of a large number of lines operating under different conditions and from numerous competing ports and running different types of vessels—some old and some new—to maintain a fair percentage of the business unless they agree to combine and limit their actions. The concensus of the testimony before the Committee has been to the effect that the only practicable method of securing a fair share of business for all the lines, thus preserving the weaker ones, and of substituting harmony in place of discord and cut-throat competition, is through some form of pooling as just described, and that the primary purpose of such pooling agreements is to maintain a reasonable price and prevent the line or lines with unlimited capital for development from ultimately acquiring the whole business.

"It should also be noted that the steerage traffic agreements are in the nature of bargains between the lines, usually made for a few years only, and thereafter to continue from year to year unless discontinued. The agreements, in other words, are not made forever, and this fact is important in relation to the oft-repeated assertion that such agreements eliminate all competition or furnish no inducement for certain lines to obtain their share of the business. Minimum rates, it is true, are established in all the trades; but it is also true that if a line demonstrates over a period of years that it cannot carry its percentage of the traffic it may, at the next revision of the agreement, five or ten years later, be unable to prevent a reduction in its allotted percentage of the trade. From the standpoint of future bargaining, therefore, it is every line's desire to carry its full percentage of the business and to demonstrate that it is entitled to its allotted share. As a result, there is always very keen competition between the lines in the solicitation of business in order to maintain their percentage." (Italic ours.)

The conclusions reached by the Committee are in part stated as follows:

"In formulating its recommendations it became apparent to the Committee, in view of all the facts presented, that only two courses of action were open for adoption. Either the agreements and understandings, now so universally used, may be prohibited with a view to attempting the restoration of unrestricted competition, or the same may be recognized along lines which would eliminate existing disadvantages and abuses. It is claimed that the adoption of the first course—the prohibition of co-operative arrangements between practically all the lines in nearly all the divisions of our foreign trade—would not only involve a wholesale disturbance of existing conditions in the shipping business but would deprive American exporters and importers of the advantages claimed as resulting from agreements and conferences if honestly and fairly conducted, such as greater regularity and frequency of service, stability and uniformity of rates, economy in the cost of service, better distribution of sailings, maintenance of American and European rates to foreign markets on a parity, and equal treatment of shippers through the elimination of secret arrangements and underhanded methods of discrimination. (A classification of the advantages claimed as resulting from the aforementioned factors is presented on pp. 295 to 303 of the foregoing report.)

"These advantages, the Committee believes, can be secured only by permitting the several lines in any given trade to co-operate through some form of rate and pooling arrangement under Government supervision and control. It is the view of the Committee that open competition cannot be assured for any length of time by ordering existing agreements terminated. The entire history of steamship agreements shows that in ocean commerce there is no happy medium between war and peace when several lines engage in the same trade. Most of the numerous agreements and conference arrangments discussed in the foregoing report were the outcome of rate wars, and represent a truce between the contending lines. To terminate existing agreements would necessarily bring about one of two results: the lines would either engage in rate wars which would mean the elimination of the weak and the survival of the strong, or, to avoid a costly struggle, they would consolidate through common ownership. Neither result can be prevented by legislation, and either would mean a monopoly fully as effective, and it is believed more so, than can exist by virtue of an agreement. Moreover, steamship agreements and conferences are not confined to the lines engaging in the foreign trade of the United States. They are as universally used in the foreign trade of other countries as in our own. The merchants of these countries now enjoy the foregoing advantages of co-operative arrangements, and to restore open and cutthroat competition among the lines serving the United States would place American exporters at a disadvantage in many markets as compared with their foreign competitors."

7. International Conference.

The International Institute of Agriculture is a permanent Government institution created by treaties signed June 7, 1905, between the United States and fifty-three other nations. The Institute is authorized and directed, among other things, to submit to the approval of the Governments measures for the protection of the common interests of farmers. Mr. David Lubin is the American delegate. At the last Congress a resolution was adopted instructing the American delegate to present to the permanent committee of the Institute for action certain resolutions, among others instructing the Institute to invite the adhering governments to participate in an international conference on the subject of steadying the world's price of the stables. This resolution was adopted September 15, 1914, and approved by the President September 24, 1914 (Pub. Res. No. 50, 63d Con., 38 Statutes, 779). In support of this resolution there was laid before the House a paper which had been submitted by Mr. Lubin before the Committee on Foreign Affairs, which contains matter that serves to illuminate the subject under investigation. He says:

> "Experience has made it plain over and over again that in the world of industry there is just one field in which competition, if allowed to operate, leads in the end to the reductio ad absurdum of the whole competitive system. The field that I refer to is that of transportation; competition in transportation impedes and interferes with the free play of competition in other and important fields. This fact has been brought home so clearly to the American people that they have enacted laws excluding the railway carriers from the domain of competition by placing the regulation and control of rates in the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the same reasoning that holds good for the regulation and control of railroad rates by an Interstate Commerce Commission would, as was shown before, likewise hold good for the regulation and control of ocean carriers through an International Commerce Commission."

A curious circumstance is that complaint is made that staple articles are not covered by rate agreements between the carriers, with the result that rates for staple articles (meaning by "staple articles", bulky articles such as grain, flour, etc.) fluctuate violently from day to day, whereas on package traffic, which is covered by steamship regulation, rates can be changed only upon thirty or sixty days notice and therefore are more stable.

Since no International Commission is now in existence or is likely to be in existence for many years to come, there remains no way in which rates can be regulated between ocean carriers unless it be by mutual agreement. No law which Congress might pass could reach the situation, since the utmost that could be provided would be to prohibit foreign vessels from landing at our ports if they violated statutory requirements or by penalties which might produce the same result.

8. Necessity for and beneficial effect of Conference Agreement.

In reply to the uniform opinion expressed by the witnesses and by experts as to the necessity for and the benefits which result from the regulation of business by such a system as that embodied in the participation agreement, the petitioner relies upon cases which may each have been properly decided, having regard to the subject matter and the circumstances of the particular case, but which we contend are not authority here because of the inherent nature of the business and the exigencies which surround it. It is said (Petn. brief, p. 114) that it is not established that ruinous or even excessive competition would break out if there were no regulation. But the opinion of the witnesses who have been examined, both for the Government and for the defendants, is to the contrary. They uniformly concur in the statement that ocean carriage cannot be conducted under modern conditions without some form of co-operative agreement between the carriers (Lister, 13 R. 1564; Winter, 13 R. 1739; Hannah, 13 R. 1484; Cauty, 12 R. 1096, 1097; Richard, 12 R. 790, 938). The fundamental reason for the opinion given by each of the witnesses, is that experience demonstrates that such conference agreements alone bring about stability in the trade (Lister, 13 R. 1520). This is important to the emigrant, because while a fluctuating rate may at one time enable him to pay a low price, at another time he is required to pay an exorbitantly high price. It is important to the shipping lines, because it enables them to make a forecast for the future and to safely contract for the building of new and improved ships (13 R. 1502). Fluctuating rates have a tendency also to induce immigration of a low grade of persons who are undesirable citizens (Hannah, 13 R. 1485); Lister, 13 R. 1557; Winter, 13 R. 1752). All these are matters of public interest. It is also a matter of public interest that competitive warfare should not be carried to the extreme of driving the weaker competitor out of the business. The evidence shows that that has been a result of excessive competition with regard to a number of famous lines, notably the Guion Line, the National Line, the Inman Line, all of which perished from unregulated competition (Hannah, 13 R. 1436).

Mr. Hannah, who was formerly connected with the Inman Line and is now passenger manager of the Allan Line, testified as follows (13 R. 1436):

> "Q. I will put this question to you and you may illustrate it by your experience—I think you have sufficiently shown that you are an expert—whether or not it is necessary that there should be understandings among steamship lines by way of regulating competition? A. I certainly believe it is absolutely necessary.
>
> Q. Now go on and tell me why from your experience you believe it necessary. A. The Inman Company with which I was identified from 1869 until it went out of existence, was at one time one of the most prosperous lines, and it was followed into business by the National Line, established to do the same class of business, and later by the Guion Line. Those three lines were strong lines in the trans-Atlantic trade; they all perished because of unregulated competition. I might add to that also the Monarch Line, which came into business later, and still later the State Line. So there are five lines that perished in the trans-Atlantic trade. Five out of eight British lines that did not survive.

Q. What do you mean by perished? A. They were driven out of business; they failed; they became bankrupt.

Q. And were picked up by other lines? A. Some of them were and some of them were simply abandoned. The National Line was bought up, and I think the present Atlantic Transport Line is the lineal successor of the National Line, and the Guion Line has no successor; it has simply gone out of existence. * * * Competition, fighting rates down sometimes as low as ten dollars, which meant less than $8 to the steamship company for carrying a passenger 3,000 miles, and the heavy cost of running the ship; steerage traffic not bearing its proportion of that cost; the ships running at a loss, soon exhausted the resources of the company, and they went out of existence one after another. And only the stronger ones lived and then indeed those that were strong at one time became weak and finally, as I have said, failed.

Q. And that was due to no cause except unrestricted competition? A. None at all, no, sir. Of course we have had commercial depressions which added to the strength of the competition, and what is true of New York here is equally true in Montreal, where we have now only one of the three original lines today, the one with which I am at present identified; there were three and now there is only one of those three.

Q. What three were they? A. The three were the Allan Line and the Dominion Line and the Beaver Line. Now, there is no Beaver Line now, and the Dominion Line has been absorbed by the White Star or the American National Mercantile Marine——

Q. Were those lines prosperous lines at one time? A. At one time they enjoyed a fair degree of prosperity. I don't think they were ever strong lines, and they lasted in Montreal—I think one of them for probably 25 years—both of them nearly that length of time, and then went out.

Q. What was the cause of their going out of business? A. Over competition; unregulated rates * * * to-day our rates for steamers that make the passage in five or six days' less time, and are three times as large as those were, and I suppose ten times as well fitted up, our present rate is $31.25, or $8.75 less than they were back in 1869.

Q. What was furnished to the steerage passengers at the time you mention? A. In my earlier days in this business the steerage passenger had to buy what is called his own outfit; these outfits were sold on the wharf here in New York, and at Liverpool and Glasgow—wherever the steamer sailed from. The bundle was tied together, consisting of a mattress, blanket and a pillow, and a tin pan and a tin pail for washing in, and knife and fork and spoon and a cup, and the whole of that cost ten shillings, or $2.50. The passenger carried it on board on his back or his arm and it was abandoned when he left the ship—thrown overboard. That really had to be > added to the price of his passage, so what I called $40 cost him $42.50. They were absolutely necessary. The food was carried around in large tin pans and the steward dug a fork into the pan and put a chunk of beef on his tin plate, filled his cup with coffee or tea, as the case might be and passed on to the next."

The Court will find on pages 1439-1440, from this same witness, a delineating comparison of the accommodations afforded at the higher rate before 1860, or at all events from 1860 to 1880.

It is also worthy of comment that the views expressed by the shipping men who were called as witnesses are corroborated by the opinions of the Committee appointed by Congress to investigate the shipping combinations, (the Alexander Committee), and by the unanimous judgment of the four Judges of the Second Circuit, three of whom have spent the larger part of their lives in the study of the law of shipping, and who are perhaps as competent as men well can be to pass upon the reasonableness of the system placed in operation under the participation agreement.

POINT III.

The agency restriction.

We have previously stated (supra, p. 16) the terms of the regulation (conference rule 9, 5 R. 2285), which prohibits conference agents from booking passengers for any steamer other than those in the conference lines. The Government complains that this is a true secondary "boycott", a combination to coerce A to cease dealing with B, in order to injure B. But manifestly this is not so. There is no attempt on the part of the conference lines to interefere in any way with the agent of any independent line. They simply bargain for the exclusive service of their own agents. Indeed, under well known principles, it would be a violation of the duty of the agent to accept inconsistent employment from a competitor. There seems to be no reason why one cannot bargain for the exclusive services of an agent or why several persons jointly may not bargain for such exclusive service.

Apart from this, the record shows that the careful selection of steamship agents in the immigrant business, and a rigid control over them, are extremely important in protecting the interests of the immigrant class, a class particularly liable to imposition by reason oftentimes of their ignorance of the language and their unfamiliarity with business. Mr. Hannah described the conditions which existed forty years ago at the City of New York and which continued until the conference took hold of it and stopped the payment of commissions to runners (13 R. 1451, 1453). These regulations prohibit agents from cutting rates (Nyland, 11 R. 498), in order not to discriminate against the public. Stable rates are particularly needed where tickets are sold by a horde of agents. One of the reasons for the regulation of agents is well stated by Mr. Winter when he says:

> "If I have an agent whom I have educated up in the business and on whom I have spent a good deal of money, I do not propose to have somebody else whom I do not know and who is inimical to us come in and avail himself of his services and cut into our business" (13 R. 1743).

This we think is ordinary business prudence, which requires no further justification.

The Effect of Agency Regulation.

Mr. Hannah, who is connected with the Allan Line Steamship Company, testified that he had been in the steamship business in New York and Canada nearly all his life. He said that the agency system had been in operation as long as there had been any steamship companies running. The difficulty that existed, say, forty years ago in New York was that anybody, almost, could get a commission on a steamship ticket. He said he knew of a policeman making $30. a day by running passengers into the steamship offices and getting $3. for every one he brought into the office.

He said that he had known in Liberty Street where there were two or three what they called "bunco" offices, where passengers were run in to get their tickets and money exchanged, and who got half-sovereigns for sovereigns and pieces of lead for money; that they attempted to prosecute these places many times; that along Wall Street there were "bunco" shops, and exchange offices, so-called, for roping in emigrants. This state of affairs existed in New York from 1870 to 1880.

One of the good things about the Conference is that it has stopped the swindling of emigrants. The agents at that time were irresponsible. They simply swindled the emigrants for a living, but the better class of them got an agent's commission of $3. One effect of the agency system has been that the emigrant has not been swindled. The agreement between the steamship lines in conference stopped the payment of commissions to runners at the boarding houses and places such as these exchange offices, and stopped the payment of commissions to any and everybody except authorized agents, who hold the company's ticket and a commission only is paid on the agency ticket by the agent to the passenger. Under the old system the passenger was sometimes booked for one vessel when he thought he was booked for another vessel and the runner would get a higher price (3 R. 1451).

Another mischief that was corrected by the agency agreement was the sale of tickets by certain steamship companies and then procuring lower rates by clubbing the tickets together (13 R. 1489-91).

Circulars and Publications.

Criticism is also made of the regulation in Article 16 which reads as follows:

> "No circulars or publications shall be issued by any line reflecting upon or instituting comparisons with any Conference line unfavorable to the latter, and no party hereto shall support any newspaper which may systematically attack any Conference line."

We submit that no sinister or dishonest purpose can be found in this regulation. No party is precluded from advertising the advantages or benefits which it has to afford the public. Freedom of competition ought not to be carried so far as to require that unfavorable comment should be made upon one's competitors, and, surely, no persons should be required to support a newspaper which systematically attacks him or those with whom he is associated, or to furnish advertisements to such newspapers.

POINT IV.

The commercial allowances.

The agreement between the Western Railroad Association and the steamship lines which provides for the payment of a commission allowance on all westbound passengers holding inland emigrant rail orders, landing at Ellis Island and ticketed by railroad lines at Ellis Island have been already cited (supra, p. 18). The passenger purchases at the same time both his passage by ship and also his railroad ticket to his destination, or from his place of purchase to the shipping port. These tickets are sold by the ship's agent, and for this service the railroad makes an allowance to the conference (Sandford, 11 R. 364, 369). The benefits of this arrangement are detailed by Mr. McCain (12 R. 877):

> "The reason for the carriers making the commercial allowances to the railroads, which they think they are fully justified in doing, is that they act in the capacity of agents. The only thing, the financial feature, touched upon as part of the agency's service, is the furnishing of our tariffs to the emigrant, and I presume they are translated in certain countries, to some extent, where they are needed, and all of that is regarded by the carrier as an agency service, for which they think they are fully justified in receiving compensation by commission."

The steamship agent abroad sells the railroad ticket (12 R. 2626) or an order for it. The method in which this business is conducted at Ellis Island is detailed by Mr. McCain (12 R. 848): the railroads have an agency at Ellis Island, where they are tenants of the United States Government. As the emigrants are passed by the Government they are cared for by the agents of the railroads, among whom they are apportioned equally as nearly as may be. They are thus assisted without being left unprotected in a strange land. The benefits of the system to the emigrant are those described by Mr. McCain, who is the Chairman of the Trunk Line Association:

> "If the present arrangements of agency service as performed by the steamship companies throughout the interior foreign countries, was interfered with, that might be found to be a disadvantage to the emigrant, and it is assumed if this allowance were not made, there might be some curtailment of that service, when it seems to be an advantage to the emigrant to be able to get his tickets abroad for his entire journey; and if the arrangement as at present in effect were disturbed, why some other form of agency would probably have to be established so that the emigrant might get his through ticket; and to that extent indirectly it might be considered that the emigrant was benefited by the paying of the allowance for what the carriers term and consider an agency service, and which the steamship companies employ in order to furnish the emigrants with their through tickets and arrangements" (12 R. 872).

The issues raised by the petition and answer do not present for consideration the propriety of these commercial allowances.

The petition, while specifying the grounds of complaint as to specific methods of unfair competition, does not allude to this subject. The evidence as it was offered was objected to as not within the issues and we submit that it was improperly admitted and should now be disregarded.

POINT V.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company, owning and operating a line of steamships sailing from Canadian ports, denied in its answer the allegation of the petition that it is a "common carrier of passengers and freight, including third class or steerage passengers, between the ports in the United States and ports or points in Europe, Asia or Africa". It admits that it carries from certain inland points to the United States persons to whom it has sold contracts for steerage transportation on its steamers sailing from Canadian ports to the port of Liverpool in England, but avers that the contracts for such railroad transportation are entirely separate and distinct from said contract for steerage transportation. It denies that in respect to any commerce in which it is engaged or otherwise it is violating or has violated in any way any of the provisions of the Act of Congress of the United States entitled "An Act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies", approved July 2, 1890 (11 R. 204).

It appears from the evidence that this defendant operates in the United States about 197 miles of road (13 R. 1589).

Its steamships do not go into or sail from any port of the United States (Kerr, 13 R. 1590-1592). Its participation under the agreement A-A is confined to east-bound traffic (Kerr, 13 R. 1591; A-A Agmt., Art. 3, 11 R. 41).

The defendant contends that it is not liable in this suit for the reasons:

1. That the Sherman Act cannot be applied extra-territorially as to foreign citizens, and that none of its business affected by the participation agreement or, if any, an insignificant portion, is transacted in the United States.

2. That it had given notice of its withdrawal from the participation agreement before the institution of this suit, and that the withdrawal became effective long before the making of the decree.

3. Steerage passengers are shipped from Montreal or Quebec to Liverpool and from Liverpool they are delivered at Quebec, where, under the Canadian law, immigrants must land (13 R. 1632). The Canadian Pacific Railway runs a few short lines into the United States, one to Holton, in Maine, a distance of three miles (13 R. 1633); another to Presque Isle, a distance of 29.2 miles, and another into the State of Vermont, a distance of 21 miles (13 R. 1633, 1634).

The main line from Montreal to Halifax runs a part of the way through the State of Maine, in all not exceeding 150 miles (13 R. 163). When the St. Lawrence is closed in Winter by reason of the ice, passengers are sent by rail from Montreal to Halifax, and a part of this line, as we have said, runs over American territory.

When tickets are sold in the United States, if the passenger desires to go to a European port, he will be sold a railroad ticket to Montreal and a steamship ticket from Montreal to Liverpool and an order for his railroad trip from Liverpool to his point of destination in England (Kerr, 13 R. 1594). Mr. Kerr describes fully the modus operandi in the sale of a ticket from Chicago (13 R. 1594). The only portion of the transportation of an immigrant eastward from Halifax to Montreal which could come within the operation of the participation agreement, would be so much of the rail route as is in the State of Maine. This is utilized during some parts of the Winter months, as we have stated. At other times the traffic is exclusively between the Canadian and English ports. As to this latter traffic there seems to be no reason to doubt that it is extra-territorial and not within the penal or other provisions of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U. S. 347.

There is no doubt that in entering into the agreement this defendant had no intention of violating the laws of the United States. Mr. Kerr says:

> "We never dreamed that we would be in any breach of any law of the United States, not operating ships to and from ports in the United States in connection with this business. But when we found that the United States Government was not pleased over the arrangement, why that had an influence with us of course, in cancelling this arrangement" (13 R. 1593, 1594).

Emigrants arriving at Halifax in the Winter and carried by rail to Montreal are not permitted to leave the train until they reach destination in Canada.

Under these circumstances the most that can be urged is that this Court has the power, if it shall find that the participation agreement is a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, to enjoin the Canadian Pacific from carrying passengers over the portion of their line in this country.

4. The Canadian Pacific served a notice of withdrawal from the participation agreement on November 26, 1910. Three months' notice is required. Accordingly, their connection with the participation agreement ceased March 1, 1911. This is pleaded in the answer of the Company (11 R. 209). The decree in this suit was made November 9, 1914.

The general rule in equity is that equity adapts its relief to the state of facts existing not at the beginning but at the close of litigation.

Randel v. Brown, 2 How. 406.

The Government contends that under the decision in the Trans-Missouri case it is entitled to a decree as of the date of filing of the petition. In that case the party withdrew from the agreement after the decree and pending an appeal.

In the brief for the Government it is said (p. 37):

> "It may be doubted, however, whether there was, in fact, any bona fide withdrawal."

Again (p. 40):

> "We submit, therefore, that there has been no bona fide withdrawal on the part of either the Allan Line, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company or the Russian East Asiatic Company."

In a foot note (pp. 37, 38, 39 and 40), there are citations of testimony from which possibly it might be argued that the withdrawal of the Allan Line was not effective, and that the withdrawal of the Russian East Asiatic Company was not made in good faith; but there is not a syllable of evidence, express or implied, which by any ingenuity can be tortured into a meaning which will call in question the good faith of the action of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

The decree of the Court below should be affirmed.

Respectfully submitted,

SPOONER & COTTON,
Solicitors for Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt-Actien Gesellschaft, The Allan Steamship Company and The Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

October, 1915.

JOHN C. SPOONER,
CHARLES P. SPOONER,
JAMES L. BISHOP,
of Counsel.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA v. HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT.

HAMBURG-AMERIKANISCHE PACKETFAHRT-ACTIEN GESELLSCHAFT, APPELLANTS, v. UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

APPEALS FROM THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

Nos. 289, 332. Argued November 3, 4, 1915.—Decided January 10, 1916.

This court cannot pass upon questions which have, as an inevitable legal consequence of the European War now flagrant, become moot. This court takes judicial notice of the European War and that its inevitable consequence has been to interrupt the steamship business between this country and Europe.

It is a rule of this court based on fundamental principles of public policy not to establish a rule for controlling predicted future conduct; and it will not decide a case, involving a combination alleged to be in violation of the Anti-Trust Act, which has become moot as a legal consequence of war, because of probability of its being recreated on the cessation of war. California v. San Pablo R. R., 149 U. S. 308.

The power of this court cannot be enlarged or its duty affected in regard to the decision of a moot case by stipulation of parties or counsel.

Where a case to dissolve a combination alleged to be illegal under the Anti-Trust Act has become moot and this court has thus been prevented from deciding it upon the merits, and the court below decided against the Government, the course most consonant with justice is to reverse, with directions to dismiss the bill without prejudice to the Government in the future to assail any actual contract or combination deemed to offend the Anti-Trust Act.

216 Fed. Rep. 971, reversed.

THE facts, which involve the construction and application of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act of July 2, 1890 and the practice of this court in regard to cases which have become moot, and the effect of the legal consequence of war, are stated in the opinion.

Mr. G. Carroll Todd, Assistant to the Attorney General, with whom Mr. Thurlow M. Gordon, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, was on the brief for the United States.

Mr. Charles P. Spooner, with whom Mr. John C. Spooner and Mr. James L. Bishop were on the brief for Hamburg American Steamship Company.

Mr. Lucius H. Beers, with whom Mr. Allan B. A. Bradley was on the brief for Cunard Steamship Company and others.

Mr. Charles C. Burlingham, with whom Mr. Roscoe H. Hupper was on the brief for American Line and others.

Mr. Joseph Larocque, with whom Mr. William G. Choate and Mr. Nelson Shipman were on the brief, for North German Lloyd and others.

Mr. Ralph James M. Bullowa for defendants Johnson and Straus, agents of Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company, Ltd., submitted.

MR. CHIEF JUSTICE WHITE delivered the opinion of the court.

The United States on January 4, 1911, commenced this suit to prevent the further execution of an agreement to which the defendants were parties and which it was charged constituted the foundation of an illegal combination in violation of the Anti-Trust Act of July 2, 1890, (26 Stat. 209, c. 647). The relief asked moreover in the nature of things embraced certain subsidiary agreements made during the course of the execution of the main contract in furtherance of its alleged prohibited result. The principal agreement was made in 1908 to last until February 28, 1911, but was to continue in force thereafter from year to year unless not later than December 1st of each year a notice of the intention not to continue was given. On December 3, 1910, however, just a month before this suit was filed, the agreement in question was renewed for a period of five years.

We give from the argument on behalf of the United States a statement of the corporate defendants to the bill, some of whom had become parties to the alleged illegal combination by subsidiary agreement or agreements made at a later date than the original contract.

1. "The Allan Line Steamship Company, Limited, hereafter called the 'Allan Line,' a British corporation, operating from Portland, Boston, and Philadelphia to London, Liverpool, and Glasgow and return.

2. "International Mercantile Marine Company, a New Jersey corporation, operating from New York and Philadelphia to Liverpool and Southampton and return.

3. "Its ships, together with those of its subsidiary company, defendant International Navigation Company, Limited, also operating from New York and Philadelphia to Liverpool and Southampton, . . . are referred to as the 'American Line.' Besides International Navigation Company, Limited, it also controls through stock ownership the defendants British and North Atlantic Steam Navigation Company, Limited, Societe Anonyme de Navigation Belge Americaine, and Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, Limited.

4. "British and North Atlantic Steam Navigation Company, Limited, a British corporation, hereafter called the 'Dominion Line,' operating from Portland to Liverpool and return.

5. "Societe Anonyme de Navigation Belge Americaine, a Belgian corporation, hereafter called the 'Red Star Line,' operating from New York and Philadelphia to Antwerp and return.

6. "Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, Limited, a British corporation, hereafter called the 'White Star Line,' operating from New York and Boston to Liverpool and Southampton and return.

7. "The Anchor Line (Henderson Brothers), Limited, a British corporation, hereafter called the 'Anchor Line,' operating from New York to Glasgow and return.

8. "Canadian Pacific Railway Company, a Canadian corporation, operating a regular line of steamships, hereafter called the 'Canadian Pacific Line,' from Montreal, Quebec, and St. John in the Dominion of Canada to Liverpool, England, and return. It also owns and operates a transcontinental railroad which, partly through branches running into the United States and partly through connections with the Wabash and other American railroads, transports a substantial proportion (12%) of its steamship passengers to and from points in this country.

9. "The Cunard Steamship Company, Limited, a British corporation, hereafter called the 'Cunard Line,' operating from New York and Boston to Liverpool in England, Fiume in Hungary, and Trieste in Austria, and return.

10. "Hamburg-Americkanische Packetfahrt-Actien Gesellschaft, a German corporation, hereafter called the 'Hamburg-American Line,' operating from New York to Hamburg and return.

11. "Nord Deutscher Lloyd, a German corporation, hereafter called the 'North German Lloyd Line,' operating from New York, Baltimore, and Galveston to Bremen and return.

12. "Nederlandsh-Amerikaansche Stoomvaart Maatschapij (Holland-Amerika Lijn), a Netherlands corporation, hereafter called the 'Holland-American Line,' operating between New York and Rotterdam and return.

13. "Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company, a Russian corporation, hereafter called the 'Russian-America Line,' operating between New York and Libau, Russia, and return."

The individuals named as defendants were the principal officers and agents in this country of the corporate defendants. We extract from the argument on behalf of the Government the following statement of the main provisions of the principal agreement.

"(1) The parties guarantee to each other certain definite percentages of the entire steerage traffic carried by them both eastbound and westbound between European ports and the United States and Canada, except Mediterranean passengers.

"(2) Any line exceeding its allotment must pay into the pool a compensation price of £4 for each excess passenger, which sum is to be paid proportionately to the line or lines which have not carried their full quota. It is expressly stated that this provision 'forms one of the main features of the entire contract.'

"(3) Each line must make a weekly report of the number of steerage passengers carried, and from these the secretary of the pool compiles weekly statements showing the pool position of each line. He also prepares each month provisional accounts of the compensation due from lines which have exceeded their quota. This must be paid immediately on pain of heavy penalties. Final settlements are made at the end of each year.

"(4) Each line undertakes to arrange its rates and service in such manner that the number of steerage passengers it actually carries shall correspond as nearly as possible with the number allotted to it by the contract. If any line exceeds its proportion it is in duty bound to adopt measures calculated to bring about a correct adjustment. The other lines may either await the action of the individual line or a majority of the lines representing 75 per cent. of the pool shares can immediately order rates on a plus line to be raised or rates on a minus line to be lowered, and from this order there is no appeal. It is expressly stated, however, that 'all parties were unanimously of the opinion that the adjustment is, whenever practicable, to be effected not by reducing the rates of one Line but on the contrary by raising the rates of one or several of the Lines.

"(5) No line has the right to alter its steerage rates without having previously informed the secretary; i. e., all lines are bound to maintain existing rates until the other pool members are notified.

"(6) No circulars or publications shall be issued by any line reflecting upon or instituting comparisons with any other conference line unfavorable to the latter, and no party shall support (advertise in) any newspaper which shall systematically attack any conference line.

"(7) To insure the faithful performance of the agreement, each line deposits with the secretary a promissory note in the amount of £1,000 for each per cent. of traffic allotted to it in the pool. From this amount penalties may be collected ranging from £250 for smaller infractions to the forfeiture of the entire deposit if the line withdraws from the agreement before its expiration, refuses to pay compensation money, or assists directly or indirectly any opposition line.

"(8) New lines may be admitted or the terms of the agreement altered only by unanimous vote, unless otherwise provided in the contract.

"(9) To assist in the carrying out of the agreement a Secretary was appointed.

"(10) Regular meetings are to be held alternately at London and Cologne for the purpose of carrying out this agreement and agreements collateral thereto. These meetings constitute what is called The Atlantic Conference.

"Representatives of the Atlantic Conference Lines likewise meet in New York in what is called the American Atlantic Conference or New York Conference."

It is to be observed in addition that the agreement expressly provided that the withdrawal of any one of the lines from the contract should release all others from all future obligation unless the others agreed among themselves to continue.

To the elucidation of the view we take of the case it suffices to say that as the result of the answers of the defendants the issues which arose for decision were twofold in character: Did the Anti-Trust Act relate to the business of ocean transportation with which the assailed agreement and those subsidiary to it were concerned; and if so, did the agreements and the conduct of the defendants under them, constitute a violation of the provisions of the Anti-Trust Act?

The court below, although deciding that the ocean transportation covered by the main agreement was under the control of the Anti-Trust Act, yet held that the assailed contract and the action of the parties under it were not within the terms of the act and therefore that the complaint of the Government on that subject was without foundation. The court, however, concluded that a certain subsidiary agreement which had been entered into in the process of the execution of the original agreement had given rise to a practice which was reprobated by the Anti-Trust Act and the further execution of such agreement and the carrying out of the practice under it were by the decree forbidden. The court reached these conclusions upon opinions formed concerning the nature and character of ocean transportation with which the agreement was concerned, the evils which had existed in the traffic and which it was the purpose of the agreement to remedy, the practice of the commercial world in dealing with such transportation in the past, the benefit which had resulted to commerce from the execution of the agreement, the reflex light thrown upon its intent and object by the reasonable rates which had been applied in its execution and many other conditions which had come to pass as a result of the agreement tending to the amelioration of the conditions of steerage travel and the resulting benefaction to the safety, comfort and health of the millions of human beings traveling by steerage, to which class of traffic alone the contract related. (216 Fed. Rep. 971.)

The contentions which presumably were urged in the court below and which it is deemed by the parties here arise for decision will at once appear by giving a brief statement concerning those made on this appeal by the United States and by the defendants as appellees or on a cross appeal. On behalf of the United States it is insisted that the provisions of the Anti-Trust Act govern the subject, that the terms of the agreement constitute a plain violation of that act, that the conduct of the parties under it add additional force to the considerations arising from the text of the contract since it demonstrates that the purpose of the agreement was to destroy competition, to acquire dominion over rates and to fix them as the result of monopoly, and that it is wholly irrelevant to inquire whether in executing the wrongful powers which were acquired by the contract the parties were beneficent in their action, since what the act forbids is the monopoly and the combination for the purpose of obtaining monopoly and there is no distinction in the act between a good monopoly and a bad one. On the other hand, the contentions of the defendants are as follows: First, that conceding the power, it is not to be assumed, in the absence of express declaration to that effect, that the purpose of Congress in the Anti-Trust Act was to extend its authority into foreign countries to prevent the execution in such countries, of contracts which were there legal and which were intended, in view of the conditions there prevailing, to better enable the discharge by ocean carriers of their duty. Second, that it appears from subsequent legislation of Congress that it was not its intention to deal with ocean transportation from and to foreign countries by the Anti-Trust Act, since such transportation was dealt with in subsequent legislation in a manner which persuasively leads to such conclusion. Tariff Act of August 27, 1894, c. 349, §§ 73–77, 28 Stat. 509, 570; Tariff Act of July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 34, 30 Stat. 151, 213; Joint Resolution, September 19, 1914, No. 43, 38 Stat. 779. Third, that in fully investigating and considering the question whether ocean transportation to and from foreign countries was included in the Anti-Trust Act, in an elaborate report a committee of the House of Representatives had expressed conclusions in conflict with the view that the act did apply and had recommended the adoption of legislation to guard against evils in such traffic, if any, and which legislation, if adopted, would be in a large sense incompatible with the conclusion that the Anti-Trust Act was applicable to such transportation.

While this mere outline shows the questions which are at issue and which would require to be considered if we had the right to decide the controversy, it at once further demonstrates that we may not, without disregarding our duty, pass upon them because of their absolute want of present actuality, that is, because of their now moot character as an inevitable legal consequence springing from the European war which is now flagrant—a matter of which we take judicial notice. Montgomery v. United States, 15 Wall. 395; United States v. Lapène, 17 Wall. 601; 7 Moore's International Law Digest, 244, 250. The legal proposition is not in substance controverted, but it is urged in view of the character of the questions and the possibility or probability that on the cessation of war the parties will resume or recreate their asserted illegal combination, we should now decide the controversies in order that by operation of the rule to be established any attempt at renewal of or creation of the combination in the future will be rendered impossible. But this merely upon a prophecy as to future conditions invokes the exercise of judicial power not to decide an existing controversy, but to establish a rule for controlling predicted future conduct, contrary to the elementary principle which was thus stated in California v. San Pablo & Tulare R. R., 149 U. S. 308, 314: "The duty of this court, as of every judicial tribunal, is limited to determining rights of persons or of property, which are actually controverted in the particular case before it. When, in determining such rights, it becomes necessary to give an opinion upon a question of law, that opinion may have weight as a precedent for future decisions. But the court is not empowered to decide moot questions or abstract propositions, or to declare, for the government of future cases, principles or rules of law which cannot affect the result as to the thing in issue in the case before it. No stipulation of parties or counsel, whether in the case before the court or in any other case, can enlarge the power, or affect the duty, of the court in this regard."

See also Lord v. Veazie, 8 How. 251; Cheong Ah Moy v. United States, 113 U. S. 216; Little v. Bowers, 134 U. S. 547; Jones v. Montague, 194 U. S. 147; Security Life Insurance Co. v. Prewitt, 200 U. S. 446; Richardson v. McChesney, 218 U. S. 487; Stearns v. Wood, 236 U. S. 75.

Our attention has indeed been directed to a recent decision in United States v. Prince Line, Limited, 220 Fed. Rep. 230, where although it was recognized that "The combination against which this proceeding is directed, composed of two British and two German steamship companies, has been practically dissolved as a result of the European War," and the questions presented "have become largely academic," the court nevertheless proceeded to consider and dispose of the case on the merits, observing in conclusion, however: "In view of the fact that the logic of events has turned this investigation into an autopsy, instead of a determination of live issues it seems unnecessary to discuss the persuasiveness of the proofs," etc. But we cannot give our implied sanction to what was thus done or accept the persuasiveness of the reasoning upon which the action was based in view of the settled decisions of this court to the contrary and the fundamental principles of public policy upon which they are based. In fact at this term, although we were pressed to take jurisdiction of a cause in a capital case after the death penalty had been inflicted on the accused, we declined to do so and dismissed for want of jurisdiction because the case had become a moot one. Director of Prisons v. Court of First Instance of the Province of Cavite, post, p. 633.

Nor is there anything in United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Association, 166 U. S. 290, and Southern Pacific Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 219 U. S.

498, which conflicts with this fundamental doctrine. In the first, the Trans-Missouri Case, a combination between railroads charged to be illegal was by consent dissolved and it was held that in view of the continued operation of the railroads and the relations between them their mere consent did not relieve of the duty to pass upon the pending charge of illegality under the statute of their previous conduct, since by the mere volition of the parties the combination could come into existence at any moment. Leaving aside some immaterial differences, in terms the ruling in the Southern Pacific Case was based upon the decision in the Trans-Missouri Case. Here on the contrary the business in which the parties to the combination were engaged has by force of events beyond their control ceased and by the same power any continued relation concerning it between them has become unlawful and impossible. The difference between this and the Trans-Missouri Case was clearly laid down in Mills v. Green, 159 U. S. 651, where after announcing the general rule as to the absence of authority to consider a mere moot question and referring to possible exceptions resulting from the fact that the want of actuality had arisen either from the consent of the parties or the action of a defendant, it was declared (p. 654): "But if the intervening event is owing to the plaintiff's own act or to a power beyond the control of either party, the court will stay its hand."

Although it thus follows that there are no issues on the merits before us which we have a right to decide, it yet remains to be determined what our order should be with reference to the decree below rendered, which as we have seen was against the Government and in favor of the assailed combination because it was found not to be within the prohibitions of the Anti-Trust Act. As established by the ruling in South Spring Hill Gold Co. v. Amador Gold Co., 145 U. S. 300, our conclusion on such subject must be reached without at all considering the merits of the cause and must be based solely upon determining what will be "most consonant to justice" in view of the conditions and circumstances of the particular case. Coming to consider the question in that light and in view of the nature and character of the conditions which have caused the case to become moot, we are of opinion that the ends of justice exact that the judgment below should not be permitted to stand when without any fault of the Government there is no power to review it upon the merits, but that it should be reversed and the case be remanded to the court below with directions to dismiss the bill without prejudice to the right of the Government in the future to assail any actual contract or combination deemed to offend against the Anti-Trust Act.

And it is so ordered.

MR. JUSTICE MCREYNOLDS took no part in the consideration or decision of these cases.